Mutual Program

Mutual Weekly, No. 31. (Gaumont-Mutual. One Top. Tues., July 10.—This reel contains more than the usual amount of interest, consequent upon Uncle Sam's entry into the world disturbance. It opens with a vivid view of the arrival of America's vanguard at Paris, France, is followed by pictures of the old Jamestown Exposition site at Norfolk, Va., which was recently bought by the United States to be converted into a training camp. Next we see the cordial reception accorded the Italian war voys, where Prince Udine is seen to be kept remarkably busy saluting; the arrival of the American Army Surveyors at Lisbon, etc. route France; the sports and pastimes indulged in by soldiers at Fort Totten, where a remarkable example of rope throwing is shown, and the end of a perfect day shows the soldiers dancing around a camp fire.

Mutual Weekly, No. 132. (Gaumont-Mutual. One reel. Top. Tues., July 11.—The opening feature of this well-balanced reel is the congressional baseball game at Washington, Democrats versus Republicans; this is followed by a picture showing the arrival of the Dutch warship Zeeland at an American port, on her way to the West Indies, and a real cowboy wedding at Luna Park, Coney Island, performed strictly according to Western rites. One sees the bronchos carrying here and there, the arrival of the bride and groom and after the ceremony, the serenading of the couple by the admiring throng. All this is followed by a great patriotic concert at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, where Sousa's band is shown, accompanied by a crowd of 10,000 children. Then we see the graduating class at Annapolis receiving their diplomas one year ahead of schedule, and the American "tanks" in action at San Francisco, and the final picture shows the partial demolition of the pleasure craft "Christopher Columbus" by the toppling over of a water tank from a five-story building at Milwaukee.

Mutual Tours, No. 35. (Gaumont. One reel. Tues., July 10.—Some Egyptian towns, which include Alexandria, Helipolis, Damietta, El Basrah and Masirah, are depicted here, and the natural beauties of those sandy spots added to their architectural make one picture well worth seeing, for their pastimes, feasts and other festivities are included and all go toward the making of a film of elegance and efficiency; El Morro Castle at Havana, Cuba, is also depicted, and scenes are shown which go a long way toward proving that Havana, with its 200,000 population is the garden of beauty of the West Indies. The parks, statues and ornate governmental buildings are afforded full scope and the tropical growths along the wide boulevards are compared with the squalor of the narrow streets.

"Jerry at the Waldorf." (Cub-Mutual. One reel. Thurs., July 12.—Jerry dunks his room rent once too often. He is ordered from the boarding house. In attempting to get away with his baggage he bumps into a policeman's head and bumps into the landlord on his exit. He raises the price of a hotel room by exercising his wits in a barroom. He engages a room in the Waldorf. He starts for the bathroom, situated in pajamas and invades a room occupied by a newly married couple. He rushes to cover in another bathroom where he meets an old woman who falls into a faint. He admires illuminating gas while he gets into his clothes. Escaping, via fire escape, he runs into an interesting adventure with a squad of poker playing policemen, who catch him and put him in jail.

"Reel Life, No. 64. (Gaumont-Mutual. One reel. Thurs., July 12.—The history of the submarine is the main feature of this reel and the development of the submarine is shown by stages from its inception to its present day efficiency; whale flesh as a meat, "square deal for the babies" via the route of careful nursing and adequate feeding, wigwagging and holography by camp-fire girls finish the main features, but two animated cartoons of surprisingly good character bring to an end a reel of real value.

"The Mystery of the Counterfeit Tickets." (Signal Mutual. Final episode of "The Railroad Raiders" series. Two reels. Mon., July 16.—The paramount Helen having escaped what seemed to be positive death when captured by the raiders gets busy again, and though the raiders succeed in putting through a quantity of counterfeit tickets on the N. & W. R.R. from Copper City to Mountain Springs and return, she emerges from the conflict wholesome and righteous. She turns many a trick to the discomfiture of the gang and her quick wit and nimble limbs will ever be looked forward to, no matter what the title of her next endeavor. She is without a peer in railroading. She operates a telegraph key as nimbly as she swings a switch, and she operates the throttle of a steam motor of the rails as easily as she handles the steering gear of an auto, and in all of these and many more stunts of a mechanical nature where alertness and nerve are requisite she has never been found wanting.

Exhibitors! Don't overlook Helen Holmes when looking for something to brighten the desolate corners of a jaded house.

Pathé Exchange

"New York's Great Barge Canal." (International. Split reel. This new canal just completed running from Albany to Buffalo makes a most interesting and instructive half-reel subject. On the same reel with "Love and Lunch." "Love and Lunch." (International. Split reel.—One of the Jerry on the job numbers of humorous value, and in which the animation is even. While Jerry, lunch counter waiter and telegraph operator is away at the next station saving the girl operator from a mouse, a tramp enters the station and devours all the food.

A FEW TERRITORIES STILL OPEN FOR "THE WARFARE OF THE FLESH"
The Industry's First Year Book

As a part of this Convention Number MOTION PICTURE NEWS presents herewith its first Trade Annual, a first issue of what will hereafter be established as the industry's year book, published regularly every year.

It is our aim to make this Trade Annual a complete catalogue of the industry, year by year, presenting salient facts of constant reference value, primarily for the exhibitor and his theatre assistants, but also for the producer and distributor and their branches and staffs.

As the first issue of so important a volume we ask the reader's indulgence. We realize its incompleteness. More information remains to be catalogued and will be in later issues.

But this issue breaks the ice. It will indicate, we believe, the important functions of such a book, and thereby enlist that co-operation of each branch of the industry necessary to make its contents complete.

This was our experience with the Studio Directory, which now stands as the motion picture studio's standard reference volume. As with the Studio Directory, there has always existed a genuine and widespread demand for a yearly catalogue of the trade. But it is difficult to launch such a publication.

We invite the reader's attention to the facts presented in the following pages: The digest of laws relating to theatres in every state; the six months' catalogue of feature film releases with index to reviews, music charts and ad-talks; the market reports; the chronologies of the business; the State Rights department, detailing information on independent releases; special plans for the construction and renovation of theatres, etc., etc.

He will find the issue, as it stands, a right-hand guide and help throughout the business year.
FILM BUSINESS CONDITIONS REPORTED FROM ALL SECTIONS—
Reports based on close study of exhibitors' and exchanges' business activities during recent months, with a business forecast in most cases

THE EAST

Baltimore Looks for Quiet Business

BALTIMORE motion picture exhibitors are anticipating rather quiet business for the summer months. This feeling has been brought about by general falling off in business during the early spring, notwithstanding weather conditions which should have a tendency to increase attendance.

More or less apprehension was felt regarding the raising of an army, and what proportion of Maryland young men would have to go to the front. It has not been a case of hard times. Everyone is employed and in fact making more money than usual.

A present tendency to economize in every line is felt. This affects the motion picture men first of all.

With more serious times confronting the public, their taste for pictures seems to have changed. Serious dramas so popular not so very long ago, have lost favor and comedy dramas are by far in greater demand than ever before, while the lighter comedies and farce productions are steadily gaining popularity.

During the past six months one very attractive photoplay house, The McHenry, has been built in Baltimore. It is a decided ornament to the section of the city in which it has been erected. It will take care of at least 1200 persons at each performance.

Up to the present time four of the smaller houses have closed, three temporarily for the summer months and one permanently. As the warm weather becomes more pronounced it is expected that about thirty more will be closed. Only three airrooms have opened. The indications are that few if any additional ones will begin business in this city, as the general business conditions discourage this class of enterprise.

Children matinees are popular in the better class of residential sections. One of the larger theatres, the Parkway, maintains a regular children's matinee. Serials are in less demand from the general public than ever before.

The general tendency of admission prices to the photoplay houses in Baltimore is upward. The advance in admissions has not been radical.

There is only a five-cent house in the city that does not run one or more ten-cent nights. In certain sections of the city, where ten-cent houses hold sway, there is a growing disposition to book more productions that will warrant an admission price of 15 cents.

Larger houses that have been getting as their maximum admission price 25 cents on occasions advanced prices to 35 and 50 cents. One popular theatre will permanently advance the admission price to 35 cents in place of 25 cents before the end of next month.

More exhibitors are now booking shows for two days, three days and an entire week's run than in any period for several years. Probably this is due to a tendency by the producer to make a higher grade of pictures which the exhibitor feels can stand a longer run.

Exhibitors feel it is absolutely necessary to make some change in their methods of conducting business, such as increased admission prices and readjustment of program due to the increase in rental prices of all classes of film. Features as well as program pictures have increased in price about twenty per cent in this territory.

Philadelphia Thinks Conditions Uncertain

WASHINGTON, D.C., is passing through a fruitful summer season and looks to an excellent fall opening, to continue prosperous during the winter.

The best evidence of this is four handsome new large houses planned for opening in the fall by the three biggest film men of the city—Tom Moore with two downtown houses, Harry Crandall with a downtown and residential theatre, and Marcus Loew with a downtown house.

All these are men who know the film game, who would not make these investments if they were not good business prospects.

There has been no closing of small houses. The Casino, which has been closed, is endeavoring to keep its doors open. The exchange men report business running smoothly and the majority of the exhibitors see prosperity ahead.

The American drama is in the lead in popularity, with comedy dramas a close second. Comedies are in demand, but these must be short and not padded.

Lawrence Beatus, manager of Loew's Columbia, contends that with few exceptions the star is the drawing card, and he has opened the second booking of Paramount stars for his house.

Mr. Robb, manager of Moore's Garden and closely associated in all the Moore enterprises, says in houses of long runs "the play's the thing," with the star and author coming in second.

Harry Crandall, president of the Crandall chain of houses, insists that stars and titles are the money-getters.

War plays are losing in favor and serials are popular only in community houses.

Children's matinees, or evening shows exclusively for young folks, have not proved a paying proposition to the exhibitor, though many experiments have been made. There are Saturday and Sunday matines in nearly all residential houses. Juvenile plays suitable to youth and age are in favor.

No attempt to raise admission prices over those previously existing has been made. There is a tendency for longer runs, though most of the residential houses insist a daily change is necessary for patronage.

Open booking is in favor by the large downtown houses. Harry Crandall says that this is likely to foster a bidding condition that will be detrimental to the exhibitor, unless controlled by strong exhibitors' organization.

An increase in the rental of features, which in most cases has been justified by the financial returns, is reported. Some exhibitors contend that this is not consistent with the admission price. It is not feasible to raise this price.
BY REGIONAL CORRESPONDENTS OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

strike, people are hankering after comedy dramas, and melodramas with funny farces, as short subjects.

Nearly every Philadelphia house has been recently improved, many being redecorated, while new screens and fine organs are now the rule rather than exception.

In consequence there is an increasing tendency towards higher admission prices, usually with an increased attendance thereby.

Exhibitors heretofore complain of the too high prices for big features but say there are too many cheap ones both in price and quality.

Programs are thus a mingling of good and bad causing an undesirable result.

While a few neighborhood houses have worked faithfully against the daily change, most of them feel it is the only solution for a daily audience.

There has been but little growth in the Juvenile picture field.

The only theatres giving an entirely different program for Saturday matinées are the Frankford of Philadelphia and the Palace of Ardmore.

The Frankford will give up these matinées for the summer, but hopes to resume them in the autumn.

A few serials are still holding the interest of audiences, but on the whole serials are losing their popularity in this territory.

Since the Renaissance of the Philadelphia Exhibitor's league, there is a tendency amongst its members to work harmoniously and thus raise the film standards in the community.

The Stanley Association also works along these lines.

Connecticut Expect Its Best Summer

OWNERS of motion picture theatres throughout Connecticut look for their best season in the next ten months.

With manufacturing plants going at top speed, expanding in number of employees and size of orders business conditions are approaching a stage that has never been equalled.

One case in point is found in New Haven where a single plant is now seeking 9,000 additional workers, most of whom must be brought in from outside the state.

No theatres have been closed permanently in the past few months, and four were added, bringing the total in Connecticut to 200.

Motion pictures as a rule find their audiences steadily increasing.

No one has a complaint to make as to audiences. Several large theatres will be increased in size, notably Poli's Lyric, in Bridgeport, and the original Poli Theatre in New Haven.

Connecticut's public is taking more readily to the comedy drama, with western plays finding favor among evening audiences largely made up of men.

In New Haven the movement for children's programs has died away materially. No formal children's matinées are regularly held.

Serial pictures still retain the interest of audiences to a certain extent, though there seems no unusual demand on the part of patrons.

The serial in picture, as in printed stories, is sometimes looked upon as a bore, and many patrons avoid seeing any part of a serial. Official war pictures, of course, are an exception.

They have secured a firm hold, especially in New Haven and Hartford.

Tendency to raise prices is noted throughout the state. Definite announcement to this effect is expected from practically all the cities, in the late summer.

When this movement is started, it is seemingly certain that all theatres will follow.

Exhibitors feel that they must pay prices for their shows.

They are frank in saying so. They point out the increasing cost in all branches of their business.

Unofficial notice has gone forward that as soon as open booking starts, the prices will go up a peg.

Exhibitors no longer desire daily change of pictures, for good pictures now prevailing advertise themselves, and attract new patrons each evening.

The Olympia, at New Haven, the largest in the state, is about to pass from semi-weekly changes to full week exhibitions.

Connecticut's accessory business is limited, the bulk being handled on orders through the large film houses.

Divided Opinion in Newark Neighborhood

EXHIBITORS are divided in opinion about the future outlook of the motion picture business in the Newark, N. J. district.

Attendance figures are all right. Every exhibitor reports increased patronage and the best of prospects for its continuance.

The source of grievance is in high rentals especially for state rights' pictures. In some instances these have increased more than thirty per cent within the past six months. There is also a material increase in the cost of program and features.

To meet these advances exhibitors are forced to retrench in some way or increase the cost of admission. They declare it difficult to retrench and they insist that to increase the admission price in the face of competitive forms of entertainment would be foolhardy.

The war tax is also regarded as only one more load for the already overweighted exhibitor to carry.

It is estimated that 10,500,000 persons, or ten per cent more than a year ago saw motion picture exhibitions in this city during the past year.

The figures are arrived at by careful tabulation of attendance given out by new playhouses and theatres that have during the last few months offered increased accommodations for the public.

Only one theatre has been closed, not due to reasons affecting the motion picture business.

Four new houses have been opened during the past six months. Plans for another, destined to be the largest picture playhouse in Newark, are under consideration.

War time conditions have been a cause of change in the sentiment of patrons toward favorite films.

The serious dramatic plays are most popular, while the comedy drama fails to meet with the enthusiastic approval that marked its exhibition six months ago. Serial pictures have decidedly lost in their power to draw.

Only a few of the smaller houses are showing them at all.

THE MID-WEST

Chicago Outlook Is Sanguine

THE last six months among the theatres in Chicago was marked by fluctuating prosperity. The central theatres, those within the "loop" section of the city and those just adjacent, did a business that was fairly good and steady.

The outlying sections among the neighborhood houses business was unsteady, being affected by unusually bad stretches of weather and other conditions.

In the six months, eighty-five of the type of small neighborhood houses closed.

The outlook at present, and from all sides, is sanguine. Great hopes are expressed, even in face of the coming hot weather.

The sentiment of the theatre-going public has clearly manifested itself, during the period, as preferring high-class comedy dramas and serious feature dramas above anything else offered.

The movement for juvenile pictures and children's matinées has not received much serious attention from the Chicago exhibitors.

Just at the present the National Welfare and Educational Association, Women's Political Security League and various other affiliated women's clubs, are campaigning for this class of picture and showings.

The advent on the market of several high-class children's pictures has been noted by them with satisfaction.

Serials were emphatically out of it here for many months past.

Seldom are they seen except in the smallest theatres of the five-cent variety, in neighborhood sections.

There has been no particular tendency to raise admission prices, except in the case where houses previously charging five and ten cents admission have followed the general trend to ten and fifteen cents.

There has been noted no increase in rentals of program or feature pictures. Instead, there has been really a decrease in both classes of release, exchange managers following a spoken policy of "we will travel with you," in dealing with the exhibitor.

The consensus of sentiment among the exhibitors, regarding the daily change, is against it. However scores of them claim to be forced to abide by it because others are finding virtue in its use in competition.

Ascher Brothers, owners of a number of fifteen high-class houses, are said to disfavor the daily change very much, but are forced to use it in many of their houses for this reason.

War Tax Bugaboo Around Milwaukee

IN the Milwaukee territory exhibitors consider the outlook rather doubtful. The owners and managers are afraid of war tax, mounting expense along with no increase in receipts and of the public's engrossment in war topics to the exclusion of everything else.

"If the public is so engrossed in war at this time won't the people be so engrossed in it to go to the theatre when their own flesh and blood is at the front?" the exhibitors ask.

A move inaugurated at the last convention and gaining headway would close all the movie theatres for a week or a month during the summer—something unprecedented in motion picture history. This must have back of it a more potent cause than fear of being beaten.

The public is principally interested in the comedy drama or light comedy along the lines of "Skinner's Dress Suit." The problem play and the serious drama have apparently palled upon the movie fans, when they can turn to the daily papers and the weekly periodicals and read such stirring stuff as "Nacht Verdun."

As one exhibitor put it, "How can any of the so-called sensational features compete for real thrills against the stories that are coming from the French front almost daily."

The movement for juvenile pictures has lost ground locally. No one is running them and no house attempting children's matinees. Serials continue popular in the outskirts and in some of the five-cent downtown houses.

Though exhibitors would like to raise prices they seem unable to accomplish anything. The few houses that tried to get fifteen to twenty-five cents have slumped back to ten cents, while the legitimate prices have not raised.

The exhibitor does not want the daily change and would like to stop it, but he is waiting for some leader to come along and point the way to the promised land of four changes weekly.

Prices on features and programs have continued about the same, though the past month has developed a bear movement in State rights rentals which promises to knock the bottom out of rental prices. The exhibitors locally are refusing to bid up prices, and the result has been that under pressure from the exhibitor the prices have been dropping very slowly but steadily.

Ohio Motion Picture Men Encouraged

In the district in Ohio centering in Columbus the general outlook is encouraging. Business has been good for the first half of 1917. Seven theatres have been opened in Columbus and suburban towns nearby. Only one house has been closed, and this not because of lack of business.

Comedy dramas, western plays, cartoons, travel pictures and fancies are rated in popularity in about the order named. Juvenile pictures are popular in some theatres which give children's performances, usually Saturday mornings for a five-cent admission.

Serials are holding their own, as many patrons make it a point to see all pictures shown.

A canvass of the situation shows a tendency to raise admission prices when features are shown, although many exhibitors try to keep one set price. Increased admission for features does not seem to hold down attendance.

Many exhibitors are of opinion that if a war tax is placed on motion pictures it will be necessary to raise admission prices. No increased rental of features and program pictures is reported, though regarded inevitable. Exhibitors seem willing to pay increases if necessary.

Exhibitors are divided on the question of daily changes. Some favor daily changes, while others seem to regard it as a necessary step to keep up attendance. Patrons, as a rule, want daily changes and the demand for them may force the issue.

St. Louis Prospect Better Than Last Year

The general outlook for the coming season in St. Louis, while showing no unusual evidences of prosperity, still looks better than it did for the corresponding season last year.

There are fewer houses running in this city than there were a year ago, and when the airdomes began opening up a month ago there was a marked decrease in their number. But this does not mean bad business.

The few houses that have closed, about three in number, are of the smaller kind, and to offset this two fine houses are being built.

So far as airdomes are concerned, St. Louis always did have too many. Those that are operating this year will undoubtedly be more prosperous, since the total has been cut down.

Business is good, except here and there where acute neighborhood troubles affect temporarily.

There is a marked desire for the better class of plays. People prefer the well-made story, and subjects. They like the serious drama, melodramas and Westerns, but the small thing.

The producers think they have educated the people up to better things, but the truth of the matter is that the public has educated the producer into giving them better things.

The movement for juvenile pictures is not marked with any great activity. The Better Motion Picture League has been vigorously agitating the subject of children's matinees, and reports have great promises for the future. Only two theatres, however, have instituted regular juvenile performances. These are held one day each week.

Serials are holding out well, with a decided preference for the deep thrill and mystery kind and mystery.

There has been little change in admission prices. Several ten-cent houses are charging an extra nickel when special stuff is run, but otherwise admissions are about as usual.

A daily change of pictures is the rule, except in the five or six larger houses.

Look for Exceptionally Good Business in Nebraska

GEORGE ROGERS, manager of the Western Supply Company, Omaha, Neb., said: "Business for the last six weeks has not been normal. It has been below, and under existing conditions I have no complaint. It was due to the unsettled condition of legislation, the exhibitors didn't know where they were in regard to the tax, and they didn't know if they were going to have to buy what they didn't absolutely need. I look for a big season now. In February and March it looked like the biggest year in our history. Then came the tax scare, leaving me with a big list of bright prospects on hand. Now the scare is over and those prospects are brighter than ever.

May was the best month we ever had," said F. W. Higgison, of the Omaha, Neb., Theatre Supply Company. "Regarding future business, the exhibitors are uncertain because of their doubts about the war tax. Personally, I don't think the tax will greatly affect the business. There are many houses being opened. Some are being closed, but this is largely because of mistakes in choosing the neighborhood. I find there is a big demand for used equipment, as well as for new equipment."

"Business looks good to me," began A. C. Hartman, head of the Omaha Film Exchange. "Of course, you will find the calamity howler in any business. I just returned from a trip covering Iowa. The exhibitors seem enthusiastic, if the exchanges do not. I found a lot of new houses, and they were all built on a high plane. The store business is also doing pretty well. I look for an exceptionally good business. There is more money than ever, and the crop outlook is splendid. I have just put a lot of money into buying the exclusive agency for the Motograph in Nebraska and Iowa—that shows how confident I am of good business in the immediate future."

Michigan Prospects Better Than Ever

MOTION picture men in Detroit and throughout Michigan report conditions very good and the prospects better than ever. Practically no big house is for sale—which tells the story. Smaller houses may be obtained at reasonable prices, a condition found always and in any line of business.

New houses, a number of them, have been completed in the few months just past. One is the Iris at Joseph Campau and Boulevard, Detroit. It seats 1,000 and is considered a pretty house. Another, the Oakland in Pontiac, compares with the beautiful houses in the Middle West. It seats 1,800. Probably the biggest new house is the Madison, Broadway and Grand Circus Park, Detroit. It accommodates 2,000 persons, cost near half a million, and is in the John K. Kunsly chain. The location is choice and costly and in the downtown section.

Few Detroit theatres have changed hands—at most not half a dozen. Only one house has closed—the Park, No. 330 Woodward Avenue—and this on account of the sale of the lease.

Without a star the average picture in Detroit draws but average business. In the past few months new stars have come into the theatre: Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and W. S. Hart are popular, and Charles Ray of Triangle has many friends. Theatre managers all agree it is the star that draws the business.
There is little change in the demands of theatre patrons. Serials seem to be still popular, while western drama draws well, as evidenced by the growing popularity of the W. S. Hart pictures. Good comedies are always in great demand, and right now more so than ever.

There is little sentiment for juvenile or "kid" pictures for the reason that children prefer the pictures with such stars as Pickford and Clark. Theatres have tried putting on juvenile pictures at Saturday matinees, but they have not proved popular. Novelty attractions for children are in demand, such as the Mo-toy comedies.

The tendency is to higher admission prices from 15 to 25 cents, rather than 10 to 15 cents, the average price in the past. The public throughout Michigan does not like to pay more than 50 cents for any big feature. People will stand from 25 to 50 cents for the smaller attractions, but over that amount they do not and will not pay in large numbers. This explains why a number of big attractions have failed to make money for their owners, who tried to secure more than 50 cents admission for them.

Many theatres have entirely cut out 10-cent seats, except at matinees, and at night are charging from 15 to 25 cents for their regular seats.

THE SOUTH

Florida Exhibitors Blame Producers

CONDITIONS in Florida, from the viewpoint of the exhibitor, are worse than they have been for some time. This seems to be a consensus of opinion of owners and managers in the small towns, and in Tampa, Miami, Pensacola and Jacksonville.

Most of the exhibitors blame it on the producers. They say the producers get further away from what the public wants every day.

One of the most outspoken exhibitors is W. L. Whitehead, owner of the Republic and Savoy, Jacksonville. He puts it this way:

"A producing company is formed, mainly of men from other walks in life, and it proceeds at once to make pictures and cram them down the throat of exhibitors and the public. The exhibitor loses, for the public will not come to his theatre. There are other shows. After a time the exhibitor's name loses its drawing power. He has to change program and buy state rights productions.

"If I were a producer I would canvass the United States and find what the exhibitors want—then make it. It would not be long before I would have the cream of the business. What takes in New York will not take in Missouri. What draws in Florida will bring a frost in Kentucky."

The tendency in the Florida field is to raise prices. Already, especially in the larger cities, there are many theatres charging 15 and 25 cents admission to see pictures shown in nearby small towns at the old price of 5 and 10 cents.

Some exhibitors hold increased prices hurt business, as patrons leave and think only of the higher price they have to pay. These men are holding to the old price for all productions whenever possible.

Rental for features has been advanced, and exhibitors say program rental has gone up also.

Exhibitors all seem to favor longer runs for pictures, if all will agree to the new plan. Lack of organization, in other words, is the only reason why the daily change is in vogue with many exhibitors. In Jacksonville two houses run program pictures two days and are meeting with success. If the exhibitors could get together the daily change would be killed.

In the field in this vicinity no theatres have closed and two new ones have started up, but report business dull.

The public seems to want comedy drama with a sprinkling of western stuff at times.

No juvenile pictures are shown with success. Serials have completely lost their former popularity.

Chattanooga Feels a Bit Uncertain

The general outlook for the coming season in the picture business in the Chattanooga territory is uncertain, and business reported as being only fair.

The public prefer comedy drama or a farce. The movement for juvenile pictures is not gaining ground.

Only a very few serials hold up in popularity. There has been no tendency to raise admission prices. The increase in the rental price of features and program pictures is 150 per cent.

Exhibitors are against the daily change in program.

New Orleans Business Holds Up Well

THE motion picture business has held up remarkably well since the first of the year throughout the New Orleans territory, which consists of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and portions of Florida, Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas. This is in face of the fact that the people have been disturbed by the war preparations. There have been unusual local conditions that had an adverse influence upon the business.

To offset this is the growing interest in pictures with a class of persons who have heretofore been free with their expressions of disgust at the character of a great number of the offerings. The Southern people demand clean, wholesome productions and the exhibitors who have made the attempt to furnish them are the ones who have no complaint to make with reference to the business conditions.

While it is true that an apparently large number of theatres have been closed in the past six months, the only wonder is that they did not close sooner. Some of them were mighty sorry excuses for the name theatre. Their managers failed to comprehend that there is progress in the picture business as well as in any other enterprise that is worth while.

The industry has lost nothing by the closing of theatres of this class. It has gained. The large motion picture theatres that have been opened have been modern ones. Their projectors have installed every appliance for the comfort and entertainment of the patrons. The number of theatres is fewer, but the total seating capacity has not been diminished.

There is a growing tendency to build larger and better suburban houses. Naturally they obliterate the adjoining smaller ones. Nearly all of these new and better theatres are being constructed by men who started in a small way but who were possessed of enough enterprise to keep up with the procession.

In the smaller towns a good deal of loss in patronage has been occasioned by the large number of enlistments for the war. On the other side, for the young fellows who first responded to their country's call were naturally liberal patrons of the theatres. But they left their mothers and their sweethearts behind and in their loneliness these women turn to the picture shows for forgetfulness and good cheer. The opening of the resorts also makes a sag in the business at this season, but the government's liberal endorsement of the motion picture as a patriotic aid to the public welfare has won hundreds of friends to the theatres and they are becoming confirmed fans.

THE WEST

Los Angeles Optimistic About Future

TAKING it all in all the exhibiting end of the motion picture industry in Southern California is in a very healthy condition. Those engaged in renting and in projecting motion pictures are very optimistic with respect to the future.

Few houses will be affected by the federal tax. While the West is not enjoying the prosperity that the East has had for the past year, no one is pessimistic concerning the future. Conditions will remain good and if there is any change it will be for the better, with improvement of tourist trade.

Three new theatre buildings are being erected in Los Angeles. Each will have three thousand or more seats. The builders say they will be the finest west of New York. The building activity speaks the general condition of the exhibiting business in Los Angeles and Southern California.

The new houses are being built by Oliver and Emil Kehrlein, who at present are engaged in the theatre business in Fresno and in other cities in Central California. Another house is being built by local men at the corner of Third and Broadway. Construction was recently begun on the new Miller theatre on Main street.

What is true of Los Angeles applies to other cities in this territory. There are approximately three hundred and fifty motion picture theatres. Of this number about 150 are located in Los Angeles and nearby or suburban cities, including Long Beach, Santa Monica, Pasadena, Hollywood, etc.
Seattle Finds Way to Big Business

Seattle for its size is perhaps the most wonderful motion picture city in the world. Exhibitors here estimate that the principal houses—not including the vaudeville places—show pictures to 250,000 or more persons a week, with admissions averaging $23,000.

True, this estimate if multiplied by fifty-two, would seem ridiculous for the year. But it is asserted that taken as total receipts for a week the sum is conservative.

The reason for unprecedented business here is to be found in the live management of the theatres and their advertising methods.

The leading photographers and booking offices are owned and controlled by the Greater Theatres Company, and managed by Von Herberg & Jensen. The theatres are the Coliseum and Liberty. The first cost $200,000 and is a picture palace. It is equipped with a 14-piece orchestra and organ and plays high class first run pictures only. The Liberty cost $175,000 and a $35,000 Wurlitzer organ has been added. The house plays high class dramas and comedies and the organist is one of the best players in the country.

A corps of proficient advertising men constantly put over surprises. The figures on advertising will make good reading for Eastern exhibitors who “can’t afford it.” These two houses alone use 2,000 inches of display advertising weekly—$600 a year. They have 100 28 x 36 sheets, 600 single sheets and 1,000 14 x 22 window cards, two colors, and 100 photos of stars, framed, and put in prominent windows.

It is stated here that no two theatres in the country pay better dividends than the Coliseum and Liberty. The Greater Theatres Company also owns and controls the Mission theatre, Seattle; National, Butte, and Broadway, Portland.

Recent changes include the taking over of the Moore theatre for the Orpheum circuit. The circuit did have the Alhambra but this has been renamed the Wilkes theatre and is in stock.

Eugene Levy, who had the Grand theatre and was burned out there, now has the Orpheum theatre. This house seats 2,000 and was built for high class vaudeville and dubbed “the million dollar theatre.”

It will open with vaudeville and pictures at 5 and 10 cents.

The Colonial theatre, formerly considered Seattle’s most beautiful playhouse, has been taken over by the Latz Amusement Company as a $5 cent any seat any time theatre. This company has a string of such theatres in Washington.

The Oak theatre, formerly Pantage’s, is being torn down to be replaced by a business block. The Grand theatre is still in fire-ruins.

Omaha Busy Now, but Doubtful

Motion picture exhibitors in the Omaha territory are having the best business they ever had. They have had their best day’s record, and best week and month, this spring. Business is good and better.

Owners and managers all hesitate to say this, for they fear in the future peculiar existing conditions may bring change. They fear too much patriotic economy and too much industrial prosperity, with consequent long hours for workingmen.

No unusual increase in admission prices is reported in Omaha and no unusual increase in expenses. In brief, most of the exhibitors say:

“Confidently expect the best summer business we ever had, but it is too early to talk about the fall.”

Every motion picture exhibitor in Omaha, with few exceptions, is making money. Their prospects are fine.

One big new house, the Van, has been opened. Half a dozen small houses have closed, because the game was not worth the candle and not because they lost money. These were little neighborhood picture places.

Altogether fifty new houses have been opened in Iowa and Nebraska. Most are made-over theatres, but operate, as a rule, two or three nights a week. In cities of 6,000 to 20,000 population houses have been constructed that would do credit to cities ten times as large. Not one in a hundred such theatres fails to make money, and some make big money for up-to-date exhibitors.

Mid-western motion picture crowds want comedy drama. The western town, with very excrescences, has good people forever. Serious drama is pronounced too much of a strain. Say “war” and large exhibitors throw up their hands. Farce, but not too much, is all right. Slapstick is too silly. The following of the vampire picture rapidly dwindles.

Arkansas Outlook Was Never Better

In Arkansas the outlook for the picture business was never better. Money conditions are splendid. The war is bringing a great demand for men and in the future will bring more, owing to new training camps and the advent of great masses of troops along the border.

The volunteer soldier is a man of money. Many have independent incomes and take kindly to picture houses. The history of Arkansas will be bright with picture achievement when the war is over. Many points along the border are doing fine with a big growth in the future.

Few of the State exhibitors have given the children’s movement much attention. Only one in seven men in this city has made any attempt to supply children’s pictures. He has devoted every other Saturday to a mixed program consisting of action pictures suitable for a mixed audience, with one or two reels of children’s specials.

This exhibitor, J. E. Rickards of Phoenix, says:

“While monetary success has not been great, I believe that I have interested many of the better class of women who have the welfare of children at heart. While the direct result is not so noticeable there is always a chance to do the picture industry much good by the enlistment of this higher type element. I regard the future of children’s matinees as assured, for the time is coming when the exhibitor is sure to recognize in this locality that he must cater to the public demand for cleaner pictures and better paid admissions in the product.”

There is a tendency to raise prices all over the State. The only nickel houses in Arizona were recently forced to raise prices to ten cents by reason of the pressure brought to bear on them by a service they wanted, which they could not obtain to run in a five-cent house.

The general trend is to raise the standard of the entertainment and to get a price for it in keeping with the product offered. The exhibitor of the State is rapidly awakening to the fact that his best weapon of defense in the matter of competition is “program well served.” The better he serves his program and the more attention he pays to music and the other details that make up more perfect service the easier it is for him to ask and receive higher prices. An example is given here.

“Better prices will be the rule without reference to war tax or any other excuse for tilting the wicket take. They are just naturally the result of a survival of the fittest and the giving of value for the patron’s money.”
The pictures that have broken records in Omaha recently are "Happiness," "Poor Little Rich Girl," "In Again, Out Again," "The Square Deal Man," "His Sixteenth Wife," "Intor's Double," "Clever's Rebellion" and "The Candy Girl." One exhibitor says he has never shown a picture with Gladys Hulette, Baby Marie Osborne or Anita Stewart in a part without "cleaning up."

Reversing usual conditions, it is the small towns that have increased prices since January 1, and not the large cities. An occasional 5-cent theatre is seen in the cities, but not in the small towns. Many of the small town houses have reached the 15 and 20-cent stage.

Exhibitors say there is an increase in film rental over two years ago, but no recent increase. "We will gladly pay more as quality advances," said one exhibitor.

Exhibitors favor longer runs and are more and more against the daily change.

The campaign of the Motion Picture News against the daily change is one of the big things of the past year in the motion picture business," said H. M. Thomas, manager of the Strand, Omaha's best theatre, and president of the Nebraska branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America.

Mr. Thomas says he prefers a picture of quality enough to warrant a week's run. He regards the daily change as hurtful to business and adds that many suburban houses are getting by splendidly with two-day runs. "I want quality and not quantity," he says, and he expresses the general opinion of local exhibitors.

San Francisco Exchanges Prospering

REGULAR releasing exchanges report business in San Francisco good.

Some of the exchanges are receiving cancellations, and on the other hand getting a number of contracts. This balances all around.

Mr. Levy, of the Mutual, considers business very fair. Mr. Edmonds, of Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay, reports business as good. Mr. Raquito, of the Metro, says business is fairly good. Mr. Citron, of the Fox, states unqualifiedly that business is good. Mr. Eberhardt, of the World, is likewise of the opinion that business is good. Mr. Quiva, of Vitagraph, states the business of that exchange is very fair. Pathe reports business good. Mr. Simpson, of Triangle, is another manager who finds conditions good in the California field.

Generally Favorable in Iowa

THROUOUGH Iowa and the entire Middle West conditions affecting the motion picture industry are in general favorable. The outlook for the coming year is correspondingly bright. In many cases there are difficulties which cast an appreciable shadow upon the entire business. First of all of these is war talk. This is, as yet, largely an imaginary scare on the part of some few pessimistic exhibitors.

In few cases has the enlistment of young men from a small town affected the exhibitor so he has been forced to close down. In Des Moines, the center of film activities in Iowa, motion picture theatres have increased in number during the past year. Few failures are reported.

The comedy-drama is by far most popular in this territory and its popularity grows. The other types will range in popularity in the following order, serious drama, Western plays, farce and melodrama. The other type has made strides in popularity, the juvenile picture. Woman's clubs have repeatedly fostered various pictures at different theatres. Children's matinees are always a popular feature.

Exhibitors have not found it necessary in most cases to raise admission prices, although this has been done most successfully by switching from a program picture to a special feature. Patronage does not fall off to any noticeable extent with a boost in price for such features; if anything, it increases.

Program pictures are all shown at a uniform price of ten cents throughout the territory. There has been no increase in rental on this type of picture although Feature rentals have advanced slightly.

Another favorable sign for the coming season is that the majority of exhibitors favor longer runs and no one day system, except in small towns.

Outlook in Salt Lake City Is Fair

OUTLOOK for the coming season in Salt Lake City and adjacent territory is on the whole, fair. While there is some little trepidation among motion picture men regarding the possible effect of war taxation, if such is imposed, none has any basis for fear that patronage will suffer a slump. As a rule, the people of this territory have supported generously practically every offering at the theatres.

For the past few weeks, practically every theatre in the city has experienced a period of gratifying success. While this might have been attributable in a measure to an unusual bunched of holidays, audiences have nevertheless been large on days usually regarded as "blue." An increased inclination on the part of the managers of this city to stress their pictures provide extra attractions and cast off hackneyed forms of advertising will, it is predicted, result in a season of prosperity, if properly carried out.

In the past six months there have been no radical changes in the local situation. Only one picture house, the Liberty, closed. This was on the Swanson circuit and suffered by being the beautiful but passe "mother" of the big American.

The rejuvenation of the old Rex theatre, through a change of name and policy, was one of the most notable changes of the season. Last January, the Rex, long the largest of the 10-cent theatres in this locality (with varying fortune) was darkened for renovation and was reopened as the Strand, with a policy which contemplated the exhibition of big feature pictures to the exclusion of all others.

For several weeks the house struggled over the bumps, getting acquainted with a new clientele and re-adjusting itself to the new conditions. The Strand, now a Swanson house, has to credit the longest runs in Salt Lake and several consistently successful weeks. Some State rights productions have here made creditable showings. The only program at this house is the Selznick.

High-grade, clean comedy-dramas, and comedies are the leaders in this territory. Melodramas and western plays, to "get across," satisfactorily, must be enacted by foremost stars. Unknowns in this class of photoplays "starve to death."

Under the guidance of the Home and School league of this city the movement for juvenile pictures has gained ground and the coming season may see a marked advance in this respect. The Paramount-Empress theatre, by co-operating with the Home and School League, made a ten-strike with its Saturday morning "matinees" for children.

With one or two exceptions, serial pictures have not "held up" in popularity. There is no marked tendency to raise admission prices. Exceptions to this were made during the showing of some of the extra high-priced features. Then prices were advanced to as high as a dollar top—25 cents bottom.

No noticeable increase of prices for program service is reported, though some of the features have raised in price.

Pessimistic Note from Northwest

NORTHWESTERN motion picture exhibitors are going to have a war of their own this summer and possibly for the period of the world war. There are many who would be money ahead if they closed up shop and waited for the end of the harvest, rather than play through the summer to empty, scattered audiences. It takes a better film to hold attention in summer and better film costs more.

With a war tax; a state license fee; in most cases a city or village license fee, and with a part of the regular patronage gone, it's a hard struggle for many. The Northwest has too many theatres already and it has too many exchange men, too many traveling salesmen, too much paper that repels rather than attracts, and too many films that to all purposes of the exhibitor are just alike.

Some of the larger theatres in Minneapolis that afford symphony concerts, uniformed ushers, fans that blow fresh air over ice and show one big feature, an educational, a news weekly, and a snappy comedy have let the temerity to increase admission from 10 to 15 cents. Others are struggling along at 10 cents. This refers to the everyday theatres.

The Northwest now demands the best comedies obtainable and the best serious dramas. There is a demand for westerns and news weeklies, but the slapstick comedy and melodrama in which ideas don't track find poor sledding. No theatres have closed in the cities. A few have closed in the rural districts.

Exhibitors in the little towns hold on, waiting for the sun to shine. Some towns of 800 to 1,000 population have sent 30 men to the colors. This means $3 a week out of the exhibitor's pocket and more often it means $6. Town boys have gone to the farms. Farmers are staying on the farms. The townspeople just about keep the theatre open.

As a general thing, film rents have increased. To indicate what the Minneapolis fight means, two theatres joined hands in a contract to take about 28 of a certain company's films in a year. They obtained a reduced rate, yet they will pay on a basis of $1,000 a week. This price is just for the features. Each theatre has full orchestra and organ, and everything else that makes for song and dance.

There is a demand for juvenile pictures but exhibitors and committees in charge say it is hard to get suitable films. Two theatres run them regularly on Saturday.

City theatres will make the grade and possibly give the exhibitor a vacation with expenses paid. The rural exhibitor will fight to hold for awhile.

These have been the conditions since Jan. 1, with the exception of about a month before America entered the war, when there was a little business.

CANADA

War a Problem in Maritime Provinces

"BUSINESS as usual" was the slogan in Maritime Provinces at the beginning of the war three years ago, but business is not as usual nor can it be till some time after the war is over. It is very hard to forecast the coming season in the motion picture business. The effect of the exceedingly high cost of food, clothing, fuel and other necessities is being felt. Even the ten or fifteen cents for "the movies" can be saved. On one hand the people must and will have amusement, and the picture theatres are the natural place for them to get it. On the other side is the increased cost and the restrictions forced by government, pulpit and press of thrift and saving as a national duty.

The summer is a period of marking time in the cities, though the smaller towns are not so much affected by the warm weather.

The outlook is good considering war conditions. Good sized audiences will always be found at the theatres.

Several theatres have changed hands in this territory and are branching out on a larger scale. No theatres have been closed.

The demand of the public seems to be for melodrama or comedy dramas. Fare is not much asked for and war pictures are not popular at all.

Straight children's programs are not in demand. All managers cater to the children on Fridays and Saturdays as much as possible.

Serials are always well attended. "They are money-getters," says an exhibitor, "and are usually run the end of the week for the benefit of the young people." All the theatres in St. John but two show serials. The Opera House is running two each week.

Admission prices have been raised in few cases but none above fifteen cents.

A large increase in the rental for films is felt and the price charged for features is prohibited in this territory. None of the exhibitors favor the daily change of programs. Many run their pictures for three days.

WINNIPEG WILL WORRY THROUGH SUMMER

The outlook in the Winnipeg territory for the coming season, while not bright, is on the whole encouraging. A few of the smaller places may have to close their doors, but the big places will manage to carry on through the summer.

On the whole business is only fair and the war tax and various provincial and city taxes are eating into the profits to a considerable extent.

During the past six months no new picture houses have opened in Manitoba. There are now about seventy-five motion picture houses in Winnipeg.

The public prefers comedy drama just now above everything else. They want to be amused, but not with slapstick. The seriousness of the war, in the minds of fans here, is uppermost.

They seek something to counterbalance it in their relaxation and recreations.

The moment for juvenile pictures has gained no ground up here, as it has not been pitted to any extent. One or two neighborhood houses in Winnipeg maintain children's matinées every Saturday.

Serials seem to be holding their popularity in houses that make a practice of running them.

There has been a tendency to raise admission to some houses from 10 to 15 cents, but it has not actually been done. No house in the province has lowered its price of admission. There has been an increase in rental of features and also of programs. Exhibitors are almost a unit against the daily change of pictures.

SOMBRE NOTE FROM BRITISH COLUMBIA

During the years preceding 1915 the population of the cities and towns in the Province of British Columbia had been increasing at a rapid rate and the building and opening of moving picture theatres kept pace with the population.

During 1915-1916 and during the first half of this year the population had been decreasing rapidly in towns and cities alike. Vancouver is estimated to have lost one-third of its citizens.

The result is that there are far too many large theatres and the competition has been such that almost without exception the companies holding them have been forced to reorganize or let go. The fact that the owners of the buildings can not profitably alter them to stores, or for other uses, makes these theatres stay open long after they have been unable to pay reasonable rents. Without exception, in the two largest cities, Vancouver and Victoria, the exhibitors have lost money, for the last thirty months. The business outlook for exhibitors does not look encouraging from any viewpoint in the near future.

Serious drama, comedy drama and farce are the chief money-getters for the larger houses. Serials only appear successfully in the suburban and small town theatres which demand these continuously. Children's pictures and educational films have had no vogue here.

In the cities the twice-a-week change is current while in the smaller theatres they change three times and daily according to location.

HISTORY AND ACTIVITIES OF THE F.I.L.M. CLUB

The F. I. L. M. (meaning Film Industry Local Managers) Club was organized in Chicago early in 1916 with every Chicago exchange manager as members.

Mr. J. L. Friedman, vice-president and general manager of the Celebrated Players Film Company, was the first president of the club and his ability as an executive was so marked that he is still the Chicago club's president, having thrice succeeded himself.

FILM SHIPMENTS BY EXPRESS:

War economy has driven many express trains from service—explanation of cheap routing—note accompanying table for through shipments—how express companies are trying to help you.

It is of distinct interest to exhibitors to know some of the methods used by the transportation companies in providing the most expeditious service in the handling of films. Thousands of "cans" and "paper" are traveling by express every day and in exchange cities sometimes as many as 15,000 reels pass through local express depositories. To keep all of them moving rapidly, and to the proper destinations is a monumental task, but the amount of claims resulting from this class of business is negligible because the carriers have installed a system by which "films" receive a preferred service.

In other words, motion picture "films" are considered "perishable" and are treated as such. If it is a question whether a commercial package or a can of films is to be delivered, the "movies" always come first. That holds good all over the United States and makes possible the daily change of programme in practically every exhibit.

Because of their inflammability, films come under the caption of "explosives," and as such, their shipment is regulated by the Bureau of Explosives of the American Railways Association, whose regulations are generally adopted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Thus, carriers can accept moving picture films for shipment only when they are marked and labeled in accordance with the instructions of the Commission. These are that they must be packed in "tightly closed metal cases enclosed in a strong spark-proof wooden box; or in spark-proof cases made of sheet iron not less than .02 inches thick, and lined throughout with fibre-board at least 3/8 of an inch thick, or some other equivalent insulating material. The covers of these cases must fit tightly and must lap over the body at least 3/8 inch on the sides, forming a tight joint."

Besides, a yellow "Caution" label, with which all exhibitors are doubtless familiar, must be attached. These can be obtained from any express agent, and other labels are attached during transit, including the express "way-bill" label and the address label. It will expedite shipments of this kind if an exhibitor will see to it that only his own label, giving the exchange to which he is shipping it, remains on the can when he turns it over to the express agent. Old labels are frequently the cause of delays to some other exhibitor that is looking for that particular film.

There is no method by which a reliable "per pound per mile" express charge can be calculated. The reason for this is that express charges are based on a system put into operation, several years ago, by the Interstate Commerce Commission, by which such charges are calculated by "blocks." These are all set down in express rate-books and directories, by which any exhibitor can make his own calculations. But every man's location determines the amount of charges he has to pay on such shipments to his exchange city. Thus, if your shipment weighs so much, you can find out just what it will cost to such-and-such a place. The express agents have no discretion in the matter—it is all by rule and rote, that even a boy just out of grammar school can calculate for himself.

Besides, an exhibitor can easily secure from his local express agent a rate book and a block number book, and can calculate a rate himself, before turning it over to the express company. The agent will gladly explain the system. The exhibitor, as many of them do, can familiarize himself with the time of trains and be on deck at the station when a film shipment that he expects, is due to arrive. However, there is usually an understanding between the two and the film man can count on the full co-operation of the expressman.

It is helpful for an exhibitor to know the express system of handling shipments. Shipments up to $50 declared value travel under a general commodity rate, but above that sum, they go as "values," or by a specially guarded system by which jewelry, currency and other valuables are handled. This means a special sys-

| National Association of Motion Picture Industry

What It Has Done for the Industry—How To Become a Member

Such an organization as the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is the hope of every branch of American business. It has proved that scores of heads working together are better than one head working alone.

The Association's slogan is: "Unity of action spells success!"

Since the Association was formed, in August, 1916, less than one year ago, the following accomplishments are recorded:

1. A resolution was passed against any form of legalized censorship. Steps were taken to get in touch with the conditions existing in every state. Elaborate, useful data were secured.
2. A conference was held with President Wilson, at Shadow Lawn. A similar conference with Charles Evans Hughes took place at West Orange, N. J. The industry was assured of their support and co-operation. Both candidates asserted that they did not approve of the un-American idea of censorship.
3. At election time, the Association co-operated heartily with exhibitors in securing the defeat of Senator Criselman at the primaries. He was unalterably opposed to censorship.
4. A campaign was instituted by the Association among all candidates for Congress and state legislatures, placing them on record regarding censorship.

5. When the censorship bugbear was brought up in the annual convention of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, the Association succeeded in killing the subject.
6. Over a month's constant attendance at the Wheeler investigations into the industry's susceptibility to taxation resulted in the death of this measure, meaning that New York State film men were saved $1,000,000 a year.
7. Constant representation in Washington at the time that a 10 per cent tax threatened the industry saved the business ten million dollars and saved countless exhibitors from total bankruptcy.
8. When Sunday closing threatened the theatres of New York State the distribution of 5,000 slides and the securing of 2,000,000 petitions killed that measure.
9. As a further safeguard against Sunday closing the Association hired John B. Stanchfield and Judge Seabury to appear in the Sunday opening case before the Court of Appeals.
10. Sunday closing bills threatening nearly every state in the Union, the Association actively aided exhibitors in legalized motion pictures on Sunday.
11. The Association was actively instrumental in defeating censorship and many other drastic and antagonistic measures in thirty states through the efforts of the Censorship Committee.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY
12. The Boys Bill, in Pennsylvania's Legislature, which would have imposed a tax of $750,000 on manufacturers in that state, was killed by the day and night activities of the Association.

13. A reduction was secured in the War Revenue Bill proposing a tax of from 10 to 6 per cent on all express shipments. This tax has again been reduced to one cent on shipments for which the charge is twenty-five cents or each fraction thereof.

14. Film pirating became particularly flagrant, and the Association co-operated with the District Attorney's office and secured the indictment of many persons engaged in stealing films.

15. After months of constant effort the co-operation of many important State and National organizations has been secured, notably the State Federation of Labor, the American Federation of Labor, the Safety First Federation of America and the National Fire Protective Association.

16. Won the recognition and approval of President Wilson, who appointed William A. Brady, president of the Association, as chairman of a committee to mobilize the entire industry. This is being done through Association channels.

The activities of the Transportation and Insurance Committees have accomplished many benefits to the industry. Through the Transportation the following have been attained:

17. Securing consent of the Post Office Department to accept film shipments for parcel post, as well as betterments in service.

18. Standardization of film cases which will reduce the expenses to exchanges and exhibitors by 50 per cent.

19. Securing of order permitting paper to go in film cases, eliminating a great expense item.

20. Plan of co-operation with the various express companies providing for conferences which have resulted in much good.

21. Secured many new rulings through the Bureau of Explosives.

22. Secured prompt returns on all C. O. D. shipments from express companies, belated deliveries and other betterments.

INSURANCE COMMITTEE

23. Through the efforts of the National Association, every branch of the film business, directly or indirectly, was inspired to contribute to the Liberty Loan. The amount subscribed exceeded three million dollars ($3,000,000).

24. The most momentous step since the inception of the National Association is the organization of the War-Cooperation Committee, comprising 100 of the foremost men in the producing and distributing branches and one man in every state in the Union, who will endeavor to present the aims of the American Government to the nation and to all neutral nations.

25. Co-operated with the public officials charged with the enforcement of the fire laws and regulations with splendid results.

The association in enlisting membership accentuates the six strong points which stand for the purpose of the organization. They are;

To foster trade and commerce among members, and to promote their business interests

To reform trade abuses in behalf of members

To secure freedom from unjust and unlawful exactions

To diffuse among members accurate and reliable information as to the character and standing of those engaged in any or all branches of the industry

To settle differences between members and to promote an enlarged and friendly intercourse between those engaged in the industry

And if a member should indicate anything else which will benefit the industry, as a whole, it will be added
STATE LAWS GOVERNING THE EXHIBITION OF MOTION PICTURES IN U. S.

In view of the fact that many of the states of the Union have not taken definite action in their Legislative bodies on the regulation and exhibition of Motion Pictures, there are states which are not included in this department. Some others have taken action but the laws relative thereto are not yet available. As far as possible the legislation which has been enacted by the states is given—some in detail.

Many of the states have left the regulation of the Motion Picture to the municipalities, only going to the extent of enacting a tax law.

States, such as Kansas, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, have passed elaborate legislation relative to the Motion Picture—to these the Editor has devolved considerable space. In a general way, other states have followed the laws as laid down by the above mentioned states. There are many of the states which have complied with the rules and regulations as recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters in reference to fire regulations. All of the states have passed penal laws making it a misdemeanor to exhibit obscene and indecent pictures. The penal law does not vary appreciably in any of the states.

The regulations governing the installation of motion picture machine booths, stationary and portable, are pretty generally the same in all states.

The Sunday Closing Law has been taken up by some but not all of the states.

As far as possible this department has been made complete in reference to the number of states included. Legislation in regard to the Motion Picture has been far too voluminous to permit anything but a running outline in these pages but the essential points have been noted and it is hoped that this department will prove of permanent service to all those interested in any way in the Motion Picture Industry.

No cinematograph, or similar apparatus, involving the use of a combustible film more than ten inches in length, shall be kept or used for the exhibition of any film, or any part thereof, except in a building, public or private institution, schoolhouse, church, theatre, special hall, public hall, miscellaneous hall, place of assembly, or place of public recreation, nor in such cinematograph, or similar apparatus, as may be shown by or under the supervision or control of any person, for more than ten inches in length, which is to be kept or used in or upon any of the premises defined in section one of this act, and any such person shall keep or enclose said apparatus or any part thereof in such manner as to prevent any danger to the public, and the chief of the district police shall make such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary for the enforcement thereof.

Sect. 3. For the inspection of a cinematograph or similar apparatus, or for the inspection of a screen or enclosure for any performance of a cinematograph or similar apparatus, or for the inspection of the said apparatus, or any part thereof, for any time in excess of one year of age shall be eligible for such examination. The examination shall be the responsibility of the chief of the district police, upon the payment of a fee of one dollar.
Sect. 5. Any person eighteen years of age or over, desiring to act as an exhibitor of motion pictures in the public place of business, shall, in his name, and address on a form furnished for the purpose by the chief of the district police, or any person appointed by him, within ninety days from the said chief may issue a permit allowing such person to assist such a licensed operator in his business, but each such person shall not himself operate the cinematograph or similar apparatus. Each such permit shall be for a period of one year from the date thereof, but may be renewed yearly by the chief of the district police. A special license shall be required of any person over forty-eight years of age who has held a second-class license for three months or more and has worked regularly during that period in a booth or enclosure in or upon any of the premises defined in section one of this act, and any person over twenty-one years of age who presents himself to the chief of the district police and shows to his satisfaction that he has operated a cinematograph or similar apparatus in a booth or enclosure, in a theatre or hall devoted to public exhibitions of moving pictures outside of the city limits of the county of Ramsey for at least ten thousand dollars on account of the violation of the provisions of this act shall be eligible for the license for a special or first-class license as provided in this act. Upon the payment of a fee for the said second-class license, the chief of the district police shall issue a permit allowing such person to assist such a licensed operator in his business, but each such person shall not himself operate the cinematograph or similar apparatus. Each such permit shall be for a period of one year from the date thereof, but may be renewed yearly by an inspector of the building inspection department. A fee of two dollars shall be paid for the said special-class license, and a fee of one dollar shall be paid for the said second-class license.

Sect. 7. No cinematograph or any other apparatus for projecting or showing moving pictures, or taking photographs, or other apparatus, in the possession of any person, whether for public exhibition or profit or for the benefit of any other person or agency, shall be less than six feet in height, and all apparatus, including all buildings, booths, stands, or other parts of the building, or the stage or screen on which the apparatus is placed, shall be at least six feet wide and thirty feet long. No such apparatus or exhibition shall be permitted by the chief of the district police in any place of business or in any other place where the same is not in violation of any rule or regulation made by the chief of the district police, or, in the city of Boston, in violation of any regulation or requirement of the building commissioner in accordance with the provisions hereof, shall be permitted by the chief of the district police. Any person, in the possession of any apparatus or apparatus of persons, keeping or using a cinematograph or similar apparatus contrary to the provisions hereof, or in violation of any rule or regulation made by the chief of the district police, or, in the city of Boston, in violation of any regulation or requirement of the building commissioner in accordance with the provisions hereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

Sect. 16. Chapters five hundred and sixty-five and five hundred and sixty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight; chapter two hundred and forty-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine; chapter forty-eight and forty and forty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten; chapter two hundred and forty-two of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sect. 17. In case of violation of any of the provisions of this act, the chief of the district police may grant special licenses for operators of moving picture shows and shows in connection therewith, for any part of a building or building, in any building or building, or any part of the building or building in which there are associated persons, keeping or using a cinematograph or similar apparatus contrary to the provisions hereof, or in violation of any rule or regulation made by the chief of the district police, or, in the city of Boston, in violation of any regulation or requirement made by the building commissioner in accordance with the provisions hereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

The owner of a moving picture show, theatre or other amusement place or exhibition, or amusement show, shall pay to the state treasurer the sum of ten dollars, and all money so paid shall be credited to the state fire marshal fund for the use of the fire marshals department. Provided, however, that no more than twenty dollars shall be collected for such inspection in any one year, or any one place of amusement or exhibition room.

Sec. 15. Whenever the state fire marshal or his deputies shall find by inspection that any picture show is being conducted in accordance with the provisions of this law he shall issue the owner thereof his certificate of inspection. A certificate of inspection of a motion picture show shall be next inspected; provided, however, that such license shall be issued until January first, in the year in which the certificate is provided to the state treasurer.

Sec. 16. No person shall operate any motion picture machine in this state unless he shall be at least eighteen years of age and have been in possession of a state fire marshal's license since the time of his being seventeen years of age and the state fire marshal whenever he shall deem it necessary may examine any operator of a motion picture machine as to his fitness to operate the same, and if he shall find any such operator deficient in any degree, such operator shall not be permitted to operate any such machine in this state until such incompetency has been removed.

Sec. 17. Whenever the state fire marshal or his deputies shall have inspected and found that the provisions of this act have been violated after due notice given, then he shall cause the name of the party in violation to be recorded and the usual penalty to be imposed. And the violation of this act may be prosecuted by the prosecuting attorney of the county in which such violation has occurred, and it shall thereupon be the duty of said prosecuting attorney to cause the arrest and prosecution of the person or persons so violating.

Sec. 18. Every motion picture show, theatre or any other amusement place or audience room in the State of Michigan showing motion pictures shall have in the form of a resolution passed by the state fire marshal not less than twice each year. The owner of a moving picture show, theatre or other amusement place or exhibition, or amusement show, shall pay to the state treasurer the sum of ten dollars, and all money so paid shall be credited to the state fire marshal fund for the use of the fire marshals department. Provided, however, that no more than twenty dollars shall be collected for such inspection in any one year, or any one place of amusement or exhibition room.

Sec. 19. Any act or acts of the municipality, or any act or acts of any county, city, village, school district, or any other local authority, which is in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 20. Provided, however, that in municipalities having ordinances providing for the regulation and installation and operations of moving picture machines, nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the enforcement of such local regulations, but the jurisdiction of the state fire marshal shall in such cases be concurrent with that of the municipal authorities.
No films may be publicly shown or exhibited within the State of Ohio, unless they have been approved by the State Fire Marshal and stamped and numbered by such Board and Congress, as provided herein.

The In the Federal District Court (U.S.)

The Federal District Court in a decision handed down September 1, 1916, in the case of Ponto Mimie vs. Collector of the Port of New York, held that Congress had the power to prohibit the bringing in of photographic films designed for public exhibition and sustained the constitutionality of the Film Exclusion Act.

Sunday motion pictures were made legally possible in Schenectady, N.Y., December 27, 1916, when the theatre owners outgeruated the police authorities and secured a temporary injunction from Justice V. Bost, of the Supreme Court, restraining Mayor George R. Linn and Commissioner of Public Safety Cole from enforcing the prohibition.

(Texas)

Recent action taken by the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin, Texas, indicates that Sunday shows in motion picture theatres will be prohibited. This Court overruled a motion for a rehearing in a Sunday opening case tried at Fort Worth. The action taken by the Court was, in effect, adverse to a city ordinance which permitted Sunday exhibitions.

The Chicago Censor

That if the superintendent of police of Chicago refuses to grant a permit to exhibit a picture you have the right to appeal to the mayor. If he refuses you can take the case before the courts on a writ of mandamus. This has been done and several film companies have won out.

Detroit Watches Minors

Children under the age of sixteen years are forbidden by ordinance to attend motion picture theatre performances in the City of Detroit, Mich., between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. This was found necessary because children were practising truancy. Unhappily the days of attending the theatres with parents or guardians are gone. There are exceptions to the ordinance.

To Those Shipping Films

Films may be carried on steamers carrying passengers under the same conditions as are laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission. At the request of the trade the tagging and labeling of the same.

The above ruling was handed down by the Bureau of Explosives and received by the transportation committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

Do You Know That

There is an ordinance in the City of Chicago prohibiting the driving or propelling a motion picture machine by motor. It must be operated by hand.

World's Markets for Motion Pictures

(Reprinted from Consular Report No. 158, July 9, 1917)

CONSULAR reports on markets for motion picture films in districts throughout the world have been received and contain much information of value to American manufacturers and exporters. Some of these have been printed in "Commerce Reports," but 100 or more have been made available for immediate use in the original manuscripts and may be inspected by interested persons at the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce or its district offices. These unpublished reports are from cities and towns in France, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Norway, China, Netherlands, Greece, Austria-Hungary, Denmark, Morocco, Bulgaria, Turkey, Switzerland, Egypt, Portugal, Italy, Spain, Brazil, Guatemala, Nicaragua, and Cuba and other islands in the West Indies, Venezuela, Mexico, Dominican Republic, Argentina, Costa Rica, Salvador, Honduras, South Africa, Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, and other places.

The issues of "Commerce Reports" in which similar reports already have been printed are those of February 10, 15 and 21, and April 7, 13 and 19, 1917.

The steady gains that have been made by the United States during the past five years toward the leadership in this industry have literally made it possible for the whole world to "see America" on a large scale. The exports of exposed films from manufacturers in the United States increased from $3,192,018 feet in the fiscal year 1913 to 138,751,284 feet in the fiscal year 1916, and their value increased from $2,276,460 in the year ended June 30, 1913, to $6,757,658 in the year ended June 30, 1916.

Exports to Europe were 17,762,429 feet, valued at $1,317,531, in 1913, and 126,749,563 feet, valued at $4,831,866, in 1916; to North American countries, 10,846,822 feet, valued at $759,544, in 1913, and 17,603,193 feet, valued at $1,070,823, in 1916; to South America, 811,259 feet, valued at $39,629, in 1913, and 2,638,328 feet, valued at $126,007, in 1916; to Asia, 770,418 feet, valued at $33,065, in 1913, and 3,336,997 feet, valued at $119,189, in 1916; to Oceania, 1,992,000 feet, valued at $120,046, in 1913, and 8,388,959 feet, valued at $383,054, in 1916; and to Africa, 9,060 feet, valued at $681, in 1913, and 42,706 feet, valued at $671, in 1916.

Official figures reveal that the factors of the producing industry of this country have been gradually turning the import trade in films from the "manufactured class" to the "raw material." Notwithstanding the immense growth in the scope of such entertainments in the United States, imports of the finished product have been dwindling for several years; but, on the other hand, our imports of sensibly but substantially increased in quantities. Imports of such raw material amounted to 44,717,323 feet, valued at $889,500, in 1914, and to $45,907,706 feet, valued at $750,023, in 1916. The reduction in total value gives this class of goods a unique distinction in an era of high prices.

Imports of motion picture "positives" reached the lowest mark of recent years in 1916, when the amount was 6,742,988 feet, valued at $256,332, compared with 14,274,709 feet, valued at $883,583, in 1912, and 20,057,144 feet, valued at $1,009,469, in 1914.

History of F.I.L.M Club

The principal objects of the club are to promote more friendly relationship between exhibitor and exchanges. The good exhibitors realize that the club is a protection to them as against the unfair dealings of bad exhibitors and bad exchange men, for the club punishes severely any member who knowingly takes advantage of an exhibitor. Only a few days ago one New York exchange manager was fined $80 for breaking his contract with a theatre.

The Chicago club appointed the Hoy Reporting Company as their "Official Credit Bureau." This company, headed by Charles B. Hoy, conducted its work so satisfactorily that New York city exchange men had the Hoy Company open New York offices. Dr. Chas. Hepple, president of the New Jersey State Exhibitors League, gave an interview recently in which he proposed that the Hoy Agency acts as a Dun and Bradstreet for the industry and that exhibitors in his State who Hoy said were responsible would be allowed to secure film by paying cash on play date or having the shipment go C.O.D., instead of paying two to four weeks' cash deposit in advance.

Note: The chart above represents the film production output from 1910 to 1917, detailing the number of films produced each year by various companies and the types of films they produced. The chart includes information about the number of reels, subjects, and the frequency of release for each company.
Regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters Governing the Storage and Handling of Nitro-Cellophane Motion Picture Films.

Recommended by National Fire Protection Association.

STORAGE OF NITRO-CELLOPHANE PICTURE FILMS.

Nitro-cellophane motion picture films should preferably be stored in a separate room, compartment, or enclosure provided with doors made of fire-resistant material, having a limited quantity permitted in a building with other occupancy, or in an approved building; it must be in standard fireproof vaults, safes, or cabinets.

1. When each reel of film shall be kept in a separate metal can with tight-fitting cover. (a) A reel of film containing 500 feet of 11/32 inch thick, 11/32 inch wide, and 32 inches deep, shall be considered equivalent to one under examination or repair, and shall be placed in an approved double walled No. 20 U. S. gauge metal safe or vault. The safe or vault shall be of not less than 1/2 inch thick, and shall be bolted securely with 1^-inch steel bolts. The safe or vault shall be placed on stands and attack by burglars (in so far as this feature can properly be incorporated therein).

No one vault or compartment shall exceed in size 750 cubic feet. To prevent abnormal high temperature within the vault glass windows and skylights should be avoided, likewise provision to boiler stacks and similar sources of heat.

Automatic sprinklers should be installed inside each vault. Other vaults of not more than 150 cubic feet capacity, and of a construction approved as at least the equivalent of that described for, may be accepted in lieu of a vault; or vaults having a capacity not exceeding 30 reels, each of not less than the equivalent of that described for, may be accepted in lieu of cabinet.

5. Fireproof 150 cubic feet. Safes shall have a single iron frame at least 14 x 34. 2 inches and roofed thick. On safes larger than 40 inches high, 30 inches wide, and 30 inches deep, an additional stiffened shell shall be added to the safe to be 1/4 inch thick, proportioned to size, but never less than 2 inches, shall be closed up at top, side, and foot, and shall be so arranged that the doors shall be placed not less than No. 12 U. S. gauge for the outer shell and not less than No. 14 for the inner shell. There shall be a door in the different, and shall be not less than 1/2 inches thick, except that the doors may have at least 4 inches of concrete with a steel stiffener behind. The double walls shall be not less than 1/2 inches thick, and the heating pipes shall be made of such heat proof metal as to be smoke proof. No cast iron shall be used in the construction of the vault, except such as casters, hinges, and flanged door frames. Other vaults of not more than 1,000 pounds in aggregate may be stored in cabinets, but no one vault shall contain more than 50 reels (250 pounds) and when two or more cabinets are used they shall be in a separate room with outside ventilation and enclosed by double walls, if not of the equivalent of 1/2 inch thick, or of 1/2 inch thick, at least 70 square inches for each 100 reeds (500 pounds) of film capacity. The cabinets shall be designed and constructed of non-combustible and non-conductive materials, the capacity of safes and cabinets, or vaults without side opening, shall be not less than 5 cubic feet. Each cabinet shall not be placed near enough to vent opening to reduce its effective area. A permanent guard shall be installed to prevent films from being forced against the walls. Small openings, or horizontal ducts may be permitted to connect the relief openings in vault walls and cabinets with the outside air, provided no solid masonry at least 3 inches thick, and securely supported. A riveted or sheet metal door shall be installed. Each cabinet shall be connected directly or indirectly to a vent opening in the building, which vent shall lead to the outside of the building, and shall be covered with a self-closing and fire-resisting material.

5. Pressure Relief for Vaults and Safes and Cabinets.—Each container for film storage shall be provided with a pressure relief vent opening to the outside air, which shall be not less than 1/8 inch in diameter, and shall be directly connected with and shall pass through a separate stack with walls of reinforced concrete or brick at least 5 inches thick, or, in the case of fire, shall be at least 70 square inches for each 100 reeds (500 pounds) of film capacity. Each vault or compartment shall be provided with a relief vent opening not less than 1/8 inch in diameter, and shall be directly connected with the outside air, and shall be not more than 150 pounds above the floor of the vault or compartment. Each door shall be designed and constructed of non-combustible material.

End of the text.
The arc lamp used in a motion picture machine must be constructed and installed as follows:

(a) Must be substantially constructed and entirely of metal except where the use of approved insulating material is necessary.

(b) The resistance box for controlling the voltage, and to prevent sparks being emitted from lamp when same is in operation, and mica switches or condensers.

(c) Self-closing doors must be provided on side and rear of lamp enclosure, and the opening ports not larger than two inches square may be provided when closed with glass.

(d) The lamp must be controlled by a double pole switch within easy reach of the operator.

(e) Conductors supplying current to lamp must not be smaller than No. 6 B. & S. wire or its equivalent. For approved lugs, must be used between lamp and permanent wiring. A fire protection plan must be submitted connected to the arc lamp and resistance. Conductors passing through case of lamp must be protected within the machine.

Resistances box must be kept not less than one (1) foot from any combustible material, or must be separated from it by a slab of slate or marble. The resistance box must be surrounded with a substantially attached metal guard having a mesh not larger than one-half inch, when closed to be kept at least one inch from outside frame of booth.

(g) The lamp must not be mounted upon a base or frame composed of wood.

Booth Lighting: No artificial light shall be used in any room, compartment, booth or machinery in which a motion picture machine is installed except that produced by electricity. All electric wiring must be brought into the booth in iron conduits. One light will be allowed for each machine and one for the rewind bench, but all such lights shall be provided with wire guards, and reinforced cord shall be used for pendant purposes. If house lights are connected from within the booth, an additional emergency control must be provided near the main exit and kept at all times in good condition.

House Lighting: All electrical wiring or apparatus used in connection with any audience room or located in any room, compartment, booth or machinery must, as far as is possible, be isolated from the others in accordance with the same rules as for booths mentioned above. No extension of wires through the non-bearing walls or the attic space of one building to another building is to be made, shall be in full compliance with the rules of the National Electrical Code.

Films: No films shall be exposed in the booth at the same time other than the one film in process of transfer or from the machine or from the upper to lower magazine, or in process of rewinding. A separate metal case, made without solder, shall be provided for each film when the year and date of manufacture is exposed. These cases shall be kept in these cases. No material of a combustible nature shall be stored within the metal case except the film being used for the film's operation.

Protection: At least two standard hand chemical fire extinguishers shall be provided for each inside the building. At least one shall be placed in such easy reach of the operator, the other located outside of the booth near the door. These shall be of a convenient size, easy to use, and are available at all times.

Note: Neither smoking nor the keeping nor use of matches shall be permitted in any booth, room, compartment or enclosure where a motion picture machine is installed, and under these conditions the machine booth shall be kept closed, but not locked, when an audience is in the booth.

In constructing a portable booth the specifications for a permanent booth shall be followed, with the exceptions given below.

Booth Lighting: All electric wiring or apparatus used in connection with any audience room or located in any room, compartment, booth or machinery must, as far as is possible, be isolated from the others in accordance with the same rules as for booths mentioned above. No extension of wires through the non-bearing walls or the attic space of one building to another building is to be made, shall be in full compliance with the rules of the National Electrical Code.

Films: No films shall be exposed in the booth at the same time other than the one film in process of transfer to or from the machine or from the upper to lower magazine, or in process of rewinding. A separate metal case, made without solder, shall be provided for each film when the year and date of manufacture is exposed. These cases shall be kept in these cases. No material of a combustible nature shall be stored within the metal case except the film being used.

Protection: At least two standard hand chemical fire extinguishers shall be provided, one inside the booth and located in an accessible place within easy reach of the operator, the other located outside of the booth.

REGARDLESS of any changes in the motion picture industry during the year, especially in relation to officials, production in the Los Angeles colony continues with approximately the same number of units or companies at work, the total July 1, being about one hundred-sixty engaged in filming dramatic subjects of five reels, thirty-five making comedy and five at serials.

Perhaps the greatest change is with respect to size of productions. Last year saw the filming of several big multiple reel subjects, but at present it is impossible except in one instance, to learn of plans of any organization to spend time and money in filming additional subjects of similar cost or size. "Intolerance," "Three Little Girls in Blue," "Citation" and "Invisible," the latest release from the "Powerhouse" company coupled with "The Daughters of the Gods," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and others made in the East, seemed to have filled the need of this market for subjects of such size and spectacular character.

PRESENT activities and plans of producers for the future, point to the conclusion that but few pictures of more than five thousand foot length will be made. Where the story is so big it cannot be told in that size, additional footage will be added, but indications point to the intentions of all to keep within the five thousand foot limit, this eliminating the "bigger than program" subjects, booked a sensation at a much higher rental, to make up for additional cost of production.

There is no evident intention of producers to reduce the cost of production. On the other hand greater care is being given the preparations of settings, costumes and properties. But at all plants an attempt has been made to reduce waste by preventing delays in filming of subjects. Stories and working scripts being compiled in advance of filming. It is possible for every available feature to have everything in readiness when players and director are assigned to the photoplay. This efficiency method will do more toward reducing production cost, and at the same time uphold the quality, than any other one thing, for time and again it has been shown high costs have been caused by delays which added the salaries of players and crews, the expenses of winding and rewinding a separate negative for two days when they were unable to make so much as a foot of film. At one studio this year four high-salaried directors, stars and supports did not work for five weeks for want of stories. Policies now in practice will prevent a repetition of this.
This realization of the value of the working scenario has brought to the powers of filmdom more truly a realization of the importance of the scenario writer for dramatic subjects. There has been a marked increase in the prices paid for stories during the past year, and writers for the screen, composing the staffs of scenario departments, are now receiving more money than former.

It is predicted frequently the writer of good screen stories will ultimately become a character he builds and the situation he evolves than will the players who impersonate the author's people.

Many improvements have been made at west coast studios, these including modern equipment, enlargements and facilities for greater economy. Plans made now by others provide for additional facilities and larger producing plants.

The Lasky studio in Hollywood has been almost wholly rebuilt. Ground space has been doubled and all buildings have been replaced by new ones so located as to best serve the needs of the producing organization. New and commodious office buildings, wardrobe, carpenter shop, paper mache works and three mammoth stages, including in one a mammoth pool, have been completed, and make possible a material increase in production from this plant as is required by the new policy with respect to Arcairct and Paramount subjects which becomes effective early next month. Director General C. B. deMille, Business Manager Frank E. Garbint, Studio Manager M. H. Hoffman are the heads of the producing organization, directly responsible for the time and money-saving plant built along efficiency methods.

The array of talent at the Lasky Studio is now greater than at any time in the past, the list of screen and stage notable working there including Miss Pickford, Mary Philbin, Geraldine Farrar, Julian Eltinge, Sessue Hayakawa, Kathryn Williams, Jack Pickford, Louise Huff, Fannie Ward, Wallace Reid, Vivian Martin, and others are expected shortly.

H. O. DAVIS, the new general manager of Triangle, is expected on the coast shortly, and then definite information concerning the plans of this corporation with respect to increasing production will be made known. It is understood the Culver City studios, built for the New York Motion Picture Corporation by Thos. H. Ince and E. H. Allen, will be materially enlarged. The laboratories, technical shops, dressing rooms and administration building are of the same type; one added to accommodate staff of double the present size. The addition of more producing units, however, will make necessary the erection of additional stages, and as all producing of dramatic subjects is to be done at this plant and probably comedy units will be added later, the ground recently purchased by the company will shortly contain enclosed studios of the same type. Found at this plant is the Triangle is retaining the big ranch beyond Santa Monica on the ocean, formerly known as Inceville, which has now been named Hartville. It is a possibility Triangle will use the studio formerly occupied by the companies producing Fine Art releases.

The coming year is smaller than in previous years. The greater part of the year will be spent in the Mid-West developing new titles. The new titles are not for the man who has never seen a film, nor for the man who has never heard of a film, but for the man who is interested in the subject. The new titles will be released in the Mid-West during the first three months of the year, and in the East during the last three months of the year.

STATE RIGHTS SECTION

Survey of State Rights Field Is First of Its Kind

Motion Picture News Presents Array of Data on Problems Affecting Marketing of Film Through Independent Exchanges—Move Is Pioneer Effort

In this issue, Motion Picture News presents to the trade a feature of news-gathering never before attempted by any other publication devoted to the interests of the film industry.

In the following pages will be found a survey of the conditions now existing in the state rights field. This survey, comprehensive and illuminating, is worth the close study of exhibitors, exchange men and producers.

This information is the result of first-hand effort by the News. The exchange men whose views are printed here were asked to tell for the benefit of our readers the trend of the independent market today and what should be done by the sellers of territorial rights to bring about an immediate improvement in district allotments.

In this connection—and selection—of state rights data, the News has pursued a "looking-ahead" policy. The future锦绣 is the one line in which it is unprofitable, if not fatal, to look back. And besides, the live people have no time to do anything but keep their eyes front. The News sees an opportunity to be of real service to its readers by giving them information on a subject which now agitates the minds of many in the business.

Changes take place in this industry with breathless rapidity. The knowledge that one accumulated six months ago is often rendered obsolete by some quick turn in picture development, and in some cases it becomes practically useless. The News has sought a subject of universal interest at this time, and has endeavored to lay before the trade a full, complete account of the phase in the business which indicates the possibilities of unusual development. With these state rights facts before us, we have the basic material for everybody to work upon in a campaign of constructive effort.

For months the News has watched the tendencies of the state rights market and now feels that it can, through its symposium of facts, render needed assistance in the solution of this vital question.

Besides publishing the views of exchange men, these pages contain resumes of state rights conditions throughout the country from our correspondents. These representatives made a thorough canvass of their territories and their accounts are the first of the kind published in the film papers.

Between the reports of the correspondents and the observations of the exchange men, readers will have at their command the most complete array of state rights facts—timely in their suggestiveness and indisputably helpful—obtainable on the subjects anywhere, for some time to come.

Probably the most important point brought out in the letters from the exchanges—which follow the reports from correspondents—is a serious complaint directed toward some of the manufacturers. They often ignore, it is said, the logical boundary lines of territories when selling district rights.

This disregard for local requirements affects everybody. It knocks out the plans of the buyer, when he figures certain expected returns from his section. Ultimately the exhibitor feels the effect, in an unreasonably high rental and reduced profits. And all this trouble could have been avoided in the first place by the exercise of a little foresight on the part of the men originally controlling the selling rights of the picture.

Los Angeles Is Among Best State Rights Fields

LOS ANGELES is one of the best territories for independent or state rights renters in the country. This condition is due to all first-run houses using the same program one week or more, and all but four or five of these houses booking their subjects on the open market basis.

If an independently released subject, or one sold by state rights, has a good star or is an adaptation from a well-known book, backed up by a good film play, the buyer will have little difficulty in renting it in Los Angeles. If the star is not known, and the story is an original territory, likewise unknown, but has quality and a pleasing production generally speaking, it is very probable the party who purchases such a film for this territory will have little difficulty in renting it to be shown in connection with such other subject which is featured. In this instance I refer to the houses featuring comedies or short subjects of leading stars as fast as they are released.

Managers of all theatres where booking is done on the open market basis each week see all films that are available on the open market basis. Price for rental is maintained by competitive bidding, it might be said, but the rental price depends largely upon the quality and drawing power of the subject under consideration.

"The Barrier" was shown four weeks continuously at the Auditorium. The Universal Company's subject, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," enjoyed a similar engagement at the Majestic theatre. The Selig "Garden of Allah" was shown for four weeks at Quinn's Rialto, and was used to open this theatre, which is a new one and one of the finest houses in Los Angeles. "The Whip" was booked a few days ago for a four weeks' run at Quinn's Rialto.

Open market booking having been adopted by a majority of the first-run houses, causes the shedding each week of from four to six multiple-reel subjects. Some of these are on program and others are state rights or independent releases. The quality of the photoplay, its drawing power, coupled with the advertising possibilities and the popularity of the star, regulate the price paid for independent subjects, and in many cases the same applies to program photoplays that do not have contract booking.

Generally speaking the state rights subjects in the past have secured a higher rental than the program pictures, for they were considered bigger than program quality, and had greater drawing power. The price by some theatre managers is a secondary consideration, the first thing being their ability to secure a subject that will have sufficient drawing power to pull the greatest amount of business to their theatres.

The success of an independently booked subject in this territory depends largely upon the success at the first run. Many, in fact a majority, of the suburban and small town houses have programs booked in for four or five days each week, and thus have two or three days for open booking. On these days independent or open market subjects are booked by the smaller house manager.

The map of the United States laid out according to territorial divisions by Motion Picture News, is considered by the majority of exchangemen as the best segregation of the country for state rights operators yet devised. This does not mean that it is considered final, as the small maps below, showing suggested changes in various sections of the continent, indicate a variance of opinion among several men in the trade, whose experience qualifies them to speak with a certain degree of authority.

THESE ARE THE PRINCIPAL CHANGES SUGGESTED FOR STATE RIGHTS DIVISIONS
Majority Justifies State Rights Lines Outlined by the “News”

The request made by Motion Picture News to independent exchange men for their views on state rights boundaries has met with numerous responses. Almost unanimously the state rights men agree that the divisions suggested by the News are correct. There is, however, an occasional variance of opinion over the allotments of territory in a few sections of the country.

Some of the changes suggested for the eastern section of the country are as follows: Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, the District of Columbia, West Virginia, bounded by Bluefield and south; Pennsylvania west of Harrisburg, West Virginia, as far south as Huntington, for men who operate in a limited territory in sections 4 and 5. Others think that District 3 should consist of Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, the whole of Virginia, instead of the northern part of Virginia, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. Still another suggestion consists of Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and the District of Columbia.

While the consensus of opinion regarding District 13 is that the section should stand as outlined by Motion Picture News, some variance has been expressed in several quarters. A few exchanges in the South declare that Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and the west part of Tennessee should be made a separate territorial division. A variation of this suggestion consists of the declaration that Arkansas should be left out.

It is stated in some quarters that District 12 should include Arkansas—and, in one case, Louisiana—which is generally reckon ed as a part of District 13. In summing up the views of men in the South and Southwest regarding Districts 12 and 13, it may be stated that the majority maintain that these two sections should stand as proposed by Motion Picture News.

District 8 is generally considered an equitable segregation of states. An occasional dissenting voice says that Nebraska and Iowa should be grouped in one territory.

District 5 seems to meet with the approval of most exchange men in that section. Here and there it is said that the district should be split up—Indiana and Kentucky being considered as one division.

According to the average opinion of exchange men who have replied to the request of the News for criticism of its state rights map, District 7 practically stands, with the exception that it be made to include the northern part of Michigan. This state, it may be incidentally mentioned, is looked upon by some state righters as a separate district.

District 1, the New England states, as outlined by the News, has not brought forth one dissenting voice. Everybody seems to agree with this segregation as made by the publication. The same concurrence of opinion regarding District 11, California, Nevada and Arizona is also evident in the replies received by the News.

When it comes to Districts 9 and 10, Motion Picture News has received a number of conflicting suggestions. Several think that District 10 should include the eastern half of District 9. A departure even from this would take into District 10 the southern half of Idaho, the southwestern corner of Wyoming, the western halves of Colorado, New Mexico and a slice of the western part of Texas—Montana and northern Idaho being left out. Still another divergent view consists of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and southern Idaho; and northern Idaho and Montana as an independent section. Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas are viewed with favor in other quarters.

In summing up the situation as a result of the thorough canvass conducted among independent exchanges by Motion Picture News, it may be said that the majority feel that the divisions as already outlined must, as a rule, stand until some radical change comes over the field—like, for instance, the total disregard of state lines in outlining territory and making boundaries according to the convenience of distance from any given exchange center, density of population, express rates and the facilities of railroad transportation.

And this cannot be done until a movement shall be under way for exchanges to obtain the co-operation of the statistical departments of railroads and express companies in a concerted effort of national proportions to lay out the whole country along these lines.

On page 664 of this issue will be found the map as originally outlined by the News, and below it appears the principal suggested changes in the various districts.

Complaint has been made by several exchange managers that exhibitors having theatres in the smaller towns and suburban districts, do not give the subjects they rent from program exchanges as much attention as they do the independently booked pictures. It is the general opinion that exhibitors in this territory will give advertising attention to a subject in comparison with the amount they pay for rental. In other words, if a picture is rented for twice what they pay for a program picture they will get out and expend twice the amount of energy and money in advertising that they would for a regular release of the programs they are using each week.

Little complaint is to be heard concerning the state rights films that are being shown in this territory. The exhibitors are eager to book them, as the booking sheets at the exchanges indicate, and the theatre managers believe an independent subject has more drawing power, for he is educated to see the better qualities of the picture because of the extensive advertising done by the producer, and also the direct advertising given the film by the independent exchange which purchased it for the territory. In other words, the knowledge the exhibitors gained of the state rights subject would indicate they are a more efficiently advertised production.

J. C. Jessen

Chicago Is Optimistic

The state rights market never looked rosier or seemed better understood in its scope and method than right at the present time in Chicago. There has been an increasing constructive interest and activity manifested here within the last three months in regards to this type of release. Such pictures as "Should She Obey?" "On Trial," "Redemption," "The Crisis," "The Barrier," "God's Man," "The Submarine Eye," "The Garden of Allah," together with a half-dozen others, all of which have been sold and exhibited within the past three or four months, have changed the previously formed opinion of the exhibitor greatly as to what the state rights market is, what it should be and what it is planned to be.

They wince at some of the prices, but consider a good portion of them equitable as compared with their program rentals and results. This growing favor is also attested by the fact that each successive picture of the kind as it appears is given a wider local showing than the previous one. Also are they of the opinion that there is too much worthless stuff being disposed of as state rights propositions. They are generally against the "one production" company that uses this method of disposition of its wares.

The formation of several new and well financed state rights buyers and sellers in this territory is also to be noted as a sign that the state rights picture is being considered and waxing more popular every week among the exhibitors. The latter are also shrewdly advocating a more perfect and basic method of territorial distribution for state rights pictures for the effect it will have on rental prices.

W. J. McGrath

Philadelphia Complains of High Prices

While conceding the high quality of many state rights pictures booked through the Philadelphia exchanges, exhibitors generally complain of the high cost of such features.

A said one owner of a neighborhood theatre, "The situation is this, when these pictures are talked of and advertised so largely, we must book them or our patrons will go to the opposition. So book them as a big price and nine times out of ten they do not pay except in the publicity we get out of being an enterprising exhibitor."

Another exhibitor in an entirely different section of the city expressed himself in similar fashion, saying, "It is all right for the first-run houses that get twenty-five to thirty-five cents to pay these big sums, but we who only charge ten cents cannot make any real profit out of the big features, with their excessive prices. I never had one that paid yet. As for the poor ones that go cheap, they are high at any price as they leave dissatisfied patrons."

The state rights exchanges in Philadelphia express themselves as doing a good business and find their pictures on the whole booking well.

The seeming discrepancy proves that exhibitors are booking the state rights pictures right along to keep the other fellow out, even though grumbling all the while at the necessity.

State Rights Films in Favor at Washington, D. C.

State rights films are gaining in favor in Washington, D. C. They offer opportunity for the stage houses to use these productions for a week or two at high prices. This refers chiefly to "Twentieth Thousand Leagues under the Sea," "Joan the Woman," "Intolerance" and similar productions. When state rights pictures are used by the screen houses exhibitors do excellent business with a week's run and possibly a two-week run. No complaints have been made about the price of rentals as the exhibitor and exchange-man cooperate in this matter.

Sidney Lust reports that "Civilization," "The Barrier," "Witching Hour," Billy West comedies, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and "The Whip" are doing well. He is holding "Within the Law" for fall distribution. Geo. C. Schultz, manager of Hy-Art Masterplays exchange, controlling "Wars Women," and "Faviova," states that these films are playing to advantage. This exchange has recently purchased territorial rights to "The Garden of Allah," which will be presented in one of the local stage houses.

A. Dresser, who has recently entered the state rights field as manager of the Exhibitors' Film Exchange, reports favorably on "Beware of Strangers," and Charles Chapman in "A Son of the Gods." Mr. Dresser, who has been exchange manager for several manufacturers for some years, has gone into this end of the motion picture industry because it to be the most substantial in the future of the industry.

Willard Howe,

Best Pictures Find Ready Market in Maryland

Until recently the Maryland territory was very unprofitable to the state rights man. Within the last few months, however, there has been a decided increase in the demand for state rights pictures. The poorly directed, indifferent state rights film continues to be a drag on this market. It was difficult to find a booking for it even in the cheaper priced picture houses. But for the better class of state rights propositions—those which can in all propriety be called photoplays—there is a bigger demand than ever before.

More state rights propositions have been dispose of in this territory than ever before, while even the larger theatres have been using state rights propositions to keep their houses open after their regular bills have been conducted.

A. F. Gillaspé.

Programs Show Weakness in New Orleans

The patrons in New Orleans study the pictures and take pride in their ability to distinguish between the good and the bad. They read their local newspapers with avidity and shape their judgments by local conditions. They may be wrong in their conclusions, but so long as they are the people who are paying the money to see the productions, it would appear to be the part of wisdom to court their favorable decision. Alert exhibitors are doing this by building larger and better theatres and giving the best service obtainable anywhere it is to be obtained. Under these conditions there appears to be no reason for taking a pessimistic view of the condition of business in this territory.

N. U. Thatcher.

Florida Favors State Rights Pictures—But All Are Not Good

Many of the exhibitors in Florida favor a state rights market for pictures, but all of them seem to be reticent regarding just why this is so and wherein they would benefit by it, except that it would tend to reduce the rental of program pictures.

The only trouble with many state rights pictures is that if you buy your picture before you see it, and if it is made by an irresponsible firm, the exhibitor is stuck, regardless of its advertising. Advertising a production is absolutely necessary, but the advertisement must be backed up by truth and facts, else the burned exhibitor will evade the fire of experience with unknown producers. The only way out seems to be to adopt the plan long urged by exhibitors of Florida, i.e., to establish advance trade showings similar to those in vogue in the larger cities.

E. T. Hollingsworth, Jr.
If you like the "News," write our advertisers; if not, tell us.
Northwest Shy of War Pictures

STATE right films men who were raised in the country will know the exact business condition in the Northwest represented by one man's statement that the films were selling like eggs for hatching. Just as the buyer of such eggs wants a hatching guaranteed with a pedigree of the stock and the promise of a refund, the exhibitor who plays a state rights film now wants to know every inch of the film, how many it takes through the doors of his theatre and what he will get if the film doesn't come up to expectations.

Of course, the time of guaranteed profits hasn't arrived but it might as well be here. One of the biggest state rights firms in the Northwest says, "Keep away with war pictures, go slowly with the safe talk and take sworn statements of satisfied exhibitors with you." In other words, the buyer is cautious. He wants the film if it will bring the money, but he is afraid to take a chance even when the man in the next town has saved the summer.

Green and Steffes, well known to country exhibitors, unhesitatingly say business is bad.

James V. Bryson who has "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," said the film went over for a touchdown in Milwaukee, and has done a good business in some of the smaller places.

The companies having war films—they are well-known films—are having a hard fight. There is just one war picture that will go over and it can't be made now. The first film of "Black Jack Pershing," and his men in action will be taken in every house in the West, if the exhibitor has to mortgage his heating plant!

Opinion Divided in Nebraska

STATE right pictures purchasable in Nebraska and Iowa are not as good as the best pictures released by the program companies, but the prices charged are higher, say the exhibitors. The bigger exhibitors say only one in every five state rights pictures in this territory is good. The prices charged are too high, they say.

But there are others who believe in state rights pictures. E. C. Largen of the Lyric, Creighton, Neb., said: "The Unwritten Law has the most drawing power of any feature I ever saw," and added, "There wasn't a single patron that went away dissatisfied that I heard of, and lots came to the box office and said that it was the finest thing they ever saw." But even the state rights dealers themselves are not satisfied with conditions in the Middle West.

Guy P. Leavitt.

State Rights Market in Ohio in Excellent Condition

CONDITIONS in the state rights field in Ohio are very good. Exhibitors, as a rule, are well pleased with the pictures that are furnished. They are satisfied with state right prices and feel that they are in just proportion to rentals charged for pictures when booked from program companies.

Some of the state rights pictures have been the biggest box office attractions ever shown in Columbus. Patrons have been enthusiastic over these pictures, although, of course, the majority of the patrons do not bother about the rental of pictures. The consensus of opinion among the exhibitors is that the quality of the pictures is good.

Paul A. Platz.

Good Outlook in Iowa

THE state rights market has but recently gained much of a foothold in Iowa. However, it is fast becoming a popular system with some exhibitors. In the past there have been but few of these pictures shown. Possibly exhibitors were a little conservative about changing their policy. Possibly this was due to the higher rental. Whatever the reason the facts are that these objection are now being overcome. Particularly this so in the larger cities.

Occasionally there can be found a progressive exhibitor who has tried out the plan and claims to have found it a failure. Such exhibitors are few.

Considering the large number of theatres in Iowa which are constantly in search of good program pictures and good features the state rights market should have a most attractive outlook for the coming season in Iowa.

Complain That State Rights in Northwest Is "Shot to Pieces"

THAT the state rights market is all shot to pieces is the general tone of the owners of features in the State of Washington. Some exceptions are made, of course, but in their optimism these latter do not seem to have the hilarious ring to it that it should.

P. N. Mendelson, of the Premier Feature Film Company, Seattle, says: "In expressing an opinion as to the conditions of the state rights field in this section, I believe that unless one really mistates facts as they exist his expressions will surely appear quite pessimistic, indeed.

"The situation in this Pacific Northwest territory is deplorable, to say the least, whether it is due to the fact that there are too many pictures on the market or the fact that the eastern magnates believe as Barnum did that 'one is being born every minute.' However, after telling you, I will let you judge for yourself, and you will no doubt agree with me that there is something radically wrong somewhere.

"Before going any farther, I will say right now and without fear of being contradicted, that there is not one state rights man in this territory who has made a dollar over and above his expense of doing business and I personally believe that there are none who have even made expenses.

"Here is the reason: A picture is produced and is turned over to the selling agent in the East who apportions off the territories on a state rights basis; then Mr. Eastern Man figures our territory out here five or six per cent of the population. Of course, most likely he has never been out here and does not know. Just think of it, this territory of Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho—a total population of a little over two million, and only one-quarter the total population of Greater New York, where you can cover your whole territory for a jinney, while out here you have to travel more than twelve thousand miles to get over all the ground, and then what results?

"You found possibly sixty towns with a population of over two thousand and the rest a lot of burgs of five and six hundred people, where some blacksmith or shoemaker runs a movie show twice a week and gets the best program on the market for less than a dollar a reel.

"Of course, Mr. Eastern Man will say you have Seattle, Portland and Butte. Correct. We have, but unless we make our terms attractive enough to one or two firms that have a chain of houses in this section we are out of the big money.

"I believe that I have run my business with less overhead than any firm out here, and have purchased my subjects at what everyone considers cheap, but I have not made any money. On the contrary, I have lost money, and just as long as the Eastern people can find men who are willing to invest thousands of dollars in special features, simply because they have done some very clever attractive advertising, just so long will the state rights men out here be working for the producer without any salary.

"Someone will have to wake up soon, and I believe the state rights men will, but until that time I'm off of this fancy price stuff."

A. J. Kennedy.

Price of Independent Films in Michigan Is Too High

MICHIGAN exhibitors have only one objection to the state rights pictures—the buyers or exchanges who own them ask too high prices, as compared with the program pictures. It seems that the minute an exchangeman buys a state rights picture, he tries to get more money than some of the big attractions on regular program.

For instance, the average theatre will not pay over $25 or $35 per day for a Theda Bara, William Farnum, or Marguerite Clark picture, on regular program, and with these pictures they are assured of big business, yet a state rights picture will invariably cost them from $35 to $75 per day.

Many of the state rights pictures have not proven the box-office attraction they were thought to be, and the result is that exhibitors are more or less skeptical of many of them. With all due respect to the people who produce and own these state rights pictures, very few have proven real money-getters for the Michigan exhibitors at the high rentals asked.

Another thing, producers who come to Detroit to find state rights buyers ask altogether too much for their features. Michigan is entirely overestimated. Take Detroit out of the state, and what have you left? There are not many real good show towns in Michigan, and the overhead expense in selling these state rights pictures is tremendous.

Arizona Is at a Low Ebb

The state rights market in Arizona is at a low ebb. There is practically no market for state rights pictures there, due to the fact that most of the state rights sellers have seen fit in the past to include Arizona in sales with California and the California buyer, inspired by a false standard of Arizona's prosperity, has seen fit to demand of the local exhibitor too much for the same product he is content to sell for a great deal less in California.

This condition has obtained to the detriment of the state rights feature, because of the reason that the exhibitor who has bought a state rights picture must get for it such prices as are almost sure to react to his disadvantage, sooner or later, when he fails to present some product to the taste of the ticket buyer.

The individual buyer of state rights products is handicapped by reason of the fact that he cannot expect to bid with the Pacific Coast purchasers when they have the lever of California to aid them.

We have seen in the past year but one or two direct sales of pictures to Arizona buyers and for no other reason than the above given.

Arizona presents a field for state rights products in keeping with any spot on the map, but the seller of the product must take into consideration the fact that this is a new territory. A state with less than 300,000 people, and many of them not possible patrons of the higher class of pictures by reason of the fact they are aliens and do not read the language.

Arizona is particularly good right now because of the fact that copper is its big output and copper is better now than at any time in mining history.

State rights buyers who want to market independently should do well here if they could be induced to sell the California buyer independently.

The California buyer uses the argument that Arizona will not sell alone because there is such a small field there and then when he obtains this state as a gift with California he proceeds to take more money per city and town out of Arizona than he can in any similar spot in California by double.

Selling California should not be made hard by reason of the divorcing of Arizona from that state. If the logic of the buyer "that Arizona does not count, that it is too small a proposition to fool with alone," it is true then he should not quibble over California without Arizona.

If that time ever comes, Arizona will be a good state rights field for the independent buyer.

Too Much Money Asked For in Canada

Put briefly, the state rights situation is this—too much money asked for pictures. The Maritime Province exhibitor feels that it is impossible for him to make money out of a special when he has to pay so much money to run it. The Maritime Province exhibitor pays twice as much for his films as the exhibitor in Maine and, even allowing for duty, he feels that the charges are excessive.

The quality of the pictures offered is all right but it is the high price asked which is the drawback. Several exhibitors have tried the state rights pictures and found they did not pay in this territory.

Alice Fairweather.

Manitoba Not a Good Field

There are no state rights pictures in Manitoba, excepting a few features like "The Submarine Eye," "Daughters of France," "The Whip," and "The Crisis," which are brought in by the Walker theatre, Winnipeg, and shown there. The Walker is not a motion picture house, but a legitimate theatre.

Opportunities Are Bright in St. Louis

State rights productions, while not showing any marked increase in popularity, are regarded favorably by exhibitors.

The rental price on these pictures as a rule is higher than on the regular program films. But as many of them are of the better quality, from an attraction standpoint, and the exhibitor has the right of using his own judgment in booking them, he does not as a rule object to the increased rental price.

A state rights production always gives an exhibitor something that he can exploit as an extra attraction, and the advertising possibilities, especially if the film is in the propaganda class, are greater, and enable him to get increased admission. The quality of state rights productions seems higher than a year ago.

Another point in favor of pictures of this class is that the exhibitor can book it at a flat rental rate, if he is convinced of its drawing power; and if he is doubtful he nearly always has the privilege of playing it on the percentage basis.

It would seem that the opportunities of state rights productions are bright in this territory.

State Rights Conditions in the East

The following reports on state rights conditions have been sent direct to the News in response to a request for information that would be of assistance in reaching a solution of state rights problems. Letters from the exchanges in the East follow:

K & R Film Company, Inc, New York City, says: "We have both produced and bought state rights productions, and in most cases the going for state rights men is the hardest kind of going, owing to the number of program pictures that the exhibitor can get with big stars at his own price, and therefore it is a hard matter for the exhibitor to pay the state rights man the amount of money his special picture calls for.

"The exhibitor, perhaps not being a showman in the real sense of the word, will not consider playing on a percentage. The reason for this is—five-reel program pictures can be secured by himfor $3.50 per day, and he thinks he is being robbed if they ask him $7.50 per day.

"This condition of affairs applies, principally, to the towns and cities, outside of the big cities, that can pay important money for first-run pictures.

"We have three letters before us now from our representatives, one from San Francisco stating that $5.00 per day for five-reel productions is a common price outside of the first-run picture houses in the city; another from New Orleans stating that five-reel features with comedies added can be had at the rate of $7.50 per day on two-day service; still another letter reads from Louisville, Ky., that in the outlying towns five-reel feature service can be had for $3.50 per day.

"It seems that there is an old adage among the exchange men which reads: 'Keep the films working at any price, as they earn nothing on the shelf,' and it seems as if they are living up to that adage.

"Take for instance, a town with, say three or four theatres in it. You will find ten or more representatives of exchanges trying to get their service. We know of cases where signed contracts were handed to exhibitors to write in the price they were willing to pay for service, and you can imagine what the exhibitor would write.

"Now when a state rights man buys a picture, those are the very towns he has to go into. Perhaps in the state he buys there are but half a dozen cities where he can get time that will pay him, and he figures on the strength of playing those cities that it will boost things for the smaller towns, and when he reaches those towns the above conditions confront him.

"He soon loses heart, and the producer finds it mighty hard to sell him a second picture, and if he does it will have to be at a bargain, regardless of what the picture cost to make.

"However, it is not always the costly pictures that make the money. The unusual subject or freak picture that costs one-tenth of what a program picture costs, will clean up big money, while the big costly picture loses all along the line.

"Sometime, somewhere, circuits will be established by theatrical managers who know how, and production companies will be satisfied to make one picture per month; some, one every two months, and others, one or two per year, all pictures to be circulated on a basis less. The extra fine productions can command a top percentage, and the rest of the productions graded in percentage according to the merits of the production.

"All houses will gamble with the producer, the same as is done with the legitimate attractions of the speaking stage, and it will be a case of the picture depending on its own drawing power to get the important important roll.

"Another thing, while on the subject. Why can't a successful picture live as long as a successful stage play? Because the pro-

Can Handle Your Pictures
In Orient and Australasia

Three years’ experience in the exploitation of pictures in these markets— with personal representatives in Australia, New Zealand, India, Straits Settlements, Dutch East Indies, Philippines, China and Japan—qualifies us to handle them.

We introduced World Features, Metro Features, Rex Beach Scenics, “Mysteries of Myra,” and many other notable productions in Australasia. We now control exclusive rights to Metro and Selznick Features and others for the entire Orient.

To exploit intelligently motion pictures in these countries a thorough knowledge of the needs, conditions and ideals of their people is imperative—we have gained such a knowledge through actual personal contact with them. Write or ’phone.

ducer or exchangeman will kill the earning power of the best picture in the world in thirty days. Smith pays him $50 for a first-run of one day; up the street Jones gets it for $25 for one day because Smith ran it first. Then Mr. Spivens around the corner pays him $10 for one day because it's the third run, notwithstanding the other two runs helped to boost Mr. Third Run's business, because by this time the people are talking about it. However, Mr. Fourth Run gets it for $5 for one day, and then it is known as a commercial or junk.

"The four houses played the excellent picture has earned the picture a sum of $900 and is killed, as far as getting any important money out of that town. Whereas, if the same fine production played a circuit house on percentage for from two to seven days and be on its way to the next stand, and the following season come back for a return engagement, or before that if the manager thought it a good bet at the same percentage he originally played at, these good pictures could be made to live and earn important money for their producers and the house that plays it.

"Of course the small time folks will always be able to book small time pictures, and the manager who owns the costly theatre is sure of the best, and the producer will be encouraged to spend big money and use more care in making a worth-while picture, and pictures will find their level by this method of handling."

SHORT Features Exchange, New York City, says: "I am conducting something new along this line and that is, specializing in short subjects, namely, split reels, single and two reel subjects. They are offered as a package as done by me and Jeff Company, familiarized me with the wants of the New York exhibitors and I found during this time that there was a great need for good short reel subjects.

"At present I am handling the releases of the A. Kay Company. It is my intention to distribute short subjects of merit, such as would appeal to the managements of the Strand and Rialto theatres.

"My methods in renting film have met with approval by the New York exhibitor, namely that of no deposits and no contracts. As to deposits of course, that is something which is impossible with short subjects, but as to contracts it is different. I look at contracts with the exhibitor in this light: the motion picture that cannot make money for the exhibitor is of absolutely no use to an exchange and I cannot see why an exhibitor should be forced by means of a contract, to play pictures which are of no value.

"Since the inauguration of the Short Features Exchange, five weeks ago, I have had great success in showing the value of short pictures to exchanges, throughout the country. Today a number of independent buyers refuse to bother with short pictures as they feel that there is not enough money in it for them; likewise with some of the programs. They just handle one or two short reels as a convenience for the exhibitor when he buys their feature and needs a single reel or two to fill in his program.

"Greiver and Hess, state rights buyers in Illinois, have followed along the same plan that I am working on, only they are also buying features for their territory; but as I understand, they are conducting their short reel business separately from their features.

"As to territory, I am distributing films in Greater New York, Long Island and New York State, up to and including Albany; nothing above that. I am in a position to buy split reels, single and two reel subjects for the territory named.

"Conditions in the territory in which I am selling pictures are of course not at the height of their glory, because of the summer coming on. My argument, which is working out, as far as my pictures are concerned, is that although the motion picture theatre is over productive, still the exhibitor can always find room on his program for exceptional subjects.

"The Natsam Features Company, Springfield, Mass., says: "We regard the conditions in the state rights field as promising, and as affording every present reason to look with great hopefulness to the future. It is only a breaking away from the shackles of the past, and establishment of the open-market policy must inevitably be for the benefit of the owner of state rights, and correspondingly must encourage the manufacturers in the production of features designed for this purpose.

"The handicap of the exclusive program being removed, the state rights owner will be placed upon the level of competitive merit with all the advantages of a free field, will naturally feel disposed to broaden his investments and, in my opinion, will reap an increasing reward of his enterprise."

McCarthy Film Service Exchange, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "After twelve years' experience in motion picture exchanges and having owned experience, I feel that the bigger regular productions have had a foothold in the picture industry for several years, but the time is coming when exhibitors will tire of regular releases and are looking for something that is bigger and stronger than the regular companies produce.

"The state rights picture will always find ample business if they came producing their releases subjects and keep them up to the standard that they have been doing for the last two years, and I feel that for my part I would rather handle state rights pictures than anything else on the market."

The Philadelphia Ideal Film Exchange, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "We usually cover as our territory District No. 5, as outlined on the map. Trenton should always be included in southern New Jersey territory."

The Electric Theatre Supply Company, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "Eastern Pennsylvania, including the counties of Tioga, Lycoming, Union, Snyder, Juniata, Franklin and all counties east thereof, southern New Jersey, south of 40° 15', Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia.

"Inasmuch as this is the district outlined by your map, we do not see any reasons for suggesting any changes therein. In other words, we will not purchase pictures that do not take in southern Virginia and all of southern New Jersey south of 40° 15'. If southern Virginia is sold to another concern we are not interested. If southern New Jersey is sold to another concern, we are not interested, because this would interfere with our arrangements for distribution."

The Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc., Washington, D. C., says: "Our territory comprises Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, District of Columbia and a portion of West Virginia which borders on the states of Maryland and Virginia, and also includes the southern half of the state of West Virginia."

Northwest Does Not See All Films

Not all the state rights pictures of the better kind are shown in the Northwest. One man says that he could name a hundred features released in New York which have never been exhibited in the Pacific Northwest territory.

EERLESS FEATURE ATTRACTIONS, Seattle, Wash., says: "Our territory, which consists of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, we believe to be the hardest in the entire Union, as we do not have as many theatres in the four states as there are alone. And it costs us one hundred times as much to travel around this small number of theatres as it would take for the same number in a city like New York, and yet every sales manager of a state rights picture, who naturally believes that he has the 'greatest show on earth,' holds a feature at such a price that it results in the fact that it never gets out here. The writer believes that he could sit down and name one hundred features that were released in New York City that have never been sold for this territory.

"The producing companies of these features, through their efforts of wanting to get their price, have gone bankrupt, and the valuable features that they produced, some of them being good ones, are laid away on idle shelves in obscure vaults.

"It is high time that the big state rights sellers of New York City get together and manage their territory so that it could be a case of live and let live, and not a case of sting 'em before the other fellow stings 'em.

"It is true that a picture is sold once in a while at a big figure, and the salesman who has made that sale is patted on the back; but do you ever stop to think of what becomes of the man who buys, and will he ever buy another one?

"We trust that you will not think that we are speaking from our own experience, as we still have our first time to be stung, but we do speak from the experience of several of our personal friends, who are good fellows, and they are Westerners from the toes up, who will take a chance at almost anything at least once, but after having it handed to them by the wise guys of New York they have dropped into obscurity and are now back at the sawmills making two by fours."

Demand in South Is Excellent

The outlook for state rights pictures in the South is excellent. Independent pictures are in favor with both the exchanges and the exhibitors. The letters from the South follow:

MCCRAY AND MCCRAY, Fairmount, W. Va., say: "We have investigated the state rights basis almost exclusively in District No. 4 and parts of No. 3, viz., western Virginia and western Maryland and that part of Ohio immediately adjacent to West Virginia on the Ohio River. Business in general in our business is good, and the exhibitors seem to be obtaining their share. State rights pictures take in almost every town in this territory, as the majority of the men seem to favor the open market, and it looks as if it will only be a question of time until the majority of the booking will be done in this manner, as it will give the men a right to take or leave what they please."

Kaufman Specials, Memphis, Tenn., says: "Throughout our territory vampire pictures are on the wane, and the demand is for plenty of comedy. Practically all exhibitors are running comedies, or cartoons with the features."

The Queen Feature Service, Birmingham, Ala., says: "A great many producers figure Louisiana in with their Texas territory, which we think is hardly right. There is really very little territory of Louisiana with the exception of Shreveport, which is closed off to the other towns in the state. New Orleans cannot and is not worked to any advantage out of Texas, while it does help our territory quite a little, as it is more or less an open town, while nearly all of the larger towns in our territory are one man towns, and, of course, you know what that means."

Opinions Vary in Middle West Section

Complaints are made that the prices of many state rights pictures are too high for the chance of a reasonable profit. The fifty and dollar and a half subjects have not met with much success in Ohio.

The Reliable Feature Film Company, Chicago, says: "The state rights market is overrun with a lot of films—some that are fair, some that are not worth while, and some that are of great merit; but the price seems to be sky high.

"It is absolutely necessary for us to buy films in order to exist, but it is also better to sit by, knowing that your money is tied up in a legitimate proposition until the market clears."

The Celebrated Film Players Company, Chicago, says: "We prefer to take in the entire state of Wisconsin, but where we find it interferes with any town's arrangement of territory we always waive the northern half."

The Art Dramas Service of Chicago says: "At the prices being asked for state rights on most of the productions that I have investigated there is no possible chance for a state rights buyer under the present market to exist—much less make a profit. I hope the time is coming when a picture will be distributed on a state rights basis with a fair percentage of profit to producer and distributor, and until such time, believe that the market will be non-productive in so far as purchases by state rights men who are acquainted with conditions in their territory are concerned."

The McManus and Jackson Film Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, says: "The territory we usually buy pictures for is Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. We sometimes buy them for Ohio alone, or Indiana or Kentucky alone, but prefer the three states.

"It seems that the state rights business has come to stay, and exhibitors in many instances are canceling certain days of the program pictures and putting on special pictures, and this is happening every day in this locality, as they seem to have the opinion that this is the best thing to do, and our opinion is that in a very short while all productions made will be state rights or will be booked on the open market and the old program plan entirely done away with. We believe it would be better for the manufacturer, the exhibitor and the public if this came to pass, and this would give the theater operator a chance to make real money, and also the renter and the exhibitor."

"Great changes have already taken place in the moving picture industry, as you know, and greater ones will yet come, and the above is one of them in our opinion."

The Lewis-J. Selznick Productions, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, says: "The film business is suffering its share in the depressed business conditions over the country. Particularly is this true in regard to the fifty-cent to $1.50 pictures, which have not at all been successful in this territory."

"This is absolutely true, as even on 'The Birth of a Nation,' with all its publicity, due to being condemned by the board here, we have not done what it has in other territories in comparison. It seems that everything in general right at the present time is suffering the conditions of uncertainty due to our national affairs, but I personally think that as soon as a definite policy is settled and started at Washington and the government war orders as well as those of the allies are sent out and placed that we will again be buying the same way we were six months ago."

"I do not think, though, that the high-priced pictures are ever going to be successful; at least, it does not look that way from results. The demands today are for better pictures, and as soon as more of these come out the exhibitor is prepared for extended runs, but at reasonable prices, and insists upon doing business in a business-like manner and not the old method in vogue a year or so ago."

The Central Motion Picture Company, Kansas City, Mo., says: "Things are quite prosperous with the trade as a whole, and expect it to continue so in spite of the war, but believe that it will mean a closer co-operation between the exhibitor and the exchange man. In fact, we are exerting personal efforts at present to give the exhibitor what he wants, or, rather, give him the better subjects when we book him a program instead of, as in the past, giving him anything, and hold the better subjects for bigger money."

"To make the business profitable for both of us, we must cooperate with the exhibitor, and help the small town showman to keep open six nights a week instead of only one."

The Wichita Film and Supply Company of Wichita, Kansas, says: "You have this territory for state rights buyers laid out correctly. But there is not any of us little fellows that has money enough to buy District No. 8; therefore we would suggest that you make a district out of Missouri and Kansas and another one out of Iowa and Nebraska. We have bought quite a few state rights features for the four states, but we cannot do it any more. So at the present time we are trying to buy Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma."

The Page Amusement Company, Des Moines, Iowa, says: "We think the state rights exchange is coming to the front simply because it is the best method of getting the features before the exhibitors right."

"If we buy a feature it is up to us to get our money back and make a living while we are doing it. It stands to reason we will take care of all the minor details in regard to getting this well advertised and put before the public in its best possible manner. This makes business for the exhibitor and it makes us more money than it could possibly do if it was advertised in a half-hearted way, or possibly not advertised at all."

"The fact that the average manager of a big corporation, who has no investment, will get his salary anyway, I think, has something to do with the instant manner in which some exhibitors are treated when he asks for something special or wants plenty of lithos, photos, slides, heralds, cuts, etc. This big front of the high-class feature is a good asset for both exhibitor and the exchange that handles it, and you will find the man who has the investment will see that he has plenty of advertising material on hand at times. I look for the state rights exchange to stay in business as long as the photoplay is popular, and that will be for a long time yet."

Manager J. E. Kirk of the Fontenelle Feature Film Exchange Company, one of the biggest state rights dealers in Omaha, Neb., declares in no uncertain terms that "The owners of state rights pictures are killing this market." He says: "They are holding their price too high for a reasonable return to be made by dealers. We are the only ones that can buy them, and we won't pay such prices. We are losing this market. It would help if they would let us handle the state rights pictures on a commission basis. They should make something where now they will make nothing, and they would make more."

The Nebraska Feature Company, Lincoln, Neb., says: "The successful handling of a state rights picture is almost entirely a question of showmanship. By showmanship I mean the proper use of publicity and the satisfying presentation of the picture after your publicity has drawn the people to your show."

"The same principles apply to the state rights business that apply to every other business on earth. There is nothing occult or mysterious about them. First, be sure you have the goods and can deliver them properly. Then let the people know about it.

Every big state rights success that I know anything about has been the result of expert publicity. Every man in the motion picture business knows of really great pictures that were 'dead ones' until stirred into life by real showmanship.

'Don't misunderstand me. There are scores of state-righted pictures that have an innate excellence that will ever make them money-makers, no matter what you do with them. They lack name or novelty or a universal human appeal. They are, in fact, no better than ordinary regular program releases.

'Give me a good picture that will stand up when compared with other first-class productions, and I will guarantee to make money with it in Nebraska territory or any other for that matter. I will do it by proper use of advertising. This means the convincing of people that something out of the ordinary is to be offered that they cannot afford to miss.

'The resident girls of a town may be as handsome and desirable as the summer stranger. But the boys don't think so because the new girl brings an air of novelty and appeal with her. Even so, the state rights picture, if properly exploited, will gain attention, which the regular program stuff advertised in the old hackneyed way will never attract.

'Personal acquaintance is an invaluable adjunct to a state rights man. If he knows the exhibitors of his territory and can call on them Bill and Joe and John, and if he has made money for them, he is so entrenched that nothing can disable him.

'Give the exhibitor a good show and make money for him and you have 'brought him to you with hoops of steel.' Give him a good show and lose money for him and he erases the word 'we're' from his vernacular.

'I know a number of exhibitors who say, 'When you have anything else good let us know and we will run it.' And just because they say this I am mighty careful of what I give them. But when I call up Gus or Fred or Sam and say, 'Gus here's a show that will make some money for you,' Gus believes it, because I have made money for him before. And this brings us right back to the beginning. I made money for him before by the use of a little showmanship.'

Z. M. Harris, Des Moines:

'The chaotic condition of the motion picture business in Iowa relative to state rights enterprises merely simmers down to one idea. The exhibitors demand the best possible for the least money. Poor state rights pictures have made the exhibitor and the public skeptical. The advance prices of admission for specials has a tendency to injure the big attractions that are handled on state rights basis.

'Poorly chosen propositions the state rights are essential; they cannot be handled successfully through an ordinary exchange, but must be sold on advanced and along big show ideas.

'The exhibitors want the state rights man in the field. Big material must be handled by him; there is a good market for his goods.

'Big pictures have been a success in the state of Iowa; poor pictures have thrived in spots. The conditions at present are confusing; the business is 'spotted'; some cities are big, some are small, for results. The state rights proposition has to hit a concrete basis and when it does the results will be there.'

Canada Favors Independent Booking

Marketing of pictures by the state rights plan is the approved method, according to a man whose territory includes the western half of the Dominion. The letters follow:

INDEPENDENT Film and Theatre Supply Company, Montreal, Can., says: 'The demand for first class features, both regular releases and specials, was never better, and it is only a matter of offering the exhibitor real quality productions.'

H. B. Wright, Calgary, Alberta, Canada, says: 'My territory includes the western half of the Dominion of Canada, from Fort William to the Pacific Coast, and is comprised of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. While this is one-half of the territory, it figures less than one-third of the population.

'I think your state rights department is just what we need, and I believe before long it will be indispensable, as it seems to me that the only hope for exhibitors and exchange men alike, is in the independent state rights features.'

Manufacturers—Distributors

Specialization—Concentrated personal effort, by a showman who knows his territory and every prospect in that territory—these are the things needed to get you full returns from your productions.

You cannot get full returns from your energies and investment unless your production plays every possible house under the best possible conditions. Only a man financially interested in accomplishing this result and concentrating on a limited territory can do this.

New York state from Bronx Creek to Canada and from New England to the Lakes is my territory. My organization covers it like a blanket. I can get one hundred per cent of possibilities here because I know this territory and concentrate on it.

This is my proposition:

My organization, energy and knowledge against your picture and mutual participation in the gross. Investigate me and we'll do business if your picture is one I can afford to handle.

Canada Favors Independent Booking

Marketing of pictures by the state rights plan is the approved method, according to a man whose territory includes the western half of the Dominion. The letters follow:

INDEPENDENT Film and Theatre Supply Company, Montreal, Can., says: 'The demand for first class features, both regular releases and specials, was never better, and it is only a matter of offering the exhibitor real quality productions.'

H. B. Wright, Calgary, Alberta, Canada, says: 'My territory includes the western half of the Dominion of Canada, from Fort William to the Pacific Coast, and is comprised of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. While this is one-half of the territory, it figures less than one-third of the population.

'I think your state rights department is just what we need, and I believe before long it will be indispensable, as it seems to me that the only hope for exhibitors and exchange men alike, is in the independent state rights features.'

Manufacturers—Distributors

Specialization—Concentrated personal effort, by a showman who knows his territory and every prospect in that territory—these are the things needed to get you full returns from your productions.

You cannot get full returns from your energies and investment unless your production plays every possible house under the best possible conditions. Only a man financially interested in accomplishing this result and concentrating on a limited territory can do this.

New York state from Bronx Creek to Canada and from New England to the Lakes is my territory. My organization covers it like a blanket. I can get one hundred per cent of possibilities here because I know this territory and concentrate on it.

This is my proposition:

My organization, energy and knowledge against your picture and mutual participation in the gross. Investigate me and we'll do business if your picture is one I can afford to handle.

Mountain States Want Revision

Idaho and Montana are considered the logical part of the territorial division including Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico. Because of train schedules film cannot be sent to the farther cities by rail unless they be situated near a railroad station. The letters from the intermountain sections follow:

The Supreme Photoplay Corporation, Denver, Colo., Aug. 28:

"The old method of splitting territories is not conducive to the better interests of the state rights market as a whole.

"On the map which you so kindly sent us you call our territory District No. 10, embracing Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico. This territorial division is not just to any of the state rights publishers here, for you have cut off part of our logical territory, namely, Idaho and Montana. We can reach any part in Idaho and Montana from Denver and Salt Lake from twenty-four to forty-eight hours earlier than the same points can be reached from Portland or Seattle.

"Butte, the leading town in western Montana, is out 397 miles from Salt Lake City, a total running time of about fourteen hours from Seattle. The Idaho towns, of course, are much nearer Salt Lake than Butte and much farther away from Seattle.

"Billings, the leading town in eastern Montana, is 432 miles from Denver, a total running time of about twenty-four hours. It is more than forty-eight hours from Seattle. Aside from this saving of time, there is a very great factor in the business. The exhibitors located in Idaho and Montana would rather do business with Salt Lake and Denver; in fact, the regular exchanges located in Denver and Salt Lake supply Idaho and Montana, and we have endeavored time and time again to impress upon the manufacturers of special productions that Idaho and Montana is logical territory, and Denver territory and should be locked with Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico. We have met with but small success in having this territory redistricted and we have not made up our minds unless we can purchase Idaho and Montana with the other four states we would rather not have any dealings with any manufacturer who is under the impression that Seattle or Portland is the logical distributing point for these two states.

"A careful study of any train schedule will point out the folly of attempting to distribute film to Idaho and Montana from Seattle. Of course, extreme western portions of Montana and the Coeur d'Alene of Idaho can be served to much better advantage out of Seattle than Denver or Salt Lake, and we are perfectly willing to negotiate with producers along the lines herein set forth."

The Consolidated Feature Film Company, Denver, says: "State rights territories cannot be divided strictly on state lines, but should be regulated by proximity of exhibitors to natural distribution centers. On the basis of the above, the price of four or five exchanges, we submit the following example; one of the state right territories we have for Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico is also owned for the states of Nebraska and Kansas by a firm in Des Moines."

"Complying strictly with the outline of defined territory based on state lines, we find the town of Sidney, Neb., 148 miles from Denver, while it is 559 miles from Des Moines. It is only natural for the Sidney exhibitor to get his features from Denver in preference to Des Moines situated 411 miles further from him than is Denver. As a matter of fact the Sidney exhibitor positively will not patronize the exchange in Des Moines, Iowa, owing to the heavy difference in express rates.

"We are enclosing herewith as outlined by manufacturers. We will not recognize these lines or purchase any more features under this arrangement. The trouble with manufacturers is they do not understand local conditions and most of them don't want to understand them. We intend to have some voice in territorial division lines on future purchases and unless we can have some consideration in this direction from manufacturers we will not consider buying anything unless on natural boundary lines instead of state lines. The territory within the boundary of red ink on the map, which is returning, and we might include the states of Arkansas, Missouri and Nevada, are the most sparsely settled part of the country.

"The total population of our entire territory is about the same as the state of Kansas or Mississippi. Recently we were quoted a price by state rights manufacturer on our territory. We found upon inquiry that the same feature was quoted for the states of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska (District 8) less than double the price quoted us, notwithstanding the fact that District 8 has considerable more than five times the population of District 10.

"Every big special feature of note has been or is showing now in this territory. It seems to us that this territory is somewhat crowded just at this time. We have found some difficulty in booking some of our own features which is caused by exhibitors in this section being somewhat timid about booking more than one special feature weekly and in many cases we find exhibitors do not care to book more than one big feature every other week.

"Outside of Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Salt Lake and Ogden, there are no large towns in this territory. The total population of the four states we operate in is less than the state of Kansas. Towns are few and far between and with the exception of those mentioned, the population is small. As a consequence state rights exhibition operating on percentage basis is quite an expensive method. What features we have handled have given us satisfactory returns, and speaking in a general way, exhibitors in this territory are operating at all times for fear that the name implies. The world 'feature' has been abused so much that you really have to have something worthy of the name in this territory.

"Our territory is Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Southern Idaho, Western Nebraska, Kansas, Black Hills and South Dakota."

The Photoplay Exchange, Salt Lake City, Utah, says: "It is almost impossible for us to handle any features whatsoever unless we have the states of Idaho and Montana.

"Salt Lake is an exchange centre, and should be considered such by all the distributors, but the exchange is in the heart of the territory and is impossible to operate an exchange in this city, and it is impossible to get results from the state of Utah from a Denver office. So you can readily see that various distributors eventually will be compelled to give us the designated territory. Practically all of the regular distributing exchanges are handling this territory from Salt Lake offices."

Five States for Minneapolis Section

North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa should be in one district, says one exchange, while another declares that Northern Michigan should be included, instead of Iowa. The letters follow:

Favorite Feature Films, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "We consider that North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa, the entire five states, is a legitimate buy for state rights people in this territory. The reason for this is you undoubtedly know that state rights men in the past have held up this territory for an enormous sum of money. The conditions are such that if we cannot secure at least one-half or more than one-half of our investment out of this territory, the chances for making money on our feature are impossible.

"Minneapolis up to the present time, paid a fairly good rental for film and St. Paul usually one-half of the rental which Minneapolis paid. Duluth and the remainder of the territory is very poor. There are very few films which you can put into Duluth and the remaining territory that can get more than $50 per day. You, therefore, see that we must have other large towns, otherwise there is no chance of ever breaking even. We, therefore, figure that if we get Milwaukee and Des Moines that we are getting an even break.

"Southern Wisconsin is not properly worked by any Chicago house. They go to Milwaukee and then they are done with the southern part of Wisconsin, whereas, we usually hit up that part of the state and try to secure all the rental possible from that territory, and the same thing for the state of Iowa.

"There are no buyers in Omaha and they must sell to Kansas City or St. Louis. In Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha, they have all the territory they need, but we must cater to these five states. We are certain that people in the state rights business in Minneapolis carry the same opinion about this matter as we do."

The Film Library and Exchange, Minneapolis, says: "I am returning herewith Motion Picture News map and have penciled in blue the outlining boundaries of the territory best handled by Minneapolis. This includes the entire states of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin and the Northern Peninsula of Michigan."

The American Maid Film Company, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "The demand in this territory has swung from vice and sex films to successful screening for meritorious works of fiction.

Australasian Films, Ltd., Get Rights to Chaplin Comedies

Australasian Films, Ltd., with offices in the Godfrey building, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, who for many years have been large buyers on the American film market, have again secured the Australasian territorial rights of the new Charles Chaplin Comedies, which the famous comedian is to produce under his new contract with the First Exhibitors Association.

Australasian Films, Ltd., are the exclusive owners of the Australasian rights to Triangle, World, Vitagraph, Pathe, L-Ko, and London Film Company productions; in addition, are large buyers of open market features and super-features.

All the Selznick features which have been sold for Australia, "The Whip," "The Bar Sinister," "The Mormon Maid," "The Seven Deadly Sins," "God's Man," "The Manxman," and many other productions during the past few months have been purchased by the Australasian Films, who announce that they are always open to consider worthy productions at a price commensurate with the territory in which the company operates.

The State Rights "Sniper" Demoralizes the Market, Says Lee

JOSEPH F. LEE, a state rights operator, whose views on market conditions are always read with interest, both for what he has to say and the snappy way he delivers his opinions, finds that the actions of certain men designated by him as "snipers" have been responsible in a measure for a situation in the state rights field needing reformation. Mr. Lee says: "It is claimed by those in a position to know that an independent producer with a practical knowledge of motion picture making is in a position to manufacture an independent feature at a much less cost than a program man. The reason they assign for this is that the independent producer, the moment he finishes work, can set the price free from the overhead expense which in the case of the program man goes right on, regardless of whether or not a production is under way. That is, the program man's working forces are on the job, his stars, his executive forces—in short, his expense is practically the same as when his production is under way, making allowances for the amount of money, comparatively small, which goes to the ones whose services are not required after the product is finished—such as extras, for example.

"When the independent producer has finished a production his overhead expense ceases, because he has no organization to support. Now comes Mr. Sharpshooter offering a feature on state rights basis. He makes a loud noise and Mr. Buyer, enters. Hearing the price asked for this feature, Mr. Buyer makes a hurried exit without doing any buying. Why? Because he was a 'sniper.' He found his objective point, aimed, fired, but missed. It is not uncommon for a manufacturer to ask more than a feature would gross in a given territory.

"He has been quoted as offering a feature as a purchase price, which amount would be impossible to gross on the territory for which it is sought. If the seller of this feature had any idea of the number of theatres in this territory, the New England territory, he would not for a minute credit me with offering such a ridiculous price for his feature. This seller, in response to my query, "Do you know how many theatres there are in this territory?" replied that he did not care how many theatres there were. I was willing to present, to him, my reasons why I, nor any other buyer for this territory, could not pay the price he asked. I was willing to deal on a 'live and let live' basis. The point which I wish to accentuate in this argument is that a seller, such as the one above mentioned, doesn't care much the case in which he makes nor what the real conditions are in the territory for which he is buying. All he wants is a million dollars for a picture that cost a few thousand dollars to produce, and he doesn't care how he gets it.

"I have received rush messages from producers asking me to set a price for feature offered with explanations which, to me, would get me that between $10,000 and $15,000 would be expected. In most of these cases the most I could have possibly offered for the feature offered for my territory would have been $5,000, top price.

"Another favorite "indoor sport" with such a producer or seller is offering the all time. 'My picture cost more than it should have, I know. It could have been produced for $10,000 less, but I cannot help it; I must get my price.' Does the manufacturer expect the state rights buyer to pay for his mistakes? Is this expected in other commercial lines? A feature is produced which costs a few thousand dollars, a million is asked, few if any sales are made, and who is blamed? The producer of this feature could realize a million dollars on a production which cost a few thousands. You cannot follow the motto of 520 per cent.

"Is it not a fact that the First National Exhibitors Circuit was formed principally of buyers who wished to act concertedly against such sharpeners and their methods, and are not other organizations being formed to combat the same evil? Is there a buyer who has not been forced to turn away $10,000 to $50,000 more a year in his territory owing to this condition?

"W. A. Johnston, in his editorial in a recent issue of Motion Picture News, made reference to this condition when he commented on inflated prices. There is profit for all concerned in this field if all concerned will play the game fair. The state rights market is very much alive, and it is only a matter of time when the 'sniper' will learn to his sorrow that it is not the state rights market that is to blame, but the 'sniper' himself."

Big Feature Rights Corporation Covers Wide Territory

Among the most progressive and fast-rising state rights organizations in the South is the Big Feature Rights Corporation, located at 305 Masonic Building, Louisville, Ky. Starting out about two years ago with "The Battle Cry of Peace," which it then distributed through the greater parts of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee, this concern has so developed its business that it today has the following big features in the respective territories here listed:

Through membership in the First National Exhibitors Circuit, the Big Feature Rights Corporation will also have the exclusive distribution of the new Chaplin Comedies.

Col. Fred Levy, prominently connected in vaudeville and motion picture theatres and in many big business enterprises, is president of the Big Feature Rights Corporation, and Lee L. Goldberg, an experienced theatre and exchange manager, is secretary-treasurer.

Queen Feature Service Can Supply Southern Exhibitors With Varied Line

THE Queen Feature Service, Birmingham, Ala., A. M. Graham, manager, one of the most progressive exchanges in the South, reports success with its line of pictures handled on this plan.

The company is the Southern distributor for Christie comedies and is booking the American War News Weekly in Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Among its other open market subjects are the pictures manufactured by the company in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas. The Queen Feature Service is prepared to furnish exhibitors with everything from a one-reel comedy to a five-reel feature.

Rifkin Handles Attractive Line of Features

One of the most enterprising and progressive of the state rights exchanges is the Eastern Feature Film Company, of 57 Church street, Boston, of which Herman Rifkin is the president and general manager.

Ideal locality in the very heart of the film colony, the Eastern has won the support and good will of practically every exchange from the North and New England by its unintermittent efforts, courteous treatment, and service beyond the firm aid to the theatre. Numbered among the successes now under the Eastern banner is "One Law for Both," the latest Ivan, as well as a number of other Ivan releases. They are successfully distributing "The Woman and the Beast," "The Marriage Bond," "Are Passions Inherited?"; "Gloria's Web of Life," "Tweddle Com edies," "The Terry Human Interest Cartoons and Scenics," and many other proven box-office attractions.

Guerrero-Herz Distribution Company

Guerrero and Herz, of Chicago, recently organized, bid fair to become real live factors in the state rights field throughout the Central West. They were incorporated on May 1, 1917, with Simon Greiver and Lee Herz as principal stockholders. Mr. Greiver has been in the film business in Chicago for many years and is especially experienced with the distribution end. They have absorbed the General Feature Film Company, of which Mr. Greiver was formerly manager and whose offices were located in the Maller's Building.

The new firm has a fine suite of offices on the fourth floor of the Consumer's Building at South State and Quincy Streets. They recently purchased the rights on "Should She Obey?" from the Arizona Film Company for Illinois and Indiana. The Terry "Human Interest Red" has also been purchased by them for Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin. Together with this they have four or five new dramatic and comedy subjects for which they control territorial rights.

The Screencuts, made by the American Bioscope Company of Chicago, has been an added feature to their subjects. It is released bi-weekly, and sixty Chicago contracts have already been secured. This new and hustling young firm expects to rank as national distributors in the state rights field by the latter part of the year.

Another of its latest features received and which is being given considerable exploitation is the seven-reel production, "The Slacker's Heart," made by the Emerald Motion Picture Company.

The company has secured the Illinois and Indiana rights for this picture. It is a gripping drama, and despite its name is said to contain no war theme.

Glucksmann Is Extensive Operator in South America

ONE of the best known operators in South America is Jacob Glucksmann, manager of the firm of Max Glucksmann, successor to Casa LePage, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Mr. Glucksmann, who makes the office of Frederick H. Knocke, 401 Longacre Building, his headquarters when in New York City, maintains branch offices in Rosario, Cordoba, Corrientes, Tucuman, Mendoza, Bahia Blanca and Concordia, Argentina; Montevideo, Uruguay, and Santiago and Valparaiso, Chile.

Mr. Glucksmann is the owner of the largest theatres in Buenos Aires and Rosario, operating the house himself and then renting the films to other theatres in the territory covered by his exchanges.

For years he has handled the productions of numerous European concerns, among them being Pathe Freres, Paris; Film Art, Paris; Eclair, Paris; Eclipse, Paris; Ambrosia, Turin; Caesar Film, Turin; Iata Film, Turin.

He exploits the productions of several American manufacturers—Pathe, Arrow, Rolin and Balboa, American, Signal, Pollard, Vogue, Selznick, Essanay, Kalem, and the Lone Star's Chaplin subjects.

Frederick H. Knocke, the New York representative of Mr. Glucksmann, was for three years export and sales manager for Pathe Freres and the Pathe Exchange, Inc. Mr. Knocke has traveled all over the world and made a study of business conditions, with special reference to the marketing of motion pictures.

Chapin Cycle of Lincoln Photoplays Makes Hit

A SUBJECT which is attracting the attention of state rights men is the Benjamin Chapin Cycle of Lincoln Photoplays, issued under the general title of "The Call to Arms," now having a successful run at the Globe theatre, New York City.

Five years of Benjamin Chapin's life have been spent in perfecting the Lincoln Cycle. It is different from anything seen before by the New York public. Through his years of struggle with the Lincoln subject, years of discouragement and universal advice of "Quit undertaking the impossible," Mr. Chapin went on unsparingly, until the cycle, which dates from the beginning of the century, as an inspiration and guide for the American for future generations. With no idea of personal glory, making a supreme sacrifice of his life and dedicating it to this one idea, Chapin has at last seen the fruits of his unwavering devotion to the work by having his creation recognized as one of the motion picture's greatest contributions to the world of drama.

"Nothing before seen in the picture line has the same kind of appeal, and its emotional qualities are such that it is of sure value in bringing home the realization that in this land of freedom nothing is impossible—that the poorest boy can rise to the greatest height, and, above all, the character of Lincoln is set as the one high standard of true Americanism," says Mr. Chapin.

The Cycle consists of four separate features under as many titles—"My Mother," "My Father," "Myself" and "The Call to Arms." Each of these pictures could be regarded as a separate story, yet as a whole, when they are combined in the one production, "The Call to Arms," the whole fits in together and carries the element of suspense and interest.

The psychology of the audience has evidently been studied by Mr. Chapin, because they are carried through each emotional phase in a way which makes them ready for the next one. From tears at the touching scene of Nancy Hanks' death they are carried to amusement at the mock trial where young Abe Lincoln won his first law case.

There are not only "human touches" in the picture—but the picture is human and vital throughout. Not a moment while it is on the screen does the interest slow down—the intensity of the master character of President Lincoln rises to a splendid finish which is right in harmony with the times. As one critic declares, "It is a photoplay for every American, and every American should see it."

Crest Pictures Corp. Will Release in September

CARLE E. CARLTON, president of the Crest Pictures Corporation, has started an active campaign in favor of state rights.

He has in his Pennsylvania theatres always advocated that stars should stand out on their merit, which to a great extent will enable the managers to ascertain the booking office value of each and every star, giving the exhibitors the right to contract the biggest approved movies for their theatres.

Mr. Carlton is now operating extensively in South America and Scandinavia, being associated with Aragon and Company of Buenos Aires, and J. L. Nerlien of Christiana, Norway.

Lief Gihbosson, who is now in this country, is a personal representative of these exchanges, and has selected a number of special feature productions for the Crest Pictures Corporation.

Jose Manuel Aragon, representing Aragon and Company of Buenos Aires, South America, is also associated in the capacity of treasurer of the Crest Pictures Corporation, and has purchased a number of special feature productions for South American exhibitors. Mr. Aragon is also operating "Joan the Woman" in South America as a big special road production, with elaborate settings and an exhaustive advertising campaign.

Crest Pictures Corporation is now negotiating for a well-known star, and intends releasing for state rights six special productions. The first one will be released about the 15th of September.

The Unity Photoplays Company

The Unity Photoplays Company, of Chicago, has been nine months in the state rights field. It is owned by Frank Zambreno, formerly of Zambreno and Dunn and the office in Chicago is situated on the sixth floor of the College Building, at 207 South Wabash Avenue. M. J. Mintz, well acquainted through long experience with the film business, is the manager in charge. He has been an exhibitor and manager for many years.

An idea of their activities during the short organization period is to be gained from the mention of the fact that they control the Illinois and Indiana, Wisconsin and Kentucky rights for "Unfurled," "The Libertine," "The Woman Who Dared" and "Would You Forgive?" They have also planned to take over the rights of the film revival of "The Littlest Rebel." In the same territory they control all of the Ivan Film Company's output.

All-Star of Jacksonville

THE All-Star Features Company, Inc., Jacksonville, Fla., announces to the men through its "City rights" that it has secured the exclusive rights to the states of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida for many of the best attractions.

A picture on which the company is now making a strong advertising drive for the benefit of the theatres in the section of the country covers is "The Trouble," and "The Children of the Poor." D. P. Davis, the general manager of the company, has plans worked out for making his fall list of offerings one of exceptional box-office value.
Nineteen Years of Direct-to-the-Consumer Publicity Back of This Picture

THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST

Over 200 Performances at the Globe Theatre, New York, AND STILL RUNNING

Mr. Exhibitor:

Do you realize the possibilities of a picture that has had NINETEEN YEARS OF DIRECT PUBLICITY to the consumer—cumulative publicity on which you have only to CASH IN?

Here are the great, big, hard FACTS:

Benjamin Chapin traveled for 12 years over the United States, giving his Lincoln monologues. He also gave over 2,000 performances in vaudeville, as "Headliner" in a series of one-act Lincoln plays. And several seasons as Star in a four-act drama New York production.

The people of this country love Lincoln, and THEY KNOW CHAPIN AS LINCOLN. Their appreciation and patronage made Chapin the highest-salaried lyceum artist, and one of the highest-salaried performers in vaudeville.

Do you grasp what this means? Nothing less than an advance publicity campaign that all the millions of the richest producing company COULD NOT BUY! It means that a $50,000-a-year advance man has COVERED THE COUNTRY, advertising this picture, not for a campaign of months, BUT OF YEARS, as no picture in the history of the industry was ever advertised before.

We don't need to tell you about the picture. You have read the UNPRECEDENTED TRIBUTES which press and public alike have paid to this pictorial triumph of tears, thrills and laughter, personally produced by Benjamin Chapin—"The Call to Arms"—embodying a group of four features from the "Lincoln Cycle," marvelous in its dramatic power and heart appeal.

Are you going to be among those WHO WILL CASH IN?

Business "Better Than Usual" in St. Louis

DEALERS in theatre equipment and supplies in St. Louis report that business during the past few months has been better than usual, and that there is no reason to doubt the future, since exhibitors everywhere are realizing the benefit of up-to-date equipment.

Erker Brothers Optical Company, who handle a large line of theatre supplies, report business of the past year as especially good.

The Sam Lear Theatre Supply Company, one of the largest equipment houses in the territory, which has recently moved into larger quarters, has had a prosperous season, and expects better things for the future.

The same report may be made for the A. S. Aloe Optical Company, who have an equipment department; and the Melbeck Motion Picture Machine Works, who have a large line of accessories as well as a general repair department.

The exchanges, several of which carry booth equipment as well as general supplies, all report prosperous business, with a good future outlook.

W.G. Hugentobler, in a letter to the Motion Picture News, says: "The theatre supply business in St. Louis is in better condition than it has been for several years. The exchanges here are better than those of many other cities. The business is improving, and I do not expect it to slacken in the near future."

Good Season for Equipment in Philadelphia

THE dealers in motion picture supplies in Philadelphia report having had a good season on the sale of equipment until the last few weeks, when the falling off in the photoplay houses made things a bit quiet.

Charles A. Calchuff expressed himself as particularly pleased with the outlook since his company had merged into the United Theatre Equipment Corporation. "With our large facilities we can buy more cheaply and give the exhibitors the benefit of lower prices, so I look for a fine fall business," said Mr. Slipper.

Mark Swaab, manager of L. M. Swaab, was equally optimistic. "The situation is now good, especially good for the independent concerns like ourselves."

L. M. Stern of the Stern Manufacturing Company said that while the war had interfered with getting materials, he had 250 of the Stern projection machines under way to be finished by September and a ready sale for those already finished. Mr. Stern expressed himself as being firmly in favor of the independent business concerns.

Clearing House for Independent Features—S. D. Matthews of Veribest Heads Innovation

A CLEARING HOUSE for the purchase and sale of feature films with added facilities for the dissemination of information of an intimate character as to the quality and other details of feature films in the market for sale to independents in negative as well as prints, is the newest new thing in the way of special service to come to the aid of film buyers, sellers and makers.

S. D. Matthews, president of the Veribest Photoplay Corporation of New York, with offices at 218 West Forty-second street, is the originator of the clearing house plan for helping buyers, sellers, and incidentally this new department of the Veribest.

Discussing his innovation with a representative of Motion Picture News, Mr. Matthews said:

"I think the time is ripe for the clearing house plan. I myself and my associates would have welcomed it at the outset of the establishment of the Veribest. As we have the clearing house working, any one at any part of the earth by the use of the cable, telegraph, phone or the mails can at the very shortest notice get ample and accurate information of the value publicly and commercially of any feature film on the market.

"We have been at work perfecting the intricacies of so comprehensive a project for several months. We know we are filling a much needed want. As matters are now, without our bureau, a buyer or a seller must waste considerable of his energies in trying to get acid proof lines on features in which he may be interested. There is no stability to quoted prices, as every one knows. The material is not standardized. One man will pay, say, ten thousand dollars for a block of states on a state rights sale that another with intimate information would have bought for probably half that sum. Another man will be led by advertising grandiloquence to buy the negative of a picture at a price entirely out of fair proportion with the original investment, even after allowing the maker a handsome profit.

"In short, the game of buying and selling negatives, prints, state rights and films generally on the independent market is a wildcat proposition, as it must be where the right kind of information is inaccessible to the buyer, often far removed from the direct market. It is not feasible for him to come on and examine the goods he contemplates buying, and it is not profitable for him to maintain an individual representative.

"The Veribest's clearing house will be the representative of any prospective buyer anywhere on earth who wishes to enlist its services, and there is no advance fee, and only a minimum percentage charge on purchases or sales will be asked."

Interstate Offers New Moss Releases for Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas

EXHIBITORS in Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas who have had dealings with the Interstate Film Company, Waco, Texas, are impressed with the quality of the subjects released by that company for their territory.

L. S. Glickman, the manager of the Interstate Film Company, announces for immediate distribution the new Moss productions, which consist of "One Day," "In the Hands of the Law," "The Girl Who Doesn't Know," and "The Whirl of Life," featuring Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle and other well-known stars.

The company is offering low rentals, and the service rendered exhibitors is of the best. Prompt deliveries and helpful aids to the exhibitor have given the Interstate concern an excellent reputation.

Globe Feature Film Is Ready to Add More Subjects of Merit to Its List

THE Globe Feature Film Corporation, Boston, one of the best known distributors of state rights pictures in New England, is now offering to exhibitors in its territory "On Trial," the initial production of the First National Exhibitors Circuit; "Enlighten Thy Daughter," which has had many successful runs throughout the country; "God's Man," adapted from the novel of the same name by George Bronson-Howard and starring H. B. Warner, and other productions of merit.

H. G. Segal, general manager of the Globe Company, announces that he is ready to pay the highest prices for productions of proven drawing power. Manufacturers or their representatives at the convention can get in touch with Mr. Segal at the Hotel Sherman.

Hartmann Defines the Different Kinds of State Rights Men

WILLIAM C. HARTMANN, who has been in intimate touch with the motion picture industry from practically every angle for some years past, recently made a short trip in order to secure first-hand information of existing conditions in the state rights and independent exchange field.

In discussing the impressions gathered by him on his recent trip, he expressed himself as follows:

"There are two different kinds of state rights men—those who buy the rights to one or more Special pictures for the purpose of exploiting them in some particular territory to the exclusion of any other effort, and those who buy pictures with which to build up and supply a service among exhibitors within their particular territory in competition with regularly established producers having their own distributing offices."

"Both classes will increase, and continue to increase in proportion to the number of independently produced pictures that are constantly being thrown upon the state rights market."

There is an utter lack of unity of purpose, or appreciation of co-operative methods among these men, with the one exception that each one of these men, spiritually desires to make his money he possibly can out of the particular productions he happens to control. He has absolutely no interest in what the man in the adjoining territory does, but he shows a decided interest in trying to beat his competitors within his own territory. In one case he seems to be in a uniform mind, and that is in demanding to see the pictures before he buys them, and possibly in the case of producers of recognized standing, or in case of pictures with stars of established box-office reputation and value.

Many apparently equitable and mutually profitable plans have been evolved by bright minds in New York and Chicago for the purpose of making inroads upon the popularity and profits of the productions of regular program producers intended to combine the interests of the producer, the distributor and the exchange.

Considerable money has been spent in the attempt to exploit these plans and bring them into successful operation. From the standpoint of the promoter, viewed by him from the vantage point of his sanctum sanctorum seated behind a mahogany roll-top desk, the child of his brain looks like a healthy infant with a lusty lung power destined to make him heard from coast to coast. All of the promoter's friends—no exception—put him on the back, and tell him what a splendid youngster he has brought into the motion picture world, who is sure to be liked by everybody, and that as soon as the state rights men and independent exchange men hear of him they would fall over themselves to put clothes on the infant's back, send him to school, put him through college, and make up a handsome purse for him so he can assimilate the advantage all over the country."

"This is all very fine, but to get back to the motion picture language, when the proposition is presented the independent motion picture purveyor he listens attentively, digests all the ingenious methods evolved to gain his support, but for all the time you are employing your rhetorical and persuasive powers, and go at length into an analytical dissertation of the vast benefits to be acquired by an affiliation with the plans presented, the state rights man has only one thought uppermost in his mind, and that is, 'How much will I have to pay for this fellow's pictures, and what can I make out of them?'"

"You talk about the benefits of co-operation, you can offer to place the state rights man on the board of your distributing company, as well as that of the producing companies, but that thought still remains uppermost in his mind, because, while he may agree with the theoretical benefit of your plan, he has no time to devote to meetings held at a distance of hundreds of miles from his own headquarters, and even under the most favorable conditions, and under the most equitable adjustment of individual interests, he nevertheless expects to get 'jipped' on the cost of the production, as he puts it."

"The result of the conference comes back to the original proposition—'Show me your picture, and I'll talk business.' Of course, if you can talk to the big stars on the basis proposed, he would jump for the door and lock it, so you could not get out without accepting his check."

"This attitude of the state rights man brings us to the heart of the situation, and that is that co-operative operation, including his kind, must come from within more than from without. This is particularly true in so far as it applies to productions of producers other than those with a record for successful productions behind them."

"The state rights man throughout the entire country should organize. And organization such as could be formed from the ranks of these men would serve two purposes. It would enable them to work out many problems to mutual advantage, and it would provide a ready market for the independent producer."

"At first glance one would presume that it would be an easy matter to organize the motion picture industry, but this is a fallacy, for the reason that the essential elements involved in this industry are of an entirely different nature than those in any other industry in the world. The business simply cannot be systematized and standardized in all the working parts for the simple reason that 'artistry' enters so largely into the working of its destiny, and you cannot standardize artistry."

"When one individual can step out of the recognized channels of production and distribution and in one year make a larger net profit on his own individual labors than the combined net profits of a dozen producers, it clearly indicates the impossibility of general consolidation under present conditions."

"I therefore say again that consolidation and co-operation must emanate from within and not without individual field of endeavor within the industry, thus making it possible, later on, to consolidate such individual integral parts as may find an advantage in joining into larger organizations."

"There should be an individual organization of all the leading producers, incorporated strictly in the interest of the producer, with a view of regulating all such matters in which they have a common interest, to the exclusion of all other branches of the industry. Publicity directors, as well as advertising managers, should have their organization. The exchange managers are doing splendid work under their F. I. L. M. Clubs, and these should extend to every city. In order to extend the benefits of their organization, they should have a national F. I. L. M. Club, with an annual convention with delegates from every distributing center."

"State rights buyers should be organized and agree upon an equitable percentage basis for the various territories throughout the country to apply to any productions they may decide to handle from a national standpoint."

"I was the first man to institute the exclusive territorial selling plan in connection with the motion picture machine business, which was later inaugurated by two other leading companies, and resulted along the line of propaganda of ideas in bringing about a consolidation of most of the leading motion picture machine and supply houses in the United States."

Reliable Feature Film Makes Big Plans

THE Reliable Feature Film Company, Schiller building, Chicago, is planning for the coming season a business of considerable magnitude. It will have for booking a list of pictures which cannot help prove of box-office value to the exhibitors in the territory covered by the company.

International Cinematograph Accepts Agencies for Italy

THE International Cinematograph Office, Via delle Muratte, No. 7, Rome, will accept the sole agencies for Italy, for selling and booking. The company has branched out in all the principal cities of Europe, Japan, India and Egypt. The house makes a specialty of the exportation and importation of films, and asks American films to get in touch with it for terms. The company states that it is in a position to give guarantees that will satisfy the most exacting requirements.

Piedmont Is Confidential Buying Agent

THE Piedmont Pictures Corporation, New York City, Felix Malitz, general manager, and Joseph Lamy, export manager, has issued an invitation to the members of the trade to make the office of the company their headquarters when in the city.

The Piedmont Company is a selling agent for producers for the United States and all foreign countries.

"We are confidential buying agents for foreign and domestic exchanges," said Mr. Malitz, "and will exploit abroad high-class productions."
Specialty Film Maintains Weekly Service for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia

THE Specialty Film Company, Pittsburgh, announces to exhibitors in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, a number of state rights features which will prove of exceptional drawing power when properly advertised at the local houses.

Midlet Comedies, a two-reel bi-weekly release, have already become favorably known to the public, and will please the public in this territory.

The Specialty Company is handling the B. S. Moss feature productions and reports successful booking. The weekly service maintained by the Specialty Company includes comedies, feature dramas, Chaplins and serials.

Federal Feature Is Ready with "Woman Who Dared" for New England

THE Federal Feature Film Corporation, Boston, Samuel V. Frand, manager, is offering to New England exhibitors "The Woman Who Dared," starring Beatriz Michelena, the celebrated prima donna. This picture has had long runs when presented elsewhere, and, according to Mr. Frand, will prove an unusual drawing card for the theatres in his part of the country.

The Federal Feature Film Company is planning to book several important pictures in the fall.

"Magic Cloak of Oz" and "Mary Carstairs" Is Offered by National

THE National Film Corporation, Hollywood, Cal., William Parsons, president, announces for August release "The Magic Cloak of Oz," in five reels, by L. Frank Baum, author of "The Wizard of Oz; or the Pathwork Girl of Oz." This picture has an all-star cast, consisting of Violet MacMillion, Mildred Harris, Juanita Hanson and the animal impersonator, Frank Woodward.

The company also presents "The Captivating Mary Carstairs," with Norma Talmadge. The photoplay is founded on a story by Henry S. Harrison now running in the Chicago Tribune and other large Western newspapers.

Overland Seeks More Releases for State Rights

THE Overland Film Company, New York City, of which Samuel Krellberg and Harry Krellberg are the heads, distributors of high-class features to state rights buyers, offers "Who's Your Neighbor?" seven reels, and "The Hand of Fate," in five reels.

"These subjects," says Mr. Krellberg, "are proved money makers and will fill any house. The opinions of competent judges who have seen these pictures are to the effect that they have strong plots, excellent casts, and all that helps to hold the interest of an audience."

The Overland Company will consider productions from responsible producers seeking a quick market outlet.

Gersten Offers "Parentage" to Exhibitors in Northern New Jersey

FRANK GERSTEN, INC., is offering to exhibitors in northern New Jersey "Parentage," the Frank J. Seng picture, which has just closed a successful run at the Rialto theatre, New York, where Manager Rothapfel was obliged to open the house at ten o'clock every morning in order to accommodate the crowds.

This picture also experienced an unusual run at the Colonial theatre in Chicago. Frank Gersten, Inc., believes that it has one of the best attractions offered to exhibitors in his territory for some time.

Wholesome Films Will Be Free from Anything Morbid

THE Wholesome Films Corporation, Chicago, announces for release in the near future a number of pictures founded on the works of foremost American authors. Among the first are "Everybody's Lonesome," in five reels, based on a story by Clara E. Laughlin, and "The Penny Philanthropist," in five reels.

"Patrons who see these pictures will get a new viewpoint on life," said M. J. Welsifeld, manager of the company. "The pictures we are going to bring out will become popular because the stories are wholesome and free from anything morbid."

Blankmeyer Works Out Territorial Percentages at Variance With Many Plans

A DIVISION of the country for the distribution of pictures on a basis of territorial percentages has been worked out by A. W. Blankmeyer, president and general manager of the Tri-State Film Exchange, Inc., Denver. In some cases the plan disregards the usually recognized state rights lines. The schedule has been prepared by a man who has given the subject close study and will repay the scrutiny of men in the state rights field.

David R. Blyth of the Tri-State Film Exchange in commenting on the table of percentages says:

"Mr. Blankmeyer has made a thorough study of the many different plans now in use, and by cutting their bad points and saving their good points, together with his own personal statistics which he has been compiling for several months, he has evolved a plan of territorial allotment which we believe to be the final word in this particular work.

"It is true that these percentages are at direct variance in several instances with several plans now used by producers, but when you consider that they are the net result of the combined efforts of a man whose hobby has always been the study of this subject you will see why I consider them the ultimate answer."

The table of percentages worked out by Mr. Blankmeyer follows:

Howells Operates Throughout the Orient

DAVID P. HOWELLS, 220 West Forty-second street, New York City, who has made a special study of market conditions in the Orient and Australasia, covering a period of three years, is in a position to add several more subjects to the ones he now exploits. He introduced in Australasia Metro features, Rex Beach scénics, the pictures made by the World Film Corporation, "The Mysteries of Myra," and several other notable productions.

The company is constantly adding to its list of features, and expects shortly to spring something that will command the attention of all live exhibitors in its territory.

Diesner expects Prosperous Conditions in Fall

T H E Exhibitors' Exchange, 420 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C., of which A. Diesner is the manager, is open for offers from producers for features in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, the District of Columbia and North Carolina.

The company is now handling "On Trial," "Virginia and North Carolina," "Beware of Strangers," for all the above-named districts. Mr. Diesner is enthusiastic over the prospect of business in his territory and feels that the Fall will prove the best season known to the industry for some time.

Gottlieb Is Specialist in Northwest Territory

M ANY GOTTLIEB, Minneapolis, who has made a special study of the requirements in his territory, has announced to producers that he wishes to get in touch with producers who want their pictures exploited in his territory by a man who specializes in promotion work in the Northwest section.

"If any producer has a proposition that requires concentrated effort to bring it to the attention of the exhibitors and public in this part of the United States," says Mr. Gottlieb, "it is to his advantage for us to get together."

Dooley Is a Hundred-Percent-Result Man

T H O M A S W. DOOLEY, president of the Super Film Attractions Company, 445 South Warren street, Syracuse, N. Y., has become known among the producers as a man who is thoroughly familiar with the local peculiarities of his territory.

"To get the most out of a territory," says Mr. Dooley, "a state rights man must concentrate all his effort on giving the exhibitors the kind of pictures best suited to the taste of their public.

"In order to get full returns from the territory he must know every prospect in that section. A picture must be booked at every possible theatre under the best conditions. I do not make arrangements for the handling of a subject until I am sure that I can get 100 per cent results."

Rights to French Literary Works Obtained from Osso

O SCAR OSSEO, 1457 Broadway, New York City, announces to the producers in America that he is the sole authorized agent in this country to grant the stage and motion picture rights of plays, novels and other works of French playwrights, authors and composers.

Mr. Osso invites correspondence from manufacturers who contemplates the use of foreign literary material for photos.

American Feature Film Carries a Select List

T HE American Feature Film Company, Boston, of which Louis Mayer is president and general manager, has ready for exhibitors in the New England territory a number of features which have made records in other parts of the country.

These specials have been record smashing subjects, said Mr. Mayer. If this exchange were merely buying features, there might be hundreds more on the list, but only productions that will make the box-office prosperous have been selected. So exhibitors can rest assured that what we have to offer them can be depended upon."

Suppose we had built a Million Simplexes—but were losing ground—going down-hill—becoming a back-number—

Then we might holler about the PAST

We might ding into your ears the many years we had been in business, the large number of Machines we had built, and we might even claim to be the only ones who knew how.

But that wouldn't convince you, would it?

What was in the past doesn't count now.
(There used to be more candles made than electric lamps.)
It isn't what we WERE, but what we ARE, that counts.

You are more interested in an is-er than in a was-er

Well, the Simplex is distinctly an IS-er. Think of it. Started less than seven years ago, and to-day we are building more high-grade Projectors than anybody else in the world.

Such a Machine deserves your interest whether you come to Chicago or not.

If You Come to the Convention

You’ll find us at the Coliseum, glad to meet you and to greet you and to make you feel at home. Don’t look for a handsome bunch, but look for the smile that comes from success through earnest effort, and a hand-clasp that says WELCOME!

You ought to get in touch with the Simplex Distributor in your section. He has helped other Exhibitors to the most profitable projection, and can do the same for you. Or, suppose you just drop us a line, and ask for CATALOG "N"

You’ll still find only the Simplex in every Theater in the famous Loop District, holding the fort against all comers—again proving Simplex projection so excellent that when an Exhibitor has once tried it he says to all others KEEP OUT!

EVEN man in the industry knows that certain things must be changed if progress is to continue. One film company cannot allow his cameraman to use an instrument which throws the picture division line between the sprocket holes if every other company uses a camera which has the division line fall in the centre of the sprocket hole itself. The cameras must be standardized.

The sprockets of the projectors should be standardized as well as other parts which have been and will be still further discussed. It is nothing which can be accomplished in a day—a week or a year. From its very nature the work will be slow for the most minute details must be taken up and discussed thoroughly before any decision is arrived at.

The society will mean no direct profit for any individual or company. It means only hard work and general advancement. Look at the automobile industry—it was not many years ago when all was chaos. The Society of Automobile Engineers started its activities and developed the entire industry until today we find unification, co-operation and standardization of parts wherever possible.

In the picture industry the same conditions should prevail and must prevail. At the present time we find our industry honey-combed with petty jealousy, unbusinesslike methods and dealings which would not stand close scrutiny. This must be done away with. We must call a spade a spade with each other, we must lay our cards on the table, we must all work together. It can be done, must be done, and will be done.

The day of entire unity in the business may be some distance off, but the further that time is in the future the longer will be the time before each one interested in the business gets the maximum return out of it.

An organization such as the Society of Motion Picture Engineers made up, as it is, of men who are working with unselfish motives must be the cornerstone of the final structure which may be slow in building, but, which when finished will be a united and co-operative industry.

It is our hope that many will have joined the ranks of the society during their Chicago meeting, and that those who have not will do so as soon as they have consulted with their business associates or have a chance to realize the opportunity which presents itself for bettering conditions and co-operating with others vitally interested in laying down standards which will bring unity out of the present chaos.

E. K. GILLET.
BEAUTIFUL OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, has its Movie Houses in harmony with the surroundings. The progressive management of the Turner and Dahnken Circuit were convinced that the best results from the film could not be secured by using alternating current. They installed a Westinghouse Motor-Generator Set to transform the alternating current into direct current and are getting satisfactory results. These sets enable the operator to project clear, steady pictures.

Westinghouse Motor-Generator Sets are easy to install. There is nothing complicated in their construction or operation. They give constant voltage over a wide range of load, which is very important for "fading in," as it enables the operator to "warm up" his second arc without affecting the brilliancy of the first.

East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Operating Room Equipment

In the matter of projection equipment there are several first-class American-made machines on the market, any one of which, in the hands of a careful, competent and painstaking operator will deliver excellent results upon the screen, and each machine is guaranteed by the manufacturer for a period of one year the exhibitor practically gets two machines for the price of one; the machine, if returned to the factory any time before the expiration of the guarantee will be placed in absolutely first-class condition and will continue to give good service for another twelve months. As I have often remarked, I do not believe any projection machine should be run for a longer period than two years, owing to the fact that there are, from time to time, improvements made in the various types of machines which are sufficiently meritorious to warrant the disposal of the old machine and the installation of the new.

These projection machines, made by the foremost American manufacturers, need no introduction; they have proven their dependability. Operators, of course, have their likes and dislikes, and while it is not the design of the writer to recommend any one machine as being best, we will say, as we have stated before, that any one of these machines will, in the hands of one who understands his business, deliver the results which the manufacturers claim for their product.

The projection machine having once been installed it becomes necessary to next consider the method by which current is to be supplied to the arc. Where direct current is supplied by the lighting company, the machines may be operated without any elaborate auxiliary apparatus; all that is necessary is a rheostat for the purpose of cutting down the resistance to that voltage required at the arc, and as each machine manufacturer supplies rheostats with his machines, it hardly seems expedient to enter into any lengthy dissertation on these. Where alternating current is used, however, and good results are to be obtained upon the screen it is wise to convert the alternating current into direct current. There are many ways of doing this, and many appliances, which will meet the requirements of all pocketbooks with which to do it.

For the exhibitor of limited means there is the transformer, such as Hallberg's Economizer; the Fort Wayne Compensarc, Type A; the Bell-Howell Inductor; Powers' Inductor, and numerous other choke coil transformers adapted for this purpose, the cost of these being quite within reason.

By the expenditure of a few dollars more the exhibitor may obtain one of the Mercury Arc Rectifiers, manufactured by each the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.; or the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa., which were among the first rectifying outfits to be applied to the projection of motion pictures, and which have solved the problem of many exhibitors in obtaining first-class results on their screens without an unnecessarily large outlay of money.

In recent years, motor-generator sets have reached a stage of popularity among exhibitors and operators alike, as they are capable of producing higher amperage than it is possible for any of the foregoing appliances to furnish. There are a number of these motor-generator sets on the market today, those being worthy of special mention are: The Compensarc, manufactured by the General Electric Company, Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Westinghouse Motor Generator, manufactured by the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Co., East Pittsburgh, Pa.; the Hallberg Twentieth Century Motor Generator, manufactured by J. H. Hallberg, New York City, N. Y.; the Woton Rexolux, manufactured by the Electric Products Company, Cleveland, Ohio; and the Martin Rotary Converter, the product of the Northwestern Electric Company, Chicago, Ill. These also are capable of doing good work, and from reports received from operators throughout the country where they are installed they are doing so.

Another type of current changing device, while not truly motor-generator sets, are the Converters, the Wagner Converter, manufactured by the Wagner Electric Company, St. Louis, Mo., and the Martin Rotary Converter, the product of the Northwestern Electric Company, Chicago, Ill. These also are capable of doing good work, and from reports received from operators throughout the country where they are installed they are doing so.

Another source of illumination that is, no doubt, going to become a great factor in the industry is the application of the Notroge Lamp. The development and application of the Incandescent Lamp for motion picture projection is in our mind the most notable achievement of the past year. Authentic information has been received by the Projection Department that the various machine manufacturers will have an exhibition at the Coliseum, Chicago, Ill., during Convention Week, the necessary accessories allowing the request for information as to any changes that had taken place in the construction of the Transverter, their statement is that "the Transverter was originally so well designed that we have been unable to make any alterations or improvements in it that could be made to appear in photographs. We do not mean by this that we have made no improvements because we have but they have been on matters of detail in construction and electrical design such that they cannot be made a subject matter that would prove at all interesting. An item of news that may prove of interest to you, however, is that our records show no comebacks whatever on our Transverter. We have no records of dissatisfied customers and we know that some of the dealers handling this apparatus make broader claims for it than it warrants. As we have been delivering Transverters through the dealers to the exhibitors in practically all sections of the country we feel elated over the exceptionally flattering reports on the service and satisfaction obtained with our product. Within the past sixty days we have arranged with the Perkins Electric Company for the exclusive handling of the Transverter in the Dominion of Canada and they have four stores, located at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and St. Johns, N. B., in each of which they have placed a stock of Transverters, mainly those of the Double 50-50, and 75-75 ampere sizes, selecting them as being ideal equipment for use in connection with our panel A." The foregoing agrees with the opinions I have had from users of this device, which was fully illustrated in the Projection Department some time ago.

Another type of current changing device, while not truly motor-generator sets, are the Converters, the Wagner Converter, manufactured by the Wagner Electric Company, St. Louis, Mo., and the Martin Rotary Converter, the product of the Northwestern Electric Company, Chicago, Ill. These also are capable of doing good work, and from reports received from operators throughout the country where they are installed they are doing so.

Another source of illumination that is, no doubt, going to become a great factor in the industry is the application of the Notroge Lamp. The development and application of the Incandescent Lamp for motion picture projection is in our mind the most notable achievement of the past year. Authentic information has been received by the Projection Department that the various machine manufacturers will have an exhibition at the Coliseum, Chicago, Ill., during Convention Week, the necessary accessories allowing their projectors to be adapted to this system of illumination. The Precision Machine Company, manufacturers of the Simplex projector, have worked out a type of lamp house for use in this connection that is expected to startle the trade, as also has the Enterprise Optical Company, makers of the Miotograph machine. As photographs were not available at the time this was written, I am showing by way of illustration the lamp house, Fig. 1, manufactured by the Nicholas Power Company, which gives a clear idea of the arrangement of lamp, reflector, etc.

Fig. 2 illustrates the Edison Mazda "C" Lamp, reflector and motion picture condensing lens in their relative positions. When it is desired to show slides, using the motion picture projector, that makes it necessary for another set of condenser to be used, the method of which will be shown by the manufacturers at the Convention.

For the traveling exhibitor or those who operate in towns where there is no electric current available there are several electric generating sets. The Universal Generating Set, manufactured by the Universal Motor Company, Oshkosh, Wis., have a generator which is built especially for operating motion picture machines where an economical steady direct current is desired. The size, 4 kw., seems to be the most popular size for all around use as it will supply sufficient current to operate the projection machine as well as handling the lighting of fans, signs, house lights, etc.

The engine is of the four cylinder type, 2½ × 4 inches, with removable head. L head type with inlet and exhaust manifolds cast together with the cylinder block, this enables the outfit to use kerosene fuel because of the hot walls of the inlet passage. The engine is also equipped with a sensitive governor built into the gear case, of massive construction, with hardened working parts all running in oil to insure proper lubrication. The governor regulates the speed and voltage, keeping them uniform at all times and can be depended upon to do its work without trouble and with little attention. Lubrication is automatic, being cared for by a plunger pump, lifting the oil from the base, back to the interior parts of the engine through a sight feed glass gage. The flow of oil can be seen at all times, and the automatic feature of the lubrication is an important one because it is only necessary to see that the base is kept supplied with oil. The ignition is by Atwater Kent unisparker or magneto, which is optional with the purchaser, either system is equally reliable.

The current delivered with one of these generating sets is so steady that the "flicker" of the lights cannot be detected and direct current is preferable for the motion picture arc. The average user of the Universal lighting set operates at about 55 volts and 36 amperes. The outfit consists, however, furnished for either 60 or 110 volts, either type requiring a balancing series rheostat in the positive circuit, or that wire which goes to the upper carbon, in order to steady the arc. The rheostats furnished for the projection machine can be used for this purpose, or they can be obtained with the generating plant. Some attention must be paid to the voltage, however, as a 60 volt set will require a different rheostat than that of the 110 volt set. The 60 volt size is the most economical on fuel because it is only necessary to use a 5 volt rheostat, while with the 110 volt set a 55 volt rheostat is required which commonly consumes more fuel, still the 110 volt size is best adapted for all around service as most theatre lamps, fans, etc., are 110 volts.

Another point the Universal has to recommend it to exhibitors is its compactness, the armature acting as a fly-wheel, and the vibration is not noticeable as the plant can be mounted on the floor. This permits the installation of the unit without being bolted down. This is important for traveling exhibitors. The U. S. Army and Navy as well as several foreign navies have adopted the Universal sets for various purposes where it was desired to obtain a steady reliable current.

All of the machines and appliances above mentioned contain the very best of material; are manufactured by honest workmen, who pride themselves upon their skill, with the result that when one of these appliances is received by the exhibitor, he can feel assured that if the directions which accompany each machine are closely followed he will have obtained his money's worth.

To come back to the operating room and its appliances, we do not believe that it is advisable for an operating room to contain other than the projection machines, arc controllers and possibly the rewinder, all other appliances having to do with the current supply should either be located in the cellar or basement, or in a room especially built to house such apparatus, allowing the operator all the freedom of movement which it is possible for him to obtain, and wherein he would be handicapped were the operating room identical. There is also another necessary adjunct that is the rewinder for film. While it is true that each projection machine manufacturer furnishes a rewinder with his machine, in some cases those furnished are never used, the operator preferring, and sometimes the law compelling the installation of enclosed rewinds, such as those manufactured by the E. E. Fulton Company, Chicago, III., known as the "Fulco"; The Automatic Film Rewinding Company, Harrisburg, Pa.; and the one manufactured by a practical operator, H. B. Cunningham, of St. Paul, Minn.

These rewinds are furnished either with or without motor drive, and are really a worth while addition to any well equipped operating room from the fact that they are real "safety first" devices.

Film cabinets, too, are a necessary adjunct, and while there are many of these cabinets manufactured, it would be almost impossible to enumerate them all, we will, however, call attention to the following: Columbia Metal Box Company, and Sharlow Brothers, both of New York City. The further interests of the projected film and enable at the same time, the operator to devote his entire attention to watching the picture being projected, there have been placed on the market devices for the purpose of automatically feeding the arc. There are but two of these which I can really say perform the work according to the claims of their makers; these are the Speedco rewinder, manufactured by the Speed Controller Company, 257 William street, New York City, and the American Auto-Arc, which is manufactured at Owensboro, Ky., and distributed through the American Auto-Arc Company, Chicago, Ill. The "Speedco" is electrical and mechanical in its action and can be used either on alternating or direct current, while the "Auto-Arc" is actuated electrically and can only be operated on direct current.

Now that we have written so much about projectors, motor-generators, etc., for supplying current to the arc, we have failed to mention the principal factor, which is, the arc itself. Without carbons there would be no arc, and now that the European conflict has cut off our supply of foreign manufactured carbons, it devolved upon the American carbon manufacturers to bring their product to a point where it would be "just as good." If not better, than those of foreign make. The principal American carbon manufacturers, the National Carbon Company, Cleveland, Ohio, have recently placed on the market a new negative carbon called "Silver Tip." These are small diameter carbon with a coating of aluminum, or some other high resistance metal, and when used as per requirements, that is, carbon of proper diameter should be used for a given amount of amperage in combination with a positive carbon, whose size is also determined by the amperage required at the arc, are meeting with approval of operators in all sections of the country, as are the "Hold-arc" carbon, manufactured by the Speer Carbon Company, St. Marys, Pa. The "Hold-arc,"
Footlights for Small Theatres

SOMETHING that is worthy of more than passing notice by the small-town exhibitor is the new Kliegel Disappearing Footlight which is illustrated on this page. These footlights are suitable for stages and platforms of high schools, halls, churches or wherever a footlight is required that must be out of the way when not in use. They are particularly adapted for use in the motion picture theatre of limited seating capacity where at times it is desired to present local talent in addition to the regular motion picture entertainment, and as the footlights are so constructed that they do not take up any great amount of space there is no reason why every theatre, no matter how small, should not be so equipped.

As illustrated, the Kliegel Disappearing Footlight is furnished in complete sections, ready to be inserted in the floor or space provided for them. According to specifications and requirements, these sections can be furnished in three to five feet lengths to fit any radius of footlight or in longer sections for straight footlights. They can also be provided for single or double rows of lamps, enabling the exhibitor to obtain two or more color combinations, and as they are simple in construction, without any of the formerly used elaborate raising and lowering mechanism, they are easily installed, and when closed, turn down flush with the floor line. The panels, when closed, rest against heavy iron supports, making them as strong as any part of the floor, and they will not sag or break through when dancing or moving heavy objects over them. Each section is furnished complete as illustrated in Fig. 1. The top frame and cover panels are made of one inch hardwood and are set in flush to form a part of the floor. Complete dimensions are given in Figures 2 and 3. The panel cover of each section is hinged on especially heavy iron bracket hinges and each cover is provided with a flush pull ring and lock at the center, as shown in the center section of Fig. 1. When raised, the footlights extend 3½ inches above the floor level.

Conforming to the rules of the underwriters, the lamps in each section are set in a galvanized iron reflector trough made of No. 20 gauge, and connections are made through an iron splicing box, which can be placed either in the center of the section or at the end, as may be required for clearance between studs or beams. As the top of the footlights form a part of the floor, all that is required for installing is sufficient depth and width to receive the units which can be determined from the dimensions shown in the accompanying illustrations.

The Universal Electric Stage Lighting Co., of which the Kliegel brothers are the proprietors, have for many years been the foremost manufacturers of electric lighting devices for theatre use, and have installed the plants and furnished the entire electrical equipment of many of the largest show houses in the country, chief among these being the New York Metropolitan Opera House.

With their large and completely equipped plant at 240 West Fifth street, they are able to manufacture any device that may be required, on very short notice.

The Stern Projector

The Stern Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., are completing arrangements to place on the market the projection machine bearing their name, and which is illustrated below in Fig. 1.

The machine, while lower in price than any standard projector, is built with an eye to its durability and strength. All parts, with the exception of crank and automatic shutter case, are located on one side of the mechanism and are encased in a dust-proof cover. As the gears are covered and run in grease the life of the wearing parts is prolonged.

All unnecessary parts are eliminated, thus reducing the cost of upkeep. The gears, shafts, collars and screws are arranged and placed so that the operator can, by removing the covers, gain access to them in an instant; which makes the replacement of parts an easy matter. This is a feature to be considered by any one contemplating the purchase of a projection machine. The intermittent movements can be removed in an instant, and replaced as quickly.

Fig. 2 shows the mechanism with cover removed, which gives a fair idea as to the details in construction.

The magazines, owing to their peculiar shape, avoid an appearance of clumsiness, and yet allow the use of 14-inch reels. The lamp house is made with double doors and is well ventilated, front, back and sides, thereby reducing condenser breakage. The lamp, which is of the universal type, is heavily constructed, and will accommodate 12-inch carbons.

National Anti-Misframe League

Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

DUPLEX
Projection Screen

PATENTS PENDING

A New Invention 100 per cent Efficient
The ONLY SURFACE That Will Deliver PERFECT PICTURES

WHAT IT WILL DO FOR YOU

It will deliver a BETTER picture than you have EVER SHOWN or HAVE EVER SEEN.
If your house is wide, it will fill your EXTREME FRONT and SIDE seats.
Your picture will have greater DEPTH, better definition and ALL the stereoscopic value of modern photography.
If you have a high, long throw down to the screen; from the side, or a straight level throw, the result is always the same, PERFECT PICTURES.

To normal sight it will deliver a picture as close as ten feet, WITHOUT LOSS OF PERSPECTIVE, and full film value THREE HUNDRED FEET from the screen. Reproduces colors with greater beauty than any other surface.

It will CURE YOUR PROJECTION TROUBLES, increase your business, put YOUR pictures in a class by themselves.

ENTIRELY ELIMINATES EYE STRAIN, glare, haze and distortion. Cut your current cost.
MAKE YOU MONEY.
It gives your patrons "more picture" than they have ever had before.
It pleases them more than anything you can give them.
Their children will come to YOUR HOUSE ALWAYS FIRST.

WHAT IT DOES FOR YOUR PATRONS

Makes Patrons TELL THEIR FRIENDS about YOUR beautiful pictures.
The Duplex Screen is built on the principle of the "Half Tone" with a MULTIPLE UNIT surface.
ALL OTHER projection surfaces are ONE UNIT or uniform surfaces: the carbon, lens condensers and beam are ALL MULTIPLE, therefore, a ONE UNIT surface is NOT RIGHT, is unscientific and can deliver only poor results at best.

THE DUPLEX conforms with the multiple principle law, in projection, and is therefore THE ONLY TRUE SCREEN.

Marlux projection lenses represent the highest development in the art of picture projection.

Their optical corrections are so perfect that every detail in every part of the screen stands out brilliantly defined.

The simplicity of the focusing construction, by which the lens focuses without rotating, will appeal to your operator.

By equipping your projector with a Marlux lens you will get the full value of every film you show.

Condensers for Different Throws

D. B. LELAND, Montpelier, Vt., writes: "Can you give us information as to the proper combination of Meniscus, Bi-Convex and Plano condensers for different throws? One of our customers who is projecting a picture about 19 feet in width, a distance of 120 feet, thinks he should use a Meniscus of 8¼-inch focus next the are and a Bi-Convex 2¼-inch focus in front. Do you consider this correct, if not, what would you recommend?"

ANSWER: You certainly would keep me busy if I were to try and give you the proper condenser combinations for different throws, and I am not sure that I could even do it. I will, however, answer your last question by saying that in my estimation two 7½-inch focus Plano-Meniscus-Bi-Convex combination is used for the purpose of obtaining more light upon the screen, but, as you know, they are more expensive than the Plano, and require greater care in handling. I can see no reason why the combination your customer is at present using should not be ideal, as long as the spot at the aperture is of proper diameter, and the screen is free from shadows and evenly illuminated. If such is not the case, I would recommend that he try a combination of 8½ Meniscus and 6¼ Bi-Convex.

THE Knoxville Moving Picture Projection Machine Operators' Local, No. 405, of the I. A. T. S. E., whose meetings are held the first and third Sunday of each month at Central Labor Hall, Knoxville, Tenn., have elected the following officers: President, G. M. Johnson; Vice-President, Jno. McLean; Recording and Corresponding Secretary, Manard K. Baird; Financial Secretary, R. R. Field; Treasurer, L. K. Wayland; Business Agent, O. L. Worsham; Sergeant-at-Arms, George W. Lane, Jr. Delegates to C. L. U., W. A. Hax, R. R. Field, L. K. Wayland and Jno. McLean.

The boys are all constant readers of the News, and we can only hope that we will continue to merit their approbation. The editor of this department wishes the newly-elected officers all success during their term of office, and stands ready at any and all times to be of any assistance to them that may be in his power.

Operators and Exhibitors in Penn. Agree on Strict Safety Rules

UNANIMOUS agreement upon a new and stricter standard safety code for the operation of motion picture machines for the state of Pennsylvania was reached at a conference at the Capitol in Harrisburg on July 11, between representatives of the exhibitors and machine operators, on the one hand, and the members of the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor and Industry. All that is necessary now to make the code operative is the signature of John Price Jackson, the State Commissioner of Labor, as the Legislature has authorized his department to make the regulations.

At the same meeting, which lasted for more than four hours, there was an exhaustive discussion of the rules for the licensing and examination of applicants to operate picture machines.

The following representatives of the motion picture industry attended the meeting: Louis Krouse, of Philadelphia, representing the operators' union; A. W. Cross, of Pittsburgh; William Platt, of Wilkes-Barre; J. S. Workman, J. Rodney Good, Roy H. Carr and Cecil Patterson, of Lancaster; George W. Bennefield, of Reading; A. J. Barrill, of Wilkinsburg, and Peter Magaro, Albert Buck, S. R. Filson and H. W. Smith, of Harrisburg. The members of the Industrial Board who were present are: William Young, chairman; Otto T. Mallory and Mrs. Samuel Semplie. The code and regulations for licensing were drafted by Mr. Young and John S. Spitzer, of the Department of Labor and Industry.

A large part of the argument centered about the rules for licensing. The question was raised whether boys under 18 years old employed as film rewinders should be permitted to operate machines while licensed re were present. Some of the exhibitors' representatives thought the boys should be permitted to do so, but operators said this would tend to make the operators less alert to their duties, and declared that most of the motion picture theatre fires recently in this state were due to young film rewinders operating machines. The final agreement on this point was that only boys with a year's experience, who had passed examinations before the examining committee, would be permitted to operate machines.
The alternations of the current in an alternating current arc cause the light to flicker. This flickering is made more noticeable on the screen if the shutter is not working properly.

Better projection means pleased patrons; pleased patrons mean increased profits.

The direct current arc can be arranged so that maximum amount of its light always passes through the lens, while it is impossible to do this with an alternating arc.

Any operator who has used both will tell you that the best results can be obtained by using direct current.

It produces that steady, restful light so much desired.

A Westinghouse Cooper Hewitt Mercury Rectifier will change your alternating current into direct thereby producing the desired results.

This outfit was on exhibition at the Chicago Convention in the Coliseum July 14-28, 1917. Did you see it? If not, Booklet 4205-C describes it in detail.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
It was decided that after an operator has obtained a license the license renews itself automatically each year, unless removed for cause. No fee is to be required for licenses. The same rates apply to all parts of Pennsylvania except Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton, where local ordinances regulate the duties of operators.

The safety code, which is patterned largely after that in force in New York state, as finally agreed upon at the meeting is as follows:

Not Practical at Present

F. L. CLARKE, Hazen, Ark, asks: Would it be practical to have built magazines and reels large enough to hold a complete show, say from 4,000 to 5,000 feet of film? If so what would be the diameter of reel to hold this much film? We small town exhibitions are up against it to be able to give a continuous show where we can afford but one machine. I am using a motograph. I consider the News is worth at least $10 a year to any exhibitor.

Answer: It would be practical, but not under the existing conditions as the projectors of today, with but one exception, will accommodate at most but 2,500 feet of film, and this is entirely too much film unless the machine be operated by a thoroughly competent operator, this by reason of the fact that the tension must be so finely regulated as to avoid placing any undue strain upon the film or mechanism. There are times when using even a 10 inch reel, if the reel should be bent, or its hub not perfectly true, that the strain placed upon the mechanism not only shortens the life of the machine but seriously impairs its adjustment, and does much harm to its working parts. However, if magazines can be so constructed that the spindles upon which the reel revolves could be made at least 9/16 of an inch in diameter, and so geared that they would feed film continuously into the mechanism it would be quite possible to run any amount of film, the footage being limited only by the size of the magazine. This is something that we have no hopes of seeing put into practice for some years at least. Small town exhibitors need fear no criticism at not being able to give a "continuous show" as the small town audiences are not as supercritical as are those who comprise the audiences of the metropolitan photoplay theatres. If the picture is well projected and the means that the light must be evenly distributed over the screen at all times, and the speed so regulated as to make the artist appear true to life, we do not believe your audience will object to the flashing of a "One minute, please" slide, while the operator is changing the reels. That does not mean he is to consume five minute's time for an operation which can be performed in far less time than sixty seconds.

Finn Wins

THOMAS P. FINN, operator at the West End theatre, Baltimo- re, Md., is the initial winner of the "Operator's Better Service" Contest in the Washington territory. This contest is one of the innovations promulgated by the World Film Corporation to prolong the life of the film by establishing a credit system to the operator, who is in the main responsible for the condition of the film. The operator, though an important personage, has been left entirely on the outside, when he should have been encouraged and co-operated with to the end that efficiency might result.

It is more than creditable of the World Film Corporation, that they have been the first to give the operator recognition. Speaking to Robert Smeltzer, manager for the Washington, D. C. exchange, he had this to say: "Already this contest among operators has brought results. The films are being reported from one theatre or city in better condition, which means a longer life for the film. It has established a feeling of co-operation between operator and exhibitor, and has stimulated the operator to further effort in the careful handling of the film entrusted to his care. Incidentally it is bringing greater satisfaction to the exhibitor and the theatre patrons. The time required to report a film when it is received in poor condition, and repairs have been made by the operator is very little, while the incentive for greater care of the film has aroused healthful competition." This department, through the Anti-Misframe League, has been in a small measure at least instrumental in educating the operator to the fact that the responsibility for the condition of the film rested upon his shoulders, and while it was feared that some of the film exchanges would impose on the operator by neglecting entirely the inspection of films when returned to the exchange previous to being again re-shipped, it is pleasing to note, that to date there have been few such complaints made.
Perfect Craters Are Formed by SPEER CARBONS As Shown by These Illustrations

Results such as these are obtained only by using a Speer Cored Upper and a Hold-Ark Lower.

The hard core of the Hold-Ark turns the trick — It prevents wandering of the arc and assures a bright, flickerless picture.

"The Carbons With a Guarantee"

What Do You Think Of That For Impudence?

I wanted to purchase a mechanism only to replace the old one, and one of "their agents" asked me to make an affidavit and swear to a lot of rot, which did not look like a regular business transaction; and as I wanted to buy it and pay cash for it, I thought it was impudence to make me swear to affidavits as to what I must do with my property.

MR. EXHIBITOR: Such is the circumstances you will be confronted with unless you use your independence that you and every purchaser are entitled to with his money.

We sold one of our mechanisms to the exhibitor who made the remarks above, and we will sell you a mechanism such as you see illustrated in above picture. It will fit the Six A or Six B Equipment. Price $115.00. Ask the Independent Dealer in your territory or send for particulars to the

Theatre Equipment
At the Coliseum

Every exhibitor at the convention must not overlook the following exhibits on their visits to the Coliseum. All are important, and in each booth information can be obtained which will be of the greatest benefit to the theatre interests.

From Chicago

BARTOLA MUSICAL INSTRUMENT COMPANY—Where will be found W. G. Maxey, president of the company; C. C. Pyle, sales manager, and several factory representatives, all ready to give the theatre interests valuable musical help.

CAHILL-IOGE COMPANY—Will give special advice to exhibitors concerning programs—how they should be gotten up, printed, etc.

MIDWEST THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY—One of the local dealers has arranged a special display which will be worth seeing. Jack Williams will be there in person.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY—See O. F. Spahr, the man who knows the Motograph better than any one else. He says he has something brand new which every exhibitor should know about.

P. J. SEEBURG COMPANY—P. J. Seeburg himself, as well as J. E. Gerlick, sales manager, will be in attendance. From reports received, the exhibit will be an education for any exhibitor.

AUTOMATIC DOOR CHECK COMPANY—Will have some accessories to show which may be of use to your particular house.

ARGUS TICKET COMPANY—Have a display showing some novelties in tickets, etc., which should be worth investigating.

MARQUETTE PIANO COMPANY—Both C. S. Moore, president, and B. C. Waters, vice-president of the company, will be on hand to show their product.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC AND MANUFACTURING COMPANY—Have answered the call and have sent the heads of those departments which particularly interest the picture industry in order that their exhibit may be 100 per cent. efficient. H. A. Campe, head of the industrial department, and H. M. Wible, head of the supply department, with their assistants, are to be continuously on hand.

PRECISION MACHINE COMPANY—Manufacturers of the Simplex Projector, have as representatives E. S. Porter, president; E. M. Porter, general manager; Frank Cannock, technical engineer, and L. W. Atwater, sales manager. The display is of particular interest because it is the first public exhibition of their new lamp house for incandescent lamps. There are many other features and improvements worth careful investigation.

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY—At their booth show by practical demonstration how a theatre should be ventilated, a thing which is possible under all circumstances. When you stop, ask for Mr. Glantzberg.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY—Makers of the Power's Projectors, are well represented, both in company officials and projection equipment. For the first time their new incandescent lamp house is shown. This is no longer a novelty, but a part of the equipment which is now a reality. See William Smith or any of his assistants. They have information worth knowing.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY—Is represented by W. C. Kunzmann, who offers the exhibitors a hearty invitation to visit him. He says he has something of interest to all.

UNITED THEATRE EQUIPMENT COMPANY—See J. H. Hallberg, vice-president of the company, from the New York office, or Ralph Sutton or F. McMillan of the Chicago office. They have on exhibition the Hallberg 20th Century Generator, Power's Cameragraphs, Fulton specialties and novelty slides, which goods they represent exclusively in their territories.

Be Sure and See Silvertip Demonstrations

Your fellow exhibitors have been telling you of Silvertips' merits ever since they were put on the market. Theater owners have called them the "standard negative projector carbons." Operators have spoken enthusiastically of "minimum adjustment and no flicker."

You have heard all this and more about Silvertips—at the Chicago Convention you will find proof of every claim. Come to our booth, No. 17, Section B, where expert moving picture men will explain Silvertip's points of superiority in detail. All the good things said by exhibitors will take on a new meaning after you see actual demonstrations of this standard negative projector carbon.

For perfect projection there is only one carbon—Silvertip

A Realization

Though but an infant in age, the United Theatre Equipment Corp. is a lusty youngster. Only a few months ago, this organization saw the light of day and looked down upon a disconcerted supply and equipment business. Today, unity of purpose has brought to the exhibitor a chain of United Service Stations, fully equipped with motion picture necessities, ably managed by competent men and offering more than an exchange of dollar and cents for merchandise; a bonafide service of brains, knowledge, expert mechanics and nation-wide facilities.

United Service Stations offer the motion picture trade the best equipment and supplies that money and brains can produce. For instance, Power's 6-B Cameragraph, the acknowledged standard projector the world over; the Hallberg 20th Century Motor Generator, endorsed by thousands of the leading exhibitors; Novelty Slides, recognized as the acme of perfection in slide-making; Fulco and Kleine Specialties, the well-known time and money-saving products; Piteco Condensers, famous for their quality and durability; the new Edison Mazda Lamp for projection of pictures, destined to revolutionize projection methods. These are only a few of the dependable, guaranteed and recognized products that the United Theatre Equipment Corp. presents to the trade as meeting the high standard of quality which the United requirements demand.

As a man is known by the company he keeps, so a concern is judged by the class of products it sells. The United takes pride in pointing to the list of reliable and established concerns who have placed the distribution and the sale of their products through United Service Stations.

It has been and always will be the aim of the United Theatre Equipment Corp. to benefit the exhibitor, because the improvement and betterment of the exhibitor's conditions spell success for our entire industry.

The United takes this occasion of thanking its thousands of friends throughout the country for the splendid support which they have given this organization to date, and to assure the trade in general that the United's ideals, though high, will be fully achieved.

Progress in Cinemachinery

WHILE it is a debatable question whether the past year has witnessed any artistic advances in the technique of motion picture production, the makers of cine machinery have continued to manifest their usual progressiveness, and, as has been true in the past, the mechanical aspects of cinematography have attained a higher level than the artistic or the scientific phases of the industry.

The past twelve months have been exceedingly prolific in new or improved mechanisms and apparatus for the cameraman, the producer, and the laboratory technician, and it will be our purpose on the present occasion to sketch in short compass the outstanding innovations and improvements in such apparatus which have resulted from recent efforts on the part of the makers of cine machinery.

The limits of space prevent a microscopically complete enumeration of each and every detail of recently introduced apparatus, but in the following paragraphs we shall endeavor to consider a representative selection of mechanical devices, the outstanding features of which will prove our contention that continual progress is the rule with designers and builders of cinematograph mechanisms.

Among the various new or improved models of cine camera which have recently been introduced none will appeal more strongly to the practical cinematographer than the camera which is illustrated in Fig. 1.

This instrument, which is strictly professional in type and arrangement, was designed in New York and is constructed in precise manner by skilful mechanics. A number of these cameras have been sold by the Motion Picture Apparatus Company, of 110 West Thirty-second street, New York, and they are obtainable on the Pacific Coast from Messrs. J. L. Benwell and Sons, who are the Los Angeles representatives of the Motion Picture Apparatus Company. As the cameras so far issued have proven highly satisfactory under working conditions, a short description of this taking-instrument is in order, reference being had to Fig. 1.

The camera is of the enclosed magazine type, having the film- boxes located side by side, which arrangement has become very popular in recent years. Such a disposition of the magazines makes an exceedingly compact camera, as is apparent from the illustration; the film capacity of the camera is 400 feet.

The intermittent is of the claw type, of rigid design, and is mounted on the front plate of the mechanism frame, which renders it accessible by removing the front-board of the camera.

In preparing the improved camera the makers have realized the necessity of mounting the lens to the mechanism frame of the camera, instead of attaching it to the front-board, and this assures accuracy of alignment between the lens and the image plane.

There are no take-up belts of any sort in this camera, although the travel of the film is instantly-reversible by simply turning the crank in the opposite direction. A readily reversible take-up is a necessity in a professional cine camera, and the taking up of the film in the instrument now under consideration is governed by a train of gears which operates the spindles of both the supply and take-up magazines. The tension on the take-up is regulated by a friction device, which may be adjusted to any desired tension by means of a readily accessible thumb-nut.

The limits of space prevent us from elaborating upon all of the attachments which are embodied in this new camera, but mention must be made of the shutter-dissolve, which is different from the various automatic and semi-automatic dissolves with which cameramen are familiar. This camera is provided with a hand-operated shutter-dissolve, wherewith the shutter aperture may be incresed or closed while the camera is in motion. This is accomplished by sliding a lever along a graduated quadrant which is located just above the camera-crank, as will be noticed upon reference to the illustration. This hand-operated shutter-dissolve is a patented device, and is but one of the many features which make this newcomer among American-made cine cameras an instrument worthy of consideration by cameramen and producers.

A Lens with Increased Depth of Field

Although the customary lenses used in cinematography are capable of producing film pictures possessed of a very considerable depth of field, this quality is only secured by stopping down the objective to a considerable extent, and there has been an oft-expressed desire amongst discriminating cameramen for a tableau-lens which would combine the properties of almost infinitely small aperture and an effective aperture sufficiently great to enable scenes to be photographed under any and all conditions of lighting.

It can be easily deduced by geometry, and proven by a simple calculation, that of two lenses having identical working apertures, but different focal lengths, the lens of shorter focal length will have the greatest depth of field. Upon this well-known principle of optics has been designed the "Depharc" lens, which has been introduced particularly for use in cinematography, and is supplied by the United States Cinematograph Company, of 617-31 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

The "Depharc" lens, shown in Fig. 2, is new in optical construction and its corrections for spherical and chromatic aberrations, and makes an exceedingly compact camera, as is apparent from the illustration; the film capacity of the camera is 400 feet.
tions, flatness of field, etc., are satisfactory in the highest sense of the word.

Its maximum working aperture is f 2.1; its focal length is 1½ inches, and when it is considered that the standard sized film image is sharply covered to the extreme corners, and that the pictures produced with this lens are possessed of practically infinite depth, it will be realized that the manufacturer of these "Dephar" objectives demands exact conformity to the optical computations involved; but the resultant product justifies the difficulties of production, and the "Dephar" lens should be welcomed by all cameramen who are employed in the making of elaborate productions.

An Aid to Accurate Focusing

No detail in the operation of a motion picture camera is more exacting than that of focusing the image at the exposure aperture or focal-plane of the instrument. Regardless of the kind of focusing screen used to receive the image cast by the lens, it is freely conceded that when focusing cine cameras the most precise results are invariably secured if the image is viewed through a magnifying device of some description. The most improved type of focusing magnifier that has yet been placed within the reach of cameramen is a focusing microscope recently introduced by the C. P. Goerz American Optical Company, of 317 East Thirty-fourth street, New York. This device is shown diagrammatically in Fig. 3, and consists of a telescope designed for viewing objects at extremely close range, e.g., at a few inches distance. Its field is sufficient to embrace a full cinematograph image, which it amplifies to the extent of 6 or 8 x, and the image is observed right side up, instead of inverted.

The creepiece end of this focusing microscope carries fine cross-wires, which are situated at the focal plane of the compound object glass system, and serve to facilitate focusing on this plane for eyes of different strength. The eyepiece is fitted with an indicator tube, which is turned to the right or left until the cross-wires are seen sharply delineated, whereupon the image at the exposure plane of the camera may be focused with ease and precision.

The Goerz focusing microscope may be readily fitted to a variety of well-known cine cameras, but in each case the camera must be sent to the Goerz American Optical Company for proper fitting and adjustment.

A Precision Tripod

Under the name of the Precision Ball-Bearing Tripod the Motion Picture Apparatus Company, 110 West Thirty-second street, New York, has introduced a tripod which can well serve as a support for the best that has ever been produced in the line of cine cameras.

As Fig. 4 shows, the head of the Precision Ball-Bearing Tripod combines both panorama and tilting top. There are three sockets upon this new tripod head into which the cranks may be inserted. The one shown at the side of the tilting-table actuates the screw by which the camera is secured, while the other two sockets receive the cranks for the panorama and tilting mechanisms respectively. The large worm screws which actuate the tilting and panorama movements run in ball bearings of latest designs, and the tension at which these movements work may be adjusted to suit the operator.

By means of ingeniously designed compensating devices any wear or lost motion in the panoramic or tilting gears may be readily taken up, which is a vital and necessary feature in modern tripod design. The panorama may be disengaged for quick turning by loosening the large knob under the tripod-head, while another useful refinement is the graduation into degrees of the circumference of the panorama and the arc through which the tilt operates.

In common with several other important cinematographic devices which have originated with the Motion Picture Apparatus Company, these Precision Ball-Bearing Tripods may be secured in California and the West from J. L. Benwell and Sons of Los Angeles.

Dissolve Attachment for Universal Camera

In a foregoing description we referred to a dissolving shutter as a feature of a recently introduced cine camera, but we have now to describe a dissolving or fade-out device which is not in the nature of an adjustable shutter, but works quite independently of the camera mechanism proper.

We refer to the dissolve attachment which was designed for use with the well-known and popular Universal motion picture camera, and which is supplied by Burke and James, Inc., 240-258 East Ontario street, Chicago, Ill. The Universal Dissolve Attachment is shown in Fig. 5, and, like the Universal Camera, is simple and efficient in operation.

It is entirely automatic in its action, and costs less than the average hand-operated dissolve. It is the only automatic dissolve which has no connection with the operating mechanism of the camera. It is entirely self-contained, and its operation, which is accomplished by merely pushing a button, involves no calculation of the shutter opening. The Universal dissolve is neither a diaphragm dissolve nor a shutter dissolve, but operates on a principle which is new in motion picture cameras. A specially prepared glass disc of graduated density is rotated by a gear train, controlled by a governor which is timed to produce one revolution of the disc in five seconds. You simply push a black button to dissolve out and a white button to dissolve in, and the instrument does the rest. No winding or setting being necessary the Universal dissolve attachment is always ready for use and forms a valuable adjunct to the capabilities of the Universal camera, as well as being exceedingly ingenious in mechanical conception.

Recent Improvements in Positive Printing Machines

While the camera is the reigning instrument in a film studio, the positive printer is of prime importance in a film laboratory, and modifications of importance have recently been made in the construction of some well known printers.

The Duplex printer, shown in Fig. 6, is well known to all film technicians as an accurate and trustworthy machine; but its serviceability has recently been increased by the makers, the Duplex Machine Co., of 316-318 Seventy-fifth street, Brooklyn, N. Y. The mechanical improvements and additions to the Duplex printer are not noticeable in the illustration, but may be concisely described as follows:

The pressure attachment, at the exposing aperture, is of new and improved design, and we are advised by users of Duplex printers, equipped with the new gate-tension, lack of contact and unsharp positives are never encountered in the results produced by these latest models.

The Duplex Machine Co. have always supplied an efficient model of automatic light changer, but here also some modifications have been made. The contact points, whereby light changes are accomplished, are no longer built in as part of the resistance-box, but are now supplied in the form of a number of small brass plugs. These plugs are inserted into holes in the contact area of the light-changer, in conformity with the numbers punched out on the time-card, and when the "automatic" is used, a much more certain contact is secured, which, of course, results in greater accuracy in the light changes from scene to scene.

It can be broadly stated that with the average positive printer about four successive images are exposed per second, and this is the rate at which the Duplex printer is generally operated, but in the case of very dense (overexposed) negatives, it not infrequently happens that a properly exposed positive cannot be produced from an overdense negative when the printing speed is 4 images, or upward, per second. Accordingly the latest Duplex printers are provided with an extra clutch and gearing, through the medium of which the printer can be operated at a rate of two exposures per second. This printing rate allows ample exposure to be secured, even though an extremely dense negative is printed from.

Although the foregoing devices increase the capabilities of the Duplex printer, another attachment has been added which materially increases its efficiency. This consists of a cast metal arm, which extends from the pedestal of the machine to within easy reach of the operator; and to the end of this arm is fastened a Duplex negative rewinder. It will of course be realized that when a roll of negative has run through a printing machine, and has been printed from, it must be rewound before it can be used again. By locating the negative rewinder within arm's reach of the printing machine operator the utmost labor-saving possibilities of the Duplex machine are realized.

Hausman Printer

A consistently popular rival of the pedestal type positive printer is the tried and proven wall-type machine, of which no better

The example exists than the Hausman printer, manufactured by W. B. Hausman of 1025-27-29 Rising Sun Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. The Hausman machine is well and favorably known to most all of our technical readers, and we have just been advised by Mr. Hausman, the inventor and manufacturer, that this printer is now constructed much more heavily and substantially than any of his previous models.

A Useful Rewinder
Interesting as is the study of camera, and printer mechanisms, it not infrequently happens that some apparently simple item of studio or laboratory equipment may be the embodiment of original, novel and practical ideas.
As an example we will now consider an extremely handy rewinding device which was devised by Eberhard Schneider, of 219 Second avenue, New York, and is known as a Crow-Foot Stand Rewinder. This practical apparatus is shown in Fig. 7, and one cannot study this illustration without wondering why such an efficient rewinding arrangement was not devised long before.
To the cameraman or the film cutter one of these Crow-Foots would speedily become an indispensable accessory, as will be appreciated by all who have to deal with the actual handling of negatives or positives during the cutting operation. This rewinding arrangement is but one of hundreds of novel devices which have been designed by Eberhard Schneider, but it is a good example of his practical knowledge of the film manufacturer's requirements.

Bell and Howell Co.'s Latest Mechanical Achievements
The wonderfully precise cine machinery made by the Bell and Howell Company, of 1801-7 Larchmont avenue, Chicago, has been so frequently described that it is not necessary to illustrate them here, but the following report of recent improvements and additions to their various mechanisms will doubtless be received with interest by all workers in the technical branches of cinematography. We are indebted to Frank M. Byam, sales manager of the Bell and Howell Company, for the following statement:

CAMERAs. While some improvements have been made in the design and construction of the Bell and Howell camera, its distinctive features are unchanged. As now constructed, the shutter has a maximum opening of 170 degrees—thus affording a longer period of exposure where that is necessary or desirable.
When it is desired to lock the camera mechanism this may be accomplished by means of a knurled ring which surrounds the shutter index dial. The turning of this ring to the left locks the mechanism.
The most important camera accessory brought out by Bell and Howell during the past year is a new tripod with panorama and tilting head. The tripod is of a light and strong construction, affording an exceptionally rigid support for the camera. It is suited to either field or studio service.
Both the panorama and tilting effects are accomplished by means of a single crank—for the head may be released for "panning" without the use of the crank.

PERFORATOR. The Bell and Howell Film Perforator—Model D, embodies a number of improvements in design and construction. The shuttle mechanism is of an entirely new design. The machine is fitted with bell bearings throughout. An automatic stop is provided which prevents the end of the film from passing entirely through the mechanism—thus avoiding the necessity of frequent splicing. This feature is, of course, of advantage chiefly where a number of perforating machines are supervised by a single operator.
The new perforator is of the pedestal type. A service table is provided for the convenient handling of the film. A motor for perforator drive is mounted beneath this table. A rotary brush suction cleaner is a feature of the equipment.

SPLICING MACHINE. The work involved in the designing and developing of a new type of film splicing machine was com-

PORTER MAKES A CONFESSION

A friend of mine said he couldn't understand how I ever became the best machine salesman in the United States. He said you wouldn't think it to look at me.

Well, frankly, I don't shave just because I love to see my face in the mirror.

But if you want to know the secret of my success, here it is:

(1) Knowing my business,

(2) Acting upon that knowledge.

I take it from me that "knowing how" isn't enough. If you stop at that you soon will be driven off the field by younger men and concerns.

They will leave you only the joy (?) of hollering about what you know and what you did in the past, before keener minds tackled the business.

Another thing—I don't furnish Projectors alone. Before the sale I give my expert knowledge as Projection Engineer, and after the sale I remain at my Customer's service.

This policy, and honorable dealing, have earned me the confidence of my Customers. Men thousands of miles away have sent me cash with their orders, even for second-hand machines. And none ever were sorry.

I WOULD NOT SELL THE CONFIDENCE OF MY CUSTOMERS FOR ALL THE WORLD'S WEALTH.

The K-B Combined Camera and Projector

A NEW camera comes out of the West, promising to make the motion picture as common in the homes and business world as the phonograph record. It is called the K.B. Motion Picture Camera and Projector, and it not only takes the picture, but projects it as well, on the wall at home or on the regular theatre screen. It is manufactured by Barker Bros., Los Angeles, the western metropolis of the film industry.

The K.B. camera uses standard film, has a capacity of 200 feet, and is equipped with a 1 C. f 3.5 Zeiss Tessar lens, producing a sharp, clear picture. It is said to possess also a similar professional character of projection. The manufacturers state that many large industries have adopted it in the development and expansion of their business, and that at its home in Los Angeles public boards, such as the park, police, and other bodies have acknowledged its usefulness for their departments. By its use many affairs of local nature, which would ordinarily be missed by the usual picture news gatherers, are brought within the scope of the local camera and shown upon the local screen, thus giving an irresistible prestige and leadership to the theatre showing the pictures. By reason of its professional equipment and low price, it is said to be in strong demand, exclusive selling rights in many

Bayonne, N. J., Not Asleep

BROther LEON A. RING, Bayonne, N. J., encloses a list of seven operators employed in the motion picture theatres in Bayonne, N. J., whose names appear upon the roll of names of operators. These boys are all members of Local 384, Motion Picture Machine Operators of Hudson County, N. J. Brother Ring also writes:
“I will deem it a great favor if you would give a wiring diagram of a two-phase Martin rotary converter at your convenience. I have been a reader of the News since the inauguration of its Projection Department, and have found many good articles therein that I am sure the operators at large profit by.” And closes by wishing the department and its editor the best of success.

The accompanying illustration, will, I think, give you all necessary information as to the wiring of a Martin rotary converter.
It is gratifying to know that you find something of value in the department, and I extend you my sincere thanks for your kind wishes, also for the interest you have taken in the furtherance of the Anti-Misframe League as shown by the list of names you submitted, and which have been entered on the Roll of Honor.

In connecting the Martin Rotary Converter, see that the resistance is connected as shown in the diagram. To use current from the Converter close switches in the following order: First,
A, second B—on closing B see that voltmeter is reading correctly. If not repeat second operation (allowing 5 seconds between), as many times as necessary. Third, close circuit switches as desired into D. C. terminals. To use A, C, close circuit switches into A. C. terminals leaving A. D. C. terminals leading.
To converter, open switch B. When panel circuits are not in use open switch A. Two important things to remember are, that when wanting to raise the D. C. voltage you should connect leads C and D to taps No. 55, for still higher D. C. voltage, connect these leads to taps No. 60. When you want to raise the A. C. voltage connect leads E and F to taps 65.

Parrish’s Address Wanted

J. R. C., San Diego, Cal., writes: In a recent issue of the News I saw an article pertaining to the cleaning of bright screens.
“I wrote to the party but did not get any reply, so am asking you to set the brother on my trail. Am using a Gold King screen, which has become “badly soiled.” (I hope you will pardon this change in your letter, also my failure to mention what the screen looks like now.—En.) And if there is any possible way to renovate it I sure would like to have it done. If you still have the brother’s address please send it, or have him write me.

In Reply: The address of Mr. Parrish was, I think, given in the article which you mention, and which appeared in the News some time ago. Mr. Parrish visited my office, explained his process, and exhibited many testimonial letters from leading exhibitors and film exchanges, and if he reads this I hope that he will forward me his address. Would suggest that you write the manufacturers of the Gold King screen who, perhaps, would be able to give you the information you seek regarding the renovation of your screen. In reply to your P. S. suggesting the addition of the following to the A. M. F. L.: “And where possible remove such punch marks as may be possible without interference to subject,” would say that the natural inference would be for one to do this if projection were to be pleasing to the observer.
I am glad to know that you do these things, and have placed your name upon the Roll of Honor, and will submit the closing sentence of your letter, wherein you say do the very best you can to improve projection in general, to the careful consideration of every operator who may read this.

He’s an Anti-Misframe Leaguer

WHen Douglas Fairbanks recently asked the operator at Clune’s Los Angeles theatre how he liked his latest picture, “Wild and Woolly,” the operator replied, “Fine, there isn’t a hole in the entire film.” This is not only praise for Fairbanks, but praise for the Anti-Misframe League also, and we only hope that all operators will be able to truthfully say the same thing regarding every picture production in the near future.

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

The conductor's duty is to concentrate the various purposes of individual players into one combined purpose, just as a pianist combines the various movements of his instrument into one organism under his fingers. For this reason a conductor is often said to "play on the orchestra"; indeed, the power of a conductor over his players may be even greater than that of a player over his instrument, inasmuch as the mechanical element is entirely absent from the connection between the conductor and his performers.

Richard Wagner divided the duties of an orchestra conductor under two heads: (a) that of giving the true tempo to the orchestra; (b) that of finding where the melody lies. The idea of true tempo covers the technical qualifications necessary to a conductor; the idea of the melody covers the ideal aspects of his art. Very few men possess both these qualifications, but both are necessary to great conducting. Technical accuracy is useless without an imaginative mind, and the most inspired imagination is powerless unless aided by a clear head and a clear beat.

Gestures

The technical equipment and duties of the conductor may be summarized as follows:

What a good touch is to a pianist, that expressive and alert gesture is to a conductor. Given the right rhythm and feeling in the conductor's mind, he must be able to translate it quickly and exactly into gesture. The quicker the response of hand to brain to better thereby will be a man's qualification as a conductor.

It is hardly necessary here to insist on the tremendous effect that expressive and appropriate gestures can have on orchestra playing, not only from a more ideal point of view, but also in such comparatively mechanical matters as keeping a steady rhythm—starting and finishing accurately. But to make such gestures expressive it is necessary for the conductor, like the instrumentalist, to attain certain qualities of arm and wrist. The wrist must be loose and supple, and the baton should be held lightly, somewhat after the manner of a violin bow. The normal position of the baton should not be too low, otherwise it will not be seen, and not too high, otherwise it will be impossible to make that slight preliminary upward motion which is so necessary to secure a good attack on a down beat. As a general rule, no more strokes should be used than are absolutely necessary to mark the time; for instance, no bar should be beaten in three strokes that can be beaten in one; no bar should be beaten in four strokes that can be beaten in two. And it is one of the signs of a great conductor that he is able to conduct a piece, for example, in slow 12-8 time, using four strokes only to the bar, without hurrying the tempo. It may also be said that where there is no movement in the music there should be no movement of the baton. Thus a bar containing nothing but a fermata should never be beaten out, but the beats counted mentally. In the same way, when the orchestra holds on a chord during a reproductive, the crotches should not be beaten out, and even when beats are necessary they should be only just indicated, otherwise the orchestra will be unnecessarily hurried and excited. Again, when beating the stroke should be made quickly and firmly, and the stick should then be held firm and motionless; it should not be gradually moved across the space to be traversed.

Start and Finish of a Number

Before attempting to conduct a piece of music the conductor must, of course, have settled what tempi he is going to adopt. He must know by personal experience or tradition what is the usual tempo, and if he chooses to depart from such tradition he must be prepared to justify his innovation by results. Having settled the tempi, he must have the opening tempo firmly fixed in his mind before he starts the piece, and he must settle each change of tempo to himself a few bars before it actually takes place. If there is any uncertainty on the part of the conductor there will be more on the part of the players. The actual starting of a piece is brought about by a preliminary up-beat in the exact time of the movement; a good start largely depends on the firmness of the preliminary beat. The cutting off of the final pause, is as important to a god rendering as a firm start. A pause is held by keeping the baton paused in the air; it is cut off by a slight sideways motion to the right.

Rubato Conducting

A conductor must have the tempo clearly in his head, and must be able to keep to it with metronomic accuracy, otherwise he can have no sense of time. But it does not follow that he should always keep rigidly to the initial tempo. "Tempo rubato" is as necessary in orchestral music as in any other. This is a comparatively new idea. Mendelssohn, we are told by W. S. Rockstro, "held tempo rubato in abhorrence." It was Wagner who, by his practice and his theory contended that "modification of tempo" are necessary to a living rendering of orchestral music.

Orchestral rubato can easily be overdone; a mechanical slackening and quickening of tempo is almost worse than metronomic rigidity. Perfect orchestral rubato should be like the playing of a single performer, holding back or pressing on almost imperceptibly to his emotional impulse directs. This perfection cannot be achieved except by a permanent orchestra, at one with itself, and with its conductor, and then only after long and careful rehearsals. In England we cannot expect to approach this ideal, however intelligent our players and however imaginative our conductors, until we arrive at a system of permanent orchestras and much greater opportunity for rehearsals.

Practical Orchestra Combinations

The addition of a Harmonium and the Solo and Obbligato Violin Part to modern orchestrations, especially those arranged by Charles J. Roberts and Otto Langey, presents an innovation which should be of vital interest to every orchestra leader. Use the Solo and Obbligato Violin Part in the absence of either cello, flute or clarinet in small orchestras having two first violinists. In combination with more than two first violinists (in the absence of either cello, flute or clarinet) the first two players should use the Solo or Obbligato Part, playing all cued notes as indicated; the other first violinists should use the regular first violin part, leaving out all cued notes.

In combination with only one first violinist use the regular violin part.

The following tables show clearly when to use the Solo and Obbligato Violin and Harmonium Parts, also how the orchestra of from two to twelve players should be constituted to attain the best results:

Musical Review of compositions most appropriate for Motion Pictures:
3. Hong Kong, a new Jazz one step, a composition most appropriate for comedies. (Edition, Leo Feist).
7. Just a Gem, intermezzo, Amoroso, by Tobani. Latest success by this famous writer and considered by many leaders to be even better than his celebrated "Hearts and Flowers." (Carl Fischer edition).
8. When Shadows Fall, a beautiful and melodious Reverie, adapted from the concert ballad by Frost and Keithley. (McKinley edition).
9. Grand Fantasia, on Dixie, arranged by Otto Langey. A number which every orchestra leader should possess. (Ditson edition).
11. Amerinda Intermezzo, a unique novelty number of unusual merit. (Leo Feist edition).
12. Atoneinent, by J. S. Zamecnik. A rich, deep melodious tone poem that can be effectively worked out. (Sam Fox edition).
13. The Dansant Tone Poem, by Al Moquin. A catchy semipopular number which will fit in well with any program. (Carl Fischer edition).

Schirmer Makes a Statement

In answer to many inquiries regarding their attitude with reference to the demands of the "American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers," the House of G. Schirmer (Inc.), the well-known music publishers, have declared themselves as follows:

"The decision of Justice Hand of the Supreme Court upholds the right of exacting a fee for public performances, for profit, of any copyright music. It affects, however, only the compositions issued by the publishers who are members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. While this decision establishes an indisputable claim on the part of the said society, this need not necessarily be interpreted as an coercion to pay their demands, for it is easy enough to evade them, merely by not playing the music which is subject to the ban. Several prominent publishers of New York besides ourselves have not joined the society, and they do not intend to do so. The publications of any of these houses, with but a few exceptions, are free to be performed without the payment of a fee, and any one of their catalogues is large enough to supply even the most progressive orchestra leaders with sufficient material for all purposes. Thus it is easily possible to dispense with the playing of music which is prohibited. In addition to the publications of the said houses there is a vast mass of foreign publications and others which do not enjoy copyright protection, and which are, therefore, automatically free.

"Our own immense catalogue of publications, which eminently abounds in music specifically suitable for motion pictures, is known to all progressive orchestra leaders. The liberal use of our music, supplemented by the publications of the other houses referred to, will safely see any one through all difficulties. The few exceptions in our catalogue with be gladly pointed out. Furthermore, we are at the service of the musical public at all times to assist them with counsel and advice. All we ask is not to hesitate to come to us or to send us for information.

In addition to the demands of the 'American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers,' there are others from a French society of a similar name.

Music—

furnishes the frames and backgrounds for your photoplays.

It appeals to the ear as the screen to the eye, hence a double charm.

The house of G. Schirmer has made a specialty of producing high-class photoplay music in every form, from great symphonic accompaniments for gigantic three-hour productions, to albums of standard works for piano.

Within this range are included the well-known G. Schirmer Galaxy of Orchestra Music which is the most practical library for the photoplay musician.

In addition there are collections of incidental music, standard selections and special works.

No matter what is the musical equipment of your theater, we have a vast catalog of music which will accurately meet your requirements. A post card request will bring catalogs and details of special offers.

Theatre Plans
PREPARED BY CARETO AND FORSTER, ARCHITECTS, NEW YORK CITY

In the smaller towns and cities of the country the construction of a theatre is a problem which cannot be undertaken without a great deal of thought. The question as to whether there is room for another house, whether or not those houses which are running are filling the needs of the people or whether certain of the population are not attending these theatres at all and why must be settled.

Lack of progressiveness and other reasons such as projection, quality of pictures shown, cleanliness and a thousand other causes are keeping the people who should be patrons away from the motion pictures all over the country.

After you have picked your location your troubles have only just begun. Unless you have been in the business before and have made a study of projection, seating arrangement, etc., you must obtain some help. In the smaller towns you go to your builder—often times he has never done more than put up a frame dwelling or a one-story brick store. "Oh yes, I know all about a movie house; leave it to me. Five hundred seats? Sure. Don't spend your money foolishly. I'll show you" is the average reply when asked as to his ability to put up a picture theatre.

It is wrong. He knows absolutely nothing about it other than the actual construction. It is up to you to show him. It is your money which is being spent.

"Shall we go to an architect?" you ask your partner. On a commission basis you can't get an architect to spend time bothering with a 350, 500 or 750 seat house. It is not worth while, the commission is not there, and if he does take the job you can depend upon it that he does not know any more about projection than the builder. The competent architects have not got the time to waste with the small job. Even in the thousand seat houses there is little enough commission unless they are part of an office building or worked into some other comprehensive plan.

REMEMBER: THAT WHEN YOU BUILD A PICTURE HOUSE IT MUST BE RIGHT.

In the case of any one of these houses the proper help can be given to your builder so that he can do the work without the actual help of an architect.

Motion Picture News for some time past has been helping certain theatre interests who asked for assistance in an advisory way in planning for the construction and alteration of their houses. This help has been of altogether too indefinite a nature. It has merely been in the form of answering questions, etc. From now on we are going further and place ourselves in a position where any man who wishes to build or renovate can obtain tangible helps.

Through the help and co-operation of Careto and Forster, architects, of 50 East Forty-second street, New York City, we have had drawn up working plans with specifications of houses seating 350, 500, 750 and 1,000 people. These plans are drawn up to accurate scale, the measurements called for being to our mind as near ideal as possible. They are so arranged that you can take a set, turn it over to a competent builder who knows his business, and with them as a basis a house can be built which will fit the plot of ground which you have under consideration.

Particular care has been taken as to details in construction. The lay-out of the lobbies are taken up in detail, so that incoming crowds can be taken care of with 100 per cent. efficiency and yet allow those who wish to use the exits to have ample room at all times.

The question of projection, which we regret to say has been butchered in many of our largest metropolitan houses, has been gone into in detail, so that a good picture can be absolutely guaranteed on the screen, providing of course the proper equipment has been installed. The line of throw is as near horizontal as it is possible to make it. The operating room in each house is large, with plenty of room for two machines and full equipment. In fact, any operator who works under conditions as set forth will have no trouble and as far as the room which is planned is concerned, no complaints.

There is one thing which must never be overlooked, and that is the stage. No house, in our opinion, should ever be constructed without one. There are a thousand and one times when you as a motion picture proprietor will have need of it. Everything possible must, at all times, be done to accustom people to coming to the theatre. A public meeting may be held in your house at any time, a benefit of some kind may use it, etc. Every time this is done your regular attendants are about. They are courteous, the place is clean, it is well built, well decorated, and in every way makes a fine impression. It does more—it makes patrons. A stage, therefore, is necessary.

Besides this, the stage does more; it allows the proper space between the front row and the screen to be properly utilized, as there should always be from twenty to twenty-five feet given over to this, so that the eyes of those in the front will not in any way be strained. Do you realize how many patrons to picture houses have been driven away from your doors because of a lack of this space? It is an open and shut proposition. Go to any house with the seats jammed up on the screen and see how long you will sit in the first seven rows. Try it.

Then too, proper care has been taken so that there is plenty of room for musical equipment. We all know that the picture house with inadequate music is a thing of the past and that many theatres to-day, although fine in other respects, have not got the room or the arrangement to allow proper installations of musical equipment. This cannot be done without a stage, as the players, particularly the leader, must be able to see and follow the picture at all times, which cannot be done if the projection is on a screen fastened to a wall directly over his head.

The movement to-day is all for better pictures, better theatre construction and better music. They are all necessary if the theatre-going public is to be increased. I was talking to a man only to-day who lives in a town where there are five houses, yet he motors with his family eight miles, on an average of four times a week, to a town where there is only one house, because that house is new, properly constructed, is clean, well run, has good music, has, to his mind, better pictures, and he receives far more courteous attention and treatment.

With these things in mind, we have worked out our present plans, which can be used as guides at least to those who are planning to build. If they do not do anything else, they will contain suggestions which you may never have considered, but which are of the maximum importance. We intend to go further—we will co-operate to the extent of seeing that you obtain catalogues and suggestions as to full equipment, so that when your house is finished it should be pointed to as being the most up-to-date and best patronized anywhere in the locality.

In the future we will give further reminders of these plans in the News. However, if you are interested and want further details now, drop us a line telling of what you have in mind and we will give you all the details you may want now.

The Chipewa Theatre Company, Chipewa, has filed articles of incorporation with the register of deeds with a capital stock of $15,000. The incorporators are Dayton E. Cook, Holmes Ives and C. M. Weatherhog. This corporation controls three theatres, the Palace, Lyric and new Rex. It is feared that this will be an effective way in handling the theatre business in Chipewa Falls in the future.

Jefferson One of the Finest Theatres in the Middle West

THE Jefferson theatre of Fort Wayne, Indiana, is one of the most unique theatres that has yet come to the attention of the editor.

The Jefferson, which is located on Calhoun and Jefferson streets, is owned and operated by W. C. Quimby. It was completed during 1912, the plans and specifications for the construction of the house having been drawn up by Mr. Weatherhog, an architect with offices in Fort Wayne.

The dimensions of the theatre are 60 feet in width by 150 feet in depth. There are two entrances to the house, one on Calhoun street, the other on Jefferson street.

The theatre is constructed of steel, concrete and brick. The lobbies on each street are identical. The front is artistically finished, although not overdone, and makes a neat and attractive appearance. The lobbies are semi-drum shaped. The direct lighting system is used here. The box offices, which are centered between the two doors leading into the theatre, are equipped with National Cash Register ticket selling machines, which facilitate the handling of crowds.

The interior of the theatre is elaborately finished in old rose and ivory. The side walls and ceiling are divided into panels, borders of which are plastic ornament of Renaissance design, these being finished in gold tint. The side walls are covered with a heavy old rose tapestry cloth of flower design, the ceiling being finished in old ivory.

Both the direct and indirect lighting systems are used in the interior. The side wall brackets, which are kept lit during the performance, are of the one-lamp inverted type. The other fixtures are of chain suspended type, the bows being of metal of odd design. Colored lights are also used, but are hidden from view in light troughs in the ceiling.

The theatre is heated by steam, and a Typhoon ventilating system has been installed. This system, used in conjunction with the heating system, keeps the house at even temperature and can also be used to cool the theatre in the summer.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 1,400, the American Seating Company having furnished the comfortable leather upholstered opera chairs, 32 inches in width. These are placed so that there is plenty of knee room, making it easy to pass in and out of a row of seats. The seats have all been provided with slip covers, which lend a clean and bright aspect to the whole interior.

The projection which is located above one of the lobbies is one of the most completely equipped to be found anywhere. The room is in charge of Walter Foreman, who deserves mention for his unflagging effort to produce the best and which he has now mastered. The equipment of the projection room consists of three Powers 6-A motor driven projectors, a Powers dissolving stereopticon, a Kleig light spot-light to which a color wheel has been attached. Theatre dimmers, controlling all the light in the house, are operated from the booth.

The length of throw is 132 feet onto a Mirror screen, installed by the Mirror Screen Company of Shelbyville, Ind.

The music for the picture is furnished by a ten-piece orchestra. A pipe organ of large dimension has also been installed at great expense to the management. An overture is wonderfully rendered at the beginning of each performance, this consisting of the work of some famous composer and usually harmonizes with the atmosphere of the feature which is to be shown.

There are seven performances daily, starting at one, last performance closing at eleven-thirty. These consist of six or more reels. The theatre advertises extensively in the daily newspapers, on billboards, electric signs and in show windows. A large mailing list is maintained and novelties are distributed among the patrons. Admission prices a. 10 and 15 cents.

Mr. Quimby, the owner and manager of the theatre, has been in business for thirteen years.

Motion Picture Cameras

Address delivered before Atlantic City Meeting of Society of Motion Picture Engineers

THE rapid growth of the motion picture industry has made it a difficult problem for manufacturers of motion picture apparatus to keep pace with the growing demands of the industry. The manufacturing problems have paralleled in many respects those of the automobile industry, but have by no means kept pace with them. It was only with the standardization of parts, and with the adoption of a standard method of measurements and specifications, that the automobile industry was able to reach the development that it has today. The American Society of Automobile Engineers was probably the largest factor in bringing about the standards in use in the automobile industry. It has, every year since its formation, helped in the elimination of freak designs and in rendering obsolete the unnecessary duplication of parts in odd sizes. The old idea of a manufacturer who would compel a customer to replace every part of a car from parts manufactured in that particular factory by making as many of the parts as possible of a different size from that of any other manufacturer is one which has never met with the approval of the consumer. If a car owner wished to use a different spark plug or piston ring than that supplied by the manufacturer of his car it didn't improve his state of mind to find that no other make of spark plug or piston ring would fit. No manufacturer ever benefited by this selfish attitude, for as soon as he had turned out enough of his odd sizes to make a market every other accessories maker turned to and made an odd size to fit it. This duplication of parts entailed more machinery; higher costs and, consequently, bigger prices for the consumer to pay.

Although it would seem at first inspection that the fact that the size of the film is practically an international standard and would, therefore, facilitate against an undue multiplication of parts in the film business, still we find on closer inspection that affairs are as bad or worse than they were at one time in the manufacture of gasoline vehicles. It is to be hoped that the Society of Motion Picture Engineers may do the same service for the motion picture industry that the American Society of Automobile Engineers is doing for the automobile industry.

One of the first things to put in order out of the chaos of filmmaking is a comprehensive and comprehensible list of specifications by which a camera may be described. No manufacturer of automobiles would think of issuing a catalogue describing his car without including a full and detailed list of specifications. Yet none of the camera manufacturers have seemed to think this necessary in the catalogues describing their cameras. They often elaborate a few sentence on some feature or another, but the gracefulness of describing some of the essentials which they have left out of the catalogue, and generally left out of the camera also.

The camera is the keystone in the arch of picturedom. Without the camera the whole structure must fall to the ground. It is therefore of the utmost importance that the first attention of this nascent body be directed to the vital centre upon which every other section of the industry depends.

The average camera of the industry today is a marvel of compromise. It is expected to take the film of any maker, of any thickness and any degree of pliability, with perforations of any shape and almost any number per foot and produce a rock-steady picture. I say it is a marvel for it generally accepts all these handicaps and turns out pictures which look surprisingly good upon the screen.

It must accept all of the imperfections which a lack of standards subjects it to and turn out a picture degraded with an average of these imperfections.

Its sprocket teeth cannot fit the perforations for they must be made small enough to enter the smallest perforation that it may encounter. It must rely for registrations upon pressure plates with spring tension-pilot pins or guides being of little use unless a standard size of film and perforation be arbitrarily adopted for that particular camera. Thanks to the individual efforts of one or two of the members of this society, much excellent work in this line has been accomplished, but unless standards are universally adopted and used the standards of one clique are sure to clash somewhere with those of another clique and the war goes merrily on to the detriment of the industry as a whole.

It is high time that the essential parts and features of cameras have universally recognized standard to which they should conform.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers
The first and most important standard to be determined is the frame line in its relation to the perforations. No two cameras can be used in the same production at the present time without having their frame lines adjusted to one another. The claws or fingers which engage the film for drawing down the succeeding frames are placed, in most cameras, at some distance below the frame opening and although two cameras with claws at different distances between their claw movement be adjusted according to one standard for their frame line, the use of a different standard of perforation, although the new standard be used in both cameras, will alter the frame lines to differ.

The studios of today who are turning out the best grade of work have adopted a standard for their plan and, at great expense, have made all of their cameras, perforators, printers, etc., conform to an arbitrary measure for their own protection. The companies who have recognized this great economic factor in production are unhappily still in the minority. It is not to be wondereed at that in the absence of recognized standards that many makers have either never given the subject proper attention or felt equal to backing the various opinions of the others and trying to draw them into line.

An instance will illustrate the point which I am trying to bring out. One of the largest distributing combinations in the country shortly after their organization decided to run a trailer with their trade mark on all of their reels. They made an appropriation of stupendous proportions to bring this trade mark before the public by a national advertising campaign in magazines, newspapers and billboards. Instead, I was assigned the task of making the negative for the trailer, pieces of which were sent to each company releasing through this organization. I made the negative with the frame line conforming to the standard of the principal member. It took nearly four months to bring this trailer into use among the different releasing companies, during which time it was necessary to remake the exact duplicate for each and every releasing company with a different frame line, and one company was even so sadly mixed that it required a frame line change to correspond to each camera that it owned, they were not able to put two camera men on the same job as their frame lines did not correspond.

A large number of camera men at the present time own their own outfits. This measure was adopted by them in the beginning as a measure of self-protection against the junk-boxes with which the manufacturers expected them to work.

As soon as the manufacturers found that the camera men would buy their own cameras many of them ceased providing cameras and depended altogether upon the heterogeneous collection of outfits that their camera men provided.

This situation is absurd—can you imagine a serious manufacturer of automobiles or machinery who would expect a workman to come into his factory with an arbitrary set of limits gauges and expect to assemble a product made by this workman with the product of other workmen when their measurement standards had never been compared?

That, gentlemen, is exactly the situation in a number of studios today where they are spending into the millions of dollars each year for the production of feature pictures de luxe.

You are all well aware that I might go on with an almost innumerable list of evils that are crying out for extermination at your hands but I would be taking up time which would be better spent by you in devising remedies that are so sorely needed.

Fellow members, upon your decisions at this and coming meetings rest the savings of untold amounts of unnecessary waste in time, money and material.

Patriotic and Public spirited Exhibitor

DURING these days of stress and strife, and when too, theatre managers are being appealed to for aid, in the form of benefits for the Red Cross, Home Defence League and kindred organizations, it is pleasing to record one theatre manager who is meeting these demands, also finds time and expresses the willingness to prove his patriotism and fulfill his duties as a public spirited citizen.

Mr. D. B. Newman, who owns and operates the Peerless Airdrome, East 138th street, between Alexander and Lincoln avenues, New York City, in connection with the Peerless theatre, directly across the street, is the man.

On Tuesday evening, July 10, Manager Newman donated the entire evening’s receipts of his airdrome, pictured above, to the Junior Police of the Sixty-first Precinct.

A few minutes before nine o’clock, Sergeant John W. England of the Sixty-first Precinct walked upon the stage and announced that the Fairview Club, a social organization, comprising representative business men of the Bronx were to present to the Junior Police a set of “Colors.” He also said that the creation of this auxiliary to the regular police force was brought about by the untiring efforts of Sergeant Thomas McLaughlin, who had worked night and day to organize and drill the boys to their present state of perfection. The idea brought forth in the mind of Sergeant McLaughlin met with a ready response among the boys, whose ages range from eleven to fourteen years, and after sufficient members had been gotten together the question then arose as to where they were going to hold their drills. Having no money, it appeared that they were up against a stone wall at the very start, but a hall was secured on East 143rd Street, without cost, where drills are held regularly. The next question to arise was, how to obtain uniforms; this question was answered by public spirited citizens, among them the manager of the Bronx Opera House, who donated a large portion of one day’s receipts for this purpose, and while the sum obtained was considerable, it was nevertheless insufficient to purchase uniforms for the 200 boys who make up the Junior Police Force.

When introduced, Sergeant McLaughlin, a most unassuming man, disclaimed any great credit for his own labors on the boys’ behalf, and after thanking the public for their generous response to the appeal that had been made to them for their support, thrust into the lime light, Maurice Evans, chief inspector and assistant drillmaster, who delivered a patriotic recitation after which came the salute to the colors followed by the singing of “The Star Spangled Banner,” the entire audience standing and joining in.

It was estimated that over 3,000 people were in attendance, this too, even though old Jupiter Pluvius threatened at any moment to put a damper on the festivities, and as the admission was 10 cents, and the entire receipts were turned over to the Junior Police, their treasury will be enriched by at least $300.

Among the prominent police officials present were Captain John J. McKeown, of the Sixty-first Precinct, and Detective Sergeant
E. F. England, of Commissioner Woods’ staff, as well as numerous lesser lights connected with the Sixty-first Precinct.

The picture, “The Little Rebel,” was superbly projected by Brother Edgar Stewart, a member of Local 306, in the face of an overabundance of foreign light from the street, which is, I understand to be eliminated in the near future.

Summer Theatre Has Roof Garden

The Summer Theatre, located on Sumner avenue, corner of Quincy street, Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the few modern fireproof theatres, which is permitted to operate its roof garden.

The Summer Theatre, which was completed during 1913, is known as the "Rialto" of Brooklyn, is one of three houses operated by Sol Brill, under the management of Harry Thoms, one of the most capable, live wire managers in the business.

The roof garden of the Summer has a seating capacity of 1,100. Comfortable garden chairs have been furnished by the American Seating Company of Chicago.

The projection room on the roof is constructed of reinforced concrete and is equipped with two of the latest model Simplex projectors. The length of throw is 110 feet onto a screen which is specially treated, so that weather cannot affect it.

The music for the picture is furnished by a nine-piece orchestra, which is capable of handling the best music with perfect ease.

Only high class productions are shown at this theatre—Fox, Triangle, Paramount, Pathé and Art dramas share the program.

There are three performances daily, consisting of from six to nine reels each. The theatre maintains a large mailing list and advertises extensively on billboards.

For completed article regarding the main auditorium of the Summer theatre, see the January 27 issue of Motion Picture News.

Minneapolis Pays Out Reserve Cash for Equipment

On the theory that a theatre patron will pay admission to sit in a new opera chair to see if the new machine gives a sturdier picture or learn whether the ventilating device really cools, many Northwestern exhibitors are taking chances and buying accessories this summer.

The same men who are doubtful about films are paying out reserve cash for new equipment. Of course business is not as usual, for it is just as P. W. Goehel, president of the American Bankers' Association, said in St. Paul, "It can't be when conditions are not as usual." Considering conditions, however, business is good.

There is as much difference in exhibitors and methods of exhibiting as there is in artists in oil and oil paintings. In houses where exhibiting is an art "good tools" are provided always, and there are enough such houses in this district to keep business alive.

"Business is better than I thought it would be with the burdens that are placed on the exhibitors," said James V. Bryson, head of the Northwestern Motion Picture Equipment Company and are improving.

"If any man in the West is doing his best to keep 'business as usual' for others as well as himself, it is the exhibitor," said an official of the Rialto Theatre Supply Company. "For my part, I can't see that the war has hurt the equipment business. Business is particularly good in Montana. Never before has our district purchased so much new equipment."

Equipment Situation Changes in Detroit

The accessory situation in Detroit has changed around considerably since last month. The United Theatre Equipment Corporation, with offices in the Peter Smith Building, are now exclusive Michigan distributors for Power's machines. The Gardiner Theatre Equipment Company, 101 West Fourth street, is now the exclusive Michigan distributor for the Simplex machine, while A. P. Lombard, former Michigan representative for Simplex, is now special representative for the Precision Machine Company and temporarily will work out of the Gardiner Theatre Equipment Company office. Bert Weddige, of the Michigan Motion Picture Supply Company, will continue as a Power's dealer. Erker Brothers will also handle Power's machine as a dealer.

The accessory business has been very good in Michigan. The four dealers located at Detroit all report very satisfactory trade, and better than it has ever been. There is a brisk demand for new equipment, especially on account of the new theatres which have gone up and which are in course of erection, and the number of theatres which are throwing out their obsolete equipment for new equipment.

AFTER years of exhaustive research and experimental work by some of the biggest men in the industry, we announce the perfection of some inventions that will revolutionize the method of projecting motion pictures.

Mr. Oscar Sheck, one of the General Organizers in the United States for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators, and one of the most practical men on motion picture projection, is the inventor.

With his many years in the industry, and closely co-operating with the engineers in the MAZDA Lamp research and development laboratories, he has perfected the Oscar Sheck Universal Projector Lamp Appliances, with which MAZDA Lamps are used to project motion pictures on the screen in place of the carbon arc-lamps now used. Present arc-lamp equipment may be changed quickly and economically to use the MAZDA lamp. We are the manufacturers and general distributors.

These inventions have many advantages—the elimination of "flicker" on the screen, better illumination, the elimination of eye strain, make the operator's work easier, and the cost to operate with MAZDA Lamps is very much less than with arc-lamps.

These inventions will revolutionize the method of motion picture projection, and save exhibitors many thousands of dollars annually in operating cost.

Mr. H. H. Cudmore, for many years identified with the MAZDA Lamp Industries, is General Manager of the company. We are well organized, with thoroughly experienced and capable men, and we will soon be ready to make deliveries of the new equipment.

We suggest that you write now for descriptive literature, prices, etc., so you may be one of the first exhibitors to install this modern improvement.

Old methods were wrong—so they had to make way for new Man can no longer afford to set type by hand, nor pay the salaries of many musicians.

Those inventions have best served man which enable man to secure more efficiency and better results with less expenditure of time, energy and money.

Because the Robert Morton Symphonic Orchestra presents all the instruments of an orchestra under the control of a single player, combining the grandeur of the Cathedral Organ, the artistic refinement of an orchestral organ, and the accompaniment, obligato and full symphony of an orchestra of skilled musicians—it has taken its place in the ranks of inventions which set new standards for human advancement.

A single player at the key desk controls the strings, the woods and the brass just as the leader controls his orchestra.

In the Robert Morton all the beauties of a full orchestra are grouped in the glorious range of tone of a single instrument; all the resources of the instrument are also placed at the disposal of a player without technical skill, by using hand played rolls of small cost.

Different styles for different theatres built to order at prices ranging from $7500 up.

Marguerite Clark in "The Amazons"

A tremendous Broadway success by the famous dramatist Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. Released in August.

Miss Clark is one of the daughters of the Marchioness of Castlejordan, who is brought up as a son. Marguerite Clark as a little tomboy is marvelous.

Your patrons will see a new Marguerite, a prettier, sweeter and daintier Marguerite Clark—if it is possible—in a story that seems just made to display her engaging charm and great talent.

A Paramount Picture
THERE is an illusive charm about Vivian Martin, a sort of mingling of shy youth and mature depth, that has placed her not only among the big stars in Paramount Pictures, but among the most popular artists of the screen. Her first picture under the new "Selective Star Series" plan is entitled "Little Miss Optimist."

The story is by Gardner Hunting and the picture was directed by Robert Thornby.

Vivian Martin's Paramount Pictures have done much to attract and hold public patronage for Paramount exhibitors.
IN times like these the best literature and drama affords in the way of comedy will pay best. You will find Owen Johnson's famous love story of boarding school days a winner. The theme is big, wholesome and screamingly funny, yet powerful in its attraction value and advertising possibilities. Jack Pickford and Louise Huff are assisted by William H. Taylor, director, and the Lasky producing staff in giving the photoplay public a distinct and signal treat in August.
INTERNATIONALLY FAMOUS as one of the world’s most beautiful women, an artist of skill and power, a favorite of two continents and the leading capitals of the world, Lina Cavalieri, among the world’s most famous stars of the stage and screen, comes to the Paramount roster of popular players, to mark an event of the coming year.

Her great beauty, her great charm, the deep sympathetic appeal affected in her lustrous eyes, and her supple grace, place her among the greatest attractions of Paramount Pictures.
SESSUE HAYAKAWA has brought to the American motion picture the mysterious, the magic and mystic of Japan.

His wonderful acting in "The Cheat," "Allen Souls," "The Soul of Kura San," "The Bottle Imp," "The Jaguar's Claws," foreshadow brilliant and popular productions, the first of which is "Hashimura Togo," one of Wallace Irwin's stories of Saturday Evening Post fame and the series now running in Good Housekeeping. The addition of a popular story will add to Mr. Hayakawa's already great popularity and "drawing power."

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!
Wallace Reid is one of the most popular male stars on the screen today. He first attracted attention for his remarkable acting in "The Birth of a Nation." When a fitting "Jose" was desired for Geraldine Farrar's "Carmen," Mr. Reid was selected for the part. Again he appeared with Miss Farrar as Eric Trent in the great masterpiece, "Joan the Woman." His physical prowess quite as much as his perfection of feature, has made him steadily advance in popularity until without question he is one of the biggest stars appearing in Paramount Pictures.

Wallace Reid's first picture released under the "Selective Star Series" plan, is "The Hostage," a timely love story in which he portrays a prisoner of war.

Douglas Fairbanks’ best work to date is scheduled for release in August. Be sure you play all the Douglas Fairbanks Pictures. It pays big.
Wm. S. Hart, better known as "Bill" Hart, gives the impression of being a regular fellow. Bill doesn't wear white hairy chaps, his bandanna isn't perfectly tied, and his hair isn't combed. He looks as if he "just came out of the West"—a real stone-featured cowboy who rides a horse and shoots a gun as tho he knew how. Such is the description of the famous Westerner of the screen, given by a well-known writer, which fits perfectly the true character of this popular star.

THE ESCAPE FROM THE FERRY SLIP—ONE OF THE MOST SENSATIONAL SCENES EVER FILMED.
The press of the nation praises the Pathé serial

The Neglected Wife

The chorus of praise has been unanimous; here are a few excerpts, culled at random.

The Los Angeles Examiner says of "The Neglected Wife"—"When a husband is obviously bored—what is the best thing to do? This question a married woman has always regarded with fear and trembling. Since the establishment of property laws and the accompanying matrimonial laws wives have been accustomed to look with terror for the moment when that dreaded 'Other Woman' should appear. In the Pathé serial we see the timid, meek wife and the brisk, capable business woman each destined to play such an important role in the career of the husband.
Ruth Roland is altogether charming and likeable as 'The Other Woman'."

The Syracuse Herald says—"There is something doing every minute in the first three chapters of 'The Neglected Wife'."

The Houston Chronicle says—"Mabel Herbert Urner is perhaps one of the most far-reaching of modern American authors, her forte being 'life continuous' and her theory that the life of any man or woman is a new story every day. Pathe has spent not only money upon the film to secure a careful adherence to atmosphere and environment but has also given to the film that element of soreness which only a good picture can put across."

The Picture Play News of Rochester, N. Y. says—"Critics place 'The Neglected Wife' near the top of Pathé serials in point of genuine interest as well as artistic literary merit. In it there is a problem presented, discussed and solved that is threatening thousands of American homes. It is a live, vital question. Its treatment in the new serial will be closely followed by thousands of wives and husbands, who will feel secretly if not openly, that some phase of their own domestic difficulties may be solved."

Mr. C. B. Seelye, Business Manager,

25 West 45th St., New York.

My dear Mr. Seelye:

Confirming and supplementary to my wire of the 27th., relative to the tremendous success of the Official British War Pictures, "The Tanks at the Battle of the Ancre" it gives me great pleasure to advise that not only did this attraction open a week's engagement to the largest attendance in the history of the Circle but throughout the week the record business continued, each day larger than the one before until the final count showed the biggest week in history.

The weather was the hottest of the year yet we were unable to accommodate the crowds and hundreds were turned away to the box-offices daily. You are somewhat familiar with our presentation of this attraction. It was necessary that increasing of our expenses whilst the admission prices were increased and the presentation backed up by an enormous advertising campaign.

It is my firm conviction that no picture before has possessed such an overwhelming appeal to the people of America. The thunderous applause that greeted the armies of our Allies is indicative of the intense interest in these films and I know of nothing that has created such a sensation, so much discussion or such satisfaction as "The Tanks". Proper presentation and proper exploitation backed up by the overwhelming appeal of the pictures will assure every theatre in America the record business enjoyed by the Circle.

Sincerely yours,

S. Barret McCormick

Goldwyn Takes Chicago By Storm

THE biggest and most successful exhibitors in all America attended Goldwyn's first trade showing at the Chicago Exposition and at its close gave the greatest demonstration of approval ever witnessed in the industry. In addition, this is what they said:

MARCUS LOEW, New York:
"Goldwyn Pictures are remarkable productions that establish new standards in the industry."

ROBERT LIEBER, The Strand, Indianapolis:
"I never saw such wonderful productions. . . . I predict, too, that Madge Kennedy is America's next great screen favorite."

EDWARD A. ZORN, Temple Theatre, Toledo:
"Here is where I book all twenty-six of Goldwyn's first year's pictures. No producers have ever before set such high standards and achieved them."

JOHN H. KUNSKY, Detroit:
"No producer has ever made pictures that excel the Goldwyn quality. All of my theatres will play them."

J. W. & W. T. DUSENBURY, The Grand, Columbus, Ohio:
"Goldwyn has made the finest productions we have ever seen."

JACK GREENBAUM, Alhambra and Mall Theatres, Cleveland, Ohio:
"'Baby Mine' is the greatest comedy ever made. Goldwyn launches a new era in motion pictures."

A. H. BLANK, Des Moines:
"I have booked all Goldwyn releases for my theatres in Des Moines, Omaha and Davenport. They are the last word in picture-making."

WILLIAM FLYNN, 12th Street Theatre, Kansas City:
"My audiences will go wild over Goldwyn's productions and Stars. I have signed for them all."

J. C. SMUCK, Parkersburg, W. Va.:
"My congratulations to Goldwyn. . . . Madge Kennedy will become the greatest star of the screen."
Why They Have Faith In Goldwyn

EXHIBITORS themselves are largely responsible for the nation-wide feeling of faith and confidence in Goldwyn and in our productions. They tell us, and they have told other exhibitors, that they believe in Goldwyn:

Because Samuel Goldfish always has been identified with and produced clean, fine, superior pictures, and under this big new alliance he has the facilities to make better and finer pictures than ever before.

Because Edgar and Archibald Selwyn and Margaret Mayo have in quick succession produced some of the greatest and most successful plays in the history of the American theatre and bring to Goldwyn a knowledge of box office values that will benefit every exhibitor in the industry.

Because Goldwyn's authors represent the best names identified with big, money-making plays and novels on two continents, and because the very pick of all their works are owned and controlled by Goldwyn.

And also because every artistic facility that a producer can obtain has been enlisted into Goldwyn service for the making of Goldwyn Pictures.

When important exhibitors have said all of these things about us, what more could we wish to say about ourselves?

ANNOUNCES NEW FOX POLICY

For the guidance and information of Exhibitors of the United States, I present herewith our policy for next season, beginning Sunday, September 2nd.

STANDARD PICTURES

8 THEDA BARA SUPERPICTURES under a separate and independent contract on the open market.
8 WILLIAM FARNUM de luxe pictures under a separate and independent contract on the open market.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK—10 amazing reels of action, children, thrills, novelties. This picture will be booked on the open market.

THE HONOR SYSTEM—the greatest human story ever told on stage or screen. This picture can be booked on the open market.

12 FOX KIDDIES pictures. This series can be booked on the open market. Among the stories already produced that will be released in this series are Treasure Island, Babes in the Woods, Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp, The Brownies, Mikado, Pinafore, Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves.

NOTE: Trade shows will be held in every important Exchange center of the United States, showing STANDARD PICTURES before release dates. We will not book STANDARD PICTURES unless the Exhibitor has actually seen them on the screen. My confidence is supreme.

52 FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

Beginning Sunday, September 2nd, we will release every week, one Special Feature picture, from 5 to 6 reels. Each production based on a successful stage play or novel, headed by a star of box office drawing power, staged by a great director, and produced with skill and care, regardless of expense. Each a Special of the highest merit.

The stars are George Walsh, Virginia Pearson, Valeska Suratt, Gladys Brockwell, Dustin Farnum, June Caprice, Miriam Cooper and others.

COMEDY PICTURES

20 to 26 comedies, two reels each, during 1917-1918. We will not talk or advertise them for booking purposes. We will not book our comedies until they have been seen by you. Each comedy release will be produced by the Sunshine Comedy Company, under the supervision of Henry Pathe Lehrman, the master wizard of comedy making.

It is a human impossibility to guarantee more than 26 meritorious comedies during the next twelve months. Therefore we have limited our output to 26. We have ten of the greatest comedy pictures ever made on our shelves. We will show them to you. Our release date will be announced later.

RECAPITULATION

Fox Film Corporation will offer the Exhibitor during the coming season the following pictures:

36 Standard Pictures on the open market.
20 to 26 Comedies on open market.

Call at our nearest Exchange and make your arrangements Now. I can assure you that the Two and One Half Million Dollars that we have expended in finished productions are worthy of your earnest and immediate attention, and I advise you to call at our nearest Branch office and see the pictures screened at Trade Shows. I have personally witnessed the first six months’ productions and I believe they will insure the 1917-18 success of any Exhibitor who is fortunate enough to secure our contract.

A Rag Baby

Read This Review!

"Recounting my own experiences while viewing the fourth and fifth of the Selig-Hoyt comedies, I can vouch for their catching farce-comedy qualities. The fourth is 'A Rag Baby' and the fifth 'A Runaway Colt,' and they exercise a continuous tickling of one's risibilities. In 'A Rag Baby' the scenes in the drug store produce riotous mirth. The release date is July 9 through K. E. S. E. In 'A Runaway Colt' we have still more riotous fun. The ingenuity shown in the scene where Hank, innocently chopping wood, contrives to hoist his future father-in-law high in the air and then deposit him at the bottom of a deep well, will never fail to raise screams of laughter. There is a strong finish to this merry farce. The release date is July 23 through K. E. S. E."—James S. McQuade, in Moving Picture World.

The screen story shows how poison powders were used by Rasputin to push the young Czarevitch, the Czarina's favorite child, to the brink of the grave; how the mother's heart was tortured by Rasputin to maintain his mastery over the royal pair and how when in horror Iliodor finally realized Rasputin's villainy, he set about to unmask him and had to fly for his life.
Here's What Exhibitors Say About Triangle

"I am, and have been using your program for over a year, and never had any reason to be dissatisfied either with your service or otherwise, and you can rely on, that regardless of all the rumors I will remain loyal, as long as your service will remain as in the past."

"Permit us to thank you for the good service you have rendered in the past and if an exhibitor's opinion is worth anything to you, take our advice and keep on producing pictures such as you have in the past six months and your support from the exhibitors should be assured."

"I feel that I owe you a letter to let you know my appreciation of what TRIANGLE has meant to me in the past year. I have tried almost all the different programs and TRIANGLE is the only program or any class picture that has given satisfaction in all respects. I have not had one poor picture and I have run almost all of them. Furthermore, I have never received as good treatment and service from any exchange with whom I have done business as I have from your exchange in Philadelphia. I note in your letter that you do not make extravagant promises for the future of TRIANGLE. I like that. Just keep on producing as you have in the past and I feel that the exhibitors will make the 'noise' for you."

"You bet your life I want them—save me a place. I am going to take on Triangle features and Keystone comedies as I find that they bring home the bacon, and that is what I am looking for."

These are just a few extracts from the many enthusiastic letters that we are constantly receiving.

What Exhibitors Think of Keystones

"The Keystones are coming up strong. They are cleverly produced. Some well-known stars, pretty sets and beautiful girls. The stunts the Keystone people do are nothing short of marvelous."

"We have 'phone calls every day asking if we have a Keystone."

"Of course we know what Keystones are,
And that they lead the field by far,
We also know a well placed grin,

The Worst—and Best—Convention

The Chicago convention of 1917 will go down in history as the climax of exhibitor disorganization.

And because of its outrageous conduct by the forces in control and the inevitable bitterness and exasperation which followed, there will, in our opinion, be born anew and for the first time a National League of, by and for the exhibitors of America.

The riot has cleaned house—top and bottom.

We predict for 1918 an exhibitors' body founded upon a radically new basis, expressed and administered by a radically new constitution and by-laws, an organization so democratic that never again will it be steam-rollered by any man; an organization self-supporting, independent and conducted as efficiently as any reputable and successful business corporation.

No Fight with Ochs' Men

We have no controversy with any man who voted Ochs into another term.

Every man is entitled to his honest opinion; and unquestionably a large number of these men believed they were doing exactly the right thing.

We desire, however, to call the attention of these men and of all exhibitors to a few points.

First of all, we call your attention to the remarkable speech of acceptance of the re-elected president, printed in this issue.

Read it over, coolly, now that the heat of battle is gone. Draw your own conclusions.

Of the malicious, scandalous statements that Motion Picture News paid candidates' expenses we have but this to say: They are damnable lies—as damnable as silly.

Do you believe them? If you do—this is open to all—present your proofs, even your opinions, for publication in these columns.

What we wish to call to your notice is Ochs' statement, incorrectly reported by the official stenographer, but restated to us by many who heard his speech:

We agree with Mr. Ochs.

A Trade Paper Fight

The fight was a trade-paper fight—by one trade paper; the convention was a trade-paper convention—of one trade paper.

Trade paperism was injected into the League last year, right after Ochs' first election. The League has been branded with trade paperism ever since—right up to and including the sharp division in its members' ranks here in Chicago, which division was the result of last year's injection of trade paperism.

The outcome of the Chicago convention is the direct and inevitable result of trade paperism, the commercial alliance of the Exhibitors' League with a trade paper, not a house organ, not an organ owned completely by the League, but a commercial enterprise of a competitive nature, an enterprise in which considerable sums have been invested by individuals, and in which, therefore, and humanity, individual and commercial motives play the dominant part.

Ochs had to be re-elected.

THUS SPOKE THE LITTLE NAPOLEON—
AFTER THE BATTLE OF WATERLEE

"THEM BABIES'LL GIT THEIRS!"

For the sake of the League—for the sake of exhibitor organization.
If you believe this, then how do you reconcile the following situation:

The Scrap of Paper

EXHIBITOR ORGANIZATION appointed a joint committee, five men from each of the divided bodies—to arbitrate the Presidency.
This committee reported unanimously: That the interests of exhibitor organization could best be served by one organization; that to secure this one organization it was recommended that all present candidates withdraw and that a man be elected from the floor who could effect harmony and a united organization.
This report was unanimously approved by the Coliseum convention. Messrs. Varner, Herrington and Rembusch withdrew. Acting only upon this report and with faith in the sincere adoption by the entire convention the dividing delegates returned.
When the convention resumed Mr. Wells, of Virginia, put a straight question to Mr. Ochs:
"Do you intend to run for president?"
"I do," said Mr. Ochs. And he did.
The dividing delegates again, and finally withdrew.
What is your honest opinion of this? What was Ochs's motive? Was it in behalf of exhibitor organization, which means above all, united organization? Was this keeping faith with the committee's report, which report was ratified by the entire convention and which asked for one organization? If not, what was the motive that made a man fly straight in the face of unanimous sentiment, of harmony, of democracy, of exhibitor organization?

A Malicious Attack

Do you believe that Motion Picture News caused these delegates to withdraw under the above circumstances? Do you believe the silly and malicious statement that Motion Picture News brought three honest gentlemen, reputable citizens, tried and proven in their sincere and unselfish efforts in behalf of exhibitors and exhibitor organization, to Chicago?
An answer seems unnecessary.
But if by any chance you do believe this then you brand as cowards and knaves every delegate who withdrew from the convention hall.
You will say, perhaps, that the majority should rule and that you are therefore satisfied with Ochs's election.
Do you call that majority rule which overrides the wishes, in many instances the solid sentiment, of twenty-four States or more?

Majority Rule?

Do you call that majority rule which is made up of twenty-four delegates from a State which we understand has only 75 members instead of the required 700?
Do delegates appointed under such a system constitute majority rule—the kind you want for a league of exhibitors?

If this is majority rule then your constitution and by-laws are flagrantly and radically wrong. You can never rear an organization upon them.
Whoever called them sacred? Who made them?
You've got nothing but a basis which permits one man to name every one of his administrative committees and put your organization in his vest pocket.

Motion Picture News came to this convention just as we have already attended five—with the single purpose of the individual exhibitor, namely, looking for a national organization strong enough, with business efficiency enough, with financial sinews enough, and with democracy enough to bind together the State leagues and locals into a national organization which shall be active throughout the year, of business value to its members and able to represent the exhibitor in this country's or the industry's crises.
We have found such an organization in the American Exhibitors' Association, born out of the worst, but in the end the best, convention of exhibitors ever held.

Democracy First!

THIS new association starts with a new constitution and by-laws, formed to secure democracy and prevent autocracy.
It will have a business administration.
It will have a budget that will make it self-supporting, independent of hat-passing, and efficient throughout the year.
It will have hired executives capable of protecting and advancing its members' interests.
It will have no commercial alliance, nor any kind of an alliance, with any branch or enterprise of the trade.

Our Complete Support

To the new association, so long as it adheres to the above principles, Motion Picture News gladly and eagerly volunteers its undivided support. We will do everything an independent paper can do to advance the interests of the association.
We will not be an official organ. No such offer was made by us or tendered to us. We have a sane and simple policy in this respect: we believe that such an alliance is equally detrimental to an organization and a trade paper.
To all State leagues and locals, in the efficacy of which organizations we have always believed, we will give the unbiased support their unbiased activities deserve.
We believe that the American Exhibitors' Association sounds for the first time the keynote of effective, active, permanent exhibitor organization and that it will deliver such a national organization to the exhibitors of America.
A Classic Document—Worthy of Preservation

Stenographic report of the speech of acceptance of the Presidency of the M. P. E. L. A., delivered by Lee Ochs. In which, among other declarations—more or less—the Little Napoleon first issued his fateful decree, “Those babies will get theirs.”

Gentlemen:

This is nothing new—this is a joke—these bolting fellows, they mean nothing to our League at all. It is a cinch.

I will tell you what I am going to do—I am going to accept it? I will like to see anybody stop me. (Cries and cheers), and please you have seen, L. Ochs work hard, I have worked so hard that I am tired—my wife has fought with me 98 thousand times to stop it, and all I talked about when I get home is the League. I admit, not for my personal reasons, of my own, that I have worked hard, but I am going to work harder. (Cheers and applause.)

Do you know where?

I will tell you. I will give these States that bolted 60 days to come back into this League—if they don't I will bet thousands of dollars that I will have more exhibitors in those States in my League than they ever had. (Cheers and applause.)

They are not playing with a baby that cannot go out and trim any one in getting members for this League.

When I set out to do something I do it. This is nothing but a fight of exhibitors. This has been the dirtiest and rottenest fight of the Exhibitors and the Moving Picture News who had paid their Candidates. Please, I did not tell any member of this Convention that Varner collected his traveling expenses from three firms in New York—one a producer concern, one a distributing concern, and a trade paper concern.

What would you expect if the President of your League accepted money from Film Corporations? What would you think of that? Listen! Just give me a little time. If I don't trim that bunch, I am through. (Laughter and applause.)

* I want to say that two States have stuck in with just two members, Indiana with two and Michigan with one. Correction, I mean Oklahoma State and State of Michigan. As far as Oklahoma is concerned, that State is the last State, I was sure everything would go against me first I won't bring up the past, but if anybody has been with Oklahoma, but the President and Secretary, not that I am and always have been with Oklahoma and I always will be, as long as you are good boys.

Well, Listen. I just wish I was acting already. When it comes to exhibitors propositions I think I know those babies well. I want to say to you that the exhibitors that have been bully to me have certainly been loyal, but as loyal as they have been I will show my appreciation by displaying loyalty to them, and I want to say to you States that are new into this League, that I myself personally will do anything in the world for you to help build your organization and make it what it should be, and if I can't do it alone, you have got the Exhibitors Trade Review to do it for you. (Applause.)

But when I think of these trade papers . . . a baby eight months old we started on a shoe string—we got promises from the League for support financially and nothing wrong. In eight months we got a full grown man and the biggest one in the industry.

And don't forget, I predict this: before the year is over I am going to pull something else for you and believe me it is something good, and when I pull it, those babies that bolted will get theirs. Take it from me, all I want you to do is to give me a bunch of good officers and if I don't start things going soon, I am all in then.

I don't know how to begin to thank you but rest assured I will do the right thing for you, and I want to make a statement that next year I will not be candidate for President. I will not be because I don't think it is necessary. I am going to come to the next Convention wherever it is going to be and if I don't give you the biggest Convention that you ever thought of you can take me and dump me in the Charles River and say—fare thee well.

"Those Babies Will Get Theirs"—Ochs to New Association

American Exhibitors' Association, with Twenty-five States Represented, Off to Flying Start Almost Before the "Little Napoleon of the Steam-Roller" Concludes Characteristic Speech Accepting M. P. E. L. Presidency

"Those babies will get theirs," spoke Lee Ochs. Quickly bringing his speech of acceptance to a close, he wheeled the steamroller into line and jammed through the bargain-counter slate of officers who will serve with him in the M. P. E. L. A. during the coming year.

"Those babies will get theirs," muttered the little Napoleon as he reversed the steam-roller and completed Bargain Day by donating to Boston the next convention of the M. P. E. L. A.

"Those babies will get theirs," crowed Steam Roller Lee, as he backed the ponderous machine into a garage and meandered hotelward.

Meanwhile, "Those Babies," blissfully ignorant of their fate, had practically completed the details of the formation of the American Exhibitors' Association, a new national organization. "Those babies," represented twenty-five of the thirty-odd States on the floor at the opening of the M. P. E. L. A. Convention. All are actual owners or managers of motion picture theatres. With Jake Wells, the prominent Southern exhibitor as temporary president, steps were immediately taken to spread the organization throughout the country.

From the very moment that President Ochs, wielding a five-pound hung starter as a gavel, opened the seventh annual session of the M. P. E. L. A. on Monday afternoon, unrest, threats and dissatisfaction filled the air. From that moment also dated the beginning of the flare-up that ended with the disruption of the league less than thirty-six hours afterward. From that very instant also was it apparent that "gagging" and "steam roller" methods were to prevail, with sections of the constitution and by-laws were suspended at pleasure, minority reports ignored, the credentials committee and all others arbitrarily appointed by the man in the chair.

Steam-Roller on the Job Early

Little was accomplished at the first day's session. Most of the time was consumed in disputing the status of certain States said to have failed to pay their per capita tax. Tuesday's session started with the clouds of discontent growing thicker. Delegates complained of being refused the floor. Arguments came thick and fast; personalities were indulged in and the first sign of the flare-up came when President Ochs took it upon himself to appoint all the committees, among which were ten new ones that had received no discussion. Delegates who had travelled many miles to accomplish constructive work and get a fair deal began to mutter.

There were charges and accusations made that "steam-roller" tactics and "gag rule" methods were prevailing, followed by threats of bolting.

At this point Charles Pettijohn, of Indiana, took the floor and attempted to iron out the trouble. He called the attention of the chair to the fact that his followers were talking of leaving the convention. He asked for constructive work and emphasized the need of it at the time. He promised to support any candidate who might be elected. However, said Mr. Pettijohn, "if it comes about with 'gag rule' prevailing the Indiana candidates and myself will not support him."

The same arguments and tactics however continued until the close of the session a short time later.

Three Withdraw for Harmony's Sake

Just before adjournment came, Percy Wells, head of the North Carolina delegation, arose and announced that rather than go along with the methods prevailing it was decided by his delegation to withdraw H. B. Varner as one of the candidates for president. Charles Pettijohn, of Indiana, followed him a few seconds later by withdrawing the name of Frank Rembusch as a candidate, and John O'Donnell for Pennsylvania, withdrew Fred J. Herring as candidate. All expressed their hope that Mr. Ochs would follow the example to the end that petty politics would be smothered thereby and harmony and progress result.

Ochs answered neither way and when the convention was called to order Wednesday morning but half of the delegates were present. The dissenting ones stayed at the convention headquarters, the Morrison Hotel, and went into an indigination session, with the slogan of "fair play" and "down with the steam roller" prevailing. W. H. Willey, of Kansas, pointed to what he termed as "deplorable conditions" existing within the convention, and said that it was time to put a man in the chair of the National League who would support the organization and the exhibitors and not himself and individuals. Maurice Choyinski and H. B. Varner followed with denunciations of Ochs, pointing out and alleging that he had neglected the interests of the exhibitors and the organization in the past year. W. Linton, of New York, told the delegation that central New York State refused to belong to an Ochs organization. A proposition was then made and agreed upon that the dissenting faction should send a committee to the meeting of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in session that day at the Princess theatre, to explain the trouble.

Frank J. Rembusch of Indiana, together with Messrs. Mosher of Buffalo, Bernstein of Virginia, Wells of North Carolina, and others, appeared before the National Association, and Mr. Rembusch made the following address to them: "I speak," said he, "as one of the fathers of the league. I don't want to inject politics in her, but I must speak of certain events leading up to the division of delegates here. Our Exhibitors' League was formed upon the principle of exhibitor democracy. We find the convention being run by an autocratic machine. Five policemen are stationed at the doors. No exhibitors are admitted unless they are delegates. No one can speak unless he is in the favor of the chair. A former president and other men prominent in the league are refused the floor. Gag rule prevails. The whole meeting is geared up to elect a man president. One State (Illinois) is voting twenty-five delegates. That means seven hundred members. A telegram received, contains the information that the State has only seventy-five.

"No Man Must Be Bigger Than the Organization"

"We have decided that Ochs cannot be president. No man must be bigger than the organization, else organization will be killed. In the interests of harmony we have withdrawn our three candidates. We ask Ochs to withdraw. Then let a man be elected from the convention floor who will represent the undivided sentiment of the convention."

While this committee was appearing before the National Association, another committee had been named who went before the national convention at the Coliseum and quietly and with dignity told of the objections of the dissenting ones and asked that something be done to bring about a reunion of both factions on the convention floor and the proper completion of the work of the convention. On this committee was
Motion Picture News

Vol. 16. No. 5

Jake Wells of Virginia, Charles Pettijohn of Indiana, Percy Wells of North Carolina, W. J. Slimm of Ohio, and A. D. Morland of New York, were on the platform, and he delivered an impassioned plea for harmony, advocated a new method of organization working if necessary, and suggested that the National League appoint a committee of five to meet with the dissenting group at the Morrison Hotel and try to effect a reconciliation.

"We Don't Want That Cattle"

It was during this discussion that Dr. Charles Hosper, of New Jersey, nearly precipitated a riot, put fuel to the fire and even added recruits to the withdrawing faction. Those and after speech objecting to any attempt at reconciliation finished it by saying: "We don't have to bother with that sort of cattle." This brought Jake Wells to his feet in a thundering protest against the insult and he finished the length of the room and confronted Hosper. Blows might have been exchanged had not others separated them. An apology was then extended to Mr. Wells by President Ochs on behalf of the convention.

A committee was finally appointed to meet with the committee of the dissenting faction. They were: F. D. Eager of Nebraska, Robert Levy of Illinois, H. Brown of Idaho, E. M. Clarke of Mississippi, and Edward Fischer of Washington.

Brady Pleads; Irwin Donates $1,000

While this committee of ten were trying to bring about a compromise of the situation at the Morrison Hotel, members of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry appeared before the convention at the Coliseum. They were headed by William A. Brady, who speaking as a representative of President Wilson, made an appeal to the exhibitors for co-operation in using the power of the screen for patriotic propaganda from Washington, W. W. Woodruff of the Vitagraph Company, followed with a short talk, in which he referred to the excellent work of the exhibitor representation in the National Association. He finished by presenting a check for $1,000 to the Exhibitors' League of America, a testimonial from Vitagraph.

While this was taking place at the Coliseum, the "come together" committee on the Coliseum, finished their work, and the proposition was placed before the dissenting faction in session at the hotel. For each of their respective delegations the committee agreed on a proposition of five points. The chief one of these de- mands was that all candidates for the league presidency and the election of one man to follow from the convention floor. The five members of the committee of the Exhibitors' League expressed their approval of this dictum. With all these assurances the secessionists agreed to take their places on the main convention floor for the night session.

Shortly before midnight during this session, and following speeches made to the reunited delegates by William A. Brady, President Warren G. Harding and Commissioner Hoover, representatives of the Red Cross and others, the trouble began once again. It was announced that election of officers was in order. The clock had not been wound and with the trouble over the question of the third day of the convention began. Up until this time President Ochs had made no statement that he would follow the promise of his arbitration committee and retire. Suddenly, Jake Wells of Virginia, jumped to his feet and shouting so loud that no one could have failed to hear him, asked Ochs if he intended to be a candidate. The latter mumbled for an instant, recovered himself and answered, "I'll run, yes," "That's all," said Wells, and picking up his hat he started for the door with the representatives of twenty-two States following him.

Steam-Roller Well Oiled Now

They were gone in a few minutes. The convention floor that a minute before had been well filled was now filled with gaps of vacant seats and large empty spaces. The threatened and well planned division had been put. Everybody remaining had guaranteed their support to Ochs hours before. The result was that Ochs and his entire slate were elected for the coming year all within a few minutes and without a dissenting voice. The list of officers is: Lee Ochs, president; Joseph Hopp, Chicago, vice-president; William Isenberg, of Mississippi, second vice-president; H. M. Thomas, of Omaha, third vice-president; F. E. Washington, fourth vice-president; William Brandt, of New York, corresponding secretary; William Sweeney, of Chicago, financial secretary; Ernest Horstmann, of Massachusetts, treasurer.

Following this Mr. Ochs was called upon for a speech of acceptance. He followed with a "dignified" and brilliant (?) address that has been given more prominent position in another part of this issue.

New Association Quickly Formed

Immediately upon leaving the convention hall the dividing delegates went into session at the Morrison Hotel. Within a few hours plans had been made for the formation of a larger and organizing body. A special committee appointed worked all night preparing the plans for the newly launched body. Even before the progressives went to bed a name had already been adopted: The American Exhibitors' Association.

The "standpatters" of the National League saw and heard the following: At a meeting in the morning the American Exhibitors had plans placed before them by their committee for the organization of the new body of two basic plans. One, the zone system, was voted down and organization by State was adopted. The new association is to have as its officers a president, vice-president, board of directors and a general manager. This latter office is to be a highly salaried one and the incumbent will be elected by the board of directors. All of the directors will determine the salary. Membership in the association is limited to managers and owners of motion picture theatres only. The dues are to be $12 a year. Half of this amount is to go to the national body and the other half to the State organization. The selection of an organizer shall be in the hands of the general manager.

The committee also recommended the appointment of the following officers to serve temporarily: Jake Wells, of Virginia, president; Guy Wonders, of Maryland, vice-president; William Fait, Jr., of New York, treasurer, and Charles Pettijohn, of Indiana, general manager.

Representatives were afterward elected from each State to act as the committee on charter and incorporation. The incorporation of the new association will be made in Indiana.

When the new American Exhibitors' Association came together again on Friday, their last day's session, a constitution and by-laws were adopted. A modification was made in some of its sections. Another bit of action which showed the determination to make their new organization a permanent one (Continued on page 817)
Exposition Proves Successful Beyond All Expectation and Beautiful—Stars and Notables Present by Score—Supply Concerns Show Well and Attendance Estimated at 150,000—Booth Decorations Unique

The turning of the seventh annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitor's League of America at Chicago, last week, into a battle royal was expected by many. The highly successful and reported profitable exposition that was held in connection with the convention was, however, unexpected by the majority, because of the varied conditions that it was thought would militate against it. But a successful exposition it seemed to be in every day of its duration, and during the nine days of its existence nearly one hundred and fifty thousand people, it was estimated, packed the long aisles of the Coliseum, gazing and greeting their favorite screen stars, collecting souvenirs and getting a "close-up" of the men and things that go to make up the motion picture world.

While there was $21,000 less floor space taken than last year, expenses were $14,000 less. A net profit of $6,000 was estimated on the exposition.

Every day had its particular blare of brass bands, quota of famous stars, its crackerjack cabaret and dancing, and Chicago's population all the way from its gray haired ones to its spit curled kiddies, revelled in the privilege afforded them. While the exposition floor lacked a percentage of the booths and exhibits that filled it at last year's exposition, the class, the splendor and the elaborateness of this year's representation fully made up for it. All of the biggest producing companies, exchanges, supply houses, newspapers and trade journals were to be found represented on the floor.

Electrical Display Draws

Giving impression the precedence in enumerating what was to be seen would in all justice demand that one start with a mention of the Paramundum and Artcraft method of announcing their wares. Not a booth did they have, but, a huge buner-shaped electric sign, rippling the company's slogan and name through vari-colored incandescent bulbs and casting its glow upon large oil portraits of the large complement of stars that is theirs.

For painstaking elaborateness, beauty and originality of design, the Goldwyn booth, forming one of the junctions of the main aisle, probably would have taken the palm. Here, built to be used only the nine days of the exposition, was a booth of finished wood, plaster of paris designs and decorations, flower embellished, gold leafed and jammed like a villa. Presiding over it was F. M. Brockell, manager of the Chicago office, and during the week Samuel Goldfish, F. W. Warren and Lee Arms were often to be found there.

Jazz Band Metro Feature

Metro's booth, just across the aisle, was another of the villa type with its trellises, flower garnishing and fittings. The new Metro feature, "Wise to a Slanderer," was well plugged during the week with red, white and blue buttons handed out together with other souvenirs. A jazz band, with an acrobatic violinist, kept the crowds jammed in the vicinity most of the time. Cresson E. Smith was in charge.

Pathé, with a well furnished and bloom bedecked booth, was nearby. Tom North and C. W. Bunn were the hosts here during the week. When the fans were not drawn three deep around the booth gazing at the framed photos of the Pathé stars, they were there packing away the thousands of souvenirs given away during the week. These watches each contained several pictures of Pahee stars on their fronts and backs, and were eagerly sought by the fans.

The Fox booth was also gay with decorations, and an array of Fox favorites from Theda Bara to the Lee kids, Jack O'Toole, assisted by J. W. Lyons, G. Mitchell and E. P. Grohe were in charge.

The Mutual booth was another beauty spot. An electric slogan reading, "Big Stars Only" shone forth from the top.

Pictures on postcards of the Mutual stars and of the American studios at Santa Barbara were handed out in generous quantity to the fans. R. R. Nehls, Terry Ramsey, Ben Judell and Eugene Duffy were in charge.

Variety in Decorations

Another attractive booth nearby was that of the World Film Corporation. L. A. Rozelle, manager of the Chicago office, and C. W. Phillips, one of his assistants, did the host honors there, and a busy time they had. William A. Brady, himself in Chicago during the most of the week, was also to be seen often within the booth.

K-E-S-E, a home company, always had a bunch of its stars within their elaborate and well placed booth, greeting the hundreds of fans that surrounded it. W. H. Jenner was in charge, together with Ben Beadell and Chris Whedon.

Universal had a whole lot of booth space all its own. One part of it was given over to the Navy League, with a patriotic display and recruiting officers on the ground ready for business. In the other section of the booth there was a continuous demonstration, afternoon and evening, during every day of how movie folk "make up" to face the Cooper-Hewitts and the camera.

The Selznick Pictures were represented by an unusually attractive pergola booth. Harry Weiss was in charge and there was a generous display of Talmadge and Clara Kimball Young pictures.

The Frohman Amusement Company's booth was in charge of Sam Van Ronkel. The Sunshine Film Company's booth was a busy and pretentious one. K. M. Scoville, William Buckley and S. S. Strauss, together with members of the Sunshine Comedy Companies, kept the crowd entertained and informed. The Standard Film Company exploited their Art Drama wares in a cozy, radiant booth in the center of the hall.

N. A. M. P. I. Elects Directors at Chicago Convention

Meeting at Princess Theatre July 18 Called by William A. Brady—Officers Elected Number Chieflly Those on Old Board—Achievements of Year Recounted and New Campaign Arranged

THE first annual meeting of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was held at the Princess theatre, Chicago, on last Wednesday afternoon, July 18, William A. Brady, director general of the World Film Corporation presided. One hundred of the most important magistrates of the motion picture industry, representing all branches were in attendance.

Much interest was evidenced in the reports read by Mr. Brady, also Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary, who reviewed the activities and accomplishments of the Association since its inception in Chicago a year ago.

William L. Sherrill, of Frohman, presented the report of the transportation committee; Arthur S. Friend presented the report of the insurance committee and of the legal and legislative committee.

Secretary Theodore Mitchell presented the censorship report in the absence of D. W. Griffith.

The A. Association comprises seventy-three companies and many individuals in various branches. There are forty producers, eleven distributors, eighteen supply and equipment companies and four publication concerns on the roster.

It was voted to hold the meetings of the directors quarterly instead of monthly as hereetofore.

There was considerable discussion of ways and means to help the Government during the prosecution of the war in Europe. Twenty directors were elected, representing the following branch committees.

Industry Gives Its Fair Quota to Draft Army

Men of the Studios and Executive by Scores and Each Man Stands Offices Get the Numbered Capsule Ready to “Do His Bit” in France

SELECTIVE conscription will find the motion picture industry ready, as always, to “do its bit,” and to do it well and do it cheerfully. Scores of men prominent in the producing and distributing companies have been drawn early in the list and stand a good chance of being put into uniform and sent to face poison gas and fire bombs on the front “somewhere in France.”

To the credit of motion pictures be it said that in the entire list of those who will bear the burden of the black capsule there will not be one “slacker.”

In the studios, both in the East and out on the West Coast, the draft promises to work havoc. The screen actors as a rule are young, of excellent physique and would make ideal soldiers. Besides, one and all, they are thrilled with patriotism and anxious to go to do each his cheerful part for liberty and his country.

Just who will go is as yet not certain. Samuel B. Kramer, of Bluebird, was one of the first drawn. V. F. Freeman of Triangle, general manager of the distributing corporation, is another.

The blindfolded man got Ralph Ince’s number almost as soon as the drawing began at Washington. He is right ready to shoulder his rifle and put on a gas mask and get into the trenches. Wallace Reid

Here and There at the Exposition

The Hamilton Club deserves a vote of thanks for the hospitality they accorded film stars who attended the convention during the week.

When Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne arrived in town to celebrate Metro day at the Coliseum last Saturday, the Bushman-Bayne Club turned out two hundred strong to meet them. Headed by a band and with B and B and in the van, they marched from the Blackstone to the Coliseum.

Peter J. Schaefer gave the daily and trade press an enjoyable close-up of Norma Talmadge with a luncheon, at which she was hostess and they guests, at the Blackstone on Saturday.

Cahill-Igoe pulled their usual progressive stuff during the week when they kept two youngsters galloping about the Coliseum garbed as Cico-Toodles.

The Red Cross booth added twenty-five dollars to its funds when the pretty little, pink shaded, “whatta-may-call-it” donated by Mary Milnes Minter was sold.

No, Charlie Chaplin wasn’t there; neither was Mary Pickford, but there was plenty of star scintillation anyhow. There was Alice Brady, Violet Mersereau, Norma Talmadge, Bryant Washburn, Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Fanny Ward, Anita King, Hazel Daly, Mae Marsh, “Dimples” Walker, Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Sheldon Lewis, Doris Kenyon, Pearl White, Mary McAlister, Alice McChesney, Mae Murray, Rosemary Tieby, Robert Leonard, Nell Craig, Margaret Clayton, Josephine Hudleston, June Elvidge, Carlyle Blackwell, Madge Evans, Edith Storey, Viola Dana and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew.

George Kleine gave a dinner to the K-E-S-E Stars and members of the press at his home on Friday night, and it was one of the most delightful nights of the week.
Commissioners Force Washington Exchanges to Leave Town

Obnoxious Fire Rules Give Exchange No Chance to Do Business—Ararat Looking for an Office—Exchanges Either Must Have Fireproof Building, Fairer Restrictions, or Will Move to Baltimore

STUGGLING of a most vehement nature, the Commissioners of Washington, have come to light in Washington, where a lousy howl is issuing from the assembled throngs of all Washington exchange men. The Commissioners who dictate how the District of Columbia shall conduct itself have applied the straitjackets to Washington exchange men with the result that the exchange men will have to begin looking for new offices before January 1.

The Commissioners have reached a conclusion, and they are sticking fast. They have drawn up a set of rules so rigid that nothing but the powder room on board a battleship could ever live up to them.

The first inkling that trouble was brewing came in two reports, one from Washington, the other from Baltimore, that unless the critical situation is straightened out in a hurry, all the exchanges in Washington will pack up and move to Baltimore before the first of the year.

This decision was reached during a meeting of the Merchants Association of Washington on July 18. J. H. Butner of the Triangle Exchange, who is president of the organization, said that the removal of exchanges to Baltimore would take place as soon as possible.

The managers unanimously adopted a resolution that the matter should be referred to the main offices of each company, together with a copy of the regulations, with the recommendation that the managers be given authority to transfer at the earliest possible date their respective exchanges to the City of Baltimore.

New York Aroused

Many of the New York offices were not aware of the trouble at Washington. The New York office made inquiries and reported that no news of the trouble had come in so far.

Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, said that the Artcraft and Paramount exchange had been combined in Washington and that they had been forced to leave one office and had been unable to find a suitable new place that would meet the Commissioners’ pleasure.

George M. Mann, general representative of Triangle, has been spending much of his time in Washington, trying to straighten the affair out. He was indignant at the ridiculous behavior of the Commissioners.

"These men," he told Motion Picture News, "have simply collected the most drastic rules from all state regulations and incorporated them into the most unfair, unjust set of fire laws that were ever assembled. We are thinking seriously of moving to Baltimore. In fact, there is nothing to operate our business there quite as well as Washington."

"The Commissioners evidently care nothing about the business future of Washington. They fail to realize that if the exchanges move up and move to Baltimore, hundreds of persons will lose profitable employment; banks will lose nearly two millions in deposits yearly; business houses will lose the trade of good customers."

No Smoking

Smoking, or the use of matches, is absolutely prohibited in any room containing film or in use for the storage of film, and at least two signs reading "No Smoking" shall be posted in each room.

For cases of emergency each end of film building shall have two fire escapes. The fire escapes shall be provided with a provision to allow the maximum number of people to escape in case of fire. The fire escapes and stairways shall be automatic closing fire doors and kept unopened at all times when people are occupying any part of the building. Each door shall be provided signs marked, "To exit." It is states that not less than three inches high.

The carrying or transportation through the streets or in public conveyances of film may be permitted only when such film is in a tightly closed metal box lined with fibre, leather or other non-combustible material, properly reinforced at the joints, and with corners fastened with metal, and each reci packed separately. Not more than twelve reels may be carried or transported, and neither the possessor nor the persons in charge of the regulations, of course, do not apply to films in the possession of express companies or railroads upon the premises used by the interstate commerce commission.

The installation of private exhibition rooms, accommodating not more than 25 persons, will be permitted for the purpose of sale, exchange or rental of films, in a building where such films are handled, handled, or manufactured, provided the room is fire-proof constructed and equipped with a fire-proof booth.

Beginning on the day of the violation of any of these regulations or refusing, failing or neglecting to comply with the same, such person, or persons having charge of the same, shall be subject to a fine not less than $5 nor more than $200 for each offense, and, in the event of violation of the regulations, the permit of the offending person, firm or corporation may be revoked.

American Exhibitors’ Association Formed

Exhibitors Rally to New Flag

The newly named general manager of the association, Charles E. Pierson, stated Sunday that during the night previous he had received telegrams from four members representing as many States who had remained in session with the Exhibitor’s League that during the quiet and thoughtful fullness of their trip home they had decided to align themselves with the new organization and were persuading their fellow delegates to do likewise.

The M. P. E. L. A. finished up its convention with an executive session. One of the last official acts of that convention was the naming of David G. Rodgers, of Minneapolis, as national organizer. Rodgers, up until the second day of the convention, was a self-appointed candidate for the presidency of the league.

The final touch was put to the turbulent week on Saturday night, with a ball held in the Hotel Morrison ballroom. It was mostly attended by the public at large, with few from each faction having returned home during the day.

Pennsylvania Censorship Broom Sweeps Clean

Although announcing a liberal policy as his method of censorship, Frank R. Shattuck, of Philadelphia, newly appointed by Governor Brumbaugh as chairman of the State Board of Censors, swatted the very first film that came before him when he entered on his duties.

The "Burning Question" was the condemned picture.

In banning it, Mr. Shattuck expressed his opinion that White Slave pictures were the new Rule 27 which prohibits the reading or reciting or showing in any way deleted titles or action is approved by him. Many picture men think Rule 27 cannot be upheld by law.

Washington Manager Fights Vandal Operators

Manager Milliman of the Washington, D. C., Universal Exchange, registers a complaint against the stealing of titles, changing location of titles, or cutting them to a length not readable. He states:

"There is no excuse for such vandalism, and I hope everybody will trace down the operators who do it. The fault lies with the operator. I want all exhibitors to help me in this matter and in this way we can weed out the careless or unprincipled operator.

He is a menace to his associates, to the public, and all connected with the picture industry. We don't want such men.

The World exchanges have adopted a system of merit points for operators, based on reporting the condition of film when received by the operator, which promises to meet the complaint of Manager Milliman.

"The Lesson," with Constance Talmadge, at Broadway

Constance Talmadge will make her formal bow as a moving picture star in "The Lesson," which will be at the Broadway immediately following the run of "The Lone Wolf." It is the first play she has completed since joining Selznick.

Charles Gilby, in his adaptation of Virginia Terhune Van de Water's story, has a play that to a great extent is a comedy, and yet a drama, in that it depicts the marriage a young girl made to escape the dullness of a village.

The Selznick announcement says the play has been given a private view and that all the high expectations concerning this young star have been realized. It was then decided to put it on at the Broadway.

This Mr. Smith Is After Free Admission Tickets

Exhibitors in Georgia towns write in, stating that a man giving his name as C. B. Smith, is getting into motion picture theatres by saying he represents the Motion Picture News. This is published as notice that the Motion Picture News has no one of the name or of the description mentioned, in its employ.
How Fox, the Exhibitor, Decided Upon "Standard Pictures"

Expenditure of $2,500,000 Produces Results so Satisfactory to Producer That He Decides to Sell Them on Open Booking Plan—Discusses Features Already on Shelf in Interview

AFTER having spent more than two million dollars in accumulating a large number of feature pictures of every description, William A. Fox is so satisfied with the results that he has organized a company known as Standard Pictures, through which the features will be released on the open booking plan.

Some of the films now reposing on the Fox shelves which will be released some time in September are "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Babes in the Woods," "Treasure Island," "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," "Cleopatra" (and other Bara pictures), several William Farnum Westerns and others.

Discussing the development of the idea which led to his conclusion to organize Standard Pictures, Mr. Fox said:

"I can assure you that my greatest ambition has always been to make better pictures than any one else, and that I have experimented patiently for several years. I knew that the pictures that we and other producers made at first could be improved. I began to take a deeper personal interest in the scenarios and to rewrite some of them. I looked around for the best directors, and as I found them I encouraged them—gave them carte blanche in their productions—when I saw that they were on the right track.

"Being an exhibitor myself, I had great opportunities for watching the public and its desires, and little by little I saw our films growing into better stories, better photography, and more perfect production.

"Jack and the Beanstalk" started out to be a three-reel film, just for children, to fill the need then apparent for something to entertain the little folks—something that would not worry their little brains to follow—something they were familiar with.

"When we got started on the picture, with those thirteen hundred wonderful children, and saw them enter into the spirit of it earnestly, we realized that we had struck a big idea, and I gave the Franklin Brothers full authority to go as far as they liked.

"We spent more than $500,000 on the first experiment. The original filming ran into about seventeen reels—we will show it in ten reels. We put this picture away and looked at it ourselves hundreds of times—wrote and rewrote each sitting, and we came to realize that these pictures were not only for children, but even more for grown-ups.

"Immediately we started 'Babes in the Woods,' and then 'Treasure Island,' and 'Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.' With these in our pocket, we knew there was no end to what we could do.

"Theda Bara in the meantime had advanced to the very top of artistic achievement and of trade popularity; and I decided that we would give her the very best we had in us. She posed in a version of 'Cleopatra' which looked so good that we decided to lay this picture on our shelf also, to save temporarily for our own private enjoyment.

"Then I began to think hard. We had three more big subjects for Theda Bara, so we cast everything to the winds and turned her loose, with the result that we have piled up in our private storeroom a group of pictures better than I had ever seen anybody make before.

"William Farnum, to whom I have frequently expressed my profound admiration for his art and his manliness, so that it is no secret that I consider him the greatest living motion picture actor, was in the meantime recovering from an illness, and he looked so fit and wonderful that he was permitted to outdo himself in four of the biggest, red-blooded, thrilling and wonderful pictures that any man has ever made. We made some innovations in these pictures, too—one in particular.

"I have come to the conclusion that our two and a half million dollars have been better expended than I ever used the same amount of money before, and I have now announced 'Standard Features' for open booking, to include the pictures already mentioned, 'The Honor System' and the Fox-Kiddie stories, which will in the year amount to twelve of the children's pictures that cannot be resisted by grown-ups.

"Then, when I thought we were ready for a rest, we gave a sudden thought to our little kiddies. Jane and Katherine Lee. We started them in a play called 'Two Little Imps' last work.

"So now Jane and Katherine Lee are Fox kiddies, and are named among the Standard Pictures.

"We have seen these pictures ourselves so often, and we are so sure that they are better pictures than any one else has yet made, that we have decided not to sell them to any manager who has not already seen them, and this will be our policy. We have employed special representatives to give trade showings in all the important cities of the United States and Canada. The releases will begin in September, so that there is plenty of time for the men from Missouri and elsewhere 'to be shown.'

"While Standard Pictures occupied a great deal of our attention in the last eight months, we were not neglectful of our fifty-two feature releases for the next year. Dustin Farnum, who has not been heard of in the past ten months, has made for us four pictures that vary in style from the wild Southwest to the thrilling Northwest, and these will be seen among our fifty-two features. There are some new ones for George Walsh, Gladys Brockwell, Miriam Cooper, Virginia Pearson, June Caprice, Valeska Suratt, and others.

"While we were experimenting on Standard Pictures in California, I discovered that Henry Lehrman had been experimenting also. He showed me a comedy on a new idea that took me off my feet. So I put that away and told him to go ahead on some more. This one was too good to be true. When I got back to New York another one followed, and then another, until we have ten of them on hand that have never been seen except by our branch managers at the convention. At the same time some remarkable accounts followed the films from the Coast, one of them $32,000, another for $28,000, and so on. I wired Lehrman to keep on going, and not to stop at anything. I wanted fifty more of them. He took it seriously, and answered that it would be beyond human possibility to make more than sixteen more this year.

"So I am only announcing twenty-six for 1917—18, and I won't sell one of them until the exhibitor has seen it.'

Sheriff Makes Movie Man Kiss Flag Before Screen

Sheriff John Woofter heard that George Kanuwitz, manager of a local theatre at Sapulpa, Okla., would not allow American flag to his theatre. He then got several members of visiting companies to sing patriotic songs on Saturday night while a moving picture was being shown.

The stage was suddenly lighted by a spotlight which revealed Sheriff Woofter, an American flag in his hand. A crowd of one thousand persons saw the sheriff back on Kanuwitz to the stage, where he compelled the theatre owner to kiss the flag, amidst great applause from the audience.
Canadian Border Town Picture Houses Boom

People Do Not Cross Line to United States to Go to the Movies for a Passport Rule and Eight-Dollar Head Tax Keep Them at Home

W. A. BACH, who is in charge of service departments for Universal, has just returned from Canada, where he stumbled upon a motion picture anomaly. He says, as a rule, conscription has had an adverse effect upon the business of the moving picture houses, but that in certain border towns he found the exhibitors all smiles.

"It seemed strange enough when a border town exhibitor came in to find him delighted with wartime business. "It's better than ever—we're doing whirlwind business," these particular men would say. Come to find out the truth, they are doing a big business—for a singular reason.

Among the expedients adopted by Canada in connection with conscription are regulations making it difficult to cross into the United States. No doubt this is done to make it hard to evade the draft. Men cannot go over the bridge at Niagara Falls, for instance, without a passport, and women must pay an $8 head tax. This head tax, as I understand it, is really only a deposit with the government. If the woman returns to the Canadian side in sixty days she gets the money back.

"Picture houses in Canadian border towns heretofore have been at a disadvantage compared with the movie establishments across on the American side. As a rule the American theatres get the releases weeks in advance of the Canadian houses. So formerly the people crossed over to the United States whenever they went to a picture-show.

But now the head tax and the passport rule keep them at home, and the picture theatres in Canadian border towns get the benefit. They all have the S. R. O. sign displayed whenever they get a good show nowadays.

"I heard of this boom business at Niagara Falls, Ont., Welland, Windsor, Walkerville, Kingston and Prescott, and I suppose it is true, too, of plenty of other towns not as large as these."

Milwaukee House to Bar "Four-Minute Men"

MANAGERS of the Alhambra, Butterfly and Merrill theatres, downtown houses in Milwaukee, Wis., have refused to allow the "Four-Minute Men" to use their platforms. They have made formal protest against speech-making to the audience in motion picture houses.

The three managers base their refusal on the fact that the audience pays at the door to see pictures—not to be talked to. And further, that the carrying of Government propaganda to the public by word of mouth is not the best effective way, the showing of trailers being much better.

This has temporarily halted the "Four-Minute Men" campaign in Milwaukee, where it had been planned by the Government to put the need of food conservation before the people in this way. Mr. Hoo-ver, food administrator, had furnished the speakers with an array of interesting facts on the subject.

Mr. Landau, manager of the Butterfly theatre, said:

"By allowing speakers in my theatre I am violating one of the basic principals of my theatre. Mine is a theatre of the silent drama, and I believe talking is totally out of place in such a house. Then, too, the audience is not in the proper frame of mind to be receptive of a speech.

"If the Government will have a series of trailers made up and sent out to all the theatres I believe that they will bring far better results, and with a great deal less effort than the speakers are now doing. The place for the "Four-Minute Men" is in the vaudeville and legitimate houses."

Broadway Premiere of Fox Feature on July 30

"Jack and the Beanstalk," Heralded Fox "Kiddie Feature," to Be at Globe Theatre—Lee Children Will In Future be in Series

The first public showing of "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be at the Globe theatre, Monday evening, July 30th. This is the much-heralded William Fox photo-fantasy, featuring the "Fox Kiddie Pictures." It is a ten-reel special and will be released as a "Standard Picture" on August 20th. There will be two showings a day, afternoon and evening, excepting Sundays and holidays, when it will be continuous from one o'clock. The matinee prices will be 25 cents to $0.50; evening 25 cents to $1. All seats will be reserved.

In this connection is an interesting announcement from the Fox general offices that hereafter the Lee Kids—Jane and Katherine—will be featured with the "Fox Kiddies Pictures." The Fox "Baby Grands" have made a success in "Two Little Imps," their latest picture, which fact has prompted Mr. Fox to make this decision. With little Francis Carpenter, of giant-slaying fame, and wee little five-year old Virginia Lee Corbin, the Princess of "Jack and the Beanstalk," there will be a quartet in Fox kiddom that will be difficult to beat.

The story of "Jack and the Beanstalk" will lend itself to pictures. Mr. Fox has given the age-old story a modern introduction, which permits of elaborate scenic settings. Over 1,300 little toots helpso make the picture, and there is an enormous giant—Jim Tarver—a perfect whale of a man, who seemed born just to fill the part of the giant in this picture-fantasy and he fills the bill remarkably well. Edward A. McManus, New Paramount Serial Director

McManus with Paramount as Serial Manager

Edward A. McManus, well known in newspaper and film circles, has left an executive position with the International Film Service and joined Paramount as manager of that company's serial department.

For the first time in its history, Paramount is to distribute a big serial in sixteen episodes and thirty-two parts, two a week. The title and players in it have not yet been made public. Mr. McManus's first work will be in connection with this serial.

Edward A. McManus is considered the originator of the moving picture serial running in novelized form in newspapers. His first venture in this line was a picture produced simultaneously in hundreds of moving picture houses on the day the counter-part of those particular episodes of the picture appeared in the daily newspapers throughout the country.

Secretary of Fairbanks Co. on Western Visit

Dennis F. O'Brien, attorney for Douglas Fairbanks, and also secretary of the latter's producing company, arrived in Los Angeles last week after a tour of the country, visiting Artcraft exchanges in behalf of his client. He said:

"Mr. Fairbanks is one of filmdom's greatest commercial assets, principally because his plays are clean, instructive and do not exploit or endeavor to solve sex problems or treat of sensationalism. Consequently the better classes of patrons are his best boosters."

David Smith to Direct Vitagraph Comedies

David Smith will again take over the directorial reins at the Greater Vitagraph Studio, in Hollywood, Calif. He will substitute for Director William Wolbert, making a comedy picture, while Mr. Wolbert and his feature company are on vacation the next two weeks.
Vitagraph Adds Directors and Speeds Up Production

Albert E. Smith, President, Says "Big V" Approaches a New Era Unequaled in the History of the Company—Promises a Better Program, Literary Excellence, and a "New Trick" in Process

VITAGRAPH has added three new directors to its staff and entered upon a new era of production which its president, Albert E. Smith, predicts will be "on a scale never equaled in the history of the company."

J. Stuart Blackton has retired from all connection with Vitagraph affairs, but this, Mr. Smith adds, will have no effect upon the business or product of the company.

"The best wishes of the whole Vitagraph organization follow Mr. Blackton in his new experiment," Mr. Smith said, with cordiality of tone.

The three new directors are Chester Withey, Ashley Miller and Archer McMackin. Withey was with David W. Griffith in producing Film Arts features, and he handled Mae Marsh and Bobby Harron in many pictures. He directed Sir Herbert Tree in "The Old Folks at Home."

Ashley Miller brings to Vitagraph the results of years of experience with Pathé, Edison and Famous Players-Lasky. He had stage experience with Walker White- side, Otis Skinner and Henrietta Crossman.

Archie McMackin directed Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in their pictures, and he has himself written or produced, it is said, not less than three hundred photo plays.

The strong directorial trio is in addition to eleven directors already making Vitagraph pictures. They are W. P. S. Earle, Perry N. Vekroff, Thomas Mills, Martin Justice, Wesley Ruggles, Paul Scardon, William Wolbert, David Smith, William Duncan, Lawrence Semon and Charles H. Sequier.

These men have worked for the most part, Vitagraph says, under the personal supervision of President Smith, who has always been in charge of a great part of the production.

While for twenty years the artistic end of the business has been jointly in the hands of Messrs. Smith and Blackton, Vitagraph now states that during the last two years Commodore Blackton devoted himself almost entirely to his two features—"The Battle Cry of Peace" and "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation."

It is now explained that while Commodore Blackton was overseeing these big war spectacles, which were months in the making, he practically gave all of his time to them. Upon Mr. Smith devolved oversight of the other directors, turning out most of the Vitagraph product, the weekly Blue Ribbon features, the "Big V" comedies, serials, Bobby Connelly pictures and special features.

Vitagraph will now have twelve companies in active production. Indeed the amount of production under way is declared to be large enough to tax the capacity of the Brooklyn plant, enlarged to accommodate twenty companies at once. Here are some of the productions under way:

In the Hollywood Studios are other companies. Mary Anderson and Alfred Vosburgh are working on Blue Ribbon pictures under the direction of William Wolbert. William Duncan and Carol Halloway are creating—and have just completed—"The Fighting Trail" episodes.

Much is expected of this Duncan-Holloway serial. Vitagraph says ninety-five per cent of its scenes are outdoors in a mountain country and its two stars go through any number of perils.

President Smith announces that hereafter the Vitagraph weekly program will include: One five-reel Blue Ribbon feature, one episode of "The Fighting Trail" (two reels), one Bobby Connelly (one reel), five "Big V" comedy (one reel), and two Favorite Film features, comedy and drama, which will make a grand total of three thousand feet weekly.

In talking of the prospects of Vitagraph, Mr. Smith says, "As the inventor of the setting device, the deviser of stop motion photography, the concealer of the juggernaut and the wreck pictures, and the first producer of magic pictures, I felt, while laid up in California recently, that I must show the world I still had a trick or two up my sleeve. So watch out, Vitagraph is going to spring a new one soon."

The company, Mr. Smith says, will continue its policy of making in addition to its program four specials yearly. It is now expected that one could be as successful as "Within the Law," full details of which will be announced in due course.

Plays Costing $15,000,000 in Mutual List

Company Issues First Quarterly Feature Film Productions Since Catalogue Giving Particulars of Its Early Days in Filmdom

The feature film productions listed in the quarterly catalogue just issued by the Mutual Film Corporation, the company says, represent a total investment slightly in excess of fifteen millions of dollars. It is the first such catalogue.

It is a compact twenty-four page volume illustrated with pictures of all the Mutual's stars, beginning with the earliest releases and running from the early W. S. Hart and Mae Marsh pictures down to the Mary Miles Minter pictures to be released two months hence, and the coming releases of Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures.

A survey of the Mutual catalogue brings before the reader a surprising array of stars whose pictures are available at the Mutual's exchanges. There is Robert Harron, Bessie Barriscale, Louise Gaum, "Fatty Arbuckle" and many early Mutual luminaries. Coming down to date we find Marjorie Rambeau, Nance O'Neill, Ann Margret, Julia Sanderson, William Rus- sell, Margarita Fischer, Gail Kane and others of the current Mutual releases.

The catalogue is a part of the elaborate system of special service to the exhibitor instituted in the Mutual Film Corporation by President John R. Freuler, and he is confident such a course will be productive of much good to all their patrons.

"We will issue a new edition of the catalogue every quarter," said Denis J. Stilli- van, of the Mutual's executive staff. "We will constantly have available every picture listed, and the list will grow to take in everything among the added productions. Knowing in the motion picture business point to the growing importance of just the sort of service that this catalogue presents."

The Mutual's catalogue will be sent free to any motion picture exhibitor on application to his closest Mutual exchange, the company says.
FRANK WOODS IN CHARGE OF F. P.-LASKY PRODUCTION

Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, who is in active charge of the producing activities of the concern, announced last week through the New York Paramount offices that Frank E. Woods has been engaged as general manager of the productions of the Lasky Company under Director General Cecil De Mille.

Mr. Woods is the author of the original scenario of "The Birth of a Nation," and was formerly general manager for D. W. Griffith and supervisor of productions of Fine Arts Studios.

"Mr. Woods," says Mr. Lasky, "will have complete charge of the story from the time it is passed from the reader until it is ready to be released on the Paramount program. He will work directly with the writers and directors. This relieves some of the burden from the shoulders of Milton E. Hoffman, who still retains the position of studio general manager, and it does not affect the department of Fred Kiley as production business manager."

THOMAS J. HAMLIN, TRADE EDITOR, HAS BOOKING PLAN

Thomas J. Hamlin, who established a theatrical trade journal, Amusements, in Minneapolis in 1914, has retired to promote his own booking plan for mid-Northwest motion picture exhibitors. T. E. Mortensen, who has been with Hamlin from the start, will continue the paper.

Under the Hamlin plan, it is stated, the exhibitor actually has the only say as to what film shall play his house and what price he shall pay. Apparently it somewhat resembles the Stanley Mabshaun plan applied to Philadelphia, which grew from a circuit of 5 to 100 theatres.

Mr. Hamlin, in his own announcement, says that his plan is not the Mabshaun plan, although from the description it is quite like it.

PHILIP A. FOWLER ADDED TO VITAGRAPH PUBLICITY

Philip A. Fowler, who has resigned as make-up editor of the New York Evening Sun, has been added to the publicity staff of Vitagraph V-L-S-E. He has worked on the Philadelphia Public Ledger, the New York World, American and Press, and the Hearst papers in various cities.

The appointment is in harmony with the expressed intention of Mr. Stronge, publicity director, to appoint only seasoned newspaper men who know what newspapers want and can get away from extravagant adjectives and "phony fakes."

NEW IOWA LEAGUE TO HAVE PICTURE EXHIBITORS' MAGAZINE

The recently formed Iowa Motion Picture Industrial League, the outgrowth of the Convention of Exhibitors and Exchange men, held in June at Des Moines, Iowa, will publish a magazine called the Iowa Motion Picture Industrial Association magazine. J. J. Clark, of Bedford, Iowa, will act as publisher.
Nothing Can Interfere with Progress of Film Industry

Progress Bound to Continue—Careless Individuals in Business Can Only Retard Onward Trend—Review of General Doings of the Year—Praise for Work of Exhibitors’ Body

By WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER

WITH the 1917 convention behind, elections over, and the problems generally thrashed out, one looks not only forward to the coming year, but backward on the events that have transpired during the past twelve months.

Much has happened during the motion picture year dating from the 1916 convenion to the meeting in progress last week—also, much has failed to happen.

The trade press has chronicled actual and prospective events, some of which were important if true, and others unimportant even though true. New companies have come and gone—old companies have been heralded as going—some of them have gone, and there have been a number of radical departures which have signally changed the aspect of the motion picture map. But the industry has not materially suffered by what has happened, and its potential power and its ability to go and grow despite hampering influences exist today, as it did a year ago, and are ready for another year.

The “business as usual” crowd argue with the “times are bad” wailers, while the fellow who works while the talk is making his place in the industry more secure.

My confidence in the future of the motion picture industry is supreme, and I don’t believe that there is a man in or out of the field, a clique or a group of cliques, capable of seriously interfering with the legitimate and inevitable progress.

But there are men in our ranks who very carelessly or unwittingly have done things and said things, or failed to do things and failed to say things, which action, or lack of action, reflected discredit and tended to retard the industry. These men should be caught up and made to see the error of their ways.

Our year has been made notable by the activities of certain trade organizations, namely, the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, the F. I. L. M. Clubs, the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, and others built along worthy lines.

It is my personal opinion that the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has never received sufficient credit for the splendid work they did at Washington during the recent tax crisis, and I am quite sure that very few of us realize what this organization has accomplished along the line of proper and fair legislation in states wherein enlightened lawmakers are new growing in the dark toward a situation which, to say the least, would have caused considerable trouble and unwarranted expense if permitted to develop inadvertently. This association has been helpful to us all and has the power to do—whether the industry is good, What have you done to show your material appreciation of this valuable support?

It was my privilege to be one of the charter members of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club, which I believe enjoys the distinction of fathering this organization among film exchange managers throughout the country. I happen to know that these F. I. L. M. conferences have resulted in interchange of ideas helpful to all members, but I also know that more success would have been obtained had every member done his bit. You don’t have to dodge registration to be a slacker!

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers is banded together for the good of the entire industry. Their plan to standardize the manufacturing business in this field should be of decided importance and interest to every member of the industry. These men working in our cause are gathered here this week, and while the records of their meeting may not make spectacular reading, they will be representative of hard, thoughtful work and endeavor to secure things worth while. It will pay you to know more about the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

How many of us know about these organizations and what they stand for? It isn’t sufficient to stand on the side lines and say, “Good boys—go to it.” It isn’t sufficient to merely join and become a passive member for the sake of the little trade paper advertising. If these organizations are worthy of recognition and life, they are worth supporting, and if they are unworthy, they are unnecessary. You believe in organization, don’t you? If so, get into the game and go to it and do your bit toward making the organization as great a power in the film world as it should be.

Richard A. Rowland Metro, States His Policy

SOUNDS as His Slogan, “At a Price the Exhibitor Can Afford to Pay”—Poor “Stars” Without Drawing Power, to Be Let Down Easy—and No Delay

RICHARD A. ROWLAND, president of Metro Pictures Corporation, in stating the large purposes of the organization, states its slogan will be “At a price the exhibitor can afford to pay.” Big stars with acknowledged box-office drawing power will be presented in each Metro re-released, he promises. Mr. Rowland says:

“Metro begins its new picture activities with the week of August 27. It is perfectly evident to us, as picture men, that no system, plan or schedule which requires the exhibitor to pay prices that do not permit him to make a profit for himself can long survive in the motion picture business. We have, therefore, decided that no contract which does not permit the exhibitor to make money is of any lasting value to Metro, and we go on record as against any system which does not include the ‘live and let live’ idea.

“Metro’s new plans are made in response to the demands of the exhibitors themselves. We have received in the last three months many thousands of communications, many of these voluntary, many of them in reply to requests for information regarding the drawing power of stars, regarding the type of attractions desired and the prime necessities for box-office attractions.

“Acting on our own judgment as the result of our successful experience in the picture business plus the expressed business judgment of the exhibitors, Metro has raised its standard of production to a point where its regular productions now equal its best productions of a year ago. Our belief is that the box-office star in big, satisfying productions, made at a minimum of cost and marketed with efficiency, combine to form 100 per cent box-office attractions. We, therefore, are confining ourselves to those stars of proved box-office value in the highest type of picture productions. It is true that productions of this kind cost more than the ordinary kind of pictures, but Metro is not going to use the star series plan as an excuse for charging exorbitant prices.

“Prices will be fixed in accord with the drawing power of a given star in any territory. The star of proved box-office value is, in our opinion, the best information for the exhibitor, and our star list reflects absolutely the wants of the exhibitor. We are in business to give the exhibitor that which will make him money because such a plan is nothing more and nothing less than business sense.

“All we ask of the exhibitors is to compare the last six months with the schedule of the coming six months, and see whether the stars who are to play at his theatre will make him more money or less money than before.

“We are setting out to sell a real box-office article with which the exhibitor can get more money and at the same time keep the price from becoming exorbitant. We are going farther. We are willing to guarantee a box-office drawing article at a price the exhibitor can make more money than he has made before.

“Out of our series the exhibitor can pick fifty-two pictures, and can have a better business proposition than he has ever had before, although Metro has always dealt with the exhibitor in so fair a manner as to justify him in being a regular user of our productions.”
TEXAS exhibitors at their annual convention held in Galveston week before last decided upon several important matters, chief of which were to fight censorship tooth and nail, and to work out an amiable relationship with exchanges.

E. H. Halsey, president of the Texas Managers' Association, sat in the chair. In his address Mr. Halsey explained the need of theatre owners cutting out the objectionable parts of films, not leaving that task to censor autocrats or to an indifferent public.

The convention passed a resolution providing an Adjustment Board to settle differences of opinion arising between exhibitors and exchanges.

A new constitution was adopted, providing for the president, vice-president and treasurer of the association to be elected from the Executive Committee, which comprised the following: E. H. Halsey, W. J. Lytle, San Antonio; A. A. Chouteau, Dallas; C. J. Musselman, Paris; P. C. Levy, Fort Worth; Harry Van de Mark, Houston, and W. E. Weatherford, Dallas.

The new constitution also provides for a vice-president in every Texas Senatorial district. The following were elected: Charles Kimball, McKinney; V. J. Grun- der, Cuero; W. E. Box, San Antonio; Ben B. Lewis, El Paso; O. A. Englebrecht, Temple, and H. W. Coon, Amarillo.

S. L. Rothafel, managing director of the Rialto theatre, New York, addressed the convention, telling of his plans for a new theatre in New York, which will have a seating capacity of 5,000, and will be completed in 1919 or 1920. Touching on the film situation generally, Mr. Rothafel said that there is an overproduction of mediocre pictures and not enough high-class films.

A resolution was made by A. A. Chouteau, that heartiest thanks be extended to the Texas State Federation of Labor for their aid in putting down the Sunday opening bill when it came up in the legislature. The resolution was adopted.

Exchange managers were invited to address the convention not exceeding two minutes each.

Halsey took the floor in behalf of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, and explained that he is not in the film business for the profits he can get out of rentals, but for the purpose of getting first-class films at a reasonable rental.

He asked that exhibitors co-operate to make the deal a success. He said that he had invested about $30,000 in the franchise, and would not be able to continue the franchise without assistance. He said every picture bought by the circuit will be judged at 100 per cent.

He said the circuit has already sold the foreign right on Chaplin films for $400,000. The following exchange representatives made brief talks: H. M. Owens, Paramount; L. B. Remy, Goldwyn; Mr. Allen, Triangle; Ned E. Depinet, Consolidated: C. O. Ezell, Selznick; Leroy Bickle, Metro; C. A. Blegg, Pathe; F. E. Garner, General; J. B. Dugger, Vitagraph; Bert M. Moran, K-E-S-E.

Mr. Ezell made an offer of the services of the Selznick forces in an effort to promote membership in the association. An offer was made by Halsey to pay roadmen $1 each for new membership.

Mr. Garner did not want his salesmen paid, but wanted to render the service to the association in the sense of its general good. The final matter before the convention was an argument by Halsey for clean houses, clean plays and appealing to the public conscience. He said that censorship is born of ignorance on the part of the public.

Among the managers present were the following: B. J. Clemmons, Beaumont; W. A. Sterckert, Bremham; C. J. Musselman, Paris; A. O. Englebrecht, Temple; Charles Kimball, McKinney; K. F. Kernes, Farmersville; Peter Jeeck, Victoria; V. J. Grunder, Cuero; Theo Palomankos, Houston; S. T. McDonald, Galveston; W. L. Schlichten, Houston; L. Von Phil, Dallas; W. E. Witherford, Dallas; E. H. Halsey, Dallas; P. C. Levy, Fort Worth; W. J. Lytle, San Antonio; W. F. Box, San Antonio; C. W. MacCormack, Austin; Harry Van Denmark, Houston; M. Wicka, Jr., Houston; Ed Raymond, Houston; Philip Rich, Richmond; O. F. Gould, Fort Worth; W. S. Crossley, Fort Worth; A. A. Chouteau, Jr., Dallas; A. Martin, Galveston; Charles Trifon, Goose Creek.

Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger Gets Paramounts Direct

Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who owns Philadelphia vaudeville houses, and with his associates, owns theatres in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, has made a $300,000 contract for first-run Paramount pictures.

The theatres in Philadelphia that get the benefit are the Strand in Germantown, which is now known as the Colonial in Germantown, Nixon in West Philadelphia, and the Leader in Frank- col, Coleoseum, Cedar, Tioga and Jumbo, in other neighborhoods.

Most of these houses had been showing Paramount pictures, getting them through Julius Faustbaum. The new arrangement is direct.

Harry A. Smith and Columbus Stamper acted for Mr. Nirdlinger in the negotiations and William E. Smith, Oscar Morgan and Edgar Moss for Paramount.

IOWA—Grinnell: M. C. Crutchfield, manager of the Victoria House, has gone to the hospital with an attack of appendicitis.

Des Moines: Members of the local Pathé Exchange were deceased last week at the home of Assistant Manager Moses J. Frisbie.

Chariton: Messrs. Louis and Griffin have taken over the Variety.

MARYLAND—Baltimore: Guy L. Wonders, director of the Wilson theatre has installed a mass cooling plant on the roof of his building. When running at capacity the fan can change the air of the theatre in less than an minute. It is in the habit of drawing the air from the auditorium it blows cool air in, thereby being the first device of its kind to be erected in Baltimore.

MICHIGAN—Detroit: Howard Crane, Detroit architect, has designed a new theatre seating 1,100 to be erected in Springfield. The owner is Jerome Selling, 217 Jefferson Avenue.

Milan: Lester Matt, who runs the Strand, has invested with his company a new capital stock of $115,000. The company plans the erection of another theatre in Flint.

MINNESOTA—Hutchinson: The Rex theatre has been sold to Mr. C. A. Chouteau of the United States Company of Minneapolis, a company backed by well-known citizens and capitalists of the theatre and advertising business, men experienced in the show business. Their representatives, Mr. F. B. Cox and Mr. W. H. Grossman, have here been lately in connection with the transfer of the theatre, which will remain until the return of Mr. Dibble, who is at Owatonna for two weeks, and who may be continued in the position of manager.

The purchasers state that they will bring the Hutchinson the same class of moving picture films that is shown in the leading theatres in the large cities, and hope to provide a much better class of entertainments than is usually given in towns of 3,000 population. The company owns several theatres and is affiliated with other companies.

Among other improvements is an enlargement of the Rex, alterations and improvements which necessitated the closing of the theatre for a few days so as to not compete with the Chautauqua and the fair time allow workmen to occupy the theatre.

MISSOURI—Kansas City: J. Andlauer, father of W. A. Andlauer, owner of the Bonaventure theatre, died recently.

NOVA SCOTIA—Halifax: Don McGregor, manager of the Imperial theatre, Halifax, joined his regiment on July 2, after having received a commission in the army.

WASHINGTON—Seattle: Gus Metger, of the Film Supply Company, of Portland, Ore., who has been in Seattle three weeks, and for thirty days in the interest of Bluebird and Butterfly Pictures has returned to Portland. While in Seattle he contracted with the Strand there for the use of his films for six weeks with an option on the extension.

Mike Rosenberg, manager of the De Luxe Feature Film Company, of Seattle, Wash., will spend the month of July in Los Angeles, looking up the film situation there, which will apply to states right buyers this fall.

WISCONSIN—Pond Du Lac: O. J. Vollert, manager of the 16th Street for a number of years, assumed the management of the Henry Boyle theatre on July 1, under a new arrangement with the lessees, the details of which will be announced more fully later. The Henry Boyle reopened on that date, with a spectacular picture "The Battle Cry of Peace", and therefore, give over to the production of the larger productions in the movie line in addition to pictures, continued four days, carrying it over the fourth. The theatre offers a program of popular price schedules. There will be the return of "Civilization" for a week next January; and following will come Ethel Barry- more in "The Toll of the Sea", Ray- mond Hitchcock in "A Wonderful Life"; "Womanhood"; " Beware of Strangers" and others. Mike Rosenberg also booking legitimate productions of a high character.
Making Your Program Pay for Its Upkeep

WORRY a little over the style of your program. Economize on your adjectives used in announcing. Tell them who the star is. Tell them how they liked his or her last picture. Tell them a little—but not too much—about this new picture of his. Be careful not to take the joy out of the picture by publishing the plot in careful, painstaking detail in your program.

Don't try to club the people into your theatre! Try and persuade them. Work on their curiosity; excite their imagination. Use the gentle art of suggestion on them. Learn a lesson from that small son of yours and the natural methods, the instinctive means, he employs to get what he wants from some one. When he comes up to you and says in a boisterous, commanding manner, "Paw, I want a nickel!" the chances are that he will keep wanting it. But if he comes quietly and says, "Paw, I am awful hot. There is a place around the corner where they make swell ice cream cones"—he gets the nickel. The suggestion and manner does it.

Here is a good standard to judge by. Look to the houses whose clientele has been built up to a high plane. Seek out the reason for the success. Nine times out of ten you find it is because the management of that house has no "weakest link" in its chain of organization. The weekly program comes in for its share of the burden and responsibility equally as well as any other part of the organization.

It is preferable to place advertisements on the left-hand inside page, because the preferred position, the right-hand inside page, should be kept for the important part of the program itself. The back page will be an excellent place for notice of the immediately forthcoming features: and this, again, is well illustrated by the tentative layout published last week.

WHAT PAPER TO USE.

The matter of paper to be used in printing the program will be an important consideration. Try to get a white paper with a so-called matt surface, or a rather rough book paper if there are to be no half-tone cuts. If half-tone cuts are to be used, a quality of paper must be used that will take the impression clearly, without absorbing the ink or otherwise obscuring the image. Try to have it cut to the sheet so there is no waste and of such size that it will fit an envelope.

It is likely that the program will be used for mailing purposes, so the lightness of it will have a bearing on the mailing cost. The actual color of the paper may be white, although a white tending toward cream will be found serviceable in standing some handling. While mentioning the matter of durability, it may be well to remark in pass-

When Is an Exhibitor Not an Exhibitor

By J. E. RICARD

A LONG with the complaint of the exhibitor on this and that condition in his particular section, would it not be just as well to direct attention to the prostitution of billing and program indulged in by some who try to emulate the other fellow who is able to "circus" legitimately and get away with it.

Recently in a good-sized Southwestern city, I saw the most awful combination in the effort to advertise that has ever come to my notice.

The man who resorted to this monstrosity, evidently trying to outdo his competitor and having no initiative of his own, selected the only thing he could think of to secure publicity for his feature.

He was playing Cecil DeMille's wonderful cinema achievement, "Joan the Woman." He sent out on the business and residential streets of his city a superannuated old horse of the vintage of twenty years back hitched to a tumble-down old wagon adorned with an "A" board on which he had smeared a six sheet on either side of Geraldine Farrar as Joan. The paste used had been thick and cold, and the features of the heroine of the story could scarcely be distinguished. To add insult to the injury of this awful mess the driver of the affair was a one-eyed negro who at regular intervals leaned out from his coop and rang a cow bell.

This is not an exaggeration but an actual fact. How in the name of the shade of the inventor of the camera could this man by the wildest stretch of the imagination be called an exhibitor? Yet he opens a theatre door every day and wonders why people do not flock in to see his picture product when he presents it in such a fashion as to disgust even the less aesthetic of his possible patrons.

I watched this interesting mess on the pretty residential streets of the city in question and was constrained to wonder what sort of an impression it would have on the gifted DeMille, could he have witnessed that old darkey ringing the cow bell to let the natives know a real picture was to be shown at the "town Opera." One wonders when the day will dawn for the improvement of the breed.

Hire a Store, Says Laurie

A. J. Laurie, who manages the Canada theatre, Montreal, sends us a photograph of a store front located next door to his theatre which he uses for advertising current attractions.

"When your patrons pass your theatre," says Mr. Laurie, "let them see that you are alive."

"Is my idea right or wrong?" he asks. If you can afford to rent the store next door, is our reply, the idea is good.

It's All Very Well—To spend thousands on exploiting a great big picture for a great big theatre—

To run half and full page advertisements in the newspapers that knock the public off its feet—

To send elaborate pamphlets to your select mailing list—

But supposing you haven't a great big theatre?

What we are anxious to hear about is the results that YOU with your 200 or 300 seat house have had with a small appropriation.

Let us know how you made $1 do the work of $5. Why not drop us a line anyway? We've been in the game a long while, and maybe we can give you a hot tip or two.

William Russell, Champion Prizefighter, in "Pride and the Man" — Best Bet (Mutual Five-Reel Production)

If anything, the good name of William Russell's fighting abilities the management of the theater is furthered by his skill in interpreting "Pride and the Man," a five-reel drama produced by the American Film Company for Mutual, Pugilism is the thing in which Russell excels. He is selected to take up the role of the sport. Jack Hastings, a recognized leading man in the quiet man department. He is known as "Handsome Jack." Bronson Norris, a ruffian, is his opponent. In his private life he meets Thelma Everett (Frances Wilson), and the prompt romance begins with him. He avoids making known his love for her because of his frequent appearance in the roped arena. Love prevails, however, and Jack gives up his ring career and marries the girl he loves. He leaves forth in the business world as a contractor, but lacking sufficient capital he fails. His wife, unknown to him, supplied large amount of money in order that his contracting business might be saved. The firm goes into bankruptcy and Jack as a contractor has met failure. In order that he may pay his creditors he determines to take part in one more championship battle. His wife accepting Jack's reappearance in the ring as evidenced that she does not love him, is persuaded by enemies of her husband to work against him. He, too, of those of his enemies are of no avail. Jack wins the championship, pays his wife for the money which had been a business and a revelation is affected.

Broadhurst's Stage Success, "What Money Can't Buy," with Jack Pickford, Louise Huff (Lasky-Paramount Five-Reel Production)

Among the most interesting stage attractions has been adapted to the screen, this time by Reginal Dix, for Paramount. "What Money Can't Buy" is one of Mr. Broadhurst's latest to be pictured. In deference to Mr. Broadhurst's ability as a stage dramatist, Paramount has not only had this drama of his adaptation to the screen, but it is essentially the same as the original Broadhurst, drama, "What Money Can't Buy," is worth the effort. It is a dramatic picture and is a very skillful production of screen art. The story tells of the lives of seven men and women of money, and the influence of the large amount of money on their lives in the principality of Europe and its love affair with a beautiful Princess. Miss Huff presents the part of the Princess and Mr. Pickford the part of Dick Halse, whose father is wealthy financier. The producers will be remunerated for his excellent characterization in "The American Counsel," has the part of Captain Hal. J.H. Boardworth, who has been seen in featured parts for many years back, has the role of Giovani Tester, financial advisor of the King of Maritizia. "What Money Can't Buy" should be missed by none of the parties present in the theater. It will be shown here on the week.

Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge in "Youth." — Story of a Man's Regeneration (Peerless World Five-Reel Production)

Here is a production of the worldly things of this life which go to insure society. The player in that feature is Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge. In it he has been told by William Russell's manager, producer of many favorites, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge. In the course of the production, Carlyle Blackwell has seen many times in featured roles. Robert Hale, Olivia Moore, Victor Kennard, Henrietta Simpson and Henry Waggens have been members of the dramatic department of the same. The feature was written by Roy S. Senebaugh. "To Honor and Obey," with Gladys Brockwell—A Wife's Sacrifice—A Husband's Ingratitude

(Fox Five-Reel Production)
The injustice to which a young wife is compelled to submit by what is thought to be the law of the land and the public at large, held sacred the words in the title of the picture. And obra, as is exposed in a William Fox late production entitled "To Honor and Obey," Gladys Brockwell, one of the most talented screen stars of the Fox forces, presents the part Lorrie Hollis, the wife who, under the dictates of law, is expected to speculate in the stock market. His fortune is swept away, and she is left with no other alternative but to seek a sacrifice that he might regain the money he had lost. He has the greatest sacrifice that a woman can make—she gives her heart to her husband's fortune might be saved. His money Regan tells the great sacrifice her wife has made. He

Robert Hichens' Famous Work, "The Garden of Allah," Adapted to the Screen

"The Garden of Allah," a Selig Production in nine reel form from the creation of Robert Hichens, Mr. Selig has written many plays and works of romance and fiction. "The Garden of Allah," is perhaps his best known and most interesting work. This work was dramatized and won instant success on the stage. Selig has produced it on the screen with even more spectacular interest than either the book or the stage version aroused. It is a story of the Sahara Desert, the people and ways of the Arab and of the romance and excitement which occurs on the screen. The producer spared nothing to intensify the interest of the story, and it is a comedy which is bound to make a good impression on all who wish to see it. You can find a Miss Ware and her company to Egypt, the land of the Nile, and the desert, and cross the desert and the caravan and into the homes of the Orientals. This story of romance and excitement is given on the screen with a beauty which only the people of this land could make more impressive and realistic. Through all these scenes of the beauties of the Orient and the story of "The Garden of Allah." Most of you have read Mr. Hichens' work. To those who haven't, a better opportunity will be afforded them than that which the management of the— the theatre offers which is the only home of the motion picture called "The Garden of Allah," shown on the screen.

"The Squaw Man's Son," with Wallace Reid and Anita King in the Featured Roles

(Paramount Five-Reel Production)
Many of you remember "The Squaw Man" which was produced several years ago. Edwin Milton Peot is the author of this story which has had great success and has titled it "The Squaw Man's Son." Wallace Reid and Anita King have been one of the most beloved adventures of a young nobleman in the land of the Orient and his efforts to aid the Indian and Indian countries and his story of adventure as well. The story will solve itself to experience if possible, the adventures of his past, which were a fine study of the Indian and Indian lives and for a time studies their ways of living and incidently learns that the Indian agent is formulating plans to capture the Indians.

Bryant Washburn in "The Golden Idiot"—Story with a True-Life Swing to It

(F-K-B-S Five-Reel Production)
Bryant Washburn in his latest picture, "The Golden Idiot," presents the role of Barry Owen. You will see this picture you will marvel at its simplicity. You will wonder why someone has not thought of the same thing before. Its simple action and characteristic naturalness are the two elements which make it resemble the work of Dickens. Robert Rudd Whiting, who wrote "The Golden Idiot," has caught the spirit of the style of Dickens, more closely if he had set out with that intention to make it a real living Dickens—what we do not know. The point in bringing the comparison to you is that it presents a person capable of reading the English language, who has not yet the power to understand with a new interest in every sentence, the works of Charles Dickens. At any rate, Bryant Washburn, whether he realize it or not, presents the role of Barry Owen, in "The Golden Idiot," is presenting the work of the same man. It is a story of the man. This should be enough. You saw Mr. Washburn in "Skinner's Dress Suit." You liked it and him. You will like "The Golden Idiot." Come and see it the same time. You will make no mistake. Mr. Washburn will not disappoint you—neither will Virginia Valli, who plays the leading role of "Mabel." Never—shall we "Pud"—the three-legged dog that acts natural.

(Path Studio, Two-Reel Production)
The "Pearl White" series, which has improved with every chapter. The late episode, entitled "The Warning on the Ring," impresses with a strong, swift action, tense situations and cleverly conceived mystery element. In this episode, Pearl White, accompanied by her friend, visits the temple. Pearl has one more day before the date set for his death, to return the Violet Diamond. He has a diamond with him and upon reaching the temple, gives it to his friend in trust. She discovers that it is not the Violet Diamond but an imitation. Carlisle has tried to obtain it, by the laws of the order and he is tied to a post and lashed. After recovering and he is permitted to leave the temple and visit the shop of a Chinese dealer to have the strange inscription made upon it, translated, thinking that it may have some influence on whether or not the death sentence should be carried out. The dealer reads the inscription and becomes frightened, casting the ring on the floor. Pearl starts to leave and sees Carlisle. She attempts to ring the cop but Carlisle seizes the animal to her home. Carlisle grapples with Pearl and succeeds in taking the ring away from her in the rear of the shop. Tom Carlson, learning that Pearl has visited the temple, runs and alarms and then finds them. In an attempt to get away, Carlisle falls into a hole filled with water.

Allen Holubar and Loisve Lovely in Stirring Detective Story, "The Reed Case"

(Butterfly Five-Reel Production)
If you enjoy detective stories, you have the series of melodramatic situations and stirring adventure, "The Reed Case." You can see this story during the next week and see Allen Holubar and Loisve Lovely, supported by a strong cast, in "The Reed Case." Holubar is a noted Butterfly Producer, and this is one of the series of five-reel pictures. Allen Holubar, as Reed, is a very clever performer and in his latest picture he has his villain, youth and the villain, which is a young man, who makes his way amongst the breasts of the younger generation. Jerry's villain, youth, does not rest solely upon the fact that he is confident. Although young he has had varied experiences in running down the criminal of all kinds and classes. His reputation is fully made when he is successful in trapping two widely known crooks, and he has once again captured the heart of a wealthy resident named Reed. So clever were his plans and plots of the crooks that the case became known throughout the country as the "Reed Case." Jerry, in the course of his work, is assigned to solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Reed's daughter. He is informed that the fortune bearing upon the final solution of the girl's disappearance, and the evidence, is to be found in the final solution of the mystery form material for a rapid-fire detective story, told on the screen.

Gladys Hulette in the Crowning Achievement of Her Career, "The Last of the Cabanrys"

(Pathe Five-Reel Production)
Gladys Hulette, in her latest pathie release, "The Last of the Cabanrys," has captured the daughter of a highly respectable family whose name was Washburn, and who was the girl who was a "black sheep" is found in the best of families, and you will see so many families, and this drama has reference. Miss Hulette, as the daughter, has one duty which she has set out to do, and that is to change the reputation of her family, whom she has been led astray. She attempts to reform the reputation of the family, in a formal manner, but through kindness and a true sister's love for a brother, and she accomplishes her purpose. But this is not accomplished until, like many another, her brother has been brought face to face with the tribulations of the law. The last of the Carnaby is one of the most intense parts ever told by the screen. Gladys Hulette possesses a certain charm of undisguised tenderness which carries the interest of the story. Her part enunciated by the sister with a pathetic touch given especially in the situation where she stands in the court room scene is shown and the dramatic way in which the appealing, sympathetic, heroine, with her mental and moral courts, are shown, will convince you all that you are, for the time, not to be impressed. Gladys Hulette has not been seen more engaging role. She is supported by a strong cast of Pathie artists.

"The Rescue "—A Bluebird Photoplay of Beauty—Dorothy Phillips Featured

(Bluebird Five- Reel Production)
From Hugh Kahler's story, "The Rescue," Bluebird has fashioned a photoplay drama which rises to the heights of dramatic excellence and interest. Dorothy Phillips (husband of her screen career. With Miss Phillips in this picture, the characters are: George, by Malone, Claire Du Bray and Gertrude Aster—all beautiful from the first to the last of the film. Charles Stowell and Lon Chaney enact the principal male roles. The story tells of the woman in which a divorced wife was won back by the husband. Betty Jerrold (Molly Malone), as "The Case of Philip," Miss Phillips intimates that she is madly in love with Ken Wells (William H. Allen)—husband of Anne. Anne has returned to the stage after her marriage to her divorce. Betty (Lon Chaney) a friend of Anne's, asks her if she will visit Betty at her home and persuade her man. Many Anne for some reason does not want the marriage. After it all happens, Betty explains that she only went there to arrange a reconciliation between Anne and her divorced husband. "I'd May Park," the film concludes. By this production. The problem of divorce is taken up, stirring scenes are depicted, and you will see five of the prettiest girls on the screen.
Universal's Week-Release Has Five Comedies

“Right-of-Way Casey” and “The Woman Who Would Not Pay,” Both Dramas, Also on List—Screen Magazine, News and Specialties

FOLLOWING "A Wife on Trial," a five-reel Butterfly picture released July 30, Universal offers two dramas, five comedies, and four news and educational features, besides the latest episode of "The Gray Ghost.

"Right-of-Way Casey," a gold Seal drama featuring Neil Hart and Janet Eastman, will be released Tuesday, July 31. The story was written by George Marshall and C. J. Wilson, and was produced under George Marshall's direction.

"Married by Accident," a Nestor comedy featuring Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons and Edith Roberts, will be released on the same date. It was produced by Roy Clements.

"Blackboard and Blackmail," a two-reel L-KO comedy, in which Myra Sterling, Phil Dunham and Lucille Hutton are the principal fumakers, is the offering for Wednesday, August 1. It is directed by Vim Moore and supervised by J. G. Blystone.

Prison Feature Removed from Goldwyn's "Fighting Odds"

Maxine Elliott's first Goldwyn play, "Fighting Odds," was named by Roi Cooper Megreue and Irvin S. Cobb of the Goldwyn Advisory Board. They are the authors.

It is a picturization of the Megreue-Cobb drama, "Under Sentence," which last fall had a metropolitan presentation. In rewriting the script, the director's scenario was decided to almost totally omit the prison equation and elaborate upon the Big Business element of the drama to which it was admirably suited. A director of Goldwyn Pictures said:

"The expository studies of American penitentiaries have been helpful in their time and place, but in the nature of the thing they are depressing. The great majority of motion picture patrons go to the theatres to be amused."

News Happenings in Film Form by Universal

In Universal's Current Events series twelve recent happenings are told in film form in sufficient detail to interest all patrons of the theatres. The offerings include:

- Princeton University students in military drill; "Friendship Fiesta" and reception for Governor of Lower California; President Wilson's daughter addressing Junior Police in New York City Hall; East St. Louis mobs in race riot and "Welcome Home" for Ambassador Ellkus.
- Other pictures show Sarah Bernhardt, Theodore Roosevelt and the members of the Russian Mission visiting this country.

Cleo Madison in "The Woman Who Would Not Pay," the star of the feature release for Thursday, August 2. This story was written by E. M. Ingleton, and directed by Ruth Ann Baldwin. "The Battling Bellboy," a Joker comedy, featuring William Franey, will also be shown on August 2.

On Friday, August 3, Carter de Haven and Flora Parker de Haven will be featured in a Victor two-reel comedy entitled, "Where Are My Trousers?" written by Daisy O'Connor and Ryder Cunningham and produced by Carter de Haven.

The thirteenth issue of the Universal Screen Magazine, released on the same date, shows improved methods of educating the blind; a demonstration of the Hyde ship-brake; demonstrations in domestic science, and scenes incidental to the making of an aeroplane.

A Joker comedy, "The Stinger Stung," featuring Gale Henry, will be released on Saturday, August 4. The twelfth issue of the Universal Current Events will appear the same day, together with a Powers comedy cartoon and a Distsmas Educational subject, "In Monkeyland," showing the chimpanzee, gorilla, orangoutang and their brethren in various scenes from life.

The sixth episode of "The Gray Ghost" for release outside Greater New York—will be entitled "The House of Mystery," and will feature Priscilla Dean, Emory Johnson, Eddie Polo and Harry Carter.

Paramount Explains New Plan in Attractive Brochure

Paramount has issued, in the form of a thirty-two-page brochure, called "Progress and Profits," an explanation of the new method of booking, which is to be inaugurated August 5. The history of Paramount is told briefly with the point in view of explaining how the new booking plan came about. The back pages are devoted to stars' photographs.

The introduction which strikes the note of the volume, is as follows:

"Comencing August 5 next, Paramount and Artcraft Pictures Corporations will co-ordinate their systems of photoplay distribution, and the productions of both companies will be leased to exhibitors along identical lines.

This means that the opportunity to exhibit the great productions and unrivaled stars of Paramount Pictures is open to all exhibitors. Paramount's policy of fairness, co-operation and protection which has won and deserved confidence in the past will be enhanced in the future by a great effort to achieve even a higher degree of service.

"Fate and the Child," in Mutual Serial Released

"Fate and the Child," second instalment of "The Great Stanley Secret," will be released by Mutual, July 30th. It is from the Mutual-American Studio.

The plot involves a conspiracy on the part of a gang of English and American crooks, men and women, to obtain possession of the estate and jewels left by the Earl of Stanley.

"The Great Stanley Secret" is in eight reels. The first instalment, "The Gypsy's Trust" was released July 23.

Third of Bryant Washburn's "Skinners" by Essanay

Essanay announces that Bryant Washburn's August release will be "Skinner's Baby," the third of the already famous "Skinner" series.

Bryant Washburn, of course, plays the part of Skinner and Hazel Daly again appears as Honey, his wife. Other members of the cast appear in the same parts they did before. Harry Beaumont wrote and directed the play.

R. B. Wilby of the Strand, Montgomery, Ala., says:

"We have played both 'Skinner's Dress Suit' and 'Skinner's Bubble,' and think they are fine. Believe that a continuation of this series would educate picturegoers to this sort of diet and prove a success both to yourselves and the exhibitors."

Triangle Play Strikes at Birth Control Propaganda

"Master of His Home," the immediately forthcoming Triangle play starring William Desmond, hits a blow against the birth control propagandists. Alma Ruben, who plays opposite Desmond, appears in the role of a society butterfly of aristocratic parents, who marries for money, turning down her husband's proffer of domestic happiness and refusing to be a real wife and a mother. Later on, how the presence of the gardener's children next door exerts its influence over her and brings about a change for the better is said to make for a most human story.

The supporting cast includes Robert McKim, J. J. Dowling and Eleanor Hancock. The piece was directed by Walter Edwards from the story by R. Cecil Smith.

Selig Announces Love Story of Days of '61

"A Daughter of the Southland" is a Selig two-reel drama of the days of 1860-65. The story has to do with the love of a Southern girl for a Northern naval officer and her loyalty to him despite the fact that he was with those that were fighting her country.

The battle between the Monitor and Merrimac is reproduced in the action of this drama. The naval battle is reproduced with an eye to historical accuracy.

The battle between the Monitor and Merrimac was the first engagement between ironclads and revolutionized naval warfare. It marked the doom of wooden vessels and inaugurated the steelclad battleship.

Cattle Stampede in "By Right of Possession"

"By Right of Possession," a Vitagraph Western, in which Mary Anderson and Antonio Moreno star, is to be released July 30.

It is described by the company as "a scintillating story of the great outdoors," which no doubt it is for Mary Anderson acts the part of the girl owner of a mine who takes possession while a strike is on. Moreno is sheriff and cowboy by turns and cattle in stampede do the rest.

"Big Bill" Russell, in Ring, Leads Mutual

"Pride and the Man," a Feature, Stanley Secret," Two Comedies Second Chapter of "The Great Stanley Secret," Fox Supplies Doctors and Nurses for His "Kiddies"

William Fox’s "kiddie" production, "Jack and the Beanstalk," required many groups of children, who remained with the company while the whole play was screened in the open air in the wonderful California sunshine.

Without any reflection upon the maternal care that continued with them throughout the making of the costly extravaganza, it is safe to say the children were better off than at any other time in their lives. Physicians and nurses and teachers followed them from location to location. They had all the attention that could have been given to the offspring of millionaires.

It was extremely amusing to see children just learning their letters appearing at their traveling schoolrooms with their makeup on. They studied at their desks for an hour, then returned with eager enthusiasm to the camera.

The period was one of extreme delight not only for the kiddies themselves, but for those associated with them, because the experience was so novel and the contact so unusual.

“Big Bill” Russell, in Ring, Leads Mutual

"Man Proposes," the La Salle comedy for the week is released on July 31 and the Cub, "Jerry's Big Stunt," August 2. Both are one-reelers. George Ovey plays in "Jerry's Big Stunt."

Mutual Tours Around the World, released July 31, covers Marken, an Island in the Zuider Zee, the monastery and convent at La Grande Chartreuse, and Majorca, an island in the Mediterranean.

Reel Life No. 60, which is released August 2, covers the following subjects: "Making Machine Guns," "Beads of Rose Petals," "Saving a Wrecked Steamship," "Keeping the Boys Home," and animated drawings from life.

Mutual Weekly, the current news reel carrying pictures of happenings of head-line consequence, is released August 1, the day after it goes to press.

Pearl White's New Stunt as Bumper for Ferryboat

Pearl White says "The Fatal Ring," latest Pathé serial in which she has posed, surpasses all others. She said:

"I usually receive four or five hundred letters a day asking how I live through the stunts I do in the pictures. They should see 'The Fatal Ring' and it will add to their amazement. I thought I had tried out all the stunts that could be worked in the motion pictures. I had gone down in submarines, made trips in balloons and airplanes, skidded gleefully over the edges of precipices in an automobile, had fallen down cliffs, been thrown down fire escapes. But in one of the episodes in 'The Fatal Ring' the scenario writer tried to make me act as a bumper for a ferry boat when it was steaming into its slip and —well, see the episode for yourself if you want to get the thrill of your life."

Principals in the Big Fox "Kiddie Picture," "Jack and the Beanstalk," Virginia Lee Corbin, as "Princess Regina," the Giant, and Frances Carpenter, as "Jack."
Plenty of Fun in Forthcoming L-Kos

Lively times are declared to be in store for audiences next week. The mad pranks and weird stunts of L-Ko comedians in late August and early September. General Director J. G. Blystone has arranged a series of fast-moving events to be released through Universal channels, the unusual points being the exhibitors' supply of these comedies.

"Streetcars and Carbuncles," directed by Dick Smith, will be the comedy for August 22. In this Bob McKenzie, Eva Novak, Eddie Barry and Chester Ryckman will "cut up" gloriously. For August 29 Phil Dunham has furnished the fun in "A Rural Caesar," his initial effort at directing L-Ko's. Heretofore Mr. Dunham has been a featured comedian and, consequently, knows how to work all the stunts. Lucille Hutton and Billy Bevan will take "leads." Myrtle Sterling, the rotund and reckless comedienne, will be featured in "From Ranch to Riches" as the September 5 release. Vin Moore directed this one, with Al West and Willi Emerson assisting Miss Sterling in the rollicking, "The Props' Revenge," September 12, will be a theatrical comedy, with "pros" really coming into his own at last. Noel Smith put this one over, with Walter Stevens, George Hoell and Bert Roach doing the principal fun-making.

Julius Stern declares that here is the best grouping of L-Ko's it has ever been his good fortune to sponsor.

Band of Real Gypsies in Tanguay Play

A band of Rumanian gypsies happened to be encamped near the Hillside Amusement Park, just outside Newark, and has been pressed into service for the production of Miss Tanguay's first filmplay, "Poor Firefly." The picture is being made under the management of Harry Weber for Selznick.

Miss Tanguay and the company make their headquarters in Newark, but Weber motors back and forth, and in consequence finds the motion picture industry a rather strenuous life. Howard Estabrook, who is directing, was pleased to find all the types from the gray-haired patriarch to the dirty seven-year-old all ready at hand in the gypsy band.

"Think It Over" to Be Herbert Blache's Next Picture

Herbert Blache, president of the U. S. Amusement Corporation, releasing on Art Dramas Program, announced this week that the next picture from his company's studio would be entitled "Think It Over." "Think It Over" will be a two-star combination, the principal roles being portrayed by Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker. Miss Calvert, in private life Mrs. Paul Armstrong, has appeared in two previous U. S. Amusement-Art Dramas. This will mark Mr. Tucker's debut on the program. He had an extensive stage career with Nat Goodwin, Mrs. Fiske, H. E. Dixey and Bertha Kalishsky. For August 29 Mr. Blache wrote the story and will direct the picture.

Pearl White in Thrills One

FOUR box-office stars appear on Pathe's program for the week of August 5. They are Baby Marie Osborn, Pearl White, Ruth Roland and Lonesome Luke.

Baby Marie Osborn appears in another of her wonder-pictures, a five-reel Gold Rooster play entitled "Captain Kiddo," produced by Lasalida, under the direction of Eugene Moore. Baby Osborne's latest picture has a comedy-dramatic story of sustaining interest.

Pearl White stars in the fifth episode of "The Fatal Ring" serial entitled "Danger Underground," produced by Astra under the direction of George B. Seitz, written by Fred Jackson and Bertram Milhause. This episode has one of the biggest thrills ever seen in a motion picture, when Pearl Standish and Tom Carleton narrowly escape being crushed against a pier by an oncoming ferryboat.

The eighteenth release of the Know America Combitone Scenics is entitled "Stray Shots in the Lone Star State," and it shows a carefully picked selection of beautiful and interesting scenes in Texas. An international cartoon and scenic split-reel release and Hearst Pathe News No. 64 and 65 complete the program.

Thelma Salter and Bessie Barriscale—Triangule Program

A FEATURE of the Triangle program for the week of July 29 will be "In Smootherland," starring Thelma Salter, a fairy-tale production with considerable interest for grown-ups too, designed to meet the growing demands for photoplays of juvenile interest.

Little Miss Salter, who was co-starred with Frank Keenan in "The Crab" several months ago, has the part of an Irish child whose poetic fancy has been stimulated by the fairy-tales told her by an old fortune teller and a genial old man. How the villain's plans are frustrated by the little girl, with the aid of "little people," is said to constitute an action full of surprises and charm.

It is the first directing effort of Irvin Willat, who was long head of the photographic and titling departments at Triangle's Culver City studio.

Triangle's other release for the same week is "Borrowed Plume," a five-reel production starring Mrs. Barriscale, and notable for its picturesqueness and beauty of mounting. It is a story of Georgian England, involving John Paul Jones and a little kitchen slavey who was the only one who did not run when he arrived at the castle with his pirate band.

Bessie Barriscale is probably the first since the celebrated Lotta, of days gone by, to rise to fame through her portrayal of soubrette types. In "Borrowed Plume" she is afforded full scope for her efforts in this particular direction.

Vitagraph Gives Dates for Eight New "Bobby Connelly's"

EIGHT pictures, each one reel, called by Vitagraph the "Bobby Connelly series," are announced for release by V-L-S-E, the first one in two weeks. There are to be ten of the pictures in all. The release dates are as follows:

"Bobby, the Boy Scout," August 6;
"Bobby, the Movie Director," August 13th;
"Bobby, Philanthropist," showing Bobby as knight to a ragamuffin newsgirl, August 20th;
"Bobby, the Pugilist," in which he rescues a three-year-old leading woman, August 27th;
"Bobby's Bravery," in which he rescues teacher, September 3d;
"Just What Bobby Wanted," a little sister—September 10th;
"Bobby's Secret," in which he robs his bank and plays Good Samaritan, September 17th, and "When Bobby Broke His Arm," September 24th.

The first five of these pictures were directed by Wesley Ruggles, and others by Charles M. Scay, who with the Edison company produced ten serials.

Little Bobby has been a screen star since he was three years old. He has supporting him a number of clever youngsters. Among these is Andy Clark, who will be remembered for his work in the Andy Scay, and little Aida Horton, three-year-old actress.

The pictures are clean, snappy, and said to be replete with the kid element that charms not only the little folk, but their patrons, as well. The scenarios were especially written for little Bobby, and his remarkable talent for full play in the pictures from start to finish.
Art Dramas to Release Four Plays in August

"Peg o' the Sea," "Behind the Mask," "Blood of His Fathers" and an Erbograph Production starring Marian Swayne Are All on the List

ART DRAMAS plans to release four plays during the coming month, a change in the program having been made to permit the immediate release of the Horsley-Crane Wilbur features. First of these, "The Eye of Envy," is placed in the July releases. The second, "Blood of the Fathers," will follow in August.

The order of release is "The Peddler," a Joe Welch feature from the U. S. Amusement Company; "When You and I Were Young," starring Alma Hanlon, produced as an Apollo picture; "Eye of Envy," with Crane Wilbur, and "Think It Over," with Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker as co-stars.

The first release for the month of August, "Peg o' the Sea," is from the Van Dyke studios. The story is by Winifred Dunn. The entire company was moved to a fishing village to get the scenes. Eugene Newland, who directed Miss Soothern's previous Art Drama, "Miss Deception," is also the director of "Peg o' the Sea."

Another Alma Hanlon vehicle, "Behind the Mask," from the Apollo Company, is next in order. This was written by Charles Dazey and adapted by Frederick Rath. Mr. Dazey is the author of "In Old Kentucky," "Manhattan Madness," "Wolf Lowry," and "The Flower of Faith." In "Behind the Mask," he has constructed an unusual situation, which is said to possess force and intensity.

Miss Hanlon is supported in this by a cast of players including Florence Short. An Erbograph production starring Marian Swayne and directed by Joseph Levering will be the next feature on the program. The picture is said to be in tone and theme similar to Miss Swayne's two previous Erbographs, "Little Miss Fortune" and "The Road Between."

The last production for August will be the second of the Horsley productions starring Crane Wilbur. The working title of this is "Blood of His Fathers." It was directed by Harriah Ingraham and written by J. Francis Dunbar. Mr. Wilbur plays three distinct roles—a father, his son, and his grandson. The play is said to be strikingly dramatic.

Peggy Hyland Delighted with Her Film, "Persuasive Peggy"

All the scenes of the first Mayfair production, "Persuasive Peggy," have been completed, and for the first time in weeks Peggy Hyland, star in the film, feels herself free. In talking of her picture she said:

"Never before did I enjoy my work more. All the time I was working I was thinking how true to life the situations were and how the action was delightfully logical in the face of all the various situations.

"I forgot myself and became the young wife striving to manage her blustering boy husband tactfully, so that he would not believe himself tied to her apron strings. From the time I arrived at the studios in the early morning until the great lights were shut off for the day I was happy as a lark.

"Every man, woman and child loves animal life and the freshness of the country, with the flowers blooming by the lake-side and along the way. Some find these things in their lives, but there are many more to whom they are strangers. I'm sure they'll be glad to enjoy them through the medium of this pretty play."

Drama and Comedy by Selig

"The Tell of Sin," a two-reel drama, written by James Oliver Curwood and featuring Adrian Kroell, is the Selig release in General Film service for Monday, July 23. "The Tell of Sin" is the story of a beautiful woman who casts love out of her heart for the lure of gold. Finally she realizes, when it is too late, that the love of a good man is the greatest of treasures.

On Saturday, July 28, the Selig Company will release a one-reel comedy, entitled "The Bush Leaguer." It is predicted that this comedy will prove particularly entertaining to baseball fans.

"Motorboating" Another of Vic Moore's Family Comedies

Vic Moore for his next release, July 30, returns to the "family series," in a comedy called "Motorboating." It was written by Thomas J. Gray, and is the same type of laugh getting comedy as "Bungalow," "Commuting," etc.

Vic is discovered tinkerimg with his old Ford car, that his wife has been trying to exchange for some time. She happens to fall upon an exchange ad which offers a motor boat in exchange for a car, anything but a Ford. She tells Vic it would be a good idea to disguise the car. Together, they make alterations and start off to get the boat. Vic and the family arrive at the dock and the deal is arranged. He takes the boat and gives up the car. From this time on the funny things that happen to Vic and his family and the other fellow with Vic's Ford keep up to the finish of the picture.

"A Wife on Trial" Is New Butterfly Release

Mignon Anderson is the star of the Butterfly feature release for July 30th. Miss Anderson will have the leading role in "A Wife on Trial," a five-part drama taken from Margaret Widdemer's novel, "The Rose Garden Husband."

This ranked as one of the best sellers a season or two ago. Miss Anderson will be supported by Leo Pierson and a capable cast. Ruth Ann Baldwin directed the production.

Artrafe's "Seven Keys to Baldpate" Is Completed

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," the George M. Cohan-Artrafe Picture to be released August 26, has been completed under the direction of Hugh Ford, producer of Famous Players successes.

George M. Cohan is given opportunity to present his famous characteristics and mannerisms. Supporting him is an exceptional cast including Anna Q. Nilsson, Elda Furr, Corene Uzzell, Joseph Smiley, Armand Cortes, C. Warren Cook, Purnell Pratt, Frank Loner, Eric Hudson, Carlton Macy, Paul Everton, and Russel Bassett, all of whom are well known to the stage.
La Grande Chartreuse and Majorca, Gaumont, for July 29

The place where the jolly old monks made their Chartreuse liqueur to warm the cockles of the heart for so many centuries is pictured in the first Gaumont release through Mutual, week of July 29. This in "Tours Around the World" No. 39, released July 31. La Grande Chartreuse, lying in the Alps of southeastern France, is a picturesque spot, aside from the interest of spectators in the occupation carried on by the monks.

On the same reel are pictures of Marken, Holland, the island lying in the Zuider Zee, and Majorca, the largest of Spain's Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean. Both these islands have a quaint individuality which makes them interesting upon the screen.

The second Gaumont release of the week is the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly No. 135, August 1. This will contain the latest news of the world, special attention being paid to pictures from the front, secured in Europe by cameramen of the Société des Establissements Gaumont.

Gaumont will release "Reel Life" No. 66 August 2. This is the Mutual Magazine in Film, containing a diversity of subjects which will hold the interest throughout. "Making Machine Guns" is the leading section, a subject of vital importance at the present time. To acquaint the public with the character of the work and the multiplicity of operations Gaumont regards as a patriotic duty.

"Beads of Rose Petals" discloses a quaint California industry, and "Saving a Wrecked Steamship" shows how marine engineers are salving a vessel by an unusual method. "Keeping the Boys Home" is in story form, pictures of the enjoyment secured through a home billiard table.

The reel concludes with animated drawings of a humorous nature, founded upon illustrations in "Life," all of which are truly full of life.

The pictures were made by E. B. Gray, one of the inventive photographers of America. Several processes of a mechanical nature had to be originated by Mr. Gray before he could secure the wonderful effects of lighting by sunlight.

Life is added to the picture by the work of a diver who wears a "divinhoood." This is a piece of headgear which the wearer can remove at will and replace beneath the water.

Grandpa and Grandma Both Get Young in Paramount Release

In "The Rejuvenator," Black Diamond comedy, released by Paramount July 23, both grandma and grandpa, unknown to each other, read this ad:

"For $100 I will make you young again."

-Dr. Young.

Grandpa gets young and flirts with her grandson. Grandpa also rejuvenates. Jealousy in a cafe and a lively fight follow. Both are arrested. The picture contains a number of "tricks."

Distant Lands Visited by Burton Holmes' Bands

The Burton Holmes Battery of Rapid-Fire Cameras has been heard from; one section, under command of Mr. Holmes personally, has just sailed from Sydney, Australia, via the Philippines en route to China and Japan, after the conquest of everything picturesque and interesting in New Zealand and Australia.

What with "shooting" the Maoris of the former and the bushmen of the latter country, as well as the geysers, volcanos, large cities, mountains, sheep ranches, cattle ranches, rivers and fjords of one or the other, Mr. Holmes feels that his campaign has been most successful. Mrs. Holmes and Herbert T. Cowling are included in his entourage.

The second section of the Burton Holmes Battery, with Louis Francis Brown in charge, has just sent Paramount 25,000 feet of interesting motion pictures from Fiji, Samoa, Tonga and Hawaii, including the Volcano of Kiluaea in its most spectacular eruption since 1847; the ceremony of walking on the fiery stones as performed by the barefooted Fijians on the island of Beqa, the fourth time it has been performed in twenty-three years.

Selig Scenics from New Mexico and Sicily

General Film releases July 25. Selig World Library, No. 11, which presents the Pueblos of Southwestern United States. Within 200,000 square miles in and near New Mexico there are 45 tribes speaking nine different languages.

While thousands pass over the structure, painters find an airy perch high over East River in the superstructure of the famous Brooklyn Bridge. This is pictured.

Scenes on the ancient Island of Sicily are shown. In ancient times, Sicily was the seat of many flourishing Greek colonies. The famous Washington elm under which George Washington assumed command of the American army, July 3, 1775, is another subject.
Foursquare Features Go Well

Hy Gainsbarg, manager of the New York Foursquare Exchange of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., reports a few of the recent bookings for the various features this exchange is distributing:

“‘The Bar Sinister’ looked at the following: Glynn and Ward’s Century theatre, Sheffield and Linden, all of Brooklyn; McKinley Square, Bronx; American Music Hall, Rockaway; New theatre, Rockaway; Shea’s Hippodrome at Buffalo; Webster theatre, Bronx; Stanley, Bath Beach; Mozart, Elmira; Avon, Utica; and the Park, Brooklyn.

And on “The Sin Woman”: Strand, Syracuse; Gordon, Rochester; McKinley Square, Bronx; Mozart, Elmira; American Music Hall, Rockaway; Strand, Bronx; the Evergreen, Whitney, Webster, Sheffield, Century and Astoinette, all in Brooklyn, and the Stanley, Bath Beach.

William N. Selig has received from England favorable reviews of the London papers on “The Crisis.” Fifty sentences follow:

Patricia Theatre, London, Ont., Book Year of Goldwyn

Goldwyn Pictures, Ltd. of Canada, announces the signing of the Patricia theatre, London, Ont. for the entire first year’s output of Goldwyn Pictures.

Manager W. L. Stewart made the contract with N. L. Nathanson and Sydney Tanbe, the London (Ont.) Advertiser says: “Goldwyn pictures promise to freshen up the entire motion picture industry.”

The Patricia theatre inaugurates the Goldwyn releases early in September.

Charlie Chaplin Still Draws at Victoria, B. C.

With a star of big magnitude playing across the street, Charlie Chaplin in “The Immigrant,” Mutual-Chaplin No. 1, broke all records at the Columbia theatre, Victoria, B. C.

“I did the biggest business that ever was done in the Columbia theatre or any other house in Victoria with Chaplin at 15 cents,” writes Manager E. Clark.

Money in “Damaged Goods”

Pathe Says “The Fatal Ring” Has Record Bookings

“The Fatal Ring,” Pathe says, has broken all records in the great number of bookings made by the exhibitors, and in the number of bookings that range from two days to a full week’s showing at various theatres.

Pearl White, the Pathe serial star, with the reputation she has made for herself the three preceding summers, is given credit for the record-breaking business.

In addition each episode has the snappy fast action of the serial, a story that carries over with suspense from week to week, and a supporting cast that would furnish stars for several ordinary features.

The story was written by Fred Jackson and B. Milhauser. The production was directed by George B. Seitz.

A Creditable Record

“Within the Law,” the Greater Vitagraph superfeature, has just established a new record in the Davidson theatre in Milwaukee by playing two solid weeks to houses crowded at every performance. The feature was booked originally for one week only, but it made such an impression on the public that the management of the Davidson extended the run.

HOW PICTURES ARE BOOKING

Novel Methods Win Big Bookings on West Coast

Universal Los Angeles Exchange Offers Liberty Bond to Exhibitor Showing Serials Extra Day—Resume of How Subjects Are Running

CIRCULARS announcing the gift of a Liberty Bond to every exhibitor booking and showing Universal serials one day longer than previous bookings is bringing a flood of orders to the Los Angeles Universal exchange. The first day following the mailing of the circulars out of town exhibitors responding immediately numbered six, and a number of Los Angeles and suburban theatre owners personally responded to the proposition. It is estimated now that between seventy-five and one hundred additional days booking at the proportionate prices will be secured by this exchange in a territory where there are but a few more than 300 theatres. The denomination of the Liberty Bond given is $50. This proposition applies on four of the Universal serials, “Liberty,” “The Purple Mask,” “The Voice on the Wire” and “The Grey Ghost.”

The Metro subject, “Haunted Pajamas” which has Harold Lockwood as star, turned away business at the Symphony theatre, Los Angeles, every night during the week’s run, and this in the face of extremely warm weather when many answered the call of the beaches.

A fifty-two week contract was executed last week which provides for the showing of the Universal Butterfly subjects for fifty-two weeks at the Burbank theatre, Los Angeles, “The Reed Case,” which has Louise Lovely and Allen Holubar as stars, will be the opening bill for the week of July 16th under this contract, followed by the starring vehicle of Jack Mulhall, “High Speed.” This contract was made by Manager Dave Burshon after Morton Cohn, manager of the Burbank, had used two Butterfly subjects each for a week’s run, and seen several other releases.

The Universal single reel release, “Pershing in France,” is having very unusual bookings in the Los Angeles territory. This subject will be shown first run at the Broadway theatre of T. L. Tally, where it is booked for two weeks. Manager R. E. Hicks, Cabrillo theatre, of San Diego, will show the picture for one week, and the Laughlin and Columbia, both of Long Beach, have the subject booked for four days each. The Columbia, at Phoenix, will show the Pershing film four days, as will also the Portola in Los Angeles. In addition to these bookings, all three prints purchased by the Los Angeles exchange, are booked for a solid period with suburban and small town houses extending over a period of five weeks.
IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD

Seng Issues House-Organ for "Parentage"

"The Messenger" Is First Publication to Appear in Connection with a Picture Marketed

FRANK J. SENG, distributor of "Parentage," and a newcomer in the ranks of film operators, has just issued "The Parentage Messenger," a lively house-organ of eight pages crammed full of advertising hints, money-making ideas and good common sense.

There is no genuine reason why distributors of independent features should not reap the benefit of house-organ advertising, yet the fact remains that Mr. Seng has taken time by the forelock and as the pioneer is entitled to full credit for his enterprise, exhibitors who are not usually in very close touch with the manufacturers or distributors of their attractions, will undoubtedly appreciate this service of business-building ideas.

On the cover of the first issue appears the line, "A Service of Ideas," and a perusal of the contents proves that the title is appropriate. This newest house-organ will be issued every two weeks and will be kept up-to-date by the introduction of stories telling how the other fellow succeeded, together with reproductions of his advertising stunts.

One feature in particular that should appeal to every exhibitor is a page of program copy showing how the Rialto theatre, in New York, advertised "Parentage" the week before and the week of the showing.

Victor M. Shapiro, whose campaign of trade paper advertising received such favorable comment, is editing "The Parentage Messenger."

St. Louis Foursquare Exchange Is Open

The St. Louis Foursquare Exchange, the first of the many branches to be established by M. H. Hoffman, Inc., formally opened its offices last week in the Empress Building, in charge of Sidney J. Baker. Mr. Baker is one of the best known salesman in the middle west territory and was for a number of years identified with Bluebird photo-plays, and made a record in selling these pictures.

Before the signs on the St. Louis Foursquare Exchange were fairly dry, Mr. Baker had booked "The Ear Smider" and "The Sin Woman" and lined up a sufficient number of prospects on these two features alone to insure a very handsome business for his July account.

This Foursquare Exchange will cover the states of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, and will form one of the so-called "Service Stations," which are being established to give the exhibitor what he wants when he wants it and at a reasonable price.

Patriotic Picture Handled by Piedmont

The Piedmont Picture Corporation, successor to the Hawk Film Company, New York, is handling "How Uncle Sam Prepared to Help the Allies," five reels, for the world with the exception of the United States.

The company announces that buyers interested in the foreign market can see the picture screened at its office whenever they desire to inspect the subject. The picture was produced by the Hanover Film Company, New York City, with the assistance and under the direction of government officials, and is now in use for recruiting purposes.

IS THE TERM "STATE RIGHTS" AN ANTIQUE?

Numerous independents have told Motion Picture News that it is.

"State Rights," they say, "does not express the importance of this field today. The term brings to exhibitors bad recollections of the early fly-by-night state rights days. It should be thrown in the scrap heap in the day when independent producers and distributors are so big a factor in the film world."

Ralph O. Proctor, of the Chicago Art Dramas Service, is among the exchange men who have expressed their opinions to Motion Picture News. "State Rights," he declares, "is a term that is holding the independent market back. The field will never reach its full development until we have forgotten the words."

What do you think? Come on—start the ball rolling! Let us hear your views and get a real hot discussion underway. Shoot a few lines to the stenographer now—today.

Lesser Office in New York Head-quarters for State Rights Convention

The office of Sol L. Lesser at 532 Long- acre Building, New York City, which will be the temporary headquarters of the new National Organization of State Right Buyers, is busy arranging appointments for interviews with Mr. Lesser upon his arrival in August, for the consideration of the deluge of propositions and offers pouring in since the announcement of the establishment of the organization. Some of the most prominent film concerns have submitted offers and have requested interviews.

Sol L. Lesser has a two-fold purpose in making his next trip East, which will bring him here about the first of August. Firstly, to attend the convention of the National Organization of State Right Buyers, now being promoted by him, which will take place on August 7th; secondly, to purchase feature productions independently for his All Star Features Distributors, Inc., of San Francisco, Cal.

This develops the fact that Mr. Lesser's connection with the new enterprise in no way interferes with his intention to continue purchasing independently, as well as under the National Organization.

Beadel in Charge of "Allah"

Salesmen in Seven States

Ben W. Beadel has been appointed by the Allen Film Corporation, Chicago, special representative, with supervision of the salesmen handling "The Garden of Allah" in seven states for which the company controls the rights to the picture.

Upon the organization of the Allen Company, F. C. Aitken, general manager, made Mr. Beadel the offer, which he felt afforded him an unusual opportunity to become acquainted with conditions in the entire Middle West.

For a number of years Mr. Beadel was the special representative of the Essanay Company. Later he became affiliated with the General Film Company and K-E-S-E, Inc., holding important positions. It was in these various capacities that he was enabled to meet and make friends with practically every exhibitor in Chicago and the surrounding territory.

Rosenberg Visits Seattle

Mike Rosenberg, general manager Deluxe Feature Film Company, of Seattle, is in Los Angeles for a stay of several weeks for the purpose of getting acquainted with future productions being made for the independent market. Mr. Rosenberg visits the Los Angeles producing field every six months, and makes a trip to New York at about the same intervals, and finds it greatly to his advantage in the matter of keeping in touch with conditions.
Radical Changes in Southern Territory Necessary

Texas, Southern Oklahoma, Inclusive of Oklahoma City, Arkansas from Little Rock South, and Western Louisiana as Far East as Alexandria, Should Be One Section, with an Exchange in Dallas

By Jesse J. Goldberg

This is the last article of the state rights series written especially for Motion Picture News by Jesse J. Goldberg.

After an absence of three months, Mr. Goldberg, specially engaged by the Frohman Amusement Corporation as exploitation and service manager, has returned to New York after completing a tour of the entire United States in the interest of that company, rendering service to state rights buyers of extraordinary attractions, inclusive of the last release of that company, "God's Man!"

Mr. Goldberg is one of the pioneer producers of features in the country, and is credited with having written and exploited some of the most popular features released on the state rights basis.

By the agreement made with the Frohman Amusement Corporation, Mr. Goldberg's business with that company was a special engagement.

"As to my future plans," stated Mr. Goldberg, "I have not definitely determined my future connections or activities. My association with the Frohman Amusement Corporation has been more than pleasant, as it necessarily must be with every one who comes in contact with Wm. L. Sherrill, its president. My present desire is to continue that activity in the producing end of the motion picture business, which has been characteristic of my connections with the industry from the beginning."

Mr. Goldberg's detailed report on conditions in the motion picture field, as rendered to Mr. Sherrill, has been pronounced a valuable contribution to the progress of the industry, by the few who have been privileged to read it. Based upon that report, certain innovations and radical changes in producing and business policy are being inaugurated by the Frohman Company, tending mainly to the production of extraordinary attractions of sure-fire box-office value.

The traditional apathy, or should I say the fictional apathy, that is attributed to commercial and industrial endeavor in the South does not in any event apply to the field of motion pictures. The South is altogether progressive, and because of that, rendered profitable, not alone in the state rights exploitation of pictures, but as well in the exhibition of them.

To those not acquainted with this territory, it might sound strange when the truth is recorded that exhibition rentals and length of runs are maintained at a higher average than anywhere in the country, not excepting New York. The disadvantage, however, lies in the fact that there are such large areas of uninhabited sections.

The territorial division should be radically changed from the state rights territorial lines as they have been heretofore established. Since the beginning, when state rights were first inaugurated, the South has been divided into just two sections; the northern tier and the southern tier, and even in some instances has the entire South been grouped as one state rights section. This has been unfair, not alone to the manufacturer, but as well to the exhibitor. This, because of the fact that an exchange either purchasing the entire South as a whole, or in two sections never operated with more than two prints, so that exhibitors in cities in the second and third class or in smaller communities either did not receive productions worth while playing, or, when it did come their turn, the exchange refusing to invest in another print, played a print that because of its worn condition, was fit only for the scrap heap.

The logical division of this territory should be into three parts, each operating with a print. My reasons for this division are numerous, in fact too numerous to mention. But since the readers of Motion Picture News are essentially interested in the conclusions, permit me to set them forth:

Texas, southern Oklahoma, inclusive of Oklahoma City, Arkansas from Little Rock south, and western Louisiana, as far east as Alexandria, should constitute one territorial allotment with the exchange operating at Dallas, Texas.

Eastern Louisiana, Mississippi, southern Alabama, as far north as Montgomery, and the western peninsula of Florida inclusive of Pensacola with the exchange operating from New Orleans should constitute a second division.

Tennessee, northern Alabama, Georgia, that part of Florida not embraced in the New Orleans territory, and North and South Carolina, should constitute the third division. The northern portion of Oklahoma, heretofore embraced in the Texas territory, inclusive of Tulsa and Muskogee, should be taken out of the southern territory altogether, and transferred to the Kansas City territory. The answer to this is seen in the statement that Tulsa, for instance, is but a few hours from Kansas City.

Now this territorial division seems radically different from the divisions heretofore accepted by state rights producers, largely because some one, somewhere, at some time, sold a picture with territorial divisions created because of financial necessity of the manufacturer rather than because of consistency or propriety.

My division will call for the operation of three prints and will remedy at least one existing evil in this territory; the showing of an emasculated single print.

The photoplay-going public in the South are discriminating and enthusiastic. They want the best, put on in the best manner possible, and the theatre owners have a desire to cater to the wishes of their patrons. One-day runs in the larger cities are a rarity.

There are not sufficient numbers of responsible state rights buyers in this territory. State rights manufacturers have not encouraged or developed this territory as they should. I attribute this largely to the fact that they have been accepting the word of a misleading few that the South "is rotten territory," and that the heat in the summer season is business altogether. This is false. There is as much business done down here in mid-July and August as in any other month of the year. What to a northerner would appear to be unbearable hot weather, is reckoned here as comfortable. The population is used to it, and in this connection let me say that the manufacturer and distributor of motion pictures fails to recognize one thing in the making or exploiting of their attractions, and that is, while human nature may be the same the world over, temperament in peoples is different.

This is my concluding article on State Rights Territorial Division, excepting my comments on the New York territory, and with respect to that I shall merely give my conclusions based on a more intimate connection than that which I possess with respect to any other state in the Union. As a consistent state rights producer, never deviating from a firm enthusiasm for state rights productions ever since I was connected with the industry, let me say that Greater New York, including all the territory in Westchester County and on Long Island, should form one field; so much of New York north of Westchester County, to and inclusive of Schenectady, should form a second territory, and the balance of northern New York on a line running from Schenectady west to Buffalo, and north to the Canadian line should form a third. New York state is logically a minimum three print territory.

In this concluding article let me voice this expression: The motion picture industry from every legitimate standpoint has never been in a more flourishing or Backer Closes "Who's Your Neighbor?" for 11 States

ONE of the largest single deals recently closed in the stage rights field has been concluded by Franklyn E. Backer, president of the Mammoth Film Corporation, with the purchase of one of the season's best pictures, "Who's Your Neighbor?" for eleven Western states—namely, Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, El Paso, Texas, and also his home state of New Jersey, in which he first began his operations in the feature field.

Mr. Backer will exploit "Who's Your Neighbor" in the West by means of road companies, each war fully equipped to play the legitimate theatres on a percentage basis. Many novel publicity methods have been evolved to properly "put over" the feature. Each company will carry a press agent to exploit the film locally.

H. O. Martin leaves for the Coast in a few days to arrange the bookings which have come in rapidly during the past week. It is said that one of the largest theatres in the West has been booked at a straight rental of ten thousand dollars for four consecutive months.

Historic Ground Is Battle

At Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, on the same ground that the Revolutionary and British troops fought during the war of 1776, a battle scene was staged last week for the S-M Films Corporation of Philadelphia. The scene was part of "For Liberty," an eight-reel patriotic feature by Capt. Edwin Hesser, starring F. K. Lincoln and Romaine Fielding in the characters of young Americans who enlisted in the American Legion of the Canadian army at the war's outbreak. The military side will be perfect in every detail, being made under the direct supervision of Capt. Hesser, who personally laid out the trenches to duplicate exactly those used on the front lines in France.

"Whither Thou Goest" for Loew

Harry A. Samwick, who bought the New York state rights to "Whither Thou Goest," from Klotz and Streimer, Inc., has booked the picture for the Marcus Loew chain of theatres for showings that total over sixty-six continuous days.

The fact that the Loew houses have given this production bookings that include all of the theatres in the chain speaks well for the quality of the picture, says Mr. Samwick. He purchased the rights before the feature had been assembled in its finished form and embellished by artistic titles.

Scene for Hesser Subject

Every detail of the battle has been worked out by the Pain Fireworks Company, the concern which arranged the explosives for the battle scenes in "The Birth of a Nation." Absolute realism will be the keynote, it is said, and specimens of star bombs, trench grenades, catapults and many other war devices, loaned by the Canadian war authorities, have been duplicated in quantity by the Pain Company for use in the picture.

Many of the big military scenes were taken in Canada with the full co-operation of the military authorities. The film will be one of the big surprises of the year, for everybody has heard of the magnitude of the Pain pyrotechnics.

Fireproof Home for New Haven Exchanges

New Haven has a new fireproof building, the Film Exchange Building, erected especially for the trade by John P. Kilweather. It is four stories high, and built on his own property in Meadow street, near the railway stations and theaters.

Stock rooms, accessory rooms, rewinding rooms and offices are all separated by 18-inch cement walls. Universal, Morris Joseph, manager; Paramount, Henry T. Scully, manager, and Mutual, M. H. Goldstein, manager, have moved in. General Film has signed for a floor.

Star of "Alma," Newfields Picture, Sings at Tobacco Benefit

Ruth MacTammany, the young American operatic star, who was such a success in Europe before war conditions, forced her to return to America, appeared at the Winter Garden benefit on Sunday night, July 22, for the New York Sun Tobacco Fund for American Soldiers on duty overseas. Miss MacTammany sang "Alma, Sweet Alma, Oh! Where Do You Live?" the internationally known song hit from the operatic opera, "Alma," which has just been filmed in six reels, by the Newfields Producing Corporation.

On the screen, Ruth MacTammany's beauty stands out marvelously, and she is an absolutely new type in addition. Her wide foreign training in emotional roles and stage technique have greatly aided her in motion picture work.

The singing of "Alma" at the benefit was the first time in several years that a Broadway audience had heard the catchy number. All the advertising for "Alma, Where Do You Live?" as a picture, is being linked up with the play and song.

"Fall of Romanoffs," True to Life Is Brenon Aim

Herbert Brenon wants "The Fall of the Romanoffs" not only to be of historical value in this country; and throughout the world, but especially in Russia.

Realizing that inattention to detail and failure to observe the habits of Russian daily life with which every Russian is familiar would practically kill the picture from an historical angle in Russia, and would therefore be practically useless to the Russian people, Mr. Brenon is taking great pains to follow every detail closely.

Russian experts have been called in to supervise all scenes in which a slight deviation from the correct would mean ruination, such as religious and state ceremonies, or in any scenes in which customs, distinctly Russian are brought into use.

Costumes and uniforms are being copied minutely by those well versed in the wearing apparel of the Russians.
Composer Is Pleased with Music for "Curse of Eve"

"The most appropriate and beautiful music that I have ever played in motion picture accompaniment." This is the verdict of Bruce Gordon Kingsley, who for the past three years has been one of the leading organists of the Los Angeles theatres, on the music written by Louis Gottschalk to accompany "The Curse of Eve." Dr. Kingsley played the score at a special showing of the film, and was highly enthusiastic over the way the music had been made to fit the picture.

The Biblical prologue to "The Curse of Eve," which depicts the creation of the world, gave to composer Gottschalk a tremendous theme upon which to work. As the picture moves from the opening scenes of chaos, through the awe-inspiring scenes of the creation and into the pictorially beautiful Garden of Eden story, the music rises to deafening crescendoes and then softens into a more beautiful theme.

The creation scenes, which themselves are innovations in the photography of natural effects, furnished the composer with material for something entirely new in photoplay music, and, according to Dr. Kingsley, Mr. Gottschalk has accomplished a splendid musical composition.

healthful condition. Men with real business ability and possessing business ethics predominate in every branch of the industry. There are yet some weeds in our garden, which must be pulled out; there are yet some men particularly in the exchange end, who are parasites—awaiting every opportunity to "put one over," and whose word is absolutely valueless.

The further away from New York they are, the more secure they feel in their position, but I have tabulated this all, and without engaging in slander, and because of my firm devotion to the art of motion picture production, and the business of exploitation, I shall, as time progresses, give other manufacturers the benefit of my knowledge to the end that these interlopers may be forever banished from the field of motion picture endeavor.

Quality Wants Pictures on Percentage

The Quality Film Service, Milwaukee, Wis., which has established an excellent pattern in its section of the country and is in a position to exploit pictures on the state rights plan to good advantage, is in the market to consider the handling of pictures in the state of Wisconsin on a percentage basis.

Moyer to Manage Foursquare in Quaker City

Jerome Abrams, personal representative of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., has left for Philadelphia to open the Foursquare Philadelphia Exchange, where J. E. Moyer is to be installed as branch manager.

Negotiations are now pending for a number of important releases for both summer and fall of the M. H. Hoffman product.

Alice Howell Comedies for Showing on 27th

"Balloonatics," "Automaniaxes," and "Neptune's Naughty Daughter"

HAVING purchased the selling rights to Century Comedies, in which Alice Howell is the star, the Longacre Distributing Company has arranged to give a trade showing of three completed Century subjects at the Broadway theatre, New York, Friday morning, July 27, at 10:30 o'clock. The three comedies to be screened at that time are "Balloonatics," "Automaniaxes," and "Neptune's Naughty Daughter"—movies that have previously been shown only at the Strand, New York, on pre-release.

The Longacre Distributing Company arranged last week with Julius Stern and J. G. Blystone, general manager and director-general of Century Comedies, to take over the selling rights to the Alice Howell comedies. Distribution will begin early in September, the interim being employed in establishing distributing branches throughout the United States and Canada.

Julius Stern introduced Alice Howell as a screen star in J. G. Blystone's comedies two months ago, when the Century brand was projected on the market for independent distribution.

"Alice of the Sawdust," is the fourth comedy that has been completed with Miss Howell as the star, but factory work on the subject will not be sufficiently advanced to warrant showing it at the Broadway, Friday morning. Three comedies, for a total of six reels, will then be screened.

Bud Fisher Personally Directs Sale of "Mutt and Jeff"

THE new Mutt and Jeff series will be released under the direct supervision of Bud Fisher, their creator, and territory is selling fast.

One of the first territories to be sold was the entire South, which was purchased during the past week by William Oldknow, of Atlanta, Ga., who is the general manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company and is going to exploit them in a big way throughout the South.

He was in New York during the past week and after seeing "The Submarine Chaser," the first of the series, booked the remainder of the series on the strength of this one.

The territory he has contracted for includes North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma, Texas, southern New Mexico and eastern Arizona.

The Regal Films, Limited, of Montreal, have purchased the entire rights for Canada, while the entire rights of Mexico have been bought by the Tavares-Kalb Company.

Each of these subjects run about 500 feet in length.

For the time being Bud Fisher is going to devote all of his time exclusively to Mutt and Jeff films, but he has an open mind and is willing to purchase any picture that looks good to him which he will release under the trade mark of the Bud Fisher Film Corporation.

"It is a strange coincidence that the California rights for the new series have not been sold yet," remarked the cartoonist the other day. "But it shouldn't surprise me any, for as I came from there I can appreciate the old adage that a prophet is without honor, etcetera. It is remarkable how this new series have taken hold. I am being deluged with offers and requests daily. They are coming in from all over the country and prove to me that if a man has what the exhibitor wants he need have no fear about selling it."

"This new series is like special pride in presenting, for I have spent a great deal of time and thought over them. Every one of them will be right up to the standard set by the first one."

"The Strand is going to run the entire series, and it is very probable that before another week has rolled around the Rialto theatre will also be showing them. This makes it rather bad for me, as I have to pay Messrs. Mutt and Jeff double salaries for playing two houses of such excellent standing."

The advertising and publicity for the new series is being handled by Shepard and Van Loan, who have planned a very unique campaign for these comics.

"The Submarine Chasers" is the title of the first picture in the new series.

Hoffman Plans Campaign for Two Subjects in the Fall

M. H. Hoffman, Inc., New York City, is planning an extensive advertising campaign for two features in the Fall. The first is "The Fringe of Society," now in work by the George Backer Film Corporation. Ruth Rowland and Milton Sills are to co-star in this first Backer-Foursquare picture. Others in the cast are Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, Ollie Kirkby, George Larkin and Jules Cowles, who also do the role of Buck Moe in "The Bar Sinister."

The second subject, set for release in September, is "The Silent Witness," for which the company acquired the world rights from the Author's Film Company. Gertrude McCoy is the star.
Selig Disposes of More "Garden of Allah" Territory

THE Selig Polyscope Company announces the complete sales of territorial rights up-to-date for "The Garden of Allah" as follows:

It is stated that some choice territory is still open and the company invites inquiries from state rights buyers.

A special musical score was written for rendition by a complete orchestra at the premier given "The Garden of Allah" at the Colonial in Chicago on July 22. The opening occurred under the direction of the Edmund M. Allen Film Corporation.

In honor of the occasion Leo Feist, Inc., had ready a song based on the Selig production.

Double for General Korniloff in "Romanoffs"

AFTER a search lasting over two weeks, during which time George Hall, casting director for Herbert Brenon, interviewed over 200 film players, an exact double for General Korniloff, the famous Russian officer who led the new Revolutionary troops to victory in the recent offensive against the Austrians, has been found and will play an important role in "The Fall of the Romanoffs."

In the original scenario of the picture General Korniloff was named as one of the characters who is in all of the scenes depicting the recent Revolution. A well-known actor had been engaged for the role, but when General Korniloff leaped into the limelight by his sensational victory of a few days ago, Mr. Brenon decided that the actor he had engaged would not do, as he wanted an exact duplicate of this important personage.

A scene photographed during the past week reveals the coterie of mystics, necromancers and fakers of all kinds who are said to have had a mysterious influence on the Czar. Every sort of weird character from midgets to circus dwarfs were collected to play in this portion of the feature. One of the big scenes of the picture representing a famous orgy conducted by Rasputin, the religious charlatan who held the Czar and Czarina in his power, is being taken this week and will employ over 200 extra people.

Baier Buys "A Slacker's Heart"

The Walter A. Baier Film Company, Toy Building,Milwaukee, has just closed a deal whereby it obtains the rights for Wisconsin to the seven-reel Emerald Motion Picture Company's "A Slacker's Heart."

This production was made under the auspices of the Wisconsin Defense League, and has closed a two weeks' run at the Crystal theatre, Milwaukee, where it played at twenty-five cents admission and is in great demand just now.

"Who's Your Neighbor?" Interests Film Men

A large number of exhibitors attending the Chicago convention showed a great deal of interest in "Who's Your Neighbor?" according to a telegram received by the Master Drama Features, Inc., from Herman Becker, Maurice H. Bob and Samuel Krellberg, sponsors for the pictures.

Interest among state rights buyers and exhibitors for "Who's Your Neighbor?" is keen, according to Mr. Becker's telegram. Every exhibitor and state rights buyer of note at the convention expressed a desire to see "Who's Your Neighbor?" and accordingly immediate arrangements were made for a special screening.

In his telegram Mr. Becker further stated that exhibitors at the convention said that the country was ripe at this time for a feature of the character of "Who's Your Neighbor?" so that it undoubtedly would prove one of the big money-makers.

Algonia Plays Pictures on Percentage

The Algonia Feature Film, Inc., Charleston, S. C., George S. Brantley, manager, handling pictures on the independent plan, is open for offers from buyers on a percentage basis. The company covers North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

The company only handles features in that territory and, as a consequence, is in a position to reach the best theatres in the section.

Cummins Sells "Race Suicide" for New York

Samuel Cummins, film broker, Longacre Building, New York City, who specializes in disposing of features, has sold over to him by other agents, has sold the upper New York territory for "Race Suicide" to Joseph Hopper, of Corning, N. Y., for the Phax Picture Company, New York City.

Mastbaum Buys “Hercules” for Autumn Showing

Leon Schlesinger, manager of the Cinema Distributing Corporation, 220 West Forty-second street, New York City, announces that “The 13th Labor of Hercules” has been sold to Stanley Mastbaum, president of the Stanley Theater Company, for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey.

Harvey Day, manager for the Peerless Film Exchange in Philadelphia, which handles the Stanley features, reviewed the entire series of “The 13th Labor of Hercules” and remarked that he had never before witnessed a series of pictures of this nature which contained so many interesting subjects, and contained so much action combined with timely interest.

The Stanley Company announces the series to be released in the early fall in its houses in series form, one a week.

Hirsh Reports Big Business for “Hate”

Nathan Hirsh, president of the Civilization Pioneer Film Corporation, New York City, who recently acquired the exclusive distributing rights for the photodrama, based on pre-natal influence, entitled “Hate,” produced by the Fairmount Film Corporation, reports that this picture has established a record for summer business.

Among the big circuits which have already contracted for this picture are the Loew chain, which have booked it solid for sixty-five days. Several other circuits are at the present time negotiating for a run on this picture.

Foursquare Films Go Well in Hot Weather

Jerome Abrams, personal representative for the M. H. Hoffman, Inc., spent one day last week in the home office, New York. He brought with him from his travels in New York state and Pennsylvania, some very desirable contracts which would seem to prove the truth of the Hoffman-Foursquare assertion that good pictures sell at any time, no matter what the weather.

Mr. Abrams found business exceptionally good on “The Bar Sinister,” “The Sin Woman,” “Madame Sherry” and “Her Fighting Chance.”

Blumenthal Now Ready to Push Plans for “Robespierre”

Plans that have been held in abeyance for some time owing to the uncertainty of steamship sailings are now ready for market introduction by Ben Blumenthal, head of the Export and Import Company, which is exploiting “Robespierre” and “Ivan the Terrible” in American territory.

Last week a steamer brought in several negatives, among them being three seven-reel productions, founded on the works of famous authors. Lyda Borelli, the international star, plays the principal roles in two of the subjects. Mr. Blumenthal has set to work preparing the pictures for the market.

Among the new attractions to which the concern has acquired the rights is a six-reel drama, with Lyda Borelli, entitled “From the Great Beyond.” This is founded on the novel “Malombra,” by Antonio Fogazzaro. It is built upon psychic lines, andLyda Borelli plays the role of a girl with two souls. On the arrival of the print it was placed in work for titling, but the subject of metempsychosis stumped the would-be titlers completely. Other channels were tried, but finally the services of Leon J. Rubenstein were contracted for and he interpolated a set of titles which reduce the scientific elements of the picture to the easy understanding of the layman, hence a beautiful picture.

Mr. Blumenthal has been holding a series of conferences with state rights buyers relative to “Robespierre” and “Ivan the Terrible,” and it has practically been decided that both are to go into a Broadway theatre for a run. It will soon be announced that they will open the season at first-class houses which have never before offered a film attraction. The purpose of this is that both “Robespierre” and “Ivan the Terrible” will be given a run for profit, instead of using the metropolitan engagement at a loss to inflate the value of territorial rights. Mr. Blumenthal proposes to put both over for a successful run, and the first two weeks will decide about similar engagements in other cities.

“Redemption” Is Booked for Over 1,000 Days

The popularity of Julius Steger’s “Redemption,” featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell Thaw, is exemplified by the fact that over 1,000 days of booking have already been arranged for the subject in the territory sold to date.

The film has been booked already for 400 consecutive days in New York City alone, where it will be shown in all the Marcus Loew theatres and Keith and Proctor houses, and all other large theatres. In New Jersey over 125 days have already been booked, to start August 15. In Illinois Jones, Liniek and Schaefer have already booked it for 223 days, and further bookings are coming in constantly. Sufficient bookings have been arranged in Pennsylvania to bring the total up to 1,000 days.

An indication of the drawing power of ‘Redemption’ was the business done by the film at the Far Rockaway theatre, Far Rockaway, New York, last week,” says Mr. Steger. “Manager Silverman stated that the house was crowded at every one of four performances each day, and he turned away at least 1,500 a day.

All records for attendance and receipts were broken at the Broad street theatre, Newark, and every other theatre that has shown the film played to unusual business and profits.”

It will open at the Auditorium, Baltimore, for a long run, on August 6.

Triple Exposure Taken 20 Times for “Neighbor”

A triple exposure which makes a record for the number of times necessary for it to satisfy a director is one of the many photographic features of “Who’s Your Neighbor?” now being state-righted by the Master Drama Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York City.

Laboratory experts say that this triple exposure is one of the finest things of its kind ever done. It is a delicate piece of work, requiring such perfect timing to the fraction of a second and perfect synchronization that it had to be taken twenty times before the result was satisfactory to Director S. Rankin Drew. But after everything is said and done the perfect results attained amply recompense for every endeavor spent.

Scenes from the First Release of the Russian Art Films, “The Queen of Spades”
Standard, Kansas City, Plans Campaign for King-Bees

THE Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., R. C. Cropper, president, which recently bought the rights to the Billy West comedies for the extensive territory covered by the company, has authorized an aggressive advertising and publicity campaign to aid exhibitors booking the pictures in the Middle West.

P. L. Ryan, advertising and sales manager of the company, announces that he has issued to his staff of salesmen a complete digest of the best means to bring before exhibitors the show qualities of the comedies. This digest takes the form of seven or eight pages of closely written typewritten material, wherein are incorporated all the latest wrinkles, the newest ideas and business-getting stunts calculated to stimulate the sales force to energetic endeavors to bring the Standard Film Corporation prominently to the fore and make the King-Bees hum.

In getting up the Billy West Campaign Book Mr. Ryan kept in mind the needs of the practical exhibitor. The campaign book gives the exhibitor virtually everything he needs to understand about the Billy West comedy program to put it over in the way to attract money. It is printed in four colors. There is a great deal of artists' work, reproductions of posters, photos, cuts of scenes and novelties furnished. Everything that the exhibitor will require is furnished by the Standard at a cost price, and one that is fair and square.

A large staff of artists have been working on the cuts and plates for the campaign book, and their work is now almost completed, so that the book will very shortly be off the press. The book contains new and up-to-date information regarding newspaper advertising. These last are also presented for the exhibitor's approval in the book. Complete details regarding a thirty thousand dollar newspaper advertising appropriation are furnished, together with full information as to how this amount will be expended to the exhibitor's advantage. Reproductions of all newspaper advertising is shown in detail.

Thirty thousand dollars is to be divided among twenty newspapers which effectively cover the wide portion of the territory covered by the Standard, and those papers will carry advertising of various and original types, designed to interest the public as well as the exhibitor in Billy West. This, combined with the amount of publicity already received by the comedian and by his comedies, means that 51 per cent of the success of motion pictures—advertising—is being well taken care of in this particular case.

"Before purchasing distributing rights on the Billy West Comedies Mr. Cropper inquired into the success of their distribution by other exchanges and received not a single discouraging letter or telegram in response to this inquiry," says Mr. Ryan. "In their offices, the exchanges which have distributed the comedy program remarked that they were having decided success and were glad to be able to say that they regarded the Billy West proposition as the biggest thing in sight."

Mr. Cropper was recently in Chicago for the reconstruction of the Art Dramas Serv-

Glickman Knows All Exhibitors in His Territory

L. S. Glickman, manager of the Interstate Film Company, Waco, Texas, booking among exhibitors of Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas, the B. S. Moss productions, is known to every exhibitor in his territory. Glickman was formerly connected with the World Exchange, at Dallas. This Spring he severed connections with the World shortly after becoming assistant manager and made connections with the Interstate as roadman. During that period he made the acquaintance of the theatre managers in Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

500 Interested in Sherman Films at Chicago

Harry A. Sherman, president of the Sherman Pictures Corporation, New York City, while in Chicago to attend the convention, made a bid on a feature which he will soon launch. The title of the picture has not been announced.

Mr. Sherman showed to state rights buyers "I Believe" and "The Land of the Rising Sun." The manner in which these two pictures have been advertised brought results, according to Edward O'Donnell of the company. He states that no less than five hundred inquiries in person were made at the Sherman headquarters in Chicago during the progress of the convention.

Stahl Will Make Comedies

After completing the feature, "Hate," and seeing the production launched on a successful state rights campaign, Walter R. Stahl, tendered his resignation as assistant manager of the Smilin' Star Pictures Corporation, based at Roland Hill, and predicts a great future for this new funny man. Mr. Stahl several years ago, was one of the leading comedy directors, but deserted the realms of laugh producers for the more serious side of the profession. While the call of his first love has lured him back.
Interest Displayed in "Peggy" by Buyers and Exhibitors

In spite of the numerous letters and telegrams which have been received at the offices of Mayfair Film Corporation, New York City, regarding its first production starring Peggy Hyland, "Peggy," M. A. Schlesinger is amazed at the interest displayed by state rights buyers and exhibitors.

The executives had the greatest faith in Miss Hyland's popularity and realized the strides it has taken, but they did not know what a great asset she has proven herself to be to the box-office," says an officer of the company. This fact has been clearly brought home by the unusual interest displayed by the people at the Chicago convention.

The story of "Peggy," has also attained much favor in both magazine and exhibition circles and for many are well acquainted with the charming story of Maravene Thompson and one and all declare it well adapted to the screen.

Miss Hyland, who will soon be seen in "Peggy," explained the other day that ever since the entered pictures it has been her desire to star in vehicles not based on sordid topics.

"Naturally," she said, "when one works for companies in which they have no authority beyond the say which every star naturally has, there is little choice in the sort of story in which one is cast. And in these days one finds most of the manuscripts submitted of anything but a refreshing nature."

"Even before I came to America, I had made up my mind to finally reach a place where I could play in the sort of stories making an appeal to me through their wholesomeness. Books which I read and thought would make sweet spot plays were stored away for future reference and my every move was directed in the same way."

A. Kay Company Buys Negative of "Doing Their Bit"

The A. Kay Company announces to the trade that it has secured from the Premier Motion Picture Company, of San Antonio, Texas, the negative of the picture entitled "Doing Their Bit." The negative is now being assembled and developed, and a large number of prints are being printed for general exploitation. The original negative of "Doing Their Bit" contains about 5,000 feet, but it has been made into a three-reeler. The picture, as the name implies, is a patriotic venture into motion pictures, and shows our boys in the various training camps of the South going through the training they must have preliminary to their going onto the field of battle.

One of the main features in the picture are the many scenes showing the mobilization of the National Guard. This particular part of the picture was four months in the making, and the result is a brief pictorial study of the ways and means connected with the mobilizing of our troops in an emergency. There were favorable weather conditions down South during the taking of the picture and a most effective bit of photography has been secured.

Mailing Campaign Is Aid to "Lincoln Cycle"

Charter Features Corporation Gets in Touch with Twenty-Five Thousand Film People Before Completing Rental Plans

BENJAMIN CHAPIN, president of the Charter Features Corporation, is a believer in most painstaking care and absolute thoroughness in every branch of the process of making and marketing a motion picture.

As a result, he spent years in the production of the "Lincoln Cycle"; for this reason, also, he has conducted an unbroken advertising campaign of unexampled magnitude for many months, in this way familiarizing exhibitors, exchanges and public as well as the state rights buyers with every detail of the proposition he had to offer them.

"We realized that we had to get a response from the trade," said Mr. Chapin, in discussing the means used by his company to bring the picture before the public, "and knew that we could not stop at the laudatory notices of the critics in the important New York dailies. Personal contact is, of course, the best way of reaching exhibitors, but a producer cannot go personally to twenty-five thousand motion picture people in the United States and Canada; so we did the next best thing: we wrote to each and every man whom we considered big enough to appreciate the value of what we had to offer and whom we might reasonably expect to be interested in our pictures. We wrote to each exhibitor of importance, to know if he wanted our pictures, and how much he would pay for them."

"Not that it was our intention to express the pictures to him. No; but you can easily see that when we turned over a batch of requests for rental of the 'Lincoln Cycle' in a certain state to a state rights buyer, assuring him of certain bookings, without the cost of one cent for salesmen or otherwise, that buyer would see the practical commercial value of our pictures, and would be the more anxious to obtain the territory."

"We sent out two hundred thousand pieces of mailing matter last week—sent this material to particular persons in particular places; and fifty thousand in the week previous—and I don't know how many will go out next week."

"This is why I can make such favorable contracts with exchanges and state rights buyers. I have a market to offer them, in addition to that part of the market which their own initiative and selling ability will open to them."

"Make 'Em Roar" Comes from Someone with a "Lion"

FILM folk who have been in the Godfrey, Mecca, Leavitt and Masonic buildings, which are the homes of several of the biggest film concerns in the film industry, have heard much gossip of late, about a certain "Make 'Em Roar" phrase. Not only has this phrase been heard in these buildings, but in other films circles as well, the phrase seems to have wide circulation. And the funny part of it is that no one seems to have any idea from whence the phrase came.

"Make 'Em Roar," an important slogan in one of the big picture business is punning post card on which is legibly written the following:

"We just got a 'lion' on something big. Beginning next week, watch all Motion Picture Trade Papers, "Make 'Em Roar,"—that's what they're going to do. The quicker you get wise the better. No telling how your competitor will close for them, while you are only thinking about it. In time of War, act quick."

"MAKE 'EM ROAR"

According to the above, we find that the trade papers are carrying advertising about the "Make 'Em Roar" phrase. The layout in the advertisement is nothing more than a fierce-looking lion with the phrase "Make 'Em Roar" underneath. Certainly a lion can roar, but its connection with the motion-picture business is puzzling.

According to the card, something is going to "Make 'Em Roar," but what will "Make 'Em Roar" is not made plain. "Make 'Em Roar" is a short, snappy and comprehensible phrase which evidently stands for something, and everybody who has heard it mentioned is anxious to know what it means.

New York is Present and Future Export Center

Foreign Buyers Say Metropolis Will Hold Title Taken from London and Insist That Producers Get in Closer Touch with Market Conditions

NEW YORK having become in reality the film center of the world, through encroaching on the activities of film exporters who had before the war made London their headquarters, has every chance of maintaining supreme title in all lines of the picture business. The one "if" in the way is expressed by a half-dozen of the leading film exporters—"If the producers will do their part."

"New York is the center of the exporting business, and will stay so, though London will always occupy a leading position" is the way E. Mattsson, general manager of John Olsen & Co., Oversea Film Trading Company, put it last week. "It is a fact, however, that the producers will have to study the foreign markets far more closely. Conditions are different in each country—yet producers ask the same prices for their pictures in all the countries. The difficulties that arise from this can readily be seen."

The discrepancy in prices whereby the foreign markets can procure pictures from London at far less than the same pictures can be bought in America is pointed out by E. B. Howells, of Howells of London, as a big drawback to maintaining the volume of export trade in New York.

"In London the buyer can get the picture—any picture practically—at a fixed price, eight cents a foot. Here the price is several cents more. The producers also look over an opportunity when they 'throw in' territory on a sale. For instance, they sell England and the Orient combined. The Orient rights are practically given gratis. Were the territorial rights sold separately, the producers would get more. As a consequence of this method, the East looks to London to buy from for the London agent, paying practically nothing for the Orient rights, can afford to see at a lower price."

"London will try hard after the war to resume its old position in the export trade, but I believe New York will hold supremacy."

At variance with these opinions is the argument advanced by Millard Johnson, of Australasian Films, Ltd., who holds that London is the geographical center, and consequently will always have first place as a film market.

"New York is not conveniently situated as to ever occupy the position of film center of the world. London is but temporarily overshadowed as a clearing house due to wartime conditions" was Mr. Johnson's statement.

Carle E. Carlton, of Crest Pictures, sides with the majority. "The brains of the picture business are in New York. London will never again be so readily reckoned as a film business center—it can't come back. This city now has the title, and possession is nine-tenths of the law."

Howells Acquire Far East Rights for Several Big Pictures

In a quiet way, Benjamin F. and David P. Howells, who exploit films in the Orient and Australasia, have been introducing many of the better productions of leading manufacturers to their market of late.

Recent deals have given them control of "The Barrier," the Rex Beach feature, and "The Deemster" for all of India. They have also placed the "Jimmie Dale" series, of Mutual, in Dutch East India.

Howells Films have exclusive rights to Metro and Selznick features for the Orient. In addition they have the Oriental and Australasian rights to "The Round-Up."

David P. Howells is now in the Far East on his second trip to study the market, and learn exactly what is wanted in the way of big pictures.

Inter-Ocean Places Serials in Italy

For what is claimed to be the first time, American serial rights have been closed for Italy. The deal was put through by the Inter-Ocean Company, of which H. J. Brock is general manager. The subjects involved are "Crimson Stain Mystery" and "Perils of Our Girl Reporters." These serials have been placed by the same concern in France, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal and other Mediterranean countries.

"Bought and Paid For" goes into the Scandinavian countries through the Inter-Ocean concern.

Piedmont Company Placing Many Features

Much activity on the part of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, of which Felix Malitz is general manager and Joseph Lamy is export manager, resulted last week in the closing of a number of foreign deals.

Several big contracts were signed for South America and the Far East exploitation of "One Law for Roth," "The Mysteries of Myra" serial was placed in Brazil.

Exclusive rights for foreign distribution of Bray Cartoons in all countries except England, Argentina, Chili and Mexico were acquired by the Piedmont organization.

A deal was closed on "Jimmie Dale" for India, Ceylon and Burmah. "Warfare of the Flesh" was placed for Brazil, and a contract closed whereby Piedmont will place all Ivan pictures in Brazil.

In addition, contracts for Deanna and Thanhouser subjects will be handled by this corporation for South American countries.

Controls Chaplin Pictures in Antipodes for Second Year

The recent acquisition of sole Australian rights to all the pictures made by Charlie Chaplin for the Exhibitors' Association, by the Australasian Film Company, of which Millard Johnson is New York manager, is the second successful deal for the comedian's pictures made by this export firm.

The Australasian Company controlled the rights in the Antipodes to Chaplin's films during the time he was with Mutual.

Sub-Sea Spectacle Placed in Scandinavia

E. Mattsson, general manager of the New York office of John Olsen and Company, announced last week that he had placed "The Submarine Eye" in the Scandinavian countries. The Christie Comedies, Bray Cartoons and Pictographs were also placed in Scandinavia recently by this concern.

Several other big deal for features are said to be now under way.

Crest Places Mutual Film in Scandinavia

Carl E. Carlton, president of the Crest Pictures Corporation, announced last week that he had placed Mutual's "A Bit of Kindling," a Jackie Saunders Feature in Denmark, Norway and Sweden through Leif Gihlsson, representing J. L. Merlinc, Ltd., of Christiania, Norway.

The Crest Company controls foreign rights to many feature productions, among them operating "Joan the Woman" in South America; Mae Murray in "The Mormon Maid," "Her Fighting Chance," with Jane Grey and five features in which Jackie Saunders is starred.

The organization's activities take in practically all of the South America and the Scandinavian countries.
China, Awakening, Calls to American Picture Enterprise

Market Undeveloped but Offers Wide Opportunity—Idle Reels on American Shelves

Could be Sold to Advantage—Natives Anxious for Entertainment—Big Field Open

(The following survey of picture conditions in China, and the opportunities which are open to American films in that country, is drawn up from a letter written by a man in close touch with the foreign film market, and who but recently returned from China.)

PROPERLY handled, the Orient of the present day is regarded by well-posted film men as an avenue to sound business. As between China and Japan, the huge unsettled empire offers more of an opportunity for American products. The market is not a large one by any means, but it is a source of a certain revenue. There are to-day hundreds, even thousands of reels lying idle on shelves, that could be used to advantage over there. Films that have passed their usefulness in this country, that are no longer drawing cards and yet contain merit, could be exported and made to earn instead of being a dead investment.

There are three good houses in Shanghai open the year round and one open-air place of amusement which use pictures. It is evident that some sort of doing business may be placed in charge of things, for ignorance can ruin every prospect. American film men have suffered uncommonly through the mistaken idea of the "crooks" that have populated their offices.

Peking, Shanghai, Canton, Hongkong and other places up country are all good picture towns. The theatres in Shanghai are controlled by the Ramos Amusement Company, which gets most of its films from England. They are all old and any one who has seen an old English film knows what they are like. Pathé conducts an exchange in this city.

Hongkong has a number of good houses, and at the last directors' meeting a newsmen's letter was read in that city I went to see a film which was having quite a run, in fact had created a sort of sensation. Candidly, it was one of the sort that played the nickel houses about two years ago. A lurid "triangle" story that seems the main thing for every French plot. It was well enough done, considering what was considered good at the time it was made, but with the progress of motion pictures in the last few years it makes a poor picture.

I mentioned "Intolerance," at least the set I had seen in Hollywood, "The Birth of a Nation," and gave a few facts about it, and from nine o'clock that night until ten minutes of two the following morning, I crowded my little audience with the lore of motion pictures. The fact that they are made and the money which is spent. But at the last, one of the men asked, "Why do we never see any of the good American films over here?"

What could I say? Nothing. The man who asked pictures is from a city where an attentive listener, and he numbered the different houses and giving their prices of admission, summing the matter up very concisely. He did not expect to see massive things, but said just what I have said, that if some of the films which had outlined their usefulness in the States were sent over there he could see no reason why they would not make money, and neither can I.

From the information I gathered, labor, leases, almost everything was very cheap and the profit a good one. In Shanghai, the admission is about 25 to 60 cents, and the show runs about two or three hours. The foreigners and better class natives are good "film fans" and some of the natives see the range films night after night. Sensational films are the favorites of the Chinese, and the few Keystones which I saw were enthusiastically received. Canton has six theatres with a seating capacity averaging about 500, but when one of them is remodelled it will seat about 1,200. About a two-hour show with four performances a day is the rule, and the prices run from five to forty cents.

Some of the houses in Canton, home of the afternoon shows exclusively for the natives at a very cheap price and the nights are given over to the foreigners, and accordingly the price is doubled. The bill is changed with some frequency, and most of the films are rented from Shanghai or Hongkong. Some of the companies, like the Ramos, buy old films outright, run them in their theatres, then rent them until they are in shreds.

Macao, which is the Portuguese concession in China, has two or three houses, and the "Diamond from the Sky" and the "Million Dollar Mystery," about four reels of each, comprised the program of the main house there. Some of the subtitles were in French, to bolster the balance of the picture, which was in the English language. They had now purchased the Japanese and the American films, and some American films are different now. Just what they will be I am unable to say, but it is possible that American films would be popular there on account of the large number of Chinese, as Japanese films and the Japanese race are not in high standing with the Chinese.

"Postal Tips" Are Sharpened with Wisdom

HENRY GINSBERG, manager of the Short Features Exchange, New York City, has adopted a simple but effective mode of "follow up" advertising to keep the activities of his firm constantly before the exhibitor. He mails postal cards at intervals with snappy reminders, printed in type easy to read at arm's length.

The first card contains the words Postal Tips. Read them every week. They have meaning—with no reference to the exchange mailing the postal cards. By the time the theatre manager has ceased guessing which exchange is responsible for the mysterious message he receives a card signed with the name and address of the exchange, with the following words:

You know the scarcity of good subjects. You appreciate doing business with a regular firm. Well, then, why don't you give the name Short Features Exchange an opportunity on some of your checks? Believe us, you'll get your money's worth—and then some.

The second week the theatre receives a card with these words: Some exhibitors argue that a single reel is only a filler. The feature is what the people pay money to see. True. In one sense—the people pay money to see the feature, but many a good feature has been killed by a poor filler. Don't book fillers. Book a series of subjects from Short Features Exchange. If the first fails to "go over," go to it—throw the rest out. That's our way of doing business, and we look to results for the count.

By the time the exhibitor has thoroughly digested these ideas his mail brings him another postal card—Tip No. 3—with these sententious remarks: Let your box-office receipts rise with the temperature. Why let warm weather scare you? You were strong enough to show the Senate what a tax would mean. With better pictures why can't you give Old Man Warm Weather Cold Feet? Short Features Exchange offers its services to you in the form of a Real Assortment of Reel Reels.

Cleveland Screen Club Holds Big Picnic

The Cleveland Screen Club picnicked to its heart's content last Wednesday. Every one in it could produce a reason for an excuse was at the Metropolitan theatre at half past nine in the morning, while fifteen automobiles collected the excursionists and deposited them safely at Brett's Lake, Portage country.

All sorts of sports were indulged in, baseball, running, swimming and rowing. These were of a strictly amateurish nature. But there was nothing amateurish in the way the lunch was disposed of. They all fell to with trained precision when the dinner gong sounded. The same automobiles that took the merry makers out into the country brought them home again, a happy, contented, tired bunch.
Goldwyn Signs Marie Dressler for Eight Comics

Samuel Goldfish Conducts Successful Negotiations—Company Has Now Been at Work a Month—Comedienne Obtained Own Supporting Players

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, president of Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, announced from Chicago last week that his company is to distribute eight two-reel Marie Dressler comedies. Miss Dressler's own company has been working for more than a month in Fort Lee. A contract has been signed.

The policy of the comedienne will be to keep always six months ahead—which is the Goldwyn policy also. Mr. Goldfish's statement was of interest to branch managers in attendance at the exhibitors' exposition and to various exhibitors who are following closely the development and expansion of the Goldwyn interests.

Further announcement of a new and pleasant relationship in another direction is to be made by Mr. Goldfish within the next few days; this also has to do with Goldwyn's production of farce comedies of greater length by another important star.

Miss Dressler is one of the distinctive figures of the American stage who in her previous work at once established an equally important place for herself in the screen world. Unlike many of the stars who come from the stage, she secured and established her position with her very first motion picture.

Miss Dressler and James Dalton, her husband and manager, have gathered together a trained and equipped organization for the making of comedies and this organization promptly took advantage of the Goldwyn studio facilities in Fort Lee, and began work in late June on her first comedy.

Miss Dressler's longer comedy productions, "Tillie's Nightmare" and "Tillie's Punchurated Romance" made good. The star has not only obtained her own producing mechanism, but made a close business alliance with the Goldwyn distributing facilities.

Farnum Finishes Picture Version of "The Doctor"

William Farnum's first screen play in the Eastern studios since 1915 was finished last week. The story for the production is an adaptation of "The Doctor," the novel by Ralph Connor, Frank Lloyd, who has screened Mr. Farnum's recent subject, was in charge of the direction. Titles are now being considered for the new film product.

Mary Pickford Appears in Two-Reel Comedies to be Released Through Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

Mary Pickford's latest play for Artcraft, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," directed by Marshall Neilan, is rapidly nearing completion at West Coast studios. It was adapted from the clever book by Kate Douglas Wiggin, by Francis Marion, and is said to be a most fitting vehicle for "the world's sweetheart.

"Little Mary" in this new play is said to be as much a child as she was in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." In the cast are: Eugene O'Brien, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charles Ogle, Marjorie Daw, Mayne Kelso, Jane Wolff, Josephine Crowell, Jack MacDonald, Violet Wilkey, Frank Turner, Kate Tencray and Emma Gerdes.

Fairbanks Near Completion of New Play

"Down to Earth," a Douglas Fairbanks production, Artcraft's next offering, is described as different from previous plays. Fairbanks wrote the story, Anita Loos constructed the scenario and John Emerson directed the picture. The film is nearing completion at Leaky Street, California.

The production does not feature the actor's athletic thrillers but rather shows why he is capable of performing hair-raising tricks. While "Wild and Woolly" was more of a thriller, "Down to Earth" gets most of its laughs from incidents concerning life as Fairbanks sees it.

In addition to its other merits, "Down to Earth" is announced as the most lavish staged photoplay in which the star has appeared. It is enhanced with several new ideas in photographic effects by Victor Fleming.

Various different climes are visited and many surprises of typical Fairbanks style are promised, ranging in variety from doing a handstand on a mountain precipice, 8,000 feet above sea level to teaching a hippopotamus the famous Fairbanks smile.

At Work in California Desert on Fox Kiddie Feature

Another new Fox Kiddie Feature was begun last week under the direction of C. M. and S. A. Franklin. This photoplay has an Arabian theme, and already hundreds of carpenters are at work on the grounds of the big Fox plant in Hollywood, Calif., erecting gigantic interior and exterior settings for the production.

One large Arabian street is being placed in a spacious corner of the "lot," and several Turkish interiors have been built.

The first scenes of the subject are being taken at Oxnard, Calif., almost one hundred miles from Los Angeles, where two big desert "sets" have been put up.

New Vita Studio Manager

Frank H. Loomis, formerly casting director of the Vitagraph Company, has returned to that organization in the capacity of studio manager. Mr. Loomis in conjunction with his duties as studio manager will resume his position as casting director.

Mr. Loomis' experience in the theatrical business covers a period of some twenty years, during which time it has been his privilege to have been associated with men and women whose names are chronicled in theatrical annals as having "done things" in the executive and artistic ends of the business.
W. P. S. Earle Wins Praise with "Mary Jane's Pa"

W. P. S. Earle, who directed "Mary Jane's Pa," a forthcoming Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, is said to have duplicated in this subject his triumph in "Within the Law." Marc MacDermott, with Mildred Manning, is featured in the production, and plays the role that Henry E. Dixey made famous on the legitimate stage.

Mr. Earle in the making of the picture has followed the Edith Ellis play very closely and retained in the film version all of the droll humor and philosophy that made the play a joy to audiences all over the country. In the outdoor scenes he gave the play an artistic setting, and in the interiors made it realistic.

Marc MacDermott's interpretation of the role of Hiram Perkins, the repentant renegade husband, is declared to be a good piece of acting. Mr. MacDermott was brought to this country by Mrs. Patrick Campbell in her supporting company.

Mildred Manning plays the part of Mary Jane, and as the twelve-year-old girl more than adds to the splendid record she has made as the leading woman in the O. Henry pictures.

Hods of Bricks in Paramount "Kiss for Susie"

Australia, Newport, Wall street, and many hods of bricks figure in "A Kiss for Susie," a Paramount Picture, with Vivian Martin and Tom Forman, to be released August 2, three days before the new plan of selective booking goes into effect.

Many of the scenes were taken on a building in course of erection, and notwithstanding this prosaic setting the love element is said to run fast through the play.

Mildred Manning, Vitagraph, as Princess-Housemaid

Mildred Manning and Wallace MacDonald are not strangers in screen production for they have been seen together in several of Vitagraph's O. Henry pictures. They are now being screened in "The Princess of Park Row," for the same company.

MacDonald is the newspaper reporter who frustrates foreign blackmailers and wins the love of a princess masquerading as a housemaid.

Hart and Ray Hard at Work for Ince-Paramount

A t the new Ince Studio it was stated that the first production work for Paramount releases will be the filming of "The Son of His Father," which will offer Charles Ray. This is an adaptation from the Ridgewell Cullum story of the same name, which has been prepared in scenario form by Lambert Hillyer. Cullum will be remembered as author of "The Way of the Strong," "Night Riders," and others. Filming of the first scenes will be made early during the coming week.

The second company will probably not be started for two weeks, as Enid Bennett, star, has been granted a two weeks' vacation, and she is reported to have left early this week for a trip East.

From an authentic source it became known this week that a new organization for the production of the Hart-Arclait subjects is to be incorporated. The name of this, the report states, will be Hart Film Corporation. All available sites for studios were visited during the past week by Mr. Hart and selection will be made in a day or two. The first Hart story is said to be prepared and work can be commenced on the exterior scenes as soon as all papers pertaining to the new corporation are executed. At the Ince Studio, the present headquarters of Mr. Hart, no statement has been made concerning the new corporation. Mr. Grossman, of New York, Mr. Hart's attorney, and partner of Adolph Zukor in his first motion picture enterprise, the opening of a small theatre in New York City, has been in Los Angeles for the past week taking care of all legal matters for Mr. Hart.

Nothing is to be learned concerning the intention of C. Gardner Sullivan, former head of the scenario department of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, while it was under the management of Mr. Ince, and the same applies to John Lynch and J. G. Hawks, members of the Ince writing staff. All three of these writers tendered their resignation to the Triangle Company on July 7th, it became known this week. It is said all are under contract with the New York Motion Picture Corporation, but it is not known what action, if any, the Triangle Film Corporation officials intend to take in the matter, as it stands today.

Production work of the first Arclait release of the Hart Film Corporation will be started early the coming week. In this connection Mr. Hart has just recalled that his first picture was released on the Paramount program. This was titled "The Bargain," and owners of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, at that time, fearing it would not draw well on the Mutual program, sold it to the Paramount distributing organization. They had foresight to ask and secure a clause which provided that in case the picture brought large returns, they would share in the profits. It is now stated "The Bargain" is still earning between two and five hundred dollars per week for the former owners of the NYMP organization. In view of these facts, Mr. Hart insists that he is just where he was when he started, with the exception of the salary question. He left a starring engagement with a Broadway company to work in films at $800 per week.

Triangle Vampire Deserts Her Familiar Role

Louise Glaum, the Triangle vampire, is offered in a different role from any of her recent plays in "Golden Rule Kate," a new play which will shortly be scheduled for release on the Triangle program.

In most of her past Triangle productions Miss Glaum's gowns have been an elaborate and costly item. But in her newest play, which is a drama of the early West, the siren has laid aside "The Devil Gown," "The Peacock Dress," and other equally original creations of her former successes for the buckskin skirt and bead-trimmed adornments of a typical dancehall girl of the West that was.

In this newest Triangle play from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn Miss Glaum portrays the role of the proprietress of "The Red Lights," a dance hall and saloon in Paradise, Nev. So she needs neither The Peacock Dress nor The Devil Gown to faithfully portray the character of a "madam" of a Western "Red Light" resort.
Mae Murray and 1,000,000 Others Write to Pershing

Mae Murray, announcement of whose signing with Bluebird was made recently, is to send a letter to Major-General Pershing bearing as near a million signatures as may be quickly collected and she is busying herself mightily.

Already the young star has written to the senators and members of Congress, to the governors of every state and to notables. These letters brought return autographs to be appended along with Mae Murray's signature to the letter, which in part reads:

"To Major-General Pershing:

"We, the undersigned...folsk back home," rejoice at the recent successful crossing of the American Expeditionary Force, which as Secretary of the Navy Daniels well says, is a story of peril and courage. The safe arrival in France of every fighting man and every fighting ship is an achievement, whose suspiciousness augurs well for the future as Secretary of War Baker states. It prompts and animates the high thoughts that are in our hearts at this moment.

"Furthermore we are mindful this grave hour that we at home must be strong and united, in order that our troops may be sustained by our strength and nourished and supplied by our labor.

"We believe that such an argosy of love and affection as this cannot but bring the best of cheer and courage to those who are making the world safe for democracy—the most superb and unselinsh act in all history."

The letter, with distinguished names, will be issued in circular form to exhibitors who will be asked to conspicuously display it where the public may have opportunity to sign.

Two Additions to Companies
Making Foxfilm Comedies

In the Foxfilm comedy departments two additions have been made to the companies.

Willard Louis, who has had "heavy" parts in support of William Farnum, will be in comedy exclusively hereafter under direction of Charles Parrott. Winfred Westover will be in Sunshine comedies under Henry Lehrman. She is a San Francisco girl and began work in screen plays immediately after leaving school.

Louis has sedulously adhered to a prescribed diet. The result is that he is but a shadow of his former bulkful self. He weighs a mere 280 now.

Louis' ability to register laughs has been unquestioned. Mr. Fox's hesitancy in putting him in comedies has been due solely to the actor's versatility in dramatic roles.

Dowling With Paralta

Joseph J. Dowling, who won a very conspicuous place with Triangle, by his remarkable character impersonations, has been engaged jointly by the Bessie Barriscale and the J. Warren Kerrigan companies to appear with these stars in Paralta plays. He will be seen with either star when his services may be required in character delineation.

William Farnum Depicts Sam Houston in Love

William Farnum's new Foxfilm play for September release, "The Conqueror," is built about the stirring life of that Texas hero, General Sam Houston. Farnum is the young Houston.

When he meets the Tennessee Rose, portrayed by Jewel Carmen, the rugged Houston, who has had no time for love, undergoes a complete reversal of form.

From that moment he is filled with an unconquerable ambition. The feature carries him through a career in which he rises swiftly from an unknown to constable, from constable to district attorney, then to Governor, and finally from Governor to the general who repulses, with the aid of his Cherokee friends, an army of marauding Mexicans. In the closing scenes Sam saves the woman who has inspired his success from the renegade leader of the bandits.

The members of the supporting company in this new R. A. Walsh production include Charles Clary, James A. Marcus, Carrie Clarke Ward, Robert Dunbar and Owen Johnston. The principal Indian roles are played by the Sioux chiefs, William Eagle Shirt and Chief Birdhead.

L. Johnston, Back from Zululand, in Horsley Studios

Lorimer Johnston has been signed by David Horsley to direct Crane Wilbur in five-feature productions of five reels each. These productions will be released on the Art Dramas Program.

Mr. Johnston's trips during the past three years led him through Zeppelin raids in England, submarine fields around the British Isles, to an African port, and then a tour of Rhodesia, Transvaal, Natal, Orange Free State, Cape Colony, Mozambique, and Zululand.

Some years ago Johnston produced cowboy pictures at Santa Barbara for the American Company then known as "The Flying A." In the evolution of production Mr. Johnston became the producer of virtually the first serial form of picture, "The Adventures of Jacques."

"The Law of the Land" in Paramount Selective List

George Broadhurst's "The Law of the Land," starring Mme. Petrova, has been completed under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, and is scheduled for release by Paramount under its new selective star-series booking plan in the middle of August.

In support of Mme. Petrova are Wyndham Standing, well-known English actor, in the role of Richard Harding, Mahlon Hamilton, who also appeared in "The Undying Flame," in the role of Geoffrey Morton, and Riley Hatch in the role of Inspector Cochrane. Two other roles in the cast are played by J. D. Haragan and T. Vivian as private secretary and butler.

Caprice Cast Completed

Harry Millarde, June Caprice's new director, has practically completed the cast for his initial pictureplay. The company now includes Harry Hilliard, Dan Mason, Kittens Reichert, Margaret Laird and Lucy Beaumont, a newcomers to Fox productions.
New Triangle Plays by Olive Thomas, Ziegfeld Beauty

Olive Thomas, formerly one of the Ziegfeld beauties, will soon star for Triangle in a film play written by J. G. Hawks.

"An Even Break," just completed by Miss Thomas, has been produced under the direction of Herbert Hilley. In this left the cutting room and soon will be ready for presentation.

In this play Miss Thomas assumes the role of a professional dancer and entertainer. Those who have seen her as a musical comedy butterfly will know she has done her utmost with the part.

Magnificent settings, a chorus of sixteen beautiful girls and four hundred other performers surround Miss Thomas. Charles Gunn plays the leading male role.

Enlarge Studio for Elaborate Lockwood Production

Finding the present Metro-Yorkie studios in Hollywood, Calif., of inadequate size for the staging of the next Harold Lockwood feature, Fred J. Balshofer has acquired additional studio space, comprising three acres adjoining the present studios, and is erecting stages and equipping them in readiness for work on the next Lockwood seven-reel picture. This is to be produced under the personal direction of Balshofer from the novel "Paradise Garden," by George Gibbs. It is estimated that $75,000 will be spent in the staging.

New Spectacular Effects for Rita Jolivet Picture

Rita Jolivet, in her work on the Selznick picture of the wreck of the Lusitania, will have the advantage of personal direction by a famous French director, Leonce Perret. He is described as having won in Europe a position like that of Herbert Brenon and D. W. Griffith in this country.

Mr. Perret's lighting effects are highly original, it is said, and attention is called to "The Silent Master." In the play in which Miss Jolivet will star there are several scenes that cannot be done by any methods heretofore employed. The assistance of three mechanical inventors has been enlisted. The spectacular features, it is promised, will be new and surprising.

National Ready to Film "Tarzan of the Apes"

Plant and Cast All Ready to Begin Story—Scott Sidney Will Direct and Ted Bevis Act in Technical Capacity—Look for Big Production

AFTER several months of preparation under the supervision of William Parson, president and general manager, the National Film Corporation of America has placed everything in readiness and is filming Edgar Rice Burroughs' successful story, "Tarzan of the Apes." The leads have nearly all been selected for the cast of characters.

Several months ago the National Company purchased the plant and studios in Hollywood built by the Oz Film Company two years ago, and these have been remodelled to suit the special requirements of the company's coming production. The grounds cover half a block, and a large portion has been laid out in gardens by a landscape artist. A large building has been erected for the storage and manufacture of the wardrobe this picture will require, and a number of other additions are now in progress to make sure production work can be carried on most satisfactorily.

Mr. Parsons has surrounded himself with a number of specialists who have been very successful in their respective lines of work. Included in this list is Scott Sidney, who will serve as director. He has been producing films of exceptionally good quality, having been affiliated with Thomas H. Ince, where he served as director for more than two years, and later with Morosco-Paramount. Mr. Sidney's "Bullets and Brown Eyes," with Bessie Barriscale, is referred to as one of his most successful Triangle releases. Ed. Jofrheus, for more than three years head of the property department for Universal, will serve as master of properties, and Ted Bevis, who has been connected with a number of coast producing organizations, is the technical director. All of these men are authorities on subjects pertaining to their respective work. Gilbert Warrenton, a cameraman of years of experience, will be in charge of the photography. No better technical staff could be secured, and it should assure a successful production.

"Our story, 'Tarzan of the Apes,'" Mr. Parson told a News representative, "offers the greatest opportunity because of the originality of its theme. I believe we have set a new record with respect to price for film rights on any story, the consideration being $50,000. We could well afford to do this, for no story used for films has had the publicity of Mr. Burroughs' fiction. The book has had a sale of more than 600,000 copies, and has run serially in thousands of newspapers (giving us space that no company could afford to buy). We have set no time for the completion of the film version, but will work on this photoplay until we have it successfully completed."

Capellani Directs Ann Murdock—Not Julia Sanderson

The Empire Corporation announces that Albert Capellani is directing the screen plays in which Ann Murdock is being starred—not those in which Julia Sanderson appear. The producers made the mistake in a previous statement.

Dell Henderson is supervising the Julia Sanderson pictures, and both he and Capellani are staging their productions at the Glendale Studios.

Government Gives Lieutenant Two Days to Film Play

Lieutenant Kennison of the U. S. Aviation Corps at Princeton was given special permission to delay his departure for the front in France to take the scenes for Herbert Brenon's "The Lone Wolf," which got initial showing at the Broadway.

Government machines were used, and Lieutenant Kennison made the flight himself, taking up Roy Hunt, the Brenon photographer, who photographed the two planes shown in the picture from the machine in which he and the lieutenant were flying.

As soon as "The Lone Wolf" was completed Kennison sailed for France, and probably by this time the same machine that thrills audiences of "The Lone Wolf" is making observation flights over the enemy lines "somewhere in France."

Of all authentic pictures so far thrown upon the screen, this is one that is bound to compel attention. Lieutenant Kennison, being an accredited member of the Escadrille knew full well of what he was doing and what he had in hand.
Army Captain Opens Recruiting Station in Theatre Lobby

CAPTAIN FRANKLYN R. KENNEY, U. S. A., is to open a recruiting station in the lobby of the Ziegfeld theatre in Chicago, while the Metro play, "The Slacker," with Emily Stevens, is shown. The captain has seen the play, and writes:

"The Slacker" is an American broadside let loose at a time when we should do not-only our bit, but do our dammedest."

After a private Government showing of the play, Captain Kenney wrote:

"The Slacker is the most powerful argument and the most convincing appeal for recruits I have ever seen. I believe that the Government should indorse its appearance and urge every true American to see it."

"I have deemed it my duty as an officer of the United States to advise the Washington officials of its value at this time, and I am fully convinced that it will prove a powerful instrument in its drive against slackers. The story will convince any slacker, and I feel certain will convert him to the idea of doing his duty. I have but little doubt regarding its hearty approval by the officials at Washington."

Captain Kenney needs no introduction to the people of Illinois, where his remarkable work in the aid of recruiting has won him an enviable place in the hearts of all loyal Americans.

Al Kaufman, Who Faced Jack Johnson, with "U"

George Marshall, director of Western dramas for Universal, has added Al Kaufman, the well-known pugilist, to his company.

Kaufman, who stands six feet two inches and weighs two hundred and five pounds, in 1909 gained much prestige by beating Jack Johnson to a standstill.

Kaufman is not new to the motion picture game, having made his first appearance eight years ago with the Lubin Company. During the past twelve months he has been in the employ of the Keystone Comedy Company.

Glass Windows for Studios

In a studio such as Mr. Bernstein has designed, should weather conditions suddenly change, a touch on a button starts electric machinery that moves into position a telescopic arrangement of sliding doors and windows, completing the tops and sides of the structure and protecting the stage settings from the elements.

Mr. Bernstein's plans include a system of adjustable light diffusion adapted to regulate the lighting effects whereby the natural light of the sun can be varied or artificial light modified. In addition, the diffusers prevent the supports of the collapsible roof from throwing shadows upon the set or the studio floor.

The artificial lighting system consists of roof and floor lights. Lamp sockets are inserted at many points below the flooring, and every conceivable improvement has been made to make an ideal studio.

"Wife Number Two" Next for Valeska Suratt

William Fox has chosen as the title for Valeska Suratt's ninth moving picture, "Wife Number Two," and the new starring vehicle, which was made under the direction of William Nigh, has now been scheduled for release on July 20. The photoplay has just been completed.

In the supporting cast are Eric Mayne, John Goldsworthy, Peter Lang, William Burten, Martin Faust, Dan Mason, Dan Sullivan, L. F. Kennedy and Mathilde Brundage.

Walter Greene Says Elsie Ferguson Screens Well

Elsie Ferguson and her company have completed several hundred feet of film for her new play, "Barby Sheep." They left for St. Augustine Fla., last week, for certain pretentious exteriors, and will stop at Lynchburg for a like purpose on the way back to Fort Lee studios.

Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, said:

"In Miss Ferguson's case, I am glad to be able to say, her well-known charm and personality is faithfully presented with the result that she will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most beautiful women on the screen to-day. Judging from her work Miss Ferguson already seems to be perfectly at home before the camera."

Hand Over Hand on Steel Rope Across a Canyon

In his latest Universal production, "The Lion's Lair," Fred Church is obliged to swing hand over hand along a steel rope stretched across the chasm, two hundred feet or more in the air, to rescue his sweetheart, played by Eileen Sedgwick.

The location chosen was the famous Fremont Pass in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Three times he swung himself across the canyon, while the cameras were busy grinding out the record of his achievement.
Not the "Star," but Dramatic Quality, Says General Film

Not the "star" but dramatic value, General Film announces, is to be concentrated upon hereafter. An official of the company says:

"It has become commercially significant that the public appreciates splendid plays, that it goes to see plays as plays, that it has seen about as much as it wants of stars without plays, and that it enjoys plays from one reel up to five that have a good story and good actors and have been staged adequately.

"All of our most conspicuous successes have been 'starless.' The O. Henry subjects, which have made such a profound impression and which have proved so profitable are 'starless.' But they do have story. They do have the human appeal.

"Black Cats are establishing a new and enduring school of photoplay that has quality for its first consideration, where a role is a role and not an overworked 'vehicle.' The consistent excellence of the Kalem productions may also be remarked. There every member of the cast plays a vital part, plays right up to the leading man or woman and the latter right along with them, in the sort of story that does not twist the lead, famous as he or she may be, into forced prominence."

Thrilling Auto Accident in Vitagraph's "Richard the Brazen"

In "Richard the Brazen," a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature for release July 23, there is staged a spectacular automobile accident.

Harry Morey takes the part of Richard Williams, an American. Charles Wellesley is Lord Croyland, munitions agent for the British War Department. Arrived in New York Croyland and Richard are in the accident, his lordship being badly injured and Richard escaping. Croyland, sent to a hospital, gives Richard's name. This results in a mix-up not untangled until the drama ends.

Others in the cast are Alice Joyce, Franklyn Hanna, Patsy DeForest and Robert Kelly.

Public to Get No Synopsis of Paralta Plays

PARALTA PLAYS INC., will not issue heralds or other printed matter of any kind giving the synopsis of any story. Carl Anderson, president, and his associates in the management and the publicity department, agree that to give out the synopsis is fundamentally wrong, as it gives audiences information which stales interest in a production, and hurts rather than helps.

Mr. Anderson has been a theatrical manager and moving picture producer and exhibitor since 1897. Nat L. Brown, general manager, and Wilbur Bates and Carl Krusader, in the publicity department, have had years of experience in theatrical management. Mr. Anderson says:

"One never sees in a theatre program a synopsis of the story of the next attraction. He may see a display underline, perhaps, with reference to some big feature of the coming bill, but everything is done to incite interest in seeing the play—not in killing the element of novelty and surprise by telling in advance the details of the development of the dramatic action.

"The space that is now far too often used in telling the story of pictures in advance and thereby robbing them of their elements of novelty and surprise, will be given up to matter that will incite interest in seeing the productions—in interest-compelling lines that will make the reader desire to see them. In this men of actual practical experience as theatrical advertisers have displayed not a little genius.

"Paralta Plays will be made widely known to theatre patrons as they are being produced, but their actual exploitation in public attention will be carried on in each town exactly as a travelling attraction on the speaking stage is handled.

"Of course, it would be impossible for Paralta to have an advance man in every town two weeks to ten days ahead of the showing of a Paralta picture, but this company has devised an effective substitute for 'the man ahead,' and he will be there in effect, if not in person.

"All Paralta's advertising paper and 'helps' will be framed on strict and well-tried theatrical lines, shooting directly at the mark of creating in the public mind curiosity and desire to see its pictures."

Mrs. Castle Films Pathe Play and Goes to North Woods

MRS. VERNON CASTLE has just completed for Pathé a new play by Philip Bartholomae. It is taken from one of Caroline Wells' novels. For the first time Antonio Moreno appears as Mrs. Castle's leading man. The cast selected by Director Fitzmaurice includes J. H. Gilmore, John Sainpolis, Olive Stokes, Edwin Hoyt and Florence Dixon.

Following the completion of this picture Mrs. Castle's company, under the direction of Frank Crane, left for the Adirondacks where they have begun work on "A Story of the North Woods," by Francis Lynde, the well-known novelist.

This subject, so virile, so imaginative, so broad and yet so amenable to delicate treatment, particularly when placed in such delicate hands is bound to be productive of good results.

Following are brief expressions of those who witnessed an advance projection-room showing:

"Story interesting, worked out smoothly. There is action, mystery and suspense. Photography and sets good."

"Mrs. Castle is charming and acts very well. Moreno is a good type of hero. He is very well liked by the motion picture public, and I think that he and Mrs. Castle will be a very popular screen couple. The cast in this picture is almost perfect."

"This will be a box-office attraction. The movie fans will be kept guessing."

"The acting in the main is good. Mrs. Castle's work is a revelation."
Crest Picture on Famed Biblical Story Finally Completed

AFTER six months of hard work under the desert sun, The Crest Picture Company closed its studio in Monrovia, Cal., where the company finished its eight-reel picture, "The Chosen Prince," or "The Friendship of David and Jonathan," made under the working title, "Israel." The picture is announced as an old world drama with all the human interest that springs from strong passions and ambitious men.

Lynna I. Henry, author of the story and president of the Crest Company, a Colorado corporation organized two years ago, expresses himself as being very happy over the result obtained by William V. Mong, director, and furthermore is more than valuable in his expressions of Mr. Mong's work.

Mr. Henry says: "Mr. Mong has given a faithful rendition of the unique story of David and Jonathan's friendship in conformity with my extensive research, extending over a period of several years. No, I am not a reformer, nor am I a critic of the screen, but I have thought that a story sweet and old that would give the genius of the director full scope for his inspiration was not to be written, but would have to be taken from the lives and incidents that have endured through the centuries, and yet with such human interest as to make a fresh appeal to us of today. I feel sure that we have such a story and have given it an interpretation that will reach to the widest circles."

"Original music interpreting the wild moods of the old world people has been composed for the picture by Jacob Wein- stock, a cantor of wide reputation. His music makes a poetic blending of sight and sound, his vocal numbers which will be sung by large choruses swell with the joy-ful throbgs and give vivid colorings to the dramatic moments."

"Our director has caught the themes and the times of the picture, so that an intimate relationship is immediately established between the characters and the audience. The scenes are true to ancient conditions, the characters do big things in a human way."

Major-General Liggett Highly Praises Theda Bara

Major-General Hunter Liggett, commander of the Department of the West, U. S. Army, with a party, recently visited the William Fox studios at Hollywood, where Theda Bara was at work.

In the party with the general were Mrs. Liggett, Colonel and Mrs. Beecher R. Ray, Colonel William L. Kemley, Major Richard Parks, L. D. Sales, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Sales.

General Liggett highly complimented Miss Bara on the emotional work she finished before the camera while the visitors watched her.

Twelve New Comedies for Release by General Film

A second series of Jaxon Comedies and Sparkle Comedies have been finished by the Jaxon Film Corporation for release through General Film, service being assured well in advance.

Mollie King to Star in a Charles Goddard Serial

The great success achieved by Mollie King in the Pathé serial, "Mystery of the Double Cross," has resulted in her being placed in the stellar role of a new serial by Charles Goddard, which will be released some time in September.

Mr. Goddard wrote "The Perils of Pauline," "The Exploits of Elaine," in which he collaborated with Arthur B. Reeve; "The New Adventures of J. Rufus Wallingford," in which he collaborated with George Randolph Chester; "The Goddess," in which he collaborated with Governor Morris, and "The Mysteries of Myra," which he wrote in collaboration with Hereward Carrington. In addition, he has also written many dramatic successes, including "The Misleading Lady," "The Ghost Breaker," "The Last Laugh," all of which were written in collaboration with Paul Dickey; "The Man from the Sea" and "Miss Information."

Miss King will be supported by Creighton Hale, who was in "The Exploits of Elaine," "The Iron Claw" and others. Another featured member of the cast is Leon Bary.

The new serial will be made by Astra and will be directed by Donald Mackenzie.

J. Stuart Blackton Takes Rights of Parker Novels

J. Stuart Blackton, former vice-president of Vitagraph, whose affiliation with the Paramount Pictures Corporation was announced last week, will bring to his new association practically all the work of Sir Gilbert Parker, available for adaptation for the screen.

"The World for Sale," "Judgment House" and "Wild Youth" are three of the important novels controlled by Mr. Blackton, who holds outright the moving picture rights of practically all Sir Gilbert's present available works and whatever fiction he may write in the future.

John Drew's Godson, in Photoplays, Plays Baseball

A ball game between the Giants and the Phillies at the Polo Grounds, New York, at which there were 22,000 spectators, was filmed in Thomas A. Edison's photoplay, "One Touch of Nature," in which Manager John J. McGraw has a leading part.

Three fast innings are shown in the film, and the star of "One Touch of Nature," John Drew Bennett, godson of John Drew the actor, had a chance to show that he could play baseball in fast company.

Al Christie Says His Comedies Typify Youth

Al E. Christie who is himself a successful producer, says he has noticed in recent months a decided change in pictures, rough action being relegated to the background and humorous situations delicately developed. He adds:

"In the Christie comedies we insist on a consistent plot, and our stories are interpreted by a company of attractive young people who typify the most potent influence in the world—youth."
Gretchen Hartman in "Married in Name Only"

Gretchen Hartman, in the leading role of "Married in Name Only," directed by Edmund Lawrence, has a part requiring great displays of emotion. She says herself the play is "after her own heart," and that she likes the part.

Mr. Lawrence expresses himself as pleased with her work. He says the situations require all an actress' power, and that Miss Hartman has accomplished all expected from her.

Miss Hartman's first appearance on the stage was when only six years of age in the name part of Ibsen's "Little Eyolf." This play was the despair of theatrical managers because of the intense work required of a child. It is said of Miss Hartman that she as a child solved the Ibsen problem.

Her work in the leading role of "Cossette," by Victor Hugo, and as Mary Jane in "Mary Jane" will be recalled by theatregoers. The play "Mary Jane" was distinctly a Broadway success, running continuously for two years.

Gretchen Hartman is described as an artist who knows how to abandon all of herself to her work.

Paramount Buys Two Stage Plays for Billie Burke

Two stage successes have been purchased by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as vehicles for Billie Burke, and will be released by Paramount under the selective star-series booking plan. The first of these is "The Runaway" in which Miss Burke starred on the stage under the management of Charles Frohman a few years ago. The play was presented in Paris by Pierre Veher under the title, "La Game," where it scored a complete triumph.

This will be the second instance where Miss Burke will appear upon the screen in a Paramount adaptation of one of her former stage successes, the first being "The Land of Promise," by W. Somerset Maugham, which has already been completed under the direction of Joseph Kaufman.

"Arms and the Girl," the other play which has been purchased by Famous Players-Lasky for Miss Burke, proved one of the best plays of two seasons ago when it was presented at the Fulton theatre in New York, with Fay Bainter in the leading role.

Bessie Barriscale's Next Play "Madame Who"

Bessie Barriscale's next production will be a screen version of Harold McGrath's sensation mystery story, "Madame Who," on which Monte M. Katterjohn has been engaged for some time in making the scenario.

Mr. McGrath's story created a nationwide sensation among readers of fiction last fall when it was first published. The scenes are laid in the South during the Civil War. The tale centers around the thrilling adventures of a young Southern girl who is taken as a spy and forced into marriage with one of a band of eleven mysterious men.

"The Fighting Trail" All Acted Outdoors

Every Episode in the Open, the Only Interiors Being a Few Flashes—Seven Months' Steady Work—Lions Used in the Thrills

"THE FIGHTING TRAIL," serial completed in the Vitagraph Studio at Hollywood, is stated to be the first outdoor serial picture. Every episode is acted in the open. The only interiors are a few flashes.

It took seven months of continuous work and the labor was ended seven days ahead of time. Ten days' vacation for the entire company was immediately ordered by Albert E. Smith, Vitagraph's president, as a token of his personal appreciation.

"The Fighting Trail" is a smashing story of mystery, conspiracy and love, centering about a hidden mine of priceless value, and its scenes are scratched, with fine disregard for life and limb, from the wildest reaches in the California mountains.

William Duncan, who directed the production and took the leading male part, and Miss Carol Holloway, playing opposite, were poor life insurance risks from the first day they began work on the serial. One day Duncan established "The Fighting Trail" record, thirty-six big outdoor scenes between storm and darkness. On another occasion he worked the serial company for twenty-four hours in three eight-hour shifts, he alone on the job all the time. His production work averaged two reels a week during the making of the picture.

In one scene the conspirators burn an entire mining camp and to make this as realistic as possible there were put up a score of wooden stores, saloons and shacks, making a typical camp. The torch was applied and the cowboys rescued the women and boys and fought off the conspirators.

It was a great scene—even Duncan admitted this until he discovered that the manuscript of an entire episode, by coincidence the thirteenth, had been destroyed in the fire. The Vitagraph director jogged his memory a bit and directed that episode, one of the strongest in the serial, entirely from memory.

Miss Holloway and Duncan are lost in the depths of a hidden mine, shut off from the main workings by a cave-in in one episode. In gloomy tunnels they are attacked by mountain lions and halted by huge rattlesnakes, but finally reach the opening of an unused tunnel which breaks from the mountain side onto a ledge from which there is a sheer drop of 200 feet to a stream below.

Into this sheer abyss Miss Holloway is swung on a rope in the hopes of gaining foothold on a lower ledge. There are other thrilling stunts.

J. Warren Kerrigan's New Play, "Turn of a Card"

The second Palatia production of the J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporation will be begun in their Hollywood studios in a few days. The story selected for this photoplay is Frederick Chapin's tale of romance and adventure in the West—"Turn of a Card."

The screen version was made by Thomas J. Geraghty and the story is said to fit Mr. Kerrigan's personality as snugly as did the part of John Stewart Webster in "A Man's Man," which has just been completed.

In "Turn of a Card" Mr. Kerrigan has the character of an athletic young college graduate.

Pistols and Vengeance in "An Eye for an Eye"

In "An Eye for an Eye," fifth episode of Kalem's "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," E. W. Hornung takes his bushranger hero into the cabin of Gypsy Prince, the bush gambler. Stingaree is fleeced.

A year later the resourceful Stingaree evens up scores by running down Gypsy after a robbery, recovering the money that had been stolen from a deluded boy, Tom Banks. There is a thrilling pistol duel. Stingaree's expedients remind spectators of Mr. Hornung's famous "Raffles," for the many stirring episodes are so alike to be hardly distinguishable.

Release of "Kiddie" Film

There will be a special release in September of "Jack and the Beanstalk" by William Fox. The story is in ten reels and was staged by C. M. and S. A. Franklin at a cost of $500,000.
Power of Screen is Seen in Vitagraph Contest

Replies to Number of 21,142 on “How America Should Prepare,” Are Received on Company’s Offer of $1,000 for Best Essay on Subject

IN response to Vitagraph’s offer of one thousand dollars for the best essay on “How America Should Prepare,” it is announced that twenty-one thousand one hundred and forty-two persons have written treatises on the subject.

The idea of an essay was inaugurated by Vitagraph when “Womanhood, the Glory of a Nation,” the war preparedness picture, was released. The award will be announced on August 19.

Admiral Charles D. Sigbee, U. S. N., retired, is chairman of the committee which will make the award. The other members are General Horatio C. King, the widely known writer; Hudson Maxim, the ammunition expert; Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, and Commodore J. Stuart Blackton of the Greater Vitagraph Company.

The 21,142 essays were turned over to the members of the contest committee on July 6th. They run in length from two hundred to two thousand words.

Before the members of the contest committee had read the first hundred of the essays submitted they had decided that the excellence of the suggestions made in many of the essays is worthy of consideration by the authorities at Washington. On account of their excellence the two thousand essays which appeal to members of the committee as being most practical are to be forwarded to the authorities at Washington with the suggestion that those in charge of the war preparations for the Government should give the suggestions serious consideration.

In the event that the essays to Washington a digest of the suggestions contained in them will be made, with explanatory notes as to where the suggestions came from. To this digest all of the essays will be attached in order that the Government will have credit to whom credit is due.

It also is the intention of the members of the committee to give an honorable mention in making the award to every person whose essay is sent to Washington.

In making the cash award the members of the committee will consider ideas and practical suggestions only. Rhetoric and dictation will not be considered. The whole idea of the Greater Vitagraph Company in inaugurating the contest was for the purpose of obtaining the most practical, concrete, and general suggestions on this vital subject, “How America Should Prepare,” and all conditions must be complied with.

In order to compare this contest with essay contests conducted by several representative newspapers of the United States, the Greater Vitagraph Company has obtained statistics which show that the greatest number of answers ever received by a daily newspaper to a contest conducted along similar lines was received by an influential daily newspaper, published in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Several years ago this newspaper conducted an essay contest on the life of George Washington, and after three months of continual daily promotion obtained 12,939 replies.

In less than three months, without newspaper advertising, without any special promotion, the screen produced 21,142 replies or 12,939 more replies than were obtained by the daily newspaper. All of which is proof the Greater Vitagraph officials declare, that the screen is the greatest influence of the present day.

Aquatic Illusion in Mabel Taliaferro’s New Play

Mabel Taliaferro, star of the forthcoming Metro wonder play, “The Jury of Fate,” is called upon to perform her aquatic feats in the turbulent waters of the treacherous St. Lawrence River.

A dual role, that of a boy and a girl, fall to the lot of the popular star. An optical illusion places both characters in the canoe at the same time in the picture. The audience sees the canoe upset, sees the girl dragged unconscious from the water, while the boy is drowned, but the body is saved from a watery grave. It is necessary, of course, to produce the illusion by double exposure of the film.

Eighth King-Beef in Work

The Eighth King-Beef Comedy, with Billy West as the star, tentatively entitled “The Milliner,” has been put in work at the Bayonne studios under the direction of Arvid E. Gillstrom.

In this picture Billy gets a job in the establishment of a fashionable modiste. Of course, after the manner of his kind, he also gets into a bewildering series of troubles in the modiste’s shop, which, being visited by flocks of lovely ladies, gives opportunity for the photographing of some exquisite frocks and sets.

Special Paramount Play Written for Julian Eltinge

To take advantage of Julian Eltinge’s great versatility as a female impersonator, Famous Players-Lasky had a special play built for him by Gelett Burgess and Carolyn Wells. It is adapted for the screen by Gardner Hunting.

Eltinge takes the part of Saunders Julian. At a benefit, to outwit Mrs. Van dergrift, who is trying to defeat his love purposes, Saunders decides to try impersonation. He disappears from the party and in his place comes the Countess Rafelsky. Amusing complications and some tragic results.

Buster Collier to Be in Paramount’s “Tom Sawyer”

Buster Collier, illustrious son of the celebrated William Collier, noted comedian, has been specially engaged by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to appear with Jack Pickford in its adaptation of Mark Twain’s great comedy, “Tom Sawyer.”

The production is already under way at the Lasky studio, and will be announced for release by Paramount within a few weeks.

“The Little American,” Great Pickford Play, Says Edel

Harold Edel, manager of the Strand theatre, in a letter to Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, says regarding Mary Pickford in “The Little American”:

“Without a doubt, this picture will rank as Mary Pickford’s foremost achievement. I want to personally extend to you my heartiest congratulations and best wishes for your continued success.”

“Exhibitors may be sure that Miss Holmes has been provided with even more than her usual quota of exciting and thrilling exploits to execute during the progress of the story. The risks she is called upon to assume in enacting the leading role of ‘Helen Thurston’ would have staggered any other actress of screenland. Yet Miss Holmes is confident that she can perform them safely— is ready and willing to make the attempt at least.

“The forthcoming production, ‘The Lost Express,’ will be exploited even more than that which was released by its predecessors. An advertising campaign equal if not superior to any other that ever was created for the exploitation of a serial motion picture will be launched in the very near future. Newspapers, trade journals, billboards, and every media for a national advertising campaign designed to reach every man, woman and child in the United States will be used in telling the exhibitor and his public about ‘The Lost Express.’”

Watermelons Instead of Pies in “Fatty Arbuckle’s” Skit

Roscoe (“Fatty”) Arbuckle’s newest comedy, “His Wedding Night,” is nearing completion. Within the next few weeks it will be ready for release on the Paramount program—if the supply of watermelons holds out. Watermelons, incidentally, have been substituted for pies in the Arbuckle production.

The screen’s biggest fun-maker is disguised as the man who puts bubbles in summer beverages. From his vantage point behind the chocolate and vanilla extract box a “Fatty” carries out love scenes with the beautiful cashier, who, according to the plot, is also the daughter of the proprietor.

The bride, wanting to see how she will appear on her wedding day, persuades “Buster” to try on the costume. When she leaves the room for a moment St. John and a band of kidnappers enter through the window and, imagining that they have the cashier, seize “Buster” in the bridal gown and carry him off to the minister’s. There is more fun before it ends.

Cabanne Says Wilson’s Words

Describe “The Slacker”

If the forthcoming Metro play, “The Slacker,” were a sermon and the author and director, William Christy Cabanne, were a minister, the text selected, he says, would have been the immortal words of President Wilson:

“The world must be made safe for democracy. Its peace must be planted upon the tested foundations of political liberty.”
W. C. Dowlan Becomes Metro Director

The latest addition to the directing staff of Metro Pictures Corporation is William C. Dowlan. Mr. Dowlan recently came from California, where he had been working with the American-Mutual forces, and was at once engaged by B. A. Rolfe to assist in the production of Metro plays at the Metro studio, 3 West Sixty-first street, New York.

Mr. Dowlan has been the director of many important photodramas. For many years he was with Universal, both as actor and director. He played De Maupras in "Richelieu" under Alan Dwan's direction, and himself directed such stars as Violet McMillan, Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven.

James Aubrey, Comedy Star, Goes with Smallwood

James Aubrey, a star in Vitagraph Big V Comedies, has resigned from that organization to appear in a series of super-comedies under the management of Arthur N. Smallwood, of the Smallwood Film Company.

Aubrey made his first appearance as a motion picture actor three years ago, when Mittenhal Brothers secured him to portray "Heze" in the "Heze and Louise" series.

Arthur N. Smallwood, under whose management Aubrey will appear for the next three years, was one of the pioneers in the independent film manufacturing field. He began to manufacture "Westerns" in Cincinnati in the spring of 1909.

Gladys Hulette in "Boarding House" Drama

A boarding house is not commonly supposed to be a fertile ground for the finer qualities of mankind or for romance, yet in the Pathé Gold Rooster play, "The Streets of Illusion," to be released on August 12, there is said to be romance and human interest a-plenty. Gladys Hulette is the star and Director William Parke has surrounded her with a cast including J. H. Gilmore, William Parke, Jr., Richard Barthelmess, Warren Cooke, Doris Grey, Katherine Adams, little Gerald Badgley, William P. Burt, Logan Cau, William Ycarum, William Marion and William Dudley.

Mollie King as Cloak Model in "On-the-Square Girl"

Mollie King is starred by Pathé on July 29th, when "The On-the-Square Girl" is to be released. It is a five-reel Gold Rooster Play, produced by Astra, under the direction of George Fitzmaurice and written by Ouida Berger.

Miss King has the role of Ann Blair, a Fifth avenue cloak model, one girl who is on the square. She falls into the power of Thomas Brockton, a wealthy man. In the struggle that follows she stabs Brockton, but not mortally. Richard Snee, an artist, engaged to Brockton's daughter, who kills his love for her by fast life, falls in love with Ann, and after a thrilling succession of scenes a powerful climax and denouement are reached, and the true identity of Brockton is discovered.

Pathe Has New Version of "Les Miserables"

Henry Krause, French Actor, Takes Part of Jean Valjean and Albert Capellani Directs Eight-Part Play—New Prints, New Advertising

Pathe has a new version of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables." This became known last week at a presentation in Orchestra Hall, Chicago. The play will be released as a feature to follow "The Vicar of Wakefield."

The play, directed by Albert Capellani, is in eight parts, and stars Henry Krause as Jean Valjean. It was owing to requests from exhibitors that Pathe decided to make this move. Work was quickly begun, the new edition was prepared, new prints made and new advertising matter designed.

Henry Krause, a French actor, made a hit in the six-part production of Zola's "Germinal." He is supported in "Les Miserables" by a cast including Mlle. Mistinguett as Eponine and Maria Fromet as Gavotte.

Mlle. Mistinguett starred in Pathe's "The Siren," released in five parts about two and a half or three years ago. Mlle. Fromet is France's child actress.

When "Les Miserables" was first shown in the United States it scored a triumph, running at Carnegie Lyceum, New York, for several months and playing throughout the country and it was everywhere acclaimed a success.

"Although death claimed this literary idol in 1885, his 'Les Miserables' will live forever. The presentation that Pathe has given it is almost monumental," says the Chicago American. "Every scene of the eight parts shows the masterhand of the director, Albert Capellani, and the character portrayals of the French actors are so forceful and natural that one forgets it is but fiction. The production lifts the photodrama to its highest plane."

The picture is a splendid photo-visualization of Victor Hugo's most famous work, known everywhere as one of the greatest stories ever written in any language.

Pathe is managing Orchestra Hall, Chicago, believes so firmly in the present-day drawing power of "Les Miserables" that they succeeded in persuading Pathe to give them an advance booking, and a telegraph from J. B. W. Burt, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, saying "Les Miserables' going very big," showed the correctness of their judgment.

U. S. Motion Pictures Gets 6852 Comedy Ideas

The United States Motion Picture Corporation, making "Black Diamonds," finds no dearth of comedy ideas—such as they are. Inside of two months after the company announced that they would give any one five dollars a word for any comedy ideas of fifty words or less, they have received 6,852 suggestions, many of which have been tried in scenario.

There were hundreds of clever ideas submitted out of the mass of material which the offer brought forth.

One writer made his dramatic climax dependable upon trained "bumble-bees."

Harry R. Sanger, Casting Director, Opens an Agency

Harry R. Sanger, who for years was casting director for Pathe, and recently for Selznick, has opened an agency in the Commercial Trust Building. He aims to act as personal representative for players, directors, cameramen and others in motion picture activities.

"I am still a casting director, the difference being that my services are at the command of any company who desires them," said Mr. Sanger. "My principle will be to study the needs of each application as if I were on the staff of the company making it. I want to be known as 'the one applicant agent,' and to fill every position with my own choice."

"I have already prepared a classified collection of players, with miniature photographs in character and straight, so that the director wanting to find a certain type of leading man or woman, heavy, or any kind of character, can do so with very little trouble."

Already Mr. Sanger's agency is supplying the Selznick companies, Herbert Brenon's "The Fall of the Romanoffs," the Mutual-Mirror studio, Pathe, and others.

"Larry" McGill Again Directing for Pathe

Lawrence B. McGill has been signed by Astra and will assist George Fitzmaurice, the well-known director, on various Pathe features.

This is not the first time that "Larry" has been identified with the Pathe program. When Arrow was producing "Who's Guilty?" the serial which was widely distributed by Pathe, Mr. McGill was one of the two directors who alternated on the episodes and success has followed his every move.
ANYONE can own an automobile, but it takes a regular guy to own and love a horse. This isn't an epigram, it's a diagram—of the plot of a very dramatic and entertaining Harry Carey Feature—"Cheyenne's Pal," two reels, released week of August 13. "Cheyenne" is Harry Carey, and "Pal" is "Pete," the gray horse that has brought his master through many a movie escapade; carried him to safety when an avenging posse was on his trail, and helped our hero in the rescue of maidens in distress. And off the screen as on, Pete is the apple of Harry's eye. Your audiences will enjoy the dramatic tale woven about a bad man's love for his horse. Harry has been selling horses to one of our Allies, and the officer in charge is keen to buy Pete. Harry has a roll and goes on a bender. He spends all his money, and when he sees his best girl's love for him diminish along with his roll, he sells Pete, and remorse overtakes him. He sees Pete loaded aboard ship, and in the night sneaks aboard and forces Pete overboard. He jumps into the water, makes land after a fight, and having left the purchase money on the ship finds himself down to his last dollar. Before him is a saloon and a livery stable. You have one guess as to where the dollar is spent. You win—especially if you book this humdinger.

"The Brass Girl" Matt Moore and Jane Gail in delightful Comedy Drama Week of August 13.

THRILLING, patriotic subjects—the big events that are making the world's history are shown each week in Universal Current Events—to the delight of millions of fans all over the country. Activities of the troops at home and abroad; the reception of foreign commissioners; with the aviators; the work of the Red Cross and many other interesting subjects have brought Current Events a marvelous popularity. Among the Exchanges

Activity Reported in Universal's New York Exchanges

SAM ZIRLER, who has been appointed supervisor of the two Universal New York exchanges, is building an organization which he says he feels sure is going to make strides in business in this territory.

Under his supervision all branches of the exchanges have been shifted so as to obtain greater strength.

He feels no organization is stronger than its weakest link, and is giving time to each side of the business, in turn.

The sales force, in particular has been added to, so that every section of the territory is covered. To balance increased power of the sales department, the inside organization has also been strengthened to handle added business. Poster departments and film rooms are being rearranged to allow greater service to exhibitors in getting their shows. This became vitally necessary owing to the number of New York motion picture men making the Universal exchanges their headquarters, as do also the out-of-town men.

The latest addition to the organization is the "Make It Pay, or Service Department," which is taking shape under the direction of C. G. Wood and W. A. Bach.

"Make It Pay Department " has for its big idea the rendering of service to the exhibitor not only in his advertising and publicity, thus enabling him to get more dollars out of his show, but also acting as a personal friend, and to adjust every complaint the exhibitor may have in the course of his business with the exchange.

Although in some cases warm weather is a sign of slackening on the part of exhibitors and exchange men, the reverse is true, it is stated, in the case of the New York Universal exchanges, as they are today more busy than ever before, and a greater volume of business is passing through every branch.

C. W. Taylor Manager for Standard in Omaha

C. W. Taylor, formerly manager of the General Film office in Omaha, has opened an office in that city for the Standard Film Company, distributor of Art Dramas in a large territory. He has located at 1517 Farnam street. The Des Moines office of the company has been closed. Mr. Taylor said:

"The addition of the David Horsley-Crane Willard productions to Art Dramas Program makes me all the more confident of success in distributing from the Omaha office."

An Irving Lesser on Vacation

Manager Irving Lesser of the All Star Feature Distributors' Exchange, in Los Angeles, left last week for a three weeks' vacation which he will spend at San Francisco, Lake Tahoe and in the Yosemite Valley. He will make the trip by auto.

During Mr. Lesser's absence, Mrs. C. H. Champion, who has been affiliated with this exchange for the past two years or more, will serve in the capacity of manager. Mrs. Champion is the first woman film exchange manager of the West Coast.

THE lull in film circles which descended upon us last week may be attributed to the fact that Paramount signed no new producer.

THEDA BARA, who, we are sure, needs no introduction to our readers, while playing a scene for "Cleopatra" the other day, almost came to grief when—but the story must be told from the beginning. Be it known that the costumes she wears in this picture are very, very frail. They are made of thin materials trimmed with a few beads and jewels. Now if one bead on any one of the chains was to become fatigued and if it subsequently cracked under the strain, the entire garment would commence to disappear rapidly. But in order to provide for such an emergency Miss Bara is followed about by three dressmakers equipped with beads, needles and thread and a maid armed with a large grey cloak ready to be thrown over the shoulders of the actress, should any of the beads become unstrung. Well the other day, or, the other day, that is while a scene was being made, one of the beads did begin to weary, and let go its hold on its neighbor. That started things going—and—well—well, here's the place where the dressmakers and the maid play their parts. They fixed things up of course. What did you expect?

THERE comes to hand a piece of bone submitted by Bennie Zeidman who claims a prehistoric pedigree for it. It was found by Douglas Fairbanks on an island "somewhere in the Pacific Ocean," says Bennie with consummate originality. The island is to be named after the Artcraft star and is now being registered in Washington. But this has nothing to do with the bone. Our zoological expert tells us that it is not prehistoric at all. Even to the untrained eye it exhibits marked symptoms of modernism. The fact is that it is none other than a bit of species cowus callius, a fum, formerly located between the medulla oblongata and the rumpus. It is a sad, sad world when Bennie tries to slip a bone over on us and although it cuts us to the quick to expose him in this fashion we are obliged to do it in the interests of truth and the advancement of the industry at large.

THE fact that Baby Marie Osborne lost a tooth elicited a story of one hundred and ninety-nine words from the Horsley press agent and we have spent thirty-six more in chronicling the fact here.

NOW that every paper has issued a convention number, we will have comparative peace until the next "special" occasion.

THE usual card from Bennie Zeidman has arrived, dated at Santa Monica, July 13. It is written on Baron Long's postal advertising the Sunset Inn. On it are scrawled the names of Bennie, Ben Rothwell, Patrick Dowling, Tom Geraghty, J. C. Jessen, Charlie Fuhr, Eleanor Something and Ben Something-Else. The misappearance to have been slipping around on the mahogany considerably. Soon after the publication of this item we will be in touch with the miserable Bennie person ourselves and then will administer a long and severe lecture.

HARRY ENNIS tells us that an exhibitor wrote in wanting to know all about "Odd" Dramas, and supplied the information that he "seated three hundred." Quite an expansion.

THE fellow who coined that phrase, "wonder boy," ought to get a job writing advertisements for Mary Elizabeth's.

WHAT has become of the exhibitor who once advertised a reward for any person who could prove he had seen his show before?

THE first edition of "Timely Topics," an eight-page sheet, issued in the interests of Art Dramas is at hand. Its editors, Harry Ennis and Pat Kearney, have filled it to the last page with valuable news matter for Art Dramas exhibitors.

THAT dignified combination, Sheppard and Van Loan, sent out a page or more indorsing the work of that dignified combination, Sheppard and Van Loan, which among other things calls attention to the combination's slogan, "To do the things you are unfitted to do unfit you to do the things you are fitted to do." Well is it fit to fix to yourself an indorsement that no matter how fitting would be more fitting to let another fit to your fittings?

Goodness! We just had a terrible idea! What will producers do when prohibition of some sort or another goes into effect. Just see if you can remember how many times drinks have been served over bars in pictures. And for an express purpose in the drama of course.

And now what will happen! Will the director show his villain accumulating a jug on light wines? This, of course, would suffice, but think of the many feet of film it would take before the wine took!

There is the alternative of showing the character chinning himself on the soda fountain counter, after consuming a dozen-old cherry slips, but such a practice would work to the ultimate harm of these palaces of temperance.

Supposing that the death knell of the film drunk has been sounded! But such a valuable dramatic element as booze cannot be so easily discarded. Some substitute will have to be found, and producers had better busy themselves in doping one out. We'll do all we can to help.

“The Child of the Slums” Produced in Akron

The Greyhound Motion Picture Company, of Akron, O., has produced a three-reel picture, “The Child of the Slums,” of which great things are expected. Natural settings were used throughout—outdoors and in the saloon.

A masterwork in the enterprise is R. W. Remy, who has been an actor, a director and had his fling at newspaper work. He wrote the scenario and handled the company. The corporation has stated capital of $15,000.

Priscilla Theatre, Cleveland, Drops to Ten Cents

The Priscilla Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, located in East Ninth Street, between Superior and Euclid Avenues, has lowered its admission price to 10 cents. It came as a shock to other managers.

At the close of the regular vaudeville season, the Priscilla management opened with first run showings of Bluebird and Butterfly pictures, at the standard prices of the house—that is, 10, 20 and 30 cents for admission. The house is large enough, and the features good enough to make the new proposition a paying one, they contend.

Robert C. Newman, Old-Time Property Man, Toronto, Dead

Robert C. Newman, of Toronto, Ont., who for three years had been Inspector of Moving Picture Theatres for the province, died suddenly July 9, at Piqua, Ohio, where he had gone to attend a convention of theatrical mechanics.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Visitors to New York were few last week owing to the more pressing business in Chicago.

Albert Scooper, president, and Lester Park, general manager of Ogden Pictures Corporation, are still in town attending to the marketing of the first picture of the company’s, featuring Lilian Walker.

Miss Walker, after a short stay in the city, is enjoying a vacation on her farm near Saratoga Springs, New York.

Adam Hull Shirk, late of the “Dramatic Mirror,” left for Long Beach, Cal., last Thursday.

Big Output of Short Films in Fall from Allen

Mo-Toy Comedies, Released by Peter Pan Company, Make Remarkable Headway with Public Regardless of This Torrid Weather

AFTER a year of careful study of the production of short projects, H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, is preparing to begin in September to give the exchanges an unusual output of short films.

The Mo-Toy Comedies, which are being released by the Peter Pan organization, are enacted by doll actors and present an entirely new feature in the field of production.

As an associate of certain men in the financial district, Mr. Allen formerly headed the Educational Films Corporation, and in that capacity had a rare opportunity to study the production of short subjects. The success of this corporation convinced him of the possibility of releasing worthwhile short novelties, providing that proper material and proper sales plan, organization and publicity were coordinated.

To this end, in mind he has formed an organization including some of the strongest men in the business, the details of which will be made public during the next months.

Wharton Releasing Plans Are Now Under Way

“THE Great White Trail,” produced by the Whartons, will be marketed on the state rights plan by the Wharton Releasing Corporation, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York City, recently organized for the exploitation of pictures made by the Ithaca producers, the makers of “Patina,” “The Exploits of Elaine” and other box-office attractions.

The Whartons have decided to reserve New York state and northern New Jersey, comprising the New York state rights territory, for themselves. Therefore, from the new company, “The Great White Trail,” and other products of the Ithaca concern will be marketed directly to the exhibitor throughout the New York territory.

The officers of the new company are: Leopold D. Wharton, Edward Small and Charles S. Goetz. Of these Mr. Goetz and Mr. Small will handle most of the marketing end of the business, Mr. Wharton’s time being largely occupied with that of his brother, Theodore Wharton, on production at Ithaca.

Charles S. Goetz is the vice-president of the firm, and if experience counts for anything, Mr. Goetz should be able to show a few new things in the selling end of the picture game. He has been in the business practically ever since pictures were pictures, and has been associated in the selling end of the business with the World, Fox, General and Artcraft. He opened the first office for the Fox Film Corporation.

was also the St. Louis manager for the General Film Company.

Mr. Small is president of Edward Small, Inc., has been secretary of the Master Drama Features, and formerly was associated with Marcus Loew.

“We plan to give every one who does business with us the maximum of service and quality,” says Mr. Goetz. “Whether that be the exhibitor who books from us through New York state, whether it be the state rights buyer or the foreign buyer, we shall continue to do our utmost, after the picture is sold, to bring the public to the theatre.”

Woman Censor in Ohio Speaks Well of “Purity”

W. M. James, of the Broadway theatre, Columbus, who was sued for showing “Purity” in its uncensored form, called as a witness Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, of the Ohio State Board of Censors.

Mrs. Murray testified that she had passed “Purity,” and that all the eliminations asked had been made by McMahon and Jackson. She said it was as clean a picture as any one would want to see, and that, though it had short flashes in the nude, the story was beautiful, clean and lacking suggestiveness.

Mrs. Miller is the member of the Ohio Board, who on two occasions passed “The Birth of the Nation,” rejected twice by other members, but finally approved by the entire Board.
IN AND OUT OF WEST COAST STUDIOS

By J. C. JESSEN

MORE than a score of companies are planning to add to the Triangle producing staff at Culver City and Hollywood studios, according to a statement announced this week by Vice-President and General Manager H. O. Davis, who arrived Tuesday from the East.

Mr. Davis brought with him plans perfected while in the East for the enlargement of the Culver City studios, and the work of building additional stages on the sixteen-acre tract adjoining the original studio was commenced this week. Mr. Davis is authority for the statement that when the work of enlarging the present plant is completed the Culver City studio will be the largest motion picture producing one in the world.

Mr. Davis did not make any other definite statements concerning the plans of the company other than the above facts. Announcements will shortly be made concerning additions to the producing staff, both with respect to directors, writers and players.

"We are going to live up to our recently adopted slogan, which is 'The best of yesterday will not be good enough for tomorrow,'" Mr. Davis said. "The time has come when Triangle will no longer attempt merely to make motion pictures; we will be making dramas and telling stories. More money will be put into the quality of the productions than ever before in the history of the industry, and how well we will have succeeded in accomplishing the desired results will be evident in the finished offerings."

J. G. QUINN, who came to the Coast to serve as assistant to Mr. Parker, who became general manager of the reorganization following the sale of the Kessell and Baumann interests, and who is still connected with the Triangle in an executive capacity, made the statement to the News representative that all members of the Sennett Keystone staff, including employees of all departments, would become affiliated with the Triangle for the production of Keystone and Triangle Comedies.

"The director who will go to work with Mr. Patterson in one of these subjects are Charles Avery, Harry McCoy, Harry Kerr, Reggie Morris and Herman Raymaker," Mr. Quinn said. "The studio at 4500 Sunset, formerly known as the Fine Arts, will be known in the future as the Triangle-Keystone, and all comedies will be made there. Sufficient staff will be maintained to make sufficient releases for one two-reel Keystone weekly and two one-reel Triangle weekly."

E. G. Patterson advised that plans are being completed now for the enlargement of the producing staff at the Culver City Triangle studio, where Mr. Patterson is serving as manager. He is also supervising the enlargement of the office department of the Triangle under the direction of General Manager H. O. Davis.

From other sources it was learned that Bert Glassmyre, who has been a member of the Keystone scenario staff following a long experience in writing for the screen with the Biograph and other companies, is to be manager of productions of the Keystone Triangle comedies, and Harry Wulze will be his assistant. Wulze has been a member of the West Coast film colony, serving in the capacity of writer for Keystone for a number of years, and has had a hazardous act, which provided the hero walk across a ledge six inches wide, 200 feet long and about 50 feet in the air. The stunt was performed successfully, and Miss Love is said to have danced a jig in the center of the ledge to allay the fears of her director, Charles Miller. This is one of the scenes for the subject entitled "Wee Lady Betty."

DIRECTOR WALTER EDWARDS is using two big sets this week especially built for a Louise Glaum subject he is now making. One represents back of the proscenium arch of a theatre, and the other shows the auditorium and stage from the rear of the house. Mr. Edwards found many articles in his old prop trunk that will be used to lend atmosphere to the "behind the scenes" scenes, among this collection being call sheets used a number of years ago when he was playing the leading role in "Sherlock Holmes." The theatre has a seating capacity of 400, complete even to the smallest detail, including bonbon boxes on the rear of the seats. Kleig lights were used as substitutes for the footlights, and some wonderful photographic effects were secured.

More than $5,000 worth of furnishings were needed for the boudoir, reception room and hallway set of a modern mansion. Director Raymond B. West is "shooting" this week for the coming Dorothy Dalton subject. The interiors are furnished in rustic and burnished gold, with genuine tapestry, mahogany and teakwood furniture. Director West believes too much is left to the imagination of the average person who witnesses motion pictures, and he personally supervised the dressing of this set to insure that it be complete to the smallest detail.

SEVERAL hundred dollars' worth of furniture and properties, and a like amount of clothing, was destroyed in a fight scene in which fifty Triangle players took part this week for the subject, "Wee Lady Betty," starring Bessie Love. Frank Borzage played the lead in this, and he and a number who took part now have marks to show the ferocity with which the battle was fought. Several cameras were used to get different angles of the fight.

Lynn Reynolds and a company including Olive Thomas, George Cheesbro and George Hernandez, this week left for Arizona, where exteriors will be made for a photoplay written and directed by Reynolds, which has a locale in Arizona.

Mrs. Alice Moore has been selected as an assistant art director at the Triangle studio and will supervise the creation of all settings with respect to furnishing, decorations, etc. Mrs. Moore is a former actress of the speaking stage, who has been in pictures for several years. While thus displaying a keen interest in preparation of sets, which resulted in her transfer to that work.

Transfer to that work. She has the distinction of being the first woman art director of the Triangle studios.

A LARGE number of scenes for the Cecil B. deMille-Geraldine Farrar story have been taken. This photoplay will be of a Western nature, laid in the Aztec period of American history. A very large cast has been selected for work in this production, many of the players selected having appeared with Miss Farrar in "Joan the Woman" and his other previous subjects. "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," coming Mary Pickford-Artcraft, has been completed with respect to the filming of scenes, and Marshall Neilan, director, is now editing the film. Miss Frances Marion, who prepared the scenario for the "Rebecca" picture, now has another script ready, and filming will begin shortly.

The first Julian Eltinge subject, in which the famous impersonator plays the role of the leading woman and leading man, has been completed by Director Donald Crisp.

Louise Huff and Jack Pickford are working in a new story under the direction of William C. deMille, and Sessue Hayakawa will next work under the direction of George Melford, who is busy with the preparation of the script.

A benefit dance for the Hollywood children's hospital by the Lasky Home Guards' band was given Saturday evening, July 7, when one of the big stages was used.

With the comedy drama "Sky High" completed, Director Elmer Clifton this week took up the making of "It's Up to You," a romantic story of a comedy-drama nature laid in American and European cities. As with "Sky High," Herbert Rawlinson and Brownie Vernon will be co-starred in this subject.

Director Marshall Stedman is working on a three-reel drama which features little Lena Baskette, supported by Beatrice Van and Fred Monique.

Several changes have been made during the past week in the producing force of Universal City. One of the most important, perhaps, is the innovation with respect to comedies. In the future all are to be made under the personal supervision of Roy Clements, who will be in charge of the stories, scripts, filming and editing. Five directors in addition to Mr. Clements will be included in the staff. Burton George, who has been with the Universal for the past several weeks, and Harry Edwards, who was added this week, will direct Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran in Nester Comedies alternately. Allen Curtis and William Beaudine will alternate in making Joker Comedies with the same company. Craig Hutchinson will continue with the direction of Max Asher, who is this week appearing in "The Handy Man," a theatrical story, with Gladys Tennyson playing the feminine lead.

Grace Cunard, who has appeared in Universal serials and subjects for the past three years or more, but who has worked away from Universal City for the past year, returned to that producing plant this week, and will be featured in subjects made under the direction of W. B. Pierson. Her first release will be titled "Gold Dust," a Western dance hall story written by Pierson. Other leading people will be Eileen Sedgwick and George McDaniel.

Vivian Rich, featured in many American-Mutual subjects, has been engaged by the Universal, and is now appearing opposite Franklyn Farnum in a five-reel Western comedy drama at present known as "The Maverick," being produced by Joseph de Grasse. Miss Rich has taken a vacation of almost a year, and Universal City officials believe she will be welcomed back to the screen by her many former admirers.

Another five-reel subject put in production this week is known at present as "The Bumble Bee," and is being directed by George Marshall. This is a combination of scores of automobiles of every size and type were required this week by the William Fox studio producing force to transport the great number of extra people from the studio to the streets of Alexandria, located on Nigger Slough, a near stagnant stream in the vicinity of San Pedro, a distance of thirty miles from the producing plant. At this point the larger scenes for the production will be made, and every day twelve hundred or more people have been busy working in scenes of the coming Theda Bara production, "Cleopatra," under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards.

Economy in transportation of children has been made possible by Los Angeles traction lines running special cars for motion picture companies. The first organization to use this method is that of the Franklin Brothers of the William Fox studio. For the past two weeks they have been making scenes for "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp" at Los Angeles harbor, a distance of almost thirty miles away from the studio. It was found the cost for car-ryall trucks would amount to eighty or ninety dollars a day. The traction lines are furnishing two cars at a cost of $42.50. The company requires about 125 people, including the kiddies and their parents.

Millard Lee Fillmore Webb, who has gained the reputation of being the best dressed assistant director of the Los Angeles motion picture colony, has resigned as assistant for the Franklin Brothers of the Fox organization, and will be permanent assistant to John Emerson of the Douglas Fairbanks-Artcraft Company.

William Parsons, general manager of the National Film Corporation of America, this week made contracts for leads in the coming unusual production, "Tarzan of the Apes." Mr. Parsons has been successful in inducing Spellman S. Windrow, internationally famous athlete, and world champion broad jumper, swimmer, hammer and shot thrower, to play the lead in the second period of the subject. Mr. Windrow is six feet two inches in height, weighs 200 pounds, and is believed to be the best man available for playing the part of Tarzan. Those who remember the story will recall this character is a man who was mothered and reared by a female ape, following the death of her own offspring and her kidnapping a child from an explorers' party. In the early period of the story Gordon Griffith will appear as Tarzan when a boy. Young Griffith is about twelve years of age, and has already been twelve years of age.

Director Scott Sidney and the scenario staff have the story ready for filming, and now that the properties and settings have been completed work will be begun within the week.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

BUSINESS MANAGER CHARLES CHRISTIE of the Christie Film Company is in a local hospital, where he is recovering from a throat operation performed early this week. Indications are that he will be able to return to his work at the studio within a few weeks.

"Local Color" is the title given the comedy now being made by Al E. Christie. The plot pertains to an author who went to the country to meet a fair and innocent girl, but instead met an actress who was there on a vacation and posed as the unsophisticated girl. James Harrison is the writer and Margaret Gibson the actress, and supporting cast includes Ethel Lynn, Lucille Pies, Eddie Gibbons and Eugene Corry.

THE third Baby Marie Osborne picture of the Lasaland Company has been completed for Pathé. It is titled "Baby Pulls the String," and consists of five reels. Work will be started immediately on the next release, which at present has been titled "The Child of M'sieu." This has a classical-drama plot, and one of the important situations revolves about Baby Marie's loss of one of her baby teeth from its temporary "mooring" in the center of her lower set. This tooth has been wanting to come out for some time, and the situation will be built about it. The picture will be directed by Harrish Ingraham, while William Bertram, who directed "Baby Pulls the String," edits that subject and prepares script for his next one.

Crate Wilbur, Juno Hanssen and a big cast will work under the direction of Lorimer Johnston in a subject for Art Drama program which has been titled "Devil McCare."

THE film MacLean MacMullen's photoplay produced at the Horsley studio, and which was originally known as "A Daughter of the Well-Dressed Poor," is to be released under the title "The Counterfeit Soul." Thomas Ricketts is taking up a new subject with this star.

The Lasaland Film Company is making "Jerry on the Railroad," featuring George Ovey; and the Sellburne Comedy organization, including Gertrude Selby and Neil Burns, have started on a new picture.

BEN Cohn, well-known scenario writer of the West Coast colony, has been engaged by David Horsley, and is now at work in the preparation of scripts for his several producing units.

A BIG automobile was smashed to a worthless heap this week when it was driven at high speed into a moving freight train running on a track diagonally with the highway. This scene was enacted by Helen Holmes, being featured in the coming Signal Mutual serial, "The Lost Express," and the scene served to give the chapter a name—"The Wreck at the Crossing."

The Signal Company had an outgoing Sunday of the past week, when Director J. F. McGowan leased a speed launch and most all members of the producing staff were taken to Catalina Island, where a pleasant day was spent.

David Voorhees, who has been appearing in Lonesome Lake Comedies, made by the Rolin Film Company for the Pathé program, has received notice to report for duty July 15 at Fort McArthur, Long San Pedro, Cal. Voorhees is drum major of the company. He weighs a trifle more than 200 pounds and is almost six and a half feet in height. It is claimed he has the distinction of being the tallest man now enlisted in the U. S. Army. He is a nephew of the late Senator Voorhees.

The million dollar feet of Charles Chaplin are inactive, and the comedian is at a local hospital recuperating from the effects of two carbuncles on his limb. He started work in his last picture for the Mutual, but was forced to give up the work because of what he termed "burnout." They developed into carbuncles, and lancing took the comedian to the hospital. It is believed he will require at least two weeks for him to convalesce sufficiently to go back to his work in finishing the twelfth Mutual release.

WHILE Director John Emerson and Scenario Writer Anita Loos are editing the latest Fairbanks-Artcraft subject, "Down to Earth," this week, Mr. Fairbanks, in company with Henry Mosher, wealthy Easterner, is hunting mountain lions in the wild and woolly California mountains.

Preparations are being made at the studio in Hollywood for production of the next Fairbanks subject, and already a number of players for the cast have been named. Included in this list will be Charles Girard and "Spike" Robinson.

ACTIVE work of preparing for production of the first Mena Film Company's subject was begun this week upon the arrival of G. C. Driscoll, director of the company and manager of production. This New Jersey corporation, capitalized at $250,000, plans to make four multiple-reel subjects each year, which will be released through their own organization, with offices in principal cities of the United States, South America and Europe. All subjects will be made with a view to using the best talent, dealing with biblical subjects popularly presented and historically correct. No attempt will be made to give to these the tone of a sermon, and it is the hope of the company that their efforts will be successful at the theaters. All subjects will be booked as road attractions, each print having a musical organization, company manager and advance agent.

H. O. Davis, G. M. of Tri- angle, is in our office.

Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke has figured it out that posing for films is just like playing house of the children.

Another space has been discovered on the Horsley stage, so there's a possibility of a new star appearing.

Mack Sennett came back to our town this week, and his Para- mount did a splendid bit to make better comedies.

An announcement of engagement was made by M. G. Jones this week to Miss Helen Jones, and the lucky fellow, Dr. James Steinberg.

Wally Reid used coconut oil for two reasons one day this week. He was sunburned in the beach in the morning, and burned at the stake in the after- noon.

Irving Loser, who rents films as a partner for All-Star Feature Distributors, celebrated his birthday day, July 14th, and Irving was twenty-three.

Uncle Sam's lieutenants of the mail service now deliver all mail addressed to "U.S.A. Genoa, Jovial, Director, Los Angeles, California" to Milt. Fairney at Horsley's. An actor told Walt. Edwards he had worked for Walter father twenty years ago, and then he learned that the editor of Warner himself that he had worked for. Bob McKinnis is said to have registered for conscription recently just to prove to his friend that he was not over thirty. Bob, if that's true, you're some sport.

Charlie Miller claims it is easier to be linear for a wire- less telephone company than director of a motion picture or organization, but still stays at his job at the Triangle.

Crate Wilbur was thrown out of a barber shop this week (just for scenes in a film) but past early thought the ejection was brought on by Crate's refusing to let 'em cut his hair.

The Ivory stable, where Bill Keane keeps his horses, set a date, guarded the West- mount dogs with a strong watch built in that barn, where it is to be secured, and it is stated that the time the actor was not using the stable.

Everybody around the Rolin studio seems to be prosperous these days. Ed Roach has bought a new Cadillac, and Beebe Daniels is flying to and from beach bungalow in a special Scripps-Booth with shiny paint.

Daisy Purchase and Winifred Kingston were executed as American spys by Germans one morn- ing last week, and that after- noon attended a banquet given by the Kaiser, or some big name, of all that, which makes this film life worth while.

Eddie Lyons, Len Moran and other left Omaha and points East, their destination being the Chicago Convention. Eddie will greet his 5,000 admirers at Midtown Inn and Consolidated Crepe Hair Branch.

Transcontinental wireless brings the glad tidings to HOPKOM that Pete Milne, the editor of Los Angeles, the internationally famous for his stage work, are to leave one Broadway for another in the West. Many fine plans are being planned for this panner of scenery, which will be presented on July 25th is assured.

Ben Deely, the black-face comedian of the holl hopp and Harry Wulfe, Keystone scena- rio writer, are both suitors for the hand of the daughter of Tom Kennedy, and a duel is to be staged in one of our popular cafes if the pair ever meet there. Tom says he's neutral. Wulfe insists he will use dynamite or German gas bombs on his opponent, and Deely is having an armor plate suit with gas mask made for him. The woman in the case refuses to be other than neutral. She is only fifteen months old.

Uncle Tom Geryagh, Benja- mid, and Colonel Patrick Dowlin are instigators for a wonderful, set-together of all together in a battle of—well, a clam bake on the beach of Kai- loa. Between are ac- tually the scenes of victory, played on a very large scale, much as the wire stated they were registered wonderly. Charlie has wired back suggest- ing the boys be named Victor and Edisson.

"Alma, Where Do You Live?"

When a man, even though he top his fellows head and shoulders, pushes over a horse and rider, carries three men around on his back, and cleans up a squad or so of soldiers, one sits up and takes notice, and says "marvelous," despite the fact that he is in no way acquainted with the stunts of Douglas Fairbanks and Pearl White. Maciste, always remembered giant of "Cabiria," performs these and many other amazing feats in "The Warrior," the latest Itala production which Harry Raver is handling on this continent. Seven reels covers quite a period of time throughout which to make an audience burst into laughter and applause without a sign of fatigue, yet it was in this way that the invitation audience at the Criterion theatre took the picture and the appreciation was spontaneous; not all in deference to Mr. Raver's invitation.

The amazing strength of Maciste led the producers to provide him with a vehicle, which mingles stunts that amuse and stunts that thrill. One laughs heartily at the sight of him devouring an entire chicken and a side of beef, getting fitted for a uniform and lugging his Austrian enemy all over the Alpine snow by the hair. But when he displays native agility in climbing up the side of a mountain or going up a rope hand-over-hand one has equally just cause to marvel. A lot of his work has been introduced, which enables the films to show Maciste lifting an offensive Austrian officer out the window on his toe and swinging a soldier around over his head, but by and large "The Warrior" is real, and from this quality does it gain its amazing interest.

That Maciste is a capable actor, no one will deny. He has the bright and happy personality that lends a touch of humor to everything he does, no matter how fierce his deeds are in themselves. He has a contagious smile showing a fine set of teeth. Gaston Fluery of "Le Figaro," Paris, says "Maciste, the Warrior," will bear after him all the cheers and all the hearts of France, and, to localize the line, "the United States" may be substituted for "France," and the judgment will be just as poetic.

But Maciste is not all that there is to "The Warrior." He is a lot, but, at that only about half, which is enough for any actor. The backgrounds of the picture are magnificent. There are scenes taken in the lofty Alps showing the Italian soldiers on the march—and on the climb. Scaling up sheer walls of ice and snow and going over monstrous cavioties on a rope. Beautiful banks of clouds rest on snow-covered peaks in the distance, while such superb photography has never been seen before, except, perhaps, in films of the same brand. Scenically "The Warrior" would rank one hundred per cent.

And sums up "The Warrior." It is the biggest novelty of the year on either screen or stage. It offers a new form of entertainment, which every one at the Criterion theatre seemed to welcome with open eyes.

THE STORY

The story follows the adventures of Maciste as a member of the Alpine division of the Italian army. His many encounters with the Austrian, Fritz, his rescue of the old Italian Count and his daughter from the invaders—and the manner in which he reunites the girl with her lover are the principal episodes in the ever-enter- taining picture.

Why the bit of war drama was woven into the plot is not easily discernible, unless it be that the one who did the continuity was strangely the thought that it was timely. It is timely, if a star other than Miss MacTammany were taken for the leading role. But since Miss MacTammany makes such an effeminate soldier and one so obviously so, the efforts of the one responsible for this scene were made in vain. What is meant to be a serious scene verges closely upon the burlesque. However, this may be overlooked. The opening scenes, exteriors, present some pretty "shots." The photography is unusually good. George Larkin, in the chief supporting role, is convincing. Walter Mack, as Anatole Peach, typifies the unsophisticated ward. Jack Newton does well as Pierre Dufour. Others, in a good supporting cast, are John Webb Dillon, Frank McNish, Mattie Keene, Marian Kinnam, George Gaston, Joseph Phillips.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Alma (Ruth MacTammany) while riding in the woods, loses her way. Gaston Duval (George Larkin), an artist, finds her. A strong friendship springs up between the two. Francis Cadillac (George Gaston), a millionaire, dies, leaving his fortune, upon the ostensible condition which the will imposed upon his heir, his ward, (Walter Mack), his ward. Alma is induced to make love to Anatole so that under his guardian's will he will lose the fortune.

Alma is engaged by Count Ladislow (John Webb Dillon) to take the leading role in the "The Slave Girl." Alma's father, Pierre Dufour (Jack Newton), is a famous artist. He and Gaston attend the opening performance and Gaston learns the answer to the question. "Alma, Where Do You Live?"

Alma's attentions to Anatole makes Gaston jealous, but upon learning that her attentions are feigned, Gaston becomes reconciled and everything ends happily.

"Peggy, the Will o' the Wisp"

When, the production, Miss Taliaferro as star of this picture, and Director Tod Browning, who was alive to every possibility in the script, have made it worthwhile while production despite its almost impossibly deplorable lack of story. The scene of action is Ireland, and the meagre plot has to do with the rivalry of the gallant hero and the despicable villain for the hand of Peggy. The murder introduced almost at the last quickens the interest somewhat, but for the body of the picture one must rely solely on laughs for interest. The reference to the Irish legend and the revival of its gallant hero by Peggy is a pretty piece of work, and helps largely in speeding the reels, but with all its good points one cannot help but feel the lack of real pictorial vitality in "Peggy, the Will o' the Wisp."

Miss Taliaferro, in this picture, proves that she has few superiors in the art of screen acting. Her every expression conveys a meaning, regarding which there is no question, while her vitality and prettiness count wonders in her behalf. As a comedienne she is excellent, as the manner in which she handles the role of Peggy clearly shows, and it is only to be regretted that she was not provided with a vehicle more worthy of her delightful talents. The support is well selected and offers a striking and at times humorous array of types. All these merits the Sunday audience at the New York theatre appreciated and even applauded, but there were a few yawns registered by some of those present.

Mr. Browning's direction is entirely creditable. The camera work, however, could have been a good deal better, while the same applies to the lighting.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Peggy (Mabel Taliaferro) rebels against the harshness of a stingy old Irish landowner (Sam J. Ryan), and in order to relieve the suffering of his tenants plays highwayman at night, robbing from the rich to give to the poor, thus following an old Irish legend. Her sweetheart, Captain Dacey (Thomas J. Carrigan), is commissioned to capture the highwayman, but his activities are brought to a sudden halt by the discovery of the landowner, murdered, with Dacey's gun beside him. Peggy, using her wits, again poses as the highwayman and preying upon the superstition of the dead man's nephew and heir (Nathan Sack), forces him to confess his crime.

W. J. Gross, Thomas O'Malley, Florence Ashbrooke and Clara Blandick are others in the cast.

"When You and I Were Young"
(Art Dramas (Apollo)—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"WHEN YOU AND I WERE YOUNG," from the Apollo Studios, released on the Art Dramas program, is a light drama, and following a story as suggested by the title, it is in no way of the old song by the same name. The material supporting the plot element is not suggestive of originality, but it is developed in a pleasing way and presented by a cast of average players.

The story of a youthful romance is told, and Alma Hanlon, as Dorothy Miller, a young country girl who wishes to become a writer of note, gives an average performance. Miss Hanlon lacks a naturalness of action to convincingly impersonate the role of Dorothy. The scenarioist has taken a bit too much trouble in arriving at a definite action, but in the latter reels the picture takes on a certain strength of plot. The climax leaves the impression that its convincing action is not developed by that which goes before. Some of the sub-titles are appropriate, some others are exaggerated. The director, whose name is not given on the program, used good judgment in selecting "location." The photography is good, as are the lighting effects. Florence Short, in the supporting cast, gives evidence of strong dramatic ability. Harry Bensch, as the opposite Miss Hanlon, does well. Mrs. Tansey, Robert Maellt, Jr., Louis Sterns and Louis Third complete a good supporting cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

"A Model Marauder"
(Kalem—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY R. M. JOHNSON

"A MODEL MARAUDER," episode in Kalem's second series of "Stingaree"—the further adventures of the bushranger hero—are the sincerest effect in the drama, and the resourceful Stingaree, trapped by the troopers in the waxwork tent. Hawkins marches in bravely enough, revolver in hand, only to find the wax figures, each on its pedestal, as lifeless and unreal as ever, to all appearances. But the semblance of King Lear wakens suddenly, pokes two pistols under Hawkins' nose and takes instant command of the friends. Dorothy returns from one of her excursions, and is not very successful. She is invited to the party, but her heart is not in it. The story is continued in next week's issue.

This is as odd a hold-up as was ever staged and will get across with the audience, giving the spectators a genuine surprise and delight. It may not be logical, but it will hit the crowd that likes melodrama in all shapes and sizes, and this is the section of the public that no doubt E. W. Hornung expects to reach. Hal Clements in this episode, in the part of Stingaree's friend Howie, does good work. Release of the two-reeler is through General Film.

"Richard the Brazen"
(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

EXCELLENT entertainment is provided by this melodrama, the handling of which seems to have well concealed the few illogical incidents of the plot. Edward Peple and Cyrus Townsend Brady are co-authors of the story, while the direction was in charge of Perry N. Vekroff, who is making some of the Vitagraph's best features. The story revolves around the romance of Richard Williams and Harriet Renwyk, the former passing himself off as an English Lord in order to gain admittance to the latter's home. The deception is responsible for a number of stirring complications which culminate in a climax of real power.

While coincidence plays a consequential part in "Richard the Brazen," it results in such entertaining twists that it will quite probably be overlooked. In the main, the skill of the scenario writer, who has pictured an exciting story, allows the salient points to register in scenes instead of being lost in the background memory either consciously or subconsciously. There is plenty of good comedy besides melodramatic tension and Mr. Vekroff has given the whole a production in which there are few flaws.

Harry Morey and Alice Joyce are featured and their work in all departments is of the highest order. The supporting cast includes a large number of players, everyone of whom appears to good advantage in his or her part.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Richard Williams (Harry Morey), a Texan, and Lord Croyland (Charles Wellesley), an agent of the British Government, arrive in America. In an automobile accident Croyland is hurt and Richard volunteers to carry important papers of his friend to Renwyk (Franklyn Hanna), a munitions manufacturer. Renwyk believes him to be Lord Croyland, and when Richard sees his daughter, Harriet (Alice Joyce), he decides to remain so for the time being. Bill Williams (William Frederic), Richard's father, hearing of his arrival, comes east. He arrives at the house of Renwyk just as the munitions manufacturer discovers his real identity. Richard is attempting to save the name of Harriet, whom he believes is discreet. The confession of Harriet's cousin (Agnes Eyre) clears up this matter and things finally end happily.

Robert Kelly and Bill Bailey also appear.

"In Slumberland"
(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AN extravagantly staged picture of Irish folk is presented in "In Slumberland," in which Thelma Salter, the child actress, is billed as the featured player. The story, by L. V. Jefferson, is laid in a previous generation and gives the cast a chance to appear in costumes of a most picturesque sort. The plot concerns the efforts of a villainous old landlord to win the heart of Nora McCree, after her husband has been forced to join the army. The dream of fairyland which visits Little Eileen McCree fulfills the duty of the usual allegory and brings about the defeat of the landlord and the return of the husband.

The interest is firmly held throughout the picture by the various machinations of the heavy, which though rather trite in a dramatic sense, answer the purpose well enough. Irving Willat staged the picture lavishly, but the lighting is at present the least attention. The dream stuff is as fantastic as could be desired, while for the straight scenes, entire street sets have been erected and locations carefully chosen and well dressed up to represent the time and place. The photography offsets the whole to good advantage.

Exhibitors may be inclined to fight shy of the picture because of its title, but while as suggested, the subject will provide excellent entertainment for children, there is no reason why it should not be presented before adults as well, for the fantastic has not been overworked, and it never outstays the story proper from its rightful place of prominence.

Thelma Salter plays engagingly in the stellar part, while the adult portion of the film is directed by J. P. Lockney, Laura Sears and Jack Livingston, does work of an unusually high order.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Kennedy (J. P. Lockney) leads Patrick McCree (Jack Livingston) to believe that he has committed a murder and forcing him to join the army en route for South Africa, thereafter pays court to his wife, Nora (Laura Sears). He intercepts Pat's letters and forces his attentions upon Nora until she is distracted. Pat, returning home, is waylaid by Kennedy and stunned by a blow. That night little Eileen McCree (Thelma Salter), dreams of wandering in fairyland, of meeting her father and of being told that he is just "betwixt and between." Awaking, she follows out the fairy's advice and discovers her father, regaining consciousness, who returns home in time to save his wife and home.
NEW twists have been given this rather old melodramatic number featuring Emmy Wehlen, with the consequence that it takes on additional interest. It commences after numerous events have already transpired in the lives of the principals and the unfolding of these by means of the fadeout creates a greater amount of suspense than that which is usually found in the opening reels of a feature production. In other words, it is the treatment that makes "The Trail of the Shadow" thoroughly convincing as a whole. Looking at it from the standpoint of its story alone it is conventional and rather obvious, but very few will take this viewpoint.

The story was written by O. A. C. Lund, scenarized by June Mathis and directed by Edwin Carewe. Many of the locations used are very beautiful, while the photography offsets all of them to good advantage. The double exposure work of which there is an unusual portion is excellent. The vision seen by Sylvia with the running brook as a background is an extremely well done piece of work.

Miss Wehlen makes an appealing and attractive character of the featured role. Eugene Strong, who in a good many poses has a peculiarly Bushmanesque appearance, is a typical hero, while the supporting cast does efficient work.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sylvia Mason (Emmy Wehlen), living alone in the West, meets Henry Hilliard (Emery Strong), an Easterer, and before his departure the two fall in love. One evening while Leslie (Harry Northrup), "The Shadow" comes to her cabin, and forces her to hide him from the police. It turns out that Leslie is the man who ruined and killed her father when Sylvia refused to marry him. He attacks her, and, when she faints, he leaves a note, saying that she is "his," and that the only way out is for her to marry him. So Sylvia, after disposing of the body (Harry Hilliard, the Blanke) believing Sylvia beneath her son offers to buy her off, she accepts in order to disillusion Henry. He, however, learns her story from the Padre (Fuller Mellish), and goes in search of her. She has gone to Leslie. The men fight, and Leslie receives the worst of it. Before he dies he confesses that he lied to Sylvia.

Oth behind the cast are Frank Corrier, Alice MacChesney and De Jalma West.

"The Golden Idiot"

ROBERT RUDdü WHITING, in preparing for the screen "The Golden Idiot," paved a golden way for Bryant Washburn to enter the hearts of his audiences. It is safe to say here that Mr. Whiting had Mr. Washburn in mind when he prepared the scenario and from this we may draw the conclusion that Mr. Whiting felt indebted to the author for his very accurate knowledge of his art and the interpretation of the wander-jit. From whatever angle we view "The Golden Idiot" and Mr. Washburn's work, we must concede that both the author and the interpreter of his work have given to the screen, not a wonderful story or wonderful acting, but a new story and a perfect naturalness in its presentation.

The simplicity of this Essanay production is its cardinal virtue. The author, the interpreter and the director worked as one—each with a view toward simple naturalness. The extravagant, the pretentious—all have been left in the studio. Barry Owen when he leaves the city room of the daily newspaper, leaves behind all the artificiality of the city life, the conventional attire, the conventional mannerisms, the conventional life. He strikes the broad highway—a man, a real man, a "golden idiot." The life, as it comes to him, is received with open arms. He receives the apron of the waiter with the soul of the diner and mixes Nature with all the confidence and undisguised buoyancy of youth.

When Barry meets the girl a certain time elapses before they meet again. The scenarist does not have them fall into each others arms, complete their courtship and marry, all within the time it takes to run one reel. Their meetings and their progress follow in logical sequence and the final union comes when we would have it, not when the author chooses to say the word. The sub-titles should serve as models for aspiring scenarists. Every word conveys a meaning and every meaning is as essential to the picture as spokes are to the wheel. Virginia Valli is only second to Mr. Washburn in this criticism. She never "overdoes" a scene nor does she "act." She is natural. Arthur Metcalfe does fine. Arthur Berthelet, who directed, could not have improved upon the production. "The Golden Idiot" will stand the scrutiny of the "close" observer without a quiver.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Barry Owen (Bryant Washburn) occupies a place on the "copy" desk of a city newspaper. He receives word that his wealthy uncle wishes to see him. He visits his uncle and is informed by the uncle that his fortune will be left to his nephews unless someone is able to offset the fortune. The nephew who has the most money at his (uncle's) death, shall receive of the fortune in proportion as his capital has increased. Barry goes on a wild "tear," leaves the newspaper office and strikes the open highway to start anew. He meets an author, tells him his story and is engaged as secretary. From this adventure he moves into others and meets the girl who eventually becomes his wife. His uncle dies and since his cousin, who was a rich broker, went "broke" owing thousands of dollars and Barry was possessed of fifty cents, to him (Barry) came the fortune.

"The Mother Instinct"

(WHAT might be described as "heart interest" drama is offered in "The Mother Instinct," which features Enid Bennett, but which awards the biggest part to Margery Wilson. It is cut from material of a very conventional sort, but the usual superb Ince treatment has lifted it from the ranks of ordinary features where its story virtually places it, and raised it to a plane of real pictorial excellence.

Maude Pettus is the author, Lambert Hillyer did the continuity, and R. William Nell directed. The scenes alternate between the sea coast and the Latin Quarter of Paris, and both locales have been realistically presented. The conversation is clever and the play in the greater number of Ince pictures, which counts largely in making them realistic as to atmosphere, is apparent in many places throughout "The Mother Instinct." The exterior of the sea coast village and the costume ball in Paris give undeniable evidence that no expense was spared in the production.

Miss Bennett appears to that refreshing and appealing advantage which is always associated with her, while Miss Wilson plays her big scenes with a striking show of feeling. Ted Burns, who made such a lasting impression as Giles, in Bessie Barriscale's last Ince picture, shows his versatility by handling the serious role of Pierre in fine style, while Rowland Lee and Jack Gilbert present their respective characters exceedingly well.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Eleanor Couttier (Enid Bennett), an artist's model in Paris, is visited by her sister, Marie (Margery Wilson), who resides with her mother (Gertrude Claire), on the nearby coast. When she departs she leaves her baby with Eleanor, that she may return the love of Pierre (Ted Burns). Mother Couttier is led to believe by Eleanor that the child is hers. Jean Couttier (Jack Gilbert), brother of the girls, has many times expressed his hatred of Raoul (Carl Ullman), and one morning when he is found dead, Jean is accused and arrested. When on trial with all evidence against him, Marie confesses to the crime, saying that Raoul was the father of her child. The court releases Marie and Pierre forgives her, while Eleanor is then left free to marry Jacques (Rowland Lee).

"The Fatal Ring"

(Pathe—Fifth Episode)

REVIEWS BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"DANGER UNDERGROUND," the fifth episode of this Pathe serial, is without a doubt, the best two-reel showing coming under the name of this popular series. The "punch" is given in the initial scene and for originality and the opportunities for daring and thrilling action which it offers Pearl White, it has never been excelled. Down a water main, through the dark recess of an outlet, Miss White is dashed by rushing waters, and upon reaching the North River, which executes an action of unpleasantness with scarcely a hair's breadth between herself and the bow of a North River ferryboat as it is about to come flush with the dock, Miss White drags her body only a few inches in advance of the ferry. It is a thrill with an accent. Earle Fox, Ruby Hoffman and Warner Oland are all excellent. A word of praise is due the director for the fine production he has given this and preceding chapters of the "Fatal King."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Pearl has fallen into a water main and is carried through an underground tunnel to the river. Tom Carlton sees her as she is carried into the river and a thrilling rescue is staged. Knox has but one day left to secure the diamond. Locked in a secret room, the Priestess, Carslake and Knox are planning. Tom and Pearl gain admittance and find themselves covered by revolvers in the hands of supposed policemen. A series of exciting events are enacted in which all are active. Pearl is condemned to death by the laws of the Order. She is suspended over a boiling caldron and slowly lowered. The chapter ends with Pearl suspended thus.

"A Self-Made Widow"

"A SELF MADE WIDOW," written by Henry Albert Phillips, is a comedy-drama featuring Alice Brady. Rather does it set out with both comedy and drama in view, but after the introduction of the main situation the complexion of things is altered to the melodramatic. The comedy, as much of it as there is in the first two reels, will probably register. There is the small town stuff done in the usual way which always seems to answer its purpose. But the serious parts of the picture are in no way sincere and convincing.

When an author takes his leading feminine character and gives her foolish things to perform, impossible things, and then tries to draw sympathy to her when she gets in a tangle, the results are not in the last plausible. This is what Mr. Phillips has done with the central character in "A Self Made Widow," Sylvia Smith, the part which Miss Brady carries. All the good acting in the world would hardly suffice to make such a role appealing and Miss Brady has been given few dramatic scenes.

The detail of the direction is not quite up to standard. The fall taken by Sylvia is obviously for the camera and we fail to see why Castleton's beard proved such a complete disguise. John Bowers is the hero and the supporting cast is rather below the high World Film average in this department. Travers Vale directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sylvia Smith (Alice Brady), a country girl, full of romance, arrives in the city with her Romeo to discover his wife and children waiting for him. Not wishing to go back and bear the jeers of the townsfolk she wanders about the city. She discovers the cast and supposed suicide note of Castleton (John Bowers), who has sailed away from his fortune as common sailor. Sylvia meets a forger (Herbert Barrington) and pays him money to marry her under Castleton's name. She then falls heir to his fortune. On his return, Castleton, sensing the situation remains at his home as gardener and gradually falls in love with Sylvia. After several misunderstandings matters are finally straightened out and Sylvia and Castleton really become man and wife.

Curtis Cooksey, Justine Cutting, Richard Clarke, Henrietta Simpson and Lila Chester are others in the cast.

"What Money Can't Buy"

"What Money Can't Buy" is an adaptation made by Beulah Marie Dix from George Broadhurst's play, and with the attractive team, Jack Pickford and Louise Huff, in the parts of the lovers. It makes somewhat limited in its field of activity, handles his role excellently. Such prominent members of the Lasky stock as Theodore Roberts, Hobart Bosworth, Raymond Hatton, James Cruze and James Neill appear in the supporting cast, giving the exhibitor just cause in advertising it "all-star."

Mr. Broadhurst's play, outside of the fact that it evidently gave the adaptor a few opportunities to fully develop the various characters, proves a satisfactory, if not brilliant, basis for a picture. Lou-Tellegen was in charge of production and has done acceptable work, inasmuch as he was never dealing with scenes that extended from the intimate into the spectacular. The usual excellent Lasky light effects prevail throughout the number.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

King Stephen (Raymond Hatton) of Maritza is heavily in debt to Texler (Hobart Bosworth), who is willing to cancel the debt providing the King force his daughter, Irenia (Louise Huff), to marry the conspirator Vasloff (James Cruze), and also award him the contract to build a railroad through Maritza. Hale (Theodore Roberts), an American, is the other bidder for the contract. His son, Dick (Jack Pickford), falls in love with Irenia. Vasloff, angry at his success, has him arrested on a trumped up charge and then attempts to force him to write a note to his father telling him to give up the contract. In the meantime, however, Irenia and Hale have been forced to evolve a plan which eventually turns Vasloff and Texler. When the King discovers that Dick has some royal blood in him the marriage is made possible.

"The Rescue"

"The Rescue" is a plot of considerable spice, which however, never grows offensive, pretty scenes, pretty and capable actresses and a surprise ending united to make "The Rescue" a most entertaining piece of pictorial story-telling. Dorothy Phillips is featured and displays a great amount of comic ability in the role of Anne Wetherall, the divorcee, who contrives to win her ex-husband back to save him from a younger woman. Bluebird always seems to procure exceptional vehicles to exploit the talents of Miss Phillips, and her supporting cast and "The Rescue" is no exception to this general rule.

It is an adaptation of a magazine story written by Hugh Kahler, which Ida May Park prepared and directed for the screen. The number of pretty gowns worn by Miss Phillips and Molly Malone, who appears in striking contrast to the star, will undoubtedly furnish the picture with a great appeal to women. But the usual cosmopolitan theatre audience will in all probability take "The Rescue" as something out of the ordinary and will appreciate its surprises and unusual twists, of which there are quite a number.

Miss Phillips has that variety of role which taxes the actress to the full extent of her capabilities. Quick changes of mode, expressions which signify at times two distinct and separate meanings—she is called upon to effect and she never fails in producing the desired results. The supporting cast, in which Miss Malone is the outstanding figure, does work of real worth.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Anne Wetherall (Dorothy Phillips), an actress, divorced from Kent Wetherall (William Stowell), because of a misunderstanding, receives a summons from Nell Jerold (Gretchen Lederer) to visit her home in order to prevent her daughter, Betty (Molly Malone), from marrying Kent. Anne enters upon a battle royal for the affections of Kent, the former finally wins
A Young average version of the prodigal son plot is presented in "Youth," written by Roy S. Sensabaugh. The stumbling block in the path of the hero is drink, and after feeling its effects for three reels, he is reformed by the scorn of the woman he loves and the "horrible example." The first reel offers some comedy that borrowed its sparkle from wine and seltzer, and which is void of unpleasant after effects for the spectator. The college stuff and the extravagantly staged masquerade ball followed by some intimate scenes of the hero, and his companion roaming the streets in ancient costumes are episodes that abound in comedy, which, though low, in the technical sense of the word, are undeniable laughable.

When the picture strikes its serious vein it interests and proves ultimately satisfactory with the triumph of the hero over the enemy—drink. In passing, drink is villain enough for "Youth," and so there is no character that assumes the role of impersonator of evil. Carlyle Blackwell is a good hero, although a little too posy in some of his scenes. Johnny Hines as his sap servant creates a humorous figure, and says a lot of things in subtitles that are mindful of Wallace Irwin's Japanese school boy stories. June Elvidge and Muriel Ostriche hold down the feminine portion of the cast in a satisfactory manner.

Romaine Fielding directed. He is at his best in the outdoor scenes, staged around a dam in the progress of construction. The photography and lighting are entirely acceptable.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
Bryan Goodwin (Carlyle Blackwell), after one of his many sprints, is sent by his father (Robert Broderick) to Tennessee, where a dam is in progress of construction. He meets Jean Elliott (June Elvidge), sister of the engineer in charge of the construction work, and falls in love with her. While under the influence of liquor he insults her, and later, smarting under the sting of her retort, he starts to make good. He is the means of reforming her brother (George Cowl), who is also addicted to drink, and finally when his regeneration is complete, Jean pardons him at the request of his father.

Victor Kennard, Henrietta Simpson and Henry West complete the cast.

ROTHACKER FILM MFG. COMPANY,
1339-51 Diversey Parkway,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: To say that I am highly gratified with the prints of "PARENTAGE" would be putting it mildly.

You have carried out my ideas to the letter, and the work is superb.

The light effects turned out beautifully and far exceeded my fondest expectations.

"PARENTAGE" opens at the Rialto in New York the week of July 4th. The Chicago opening will be at the Colonial Theatre, commencing convention week, July 12th.

Again thanking you for your most delicate handling of my picture, I am,

Very truly yours,
Hobart Henley

Brunbaugh Slices Only $4,000 from Censor Budget
Although Governor Brunbaugh of Pennsylvania on July 17 topped $2,132,376 from the $36,000,000 general appropriation bill to cover the expenses of government for the next two years, he cut only a $4,000 slice out of the $107,720 budget of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors, reducing it to $103,720.

The only item of the censorship budget to suffer was the $20,000 originally provided by the Legislature to cover the expense of prosecuting violators of the censorship law. This amount was reduced to the extent of the full $4,000, which, it is believed, will in no sense cripple the work of the board.

With much formality Frank R. Shattuck, the new chairman of the State Board of Censors, took his oath of office before Judge John M. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court No. 1 of Philadelphia. He was accompanied by Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown, Assistant District Attorney William F. Brown, former Director of Safety David J. Smyth, and other prominent Philadelphians. Mr. Shattuck was sworn on the Bible.

Lower Court Decision Favoring Theatrical Managers
Judge Hendricks of the Supreme Court, New York County, has rendered a decision laying down the rule that a theatrical manager who has acquired rights of production is entitled to restrain the author or anybody else from producing the play in motion pictures.

The decision is in the case instituted by Charles Frohman, Inc., against William Somerset Maugham and Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in which the court grants an injunction restraining the defendants from producing in motion pictures Mr. Maugham's play, “The Land of Promise.”

The right to produce this play in America, Canada and England had been acquired by Charles Frohman. The contract did not, however, in terms expressly give Charles Frohman the moving picture right.

This decision is of importance because it affects many similar cases and protects the rights of theatrical managers.

Emmick Buys Moss Productions
The Peerless Film Exchange, owned and managed by E. H. Emmick, has secured rights for a number of the B. S. Moss releases for California, Nevada and Arizona territory, which the company handles from their exchanges at San Francisco and Los Angeles. The list of subjects bearing the Moss trade mark includes “Boots and Saddles,” “The Girl Who Doesn't Know,” “In the Hands of the Law,” “The Power of Evil” and others. The Peerless has also secured rights for the Graphic release, “The Woman and the Beast.”

Germany Buying Junk Film for Explosives—Irwin
Quiet Buying of Old Stock in Large Quantities Reported by V-L-S.E. General Manager—Nitro Cellulose Employed in Manufacture of Powder

RESULTING from a long period of secret service work, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of V-L-S.E., announces that he has brought to light negotiations of German agents who are quietly buying up all junk motion picture film possible for use in the manufacture of explosives.

Mr. Irwin reports that this junked film is being shipped in large quantities to Germany through the Scandinavian countries.

While Mr. Irwin is not yet absolutely certain that such a practice is being conducted, the fact remains that Germany is facing a shortage of nitro-cellulose bases which form the main constituent for high explosive powder, and that motion picture film is a nitro-cellulose derivative. Celluloid film can be transformed by a comparatively simple chemical process into a condition suitable for use in gunpowder manufacture.

As soon as Mr. Irwin was informed of the inquiry for discarded motion picture films he engaged the services of investigators, whose preliminary reports tend to show that his surmise that this discarded stock is being shipped abroad is true.

According to the preliminary investigation, the discarded stock is consigned abroad under the guise of films shipped for exhibition purposes. Much of the film will stand inspection by the ordinary layman, or even a government inspector, who might think that this discarded film is still available for exhibition purposes, whereas an expert would know almost immediately that it could not be used for exhibition purposes.

Mr. Irwin feels that his short preliminary investigation has produced results which justify him placing the entire matter before the government and leaving the entire adjustment in the hands of the proper government officials.

As a result of the activities of persons who have been making inquiries for used film the bid price has advanced approximately six cents a pound in a very short time. The usual price for a pound of gelatine-covered celluloid has remained steady at about twenty-two cents a pound for several months until very recently, when offers as high as thirty cents a pound have been received.

The amount of discarded film in the hands of the larger producing companies is tremendous. It will run into the hundreds of thousands of tons.

None of the larger companies have sold any of their discarded stock for some time, and after Mr. Irwin's investigation it is likely that all will agree to hold their discarded stock until after the termination of the war.

Weeks in Charge of Foursquare Office in Detroit
GEOE W. WEEKS has been appointed division manager for the M. H. Hoffman, Inc.-Foursquare Exchange, which will be immediately opened in Detroit in temporary offices at 983 Peter Scott. He will be in charge of the territory comprising Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. Among the various Foursquare features ready for summer release are “The Sin Woman” with trio of stars, Irene Fenwick, Reine Davies and Clifford Bruce; “The Bar Sinister,” the Edgar Lewis production; “Madame Sherry” with the original music score including the well-known piece, “Every Little Movement,” heard at all the performances of this popular play, and with Gertrude McCoy as the star; “Her Fighting Chance” by James Oliver Curwood, with Jane Grey as the star; and Brodsky's “A Trip Through China” in eight reels.

The first two of the Foursquare fall releases which Mr. Weeks will be able to offer exhibitors in his territory are “The Silent Witness,” starring Gertrude McCoy. This photoplay is based upon the well-known play of the same name, which at the time of its Broadway run was declared to be the most sensational drama since “Madam X,” and “The Fringe of Society,” an original photoplay by Pierre V. R. Key, with the following cast of stars: Ruth Roland, Milton Sills, Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, Ollie Kirlby and George Larkin.

Mr. Weeks will shortly establish offices in Cleveland and Cincinnati. “Big George,” as he is generally known throughout the Middle West, is one of the best liked men in that part of the country, and was long associated with Universal-Bluebird features, and his personality won him a host of friends and admirers.

Newark Picture Houses to Be Open in Summer
Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark, N. J., has for the first time in many years given the managements of local picture houses and other theatres the right to remain open during the summer months.

The mayor's action followed a request by a majority of the local exhibitors that the usual official decree to close the playhouses during the months of July and August be abandoned this year. Exhibitors declare that they cannot afford this year to close their houses even for a few weeks.
Frank J. Seng believes that it is his duty to assure exhibitors of his intention to consider their interests first and last in connection with the marketing of "Parentage." In a detailed statement covering the points he considers essential, he wrote:

"I want to make it perfectly clear that I heartily indorse the idea advanced by so many of the territorial rights buyers, namely, that the publicity and advertising for any special feature production be continued long after the picture has been allotted and the distributor's interest in it has supposedly ceased.

"And it is with considerable pride that I call attention to the forthright house-organ that will be devoted exclusively to the interests of all exhibitors who will want to book "Parentage." 'The Parentage Messenger,' searching every nook and corner of the country twice each month, will speak for itself. Its usefulness as a bearer of tidings from the firing line ought to convince the industry that I realize my obligations do not cease when there is no more territory to be sold."

"I also intend to back up my belief in the need for closer co-operation between distributor, buyer and exhibitor by a continued use of the advertising pages of the trade magazines. These trade advertisements, like our house-organ, will be of greater sales value to purchasers of prints because they will smooth the pathway to additional bookings...And keep exhibitors advised of what the other fellows are doing to make money with 'Parentage.'"

"In the Greater New York territory the twenty-four sheet stands that were so resultful during our big, record-breaking week at the Rialto theatre will carry for another month a direct appeal to the public. A special four-sheet reading Ask Your Local Theatre to Book It! takes the place on the job night and day creating new business for later runs. Wherever it is practicable I have directed my organization to secure extensions of contracts for billboards and continue Mr. Henley's message of home life until another local exhibitor is ready to make his dates. If the paper is weatherbeaten I will urge the posting of fresh stands in every instance.

"I do not wish to go on record as favoring the billboard above the newspaper as an advertising medium. If it were possible to obtain sufficient revenue from the sale of a single independent production I would most certainly back up every booking with a newspaper campaign of my own. But, having determined to ask only reasonable prices for all territories, I will not stand by and see the buyers held up for more money than they can afford to pay, not even to divert such moneys to the purchase of newspaper space.

"Just one more thought: I fully expect the coming of an era of prosperity in the sale of independent pictures so far-reaching that it will demand of distributors national advertising and they will willingly spend the money to reach the ultimate consumers—the motion picture audiences; and it will be good business for them to do it, too."

"Peg o' the Sea" Next Art Drama for Jean Sothern

Jean Sothern has a pleasing role, it is said, in her next play "Peg o' the Sea," produced by Van Dyke Film Corporation and to be released by Art Dramas, following "The Eye of Envy." A Horsley-Art Drama.

George H. Wiley, president of Van Dyke, announces the story was written by Winfred Dunn. The plot is laid in a sea-coast town. Many quaint types of New England fishing villagers are introduced, and these form a comedy element which matches nicely with the human interest of the story.

As soon as the interiors have been completed, under the direction of Eugene Howland, who made Miss Sothern's "Miss Deception," the company will journey up the eastern coast to secure a location for the sea scenes and the village locale.

"His Wedding Night" in Cutting Room

Rosene ("Fatty") Arluckke has finished filming "His Wedding Night," a two-reel Paramount-Arluckke comedy, and is now engaged in cutting the picture. The subject is said to afford the comedian an opportunity to spring a number of novel stunts. The date of release has not been announced.

H. O. Davis, Triangle, Announces Increase in Production

With plans for the future development of the Triangle Film Corporation's producing plant at Culver City to make it the largest concern of the kind in the world, H. O. Davis, vice-president and general manager, has arrived in Los Angeles from New York. He will spend several weeks there in the interests of the company.

"Accomplishments are always more convincing than statements," said Mr. Davis. "The slogan recently adopted by our Eastern department strikes the keynote to the situation. It is: 'The Best of Yesterday will not be good enough for To-morrow.'"

"The time has come when Triangle will no longer attempt merely to make motion pictures; we will be making dramas and telling stories. More money will be put into the quality of the productions than ever before in the history of the industry, and how well we will have succeeded in accomplishing the desired results will be evident in the finished offerings."

Reuben Samuels Claims Full Insurance Protection

The Reuben Samuels Company, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, desire to state that only an expert insurance broker can draw up a contract that will protect a motion picture concern in every way. There are so many factors entering into the contract that special forms are necessary. Mr. Samuels told a Morro Pictures News representative that he has these forms.

"It is with no small feeling of pride that I point to our handling of the Famous Players' account at the time of the studio fire," said Mr. Samuels. "Every cent of that money was collected."

"Mr. Arthur Stebbins, our general manager, is an expert at checking up policies."

Some of the Reuben Samuels Company's accounts are: Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Paragon Artcraft, Douglas Fairbanks Corporation, Paragon Films, Inc., B. S. Moss theatres, and many others.

Weinberger in Charge of Rosetwig at Buffalo

Mack D. Weinberger, well known in the exchange end of the business, has gone to Buffalo, where he will manage the Buffalo office for the Rosetwig Feature Films.

The Rosetwig Feature Films have purchased the New York rights to "Corruption," and all the upstate bookings will be handled by Mr. Weinberger.

Mr. Weinberger will shortly leave Buffalo on a trip through the state, where he expects to meet all the exhibitors and introduce them in the pictures.

His offices are located in the Chapin Block Building, 15 West Swan street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Upton Joins Regiment

John Upton, of the Vitagraph scenic department, resigned Saturday to join his regiment, the thirteenth New York. Upton is one of the youngest Vitagraph men to join the colors.
Supply Companies Show Well

The Simplex booth, well filled with projecting machines, gave the fans a peep into the operator’s domain. The feature of the display was a handsome, up-to-date model of a Simplex machine revolving on a raised pedestal in the middle of the booth. E. M. Porter and L. W. Atwater were in charge of the display.

Rose Tapley, Vitagraph’s “missionary,” was the attraction at that company’s elaborate booth. Every evening she was introduced to the fans, and she was also guest of honor at a number of dinners and luncheons. Nat Strong, Vitas’s publicity director, was also honored at a number of dinners, including one at the College Inn, given for the most part by newspaper men.

The Seeburg Piano Company had one of the popular spots on the floor. Beautiful decorations set off the Seeburg-Smith combination piano in the booth. J. C. Gerlick was in charge.

The Marquette Piano Company had a Cremona organ display that kept the fans hovering about with its music. J. C. Cox was in charge.

Bartola Instrument Company was represented by Charles C. Pyle and a beautiful Bartola instrument within a handsomely made up booth. The Kimball instruments were also much in evidence.

The Westinghouse Electric Company had a varied and interesting display. H. M. Wible and H. H. Rhorbaugh had charge of the display of special ventilating apparatus within their booth.

Projectors, accessories and other equipment made up the Nicholas Power display. The National Carbon Company occupied a big booth with W. C. Kunzmann, of Cleveland, in charge. The Midwest Theatre Supply Company showed supplies of all kinds. P. A. Williams was in charge.

The United Theatre Equipment needed every inch of their space to put on display the scores of necessary adjuncts for a theatre and handled by them. Ralph Fulton, J. H. Hallberg and G. Hollins were in charge.

The Motigraph booth had on show their well-known Motigraph machines. O. F. Spahr, S. F. Blakely and C. A. Hahn greeted and explained the mission of the motigraph. The Typhoon Fan Company impressed the crowd with what they had to sell by having one of their biggest fans on the move all the while during the exposition. The National Automatic Door Company occupied a nice space with their patented safety door. F. J. LeBeau was in charge.

Shows Making of Pictures

The Rothacker Film Company not only advertised but entertained. In the annex at the south end of the hall the fans saw in progress almost continually the method by which a motion picture is made. The equipment, actors, machines, lights, etc., were furnished by Rothacker.

Cahill-Igoe probably got as much out of the exposition as anybody. Occupying an advantageous space on the floor they showed their various samples of programs and novelty badges, rings and pictures that they get out for motion picture theatres. Patrick Garvey and Paul G. Smith were in charge.

Three Chicago dailies, the “Examiner,” the “Herald” and the “Daily News,” all were represented on the floor with booths and special attractions. Among the latter was their well-known film critics, such as Louella Parsons, Kitty Kelly and W. K. Holland. H. C. Holah did noble work in the “Herald” booth, where a specialty was made of handling the various screen stars every day.

The personality of Jake Wells, of Virginia; the cool, heaved activity of Charles Pettijohn, of Indiana, and the sincerity and fair play spirit of Frank Rembusch helped the progressive exhibitors forming the new association to see the light when they did.

“Those Babies”

Following are some of the delegates prominent in the formation of the American Exhibitors’ Association:

George W. Beynon on "Babbling Tongues" Musical Setting

GEORGE W. BEYNON, who has been engaged to prepare the musical synchronization for "Babbling Tongues," Ivan Film Productions' picture, prepared the orchestra for "One Law for Both." He says "Babbling Tongues" has even greater capacity for musical adaptation.

"The bright beginning of 'Babbling Tongues' calls for a light vein of music," said Mr. Beynon. "I have suggested for this waltz and bright intermezzo, with a frivolous twist to the domestic scene of the maid and the butler.

"Gradually, as the tongues begin a-babbling, there comes an undertone of discontent, mutterings and sinister cravings. The play moves quickly into a tragedy, and the music becomes ponderous, interwoven with broken melodies and dissonant chords, themes and counterthemes striving one against another."

Vitaphone Praises: Jack Gilbert, Juvenile, in "The Mother Instinct"

"The Mother Instinct," a new Triangle production starring Emil Bennett, is the tenth picture in which Jack Gilbert has appeared since joining the Columbia forces two years ago. Vitaphone says in each of the ten plays the young juvenile has shown a constantly developing sense of dramatic effect.

In "The Mother Instinct," released June 15, the Vitaphone player is said to have contributed one of the finest delineations of the play. He appears as a young British fisherman who is assigned on circumstantial evidence for the murder of a worthless fellow, Raimund Berzosa, who has brought shame to the lay's sister.

Child Villain in Fox Kiddie "Jack and the Beanstalk"

In the Fox Kiddie production, "Jack and the Beanstalk," the youngest stage villain in the world appears. She is a little girl, Violet Radcliffe, who takes the part of Prince Rudolpho.

In the play the prince is an aspirant for the hand of the royal princess. When the princess falls in love with Jack, the royal villain makes desperate efforts to get rid of his rival.

Part of the child villain's make-up is a dainty mustache and goatee, after the fashion of Napoleon's little time. Little Violet strokes her facial adornment with all the care and elegance of the most accomplished stage villain. It is one of the really funny things in the play.

China and Chinese Monthly Series from Educational

The first of a series of five reels to be released once a month under the title, "China and the Chinese—A Trip to the Flowery Kingdom," by Educational Films Corporation is the most unusual contribution yet received of a travel series.

It is hardly comprehensible how the Chinese coolies are used as domestic animals in this country, for service that it seems incredible should fall to a human being to perform.

Rice is the principal food of the Chinese—at least, of eighty per cent of the population. Men, women and children operate treadmills to "irrigate" the rice fields. Wonderful wooden gears, with man-power to operate them, convert this human power into almost any use, from irrigation to grinding flour. The water buffalo is used in plowing, and apparently when there are not enough human workers to go round, for other work, but it would seem that greater efficiency can be gotten from the cheaper man-power. Men seem to be much more efficient here.

In contrast, the reel closes with street scenes, the "Hill of a Thousand Gods," carved from solid granite centuries ago, Chinese priests and a pagoda built to prevent the spirits of molesting the hill."

First Triangle Play for Margery Wilson

TRIANGLE DIRECTOR TOM HEF-RON and company, headed by Margery Wilson and Charles Gunn, have departed for Delton, Cal., where they will film the exterior scenes for the first Triangle play starring Miss Wilson.

The piece hinges about a story of Kentucky feuds and moonshine plots, and was written expressly for Miss Wilson by Monte Katterjohn immediately after she signed a three-year contract with Triangle to play star roles. Charles Gunn will be seen in the leading male part, that of a quaint old Kentucky schoolmaster.

Feminine Fickleness Chided in O. Henry Picture

In "A Little Speck in Garnered Fruit," the latest General Film-O. Henry subject, inimitable sport is made of the fickleness of the feminine.

The bride wants a peach and the young husband goes out to get it. To do so he violates all the codes of the sport, gets a rib or two broken and comes home triumphantly with about the only fresh peach in the metropolis. The bride chides him, a bit disappointed. What she really wanted was an orange, of which there were millions.

Will Change Title of Seventh King Bee

The title selected for the seventh King Bee Billy West comedy release, "The Genius," will probably have to be changed, as copyright interests in that name are said to be in existence. A play has also been called by that name, and it occurs on the title-page of a well-known novel by Theodore Dreiser.

"Eight of Way Casey." (Gold Seal, Three reels, Week of July 30.)—Fine comedy combination. The straight man is hit on the head and gets stranded in the Western prairie, where he proceeds to institute traffic regulations. The situation is sufficiently funny, and Mr. Hare does the part perfectly. The elements of the comedy situation and romance are strong enough to make the whole thoroughly interesting. Length, 57 mins., 1 reel.

"Married by Accident." (Nestor, Week of July 30.)—Good comedy of four clowns and mixed natural dialogues resulting in many humorous complications. Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran wrote the story, and also appear in the principal parts supported by Eddie Roberts and a large cast.

"Blackboard and Blackmail." (L-Ko. Two reels, Week of July 30.)—School day burlesque with Phil Dunham and Lucille Hulett stealing the cast. The plot concerns the arrival of a new teacher, who finds the cook, stock clerk, and the cook, who falls in love with her. Wild chase at the end and many gags, the majority of which register throughout the body of the two reels.

"The Woman Who Would Not Pay." (Star Featurette. Two reels, Week of July 30.)—Strong but grotesque drama of the irresistible wife. The husband discovers she is entertaining a lover in his absence and returns suddenly, the result is that his wife has hit the other man in the face. Scene remains in the room until the impaled victim is suffocated. Thus does the woman pay for her sin. Mr. Hulett does his usual work, and \nMr. Edward Dowling and Bertram Grasby, E. M. Ingleton wrote the story.

"The Battling Bellboy." (Joker, Week of July 30.)—Student pranks
At Essanay's Chicago office the bellboy, as directed by William Beaudine, this farce-comedy is laid in a hotel and features a prize fight, buried to the last degree, and the activities and battles of the bellboy and the chambermaid. Za Su Pitts, Willma Franey and Lillian Peacock are the principal lumarlars.

Clatter vs. Music
A Short Story of Two Projectors

The Machine was installed.

The picture was satisfactory.

But the Operator said:
"I don't like that clatter. Where there's so much noise there must be rapid wear."

Time told.

It wasn't long before the picture began to show the results of wear, especially at high speeds——and the clatter was worse than ever. That Powerful Pounding made Perfect Projection impossible.

The Fourth of July has again reminded us that some things are intended for making noise—and the more noise the better.

But a Projector is bought for another purpose. And time has proven that the quiet-running Simplex accomplishes this purpose as no other Machine can, and continues to do so for a very long time.

Any of our Distributors will be glad to tell you about the quiet-running Simplex.

And we'll be glad to mail you a copy of Catalog "N."

The Simplex Satisfies from Booth to Screen; also the Audience Between.
Standardization Taking Form

THE meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers held at Chicago on July 16 and 17 was of the greatest importance to the entire industry, as certain definite standards were passed upon and recommended for adoption by the industry.

In the president's speech, Mr. Jenkins spoke of the increased interest being shown in the society itself and by those on the outside watching its progress. This has been proved by an increase in membership of nearly fifty per cent.

The first paper which was read and discussed was that by Dr. Kellner on the general subject of lenses, which he stated was particularly important at this time when the Government of the country is in its present condition and making such great demands on the optical companies. The result of the paper was the adoption of the following standards:

1. That the outside diameters of the lens tubes be 38 millimeters, 46 millimeters, 65 millimeters.
2. That the aperture be standardized at 0.906 inch wide by 0.6795 inch high.
3. That lenses be put out $\frac{3}{4}$-inch sizes from 3 inches to 8 inches; above this they be made 8½ inches and 9 inches.

Dr. Kellner also took up the subject of Keystone effect, his talk and drawings being supplemented by drawings shown by Mr. Will C. Smith. As a result of this discussion it was decided to recommend that all theatres in future, for the sake of good pictures, adopt the following as the largest possible angle of projection:

"That angle formed by the projection ray and the perpendicular from the center of the screen shall never be greater than 12 degrees."

The reason for this was gone into in detail and the society went on record as condemning any theatre using a larger angle than 12 degrees.

Mr. H. M. Wible read his report for the Committee on Electrical Devices, but stated that because of the mass of detail before them they did not feel that the time was ripe for recommendations.

The question of the dividing line between pictures was taken up and thoroughly discussed, with the result that the Society recommended to the industry the following standard:

That the division line between the pictures on the film fall midway between the perforations.

The question of insurance of theatres was discussed with reference to projection machines. It was the sense of the meeting that all houses should have a graded insurance and that premiums should increase as the age of the projectors increased, which is along the line of automobile insurance. In connection with fire risk and the booth there was a difference of opinion. Some of the members took the stand that the booth should be entirely enclosed, whereas others stated they considered for the sake of safety that part of the booth should be exposed to public view either from the street, lobby or some other point.

The meeting unanimously approved Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Bell's action in drawing up for the United States Government certain camera specifications.

It was unanimously decided that the October meeting of the Society, which is the Annual Meeting, be held in New York City on October 8th, 9th and 10th.

“Golden Rule for Operators”

A “GOLDEN RULE FOR OPERATORS” is being sent broadcast through the state of Texas by J. B. Dugger, manager of the Dallas branch of V-L-S-E, the distributing agent for Vitagraph, and it is one that branch managers all over the country might do well to disseminate. It is founded on the “do unto others as you would be done by” lesson, but applies to reel bands strictly.

The purpose of the Golden Rule is, primarily, to save work for the man in the projection room and assure exhibitors a smooth running show, but it has a broader, and to the industry, a more vital purpose—that of pleasing the public. The idea of Mr. Dugger was inspired by the discovery in the inspection room of his branch that some operators were careless in replacing the bands on reels, with the result that quite frequently shows were “bailed up” and reels were run out of their place, also a reel belonging to another feature would be received in place of the reel which properly belonged with the day’s show.

In the V-L-S-E system, this could not happen, because every feature, when it is returned to the exchange by the theatre, is given a careful examination and no reel is permitted to leave the exchange again unless it is in perfect condition and properly labeled. However, there were occasions where the booking was so close that on some features the film had to be rushed from one theatre to another. It was in such cases that the switching of reels was discovered, the recipient operator putting up a strenuous kick. After studying over the proposition and appealing, in specific instances to the operators to exercise care in replacing their reel bands, Mr. Dugger determined upon the “Golden Rule” as a means of helping not only his own company, but the entire industry, including manufacturers, exchange men and operators. Consequently, with every Vitagraph feature, comedy or serial episode that leaves the Dallas branch of the V-L-S-E, the following printed slip accompanies it:

OPERATOR

REEL BANDS. Please be sure to replace reel bands on proper reels. This is very important, as it helps to avoid mistakes. You have, no doubt, received the wrong reel on account of a wrong reel band and know what it means. Help us to avoid this by replacing bands properly.

SHIPPING. This film must be shipped back to Dallas, unless you have other instructions, on the first train leaving after 10 p.m. on day of use, otherwise you will cause a “blow up.” You know what it means to be disappointed. Protect your brother exhibitor by seeing that shipment is handled as instructed.

The result of Mr. Dugger’s little plan has proven so effective and beneficial to his territory that V-L-S-E have decided to adopt his “Golden Rule” as a part of their service system, and before long every reel of Vitagraph film leaving any of their exchanges, will carry this little reminder to the man in the projection room with the expressed hope that he will do his part in reducing to a minimum the confusion that trails his multifarious duties at the end of a showing. Mr. Dugger believes that if all distributing companies adopted some such scheme as this, that a great deal of the exhibitor’s troubles would be eliminated, and the aforesaid company’s product would register better, both with the exhibitor and the public.

We respectfully call to the attention of every film manufacturer, exchange manager, exhibitor and operator, the National Anti-Misframe League, whose aims and objects are among these very same lines, and if all exchanges will co-operate, as has Mr. Dugger, we believe the time is not far distant when the solution of this most annoying difficulty will have been found. If the pledge of the Anti-Misframe League is lived up to, and the “Golden Rule” put into practice, there is no doubt that the betterment we hope for will become an established reality. The editor of this department is ever ready to lend all possible aid to that end, and the columns of this department are open to receive suggestions from manager and operator alike.

Exchanges Endorse the A. M. F. L.

THE following are excerpts from letters received from some of the leading film exchanges of Philadelphia, Pa.: “It is a great relief to learn of the movement you have started to protect our, as well as other film exchanges’ property. We are heartily in favor of the good work and trust you will meet with success. You have our backing and endorsement in this undertaking.”

“We sincerely wish you success in your efforts, and hope that you will be able to secure the name of every operator for your Roll of Honor. Without doubt, every exchange manager in this territory has been compelled to order a reprint of the last scene on many features, due to the gradual shortening of the film caused by each operator cutting out the section containing punch marks, punched by the previous operator, and placing his own punch mark in the new section of film. Assuring you of our co-operation, we remain.”

“You can readily understand the big losses we have to endure, by reason of the fact that films are “punched up” and otherwise so mutilated as to make it necessary for us to “scribble” the copy in use and purchase an entirely new one. Keep the good work up, and you certainly will find all film exchanges heart to heart with you in your efforts.”

These film exchanges, all of Philadelphia, have endorsed the league fostered by the Motion Picture News: Selznick Pictures, Peerless Feature Company, Fox Film Corporation, Metro Film Corporation, General Film Company, Interstate Film Company, (Universal), K-E-S-E, Unicorn Film Service, Phila. Ideal Film Company, Monarch Film Company, Electric Theatre Supply Company, Mutual Corporation, Paramount and Triangle Films. If exchanges in other cities will only do likewise greater results will be more quickly obtained.

Outrageous!!!!!!

R. A. ROOT, Voldosta, Ga., makes application for membership in the National Anti-Misframe League, and writes: “Enclosed find a piece of film less than two feet long with forty-one (41) punch holes in it which was cut by me from a comparatively new film. Undoubtedly the operator (crank turner) is an ex-street car conductor who wants to keep in practice.”

Comment: The strip of film the brother encloses measures eighteen inches in length, and contains, as he says, forty-one punch holes. This is brutally outrageous by reason of the fact that the film is, as he says, comparatively new, showing very little sign of having been used. An operator, or crank turner either, for that matter, would not, I believe, be guilty of such a crime as this, for crime it is, so the holes must have been made by an ex-street car conductor. And surely if practice was what he was looking for he obtained it.

Your name has been entered upon the Roll of Honor, and you will receive membership button in due course of events.

Sounds Good

A. L. STONE, Jr., Burligame, Cal., writes: “I am writing to tell you of a simple way to mend films where the sprocket holes are broken and where such a condition would cause the film to jump if the bad place were cut out. First get a strip of film as long as the bad place, then put it in hot water and let remain for about five minutes after which remove and scrape off the emulsion until the film is absolutely blank, after this cement the blank film over the bad place and the sprocket holes in the blank film will take the place of those broken. This will not be too thick to run through the machine."

Comment: Your last sentence was what I had intended to use in my comment, but if, as you claim, the film will not be too thick to pass through the machine easily, then I have nothing further to say and will submit your suggestion for the benefit of those who may wish to try it.
An Improvement Over Last Week

In the list of names to be added to the Roll of Honor of the Anti-Misframe League, there is an appreciable increase over that of last week, and we are more than gratified with the ready response of those operators who have expressed their intention of doing their part to maintain a high standard for the pictures in its projection. Exchange managers are now taking notice of the evil that has so long existed, and for which no remedy could be obtained without co-operation, and it is with a certain feeling of pride that we say this co-operation has been established through the formation of the National Anti-Misframe League. The resultant benefits to be derived from the league depend to a considerable degree upon the continuance of the co-operation of operator, exhibitor and exchange manager. Many letters reach me in which the writers promise their fullest support in our propaganda for better film, and by better film we mean film that has been properly inspected and not film, which is too often the case, that has received absolutely no inspection, this task devolving upon the operator for which he does not even receive credit therefor. While it is immediately the duty of the operator to place the film he is to project, in first class condition, there are times when it would be almost impossible so to do, as the films, received late, are in such an abominable condition that it would take several hours of good, hard work to put them in first class condition, with the result that the operator also joins the ranks of the "never do's," and lets things take their natural course, depending upon luck to carry him through. It is hoped that those who have become members of the league will change this order of things, and by so doing, show the exchanges that they are willing to do anything within reason to prolong the life of the film entrusted to their care, but they are not willing, and do not intend to be imposed upon.

Independent Movie Supply Company Takes Larger Quarters

The Independent Movie Supply Co., of 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, has enlarged its offices. Owing to the rapid increase in business since the opening, Mr. Rabell, general manager and president, found it necessary to take the adjoining offices in order to make room for a larger stock of supplies.

Some of their most recent installations of machines and equipment are as follows: Two Simplex, Type S, projectors in the Star theatre, 163rd street and Southern Boulevard, N. Y. Complete projection equipment for the Sunshine theatre, 141 East Houston street, N. Y., also projection equipment for the American theatre, New Rochelle, N. Y., which included Powers 6-A machines.

Impossible!

R. O'Neill, St. David, Ill., asks: "Will you please send me the list of questions asked in the examination for operators. I want to try my luck on passing the examination."

Answer: It can't be done. Every examination board in each state or municipality have their individual list of questions, and as far as "trying your luck" is concerned, that is just what it would amount to. If you have spent an apprenticeship at the profession for any length of time, and have remembered the lessons you should have learned, you should have no difficulty in passing the examination. Sorry I cannot help you as you would like to be helped, but it is impossible.
Anti-Misframe League Pastre

In response to the many correspondents who have requested me to publish a photograph of the originator of the Anti-Misframe League, I wrote to Brother Pastre requesting that he send me his latest photograph for reproduction in the department. Brother Pastre came back with the following letter, enclosing the requested photo and also giving the proper pronunciation of his name, which has had a number of us guessing.

Here is the letter:

"Dear Brother Sherman: Please explain to your readers that I have spent most of my time trying to explain to people how my name should be pronounced, which probably explains also why I did not send in the suggestion for the league a year sooner. The a is short thusly: a, and the 'tre' ends as in then-tre (Simple—not Pastre, but the explanation. E.d.). Enclosed you will find my last photograph, untouched by artist's hands. You said to look pleasant, but this is the best I could do."

Brother Pastre, in addition to being the originator of the League is financial secretary of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local of Gary, formerly known as Hammond Local 133.

12. "ON SOME EXPERIMENTAL METHODS EMPLOYED IN THE EXAMINATION OF SCREEN-PLATES" BY C. E. K. MEES AND J. H. PLEDGE.

This paper, in addition to being one of the most interesting items in the literature on color photography, can well serve as an example of the exhaustive and painstaking methods which must be applied to all branches of scientific research, if valuable and far-reaching results are to be secured.

The user of color-screen plates, such as the Autochrome, the Paget and other well-known varieties, is probably little aware of the mechanical intricacy of screen-plates, and the exacting nature of the scientific requirements governing their production.

All these physical properties and scientific requirements of a good screen-plate have been rigorously investigated by Messrs. Mees and Pledge, and to study their paper is to gain an everlasting interest in the scientific aspects of color photography.

First the screen patterns of all known makes of screen-plates were examined, and photo-micrographs (100 times enlargement) are shown of a wide variety of composite taking-screens. Coincident with this data is the patents chronology and manufacturing data covering all of the screens examined.

The screen as a whole is next considered; its predominating tint ascertained, and its principal color-measured. The "cuts" of the individual red, green and blue-violet filter-units of the screens are also determined, which is a delicate but extremely interesting operation, as might be inferred. From the data concerning the complete taking-screen, and its individual filter-units, it is possible to lay down definite conditions regarding the performance and preparation of composite taking-screens, and this has been done by Messrs. Mees and Pledge in the course of their article.

Although the preparation of the taking and viewing-screens is the principal factor in the production of a competent screen-plate, the panchromatic emulsion upon which the negative is made must also comply with certain definite requirements, and the emulsions of all commercial screen plates were examined by these workers as regards color-sensitiveness, resolving power and other characteristics of importance. Since all screen-plates require the use of a yellow filter, or compensator, on the camera lens, the adjustment of this compensating filter to the emulsion must be considered, and also its relation to the filter-elements of the composite taking-screen.

The foregoing is but an outline of the numerous phases of screen-plate examination, as practised by Mees and Pledge; their article must be consulted for details of the experimental results.

In conjunction with Dr. Mees' former article (previously mentioned), this exhaustive paper forms the bulk of the trustworthy data on screen-plate color photography.

13. "PHOTOGRAPHY IN COLORS," By G. LINDSEY JOHNSON.

This interesting treatise has enjoyed an extensive sale, and is, perhaps, familiar to the majority of our readers. As an elementary treatise on color photography it proves interesting and instructive and can be read to advantage by photographers in general, and students of the color processes in particular.

The author of this work, Dr. Lindsay Johnson, is an eye specialist of high standing, and in his book the eye is compared to a camera and color-sensitive plate. From this logical starting point the subjects of light, color and color-vision are treated, and then come the chapters on color photography.

In the last mentioned section of Johnson's book the various methods of additive and subtractive color photography are described, along with practical working instructions.

The Kinemacolor process has been accorded a separate chapter, and in the several appendices various theories of color-vision are explained, along with considerable tabulated data which will prove of service to color photographers.

The publication of Johnson's work was issued last year (1916), but, aside from some slight amplification, it is substantially the same as the version here described.

14. "THREE COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY," BY A. F. VON HUBL. TRANSLATED BY H. O. KLIEIN.

Of all the modern writers upon trichromatic photography none has given the subject a more thorough and scientific exposition than Baron Von Huhl, whose book assumes importance as a standard work, which must be studied by all thorough workers upon the color processes.

While the treatise in question has been prepared with particular reference to three-color printing, the theoretical chapters form a comprehensive explanation of the laws of color in relation to color photography, which are treated by Von Huhl in scientific manner.

Of particular interest to scientific students of the color processes is the author's statement, in Part 2 of this work, that the Young-Helmholtz theory of color-vision does not constitute a sound basis for the practice of three color photography. This contention has been advanced by Von Huhl in numerous articles; but while his argument seems quite plausible, the majority of photophysicists appear to favor the sensation-curves as the basis of photographic color decomposition. It appears, however, that a thorough investigation is in order before the validity of any set of color-sensation curves can be established as the exact, or the approximate, basis for tricolor filter construction.

On a par with Von Huhl's chapters upon light and color is his data on color-sensitizing and filter-making. These chapters are enriched by numerous diagrams and plotted curves of instructive value, and formulae of practical importance are given.

It is well known that the science of tricolor photography has long been the subject of research and practical development at the hands of Baron Von Huhl, and his intimate knowledge along this line is well attested by his treatise "Three Color Photography," which is a classical contribution to the literature on the subject.

15. "AN IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT IN COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY." BY C. E. KENNETH MEES, D. SC.

While the purpose of this interesting article is to outline the good points of the Kodachrome process of subtractive two-color photography, it is really a most interesting account of the scientific progress in color photography.

The introductory chapters are largely a repetition of the author's former article on "The Triple Projection Process of Color Photography," but in the article now under consideration the subject is extended to the theoretical consideration of two-color subtractive methods, in favor of which some interesting considerations are advanced.

As previously stated, the purpose of this article is to outline the principles of the Kodachrome process, but it is, nevertheless, an adequate presentation of some historical and theoretical facts of important bearing upon color photography.

A Device for Testing Photographic Color-Filters

It is generally appreciated by experimenters and users of color-filters that the spectroscope offers a reliable means of studying the absorption effects of filter media; but it not infrequently happens that proper conditions for good spectroscopic research are not available in a film-maker's laboratory.

The advantages of qualitative spectroscopic examination are now within reach of all users of color-filters, however, through the medium of a device which has been perfected by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company. This device is known as a Spectrum Projector, and may be used in any place where electric current is available. As it is, therefore, susceptible to a wide range of usefulness, the following description of the device may prove of interest.

The Spectrum Projector is an instrument designed to furnish a convenient and sensitive means of studying the absorbing effect of various substances on the visible and on the ultra-violet-regions of the spectrum.

The principle of the apparatus is to project on a screen a brilliant spectrum of great dispersion, including both visible and ultra-violet light, and then to bring the material to be tested into the path of the light so that its effect on the spectrum may be determined.

The apparatus consists of a hand-feed arc lamp with rheostat for 4½ amperes, a quartz condenser fitted into the lamp casing, a spectroscope slit with object holder adjustable for large and small objects, focussable projecting lens on sliding bed mounted with a detachable diffraction grating fixed to a prism for direct vision, and a small projection screen with an uranium glass strip so arranged that the visible and ultra-violet spectrum may be observed simultaneously. The whole instrument is mounted on a wooden base and forms a compact, self-contained outfit.

The use of the apparatus is exceedingly simple, and the arc lamp may be connected to any ordinary house current. The rheostat usually supplied with this apparatus will accommodate 110 volts; if a higher voltage only is available, an additional rheostat is required. The arc lamp, being of a hand-feed type, may be used with either alternating or direct current, and a flexible cord with screw adapter to fit into any ordinary lamp socket is supplied with the apparatus. The carbons supplied with the arc lamp are of a special type in order to furnish an intense ultra violet light, although any kind of carbons may be used, provided they are of suitable size.

To operate the apparatus, the arc lamp is attached to a lamp socket or wall plug and the lower milled head screw is turned until the carbons touch each other. In order to form an arc the carbons are then separated by means of the milled head screw, so that their points appear about 5 mm apart, which distance should be maintained during the time of observation. It is therefore, necessary to look at the crater through the red window at the back of the lamp casing from time to time, and adjust the carbons in order to maintain a steady arc.

After the arc has been formed an image of the crater will be projected on the spectrosopic slit by means of the quartz condenser, situated in the lamp casing. This image should appear well defined and central to the slit, for which purposes the arc lamp is adjustable. The crater is focused by sliding the arc lamp along the supporting rods, after releasing the clamping screw on one side of the rods. To adjust the image of the crater in a vertical direction the arc lamp with casing is raised or lowered, after having released the clamping screw on the pillar support. Adjustment of the image of the arc in a lateral direction may be accomplished by turning the entire arc lamp within the pillar support.

After adjusting the image of the crater so that an even illumination of the slit is obtained, the clamping screws are tightened. By sliding the projection lens along its bed the position will soon be found at which a sharp image of the slit is formed on the screen. Having obtained the desired image of the slit upon the screen, the clamping screw of the projection lens is tightened, and the prism-grating so placed on the platform fitted to the mount of the projection lens that the spectrum is shown on the projection screen. The prism-grating is then fastened in that position.

If a line spectrum is required, the arc lamp is slightly turned so that the arc, instead of the crater, covers the aperture of the slit. The instrument is now correctly adjusted and ready for use. The visual spectrum will be seen on the white paper screen, extending from the deepest red to the extreme violet. Beyond the extreme violet the ordinarily invisible ultra-violet spectrum is rendered visible by means of a strip of uranium glass, which turns the ultra-violet spectrum into a fluorescent, greenish yellow tint.

To test colored glasses, solutions, etc., the object is placed on the "V" shaped grooved object holder attached to the slit; or if bulky objects, filter troughs, etc., are used, they may be placed between the spring clips and object holder. As soon as the object to be examined is in position, the spectrum on the screen will change according to the absorbing power of the material tested.

If the object is capable of entirely absorbing light of a given color, the place that which color occupied in the spectrum will now be occupied by a dark band. If it absorbs the ultra-violet, the fluorescence in the uranium glass will disappear. If the absorption is not complete, those colors which are partially absorbed will be indicated by a dimming of the corresponding parts of the spectrum.

Craftsmen Laboratories Have Model Equipment

On a recent occasion we had the opportunity of inspecting the newly opened Craftsman Film Laboratories at 249-253 West Nineteenth St., New York, and some particulars of this concern's mechanical equipment will be of interest, as showing how perfected cinemachinery is appreciated by up to date makers of motion pictures.

The Craftsman Laboratories were planned and equipped by Messrs. C. J. Hirliman and Leonard Abrahams, both known to the trade by reason of their former connection with the Eclipse Laboratories. Their desire for a highly modernized plant is responsible for the establishment of the new laboratories, the equipment of which we proceed to describe.

In the Craftsman plant the perforating and positive printing are carried out in the same room, which is large and abundantly (Continued on page 892)

I have used your actinetic lenses under the Kleig light (those powerful flaming arcs which are so hard on our eyes) and when therefore I have left the studio with inflamed eyes that gave me much pain I felt no ill effects after a hard day's work when I used them. I tried them in the open stages under the bright sunlight, the same pleasing results — no eyestrain — no weakness between the eyes when formerly I was sent out to film from the intense light. Today I needless to say, I must turn down here in Los Angeles and your No. 3 Actinetic again demonstrated its efficiency — at my eyes are in normal condition. I feel sure I can able to judge fairly as to the practical quality of the lens.

Patriotic Music and Music of Our Allies

To comply with the wishes of some of our readers, we are herewith publishing a comprehensive list of American music and music of our Allies. Names of the publishers where to obtain this music, as also prices for the various orchestra combinations, will be furnished upon request.

American Music
2. Fantasia on Dixie, by Otto Langey.
5. American Fantasia, arranged by V. Herbert. No doubt one of the finest and most popular arrangements of American melodies in form of a fantasia.
6. Memories of the War (1861-1865). Medley of American war songs, containing the following songs: Trump, Trump, Trump, the Boys Are Marching; John Brown's Body; Carry Me Back to Old Virginia; When Johnnie Comes Marching Home; Our Flag Is There; Marching Through Georgia; The Battle Cry of Freedom; Massa's in the Cold Ground; Arkansas Traveler; The Reveille.
7. Columbus. A grand descriptive fantasia synoposis: Grand Opening Fanfare announcing the Majesties of Spain; Torchlight Dance; The Sorrows of the Departure; Festly to the Flag; Parting Salute, the Anchors Weighed; On the Vast Waters; Merriment of the Sailors; Great Storm Scene; The Storm Gradually Abates; Prayer; Quietness; Dullness; Melancholy; Mutiny of the Crew; The Voice of Columbus Quells the Disturbance; Land Ho! Birds Greet the Ship; Excitement on Board; Salute of the Great Guns; Aborigines Heard in the Distance; Hail Columbia. Arranged by A. Herman.
8. Battle of San Juan Hill. A descriptive and patriotic military fantasia, by A. C. Sweet.
9. -Hurray for Old Glory. A national medley march containing the following patriotic airs: Glory, Glory Hallelujah; Old Folks at Home; Hail Columbia; The Girl I Left Behind Me; Star Spangled Banner.

French Music
1. La Belle France. An overture containing the following songs: Au clair de la lune; Cadet Rouselle; 'T'en souviens-tu? Le chant du depart; J'ai du bon tabac; Le Roi Dagobert; La mere Michel; Fanfan la Tulipe; La bonne aventure; La Marsellaise. By L. P. Laurendeau.
2. La Belle France. A waltz on the following popular French airs: Ah, c'edet; La Marsellaise; Partant pour la Syrie; Le petit tambour; La bonne aventure. By Th. M. Tobani.

English Music
1. Sounds from England. A selection on English melodies containing: Heart of Oak; Cherry Ripe; The Banks of Allan Water; The Dashing White Sergeant; The Bay of Biscay; Sir Roger de Coverly; Sally in Our Alley; Come, Lasses and Lads; The British Grenadiers; The Soldiers' Joy; Rule Britannia; God Save the King. By O. Langey.
2. Twelve English Songs. (1) British Grenadiers; (2) Sally in Our Alley; (3) The Anchors Weighed; (4) My Pretty Jane, or When the Bloom Is on the Rye; (5) Twickenham Ferry; (6) The Midshipmite; (7) Black Eyed Susan; (8) The Bay of Biscay; (9) The Vicar of Bray; (10) Good-bye, Sweetheart, Good-bye; (11) Ever of Thee; (12) The Roast Beef of Old England. Arranged by L. O. de Witt as solos for cornet and trombone.

Theatre to Stand as Monument of Progress Opened by Saenger Co.

ON July 4 the Saenger Amusement Company, the largest amusement corporation in the South, opened the Strand theatre—the quarter of a million dollar photoplay house, which is said to be the last word in elegance and refinement and in the class of programs to be presented.

The crystallization of years of effort, backed by the faith that the South is entitled to a photoplay theatre commensurate with her importance and resources and in the rapid increase in the motion picture industry stands out in the Strand. Five years in the planning; nearly a year in construction, and all that is best that time, money, energy, thought and craftsmanship can command has been utilized in the fulfillment of the dream that stands as a titanic tribute to the silent drama and a monument to the enterprising Southerners who erected the building.

From the obscurity of a backwoods nickelodeon to the great stride of a metropolitan theatre represents the span of time that has revolutionized the art of photoplay exhibition. The Saenger Amusement Company are pioneers in the South, and in appreciation of the support the South has given to them they have built a theatre in New Orleans that shall serve as a standard for similar enterprises in this section. The Saenger Amusement Company own a chain of theatres in Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas and Florida and control amusement interests in several States farther west.

The new temple of amusement in New Orleans, the Strand, has a seating capacity of 2,000. It is magnificent in all of its appointments, rich and refined in finish and artistic treatment. A symphony orchestra of thirty-five pieces, the largest permanent theatre musical organization in the United States, will interpret each and every screen production and a mammoth pipe organ will serve as an additional feature. A program of screen features representing the highest contributions of the best producers will be employed to make up the various programs, while at all intermissions music will be a feature of the passage of time. A ladies' lounge, luxuriously appointed, with courteous attendants always in charge, occupies a portion of the mezzanine floor, which graces the promenade at the rear of the auditorium; a uniformed house staff, drilled under military precision; an information bureau; private trunk line telephone exchange; a tourists' bureau of information for out of town visitors, and a noon-day concert by the symphony orchestra exclusively, are only a few of the modern features embodied in this latest of Southern institutions. Visitors and tourists will be afforded a new place of interest upon their next visit to New Orleans. Each day at noon the cathedral chimes of the mammoth orchestral organ peals the hour. At the last stroke of twelve, the thirty-five-piece orchestra, under the direction of Don Philippieni, bursts into a stirring overture or a symphony arrangement, blending a variety of tastes which runs the entire gamut of musical emotion. Don Philippieni is a maestro who has won laurels on both sides of the Atlantic. The Strand Symphony Orchestra is the largest permanent organization of its kind outside of New York City. The noonday concerts will be in every respect of the same quality as similar concerts that are given in the prominent cities of the North and West.

At the formal opening of the Strand, on July 4, the theatre was found to be entirely inadequate to accommodate the crowds which sought admission. The first presentation of the regular program proved to be an inspiration and a surprise to the people, whose ideas had not carried them so far into the realms of perfect photodramatic art. S. L. Rothapfel, known as "the Belasco of the photoplays," by reason of his prominence as managing director of the Rialto theatre, personally supervised the first performance with the assistance of D. L. Cornelius, who is the resident managing director of the great photoplay house. The lobby of the theatre was turned into a veritable floral bower with the offerings of friends and well-wishers for the new enterprise and there was a great overflow of floral tributes in an adjoining store room. The audience caught the spirit of the occasion and lighted by indirect light of yellow color. While yellow light is visually very predominant it has no effect upon positive cine film, provided that its hue and the distance of the light source from the exposed film stock are suitably regulated.

The perforators in this laboratory are Bell-Howells of latest type, such as were described last week in the Camera Dept., while there are two batteries of positive printers. One group of printers consists of Hausman machines with light-changers of the resistance type, while there have also been installed a formidable array of Duplex printers of latest design.

It is an appreciated fact that high class titles are an important item in cinematographic presentation, and the Craftsmen title department exemplifies the last word in equipment and methods. The titles are photographed from printed cards; which are set up and printed right on the premises. A professional camera with an all-conceivable attachment, including a diaphragm, is used to photograph the titles, and the photographic operation is made a pleasure through the assistance of an excellent stand and Cooper-Hewitt lights.

The printed, or photographed, films then pass to the developing rooms, of which there are two; all negatives being developed in a separate and specially equipped dark room.

When developed and fixed all films processed by the Craftsmen laboratories find their way to a clean and well lighted wash room, the feature of which is the large wash tanks lined with glazed white bath-tile. This material makes an excellent wash tank, which may be very easily cleaned when occasion requires.

Upon leaving the wash room we were interested to note the efficient arrangement whereby all air is freed from dust before its entrance into the well ventilated drying room, where the films are dried upon drums, after which they are received by the joining department, where they are assembled by young ladies in immaculate uniforms.

We had the surprise of our life when the machine-booth of the projection room was shown us, for here actually was a projection booth containing plenty of fresh air, derived from large windows extending across the entire back wall of the booth. The finished film is projected, for inspection purposes, by Simplex machines, and two pictures may be screened simultaneously, side by side.

This fine projecting room is not, however, the only one upon the premises, for there is another one especially equipped for directors and cameramen.

This directors' cutting-room contains a Moviograph projector equipped with an incandescent-globe illuminant, which permits of stopping the film during the process of editing. Along the walls of this room are countless receptacles for holding small rolls of film (individual scenes, etc.), such as always accumulate when film subjects are being edited.

We can conceive that the film editors of some large concerns are doubtless planning to "stake this room out" as their own headquarters, which will be but a small measure of the patronage that the Craftsmen Film Laboratories undoubtedly deserve.

The letting of the contract for the construction of the Terre Haute theatre is contemplated upon the site of the former Palace variety. Work has been placed in order to give contractors more time to figure out the work. All bids were supposed to be filed. Just now, the contractors invited to present estimates all pleaded for more time, owing to the instability of the market on building materials. It was stated at the office of the bankers and merchants' theatre company in the Terre Haute building that only a few days' additional time for consideration was asked for by the contractors and that it necessary to do considerable telegraphing to get options on materials.

LOUISIANA

With the establishment of a training camp for recruits for the navy at Gulfport on August 1, as is the intention of the government at the present time, Manager E. E. Harach, one of the most experienced and successful exhibitors in Mississippi, will proceed at once to erect a modern theatre upon the exposition grounds where the enlistees are to be provided with the best class of pictures for their amusement. This project has the sanction of the authorities, and Manager Hirsch will erect a theatre which will be ample in seating capacity and up-to-the-minute in fittings and architecture.

MASSACHUSETTS

Papers have gone on record of the sale of the "College Hall" property at 1410-1444 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and the new owners, the Harvard Square theatre realty trust, promises that they will make extensive improvements. Just what they are they will not say but it very likely will be the theatre project that they started some time ago and dropped temporarily pending the sale of the property. "College Hall" is a large brick and stone structure, containing nine large stores and 30 dormitories. It has a frontage on Massachusetts avenue of 235 feet, extending to the corner of Church street and running back 240 feet on Church street. The Massachusetts avenue buildings are four and five stories high, the frame buildings in the rear under a long lease to Harvard College. The purchase of this property by the above trustees was for improvements that will be made. The consideration paid is said to have been in excess of the total rating of $41,000. There is 4,250 square feet of cellar, almost an acre, which is taxed for $31,000.

MISSISSIPPI

The new Airdome theatre, at Natchez, opened to capacity business Monday of last week, with a special motion picture program, and bids fair to make a permanent. The Airdome is a handsome and commodious structure at the corner of Main and Wall streets, just opposite the post office. This convention hall will make it easily accessible from all parts of the city. The seating capacity of the Airdome is about 200, and accommodations have been provided for both white and colored. The Airdome is under the management and personal supervision of Thomas Panella, a well-known and popular citizen of this city. Mr. Panella has arranged to secure the best offerings of the famed film services and stage plays that attend the pictures regularly may feel assured that they will have an opportunity of seeing their favorite stars. Present day offerings for the entire week are announced, and it is indicated that the theatre will open with a record-breaking performance.

MISSOURI

Plans were completed recently for the erection of a new $40,000 theatre, which will be built at the corner of Vandalia and Vanderenter avenues, St. Louis, by the Consolidated Theatres Company. The structure, which will seat 3,500 persons, is 150 by 125 feet, and on the ground floor there will be six stores. Vaudeville and motion pictures will be featured on the bill.

NEBRASKA

The new moving picture and vaudeville show house at Wahoo opened its doors to the public Monday night a week ago before a crowded house at each performance. The house, which has been named "The Rex," is of the latest design in the world, and has low electric canopies in front, to the stage scenery in the rear, it is complete. A most attractive feature of the interior decoration is the wall in the front, also the canopies which hang at the windows with the word "Rex" worked up on them. The reception booth at the left of the entrance is very handy, and was kept busy. At the right of the entrance is the office. The interior light fixture is lighted and was decorated with ferns on top of the machine booth and paintings on the walls.

NEW YORK

Plans have been filed for the construction of a two-storey theatre at the northwest corner of Broadway and Ninety-fourth street, running in an L to Ninety-fifth street in New York City. The structure will have a frontage of 150 feet on Broadway, where the entrance will be located, 225 feet in Ninety-fourth street, and 100 feet in Ninety-fifth street. There will be accommodations for 2,750 persons. Eugene Hettman is the owner. George Kelser, architect, estimates the cost at $200,000.

ONTARIO

An addition to a motion picture theatre is to be built at Bockeye Road and East Eighty-ninth street. The building is owned by C. A. Bressler and Co. Nicola Pett, 307 Williamson Building is the architect. Alterations are to cost $3,000.

One of the latest deals in the trade in Ontario was consummated a few days ago when the well-known Strand theatre on Yonge street, Toronto, changed hands and underwent a reorganization. The new company has been styled the Strand theatre limited, capitalized at $72,000, and has made elaborate plans under way for the betterment of the theatre. The Strand theatre is located on Toronto's main thoroughfare, near its junctions with King and Yonge streets, which location is one of the best of its kind on the American continent.

Mr. Fegan, manager of the Eclipse theatre, Toronto, has taken out a permit for alterations to his theatre. He will put in a gallery, which will provide 400 more seats, and contemplates putting in a vaudeville.

Dainty Ella Hall has a particularly sympathetic role in the fascinating BLUEBIRD Photoplay, "THE CHARMER." The little daughter of a home returning missionary, orphaned by the torpedoing of their ship, she is cast ashore in an open boat on the New England coast.

Raffled off by a "war relief" society this bewitching sea-urchin finds herself the innocent co-respondent in a strange divorce suit. A notable supporting cast and the brilliant direction of Jack Conway make this a splendid film entertainment.

YOU cannot wish for a bigger, better or more pleasing photoplay of love and youth than Owen Johnson's famous "Lawrenceville" story. One of the best stories literature affords—directorial genius and superb production as exemplified in this picture is characteristic of all Paramount Pictures. The strong stellar attraction is ably augmented by the work of William D. Taylor, who directed the picture. To be released in August.

LAST week we announced the BLUEBIRD SPECIAL—"Mother O' Mine"—as the finest screen production of the season—bar none. We requested Exhibitors to review it. Many did so. Among them was Marcus Loew. He booked it instantly, over his entire circuit for 70 days solid. If it were possible for every Exhibitor to review "Mother O’ Mine" in person, we would be assured of its booking in every theatre in America.

WE urge you to review it in person at your nearest Bluebird Exchange, then book or leave it on your own personal review. It will play repeat with tremendous success. It is a magnificent production for the formal opening of ANY House. If you can’t arrange to review it in person, BOOK IT on our recommendation. Book thru your local Bluebird Exchange or BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAY (Inc.), 1600 B’way, New York City.
Two Goldwyn Pictures Win $728,000 in Contracts

Goldwyn's only trade showing in all America to date is the one held last week in Chicago, when an invited group of exhibitors saw Madge Kennedy in "Baby Mine" and Mae Marsh in another production not yet announced by name to the public.

As a result of this one Chicago showing Goldwyn booked contracts in a single afternoon aggregating $728,000.

In other words: Goldwyn Pictures sell themselves on sight to the biggest and ablest exhibitors of the nation; sell themselves through sheer merit; through their strength and beauty and because they reveal in every foot of their length the fact that skilled producers have put their hearts and brains into the making of them.

When, within the next few days, Goldwyn Pictures are revealed at trade showings in our twenty-five offices in North America, even you cannot conceive of the sensation they will create, or estimate the volume of bookings these showings will induce.

We have been truthful and accurate about Goldwyn Pictures. We have awaited their completion before announcing their virtues. And Robert Lieber, the great Indianapolis exhibitor, voices the opinion of hundreds of exhibitors when he says: "Goldwyn Pictures are better than you ever said they would be."
MABEL NORMAND

A screen celebrity without an equal; a personality unduplicated in the great, wide world of the screen—and now an exclusive star in Goldwyn Pictures. She is an artist of international reputation and drawing power and destined, in Goldwyn Pictures, to be an even greater favorite than at any previous time in her career.

The greatest newspapers throughout the world pay tribute to her charm and personality in the following manner:

BOSTON POST: Mabel Normand is the ablest comedienne known to screen devotees throughout the world.

KANSAS CITY STAR: Nowhere is there a comedienne who, on the screen, possesses one-half as much humor and appeal as Mabel Normand.

ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT: Mabel Normand’s return to the screen will be a big event . . . here is a star who counts her friends by the million.

PITTSBURG LEADER: Goldwyn, like most mortals, worships at the shrine of the great god, Personality—Mabel Normand is its latest star and its others, of great fame, are Mae Marsh, Jane Cowl, Madge Kennedy, Mary Garden and Maxine Elliott.

CHICAGO EVENING POST: Mabel Normand joins Goldwyn’s imposing array of stars . . . Each new Goldwyn artist brings new delights for the screen audiences of the country.

MANITOBA FREE PRESS: In all Canada there is no bigger favorite than Mabel Normand. Where can one look to discover her equal?

LOS ANGELES TIMES: It will be interesting to see how much greater popularity Mabel Normand can achieve, for already her popularity has passed beyond the limits of measurement.

HEARST’S ATLANTA AMERICAN: Good news for the picture fans. Mabel Normand returns to the screen as a Goldwyn star.

These comments, taken from hundreds, represent the opinions of 10,000,000 of America’s vast motion picture audiences.

tremendous box-office value of Goldwyn's first four releases, besides having this organization's pledge of still greater productions for the future.

"POLLY OF THE CIRCUS," starring Mae Marsh, is Margaret Mayo's greatest play—a play that made a fortune in the theatre for its author and producers. Here you have the combination of a world-known author and star in a production that proved its value across a continent.

"BABY MINE," starring Madge Kennedy, is the greatest farce comedy success in the history of the American theatre. Again you obtain the value of Margaret Mayo's popularity and see for the first time on the screen the most brilliant comedienne of our generation.

"FIGHTING ODDS" brings to the screen for the first time Maxine Elliott, America's most famous beauty and a stage favorite on two continents. Goldwyn has added to her attraction value by providing her with a powerful play by Roi Cooper Megruie and Irvin S. Cobb, two of the world's most popular authors.

"THE SPREADING DAWN," a famous Saturday Evening Post story, introduces Jane Cowl as a Goldwyn star, thus combining the assets of the greatest emotional actress in the American theatre with a tremendously advertised literary success.

These and all other Goldwyn productions will be advertised and promoted on a larger scale than has ever before been attempted by any producing organization. Every exhibitor knows what this means to his box-office.

EVERY week you can offer your patrons entertainment out-of-the-ordinary if you show Gaumont Single-Reels. Take "Reel Life" No. 67 as an example. It has the wonderful under-sea pictures of the submarine gardens at Miami, Fla. You could put these pictures on for a week's run, feature them exclusively, and make money. Yet they are just one section of this popular magazine reel. Such pictures as these—the talked-about-after-we-go-home kind—make movie fans of thousands who are not always interested in photodramas. With Gaumont Single-Reels you can get this extra money from people who won't come regularly unless lured by travel, magazine or news pictures.

“Of all her varied triumphs on screen and stage, Florence Reed has never surpassed that in 'Today'. It is an attraction which no exhibitor can afford to overlook.”—Exhibitors Trade Review.

“The story of 'Today' is told by an artist, visualized on the screen by an artist, presented by artists and photographed by artists.”—Motion Picture News.

“The exhibitor can certainly bank on 'Today' for big results and make the most glowing promises through the medium of his advertising.”—Motography.

A serial that is very much alive, with a great box office star, a fine cast, perfect direction and attention compelling story, say expert trade paper reviewers of

with PEARL WHITE

THOSE WHO SEE THE FIRST EPISODE WILL SEE THE REST, SAYS THE "MIRROR": "A serial to develop continuous patronage must contain a number of things: first, a story that holds the interest; second, a star that is popular, and lastly, action. The Fatal Ring" fulfills all these rules. It contains a strong amount of mystery and certainly a large amount of action. If an exhibitor can get a house full of patrons to see the start of this serial the ones who will not follow the serial thereafter will not be in a minute minority if there are any at all."

A TREAT IS IN STORE FOR LOVERS OF SERIALS, SAYS THE "TRADE REVIEW": "The Fatal Ring" gives promise of being one of Pathes best serials. A treat is in store for lovers of the continued story. The most noticeable point in the opening chapters is action and this is continued with a vengeance until the very last. There is not a moment's drag. The staging and direction are well nigh perfect in every detail. The acting is exceptional. Pearl White is seen in one of her best roles and that her name is a drawing card is unquestioned. "The Fatal Ring" can be placed in the class of box office attractions."

IT IS VERY MUCH ALIVE AND THE ATTENTION IS FIRMLY CAUGHT, SAYS THE "WORLD": "The Fatal Ring" starts off with every indication of possessing the qualities beloved by the followers of the continued-next-week picture. It is very much alive at the beginning and before the first installment is over the attention is firmly caught. The cast is a fine one. Aside from the one and only Pearl White, Earle Foxe, Ruby Hoffman, Warner Oland, and Henry Geeli have important parts."

PEARL WHITE RETURNS TO HER OWN AGAIN WITH STUNTS, THRILLS AND MYSTERY, SAYS THE "MOTION PICTURE NEWS": "Pearl White returns to her own again—her own being, of course, a serial via 'The Fatal Ring'. There are stunts in it, thrills in it, and there is mystery in it. The fearless Pearl, swinging around on chandeliers and bowling over swarthy men as if they were so many ten pins, behaves very much like a female Fairbanks. A fine cast."
PEARL WHITE

Pathe's great serial star—how many players can draw the crowds she does, day in and out, rain or shine, hot or cold? The majority of exhibitors who have played her say she is in a class by herself!

The Beloved Characters of “O. Henry”

HETTIE PEPPER

Beef stew cannot be fashioned without certain ingredients. Granted you have the beef—rib beef if one is in earnest—it is a fair start, but it is not beef stew. The pot may bubble like Vesuvius, and all the results is a faint, flat odor of beef, without savor. It needs potatoes. And it needs—an onion!

Cecile in the next room, the pale, anaemic blonde art student, pooled her resources with Hettle, who had the beef, gladding the incipient feast with her whole store of six potatoes. With such a makeshift at beef stew poor, spiritless Cecile would have been content.

But Hettle Pepper is one of your self-reliant types. She, who had just lost her job at the store for “billing a fresh,” would not yield to a compromise with hope. So she makes a sortie out into the tenement hall, and there she finds a detached young millionaire standing, carelessly holding a fine, full onion.

The delightful situation here created by O. Henry and used by him to develop a Titanic climax of romance—and the inevitable anti-climax into which he concentrates the great O. Henry human nature note—is all in the marvelous film production, “THE THIRD INGREDIENT.”

Herbert Brenon in the FALL of the ROMANOFFS with Iliodor (former confidant of Rasputin, Czar and Czarina) reveals the true story of Rasputin, real ruler of Russia, and most astounding adventurer of modern times; shows this false prophet rising from peasant filth to the silken splendors of Petrograd, where he makes Grand Dukes and money-masters his servants and the Czar himself his humble follower; depicts his discovery of the Mad Monk Iliodor, an educated man he endeavored to enslave; portrays Iliodor's imprisonment and escape, and graphically pictures Rasputin's bloody ascent to supreme power, the great conspiracy ending in his sensational death, and the dawn of the Revolution in which was born the Free Russia of today.

Fairbanks and Hart Pictures

These pictures were originally sold on the TRIANGLE program at equitable prices. Our exhibitors appreciated this and have requested us to reissue them. They know TRIANGLE and believe in its policy.

How many film corporations bear this same reputation today? How many have given you consistently good pictures at equitable prices? How many stars whose reputations you have established have continued to be offered to you at the same prices that you were paying while helping to make these stars?

Some producers claim that exhibitors are a "BUNCH OF SHEEP". To them the picture business is not a real business, but a game.

Do you know that arbitrary prices have already been placed on your house? How long will you stand this treatment? Have you figured how much will be left FOR YOU after paying your film bills for the privilege of showing certain stars?

Now here's the question for you to answer—ARE YOU GOING TO BECOME A PARTY TO IMPOSSIBLE PRICES?

Some producers say that TRIANGLE is the stumbling block in their path. They may be guessing today but they will know tomorrow that TRIANGLE went into this business to make it a real business and not an old-time Western stage-coach fiasco. TRIANGLE has nothing to conceal—our cards are all on the table and our hats in the ring.

You can buy TRIANGLE service at equitable prices. It will consist of the best productions that we are able to make. Yes, and you can buy Hart and Fairbanks pictures, but you can't buy them on the open booking plan. You must take the entire series. There is no "joker" in this.

BESSIE BARRISCALE

IN "ROSE O' PARADISE"

Written by Grace Miller White
Author of "Tess of the Storm Country"

Directed by James Young

Jinnie plays:—
her fiddle is peopled with angels' voices—each note speaks to the heart burdened with care, and heals the wounds of a harrowed soul.
The sunshine of her music laves the little sprigs of goodness that still root in the barren heart of the outcast. When Jinnie plays, her listeners know what God looks like.

BESSIE BARRISCALE is Jinnie, a heaven-sent breath of fragrant mountain air in the squalid humdrum of our daily lives.

After years of diligent research, LYMAN I. HENRY set himself the task of writing an old world play which, with respect to habits, customs, habitat and characteristics of the old world characters in the drama would be correct in every detail, and so is offered; not as "the greatest, most elaborate, stupendous, million dollar cinema spectacle," but as an interesting, inspiring story of consuming jealousies, fierce passions, masterful love, struggles and triumphs; a cinema play which will offer wholesome pleasure and amusement

ORIGINAL MUSIC AND CHORUSES BY JACOB WEINSTOCK

"The Chosen Prince" is written around the love and devotion of two men—David and Jonathan. It follows David, who, as a shepherd lad, kills a lion that attacks his sheep; he is anointed by the prophet Samuel to be great in Israel. David takes provisions to his brothers in Saul's army, where he gains a great victory for Israel by slaying the giant Goliath; he meets Jonathan, the King's son; they open their veins and each tastes the others' blood in token of a lifelong friendship and brotherhood. David returns to his flocks and is later sent to play before the king who has fallen the victim of a malady which the people call evil spirits. He meets Michal, Jonathan's sister, and "David's Star" is now in the ascendant. We go with him through his conquests, his battles and wars, his exiles with his caravans, and finally welcome him back to his people, where he is crowned King in Judah.

Patriotism—Not Politics

WHAT effect will the split in the ranks of exhibitor organizations have upon this industry's united cooperation with the United States at war?

In our opinion, no effect whatsoever.

We doubt exceedingly that the question will ever be raised. But should it be, by any chance, we take pains now to denounce it as at once silly and outrageous.

The Government expects of this industry, and this industry expects of every exhibitor, the eager tender and fullest possible use of the screens of the country in the cause of patriotism and world democracy.

We believe that we can answer for every exhibitor and every screen in the United States—that the Government's appeal will be met to the level of each man's and each theatre's ability.

We know this.

SPLITS in exhibitor organization have nothing whatever to do with this momentous and pressing situation. Patriotism and patriotism alone is concerned—vitaly and deeply.

The very suggestion that organization politics within the industry should have any voice in the matter sounds as strange as an invidious German attempt to disrupt an industry and thwart its valuable aid to our Government.

It is ridiculous in logic; contemptible in principle.

Consider the practical side of the matter.

The two exhibitor organizations at present represent each a small minority of the exhibitors of this country. Together, even, they represent at present but a minority.

REGARDING the qualifications for these appointees, Secretary Lane expressed tersely the Government's needs and expectations when he said: "Gentlemen, we expect you to provide first the ingenuity and imagination necessary and available through motion pictures to turn our dead messages into life; then the machinery necessary to circulate these live messages to the American public."

Any practical picture man will readily enough sense the ability and action which such responsibilities demand.

The whole situation seems very simple to us.

Speaking Editorialy:

A False Foundation

YOU cannot build a permanent structure upon a false foundation. It is liable to crack wide open, top to bottom, the moment it is reared.

The split in the M. P. E. L. of America was inevitable. It has happened before. It always will happen, the very moment any kind of a load is laid upon it.

The false foundation of the M. P. E. L. of America is its Constitution and By-laws.

They were never right; and they have been twisted and turned to create, not an active, constructive, democratic organization but merely a voting body, a sort of electoral college to meet once a year and elect officers.

President Neff used to organize new States or reconstruct old ones overnight. This was always done just preceding a Convention. All that was necessary was to collect a few dollars per head, name officers and delegates and the work was finished. The delegates went to Convention, presented their voting credentials dignified only by the dollar sign, elected a President, listened to political oratory and then went home, where the State league promptly died or else was resurrected later by a few strong leaders to face a local crisis.

The sole objective of this attempt at National Organization still remains a voting objective. Dues are paid to vote not to maintain an organization.

Every time the League has approached a position of power, due to increased State membership and the attempt to make the State Leagues cohesive at a National Convention the structure has cracked.

Otherwise in the past, it has been practically inactive, a mere name of a national organization which in reality did not exist, but came only to life when the year’s voting convention came around.

The situation is hopeless.

We say this with no disrespect to the newly elected members of the Executive Committee of the League.

There are mighty good men on it.

We have an idea that such men as Messrs. Eager, Glammann, Rice, Clarke, Blumenthal, Levine, Black, Chamberlain, Hamburger and Furness will have something later to say about these same By-laws and the same Constitution.

Nor have we any issue whatever with any State League. They have always had and will have our support as protective and constructive State Organization.

But we believe they too will see a light.

We believe, that knowing as they do the necessity of National Organization they will want to ally themselves with an organization active and permanent, not with merely an annual voting contest; with an organization so democratic that their voice can always be heard, not with one that is framed to be only a one-man power; with an organization that binds them together the year round and when national crises arise, not merely once a year when the only crisis is an election of President.

These constructive, democratic, business-like principles are the principles of the American Exhibitors’ Association, and will, we have every reason to believe, be fully expressed in this association’s constitution and by-laws.

If so, we will have, for the first time, the only possible basis for a structure of national exhibitor organization that will endure and succeed.

It Will Not Be Necessary

PRESIDENT OCHS is reported to have said: "I will not be a candidate next year. I will not be because it will not be necessary."

One is disposed to agree heartily with Mr. Ochs; at the same time one wonders just what he means.

A year ought to be long enough to accomplish the something he evidently has in mind, the "something else" he says he will "pull."

Again, the present Constitution and By-Laws of the M. P. E. L. of America are such that one man can perpetuate his power for two years or even indefinitely from the outside of the organization.

Perhaps Mr. Ochs means that the M. P. E. L. will be in such shape by the end of his term that no election whatever will be necessary.

At any rate, and from almost any angle, the fact seems to remain that it will not be necessary for him to be re-elected.

A Patriotic Picture

"THE SLACKER" will do this country lots of good. It is an excellent example of just what the motion picture can accomplish for the great and pressing cause of patriotism. Its emotional appeals are many and finely achieved. Superior acting drives them home, to stay. It is a high order of the patriotic picture.

The President of the United States has asked William A. Brady to coordinate and bring to the Government’s aid the motion picture industry.

To accomplish this Mr. Brady must first reach out for an organization of the industry.

... * * * * ...

He already has an organization in the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry—representing as it does more than ninety per cent of the industry’s producing and distributing forces.

He now appeals to the exhibitors of the country—all the exhibitors of the country.

It would only be natural, it strikes us, for him to appeal as President of the industry’s organization, since all exhibitors may join the National Association, and, furthermore, all exhibitors ought to join the National Association.

But he need not appeal in this capacity.

He is delegated by the President as one man in the industry to make this appeal to every member of the industry.

Matters of sectional organization, or split organizations, have nothing whatever to do with the matter; least of all has politics to do with the matter.

The man who raises such an issue will have to face the grave charge of putting politics above patriotism; and we doubt if any man cares to face that charge.

The true issue seems clear and simple. We believe it will so appeal to every exhibitor in the country.

Industry's Committees to Aid War Program Announced

Leaders in All Branches to Co-operate with Government in War Prosecution—Women on Some Committees—Familiar Names Found on Lists—Given Out by George Creel

THE task set William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, to mobilize the film leaders of the country to serve as the central body to work with the Committee of Public Information, has been completed; it was announced late last week by George Creel, chairman of the Committee on Public Information.

The general board which will serve the Government will have representatives assigned to the War, Navy, Treasury, Agricultural and Interior Departments.

The composition of the committees accredited to the various departments follows:

War Department

P. A. Powers, Universal Film Company, 1600 Broadway, New York City; Eugene M. Clark, Jefferson theatre, Natchez, Miss.; William A. Johnston, Motion Picture News, New York City; Cecil B. DeMille, Lasky Studios, Los Angeles, Cal.

Navy

Food Commission

Food Commission

Ouida Bergere, care of American Play Company, Inc., 33 West Forty-second street, New York City; Gail Kane, care of Mutual Film Corporation, Santa Barbara, Cal.; Marguerite Clark, care Famous Players Studio, West Fifty-seventh street, New York City; Kitty Gordon, care of Peerless Producing Company, West Fort Lee, N. J.

William A. Brady will himself be the representative of the new War Co-operation Board attached to the Council of National Defense. D. W. Griffith, who has been made chairman of the War Co-operation Committee of the N. A. M. P. I, is made ex-officio member of all the committees announced.

The mobilization of the picture industry at the President's specific request, was undertaken with the purpose of bringing the business into the closest and most effective contact with the nation's needs. As has often been reiterated, the film speaks a universal language, and this salient fact is recognized, and its advantages are recognized by Washington officials.

Mr. Brady is president of the War Co-operation Committee of the N. A. M. P. I. D. W. Griffith is chairman, William Sherrill is vice-chairman, and Arthur James is secretary.

"Man Without a Country" Is Frohman Picture Set for Showing in August

The secrecy which has surrounded the identity of the production in the making in the fields of Long Island and New Jersey, and off the coast of Cape Cod, for the past seven or eight weeks, has been removed by the announcement from the offices of the Frohman Amusement Corporation that the picture is "A Man Without a Country." It will be ready for its first public showing, beginning a run at a Broadway theatre, about August.

John W. Noble directed the picture and Anthony P. Kelly wrote the scenario.

The subject is founded on the well-known novel, "A Man Without a Country," by Edward Everett Hale. The sale of the work has been estimated at nearly four million copies.

In speaking of the production President Sherrill is most enthusiastic. He says:

"We have chosen a subject which carries a psychological appeal—a smashing up-to-the-minute timely production which will do much to stimulate the interest so much needed at this moment. We have certainly been accorded most unusual co-operation from every source, enabling us to make our production absolutely authentic and historically correct. In 'A Man Without a Country' there is at last a production which will, I conscientiously believe, create a furor."
Wisconsin Exhibitors Organizing on New Lines

MILWAUKEE, WIS. (Special).—Wisconsin and Milwaukee exhibitors are to be organized along the new lines proposed by the American Exhibitors Association and will in a few weeks, it is declared, present to the country the strongest exhibitors organization in the United States. This was the summary of the plans proposed by Jack Grauman, president of the Milwaukee Exhibitors Association on his return from the Chicago convention.

"We realize now as we have never realized before," said Mr. Grauman, "that we cannot depend any longer upon the National League for help or protection. It is now being run by a small group of men who use it only for the promotion of their own selfish interests. We are going to organize the entire state along such lines that will make it absolutely non-dependent upon outside assistance. Then we will be affiliated with the new American Exhibitors Association, for all national purposes, and I think that we will be able to worry along without the help of the old organization."

It is planned by the Milwaukee and Wisconsin members to retain their charter in the League, unless they are expelled. As one member put it, "There is a pile of money made at the conventions and we would like to keep our eye on it and have some little voice in the spending of it."

As the first step in organizing under the new plan, J. E. Sherwood, of Madison, Wis., was appointed as national director to the American Exhibitors Association. This appointment is only temporary until a new state organization can be perfected.

"It makes but little difference to the Wisconsin exhibitor whether or not we retain our charter in the old association," said Mr. Grauman. "We were never able to have a voice in its management, and as events proved at Chicago, we were lucky we were allowed to even have a look at the convention."

"The Milwaukee delegates were proud to be members of the Wisconsin delegation," continued Mr. Grauman, "and as events prove the Wisconsin delegation did not cast a single divided vote. This splendid example of solidarity gives us heart for the hard work we have ahead of us in organizing a new and really representative organization."

It was the consensus of opinion of all the delegates upon their return from the convention that the affair staged at Chicago was the one thing needed to arouse the delegates to the fact that it was up to Wisconsin to thoroughly organize and work for a hundred per cent. exhibitors organization.

"Exhibitors Will Now Really Dominate Business"

Formation of American Exhibitors' Minus Political Side Play Will Association on Sound Principles and Bring Success, Says Big Exhibitor

CERTAINTY of success for the new American Exhibitors' Association was predicted last week by William Falt, Jr., manager and director of the big Avon theatre, Utica, N. Y., when in a statement he logically went into the fundamental principles of the organization, which he believes will give it quick and lasting impetus.

Mr. Falt's statement follows:

"As I see the proposition, the American Exhibitors' Association is in no way analogous with the old league. The American Exhibitors' Association was formed as a business organization to be conducted on business lines and for the benefit of the exhibitors' business.

"The officers and directors of the new organization will, of course, direct the destinies of this new business. But in contrast with the old organization, the actual business will be conducted by a high grade paid executive rather than by some one who will be willing to sacrifice his time and the business for the glory or honor of the national presidency.

"Theiring will not enter into the new organization. The executive secretary is actually the man at the helm. If he makes good our business succeeds. If he fails, our business suffers. If he makes good no member of the board of directors would be willing to replace him on account of politics and likewise if he fails, no member of the board of directors would be willing to re-elect him for political reasons.

"My idea of the office of executive secretary is that it should be the clearing house of all information vital to the business of the exhibitor. He will likewise be the clearing house of all information vital to the business of the manufacturer or distributor.

"Like any other business, this new business will require capital. Like any other business it cannot succeed without sufficient capital to maintain it. Every exhibitor in the country is a stockholder in this new corporation and dividends that he may receive in the way of benefits to his business will depend entirely upon the financial and moral support which he gives to this new venture.

"Sometime ago I predicted that the time had come when the exhibitors must take the reins of this industry in hand and dominate the business. That time has come and the exhibitor will dominate the business if each and every man in the existing business will co-operate and work with and for the American Exhibitors' Association, and by such means only can we become a factor."

"Ochs' Speech Nasty—Aspiration on the Exhibitor"

Commenting on the now famous "speech of acceptance" delivered at the Chicago Convention by Lee A. Ochs, N. E. Thatchers' brother in the New Orleans Picayune has this to say:

"The motion picture department of this newspaper wants to be very nice to what is considered the constituted authority in the national motion picture organization. Were this department less considerate it might say, and still be within the fact, that this speech is vindictive, nasty and utterly beneath the head of the industry.

"It's too bad that the speech of acceptance of the exhibitor of the national body casts an aspersion upon the poor, little local exhibitor who is doing the best he can, and who has a perfect right to feel complimented by the executive head of this Government in the recognition of the motion picture as an educational factor."

Exhibitors' Association Names State Representatives

One of the first moves to be made now by the new and husky American Exhibitors' Association will be the application for State and city charters wherever represented throughout the country. One of the last bits of business done in Chicago before all of the members finally departed for their homes last week, following the convention and organization, was to name charter representatives for twenty-two States. Those selected are as follows: Judge A. P. Tagg, and New California; Frank J. Rembusch, Indiana; W. H. Wilty, of Kansas; Louis Dittman, of Kentucky; N. E. Thatcher, of Louisiana; Guy Wonders, of Maryland; Harry L. Kincaide, of Massachusetts; S. A. Moran, Michigan; Peter Jessup, of Detroit; W. A. Steffes, Minnesota; Sam Trigger, of New York City; I. M. Mosher, New York State; Percy W. Wells, of North Carolina; Samuel Bullock, Ohio; A. B. Momand, Oklahoma; Fred J. Herrington, of Pennsylvania; George C. Wake, of South Carolina; Charles McElroy, of Tennessee; Harry Bernstein, Virginia; Harry Crandall, of District of Columbia; and A. J. Krug, of Illinois.

Varner Tells When Expenses Were Paid

On the night of May 10, H. B. Varner attended an exhibitor's dinner in New York. At the time he was under the impression that his presence was desired in connection with the 10 per cent. tax. At the dinner he spoke against this, and the enthusiastic response enlightened him as to the purpose of the invitation extended to him by Louis F. Blumenthal and others of the Exhibitors Trade Review, which was, he states to "line him up" in support of the 10 per cent. tax on gross receipts and to get the manufacturers' tax of $150 cents per foot from films.

The wired invitation to Varner, from Blumenthal, asked that he come to the dinner at Blumenthal's expense.

At an organization meeting of the American Exhibitors' Association, these facts were given by Varner:

"That was the only occasion on which my expenses were paid from a questionable source."
Indiana's Capital Is Solid for New Exhibitors Body

Exhibitors of Indianapolis Indorse Action of Delegates to Chicago Convention—
General Opinion Is That All Indiana Will Join and That Old Organization Is Dead

Unanimous endorsement of the action of the Indiana delegates at the Chicago convention and the quick reaching of a decision that the Hoosier state should become a member of the new American Exhibitors' Association, were topics passed on at a meeting of the Indianapolis Exhibitors' Association July 25.

At the same time thirty-five of the fifty-five members present passed a resolution refusing to accept the Exhibitors' Trade Review as the official organ of the exhibitors.

The action of the Indianapolis men in these matters is expected to be followed by the state, inasmuch as several leaders in the state association, including Frank J. Rembusch were present, and approved all the actions.

Charles C. Pettijohn, executive of the new organization, was called to the meeting of the Indianapolis exhibitors, but what he said was brief and to the point.

"We are working for the exhibitor and not talking just now," was Mr. Pettijohn's only remark.

His word aptly described what seems to be going on at his office in Indianapolis since his return from Chicago. Various details of organization to the benefit of the exhibitor were gone into during the last week at Pettijohn's office, where a whole battery of stenographers were at work for the executive secretary.

Just how everybody in Indianapolis seems to be strong for the new American Exhibitors' Association is perhaps best indicated by interviews obtained by various exhibitors of Indianapolis. Diligent search fails to reveal anyone opposing the new organization; instead all the opposition seems centered at the old; confidence rests for the new. Here are some of the interviews, each a type of the views of other exhibitors:

"What do I think of the new American Exhibitors' Association?" asked H. E. Cohen, manager of the Colonial, Crystal and Regent, three downtown theatres, repeating the question that had been put to him by a correspondent of the Motion Picture News.

"The new association was absolutely necessary if the interests of the exhibitor were to be furthered," continued Mr. Cohen, answering the question. "The spirit of fairness demanded the formation of the American Exhibitors' Association. In this new organization the majority will be heeded and gag rule will never be attempted.

"I did not get to attend the convention, but I know just what happened at Chicago, and the Exhibitors' Trade Review can't tell me different. I prefer to get my report from the Indiana delegates who were there instead of from the Exhibitors' Review."

Charles Olson, a partner in the string of Barton-Olson theatres, all downtown shows, had this to say:

"The new association is for the exhibitor where the other hand the old association was organized for that purpose, but its president got up a trade review and then furthered his own interests with the manufacturers. I am like every other Indianapolis exhibitor, that is, I am for the new organization. I know that of the five hundred or more Indiana exhibitors are back of the new American Exhibitors' Association."

Mr. Zaring, the secretary of the Indianapolis exhibitors' organization, answering the question for his opinion of the new association, said:

"It looks mighty good to me. The high-handed way in which things were run at the Chicago convention made the new organization a necessity. The right kind of men, backed by the right kind of motives are back of the new American Exhibitors' Association and that is why it is going to be successful. You have an organization and he must have it in the way that counts. That is why nothing can block the new association."

H. A. Keenan, manager of the Keystone and Palms, other downtown theatres, said:

"There is no chance for the old association in Indiana. I know you know what we think of the new. We exhibitors are for Pettijohn. Why look what he did. He got a Sunday 'movie' law through the Indiana State Legislature, which was lost only because of a clerical error that could not be rectified and caused the Governor to veto the bill. Then see what he did on the war tax. Now he is but one of the real workers who is back of the new association. Of course, it is a success already. That's all there is to it."

What the exhibitors operating the neighborhood shows think of the new association is well stated by H. M. Hice, owner of the Belmont theatre. He said: "The new association is a fine thing for the exhibitor. It is what he needs, and is without the trade interest that was apparent in the old. The new association is founded on the right principles and backed by the right men. Everybody I talk with is strong for the new." Ranck J. Rembusch, of Shelbyville, president of the Indiana Exhibitors' League and one of the foremost exhibitors in the country from the point of view of genuine service without pay, is enthused about the new organization. Here is what he says:

"The purpose of the American Exhibitors' Association is to improve and protect the business interests of its members, and to care for the interests of the exhibitor first but at the same time work in harmony with all branches of the motion picture industry."

"Only bona fide motion picture exhibitors can obtain membership, which means theatre owners or accredited managers. A member discontinuing in the motion picture theatre business will immediately forfeit his membership."

"This national body will work to assist the United States Government in times of war or other great crises. It will demand and encourage the production and showing of pictures of a high moral character; to adjust and arbitrate differences between members of the industry; to work against adverse legislation and legalized censorship and in every way to be a medium that will uplift and promote the prosperity and best interest of the motion picture industry."

"This organization will be incorporated in regular business form and will not be used for any money making schemes or profit. It will depend for its support on its members through subscriptions and donations."

"The plan of organization is such that the national body can never be controlled by a few, and a packed convention will be impossible.

"The plan will be such that the organization will be more representative and large cities will not be able to control delegations as they have in the past because the very large cities will be given a charter and must operate under separate charter from the balance of the state."

"For example, the City of New York will have a separate charter and the State of New York will have a separate charter. Past experience has proved that the conditions under which an exhibitor in smaller cities and large cities work are different, therefore, both work better and more efficiently as separate charters. The larger cities have been able to bring an immense delegation to conventions and in that way control the organization. At the same time we are giving the larger cities the proper power and consideration by giving them a separate charter equal to the state."

"Delegates to the national convention will be more evenly distributed because representation will be based on the following plan: Each charter shall be entitled to two delegates, one the state president and the other a delegate elected by the charter, and then each charter shall be allowed one delegate for each one hundred members."

"On this plan it will be impossible for one charter to have the power of selecting all of the committees doing the work of the convention, or be able to come to a convention with an enormous delegation that would control the convention such as a few states did at the last convention of the now defunct organization."

"The executive committee of the new American Exhibitors' Association will be composed of five members of the charter and a plan will be inaugurated, by which a referendum of votes by mail may be taken on urgent questions."
Ochs Should Be Forever Discarded from the Industry

E. V. McGrath, Detroit Exhibitor, Adds That National President is a Menace to Picturedom—Opposition of Michigan Due Solely to Ochs' "Bully Tactics"

PERSONAL feeling did not enter into the opposition to Lee Ochs advanced by the Detroit delegation. "Rotten methods and Bully tactics" of the National President was the underlying cause of the feeling against him which ran so high, according to a number of the delegates.

"When any one man thinks he is bigger than the industry itself and takes the attitude that he is going to do just as he sees fit because the industry wants it done that way (in his own mind only) then it is high time that such a man was forever discarded from the industry, because he is a greater menace than a benefactor," said E. V. McGrath, of the Stratford theatre, Detroit. "The Detroit delegation was opposed to Lee Ochs for his conduct as president and not because of any personal feeling against him. Why, there are very few in Detroit who even know the man —except by his rotten methods and bully tactics. I don't see how there can be any harmony with a man like Ochs in any organization. I see exactly the bullying-boy in school who bosses the others because he knows they are weak. But you will find that some day the 'bully-boss' gets more than he is looking for when these supposedly weak school boys make up their minds. They won't be bulldozing any longer and they give the bully-boss the kind of a beating he is entitled to.

"Michigan is a peaceful state. We don't get for such occasions when it comes to us on a silver platter then we feel justified in rebelling and striking back. And that's just what we did when we formed a new national association that will be non-political but for the good and development of the motion picture industry."

"If Lee A. Ochs was any kind of a man he would have willingly withdrawn his nomination for president, as did the others, and made every effort for peace and harmony, but like all bulldogs he had to have his own way not because the organization wanted or needed him but because he was going to show everybody that he could not be beaten—which is synonymous with the bulldog.

"The trouble with the boys who elected Ochs was that they were more interested in having a political fight rather than seeing how much they could benefit the industry. Politics may be all right in civic and municipal affairs, but certainly has no place in an industry as important as the motion picture industry."

"I am sincere in what I have said about this whole affair—it was a bad mess in many respects—it was a reflection in many respects upon the industry—but it also has its good points—it has hazed the trail for a new, bigger, and nobler association which will 'make good' simply because they will follow the right principles."

Very briefly, some of the Michigan delegations feel from the convention have expressed themselves as follows:

F. A. Schneider, president of the Detroit Exhibitors League: "The methods used by Ochs were certainly unbecoming a big man, in the many years that I have been associated with trade associations of various kinds, I can't recall anything like Ochs' way of doing things. I like a real fighter—a man who will honestly stand by his own convictions—but not when a man's interests enter into his methods as was the case with Lee A. Ochs. He certainly has not been using the office of president for the best interests of the motion picture industry. However, it's all past history now—our American Exhibitors Association is what we are interested in—and we are going to see that it is run on business principles."

King Ferry of the Luna theatre, Detroit, said: "We were very careful in deciding whether we would bolt or not from the National. We thought about Ochs' rotten methods the more we became convinced that he either must go—and go forever—or we would have to form a bigger and greater association. That's what we did. The National League had great possibilities until Ochs took hold of things and then he ran it as all politicians—to suit themselves. I can't imagine what Ouchs was thinking about to conduct the Chicago convention as he did. Can you imagine a man trying to do that in any other trade association? How long would he last?"

W. S. McLaren, of the Majestic-Colonial the Theatre, Jackson, Mich., "A man who tries stunts like Ochs does not belong in a trade association—but rather in the game of politics—and politics is the last thing that should enter into a trade association. How can Ochs say that he is for the best interests of the motion picture industry when he deliberately did things that were against the upbuilding of the industry. It is common sense that a strong national organization, with everybody working in absolute harmony, with a man at the helm who is non-partisan, who does things for the industry in a big, broad way, making friends instead of enemies, is the only thing that will help the business. Surely not a man Napoleonic, as Mr. Ochs would have us believe him."

New Body Stands for Quality in Membership

Harry Crandall, Foremost Washington Exhibitor, Announces His Beliefs and Gives His Views of American Exhibitors' Association

HARRY CRANDALL, biggest capital exhibitor and mainstay of the tottering local exhibitors league, last week prophesied that in the newly born American Exhibitors Association the exhibitor of the country would get results even beyond his dreams.

"Now we have an organization that will do things in a business way," he said emphatically. "We will not be that ever-lasting moan of how much we are in debt and how we can meet expenses that has been the bug-bear of the Exhibitors' League. And let me say this new organization must — and will — associate with the League. This is an association and that is a league; two different kinds of organizations.

"I feel that the American Exhibitors' Association will gain great strength. It already has the solid south, and some of the biggest picture men all over the country. It means quality and not quantity in membership. It means efficiency and not officers. There will be no great concern as to who is president; in fact, he is rather nominal; but there will be great concern as to how the association is managed, and if those in office can't manage it properly we will put in a man who can.

"We are paying big salaries for expert efficiency and we mean to get it. It is not so much as to who a man is as it is what he accomplishes with his job. He must make good without favoritism. This means business and it is about time we had business in an exhibitors' organization."

"I feel that the Association will be a big help to the exhibitors as a body. In time it will eclipse anything that the picture theatre manager has known or even prophesied. It will fight its battles with Legislatures, and it will give him a standing that only can be gained by efficiency and organization.

"It is an organization for the man with a theatre of quality. Dues are reckoned not by the man but by the number of houses he controls. This is a much fairer proposition than the League offered and accordingly more expensive. The American Exhibitors' Association realized from the start that it costs money to run an organization and they have to pay dues accordingly. It knew it costs money to buy the brains and labors of men of specific knowledge, and it is offering salaries accordingly. It is a business affair first and last. As yet I have not made any plans as to my movements as director representing the District of Columbia. The territory is small but important owing to Federal legislation. I look to a future of accomplishment of unity and strength from the Association."

Clara K. Young Is Now Her Own Producer

A corporation to be known as the C. K. Y. Film Corporation, and in which Adolph Zukor is said to be a prime factor, has been organized under the New York State laws to market and distribute all of Clara Kimball Young's productions.

Eight pictures or more a year are to be purchased from Miss Young for a period of four years.
Percy W. Wells Designates Chicago Sessions as "Farce"

WILMINGTON, N. C. (Special). — "We returned home well satisfied with the Chicago trip," declared Percy W. Wells, formerly president of the N. C. M. P. E. L. and now state president of the newly formed American Exhibitors Association, to a representative of the Motion Picture News:

"Although we spent much time and money on Mr. Varner's campaign for the presidency, this became of secondary importance when we arrived in Chicago and witnessed the opening sessions of the fair which was pulled off under the respectable title of a convention."

"We were glad indeed to voluntarily sacrifice Mr. Varner's prospects as a presidential candidate in order that every possible obstacle to the forming of a new and effective organization might be swept away. Our fight, to begin with, was not one for political or personal aggrandizement or domination over the exhibitors of the nation, and Mr. Varner's candidacy was launched with the sole purpose of trying to obtain relief from the dominating selfish interests back of the league as formerly constituted.

"I believe that within twelve months the National League will exist in name only. The kind of men we want in the American Exhibitors Association—bona fide theatre owners, who have substantial investments in the industry and are therefore vitally and personally interested in the growth of the industry in a degree that would overshadow any selfish motives—cannot but see the necessity sooner or later of aligning themselves with an organization that does things, and just as soon as we effect permanent organization, get national headquarters opened in New York and put an expert organization in the field, I predict that they will all come our way. They are bound to."

"The American Exhibitors Association, I believe, has been launched along lines that are psychologically right and that will insure its becoming a power in the interest of the exhibitors of the nation. That bunch of earnest, conscientious business men who helped form the initial nucleus of our organization at Chicago augurs much for the ultimate success of the organization, and the more I think about the prospects the more enthusiastic I become. The directors will meet within the next thirty days at a point yet to be decided on, and will then prepare all arrangements for permanent organization."

When asked what he thought of the Chicago convention Henry B. Varner declared:

"I have attended conventions from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico; I have attended National Editorial Conventions; I have attended National Good Roads Conventions, National Democratic Conventions and various other conventions of national bodies, as well as state, district and county conventions of every kind and description, and I have never yet, in my twenty years' experience, seen anything in the same class with the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America as conducted in Chicago, with the exception of a Republican County Convention in the negro sections of the South, fifteen to twenty years ago. The Chicago Convention was pitiful—it was a real tragedy. I went to Chicago in good faith, foolishly thinking that I might be of service; but after I saw the first session and realized the spirit that was dominating that body I felt deeply humiliated that I had made so foolish a trip, and that I had permitted my name to be used as a candidate, and I informed my friends to do me the kindness to forget that my name had ever been mentioned—that I would not accept the presidency of that body if it were handed to me on a silver waiter. Reverently speaking, that night when I got down on my knees I asked the Lord to forgive me for committing such a foolish act and promised him that if he would that I would never do it again.

"The honest, conscientious exhibitors who bolted and organized the American Exhibitors Association unquestionably did one of the best things that has been done in the interest of the exhibitors and the industry at large in many years, and I feel confident that they have started right and that the organization has a great future, as it is dominated by the spirit of service to protect and help each other and further the elevation and betterment of the industry at large.

"It is not the purpose of the American Exhibitors Association to fight any honest exhibitor or to fight any branch of the industry; but to organize the different sections of the country into real exhibitor's associations and build up a great national body—all working to the same end to make the exhibitor the great power for good that he should be in their respective cities, state and nation. My best wishes are for the success of the American Exhibitors Association, believing that they will work unselfishly for the common good and glory of the nation."

Baltimore Delegates Applaud Birth of A. E. A.

BALTIMORE (Special). — Baltimore was represented at the Chicago convention by three delegates. Thomas D. Goldberg was chairman of the committee and cast six votes, one for himself and five proxies. Guy L. Wonders and J. Lebow Room were two other delegates.

Mr. Wonders was quick to see the advantages of The American Exhibitors' Association, and was one of the prime movers in the formation of the new body. Mr. Wonders was elected vice-president of the Association.

"I hardly think it is fair just at this time to give my views regarding the new organization," said Mr. Wonders when interviewed. "The position I hold is very good evidence of the confidence I have in the ability, perseverance and strength of the exhibitors' organization which sprang into existence last week. We are to have a meeting of the executive committee in a very few days, after which I will feel more at liberty to talk and to express my feelings regarding the National League and its officers."

"I can say with deep, sincere feeling that the editorial of William A. Johnston, in the Motion Picture News of August 19, is thesaving grace of the convention. It tells just how I feel about it, and I could not express my views so thoroughly and comprehensively as Mr. Johnston has done.

"I went to Chicago with a definite purpose in view, and that was to see a more democratic and equal representation on the floor of the convention. I believe that the country should be divided into zones, and each zone should have an equal representation on the floor of the convention, but each of these zones would represent an equal number of exhibitors. Thus the vote of each zone on the floor of the convention would be much nearer a referendum than the plan of each branch league having nearly the same representation, irrespective of its numerical strength."

"The American Exhibitors' Association will be the coming organization of the motion picture exhibitors of America," said Mr. J. Louis Rome, one of the Baltimore delegates to the Chicago convention.

"It has certainly started with a vigorous punch, and will grow rapidly. The National League is too much of a one man's organization. There is no question that the National League at Chicago was dominated entirely by Mr. Ochs. It is my opinion that a condition of this character is too unhealthy. Unless there is general co-operation an organization cannot exist."

Goldberg, first a strong Ochs adherent, then interested for a while in the new association, now declares himself back in the League fold.

Nagle Back in Frisco Smiling

Harry D. Naugle, general western representative of Greater Vitagraph, this week returned from a tour of almost three months in which he visited all exchanges of the organization in this territory which lie to the west of the Mississippi River. Mr. Naugle brings report of better than usual summer business in most sections, and especially in all territory east of the mountains.
Bon Voyage for Bluebird's "Letter of Cheer"

Vellum Deckel-edged Album on Bed of Gray Moire for Signatures and Astor for Distinguished Signers

THE "letter of cheer" signed by Mae Marsh and 1,000,000 others, mostly notables, is to be given a real send-off on its way to Major General Pershing, in command, "somewhere in France."

Bluebird arranged a farewell luncheon for the distinguished signers, or at least for such of them as could qualify in respect to good digestion. Then the letter itself is to be encased in a Tiffany album. According to the advance notices this album surpasses in elegance anything of a like nature ever seen.

"The workmanship and design is of exceptional richness. Gold is used throughout in the mountings, inscription plates and monograms. The pages containing the signatures are of vellum, while the deckeled edges are illuminated in delicate pastels by Tiffany artists."

"The pages are bound in soft Morocco leather. The album rests on a bed of gray Moire, tufted velvet, inside of a case of fine grained Hollywood of the Louis Quatorze period."

"It is a work of art worthy of the preservation of this document. The only one in the history of the United States to contain the signatures of so many representatives of the people."

It is to be gathered from this that Mae Marsh and the 1,000,000 senators, governors, representatives, legislators and other eminent persons ought to be "exceeding proud" of the fine quarters in which their penmanship will repose.

This is nothing, though, to the luncheon, Thursday, August 2, at the Astor. It was to be so bounteous in viands that there would be enough even for newspaper men, New York trade-paper men, and last, members of the motion picture trade press. It was to be a wonderful occasion deserving the title of "Bluebird's war luncheon."

Among the guests were to be Operator Whitney, in the White House, Governor Edge of New Jersey, U. S. Senator John Sharp Williams, and a great many more too numerous to mention, but probably enrolled in the Congressional directory and the "Blue Book" — if not the "Black Book" also.

If Bluebird can arrange it the album will cross the ocean on a U. S. warship with a motion picture camera in the fighting-top.

The Truth About the Thanhouser Studio Report

Carrying out the conclusion of Motion Picture News, that it is best to read a trade paper which contains the truthful news of the film trade, a letter is published herewith from Edwin Thanhouser to the Sunday Telegraph. Motion Picture News had this news correctly stated, in every detail — as usual. The letter follows:

"The story that the Thanhouser Studio has been taken over by the Clara Kimball Young Company is a total mistake, and I would like you to give that fact publicity. The separate news concerning the fact that Miss Young's company is producing its first picture at our studio, picking our plant for this after an inspection of every large studio in and around New York City."

"I appreciate that no harm was meant by the erroneous item, which clearly came from the pen of someone uninformed as to the size and facilities of our place at New Rochelle. Not only is it housing Miss Young's company but our own under Director Warde, and we are considering letting some independent producers of large features partake of our facilities, too."

"The Thanhouser Studios rank among the largest glass studios of the country, and they have not been taken over by any single producing company, but indeed are negotiating now to house several."

Program and Special Feature Both Needed

Regular Schedule Is Bulwark of Business, While Elaborate Production, Like Headliner in Vaudeville, Brings on Real Profits

"NOTWITHSTANDING that I am identified directly with companies making special star productions," remarked Nat L. Brown, general manager of Paralta Plays, Inc., "I am a very firm believer in principle in the program system of booking."

"So many views have been expressed on this subject that many exhibitors have come to the conclusion that producers and distributors have no defined and well-established opinions on this subject and that they only speak of it from the standpoint of temporary expedience from time to time. One day the program system is advocated and the next day the open-looking system is favored."

"One day the head of a distributing concern holds that the program is the only rational method and a month later he takes the very opposite position. The exhibitor who looks for guidance to those in position where they gain a general view of the situation, becomes confused and wonders where the truth really lies. He sometimes wonders if anyone really knows."

"I am convinced that the program system of booking is a rational one, because, with the wide experience and observation I have shown the program is the only logical source of constant supply to which the exhibitor can turn for service that is within reasonable rental charges. Thousands of moving picture theatres must look to the program. It only can supply them with attractions at a price that will enable them to make money."

"We frequently hear it said that the success of the moving picture industry depends upon the exhibitor's success. The man who originally said this may not have appreciated the deep truth of that thought, but he uttered an axiom just the same. The exhibitor is the man who must be protected, fostered and aided in every way possible, for if he is not successful, the industry must go down. The success of any industry depends upon the last point of contact with the public, which is the retailer. In this business the exhibitor is the retailer."

"The program plan is the bulwark of the business because it is impossible to secure a sufficient number of special feature productions at a living price, before they become stale, to maintain a daily change of bill in the large moving picture theatres, or anything near a daily change. The program plan of distribution, no matter what its merit may be, will always leave room for big special features elaborately produced with casts of great prominence, just as there is room for big headline acts on a vaudeville bill."

"There is nothing in the amusement world between which there is a closer analogy than between vaudeville interests and the pictures. The vaudeville manager knows his bill through his booking agent, but he looks for his big draft to the really great start feature headlines, and for one of these he may have to pay as much as he does for all the other acts on his bill."

"This is the situation of the booking picture manager. He must be able to secure strong attractions from a program source at 'live and let live' rentals. This system of booking leaves plenty of room for the special feature, which has its place on the bill for a moving picture house today same as the star headliner in vaudeville.

"Between Men" Is Offered by Berg to Independents

Harry Berg, of the Overland Film Company, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, has obtained control of "Between Men," featuring Irving Cummings, remembered as the star of "The Diamond from the Sky" serial.

The picture, which was favorably noticed by reviewers on its appearance, is now being offered to the trade on an independent basis, for this country and abroad. Although it contains foreign rights, and we are considering letting some independent producers of large features partake of our facilities, too.

Maitland Davies Dead

Maitland Davies, dramatic and photoplay critic of the Los Angeles Morning Tribune and Evening Express, died July 12th after a short illness. Davies had been affiliated with Los Angeles papers for the last eighteen months prior to his death, and during that time won the friendship of many prominent people of filmdom. His criticism was always thoughtful, but not overly helpful, as is illustrated by David W. Griffith inducing Davies to go to New York and see the premiere of "Intolerance," that he could give Griffith his personal views. For a number of years prior to his death, Davies suffered with poor health. On Sunday evening, July 22nd, members of the producing colony took part in a Davies benefit given at the Mason Opera House, which was arranged for by Gay Price, photoplay and dramatic editor of the Los Angeles Evening Herald.
Indiana Exhibitors Rally Quickly to War Co-operation

Funds and hearty co-operation are demanded of Indiana exhibitors in the following official communication from Frank A. Rembusch, president of the Indiana Exhibitors' Association and a director in the new American Exhibitors' Association.

INDIANA EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION.
SHELBYVILLE, Ind., July 24, 1917.

Dear Brother Exhibitors:
The President of the United States has honored and recognized the Motion Picture Industry as a great force in assisting the United States Government in the present world crisis.
The exhibitors of the United States have been asked to work especially with the Committee on Public Information, Wm. A. Brady, chairman, and there will be two methods of distributing information.
1st. Our screens. (Showing slides and short films.)
2nd. Four-minute talks in our theatres.

On Monday, July 23, your State President was called to Indianapolis by Dr. Barnard and other members of the Food Conservation Committee. Our first work is to assist this committee in enrolling the housewives of America. (Enrollment date is August 15.) Slides will be sent you this week. You are to begin showing them at once continuously until August 15, and then return the slides to Box 170, Shelbyville, Ind.
The Conservation Committee has no funds to carry on this work, and our organization is asked to finance same. These slides will cost about $250 for Indiana. Therefore, each and every exhibitor in the State is earnestly requested to immediately forward his dues of $12 a year, so that we will have available funds. (These dues may be paid $1 per month.)

In view of the fact that the United States Government has been lenient with the Motion Picture Exhibitors on the recent proposed tax of 10 per cent. of gross receipts, which will probably not be passed because Congress appreciates the fact that this tax would undoubtedly ruin and bankrupt many theatres and put many theatres out of business, the same as it has in Canada, every exhibitor in Indiana and in the Nation, should show his appreciation and patriotism on this occasion by doing his bit in financing the work now requested by the Government.

The President will advance money to pay for these slides and trusts that a generous response will be forthcoming from all Indiana exhibitors, in the way of dues and donations.

A prominent member of the Food Conservation Board stated, "The Motion Picture Industry has been under severe criticism in the past—perhaps oftentimes rightly. The Industry is asking for special consideration by the people in the way of liberal legislation. I believe everything asked for in reason will be granted if the Motion Picture Industry shows itself worthy."

Therefore, please, 1st, Run the slides; 2nd, On August 15 return the slides; 3rd (of greatest importance), "Do your Bit Big" and help finance this splendid work.

Fraternally yours,

FRANK A. REMBUSCH, President.

Director Young Promises Surprise in "Rose o' Paradise"

Director James Young, who directed Bessie Barriscale's production of "Rose o' Paradise," at her studio in Hollywood, Cal., returned to New York last week. He spoke enthusiastically of his latest production on his arrival. Nothing had been left undone, he said, to reflect on the screen the very atmosphere of Mrs. Grace Miller White's love story.

Mr. Young spoke flatteringly of Howard Hickman's impersonation of the character role of "Lafe Grandoken," the old cobbler, and remarked that he believed that the critics and the public would pronounce this one of the greatest character impersonations ever seen on the screen.

Mr. Young also said he believed "Rose o' Paradise" would prove a surprise in the time it will run and be in demand.

"Do Children Count?" Essanay, Takes in Indiana

George Kleine's K-E-S-E. branch at Indianapolis has received from W. H. Lipps of Alexandria, Ind., the following:

"Well, I certainly did try out the "Do Children Count" film, and if the rest are as good as this one, I know it will make a clean-up wherever shown. Do not forget to put me on the list for them. If you miss me, God pity you when I meet you again. Wishing you all kinds of good luck with these pictures—keep up this kind of features and you will surely succeed."

Acts of Censor Do Not Bind Next Board

Pennsylvania Deputy Attorney General Finds Frank R. Shattuck, New Appointee, May Review Carlike Ruling of His Predecessor

ABOUT the first official move made by the new chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors, Frank R. Shattuck, of Philadelphia, is to ascertain whether he is legally bound by the acts of his predecessor, J. Louis Breitinger, who was removed by Governor Brumbaugh last January, and whose dictatorial methods won him the disfavor of a large percentage of the motion picture interests.

This move on the part of Mr. Shattuck, who is a new member of the board as well as the new chairman, took the form of a request for an official opinion from the Attorney General's Department of Pennsylvania as to whether the Board of Censors, after giving approval to a film, has the right to withdraw such approval. In answer to the query Deputy Attorney General Joseph L. Kun handed down a formal opinion in Harrisburg on July 25, declaring the board can withdraw approval of a film which at a previous date the board has approved.

Chairman Shattuck, already, in a published interview, had indicated that he has his own ideas in the matter of censorship. He has intimated that he intends to inject into his work. Motion picture men of the state who are trying to get a line on the general attitude that Chairman Shattuck will assume take at least a measure of satisfaction from the fact that, by reason of the new chairman's inquiry to the Attorney General's department in the present instance, it is evident, Mr. Shattuck doesn't believe that everything that was done by the board under the Breitinger regime was entirely proper.

Deputy Attorney General Kun's opinion based on the Shattuck inquiry gives the board broad powers both in the matter of withdrawing approvals or disapprovals of films. The only exception to a withdrawal of an approval, he points out, would be when, after an approval had been given, "rights have been acquired or have intervened which a recall would disturb."

The Kun decision adds that while the censorship act does not give specific powers of recall, censorship includes "an exercise of the police power of the state designed to safeguard the morals of the public." Therefore, in the opinion of the department as cited by Mr. Kun, the board has full powers to recall an approval.

Billy West on the Coast

The All Star Feature Distributors' Exchange has secured the Billy West Comedies, and will have two reels per week for distribution.
Freuler Wants Exhibitors To Charge Fifteen Cents

Mutual Head Declares That Public Is Getting Too Much for a Dime—Discontinue "High Price Nights," He Urges

BY JOHN R. FREULER

(President Mutual Film Corporation)

T HE time is here for general price-raising movement among the exhibitors conducting theatres with a ten-cent admission. A great many, probably most, of these theatres are giving a great deal more than ten cents worth of amusement. Their costs of operation have considerably increased and the standards of film production have vastly improved since the day when the ten-cent price became general. The public ought to pay more and it is willing to pay more.

There was a time in the early history of the motion picture when the public was glad to see a one-reel show for a five-cent admission. Now for only twice the money the public can see a hundred times as much amusement on the screen, under better conditions, in a better house, with better projection, and the fifteen-cent price that the exhibitor should be getting now is more available than the nickel was then.

When I consider the big investment that is being made at the studios supplying the Mutual Film Corporation with its star productions, and the studios of some of our worthy competitors, and when I consider the big, capable institutions, the strong box office power of the best of the present-day stars, I am convinced that the ten-cent theatre is rapidly passing into the past along with its busy predecessor, the "five-cent show."

The exhibitor will find little difficulty in increasing his price to fifteen cents if he will only make an effort to make his show look like the money's worth. That is largely up to the exhibitor. The same pictures that run on Broadway in New York for prices around fifty cents a seat are being shown elsewhere at prices from ten cents on up. The pictures are the same, but the presentation makes the difference. A new coat of paint, comfortable seats, music, fresher cut flowers and a little politeness along with the advertising will easily make the difference between a fifteen-cent house and a ten-cent house.

It will also prove a much better policy to put in a straight fifteen-cent admission price than to follow the big, capable institutions, the strong box office power of the best of the present-day stars, I am convinced that the ten-cent theatre is rapidly passing into the past along with its busy predecessor, the "five-cent show."

THE LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

"I have already dispatched my copy of Motion Picture News to the soldiers and sailors 'at the front,' as per your request printed on the cover of the current number.

"It is just such little things as this which make the Motion Picture News a most valuable publication, and I feel that I must write you in appreciation of your efforts in urging the members of the film industry in doing their bit to give the best reading possible to the boys in France.

"May the journal of 'quality circulation' continue to be one of 'patriotic circulation."

"Very sincerely yours,

"E. K. Lincoln."
Rousing Welcome of Brady Stars Proves Program Best

Thrilled by Turn-Out at Chicago Exposition, William A. Brady from Incident—It Shows the People Know Regular Plays, Draws Pertinent Lesson Not Special Features

"If ever my mind had carried a shadow of doubt regarding the program system as the survival of the fittest, Chicago would have dispelled that fleeting shadow for all time," declared Director General William A. Brady, of World Pictures, following his return from the convention and exposition. Resuming, Mr. Brady said:

"This story I am about to tell is not a case of brag, but a recital of hard, cold facts. It is not a boost of World Pictures for themselves but as they stand for a principle—and here are the details:

"Until the day set aside for us, the Coliseum had been full but not uncomfortably so. In the daytime the big edifice had been sparsely occupied and at night only fairly full. On World Pictures day the crowds began to pour in as soon as the doors were opened, and by three in the afternoon the assembled multitude were setting up a clamor for our stars.

"My daughter Alice and Miss Elvidge wandered into the building informally, thinking they could slip through the throng without being recognized, and 'take in the sights.' Of course, they were discovered before long, and there was no denying the demands for their appearance upon the platform in spite of the plan which had been laid out for none of our stars to be introduced until night.

BRADY STARS SHOULDER THEIR WAY IN

"When Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge and Alice Brady arrived at half past eight that evening they had to be smuggled in through a side entrance because the regular avenues were choked with men, women and children who could no longer get in and were having a hard time forcing their way back across the sidewalk into the street.

"Inside, the mass of people was so dense that nobody could move without help from the police and firemen, of whom there were forty extra members on duty. Quite a number of women fainted during the evening and were removed with the greatest of difficulty.

"Meanwhile the crowds were coming so fast that the firemen ordered the sale to stop, and closed the doors, but the accumulation went right on until the broad, spacious thoroughfare was packed solid and the trolley cars were stopped.

"The enthusiasm with which the World's stars were received was such that it will never be forgotten by any of those present, and after the reception if you wanted to locate Miss Elvidge, Mr. Blackwell or Miss Brady, all you had to do was to look at the spot or spots where the people were jammed in so they could not move.

PUBLICITY IN QUANTITY AND NO URGEING

"Now comes the most remarkable part of the narrative: We did not decide to send any of our stars to Chicago until the day before the exposition opened. It is a serious business matter to pause in the making of so much as a single picture, and as our stars work all the time in our plan of efficiency, the visit of three World artists meant the stopping of three pictures.

"Our publicity manager left New York on Sunday, one day after the exposition opened. He had not sent a line or a photograph to the newspapers in advance, and did not know who were to be the World attractions until he arrived in the spot.

"He did not have to urge his material upon the newspapers. He had precious little time for that. Yet we had more newspaper publicity in three days than fell to any other producing company from start to finish.

"Thus, we broke every record of attendance and attention, by a wide margin, and the only way I can account for it is upon the theory that the stars on a thoroughly well-established program, appearing before the same audiences every week or often, in a great number of theatres, establish a popularity enormously outdistancing that of the overpaid stars of special features coming around once in a while—sometimes with success and sometimes without.

"We made no effort at all to get the result that came to us, and it was doubly gratifying on that account. It not only sealed the wonderful popularity of World pictures and stars but proved a theory to which we have adhered faithfully in the face of criticism that has often amounted to reproach."

Goldwyn Takes Rex Beach and His Pictures Into Fold

Comes Into Immediate Possession of "The Auction Block," Which Samuel Goldfish Says Will Be One of the Greatest Money-Earners the Film Industry Has Known—To Produce Others

ALL future Rex Beach pictures, made from the stories and novels of this world-famed author, are to be distributed and controlled by the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation under a contract signed by Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, Benjamin B. Hampton, president of the Rex Beach Film Corporation and Mr. Beach himself.

This contract places the Goldwyn distribution in immediate possession of Mr. Beach's recently completed production of "The Auction Block," from one of his novels. "The Auction Block" was six months in the making and the prediction is made by Goldwyn that it will be one of the greatest money-earners the film industry has ever known.

PLAY DIRECTED BY LARRY TRIMBLE

"The Auction Block" was made under Larry Trimble, who is now directing Jane Cowl in "The Spreading Dawn." Mr. Beach has maintained a constant watch over the newest production and given Mr. Trimble assistance.

By obtaining a series of Rex Beach productions Goldwyn comes into possession of stories that it says will rank as the biggest box-office attractions in the film world. It is to offer these pictures to exhibitors throughout the world in addition to twenty-six pictures previously announced as Goldwyn's scheduled annual output.

AFTER BEACH FOR MANY MONTHS

Since the formation of Goldwyn last December Samuel Goldfish and his associates have been in negotiations with Messrs. Beach and Hampton. Both of them were quick to realize the advantages that would accrue in having at their disposal the technical and artistic facilities.

"I think," said Mr. Beach after signing the contract, "that the entry of Samuel Goldfish, Edgar Selwyn and their associates into the field of motion picture production brings in just the type of men needed to make pictures one of the great arts. They have established a rapidly expanding organization that reaches around the world and I believe that their genius and abilities, which will henceforth be utilized in the making of my productions, will be responsible for a marked advance in this industry."

Crew of Land Ship "Recruit" Sees "The Warrior"

The officers and crew of the land-ship "Recruit" in Union Square were guests Thursday afternoon, July 26, of James K. Hackett and Harry Raver at the Criterion theatre, for an exhibition of the motion picture, "The Warrior." The crew marched from Union Square to the theatre headed by the Bugle and Drum Corps.
Mabel Normand Reaches Truce with Goldwyn

Cheerful Little Merrymaker Puts On Her Working Clothes and Will Soon Have a New Production on the Way—Everybody Happy

MABEL NORMAND, comedienne, is back with Goldwyn, and it is announced that everything is now perfectly harmonious. Work is to begin at once on the first Mabel Normand production. Mabel Normand signed a contract with Goldwyn last fall, and came East in May to begin work. Temporary differences, now fortunately adjusted by Gabriel L. Hess, general counsel for Goldwyn and Arthur Butler Graham, counsel for Miss Normand, delayed the beginning of her work.

During the intervening time Goldwyn did not hold up its plans for its star. A great amount of literary material had been purchased from famous authors, and the scenario department of Goldwyn buckled down to the preparation of her first two pictures.

A Goldwyn statement says: "Everything that this big new organization can do for a star of Miss Normand's magnitude and importance will be done at once, and she shares henceforth in the big publicity and promotional campaigns which Goldwyn has devised for its artists.

"The prediction can be made with safety that Miss Normand in her first Goldwyn Picture will make a definite step forward as a screen comedienne, for at her disposal from the outset will be the works of some of the nation's best known authors and scenario writers.

"Mabel Normand is the greatest comedy star ever developed in the screen world. She is the pioneer in her field, and her work has been both distinctive and distinguished."

Five State Leagues to Convene in Virginia

Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1 Set for Meeting of Delegates from Virginia, North and South Carolina, Maryland and District of Columbia

THE dates upon which the Virginia state convention will be held have been changed from August 27,28 and 29 to August 30, 31 and September 1.

Motion Picture News has just received word that five states will be represented at the convention: Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

It is considered by exhibitors in those states that the forthcoming convention will be the most important ever held in that section.

Politics will in all probability play a large part at the Virginia meeting, as the principal state officers are known to be interested in the newly formed organization, The American Exhibitors Association which was founded in Chicago during the National convention, and which naturally will carry some weight.

Some of the prominent members of the Virginia state organization who were represented at Chicago and who will participate in the proceedings at Virginia are the following:

E. T. Crall, Newport News; Harry Bernstein, Richmond; Otto Wells, Norfolk; R. D. Craver, Lynchburg; J. W. Hamilton, Martinsville; J. F. Lacy, South Boston; J. Henkel, Winchester; W. F. Crall, Petersburg; R. A. Steele, Alexandria, and C. E. Geoghegan, Chase City.

The officers of the Virginia league are: Jake Wells, president; Otto Wells, National vice-president; E. D. Hines, vice-president; C. E. Geoghegan, treasurer, and Chesley Toney, secretary.

The convention will be held at Ocean View, a popular seashore resort. It was the original intention to make the meeting more or less one merely for purposes of renewing and strengthening friendships. For political reasons, the convention is expected to develop into a long, hot business session.

Milwaukee to Confine Paper to One-Sheets

Exhibitors in Wisconsin Urge Billboard and Lobby Advertising Is So Much Alike People Walk Away Thinking They Have Seen Show

THE passing of all paper but one-sheets, and the confinement of all advertising outside newspapers to ones, slides and photographs, is a proposal before the Milwaukee Photoplay Exhibitors' Association.

While in the main an economy measure it is urged the new plan will aid in the conservation of paper, which the Government has urged. Apart from this it would save the exhibitor $300 to $500 a year in paper costs, so says Jack Grauman, president of the association. Other savings would be amounts paid for weight.

If the new plan should be followed throughout the entire country, it is estimated the saving would run into millions.

Milwaukee exhibitors say that they have come to the conclusion that paper displays in the front of their houses hurt rather than help the business. Much of the paper is so much alike, they say, that many times a person comes to the lobby, sees a display that resembles something he has been previously, and walks away under the impression that he has seen the picture when as a matter of fact it may be a new release.

Then, too, there is the constant trouble over delayed paper, lack of date lines, employes forced out in the cold and wind to hang paper nightly, improperly fastened paper pulling away and a thousand and one other bothers, the elimination of which would be welcomed by many exhibitors.

Hart, Sullivan and Ince in Many Conferences

The past week was a busy one for Thomas H. Ince and William S. Hart, who accompanied Ince into the Artcraft fold.

The name of the first Ince-Hart-Artcraft picture is not yet announced. It is said to be a story of an entirely different type from anything in which Hart has recently appeared. C. Gardner Sullivan, who has provided the gun-fighting star with so many of his best known vehicles, is the author of the piece.

Studio conferences between producer, star and author have been many. Production work is expected to begin soon.

Select Players for Next Barriscale Film

The casting director for Paralta Plays, David M. Hartford, has engaged the principal actors who are to support Bessie Barriscale in her next Paralta production, "Madame Who."

Ed Coxen, who played the strong character of John Cafferty, the derelict, in support of J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Man's Man," is to act the leading man's role, "John Armitage." Howard Hickman will play the heavy part of "Henry Morgan." His last part was "Lafe Grandoken," the old cobbler, in "Rose o' Paradise." Another engagement for this production is that of Joseph J. Dowling, who will play "Parson John." Kennedy.

Detroit Theatre Books 52 Best Paraniounts

The Broadway-Strand theatre, Detroit, was the first in Detroit to sign for Paramount-Artcraft productions. This house has taken 52 of the best productions, showing each a full week. They include the Pairbanks, Clark's, Griffith, DeMille, Hart and Frederick pictures.

Mack Sennett Studio: George Stout, business manager. (Other members of the company do not report until next week, and so no list could be compiled.)

No report could be secured from Lois Weber, Keystone or La Salle studios.

Gladys Hulette and Joyce Fair in "Miss Nobody"

Prominent in the cast to support Pathe's star, Gladys Hulette in "Miss Nobody," is Joyce Fair, herself a Broadway star. While all the Fair-Hulette-Astra successes "Miss Nobody" was produced under the direction of William Parke and it has been scheduled for release in the middle of August. The Hulette pictures, "The Cigarette Girl," "The Char-nabys" and "The Streets of Illusion," are regarded as "hot weather life savers."
Hot Row in Newark Over Sunday Film Shows

EFFECTS of the Newark (Ohio) Ministerial Association—or a part of it—to close the motion picture theatres on Sunday may be found a part of the Newark Ministerial Association—not all the pastors—and with them many good people who have not considered the matter in all its phases.

Upon the other side, are at least four out of five people in Newark. Possibly the percentage is higher. In this list are the most influential men of the city, including ministers, teachers, manufacturers, doctors, lawyers, bankers, business men and the great majority of the working people of the community. Shall the will of a small minority prevail, and if so what will be the consequence?

This brought a retort from the ministerial association, signed by its president, Rev. C. H. Stull, who wrote, "In order to correct an erroneous impression given out in defense of the violation of the Sabbath I wish to state that there is no division in the Newark Ministerial Association concerning the closing of the Sunday picture shows."

By way of proof to bolster this up the Rev. Mr. Stull appended a list of titles of fourteen sermons against Sunday "movies" that were delivered in Newark churches on Sunday, July 22. Some of these subjects betray the asperity of the worthy pastors, for instance:

"Fenbur's Fulminations," Rev. L. C. Sparks; "God or the Movie Magnates, Which?" Rev. Calvin G. Hazlett, and "Whom Shall We Follow, God, or George, John and Harry?" Rev. C. H. Stull.

One of the reasons urged by the exhibitors has special application to Newark. They state:

"Closing places of harmless recreation will drive the people—not into the churches—but to the parks, to the creek banks, to Buckeye Lake, to the parties of other forms of amusement. The public demands recreation and will have it in some form."

To this is added this pertinent sentence:

"It is acknowledged by those who know that the saloon's worst enemy is the motion picture theatre. They are, in this agitation to disturb our people at a time when all our energy and thought should be with the great national aim?"

As to the future, if blue laws win out against motion pictures, the exhibitors make this prediction: "If the movies are closed then as sure as the sun rises will the candy shops, the fruit stands, the soda fountains, the ice cream parlors, the popcorn stands, the cigar stores be closed. It is just as 'wrong' to buy a cigar, or a newspaper, or a dish of ice cream on Sunday as it is to purchase a ticket to a picture exhibition."

The exhibitors are showing just much determination on the one side as the pulpit on the other, and declaring their closing will be the forerunner of wholesale closing in other directions.

Texas Exhibitors Provide for Adjustment Bureau

The Texas Amusement Managers' Association will hold a convention in Dallas, Texas, Monday, December 10, for the purpose of putting into effect some of the plans made at the State convention of the association held in Houston last week.

The convention arranged to establish an adjustment bureau with offices in Dallas. The bureau will consist of five members, two from the association, two from the exchanges and one disinterested person for chairman. The association will be represented by E. H. Hulsey, of Dallas, president, and C. J. Musselman, of Paris. The other members have not been selected. The bureau will adjust differences between out-of-town exhibitors and the exchanges.

The Houston convention provided for a later committee, to be composed of one member from each Senatorial district in the State, to advise this committee to adjust labor disputes, and as far as possible prevent labor strikes.

Theatre Betterments and Changes at Detroit

Messrs. Forrest and Oppenheim, now operating the Mecca theatre, in Saginaw, Mich., have also taken over the Palace, and will use it for showing the Artcraft-Paramount productions.

S. A. Moran, of the Arcade theatre, Ann Arbor, Mich., is planning to spend about $8,000 in remodelling.

The Gladwin Park theatre, East Jefferson and Parkview, Detroit, is planning extensive alterations.

William F. Klatt, of Detroit, wishes it known that he still operates the Regent, Rosedale and Gratiot theatres.

Henry Stiles, has taken over the Garden at Cadillac, Mich.
Neighborhood Theatre Powerful Agent for Good

It Keeps the Family Together and Has Become a Practical Necessity—Part of the Every-Day Life of Many Millions of Our Very Best Home People

By Alfred Hamburger, Head of the Alfred Hamburger Theatre Enterprises of Chicago

The neighborhood or family theatre has reached a stage in its growth where it may be said to be an important factor in the lives of millions of people daily—that is, so far as their theatrical amusement is concerned. As a pioneer in the neighborhood theatre I have had the opportunity of watching its progress from a lowly improvised storeroom theatre to the present palaces dedicated to it. The neighborhood motion picture theatre, in which the splendid screen productions of the present day are now so satisfactorily present, is one of the most powerful agencies for good, despite the continuous hue and cry that so-called reformers are putting up.

The amusement or entertainment caters to the tastes of the entire family—father, mother and children. Thus it keeps the family together, and if it were possible to compile statistics it would be found that before the advent of the neighborhood picture house the head of the family had a hasty exit after supper to the nearest corner cigar store or saloon. Now it is a case of all to the first show at the corner theatre—father, mother and kiddies—and it has truly been the means of closely cementing the bonds of the entire family.

Censorship has been unjust to the neighborhood theatre. That is, the type of censorship existing in Chicago and any other place where they might have the "pink" permit for a certain class of shows. A picture should be either accepted or rejected. There should be no "pink permits." Neighborhood theatres are strictly family houses, and it is our desire and the desire, I know, of those running this class of house, wherever it may be, to have the entertainment seen by every member of the family.

The neighborhood theatre has to be made attractive, inviting and pleasant. Some of the finest houses are of the neighborhood type. The transition from the cheap and ordinary in this class of house was not slow—it took only the time necessary to improve the entertainment and theatres. As the theatres improved in class the public soon saw that it was a common thing to see many of the neighborhood houses with ten to a hundred automobiles parked in front.

One pet theory have I worked out to my entire satisfaction with the neighborhood house. That has been in the matter of light. While naturally the interior must be dim, I believe and know that the outside of the house should be ablaze. Don't spare candle-power with a neighborhood house. It marks the theatre as a bright spot in the locality. It attracts attention and creates comment.

In conclusion, you ask what of the future regarding the neighborhood house. I am optimistic about the photoplay proposition as a whole, and especially the neighborhood house. And the neighborhood theatre has become a practical necessity—a part of the every-day life of millions of people.

New Vita Publication

Vitagraph's new publication, "The Exhibitors' Plan Book," is to be sixteen pages, two colors and profusely illustrated. The cover says it is "devoted to money-making helps for exhibitors" Nat S. Strong is the author, and he is doing a great work as publicity chief.

The book takes the place of two—"The Vitagraph Exhibitor" and the "V-L-S-E Plan Book." The change is expected to please the exhibitors, for the new book is more compact.

Western Conditions as They Really Are

By ARTHUR KANE

"SPEND all the money you want to, but don't throw any away.

This is the picture buying slogan of one of the biggest exhibitors of the Pacific Coast, where I have spent the past ten months, ranging from Denver on the East to Seattle on the North and Los Angeles on the South. It is typical of the new attitude of theatre owners. Not price, but value, concerns them. What will this line of attractions do in my theatre, and what effect will it have on my house are the questions that determine the worth. Not only is this true of the big city show places, but the small town man in the great majority of cases is striving for the best.

This is a healthy sign. It means the business is to go forward. It stimulates production of the best. If I were asked to condense into one sentence the most pertinent feature of the entire market to-day, balancing your Lompcs and your Medfords and Provos in their proper relations, to your San Franciscos, Portlands and Salt Lakes, I would say the great outstanding fact is the universal demand for, and recognition of, house fillers. Motion pictures per se do not attract enough, and it is a question of what you show and how you show it.

"Why, you've got to let them walk in carpets up to their ankles, seat them as comfortably as in Morris chairs, have your Chins or Japanese maid serving tea in the rest rooms, with fountains and flowers, and birds singing all over the place," said a vaudeville impresario, who recently converted his theatre to pictures, and was somewhat astounded at the size of his order. "All this and much more, besides your magnificent pipe organ, your orchestra, pictures, muscicales, wonderful ventilation."

Nothing could better illustrate the speed with which photoplay showmanship has passed vaudeville presentation in service to the public. Architects, decorators, managers incorporate in every new important structure erected comforts and convenices to which pictures are making most of the way. In 1914 a street car on its way to the city, much as seen in pictures. In this respect American movies are well ahead of their European and British counterparts. In the United States, where movies are watched by millions of people daily, the demand for fine presentation is great, and the challenge to theatre owners is to meet it. Therefore, the "pink permit" for a certain class of shows should be abolished, and it is hoped that the National Board of Review will take this step in the near future.

All these things are true in modifying degrees, according to size of towns the counyrey over. I have seen magnificent photoplays seating 1,600 in towns of 8,000, 2,500 in cities of 40,000, 700 with 2,000 population. The service such thetres are able to give the public makes the demand for known house fillers insistent and imperative. Starting with New York City, where the weekly outgo of a big downtown house is upward of $10,000, with theatres in cities of 300,000 inhabitants exceeding as much as $6,000 weekly when playing big attractions, and other towns in proportion to their size, it is seen that the selection of pictures is a most serious matter. Guesswork has to be eliminated. Something to actually bring in more than $10,000, or $6,000 or $200, as the case may be, has become an absolute necessity. This has been receptive to the tremendous growth of the star system, wisely foreseen by leaders of the industry, and which I found in remarkable ascendency in Chicago as well as Seattle, Kansas City, as in Los Angeles—in fact, all over the country. Personality, in what far Americans are wildly interested; hero worship, which is inherent in man; and continuance, recurrence, cumu-lation, which the star furnishes and individual attractions do not, make him indispensable.

Building for the nonce has been curtailed by the soaring price of steel and other things. Nevertheless many magnificent edifices devoted to the photoplay are opening, or will open, in the fall, and the fact that others stand ready to meet still more wonderful spectatorships, but for the prohibitive cost of materials at the moment shows the healthy tone. This is most important.
Smythe and Quimby Make Seattle Sit Up
Manager Smythe, of the Strand theatre, Seattle, Wash., and F. C. Quimby, district manager of the Seattle Pathe Exchange, put their heads together and hatched out a scheme for putting over "The Battle of the Somme," and they did so—with telling results.

Quimby suggested to Smythe that he play these pictures under the auspices of the Canadian Club, as there are about ten thousand Canadians in Seattle, representing families almost all of whose fathers, husbands and sons have gone to the front.

They called on the president of the Canadian Club. Mr. Smythe agreed to give him a percentage of gross receipts for the widows and orphans, and the club agreed to help sell tickets and boost the show in every way.

Judge Claypool gave two hours of his time every noon to shipyards and manufacturing plants, delivering speeches to the workmen regarding the Official British War Pictures. The shipyard people in two instances furnished their bands to play during the noon hour.

Armed with a letter from the president of the Canadian Bank in Seattle to the president of the Canadian Bank in Vancouver, Mr. Quimby returned with so many war relics that he had to ship them by freight. These relics were put on display in the most prominent department store.

City's History in His Program
Wm. Sievers, manager of the New Grand Central theatre, at St. Louis, recently began issuing a house organ that contains, besides the program and breezy paragraphs about the current production and players, a history of the early theatrical ventures of St. Louis.

The history is in installments of about 500 words each week, and started with "100 Years Ago," giving very interesting information concerning early productions, the players interpreting the parts and the location of the houses in which the performances were given.

Mr. Sievers says that when he will have brought the history up to the time that motion pictures became known, he will give the history of that industry. A number of the New Grand Central patrons have told him that they are saving the programs because of the "history."

Praise for "Womanhood" from Thomas Dixon's Town
Vitagraph has a letter from Boyce Delinger, manager of the Grand theatre, at Shelby, N. C.—home town of Thomas Dixon—in which he says:

"Give us another like 'Womanhood,' the 'Glory of the Nation,' the biggest money-maker ever offered to the exhibitors. On July 4, 5, 6, 7, I showed this picture to half the population of Shelby.

HONORABLE MENTION

UNIVERSAL has issued a snappy, well-illustrated advertising and campaign book in connection with the independent production, "Come Through." It is printed in black and red and contains a number of strong advertisements which may be reproduced as line cuts and used in your local newspaper.

SOMETHING different in the way of a herald has been issued by Essanay on the "Do Children Count?" series, in which little Mary McAllister is starring. It is in the form of a six-page folder instead of the usual four-page herald. One page has been left blank for the theater's use. This allows sufficient room either for a detailed discussion of one night's program or a brief outline of the coming week's program.

The program issued monthly by the Tacoma theatre, Indianapolis, has a number of features which deserve comment. The pages, measuring five by seven inches, are a light buff color. Thumbing over them quickly, one is impressed by the uniformity and neatness of the type and its arrangement.

The advertisements are scattered through the pages, all of them being set in a modest, dignified type face. Each page is divided into six small boxes by the use of hair line rules. As the program is issued monthly, the offerings day by day run in the boxes. Advertisements and synopses fill the other boxes.

VOV. 1, No. 1, of the Franklin Weekly Mirror has reached the editor's desk from the Franklin theatre, Oakland, Cal. It is an attractive four-page program, printed in sepia. The pages measure 4½ by 8½ inches.

A NEW FILM

This Exhibitor Triples Prices Without Hurting Feelings
F. E. Osborne, proprietor of the Star theatre, Kitchener, Ontario, Canada, has devised a method of raising his admission price and increasing patronage at the same time.

Mr. Osborne first used his plan on July 26, when he started a run of Vitagraph's picture, "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation." The run was for three days and the admission price was fifty cents.

Instead of sticking to the straight fifty-cent admission price Mr. Osborne had tickets consisting of three coupons printed. The first coupon was good for admission to one performance of "Womanhood." The second coupon was good for admission to one performance on either July 30, 31, or August 1, following the run of "Womanhood," and the third coupon was good for one admission on August 2, 3 or 4.

Mr. Osborne sold this ticket consisting of three coupons for fifty cents. The regular price of admission to the Star is fifteen cents, so on the three admissions he raised his price five cents or raised it to fifty cents as against forty-five cents had the tickets been purchased separately.

As an argument for his plan Mr. Osborne called attention to the fact that he collected for three performances in advance, thus assuring himself of a good advance sale on future shows, that he assured himself of a good audience at future shows, and at the same time the percentage was all in his favor as the chances were that some of the people purchasing the coupon tickets would not be able to attend all the shows to which they were entitled.

Book and Novelty Exploit "Tank" Picture for Red Cross
The Omaha (Neb.) Hotel Men's Association has booked the Pathé Picture, "The Tanks of the Battle of Ancre," and will present it at the Brandeis theatre from July 15 to 21. The proceeds will go toward a Red Cross ambulance. Manager C. E. Holah, who booked the picture, getting $1,000 for the week's rental, also outlines an extensive advertising campaign. His plans include:

A parade through the city, led by an armored "tank" and a Red Cross nurse and a soldier of each of the allied nations in automobiles; the cars decorated with the flags and colors of the nation represented.

Separate nights for various organizations; society night, etc., with auction of the box seats for anything from $5 to $500.

A local prima donna to sing from the roof of the theatre every evening.

The newspapers are handling big stories on the showing of the picture and the Red Ross campaign has been on in full swing in Omaha.
A Letter from Japan

The mail has brought this interesting letter and the illustrations at the bottom of the page to our desk from an exhibitor in Tokyo, Japan.

Gentlemen: Will you kindly excuse my troubling you, but may I ask you a great favor?

This picture card and picture postcard is Denkikan motion picture theatre, and the house is a high class picture theatre in Japan.

From the seventh of this month has performed Thomas H. Ince's "Civilization," and during fifteen has a crowded house every day.

Sometimes has performed the Keystone Bennett's great smilingly meeting or Chaplin's great meeting.

Would you please this picture's and a programme of "Civilization" to place on the Morrox Picture News.

Yours respectfully,
Susumu Hasegawa,
No. 12 Chome,
Mukoyangiwa, Asakusa.

Don't Ride the Flag

Whenever a show, or an act or a film is weak, poor Old Glory is usually dragged in just before the curtain starts to go down. Of course, it puts a punch where a punch is badly needed, but isn't it rather poor patriotism to drag the flag down to the level of a bad production?

Our incoming mail is pretty heavily decorated with Stars and Stripes, and sometimes we wonder if red and blue ink are not following the celebrated cow over the moon.

We are willing to gamble that a large percentage of your patrons are offended when the flag that means something fine and big is used to patch up something that belongs in the boneyard.

Thatcher Wakes Up the Natives

Kansas City's Bluebird Branch, through George Bowles, arranged to send the Mary MacLaren feature, "The Mysterious Mrs. M." to Salina. A few days before the picture was to be exhibited, an attractive young lady registered as "Mrs. M." at the hotel. Manager Thatcher had taken the newspapers, the hotel man, and one or two Salina business men into his confidence—and everybody helped him wind his alarm clock that was to awaken the natives.

Before "Mrs. M." had been in town three hours, she had "bought" an automobile from a local dealer, and glorified its tonneau with signs reading "The Mysterious Mrs. M."

The next day "The Mysterious Mrs. M." was reputed to be a famous seeress. Prominent members of the community were notified that certain things were going to happen. The third day "Mrs. M." stopped her car in front of a jewelry store.

The proprietor knew why she was there, but the girl who was selling the jewels did not. As a consequence, the clerk set a corn-fed screech when "Mrs. M." deftly extracted a ring and fled. Manager Thatcher, properly disguised, was chauffeur to the female bandit's car, and he was waiting with his engine running to receive her.

The local papers closed the report of the "robbery" with the statement that the jeweler would not prosecute, for the reason that "Mrs. M." had sent him the cash value of the jewel she had "stolen." This brought events up to the day next preceding "Bluebird Day" at Salina's Strand Theatre.

The masked woman entered the theatre during a performance when the house was packed, and demanded a seat. She made such protest that Manager Thatcher appeared in person to assist the usher in seating the noisy patron.

Finally Manager Thatcher demanded: "What right have you to come into my theatre, masked, and create this disturbance? Who are you?" That being the woman's cue, she replied in loud voice: "I'm the mysterious Mrs. M."—and at that moment the operator flashed upon the screen: "The Mysterious Mrs. M." to-morrow. It's a Bluebird."

Snappy Billy West Folder

Phil J. Ryan, sales manager of the Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., has designed a folder to accompany the sales campaign of Billy West comedies. We have seen the Billy West comedies ourselves, and know that they are good; so that it stands to reason that Phil's folder, like the rest of his publicity matter, is quite up to his usual high standard.

Gail Kane in Stirring War Drama.
"Souls in Pawn"—Spy System Revealed (Mutual Five-Reel Projection.)

"Souls in Pawn" is a war drama with Gail Kane, presenting the part of Linda Doré, a beau- tiful young girl who engages herself as a spy in this story of romance and intrigue, and is betrayed by the one who treacherously killed her husband. The secrets of the spy system are revealed in all their colorful details. Scenes showing the method of caring for the French wounded are depicted on the screen and you are brought into the midst of activities as they are carried on in one of the most disastrous wars of history. Prince Kondemarck, chief of the German secret service has concealed himself in Peru and sets to work to learn the innermost workings of the great French war machinery. To assist him in his work, the German army has given some of the most beautiful women obtainable. Marie Doré, one of the soldiers in his army, is put in his work on the promise that he will reveal to her the identity of the prince. Marie Doré accepts the职位.

Over this period of time the Prince’s sister, a woman of business, is put in his work as a spy, and the entire plot is brought to a magnificent climax when Marie Doré is brought before the German army. The"Soul in Pawn" is a powerful story, the character work is splendid, the situation is varied and of the highest order. The story being completed in the lives of the people who are involved in it as well as the various adventures that they are called on to face in this war drama. The "Souls in Pawn" is a drama for the new generation, the one that is interested in the war and in the fates of its heroes. The story is like a dream of the past, but it is the future that is to come.

Violet Mersereau in "The Little Terror," a Story of Circus Life Versus Wealth
(Bluebird Five-Reel Production.)

"The Little Terror" is a product from the Bluebird studios. Violet Mersereau is in the featured role of a circus rider. In fact she has a dual role, that of Tina Violette, the circus rider, and her mother’s daughter. It is a picture everyone will enjoy from the finish of the opening scene to the well concluded scenes. Saundra (Claude Clugston) is the son of a millionaire. He is in love with Tina Violette, but his father’s consent to marry her. His father tells him that Tina Violette is the circus rider girl he will disinherit him. Love prevails, however, and Saundra finally wins his father’s consent. The picture is an enjoyable one and will be enjoyed by all.

Mignon Anderson Presents Youth in All Its Innocence in "A Wife on Trial" (Butterfly Five-Reel Production.)

"A Wife on Trial" is a story of a helpless, crippled and a little girl who dreams of happiness and of love. The little girl’s name is Rose, and the heroine of this story. The girl is self-sacrificing in love and of her kindred. The life of a cripple is made endurable. The inno- cence of the little girl is evident through the five-reel film expected to present the events of their lives in a convincing manner. It is a heart-warming story and the acting is excellent. The "A Wife on Trial" is a picture that will be enjoyed by all who see it.

A Sensational, Thrilling Climax Closes Pathé "The Railroad Raiders" Series (Mutual Serial—Two Reels.)

The fifteenth and last chapter of the "Railroad Raiders" series will be shown on the screen this week. Helen Holmes, by very clever maneuvering, captures the "gang" food-bargaining. Miss Stevens, in her character, with stirring action, is that of experienced in every, so cleverly to do, that she has done it again. The victory which she has had. Throughout the preceding chapters, Miss Stevens, by her resourceful and clever device of working the property into the hands of various others, and working as a famous star, has been serving a term in the penitentiary through false conviction, due to the treacherous and villainous plot, the "gang," is released after the confession of "Back" Master, wounded in the fight between railway detectives and the gang, in which fight, the print shop in which counterfeit has been printed, is blown up by dynamite, and the bandits, after one of the most famous novel, "The Railroad Raiders," at the Theatre on——of week, each of the preceding chapters have been more sensational and thrilling, the final chapter is even more so.

The Thrill of Thrills Registered by Pearl White in Latest Chapter "Fatal Ring" (Pathé Serial—Two Reels.)

The thrill of all thrills is given in the latest chapter of this sensation of a novel, "Fatal Ring," which is the first chapter in "Danger Underground." It is, without a doubt, the most thrilling chapter in the series. Pearl White, as is always the case, upon actually risk her life in making the thrill of this chapter possible. The first chapter having been the initial scenes. The chapter starts with a "bang" and a "punch." Pearl White, as always, makes her scenes action—"every foot of reelage. This last chapter is filled with thrills and chills to the last reel. Pearl White has fallen into an underground stream, its waters rushing on to the river blocks away. The stream is near the docks. Pearl White has been captured by the frontier from New York State, and Pearl White's own trail takes her to the docks, where Pearl White's presence is seen. But this is all. Then we want to take place, and we are led deeper into the mystery of the "Violent Diamonds.""
ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Westerns Head Universal’s Current Release

“Follow the Girl” and “The Soul Herder” both have flavor of Frontier—“The Untamed” is Southern Moonshine Feature—Comedies and Several Specialties

VARIETY is the distinguishing feature of the Universal releases for the week of August 6. Monday will be Butterfly day signalized by the release of “Follow the Girl,” a strong western play, featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Roy Stewart. In addition, several comedies, a western thriller with Harry Carey in the star role, three big news reels and the latest installment of “The Gray Ghost,” mystery serial, will be released.

“The Soul Herder,” a Bison drama of the old frontier, is the offering for Tuesday, August 7. Harry Carey will have the leading role. The story was written by George Hively and produced by Jack Ford. J. G. Blystone and Vin Moore are jointly responsible for the creation of the two-reel L-Ko Comedy, “The Little Fat Rascal,” which holds the releases for Wednesday, August 8. Merta Sterling, Phil Dunham, Al Gerald, Lucille Hutton and Charles Insole take part. No. 84 of the Animated Weekly will be issued on the same date, containing all the late news incidents.

Mary Fuller will be the star of the dramatic feature for Thursday, August 9. “The Untamed” was written by Capt. Leslie Peacock and directed by Lucius Hendersen. It tells of the romance that comes into the life of a daughter of a Southern moonshiner who finds herself thrown into contact with a young revenue officer. “O-My the Tent Mover,” a Joker comedy, featuring William Franey, is scheduled for release with “The Untamed.” It is a burlesque of “Omar the Tentmaker,” “The Love Slacker,” a Nestor comedy, featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, will be shown on the same date. It was written by F. A. Palmer and produced by Roy Clements. It depicts the misadventures of a would-be woman-hater. E. M. McCall wrote the story, which has been produced by W. W. Beaudine. William Franey is supported by Lillian Peacock, Za Su Pitts and Milburn Moranti. “Like Babies in the Wood,” a Victor two-reel comedy, featuring Violet MacMillan and Fred Woodward, will be released on Friday, August 10. This is a drama story, in which the imaginative adventures of two children are depicted. On the same day the thirty-first issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will make its appearance, filled with news and special features.

Besides a Joker comedy, featuring Gale Henry, and entitled “The Vamp of the Camp,” there will be a Powers humorous travelogue, entitled “Seeing Ceylon with Hy. Mayer,” released Saturday, August 11, together with the thirteenth number of Universal Current Events.

The seventh episode of “The Gray Ghost,” the mystery serial, featuring Priscilla Dean, Eddie Polo and Harry Carter, released during the week, will be entitled “Caught in the Web.”

“Indiana” Called a Song Hit in Photoplay

The latest “Song Hit in Photoplay” number to be featured by Universal in cooperation with Waterston, Berlin & Snyder is “Indiana,” which will be presented by Claire Rochester, well known to vaudeville audiences.

It has a swinging military air, easy to march to, and the words of the lyric, while exploiting the special charms of the good old Hoosier state, can be twisted to fit almost any regiment.

Two Short Selig Plays Released by General Film

“The Smoldering Spark” is the title of the Selig two-reel drama released in General Film Service, Monday, July 30. Colin Campbell directed the drama from a story by Ernest Campbell Hall. The play features Thomas Santschi and Bessie Eyton.

On Saturday, August 4, the Selig Company announced the release of “The Love of Magde O’Mara” in General Film service. This drama in one-reel was written by Lanier Bartlett, directed by Colin Campbell. Bessie Eyton stars.

Universal to Release Bison Western Every Tuesday

A Bison feature will be released every other Tuesday, alternating with a Gold Seal drama, on Universal schedule. “The Soul Herder,” featuring Harry Carey will be first released under the new arrangement on August 7. Written by George Hively and produced by Jack Ford this is a tale of the mixed destinies of a desert ne’er-do-well, with a penchant for strong waters and hip artillery, and the orphaned family of a sagebrush parson. Fritz Ridgeway, Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Jans are support.

Athletes in Slapstick for “Big V” Comedies

On August 6, Vitagraph will release the first of its new series of rollicking Big V comedies. These comedies, which are of the slap-stick variety, but said to be devoid of the pie-hurling element, are produced under the direction of Lawrence Semon, who plays the leading male role and also collaborates with Graham Baker in writing the scripts.

In the cast supporting Mr. Semon are intrepid performers, Joe Simberg, Earl Montgomery, Joe Basil and Ed. Dunn, all of whom are trained acrobats.
"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" Is Filmed

The last foot of film rolled through the camera a few days ago in the making of the new Mary Pickford-Artcraft release, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Taking into account the star herself, the story, its adaptation and its direction, Artcraft says it sees no reason to doubt the production will take rank as Mary Pickford's greatest artistic success, and will follow the Pickford precedent of new box-office records.

In the supporting cast of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" are such well known players as Eugene O'Brien, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charles Ogle, Marjorie Daw, Mayme Kelso, Jane Wolff, Josephine Crowell, Jack MacDonald, Violet Wilkey, Frank Turner, Kate Toncray and Emma Gerdes.

Arctcraft Issues Brochure

Simultaneous with the issue of an elaborate booklet by Paramount, stating the reasons for and behind the Paramount open booking method, Artcraft has issued a brochure setting forth the purpose and incorporating a brief history of the Artcraft project.

The two pamphlets are much the same in appearance. Both are printed on a heavy grade of "super" paper, contain a variety of cuts from photographs of Artcraft and Paramount officials, studios and stars.

Motion Picture News understands that any exhibitor can secure a copy of the Artcraft pamphlet by writing directly to the Artcraft head office, New York.

Specializing on Music

Edward Horton, formerly pipe-organist at the Strand, in New York, and more recently at the Isis, in Denver, has been engaged by Manager Fred Miller of Miller's theatre, Los Angeles. The musical program at this house is being made a big feature of the entertainment. This theatre is now installing a new pipe organ from the factories of the California Organ Company.

Mystery Subjects Predominate on Bluebird's Program

In its current releases Bluebird has maintained its standard for well-sustained mystery with avoidance of crime and infractions of the moral code.

The Franklyn Farmum-Brownie Vernon subject, for September 3, carries an element of uncertainty in the mysterious meanderings of its plot. "The Face of Prostitute Teller," lately finished by Director Rupert Julian is another mystery subject. In this Mr. Julian will co-star with Ruth Clifford, and have the support of an efficient company in locating a pearl necklace of great value that had mysteriously disappeared, with no indication of a crime having been committed.

In "Bondage," a feature directed by Ida May Park, Dorothy Phillips starring, will demonstrate the keenness of a newspaper woman in unraveling a baffling legal complication that gets pretty close to the mystery classification in maintaining suspense.

Miss Phillips has been directed by Joseph De Grasse in another Bluebird ready to be scheduled — "Triumph" — a screen-drama created from one of Samuel Hopkins Adam's magazine stories. As in all of her other Bluebirds, Miss Phillips will be supported by William Stowell and Lon Chaney, the leading man and heavy, who have kept pace with the star in turning out a feature Bluebird once a month since last December.

Mae Murray's engagement as a Bluebird star has created interest among exhibitors of that program. It is increased through the announcement that Robert Leonard will return to Bluebird as Miss Murray's director. In the earlier stages of the program Mr. Leonard produced several features with Ella Hall, the star, that were examples of artillery that served as direct achievements in establishing the series in public favor. Miss Murray and Mr. Leonard have arrived at Bluebird's West Coast Studio. Selection of her company and a decision as to her first Bluebird are engaging attention.

That there will be plenty of good subjects to enliven the early season for Bluebird exhibitors is apparent in the following reference to futures:

Ella Hall will follow her appearance on the program, August 27, in "The Charmer," with a later presentation of "Bitter Sweet," produced by her new director, Harry Solt; Dorothy Phillips will continue to work under two directors, Joseph De Grasse and Ida May Park. Announcement will soon be made of Violet Mersereau's next subject.

Mme. Alice Blache Lectures at Columbia

Mme. Alice Blache, director of Art Dramas, one of the two women directors in the field, has been selected to address the students of the classes in script writing in Columbia University on the play. The invitation was extended by Dr. Langdon.

The first lecture, on Friday evening, July 13, was upon "The Forms in Which Scenarios Should Be Presented." The second, on Friday evening, August 3, will be "The Technique of Scenario Writing."

Mme. Blache has been engaged in the production of pictures for twenty-one years and began in France with Gaumont.

"Doug" Fairbanks to Hunt Lions in Wyoming

Douglas Fairbanks has left the sun-steeped hills and valleys of California, for a vacation trip to Wyoming, where he will pursue mountain lions to their lair.

The vacation trip follows the completion of "Down to Earth," the Fairbanks-Artcraft release of August 12. The last "shot" of this picture had hardly found its way to the developing-room when Douglas hopped a rattler-de-luxe for the Northwest.

With him were his cameraman, Victor Fleming, Bull Montana, the actor-wrestler-trainer, and a wealthy Easterner named Henry Mosler, who is taking a pleasure trip through the West, and was glad to include lions in his itinerary. Three hunting dogs also went along.

On the Firing Line

J. H. Goldberg, traveling man for the Los Angeles California Film Exchange, left for San Francisco this week, and is expected to be gone about three weeks. On his return to the southern city he will stop in every town in the valley.
Essanay's Special Hot-Weather Program for August

ESSANAY has two big features and seven two-reel subjects for the month of August. It is distinctly a hot weather program, released through K-E-S-E.

In announcing the release of "Skinner's Baby" as one of the features, it is stated that special inducements are being offered for the entire series to exhibitors who have not presented the first two pictures. Release date is August 6.

The second of the feature releases is "Open Places," from the story of W. S. Van Dyke, and directed by the author, released August 20. The picture was staged in the woods of the Canadian North, and abounds in beautiful mountain scenery, it is said. Ruth King is Jack Gardner's leading woman, with Stockdale in the heavy lead.

Four units of the "Do Children Count?" series are being released, one every Wednesday. These pictures feature little Mary McAllister, Essanay's child star recently appointed a sergeant in the regular United States Army. They are planned for a screen time, approximately, of twenty-five minutes. This series has met with great popularity throughout the country, 71 theatres in Chicago alone running it.

The units scheduled for August releases are: "The Season of Childhood," "The Little White Girl," "The Bridge of Fancy," and "The Kingdom of Hope." K-E-S-E is handling the releases.

The schedule is completed by three Black Cat Features, released the first three Saturdays of the month. "Vermont, the Bountiful," featuring Virginia Valli, released August 4. "The Long Green Trail," a kid-napping plot, released the following Saturday, and "Don't Lose Your Coat," released August 10, are the three. Screen time of each is twenty-five minutes. These subjects are being released through General Film.

Boy Scouts' Paper Commends Kleine Film

Scouting, the official organ of the Boy Scouts of America, is displaying great interest in the photoplay, "Knights of the Square Table," produced at the Thomas A. Edison studios as a Conquest picture, released by George Kleine.

Triangle's Trio of Lively Plays for Its August Program

TRIANGLE has taken a trio of releases in "Golden Rule Kate," "An Even Break," and "The Food Gamblers" for August.

Few fans will recollect that Louise Glaum, "peacock siren" of Triangle pictures, is a graduate of the school for gun-fighters. She served in many pictures under the command of William S. Hart.

In her latest picture, "Golden Rule Kate," to be released August 5, she quits perfumed lairs to return to the dance halls of the rugged West.

What is said to be the largest and most elaborate setting ever constructed on the Triangle Culver City stages was used for a scene depicting the nocturnal gayeties of a Broadway cafe. More than five hundred people, including dancers, a jazz band, professional entertainers and a large company of guests assembled about the candle-illuminated heavily laden tables.

Olive Thomas in her second picture, "An Even Break," will be presented on the Triangle program, August 5, together with Wilfred Lucas and Elda Millar in "The Food Gamblers," produced under the supervision of Allan Dwan.

In the large company supporting Miss Thorn appear such Triangle favorites as Charles Gunn, Darrel Foss, Charles K. French, J. Frank Burke, Margaret Thompson and Louis Durham.

In "The Food Gamblers" Elda Millar has the role of a young newspaper woman who makes a sensational expose of food speculation as practised by certain prominent financiers. Among the supporting players are Mac Barnes, Russell Simpson, Jack Snyder and Eduardo Gianelli. The production was directed by Albert Parker under the supervision of Allan Dwan.

Vitagraph Has Four Feature Plays the Month of August

V - L - S - E, distributing medium of Greater Vitagraph product, announces its August list of four features. "The Second Mrs. Tangueray," will be released on the sixth. The others on the schedule are: "Mary Jane's Pa," "Transgression," and "The Divorcee." The official schedule is:

August 6—"The Second Mrs. Tangueray," adapted from the play by Sir Arthur W. Pinero. It is the story of a woman whose heart was good, but who died a victim of her own indiscretions and the prejudice these engendered. Alexander and Miss Hilda Moore are cast in the leading roles.

August 13—"Mary Jane's Pa," a screen version of Edith Ellis' drama in which Henry E. Dixey acted. It is directed by W. P. S. Earle who was assistant to J. Stuart Blackton in the production of "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation." Marie MacDermott appears in the title role. Mildred Manning plays the part of Mary Jane, and others are Eulalie Jensen, Tem- plar Saxe, William Dunn and Cleo Ayres.

August 20—"Transgression," a tale of modern politics and chicanery of melodramatic interest. Earle Williams plays the role of mayor of a great city and Corinne Griffith plays opposite. In support are Webster Campbell and Florence Billings. "Mother" Maurice, in this picture, celebrates her golden jubilee.

August 27—"The Divorcee," with Mary Anderson and Alfred Vohburg in feature roles is a satire on the Reno divorce colony as it was in its palm-y days.

Selig Comedy Release "Dog in the Manger"

One of Charles Hoyt's very best comedies, "A Dog in the Manger," will be the Selig release in K-E-S-E service Monday, August 6. It is a two-reel farce, and, according to the reviewers, is one of the best of the Selig-Hoyt comedies yet released.

The cast includes Wm. Fables as A. Jackson Bright; James Harris as Colin Early, his partner; Amy Dennis as Gay Somers, the landlord's daughter; Edgar Murray, Sr., as Boniface Somers, the landlord, and Fred Eckhart as Mr. Grump, a star boarder. J. A. Richmond directs the comedy.

The plot concerns two inventors who come to grief when their bogus sausage machine goes to pieces. They escape from pursuing policemen by a close margin.
Jap Screen Play by Wallace Irwin Differs from Letters

In the screen version for Paramount of “Hashimura Togo” there has been injected some drama that did not appear in the letters by Wallace Irwin. The part of Togo is to be taken by Sessue Hayakawa. The picture is released August 19.

Togo is seen first in Japan as the Baron Katru, studious and dutiful, just as Hayakawa has always been.

He is driven to America when he accepts the blame of his elder brother’s crime, and enters the household service of his “moon maiden,” whom he worships from afar.

The comedy, as displayed in the many Togo letters by Wallace Irwin, is admirably handled by Hayakawa in these household scenes, where his efforts as a servant create highly amusing situations.

Kleine Says Conquest Program Takes Well

Conquest programs consisting of seven reels, made up of a feature of four reels, and a number of shorter subjects in two, one and split reels, is released by George Kleine each week.

The first week’s release was July 14, and Mr. Kleine’s publicity department states that interest in Conquest programs among exhibitors has been steadily increasing, and that a great many exhibitors throughout the country have set aside one day each week, known as Conquest day.

Preacher’s Script Used for Marian Swayne Play

Rev. Clarence J. Harris, minister and scenario writer, is author of the Erbograph play in which Marian Swayne is next to be starred, on Art Dramas program. The title is “The Little Samaritan.”

It was directed by Joseph Levering, who won praise by previous production with Miss Swayne, notably “Little Miss Fortune” and “The Road Between.”

“The Little Samaritan” will be released on Art Dramas program following “Think It Over,” the U. S. Amusement production starring Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker.

Gail Kane in “Souls in Pawn” Heads Mutual Program

GAIL KANE, Pearl White, and Ruth Roland are the three stars featured on Pathe’s program for the week of August 12.

Miss Hulette is starred in “The Streets of Illusion,” a five-reel Gold Rooster Play, produced by Astra, under the direction of William Parkar, and written by Philip Barholomew.

This is described as one of the very best Hulette plays, if not the best. The star is supported by a cast said to be not only of unusual size, but also of noteworthy merit. It includes J. H. Gilmour, William Parkar, Jr., Richard Warren Cook, Doris Grey, Kathryn Adams, Gerald Badeley, William P. Burt, Logan Caufl, William Yearance, William Marion and W. Dudley.

Pearl White is seen in the sixth episode of “The Fatal Ring,” entitled “The Ray of Death,” produced by Astra, under the direction of George B. Selz, and written by Fred Jackson and Bertram Milhauser.

Ruth Roland is starred in the fourteenth episode of “The Neglected Wife.”

The title of this chapter written by Will M. Ritchey is entitled “Desperation.”

The nineteenth release of the “Know America” combitone series, is “Southern Colorado.” This release, Colorado, noted for the striking magnificence of its scenic is shown in all its beauty and splendor.

International cartoon and scenic, split-reel and Hearst-Pathe News, No. 66 and No. 67 complete the program.

“Follow the Girl,” Butterfly Film, Has Cattle Ranches

Ruth Stonehouse and Roy Stewart are featured players of “Follow the Girl,” Butterfly picture, for release August 5. Written by Fred Myton and directed by L. W. Chaudet, the story deals with the adventures that befall an orphaned Swedish girl, Hilda Swanson, who dreams of the wonderful attractions of America.

On the steamer Hilda becomes acquainted with Olaf, a youthful fellow countryman, as well as a beautiful lady who is in reality the secret agent of one of the foreign governments.

Before she realizes it she becomes entangled in a web of events that threaten the peace of the entire country. Claire DuBrey and Jack Dill are prominent in the support of Ruth Stonehouse and Roy Stewart. Many striking scenes of the big cattle ranches are shown and the story in its entirety covers many points of intrigue and cajolery, and shows the many predicaments in which poor Hilda finds herself involved.

RuthRoland—Pathe’s List

Gladys Hulette, Pearl White, and Ruth Roland are the three stars featured on Pathe’s program for the week of August 12.

Film Specialties

Mutual Films "The Ladies from Hell"

"Hell's Belles," a Mutual special for immediate release, has picture of the review of the Forty-eighth Highlander regiment at Grant Park, Chicago.

This Canadian regiment is the first body of British soldiers to drill under arms in the United States for over a century. It is the famous organization that fought with bayonets at Vimy Ridge. After the action Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria dubbed the Scots "The Ladies from Hell."

Hurry-Up Work on Army Draft Pictures

Hearst-Pathe News No. 59 contained pictures of the opening of the army draft at Washington so they could be shown in metropolitan theatres twenty-four hours afterward.

The negative was rushed to Jersey City from Washington by special messenger and arrived after midnight. It was quickly developed, edited, and titled and by 3:30 A.M. on Saturday, was delivered to the factory ready for printing. All necessary prints were made and inserted in the issue which left that same day for all exchanges.

Mutual Weekly Gets Picture "Scoops" Quickly

Mutual Weekly, owing to Gaumont's method of assembling films, it is asserted can supply news pictures almost as quickly as they have are supplied for publication in newspapers. In Weekly No. 134 are the following illustrations:

Gordon Highanders capture New York; first U. S. hospital train in France; "Hitchy Koo" beauty chorus at Fort Slocum; reception to Pershing at Paris. There are many more live events pictured.

Gaumont Release Shows Prague, Kairawan and War Views

PRAGUE, Bohemia, quaint old city, silent and mysterious even in war times, furnishes a principal subject for the single-reel Gaumont release, No. 38, in the "Tours Around the World," the program for July 22.

Included are views of the churches, public buildings and bridges far different from those of our own land. The bridge over the Moldau was built in 1375.

Kairawan, the sacred city of Tunisia, is another interesting place shown on this reel. In a moat here are three hairs of Mahomet buried in the tomb of one of the prophet's companions. The reel is completed with pictures of the Dauphines, France, that section of southeastern Europe which runs into the Alps.

Mutual Proud of Showing at Rialto

Mutual expresses much pride in its showing at the Rialto theatre, where all the news weeklies are used and the best subjects selected. Mutual states: "For the week of July 16, the Rialto new reel contained eleven subjects from the weeklies. Of these the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly contributed seven.

The Gaumont-Mutual showing for the week of July 23 was even better. The Rialto's news reel had only seven subjects from the weeklies. Of these five came from the Gaumont-Mutual reel."

Hearst-Pathe Films Show Americans in Helmets

Uncle Sam's "boys," who are "somewhere on the River Alscn," have put aside their jaunty and typical rough rider sombreros and are now in helmets designed to be a sufficient protection from the deadly shrapnel.

Latest Pictures from Europe in Gaumont Films

The Mutual Weekly, from Gaumont Laboratories, publishing, issue No. 137, will contain latest pictures from Europe, and also contributions from three hundred camera men who serve Gaumont in the United States and Canada. It is dated August 13.

The other important release of the week is "Reel Life," No. 68, released August 16. It shows a training camp for officers. The men are at work with the bayonet, charging through barb-wire entanglements, and practicing bomb throwing.

Another section of this reel takes the spectator for a trip through the largest Y. M. C. A. in America, that in Brooklyn, which has a membership of over 7,000. There is also an animated drawing based on a picture in "Life" called "The Absent-Minded Dentist."

The Stahl Hi-Ro Comedies Will Feature "Smiling" Roland Hill

To produce comedies with an entirely new comedian, who possesses an original style for creating laughs, is the desire of Walter Richard Stahl, who a year ago was one of the best known of the younger comedy directors, and who lately gained quite a share of prominence through his production of the features, "Hate" and "Helen of Troy."

Stahl believes that he has discovered an entirely new style of comedian in "Smiling" Roland Hill, and so impressed was he with this comedian's style of creating laughs that he immediately placed Hill under contract to appear in a series of twelve two-reel subjects.

Stahl has formed the Hi-Ro Comedy Company for the exploitation of these comedies, which he will produce. Hill is to receive the support of a well-balanced cast of comedians, and negotiations are now under way to secure the services of a well-known comedienne, who is noted for her beauty, to play opposite the smiling laughmaker.
Art Dramas Please Minnesota Audiences

Fred Larkin, manager of the Green Theatre, Anoka, Minn., who books Art Dramas, has written to R. C. Cropper, of the Standard Film Corporation, as follows: "In justice to a picture like 'Pride and the Devil' we feel like suggesting to any manager, whose nerves are a little shaky from being constantly annoyed by talking and tittering among his audiences, that he can have one evening in peace if he runs a picture like this one."

Another letter to Mr. Cropper from L. E. Blesener, of Grand Theatre, Cloquet, Minn., says: "'Infidelity,' as well as the rest of your pictures, is a feature to be proud of. More people give me comments on Art Dramas than on any others I use."

Vitagraph Revisions of Old Plays Get Across

"Favorite Film Features," the new unit of Vitagraph productions being released through V. L. S. E., is now in its second week of booking.

The Middle West is leading in the number of contracts, and there the success of "Favorite Film Features" already is assured.

In one day's mail, it is declared, there were more than twenty contracts for the service. V. L. S. E. is putting out special paper for each of the pictures and is advertising them as heavily as its regular program features.

Kunsky Picked Goldwyn After Seeing Four Films

John H. Kunsky, Michigan's exhibitor, visited the Goldwyn Studios at Fort Lee, N. J., and after watching four of the Goldwyn productions, said: "I want to tell you they are fine-good stories, excellent photography and people who know how to act. If the future pictures are as good as those I have already seen, I certainly will be more than pleased with my franchise."

A. I. Shapiro, Detroit manager for Goldwyn, helped make the deal whereby Mr. Kunsky becomes first-run Goldwyn exhibitor in Detroit.

Minneapolis Theatre Likes Art Dramas

The Standard Film Corporation which distributes Art Dramas program in several northwestern states has received the following letter from J. H. Bergstrom, Jr., manager of the Nicollet theatre, Minneapolis:

"I am more than surprised at your program. It is much better than I had expected. I have run two of your pictures and they have certainly given excellent satisfaction. Keep up the good work."

rathe's "The Fatal Ring" Books Well Throughout South

THRITY-SIX theatres in Cincinnati have signed for "The Fatal Ring," W. S. Wesseling, manager of Pathé's branch there, says he is going to make it fifty.

The Alpha theatre, Atlanta, for the first time in its successful history has booked a serial for an extended run. The management states that Pearl White in 'The Fatal Ring' has already "landslided itself into a whirlwind success."

Something over two hundred theatres in Atlanta territory have booked this serial and are now putting it over to substantial profits, according to a dispatch from Pathé's Atlanta office.

In addition to seven theatres in the City of Atlanta, the following well-known southern theatres and showmen are a few of those who have booked it and are reporting good business:

Queen theatre, Knoxville; Dowler Interests, Chattanooga; Odeon, Birmingham; the Strand Amusement Co., Montgomery; Max L. Wolf Interests, Savannah; Strand Interests, Miami; Tony Dudukum, Nashville; Tano's Rialto, West Palm Beach; Juan Carbonell, Key West; Beacham's Grand, Orlando; Don Williamson, Jackson, Tenn.; Louis Kalbfeld, Palatka; E. G. Gidley's Strand, Athens; H. J. Hurry, Birmingham.

It has previously been announced that after five Fox theatres had showed this picture three more booked it.

Seattle Pastor Praises "Battle of the Somme"

Pathe's seven-episode, two-reel war films grouped under the title, "The Battle of the Somme," got first showing recently in Seattle, Wash., and immediately afterwards, F. C. Quimby, manager there, got this letter from Rev. Carter Helm Jones of the First Baptist Church:

"They are the most wonderful pictures I have ever been privileged to see. Indisputably accurate, they bring this awful war home with a vividness and power that is simply overwhelming. The tragedies revealed by the pictures would be more than one could bear, were they not skillfully relieved now and then by charm of scenery and variety of the humor of camp life."

"The Man Who Was Afraid"

Suits Newark

Salo Ansbach, Scenario theatre, Newark, N. J., writing to K.E.S.E. has this to say regarding "The Man Who Was Afraid":

"The Scenario theatre will play a return date of "The Man Who Was Afraid" and invite the various recruiting officers stationed here to see it. The Scenario played 'The Man Who Was Afraid' to capacity business and our patrons could not find words enough to praise this picture, its beautiful dramatic development, and its splendid appeal to patriotism."

Two Weeks' Run for "Gifts of the Magi"

"The Gifts of the Magi," O. Henry subject, released by General Film, booked at a Washington, D. C., house controlled by J. H. Kunsky has just finished a run of two weeks. This duplicates a record made by "No Story" and "The Love Philtre of Ikey Schoenstein," also O. Henry subjects.

In the "Gifts of the Magi," a young husband and wife in moderate circumstances make pathetic yet humorous sacrifices in the effort to give each other elaborate Christmas gifts.

Bess's Barricade (Producing for Parasites)
LIVE NEWS FROM THE PRODUCERS

Vitagraph Will Not Raise Its Rental Prices

WALTER W. IRWIN, general manager of V-L-S-E, distributor of the Greater Vitagraph products, has notified the exhibitors of the United States and Canada that there will be no change in the rental policy of V-L-S-E, and that the present policy of that distributing organization will continue as it has been for several months past.

The statement by Mr. Irwin, which was issued through the publicity department of V-L-S-E, was called forth in answer to numerous inquiries from exhibitors as to what they might expect in the future.

"Other companies are changing their policy," says one prominent exhibitor wrote. "They are increasing their rental prices to a figure considered exorbitant by some of us, and we want to know if V-L-S-E purposes to follow in their footsteps."

V-L-S-E, according to Nat Mr. Stronge, publicity director of Greater Vitagraph, V-L-S-E has no idea of increasing its rental prices to the exhibitors of the country.

"After being in attendance during the entire week at the Chicago convention, where I met numerous exhibitors from all parts of the country," said Mr. Stronge, "I have reported to General Manager Irwin that every exhibitor to whom I talked had a good word to say regarding Greater Vitagraph products and spoke in an appreciative manner of the way in which the V-L-S-E branch exchanges throughout the country are handling the Greater Vitagraph product.

"I was amazed to learn of the extent to which the exhibitors are watching and investigating the production end of the business. Many of them have almost as good an idea of costs as the producers themselves."

After Mr. Stronge made his report, based upon more than three hundred interviews, to General Manager Irwin, a statement was issued by Greater Vitagraph—V-L-S-E to the exhibitors of the country in which it was most emphatically declared that it made no difference what steps might be taken by other producers and distributors, the policy of Greater Vitagraph—V-L-S-E would remain absolutely unchanged until such a time as the exhibitors themselves requested a change and from every indication that would not be soon.

Triangle Offers Revivals of Famous Old Plays in Series

ON September 1st, the Triangle Distributing Corporation will commence reissuing its series of Triangle pictures starring Douglas Fairbanks and William S. Hart. The first will be a Fairbanks feature, the title of which will be announced soon. This will be followed by a Hart subject, to be released about September 15th.

"We are reissuing these plays in response to the insistent demands of our exhibitors," is the statement issued by Triangle's New York office. "They will not be marketed on the 'open booking plan,' but in a series. Incidentally, the rental price will not be of the 'open booking' scale, but so moderate that every exhibitor in every city, town and village can avail himself of the opportunity to reap profits on the stars whom he has helped to make."

"These will be the Triangle masterpieces of the stars, carefully selected from the list, in order of their success in which they appeared. During his association with Triangle Douglas Fairbanks was featured in twelve pictures."

"William S. Hart has appeared in Triangle pictures exclusively during the past two years, making no less than sixteen during that time."

"All of these have been released on the program at equitable prices to the exhibitor, although the company realizes that much more profit could be derived by wild-casting them at exorbitant sums."

"In the list of 'all-star' features are plays by Bessie Love, Louise Glau, Dorothy Dalton, Margery Wilson, House Peters, George Fawcett, Seena Owen, Enid Markay, Alma Reuben, Sylvia Bremer and Clara Williams. The plays were produced by star directors from stories by some of the leading scenarioists and novelists of the day. Thus the exhibitor will not only have one famous name to advertise but a formidable array, appealing to all classes in all communities."

Cordoba in Elsie Ferguson's Arctraft Company

Pedro de Cordoba is to be Elsie Ferguson's leading man in "Barlary Sheep." It is said de Cordoba's personality very well suits the dark-skinned and sinister Spahi. He is of Spanish and French descent, plays the violin so well that he has had success in concert work, and possesses a bass voice which enabled him to fill operatic engagements for a season.

He has had a wide experience in Shakespearean roles, was in the original New Theatre company, and has had parts in a variety of Broadway successes. He appeared in "The Wanderer" last season. He was prominent in the support of Geraldine Farrar in three productions—"Carmen," "Temptation" and "Maria Rosa," and further, he has had such wide experience that Miss Ferguson feels she is making a wise choice.

Harry Weber, Veteran Showman, Manages Eva Tanguay

Harry Weber, under whose management Eva Tanguay is making her debut in pictures, is a veteran showman, although one of the youngest men to earn that title. Miss Tanguay will be in a Selznick-Pictures production, "The Wild Girl." This title has been adopted in place of the former "working title," "Firefly."

Harry Weber is making his first venture in pictures with this production. His friends say success has become a habit with him, and that he will maintain his unbroken record.

After an early experience in the circus business, Mr. Weber went to Chicago to produce acts for vaudeville. Finding the Chicago field too small, Mr. Weber came to New York seven years ago, and now has the biggest vaudeville agency in the world.

Food Commissioner Dillon Acts in "Food Gamblers"

"The Food Gamblers," a Triangle picture dealing with the greatest problem that confronts the American nation to-day, is about ready for release.

It was produced under the supervision of Allan Dwan, who, realizing the serious and far-reaching value of the subject, sought the co-operation of John J. Dillon, Commissioner of Foods and Markets of the State of New York, for the purpose of gaining accurate statistics wherewith to give the play the power and conviction of truth.

Mr. Dillon was not only ready to furnish details but so enthusiastic over the play that he was willing to appear as an actual character in the story.
Marguerite Clark as "Sub-Deb" in "Bab's Burglar"

"Bab's Burglar," the first story by Mary Roberts Rinehart in which Marguerite Clark portrays the character of a seventeen-year-old school girl, has been completed and is now being made ready for release by Paramount some time in September.

Mrs. Rinehart—who makes her debut as a pictureplay author in the present story—has given to fiction a new character in the little sub-debutante, Barbara Archibald, youngest daughter of a wealthy family. How she accomplishes the feat of getting rid of her year's allowance of $1,000 in a month's time makes up five reels of a delightfully humorous story.

There are five Bab stories, each one a separate "romance." Miss Clark has been cast as Bab in all those to be filmed for Paramount. In the cast are: Frank Losee, as her father; Helen Green, as her sister; Leonie Morgan, as her friend; Richard Barthelmess, as her youthful lover, and William Hinkley, as her more mature lover, who is just beginning to see the charm of the "sub-debutante."

Selznick Has Notable Cast in "The Moth"

Selznick announcements speak with fervor of the notable cast selected for Norma Talmadge's production, "The Moth." It is stated to be a production in every way equal to the recent success, "Poppy."

Eugene O'Brien, who has the leading male part, has been with Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Illington, Kyrie Bellev, Irene Fenwick, Frances Starr, Elsie Janis and Fritzi Scheff.

Others are Donald Hall, English actor, who in London was directed by George Edwardes; Maude Allen, who understudied Marjorie Rambeau in "Cheating Cheaters"; Hassard Short, Frank Kingdon, Robert Vivian, Kenneth Worms and Aida Armand.

Ruth Ann Baldwin Directs Universal Western

Director Ruth Ann Baldwin of the Universal forces has begun work on a new five-reel Western feature, a dramatization of William Wallace Cook's novel, "The Old West per Contract," recently in Argosy Magazine. Miss Baldwin is the author of the scenario.

Donna Drew, who was in "The Flame of Yuma," will have the leading part opposite Leo Pierson. Jean Herscholt will appear in the heavy role. Other important characters in the production will be played by Joseph Girard and George Pearce.

Cliff Smith, Co-Director with Hart, Joins Triangle

Cliff Smith, William Hart's co-director, has just signed a new contract with Triangle for ten years, and will start immediately on a new series of Western productions starring Roy Stewart.

These will be produced at Hartville, the scene of Smith's former activities. Smith keeps with him his former assistant, Charles Rush.

Mayor Dahman of Omaha Heading the Parade of Cowpunchers—Manager Holah of the Pathé Exchange at the Horse's Head

Omaha Holds Street Parade for Pathé Picture

Cowboy Mayor Issues Proclamation and Leads Delegation of Cattle

Punchers Along Line of March—Honoring "Tanks at Battle of Ancre"

The first motion picture to get a mayor's proclamation, a special holiday and street parade in its honor is Pathé's special, "The Tanks at the Battle of Ancre."

Practically every civic, social and military organization in Omaha took part in the parade. Five thousand men were in line and six bands furnished the music. Mayor Dahman on horseback led a delegation of cowboys. The Fourth, Fifth and Sixth regiments were in the line, as were machine gun companies and Red Cross units. An international flavor was given to the occasion by British, French, Belgian, Russian, Italian, Japanese, Servian, Roumanian, and Montenegrin soldiers in uniform, one of each nation, and each escorted by pretty Red Cross nurses.

At the time of the first showing of the picture in Omaha the Hotel Men's Association was planning to do something handsome for the Red Cross. Manager Holah, Pathé's man at Omaha, saw the chance to suggest that the way to make money fast would be to boom the picture, devoting the proceeds of the Brandeis Theater four showings daily, to the Red Cross. The idea was good and it took.

Mayor Dahman put out this statement: "The Omaha Hotel Men's Association has undertaken to provide a means of raising funds for the Omaha Red Cross chapter's ambulance. These pictures were made by Official British Government photographers while the battle raged and are brought to Omaha at tremendous cost. All of the money earned through them is to be devoted to Red Cross efforts for our own boys. It is therefore a patriotic duty of everyone in Omaha to see these pictures."

"In connection with this picture the Omaha hotel men are planning a Red Cross parade at 2:30 Monday afternoon, July 16, in which all branches of the military, Red Cross, social and civic organizations will participate.

"As Mayor of the city of Omaha I hereby proclaim Monday afternoon a public holiday and request that everyone see this parade and give it the support it deserves, and I further suggest that merchants and employers generally permit their employees to view it."

As a result of the excellent promotion and great publicity the picture opened on Monday to a house in which every seat was occupied and as many persons standing as the law allowed. The newspapers the next day pronounced the "Tanks" to be the most vivid pictures of actual warfare that had ever been shown in Omaha. All commented upon the high class of the audience which contained many persons prominent in society and business, as well as many men stationed in and about Omaha.

Throughout the entire week the lines at the Brandeis box-office frequently disrupted traffic and the picture closed on Saturday night, having played to more persons and with bigger box-office receipts than any picture that has ever come to that city.

Clune Books Weber Subject

The Universal—Lois Weber made subject, "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle," will be shown at Clune's Auditorium during the week of July 23, and at Clune's Broadway the following week.
Fox's "Baby Grands" in Series of Eight Plays

Jane and Katherine Lee, Mischievous Little Imps" That It Is Decided to Postscripts to the letters asked if the children would have other plays of their own. The answer to the inquiry is in the present announcement of eight such plays. The Jane and Katherine Lee photoplays will be in the new Standard pictures, the latest Fox organization. Special pains is to be taken with all these productions.

Both the Lee children have long records before the screen. While "Two Little Imps" is their most distinctive performance they did very well and got a lot of praise in "A Daughter of the Gods," always spoken of as "the million dollar fantasy."

Kenean Buel, who was in charge of the direction of "Two Little Imps," is again doing the screening.

Working at Universal City

"The Bumble Bee" is the rather pointed title of the new Western thriller in which Neil Hartley will be presented under the direction of George Marshall.

In addition to these full-length features, Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons, Max Ascher, Gale Henry and William Franey have completed comedies packed with novel laugh devices, while Jacques Jaccard has practically finished three entire episodes for "The Quest of Virginia," Universal's new mystery serial, starring Marie Walcamp.

Catch Action Auto Race Pictures for Comedy

Journeying to the scene of an automobile race between Ralph De Palma and Barney Oldfield, on July 29, cameraman engaged on the Jaxon comedies production secured some zipping "cut-ins" for one of the forthcoming Jaxon comedies.

This is probably the first time a big race of speed stars like this has been directly utilized to aid a comedy production. The scenes secured will be inserted in a Jaxon comedy appearing in the third series, starting about September 15.

Wallace Reid's Play, "The Hostage," by Belulah Dix

"The Hostage," a story of modern Europe, written by Belulah Marie Dix, is to be the first production in which Wallace Reid will star under the new Paramount selective "star series" booking plan.

Robert Thorndy, director of a number of Paramount pictures, is in charge of the production, staged at the Lasky studio in Hollywood. The cast surrounding Mr. Reid is a large one and includes a number of players who have already been in Paramount productions. Camille Ankelwich, Lillian Leighton, Guy Oliver, Noah Beery, Lucien Littlefield, C. H. Geldert, George Spaulding and Gertrude Short are among the players included.

McCormack Liked Ireland in Bessie Love Play

John McCormack, Irish tenor, is quoted as saying that he had one of the most novel experiences of his life when he recently visited the immense Triangle studios at Culver City, California, and witnessed the making of several scenes of "Wee Lady Betty," the new Irish play in which Bessie Love is starred under the direction of Charles Miller.

McCormack said the costuming of the peasants, the appointments of the castle and the reproductions of streets in the Irish rural communities could not have been improved.

Charles Gerrard Meets Fairbanks in Catch-as-Catch Can

Probably the weariest and sorest man in the state of California was Charles Gerrard, of the Fairbanks-Artcraft Company, producing "Down to Earth," after he had emerged from a fifteen-minute catch-as-can battle with the athletic Douglas, which was one of the last scenes photographed in the new Fairbanks picture, scheduled for release August 12.

Gerrard is an Englishman, somewhat lighter than Fairbanks, but a very fair athlete, due to some years of cricket, football, rowing and other vigorous pastimes in his college days.
Ince Adds Dorothy Dalton to His Stars

Another Thomas H. Ince star has been added to those already announced by the producer as following along with him in his new affiliation with Paramount.

Mr. Ince announced yesterday, in a message to the Paramount offices in New York, that Dorothy Dalton’s name is to be added to those of Charles Ray and Emid Bennett as Ince stars to appear in pictures hereafter to be released exclusively through Paramount. There will be eight Dorothy Dalton pictures scheduled by Paramount.

Fake “French Official” War Pictures Denounced

Edmond Ratisbonne, delegate of the Cinematographic and photographic division of the French army, of No. 220 West Twenty-second street, New York, has issued a warning that gruesome and faked scenes of a prejudicial character are being filmed and sold as “French official pictures.” He says:

“The attention of all patriotic exhibitors is called to the fact that these are times when the performance of the Allied armies must not be misrepresented.”

Exhibitors are asked to co-operate with Mr. Ratisbonne to prevent the exhibition of pirated pictures. True and really official French war pictures may be obtained.

Thanhouser Screens “The Man Without a Country”

“The Man Without a Country” will appear upon the screens shortly, the Thanhouser Film Corporation having just completed a present day multiple-reel feature, based upon Edward Everett Hale’s story.

Florence La Badie is featured in the production, in the role of a patriotic American girl, while H. E. Herbert, a well-known Broadway actor plays Lieutenant Nolan, the army officer, whose later years are spent as a prisoner on a naval ship.

Ernest Warde directed “The Man Without a Country,” which will have its initial showing within the next few weeks.

“The Mainspring” First of General Film’s Four-Reelers

“THE MAINSPRING” will be the first of General Film’s new Falcon Features. These are the four-reelers in dramas that are to complete the releases so that an exhibitor may book his entire schedule for a week from the one company. The date of release for the initial offering is about August 17, new ones to follow each week.

Louis Joseph Vance wrote “The Main-spring” as a magazine story. He has also made the picturization of the adventure plot, so something novel and attractive may surely be expected.

It has been given an admirable production under the direct supervision of H. M. & E. D. Horkheimer. The featured lead is Henry King, whose work is always virile and artistic.

Well known authors and well known stars will be featured in all the following Falcon Features, with value in story, however, as the fundamental attraction.

Most of the stories would ordinarily be presented in five-reel form it is stated, but to assure dramatic value they have been restricted by General Film to the four-reel length. General Film is also seeing to it that paper and all sorts of advertising matter is prepared in the artistic form, plentifully and promptly.

Every logical merchandising aid, it is promised, will be given exhibitors in connection with Falcon Features.

Harold Edel Books Pathe’s “Mad Lover” and “Today”

HAROLD EDEL, managing director of the Strand theatre, announces he has selected “The Mad Lover” and “Today,” following their purchase by Pathé, for presentation at his house. “The Mad Lover” is to be seen July 23 and “Today” is to follow it next week.

“The three best pictures I have ever booked are ‘The Poor Little Rich Girl,’ ‘The Mad Lover’ and ‘Today,’” Mr. Edel said at the time of the announcement.

The star of “The Mad Lover” is Robert Warwick. The picture was written and produced by Leonce Perret, a French director. The supporting cast includes Elaine Hammerstein, who was in “The Argyle Case.”

Mr. Perret also produced “The Silent Master,” with Robert Warwick. During the fourteen years he served as director general of Gaumont in Paris he wrote and produced 300 feature films, many of which were shown in this country.

“The Mad Lover” is described as the romance of a modern Othello. The principal character, portrayed by Mr. Warwick, is a virile young American who prefers the outdoor life on his handsome country estate to the glamour of the city. In addition to Elaine Hammerstein, others in the cast include Valentine Petit, Edward Kimble, George Flateau, Frank McLynn.

In “Today,” made from a stage play by George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer, Florence Reed is star. The picture was directed by Ralph Ince. The cast includes Frank Mills, Leonore Harris, Gus Weinberg, Alice Gale and Kate Lester.

Florence Reed as Lily Morton finds herself alone in the power of the husband whom she has wronged.

Posters in Yiddish for Joe Welch Play

Posters in Yiddish have been printed to introduce Joe Welch in his picture adaptation of “The Peddler.” They are to be used throughout the New York ghetto and in other sections where Welch has a Jewish clientele. The play is on Art Dramas program.
Pathé's "Les Miserables" Is Capacity Play

New Revised Version Much Finer Than Old Picture and Screened Better—It Has Special Music—Drawing Wonderfully in Chicago

"Les Miserables" in Pathé's new and revised version of the masterpiece, by all accounts, is doing wonderful business at Chicago, where the picture got its initial showing. It is now entering on its second week at Orchestra Hall, drawing to capacity.

One observer writes in that though Orchestra Hall is a 3500-seat house, only second to Century theatre, New York, in elegance, it was packed and a line extended, in two directions, a block long and four persons deep, back from the box-office. This was on Monday, July 16, and on subsequent days the scene was duplicated.

Pathé says of the play that when the first version was put out four years ago it ran twenty-eight weeks in New York. The new and revised version is described as "better yet" in all respects. The statement adds:

"'Les Miserables' is a true masterpiece in picture form just as it is a true masterpiece as a book. As a story it grows more popular each year. Men and women find in it that which they seek, for Hugo knew life and he put it in his book.

"When the picture was first put out in this country not more than three exhibitors knew how to present such a massive production, and as a result though many thousands saw it millions heard of it who did not get to see it.

"With a total revision and a bringing up to date of the picture, with the vastly improved projection and with the music that was lacking four years ago, it is believed that the great record which the picture made before will bettered by the much greater distribution and the vastly greater public which will be interested in it.

"Oma McDyell Lawrence says in part in the Chicago Post:

"When Victor Hugo wrote 'Les Miserables' in the very thickest of the civil war in the United States, he little suspected that his masterpiece would ever be played upon the stage, and he certainly had no idea that it would become a dramatic production before the camera.

"If you have ever doubted the worth of the motion picture to present a drama, you could not possibly do so after you had seen 'Les Miserables' on the screen. Like all novels of the mid-Victorian period, the book abounds with lengthy descriptions which by their very accuracy sometimes becomes tiresome to the modern high-speed reader.

"The film pictures in exquisite detail, the very important scenes which are necessary to the development of the plot. Care in the staging of motion pictures was a part of French production at a much earlier date than it was in American manufacture, and the accuracy of detail is a delight to students and admirers of the work of Victor Hugo."

Harry R. Raver Sees Great Strength in "Behind the Mask"

In "Behind the Mask," an Apollo production, for release on the Art Dramas Program, Harry R. Raver, president of Apollo, feels that he has a feature of unusual strength in story and production. It was written by Charles Dazey and adapted by Frederick Rath.

Dazey is said to have proved his originality in the many twists of this tale as he did in "Wolf Lowry" and "The Redemption of Dave Dazey." It is a story of society intrigue with a flavor of outdoors.

Alma Hanlon has a role requiring delicacy. In the support is Florence Short.

Stingaree Gives Up Gold to Save Young Girl

Followers of the Kalem series, "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," have learned to rely on the resource and daring of the gentleman bushranger to extricate him from predicaments when there appears to be no avenue of escape.

They will not be disappointed in "A Double Deception," the Kalem Company announces, as this E. W. Hornung story is a particularly brilliant one. Stingaree's love of adventure leads him to sacrifice the coveted gold in a bank vault, that he may disillusion a romantic young woman who has made him her ideal.

Havoc in Studios Likely Owing to Army Draft

As the master numbers are given out it becomes more apparent that the Army draft may create havoc in the studios, as was predicted in Motion Picture News' exclusive story last week. Nick Kessel, Triangle, says he will use girl substitutes and have the jobs for the soldiers when they come back.

Selective conscription will catch hundreds of workers, many of them in mechanical and technical lines where it is not easy to fill their places.

Arthur Robinson, location manager; Bill Quinn, Frank Heath, assistant directors; Harry Warren, Thomas De Vries, B. Kane, William Roche, Frederick Feiss, actors; George Richards, still picture department; Jesse Strait, negative department; Rudolph Long, garage department; J. Wesley Strait, chemical department; Joseph Cook, Buck Cohan, scenic department; William Upton, scene painter.

Fine Pictures in South for "Barbary Sheep"

The Elsie Ferguson-Aircraft Company which has been in the south, making tropical exteriors for the noted star's first picture, "Barbary Sheep," returned a few days ago to the studio at Fort Lee.

Director Maurice Tourneur reports that the set for the film has resulted in some of the most beautiful and picturesque sets that the camera has ever recorded.

The star herself was greatly pleased with the new sets and returned eager for further work in the romantic Robert Hichens story.

Speed and Then More Speed in Wally Van Film

Wally Van has completed the first picture to be made by his own company. It is called "Love, Pep and Petrol," and may be classed as a two-reeler successor to his other two comedy classics, "Love, Luck and Gasoline" and Love, Snow and Ice."

In a mechanical sense, "Love, Pep and Petrol" is little less an exhibition of modern speed and traveling inventions. If it travels fast, it has been included in the picture, for aeroplanes are used in profusion, as the hydroplanes, speed motor boats, automobiles, pushmobiles, motorpeds, aquaplanes, surf-riders, and about every speed device obtainable in New York.

William Fox to Put Strong Players in Comedy

Doris Pawn, who played with George Walsh in "The Book Agent" and "The Kid is Clever," has been added to a new Fox comedy company to head the new Tal- lard Louis, who took the part of the lawyer, Stryver, in the Fox version of "A Tale of Two Cities," Dickens' classic. William Fox said:

"I have invested a real fortune in new apparatus for novel stunts and trick photographic effects, and I shall put into my comedy casts persons who have intelligence as well as a keen sense of fun."

Charles Parrott will direct the comedies with Mr. Louis and Miss Pawn.
Vivian Martin’s “Little Miss Optimist” a Relief

Quite a relief from wars and rumors of war is “Little Miss Optimist,” Vivian Martin’s first Paramount picture. It is from the original story by Gardner Hunting and directed by Robert Thornby.

Maizie Rosie Carden, irresistible youngster, who is impersonated by Miss Martin, has a romantic career after circumstances bring her out of the world of the “newsies” and introduce Deal Hendrie into her life. He is a young dreamer and determined to become a musician despite the protests of his family. When he and Maizie first meet the young man is on the point of starvation.

Tom Moore, long upon the screen, plays opposite Miss Marin in the role of Deal Hendrie, Charles West, Ernest Joy, Helen Bray and Charlie Gerard are other members of the cast.

Shubert-Schenck Play Is “Just a Woman”

Eugene Walter’s play, “Just a Woman,” will be produced as a photodrama by Julius Steger in association with Lee Shubert and Joseph M. Schenck.

Miss Charlotte Walker will be the star, playing the title role, which she created in the original stage version. She will be supported by an excellent cast headed by Lee Baker. The production will be under the personal direction of Julius Steger and Joseph A. Golden.

“The Second Mrs. Tanqueray” Story of Eternal Triangle

Vitagraph will release “The Second Mrs. Tanqueray” on August 6th. It is described as a strong play. It is a story of the eternal triangle but the treatment is new.

In the stellar roles are Hilda Moore and Sir George Alexander, called by Vitagraph two of the most artistic players of the generation and it is claimed that in “The Second Mrs. Tanqueray” they take full advantage of their opportunities.

Goldwyn Reports Booking Many Large Theatres

In List Are Houses in Toledo, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City—Boston Has Trade Showing—Philadelphia Next

OLDWYN in a statement says the initial showing of its productions at the Chicago exhibition brought in many contracts for its pictures, including the following:

Robert Lieber for Circle theatre, Indianapolis. This is the largest theatre in that section.

Edward A. Zorn for the Temple theatre, Toledo. Mr. Zorn is one of Ohio’s leading exhibitors and pioneer exploiters of pictures through newspaper advertising.

William Sievers, New Grand Central theatre, St. Louis. Mr. Sievers has the largest motion picture theatre in St. Louis.

William Flynn, Twelfth Street theatre, Kansas City. Mr. Flynn besides having two Kansas City motion picture theatres is also the lessee of the Willis Wood theatre at St. Louis.

Nathan Ascher for his twelve Chicago theatres. The Ascher Brothers chain of theatres are large, modern amusement places in the best neighborhoods.

Samuel Goldfish, president of the Goldwyn, and Alfred Weiss, vice-president, held a second trade showing in Boston last Friday in conjunction with Harry F. Campbell, manager of Goldwyn’s Boston offices. Exhibitors throughout the territory were present by invitation.

Philadelphia will have its trade showing early next week and similar showings are being announced for all of the Goldwyn offices in the United States and Canada.

Thatched Roof 18th Century Tavern for Fox Company

Under the expert guidance of George Grenier, technical director for William Fox Studios in the West, a duplication of the famous eighteenth century tavern, “The Fishermen’s Rest,” in Dover, England, has been erected under the rocks at Santa Monica, near Monterey, Calif.

The house is built doubly strong to withstand the lashing of the billows below and the force of the wind above. It has a thatched roof and stone pillars.

Dustin Farnum and his company will use the house in screening “The Scarlet Pimpernel,” adaptation of the novel by Baroness D’Orey. Winifred Stanton is in the play.

Seena Owen, Consort in “Intolerance,” with Fox

Seena Owen, who was Belshazzar’s consort in “Intolerance,” will return to the screen play under the William Fox banner, appearing first as leading woman in a company headed by George Walsh, and directed by Richard Stanton. It will be light drama.

Lew Fields’ at Work on a Circus Comedy

Lew Fields, supported by Wm. Fables, James Harris and Amy Dennis, is completing a feature film at the Selig Studios, Chicago, under direction of J. A. Richmond.

Recently the principals joined a circus for several days in order to secure a bit of the color of the sawdust arena.

“I have an opportunity to accomplish my best work in this play,” Fields said recently. “Mr. Selig has spared no time nor expense in production, and his methods are encouraging to artistic endeavors.”

Mary Pickford Takes Vacation in the Surf

Mary Pickford, having just completed her next picture, “Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm,” is enjoying a brief vacation, much of which is being spent in the surf. Meanwhile Frances Marion, who writes her scenarios, and Marshall Neilan, her director, are at work on the preliminaries of the next Pickford-Aircraft release.

Mary will have her hands full when she returns from her vacation.
General Film Issues

New Idea in Press Sheets Makes It Easy to Keep Tabs on All Releases—Series, Groups, Dramas, Comedies and Even Specialties

GENERAL Film has made a marked advance in the form of its press sheets, and issues sheets that cover a full series of releases at a time, with all essential information about each release of the series in tabloid form.

Along this idea there have been issued already big editions of press sheets on the O. Henry groups, the Black Cat groups and the Stingaree groups. Coming are sheets devoted to all current comedies, all current dramas not already incorporated in sheets, all serials, and all educational and topical subjects.

Included always is the thumb-nail synopsis of each release, the cast, name of director and producer, length, trade press and newspaper comment, some selected phrases for advance notice and advertisements, and some pertinent gossip relating to the production and players, as well as illustrations of an appealing sort and various exhibitor helps.

Motion Picture Censors Praise "When a Man Sees Red"

THE National Board of Review of Motion Pictures departed from precedent to congratulate William Fox, the producer.

In a letter to Mr. Fox, the board says:

"The consensus of opinion of those present at the review of 'When a Man Sees Red,' it said, 'was that this was one of the strongest and most striking photoplays recently produced, and that the acting of Mr. William Farnum was both authentic and memorable.'

With the note came an additional report, especially made, which bore to the same conclusion. These are excerpts from the more detailed verdict:

"Entertainment value—excellent; dramatic interest of story—excellent; photography—good; technical handling—distinctive; atmospheric quality of scenic setting—good; moral effect—good."

William Farnum, as stellar fighting man, takes the principal part in the play, which is directed by Frank Lloyd, and is to be released as a new Fox "Standard Picture."

Another outstanding feature of these General Film sheets is this—that while the major portion of each is expected to be clipped, part of it is to provide a permanent record. This part is an accurate and condensed list of the releases in group, or virtually an official catalogue of all the films issued in that group.

For example, in the O. Henry sheet recently issued there is in one column a list of all the two-reel O. Henry pictures in the order of their release, with featured leads, topic and director added. The Black Cat sheet contains similarly a list to be preserved, with all information in compact shape, of the thirty-five Black Cat features issued to date, and rounding out the third series of those interesting subjects.

When all current releases of General Film have been so covered in special press sheets the exhibitor will have on hand a practical, concise catalogue of General Film's entire range of product by groups.

The script is from Larry Evans's "A Painted Lady," published in Saturday Evening Post.

The more prominent players who share the laurels with Mr. Fox, Director Frank Lloyd and William Farnum are: Jewel Carmen, Lulu May Bower, Cora Drew, G. Raymond Nye, Marc Robbins and A. Burt Wesc - mer. William Foster was behind the camera.

Algerian Street, Cost $50,000, for "Barbary Sheep"

For the Artcraft play, "Barbary Sheep," a reproduction of an Algerian street has been constructed at Fort Lee for the making of the scenes laid in one of the picturesque cities of that country.

The street is one of the most remarkable specimens of motion picture architecture on record, and its cost is stated to have been between $50,000 and $60,000.

Santschi as Derelict in New Selig Picture

In "The City of Purple Dreams," Selig feature soon to be released, Thomas Santschi has the role of Daniel Fitzhugh, a human derelict. In support are Fritzzi Brunette, Bessie Eytton, Frank Clark, A. D. Sears and others.

It tells of the rise of a man from one of the submerged tenth, up through the different strata of society until he reaches the pinnacle of business success as a millionaire speculator in wheat.

Even French Banknotes in "Souls in Pawn"

Henry King, in the direction of Gail Kane's Mutual—American production, "Souls in Pawn," released by Mutual, August 6, has taken infinite pains with detail, it is said.

There are French telephones, French banknotes, French gestures, French furnishings, and Miss Kane has admirably achieved the French air.

Gail Kane as Liane Dore, the beautiful young Frenchwoman, who has sworn to avenge the murder of her husband, becomes a spy in behalf of the German von Konde - mark.

Robert Klein doubles the parts of Baron Arnold von Pollnitz and The Comet. Ruth Everdale plays Marie, Liane's baby. Included in the cast are: Douglas MacLean, Edward Peil and Ashton Dearholt.

"The Hungry Heart"—Play for Pauline Frederick

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation states that "The Hungry Heart" by David Graham Phillips has been accepted for Paramount and will be produced in photoplay form with Pauline Frederick in the leading role.

The book was published in 1909, after running serially in magazine, and instantly became one of the six best sellers of that year and the next. The scenario has been written by Eve Unsell. It starts, as does the book, with the wedding of Courtney Benedict (played by Miss Frederick) to Richard Vaughn.
Again Rumored That Linder Will Resume Work

The word is being given around the Essanay Studios here that Max Linder is planning to resume work at the Western Studios of the company. The French comedian is said to have recovered sufficiently from his recent relapse and threatening danger of sickness to begin work on the fourth of the series of comedies he contracted with Essanay to produce.

He came to this country and started work on the series some months ago, following a term of service in the French army during which he was wounded. These wounds, it is said, caused the relapse which occurred several months ago at the Western Studio. All further work on the series was postponed indefinitely, and the famous comedian went to Arizona to recover. Physicians say that he will be able to appear for pictures some time in November or earlier.

Metro Cannot Find “Juvenile Vampire” for Play

The Metro-Yorker studio at Hollywood has been on a vain search for a juvenile vampire. F. J. Balshofer and Harold Lockwood interviewed fifty young women in vain and concluded there is a dearth of young women of ability and the requisite personality and beauty.

The role of Marcia Van Wyck in the Paradise Garden novel, which is the part to be filled, is one of great importance in the story. Marcia Van Wyck is a beautiful young woman of the ultra-wealthy class of New York City.

William Farnum Stars in Three Fox Plays

William Fox has three screen plays ready for release, with William Farnum in leading roles.

“When a Man Sees Red” is from the novel, “The Painted Lady,” by Larry Evans; “The Conqueror” is based on the life story of Sam Houston, and the third, from Ralph Connor’s “The Doctor,” has not been titled.

R. A. Walsh screened “The Conqueror,” and Frank Lloyd the other two.

Score of Features on Mutual’s Fall List

Twelve or more stars hard at work already on pictures to be released in autumn—Charlie Chaplin busy on his comedy

MUTUAL stars are at work at the studio on nearly a score of five-reel feature productions for release early in the fall on the Mutual schedule.

The list includes productions by the following: Mary Miles Minter, William Russell, Gail Kane, Juliette Day, Margarita Fischer, Edna Goodrich, Ann Murdock, Julia Sanderson, Olive Tell, Charles Chaplin.

Charles Chaplin is producing the twelfth of his Mutual specials at the Lone Star Studio near Los Angeles. It will follow “The Immigrant,” which was released June 18. Chaplin has been taking nearly four months to complete his recent comedies, so that the date of release of the twelfth is speculative. The title of the production has not been selected by Mr. Chaplin, and probably will not be until it is completed.

Miss Minter, whose “Melissa of the Hills” has just been released, has virtually completed “Charity Castle,” under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham. Her next will be “Call to Arms.”

William Russell has completed “Sands of Sacrifice,” and has started work on “The Sea Master,” under the direction of Edward S. Sloman.

Miss Juliette Day has about completed “Betty and the Buccaneers” and “The Rainbow Girl” has been selected for her second picture. Rollin S. Sturgeon will direct both.

“The Unafraid” will be Miss Gail Kane’s next following “Souls in Pawn,” scheduled for release August 6. “The Unafraid” was originally known under the working title of “For the Family Name.” Henry King has had charge of both.

“Southern Pride” will follow.

At the Empire Studios in Glendale, L. L. Miss Ann Murdock is at work on “The Imposter,” “The Beautiful Adventure” and “Outcast” have been completed.

Edna Goodrich is producing “A Daughter of Maryland,” upon the completion of which it will be released with “Reputation” and “Queen X” already finished.

Release through Mutual. Julia Sanderson is at work on “The Runaways.” Olive Tell has started her first production at the Empire Studios. Jackie Saunders has completed “Bab, the Fixer,” the sixth of her star production for Mutual, and has left the Horkheimer Studios for Honolulu. “Bab, the Fixer,” is set for release August 13.

Miss Margarita Fischer has been reoperating at San Diego from a serious illness, and has been working slowly “The Girl Who Couldn’t Grow Up,” under direction of her husband, Harry Pollard.

Greater Business in Store for Industry

“We Have Been Living on the Cream,” Says Allen, President of Peter Pan; “The Milk Has Been Untouched”

H. C. ALLEN, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, New York City, has begun a definite and constructive program for the purpose of building up the business of exhibitors.

He is convinced that the next big move in motion pictures is to make theatregoers of those who now stay away. So far, he says, the industry has been living on the cream. The milk has been untouched.

The Peter Pan Film Corporation proposes to get some of this patronage for their exhibitors, and Mr. Allen’s policies are accomplishing this end. In a recent interview, he said:

“I believe that the times have come for the exhibitors of this country to make a serious effort to discover some way to increase their patronage. For the most part picture theatres get their box-office receipts week after week from the same patrons. Only a small part of each community are enthusiasts, because only the steady fans see what they want to see. If the whole community saw what it liked, the whole community would surely go. That is undeniable. The price is not what keeps them away, it is because they do not see what they like. Therefore, give them what they want and watch results.”
Tropical Jungle in Netting

"The Woman God Forgot" is the first picture in which Geraldine Farrar will star for Arctraft. It is by Jeanie Macpherson, who wrote "The Little American" for Mary Pickford. Walter E. Greene, president of Arctraft Pictures Corporation, in his announcement, says:

"It is a colorful and powerfully dramatic story of Aztec life, introducing the historic character of Monteruma and revealing the splendors of his court. Among the special sets is a tropical jungle, containing a lake for water fowl, the whole place fenced and covered with over 10,000 feet of wire netting, to prevent the escape of the animals and birds.

'The Woman God Forgot' will have the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille. He and a staff of research experts have been at work for many weeks preparing data for effects and costumes. We expect the cost of the tremendous special settings which will be built to run into figures which might be considered excessive if they did not pertain to so magnificent and important a production and so well known a star as Miss Farrar."

Goldwyn Adds Two in Scenario Room

Two additions have been made to the Goldwyn Scenario staff—Franklin B. Coates and Miss Catherine Sminek, of New York City.

Mr. Coates made the adaptation of "Popp"y" and "Pawns of Destiny."

Miss Sminek is the first member of the Columbia University class in photoplay writing to become associated with a producing company.

Alice Brady's Next Play is "Betsy Ross"

Alice Brady's next drama for World Pictures is "Betsy Ross," founded upon the historic play-making episode of Revolutionary times. This picture-play carries a love story punctuated with heroism and adventure.

It was written by H. A. Du Souchet from his own novel of the same name. Mr. Du Souchet also wrote the stage play, "My Friend from India."

Scenario Writers May Get $500 of Balboa Money

Five hundred dollars is offered by Horkheimer Brothers for a five-reel photoplay in which Jackie Sanders is to be featured. All photoplays submitted must be worked out in full continuity of scenes. All scripts must be submitted before November 1 and should be addressed to "Contest Editor, Balboa Amusement Producing Company, Long Beach, Cal."

A Most Talented Youngster Is He

Lawrence Johnson, the violet eyed youngsters who plays the Czarovich in "The Romanoffs," is only three years old, being born of Swedish parents in New York City, June 8, 1914. He comes by his histronic talent legitimately, for his mother was well known to the stage in her native land.

That he is versatile is amply proven by the fact that Herbert Brenon is casting him for a little girl's part in a play now under course of construction.

Balschofer Works on $100,000 Production

Three acres of ground have been added to the Metro studio at Hollywood, California. Director Fred B. Balschofer discovered that to properly stage "Paradise Garden" he would have to have more stage and studio room.

"Paradise Garden" is to be a seven reel Metro production. It is an adaptation of the popular novel from the pen of George Gibbs, and will have as its star Harold Lockwood.

Close estimates place the cost of this production at not less than $100,000 and it will require months to complete it.

Mack Sennett to Personally Stage His Comedies

The Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies, to be released under Mr. Sennett's new arrangement with Paramount, are to be staged absolutely under his own personal supervision from the time that the germ of the scenario is talked over until the finished film is finally cut in the projection room.

Mr. Sennett once converted a shanty into a vast motion picture organization. He has invented and perfected an entirely new type of motion picture comedy and discovered a new type of human being to play the kind of death defying roles which his imagination has conjured up.

John Drew's Godson is in "One Touch of Nature"

Mr. Bennett is of Yale '08, and an actor, baseball player and all-round athlete. He possesses many of the traits and characteristics of his godfather.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants is in the cast supporting Mr. Bennett in "One Touch of Nature." Violet Cain has the opposite leading part to Mr. Bennett. Peter B. Kyne wrote the story for the Saturday Morning Post.
"Wee Lady Betty" Is Title of Bessie Love's Play

Bessie Love herself selected "Wee Lady Betty" as the title of her new Irish play for Triangle. Many names were submitted to the title department, including "Irish Diplomacy" and "Killarney Blarney." Director Miller is a full-blooded Irishman; Miss Love proved her Irish extraction by winning her point; and among the names of the supporting cast are Hogan, O'Reilly and Shea. Frank Borzage, who has the leading male role, resembles an Irishman although his genealogical tree fails to substantiate the claim.

Richard Stanton Once More to Direct George Walsh

Richard Stanton is to direct George Walsh's next photoplay, in which he is to appear with Scene Owen as leading woman. Walsh and Stanton had this same relation before in a Fox play nearly two years ago — "The Beast." William Fox is quoted as saying he anticipates splendid results from the change.

Recently Mr. Stanton has directed Gladys Brockwell in "Her Temptation," and the Dustin Farnum company in four screen plays, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Durant of the Bad Lands," "North of Fifty-three" and "The Spy."

Warren Producing Play with Ball and Garden Scenes

One of the big attractions of Edward Warren's new production now being rapidly completed is a magnificent society ball, some of the scenes of which are laid in the open.

To secure the proper atmosphere for this, Mr. Warren personally inspected a number of the most exclusive homes around New York before he found what he wanted.

With the natural beauties of the garden and the decorations and lights furnished by the studio, it promises to be one of the most elaborate outdoor scenes ever attempted in motion pictures.

"The Penny Philanthropist" Being Filmed for Wholesome

Under the direction of Guy McConnell, motion picture producer and magazine writer "The Penny Philanthropist," by Clara E. Laughlin, is being filmed for the Wholesome Films Corporation.

Ralph Morgan, of the "Turn to the Right" company, has the leading role. M. J. Weisfeldt, manager, says production will soon begin on a serial picture after a story by McConnell.

"The Wholesome Films idea," asserted Guy McConnell, "has long appealed to me. I have wanted to be identified with just such an 'uplifting' move in motion pictures. However, as director general of Wholesome Films Company, I shall bend my every effort to an accurate mirroring on the screen of the author's point of view. In no way will the works of recognized good authors be sullied by cheap thrill injected by directors—in no way will false action be thrust upon the motion picture public in order to put the so-called 'punch' in mediocre stories."

Catherine Calvert as Orphan Girl in Play

"Think It Over," the U. S. Amusement Corporation-Art Drama in which Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker are starred, is directed by Herbert Blache, the author. Miss Calvert plays the role of Alice Rowland, an orphan, under the guardianship of George Barrow, for whom she has no liking. Alice's mother is asked by an old friend of hers, Henry Whitworth (Richard Tucker), to look after the girl.

Five Companies for Triangle-Keystone Comedies

Five companies are ready for action, and directors and people are engaged for several others at the Triangle-Keystone comedy studio opened this week in the old Fine Arts plant on Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal. All were with the old Keystone Comedy management.

The five companies now on the job are headed by Harry McCoy, Charles Avery, H. Haymaker, Reggie Morris and Harry Kerr.

Lots of Red Tape for Picture Indians

R. A. Walsh says it would be as easy to get a German into an American munitions factory as it seems to be to get an Indian off a United States reservation. He moved fifty Sioux from Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, to Los Angeles for the production of "The Conqueror" and ought to know.

He had to put up a $50,000 bond, show tickets both ways before leaving the reservation, agree that no Indian would get whisky, and guarantee that no harm would come to them. Only single Indians were loaned even under these conditions.

Fairbanks Don't Mind Aeroplanes

"After Bronchos"

"The experience had much the same thrill as attending riding a bucking broncho," remarked Douglas Fairbanks a few days ago, after zipping and dipping through the air at 75 miles an hour, from San Diego to Los Angeles, in an aeroplane piloted by Captain James Hogan, stationed at the government training camp near San Diego.
Goldburg Sums Up Independent Situation

Permanent Capital Is in Field—Public Demands Female Stars—Modern Society Drama Has Ousted Problem Plays, He Says

JESSE J. GOLDBURG, who has completed his special engagement as exploitation and service manager of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, returned to New York last week with a wealth of data and information concerning the independent market in the United States, as well as data concerning the wants of exhibitors and exchangesmen with respect to the character of productions and advertising and exploitation necessities.

"I believe," Mr. Goldburg states, "that the information I have gathered should be disseminated throughout the producing field in order that a more consistent and harmonious method of independent productions be instituted. And I believe that this information should be published in those journals devoted in part or in whole to the interests of the motion picture industry, and which are dependent upon by the exchange man and exhibitor for reliable information.

"First. The exchange and the exhibitor require and demand that each release be properly advertised, and often in the main trade journals. It is surprising to note how many of the fans, so called, read these publications. The exhibitor has no other means of keeping advised of productions excepting through advertisements and while the reviews are read and absorbed, they also look for the opinion of the producers themselves, and information and detail concerning a production that are not properly incorporated in a review.

"Secondly. Permanent capital has entered the independent field, and exchanges are now conducted along the lines of a real business institution.

"Thirdly. Western stars are employed the demand is that the lead be a female, and this seems to apply to every character of production, excepting where a precious two or three new popular male stars are exploited.

"Fourthly. Problem or sex plays are taboos. We have come back to the modern society comedy-drama that does not involve the eternal triangle, but the play must contain at least a semblance of a moral, and it is all the more acceptable if it is human in its evolution and strikes home—that is, if it is true to some phases of this complex life.

"Fifthly. A production with a sordid ending has always been, and is now altogether dreaded. No matter how wonderful the play, if the story leaves a bitter taste in one's mouth or causes a heavy heart, the exhibitor will not touch it; and the exhibitor is merely voicing the opinion of his patrons.

"Lastly. The exhibitor is willing, in fact, is really glad to pay a proper price for a real box-office attraction, for he knows what a box-office attraction is and will not let much stand in his way of securing it.

"The business was never in a more healthy condition. The war has lent an impetus to every branch of it, and there should be no such word as loss to the manufacturer who knows how to spend his money and where."

Trade Showing of Howell Comedies in Important Cities

With the coming of the Longacre Distributing Company into the Universal Exchange offices at 1600 Broadway, New York City, this busy little exchange is going at even a higher rate of speed than ever. The Longacre Distributing Company, while it has secured space in the Universal offices, is an entirely separate organization under the management in New York by W. S. Kelley. Mr. Kelley has a staff of salesmen already on the road, consisting of A. S. Dow, H. L. Murray and S. Abrams.

It is planned to follow up the big Broadway showing of the Alice Howell Comedies by a second showing in Newark, and other important points throughout the state—thus enabling all the exhibitors to see themselves the product before they are asked to sign a contract.

Mr. Kelley reports that already several of the largest circuits are engaging the first run on the Alice Howell Comedies, and that interest is running very high owing to the sustained advertising and publicity which has gone on for several months before the release date, which is set for September 1.

Many new ideas for the assistance of the exhibitor and co-operation in advertising are being formulated and instructions given to the salesmen concerning them. Altogether the Longacre Distributing Company seems to have started their campaign very auspiciously as far as New York is concerned.

Selznick Sells Canadian Rights to "Barrier"

The Barrier (Canada) Syndicate of which H. B. Wright, of Calgary, a well-known film and theatre man of Western Canada, is president and general manager, has purchased the Canadian right for the Rex Beach film, "The Barrier," from Lewis J. Selznick, who controls the world rights.

"The Barrier" will be released to Canadian exhibitors early in September. Mr. Wright was in New York last week conferring with the publicity department of the Selznick Enterprises regarding the immense publicity campaign that will be launched in Canada. He predicts that "The Barrier" will be one of the season's biggest successes in Canada. He says:

"It is purely a Canadian picture, its characters are Canadian, and the picturization was nearly all filmed in Canadian territory. Rex Beach is probably the widest read author in all of Canada, which taken together with the fact that 'The Barrier' has been such a big success everywhere, makes it a certainty of making a record in Canada."

The Superfeatures, Ltd., with head office in Toronto, will handle the distribution for Eastern Canada, while the National Film Service, Ltd., will handle the Western end.

Fourth Terry Burlesque Is Ready for Release

"His Trial," Exaggerating the Telling Points in "On Trial," Is Handled by the A. Kay Company

PAUL TERRY, creator of the Terry Feature Burlesques, a series of animated cartoons, has composed the important feature picture of the day, which has just completed its fourth subject, "His Trial."

"His Trial" is supposed to be a burlesque of "On Trial," the famous play of which a film adaptation has been made. The picture had its first showing last week in the offices of the A. Kay Company, New York City, and those who saw the cartoon picture express themselves as highly pleased with the subject.

The first of the series was "Twenty Thousand Frets Under the Sea," an animated version of Jules Verne's famous story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The second release was entitled "Golden Spoon Mary," which was a burlesque of Mary Pickford's success, "The Poor Little Rich Girl." The third of the series was entitled, "Some Barrier," and was based on the film version of "The Barrier," by Rex Beach. Although four have thus far been released, the Terry Feature Burlesques are fast gaining in favor, as is clearly evidenced by the many bookings that the exchanges handling this series, have received," says an official of the company. "The Terry Feature Burlesque is, as one of the trade papers remarked in a recent review, 'a diversion to the patron, and, when an unbiased opinion of this sort can be given, there must be a good reason to warrant it.'"

The story of "His Trial" is a rather novel one, and, although it does not hold very closely to the film version or play, the interest is manifest throughout. Paul Terry's character creation, "Farmer Alfalfa," is the star of "His Trial."

Exhibitors who have booked the former burlesque will find "His Trial" just as good, if not better, than any of the series they have booked thus far.

IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD
Merit Plans Extensive Operations

The scope of the operations of the Merit Film Corporation for the coming months will be greatly enlarged. By special arrangement I. E. Chadwick, general manager of the Ivan Film Productions, will supervise the management of the exchange, which will be conducted by Mr. Willis, who for some time has been the manager of the Boston branch of the Merit Film Company.

All Ivan releases, both regular and special, will be exploited by the Merit Film Corporation. Moreover, there are some special deals pending for exceptional productions of other companies which will be concluded in time for the fall season.

"Honest exchanges' interest in the industry is identical with that of the honest exhibitor," says Mr. Chadwick. "The exchange man should back up the productions that he handles in a co-operative way. It becomes a guarantee of his own confidence. "The success of 'One Law for Both' from the box-office standpoint, in not a little measure, can be ascribed to the fact that both the exchange and the exhibitor have co-operated to make the most out of the exploitation of the picture, and it is therefore no wonder that it is satisfactory to exhibitor, exchange and producing company."

Four Hoffman Exchanges Active

The activities of the various Hoffman-Foursquare Exchanges throughout the country are progressing in a satisfactory manner. Jerome Abrams, Eastern division manager, has just established the Philadelphia Foursquare Exchange at 1325 Vine street, and during the past week closed a number of important contracts, among which are: "The Bar Sinister" and "Her Fighting Chance" for the Poli theatre, Scranton; the Victoria theatre, Harrisburg, and eight prominent Philadelphia theatres. The St. Louis Foursquare Exchange, in charge of Sidney J. Baker, among a large number of bookings has placed "The Bar Sinister" for a week in Kansas City.

George W. Weeks, division manager of the Detroit Foursquare Exchange, taking care of Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, placed "The Bar Sinister" for a week at the Colonial theatre, Columbus, Ohio.

Prominent Figures Among "Romanoff" Characters

The characters in "The Fall of the Romanoffs," now in work under the personal direction of Herbert Brenon, include half a dozen international figures. The Czar and the Kaiser are both important characters in the story, and other notables who figure prominently in the action are the Czarina, the Grand Duke Nicholas, Prince Felix, Rasputin and, of course, Iliodor, the Mad Monk, this role being assumed by Iliodor, the real character.

All of these roles are being played by widely known film players," says a company official, "although in each instance particular care has been taken by Mr. Brenon to secure a man who as nearly as possible resembles the famous original. Edward Connelly is credited with a really remarkable characterization as Rasputin, the religious impostor, who was responsible directly for the overthrow of the Romanoffs Dynasty.

Hoffman Encourages Constructive Rivalry

"For the good of the organization!" appears to be the slogan of the selling staff of the M. H. Hoffman, Inc.-Foursquare Exchanges. Every member of the staff, from M. H. Hoffman down, is striving to help himself by helping the organization, and that means aiding each associate wherever possible.

"We encourage constructive rivalry," said Foursquare Manager, Hy Ginsborg, "because it makes for business building. And it is on this account that our selling staff is getting together and extending a helping hand to every associate.

"More than that, the Foursquare management possesses an open mind; it can be convinced, and the salesman who comes forward with a productive idea is encouraged and such a suggestion is eagerly seized where we believe it is right."

"M. H. Hoffman, our president and general manager, P. V. R. Key, manager of the sales and advertising, and I are ready at all times to listen to reason. In fact, we are for 'reason why' methods every minute of each day."

"Our staff comprises, Jerome Abrams, eastern division manager; George Weeks, division manager in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky; Sidney J. Baker, in charge of the Western Foursquare Exchange at St. Louis; George Hallett, territorial representative for upper New York State; J. E. Moyer and Ben Abrams for Pennsylvania, and for Greater New York those active, result-producing salesmen, J. C. Feilusch and A. Kram. It is surely a Foursquare selling staff in every respect."

Kram Joins Foursquare for New York City

Another important addition to the Hoffman-Foursquare Exchange selling staff is that of H. Kram, whose success during the past few years as a member of the Selznick and Fox selling organization, has brought him prominently before exhibitors.

Mr. Kram will devote himself entirely to selling Hoffman-Foursquare pictures in Manhattan. He will handle "The Bar Sinister," "The Sin Woman," "Her Fighting Chance," "Madame Sherry," "Should She Obey" and "A Trip Through China" in New York.

Mr. Kram is known as an able linguist, having fluent command of eight European languages.
Elimination of Waste Is Hoffman Plan

The Company Will Get in Direct Touch with Exhibitors Through Its Service Stations to Reduce Market Costs to Minimum

M. H. HOFFMAN, INC., New York City, is at work on a plan to get in direct touch with exhibitors for the purpose of eliminating financial waste in distribution.

"Our organization," said Mr. Hoffman, "serves in the capacity either as producers, distributors or world-right buyers, and sells direct to exhibitors through its Four- squares Service Stations. In this manner all the waste which commonly arises through any method of distribution which is not that, of what is in fact or practice, direct from manufacturer to consumer.

"According to the Hoffman distribution plan through its Foursquare Service Stations, exhibitors are to be given the full benefit of these financial savings. What is more, M. H. Hoffman, Inc. intends to see that the exhibitor gets the benefit of these savings.

"We seek prominent, reputable exhibitors to represent us in every territory, and, wherever it is possible to effect such an arrangement, such exhibitor will take the place of a Foursquare Service Station. M. H. Hoffman, Inc., invites communications from exhibitors of enviable reputation and such exhibitors who write, informing us what radius of territory each one covers, will find us ready to make an arrangement of the sort that will be gratifying to all exhibitors in each territory. Where there is an organization of exhibitors, M. H. Hoffman, Inc., will avail itself of the opportunity to deal direct with it, and where it is advisable we will place men and Foursquare Service Stations at the disposal of such an organization."

"What M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is aiming to do is to eliminate the financial waste in distribution, which at the present time is a freight tariff which exhibitors are unjustly asked to pay. All that our organizations seeks to make is a portion of the saving which we shall effect in eliminating waste in that distributing end of this business."

Beatriz Michena at Work on "The Dead Line"

BEATRIZ MICHELENA, celebrated prima donna motion picture actress, who recently paid a flying visit to New York City, and while here dropped the hint that news of interest to the picture trade would closely follow upon her return to the West, announced that she, accompanied by a large cast, has gone to Boulder Creek in the Santa Cruz Mountains, and is now producing for independent distribution a Western drama to be entitled "The Dead Line."

Written especially for her by Earl Snell, she selected it from an abundance of material submitted for her pretentious venture. Snell, who has won considerable recognition through his short story and magazine work, has been closely associated with Miss Michena during her entire motion picture career and has closely studied her work in her various roles and types.

A promised feature of the production will be its wealth of out-of-doors settings and early Western atmosphere. In this respect it is expected to rival "Salomey Jane," which, like the present production, was photographed most largely in the Santa Cruz Mountains, which constitute the very heart of California's scenic Wonderland.

The picture is being produced under the direction of George E. Middleton, who was similarly connected with Miss Michena in all of her previous film successes. William Pike, who for the past two years has been Miss Michena's leading man, is playing opposite her in "The Dead Line," while Albert Morrison and Clarence Arper, who, like Pike, have been with Miss Michena in most of her past productions, are playing roles of first prominence in the present cast. The entire organization formerly associated with Miss Michena, while with the California Motion Picture Corporation, has followed her to Boulder Creek. She plans on giving from three to four months to the production of "The Dead Line."

As an adjunct to the natural scenery of the Santa Cruz section, Miss Michena has had built specially for the picture a log cabin village of a score or more buildings. Besides an abundance of dwellings for the townfolk, that the scenario calls for, there is an adequacy of saloons, grocery stores, hotels, post and express office, and other business houses for the "make believe" community. The squat, haphazard village with its one long street flanked by hitching posts, watering troughs and rickety board sidewalks is evocative rich in the atmosphere of early California.

Another touch of the unregenerated West is added by Jack Millercr and his crew of champion cowboys and horses.

Maher, Film Pioneer, Is in Market for More Subjects

In the rapidly diminishing list of authenticated pioneers of the great motion picture business, a place rightfully belongs to Mr. James Maher, who, though comparatively young in years, is in the early forties, places a long period of effort and achievement in the film game to his credit.

To him belongs the distinction of being a pioneer exhibitor of Chicago, as fifteen years ago he started the "Jimmie" on lower State street in that city. Afterwards, in 1905, he and William H. Swan- son embarked in the exchange business at 79 South Clark street, Chicago, Ill.

After selling out his Chicago theatres and film business, he, with Bill Steiner and Herbert Miles, started the International Producing Company, in New York, which was the first to establish its own offices throughout the United States and Canada.

For the past few years, "Jim" as he is familiarly known throughout the trade, has been associated with Bill Steiner in the Photo Drama Company in producing, selling and booking their own productions. Recently he disposed of his stock in the Photo Drama Company. Mr. Maher has under consideration, several large propositions, and he is open to consider others.

"After the Ball," "The House of Bondage," "How Molly Made Good" are the names of some of the recent film successes with which Mr. Maher was involved.

He is considered an expert judge of the marketable value of films. His rating can be obtained by anyone sufficiently interested, from Bradstreet and Dun's, Chicago, and from several Chicago and New York banks. Mail will reach him at the offices of the Photo Drama Company, Candler Building, New York city.

Important Role for Carolyn Birch in "Babbling Tongues"

One of the important parts in the Ivan-Humphrey play, "Babbling Tongues," was assigned to Carolyn Birch.

After graduating from Notre Dame Academy, Lowell, Mass., with honors, Carolyn Birch devoted her time to art and music, but after a short time she joined the Vitagraph Company, where she played leading roles for three years, some of her best work being in "The Night of the Wedding," "Out of the Past," "Hereditas," "Butterfly's Lesson," "Father of Men," "Secret Seven," "Footlights of Fate," and many other successes, under the direction of William Humphrey. During her engagement with the Vitagraph Miss Birch won many admirers in parts that ranged from childhood to old age.

For the past season Miss Birch has been appearing in musical comedy, having been personally engaged by Henry Blossom for an important part in his Irish opera, "Elleen," which just closed a successful season at the Shubert theatre.

Competent critics have expressed their profound opinions that the character cast for Miss Birch could not have been placed in more capable hands, for she is at once sympathetic, dramatic, coy and lovable.
"Allah" Is Praised by Well-Known Writer

Maibelle Heikes Justice Is So Impressed with the Selig Production of Hichens' Novel She Makes Unsolicited Commendation on Its Worth

MAIBELLE HEIKES JUSTICE, photoplaywright and novelist, recently attended the premier of Selig's, "Garden of Allah" in Chicago. The picture produced such a favorable effect that, without solicitation, she sent to the company her impressions of the presentation. Her article gives for the first time one author's view of another's work.

"This is not a review of 'The Garden of Allah,'" says Miss Justice. "Others will review and pass judgment on its merits. But this is an intimate insight into some of its mysteries—the subtle touch of romance and realism which will cause many an onlooker to return and view again before the intoxicating spell of the desert shall fail from him. Like a rich wine, one will not wish to dispel its effect. One prefers to think under a dreamy haze of the lives and tragedy of Domini Enfilden and Boris Androvsky.

"This is one of the love classics of modern times. I do not doubt that in a hundred years from now this story will be classed with the love story of Romeo and Juliet, but while we could only read Shakespeare, we have in the pictured story of 'The Garden of Allah,' an epic of living photographic beauty which will last into posterity.

"In this production, you get right out of the place where you are living and land in the desert wastes of Algiers. In fact, so true are the details of the production, one is in Algiers. No real travelogue of the desert, the oasis of Beni-Mora, or the life of its strange and picturesque denizens could bring you more emphatically there. Colin Campbell, the Selig director, is a wizard. For here in the picture, one sees a race of wonderful and devout religion, the Mohammedan at home. The strange Sand Diviner of destiny is there, the quiet and patient camels, the insistent beggar of alms, the white-swathed figures of the Moor and the Arab, the Legion of Honor with the military touch of the French Zouaves, all give local color to this remarkable picture of Colonel Selig's.

"Not one detail of Robert Hichens' beautiful story is omitted. I thought as I looked on this picture, knowing the original novel so well—and its unfathomable love romance for a man's and woman's soul are stripped and wounded unto death—what if some regular staff writer had been permitted to scrutinize the book? No doubt, he would have changed it to a 'happy ending,' when, to reach its present inevitable tragedy, Hichens, the author, used all the beautiful construction and phraseology to be found in the English language.

"I do not believe a stranger marriage than that of Boris and Domini ever took place on the screen. Amidst an absolutely realistic sand storm, these two piloted their troth, which afterward accentuated the elemental tragedy of the desert. Santschi, as Boris, comes into his own in this picture; his repression of the emotion rending his soul is superb. Helen Ware felt and enacted the love and renunciation of Domini as a reality—it is not acting. The same can be said of all the cast—they were a part of the desert. One remembers the wondrous language of Hichens' novel—but here it is deeper impressed upon you by the beautiful Selig photoplay. These desert scenes—never monotonous—are a revelation. It is the greatest love story of modern times."

The Selig Company expects to institute an elaborate exploitation campaign on "The Garden of Allah" in the near future, full details of which will be announced later.

Lewis Picture Will Be Elaborate, Says Abrams

IN spite of the secrecy surrounding the next special Edgar Lewis picture, which is now being completed at Ticonderoga, New York, enough news has reached Broadway to cause considerable speculation in film circles as to the nature of the well-known director's new contribution to the screen.

Although Mr. Lewis has been working on his new production for two months, and has had his large company assembled at Ticonderoga, N. Y., for more than six weeks, the only definite news received has related to the fact that Mitchell Lewis, Hedda Nova, Victor Sutherland, William A. Williams, Ray Chamberlain, members of "The Bar Sinister" cast, and Mabel Scott and Edward Rossman, who played prominent parts in "The Barrier," including Joseph Heron, Philip Sanford, William Cavanaugh and Juanita and Alberta Meizer, will also be seen in the coming drama. The nature of the story and its title have never been mentioned, and are still jealously guarded, but Charles Feature Abrams, who visited the Edgar Lewis Company recently, managed to get some news past the Lewis "censor," which gives a hint of the importance of the production.

According to Mr. Abrams, a town consisting of twenty-seven buildings has been built by Mr. Lewis on the edge of a beautiful lake, three miles northwest of Ticonderoga. A church, a dance hall, a Hudson Bay Company post, a Northwest mounted police station, and even a Chinese laundry are among the structures erected, and the natives of that section of the country have named the village after its creator, calling it Fort Lewis.

Mr. Lewis had a dynamo installed to furnish electricity for temporary lighting, and is using the engines of two automobiles to run the dynamo. Among the effects he has already used in his picture is a big rain storm, for which water had to be supplied by drawing it through fire hose from the lake. As twenty-four hundred feet of hose was found necessary to accomplish this feat, the fire departments of Ticonderoga and Forty Henry had to be brought into service in addition to eight hundred feet of hose and a fire engine borrowed from Cohoes, New York.

The amount of construction work done by Edgar Lewis can be judged by the fact that one building is over sixty feet long, its interior being used by the director to stage large ensemble scenes, while its exterior is necessary to the photographing of important action in the main street of the town.

The photography is under the personal supervision of Edward Earl, who has selected the Craftsman Film Laboratories to do the printing and developing under the personal supervision of Charles Herlihy.

Mr. Lewis expects to return to New York with his picture completed early in August.

"The Spoilers" Sold for Michigan

The Barnett Film Attractions, Peter Smith building, Detroit, has added a third picture by buying the Michigan rights to Selig's "The Spoilers." This picture has been shown on a few occasions in Detroit but never in the leading houses.

Immediately after Barnett purchased this production he arranged for an indefinite engagement at the Detroit Opera House, at fifteen and twenty-five cents. "Joan the Woman," and "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" are the other pictures owned by this firm for Michigan.
Bud Fisher's Rise to Fame Is Like Romance

Creator of Mutt and Jeff Cartoons, Whose Work Is Now So Popular in Pictures, Tells Of His Struggle for Success

For the first time Bud Fisher has disclosed the full history of his famous characters "Mutt and Jeff." Great interest has always been attached to the origin of these celebrated cartoons, and who and what they are supposed to represent. Their rise to fame, and incidentally Bud's rise with them is like a story from the Arabian Nights," duplicated in the twentieth century. It is a story of a young man with ideas who made his ideas pay, and pay so well that they have placed him upon the pinnacle of success. Here is the true story of how Mutt and Jeff came into existence, as told by Bud himself, in a recent interview:

"About ten years ago I was holding down a job on the San Francisco Chronicle. It wasn't much of a job, and things didn't seem to be coming my way very fast, but I was plugged along waiting for an opportunity to give me a call, and pretty soon she did. The draft investigation started, with Burns after Spreckels and Schmidt, the political boss. I began a series of cartoons featuring a certain A. Mutt, and introduced a couple of Flicker Friends. I had a pretty good success with this, and my output was always high. Mutt was always ready to copy any idea, and pleasing."

"Then the excitement of the investigation had generally cooled down, and, owing to Mutt's popularity to continue the series, I looked around for some object of public interest to hang him on. The fact that Jim Jeffries at that time was considering re-entering the ring to uphold the prestige of the white man, offered an excellent opportunity. I sent Mutt to a sanitarium, and while there had him meet a man who thought he was J.J. Jeffries, and known to the inmates as Jeff."

"And Mutt became fast friends, and, in depicting the latter's activities, the former became quite as well known to the public. In fact, the combination became so appealing that I decided to let Jeff become a permanent fixture. They rapidly came to be very popular, and everything began to come my way. Newspapers were anxious to reproduce them, and just as I came to New York to sell them, I have continued drawing them up to the present time. From present indications it looks as though they will last for some time to come, for I really think they have found a secure place in the interest of the public."

"At this time I am drawing them for 278 newspapers, each paper paying me a certain amount for the territory covered, and each has a separate contract running for three years. Since 1910 I have used them as material for six or seven musicals which will each season, and publish the cartoons each year in book form for a sale of about a million copies. Then there are royalties on toys, advertising, and statuettes, not to mention the motion picture interest, which is the largest one of all.

"I have just taken the Bud Fisher Film Corporation under my personal direction, and am releasing a series of new one-reel comedies, one each week. There are fifteen in the series, and they have become even more popular among the cartoons. For of course, it is possible to get a variety of effects with an animated cartoon, which are impossible with an ordinary newspaper comic."

"One new feature, which has been devised in connection with the Fisher service to the exhibitor, is that the newspapers in all cities where theatres are booking the new Mutt and Jeff Pictures will give publicity in their columns gratis, receiving in return publicity in the theatres which will run a slide calling attention to the new series of cartoons in the newspapers. This is a reciprocal arrangement, which should be far-reaching in its results, bringing the newspapers to the exchange men, and the exhibitors together on a basis of mutual interest without additional cost to either party."

"In addition to this feature the Bud Fisher Films Corporation also is supplying all its exhibitors with a full line of interesting advertising which has great value in attracting audiences."

No Check on Inter-Ocean Shipments by Submarines

The uncertainties of overseas shipments resulting from submarine warfare has not affected, except in one instance, the export of film to England by the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, 220 West Forty-second Street, New York City.

"We are making regular shipments of films on most every liner leaving this country," says Henry J. Brock, president of the company, "and so far have lost only one set of negatives."

The company is doing business with the entire world and does not feel the effect of war conditions on its markets.

The Inter-Ocean Film Corporation maintains an office in London under the same name, which is under the management of John H. Taylor. The company occupies the whole building at 164 Wardour Street, W.C., London. The Paris branch, in charge of J. Rosen, is located at 43 Rue La Bruyere.

The Inter-Ocean Film Corporation at the present time controls the entire foreign rights for the Brady-Made World Film productions, also many other productions from well known manufacturers, which include comedies, serials, educational, drama and cartoons.

Aside from handling film productions for export, Speer carbons are controlled in foreign markets by the same concern, in fact, all the products of the Speer plant are sold through this house.

Paul H. Cromelin, vice-president of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, has been identified with the foreign market for many years particularly in England and on the Continent.

Ruth MacTammany WillAppear in Her Own Scenario

RUTH MACTAMMANY, star of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is now busily engaged in putting the final touches on the script for her next production, which will be directed by Hal Clarendon for the Newfields Producing Corporation. Miss MacTammany herself adapted the screen version of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" from the stage success, which had very little plot, so that making the "Alma" scenario was practically writing a new play.

The new production will start within a few days and not only the title of the picture but its theme is being kept secret, as the producers desire to spring a complete surprise on the public.

"When Miss MacTammany was in Italy pursuing her operatic career she had the opportunity to visit some of the finest motion picture studios in the world," says an officer of the company. "It was there that she started her creative writing and several of her scripts were made into successful productions in Italy. The script which she is now completing will be the first entirely original play by herself in which she has played the star role. Much of the picture will be taken in the White Mountains and many of the scenes will be novel to a degree and her sponsors are unanimous in their declaration that "Alma, Where Do You Live?" will retain most of its salient features.

"Make 'Em Roar" Mystery

The rumor is afoot in film circles that the "Make 'Em Roar" phrase, may after all, only turn out to be the slogan of a certain comedy-producing concern which is keeping its identity in the dark so as to hold those who have become interested in the phrase, at bay—at least for the present, until further announcements are made. While this rumor remains unconfirmed, there is little doubt that it may turn out to be true.

Exchanges and others connected with the motion picture business who have heard the phrase in use, have come to the conclusion that the particular producing and distributing concern is conducting a "teaser" campaign in connection with some films they are to release shortly. Last week, exchangers received a post card containing information to the effect that the lion was going to "Make 'Em Roar." The post card further stated that if the exchangers would look through the preceding issue of Motion Picture News, they would see some good reading matter about the "Make 'Em Roar" campaign.

An announcement comes to this magazine stating in part, that an expose of the "Make 'Em Roar" phrase will take place within the coming week or two.

Women to Pass on Films for Okmulgee, Okla.

Okmulgee, Okla., has passed a movie censor law. Five women have been appointed a board of censors, and will censor all films coming to Okmulgee before they can be shown on the screen.
Second Mayfair Subject Soon Under Way

Now that "Persuasive Peggy," the production in which Peggy Hyland makes her Mayfair debut, is ready for its trade showing, preparations are under way for the filming of the company's second picture.

Even after the final crank of the camera in "Persuasive Peggy," Miss Hyland found her efforts needed in the completion of this production. The little finishing touches were still necessary and her time was taken up with arranging these many details in cooperation with the members of the producing and artistic staff. The subtitles, by the author, Maravene Thompson, had to be placed in appropriate frames.

Now "Persuasive Peggy" is ready for the trade showing and the second Peggy Hyland-Mayfair production is coming in for its just share of attention. M. A. Schlesinger, president of the company, is not yet ready to announce the title of this offering.

The studios at 515 West Fifty-fourth street, New York City, are preparing for her return, and the carpenters and stage hands are occupied with the erection of sets. Each detail will receive every bit as much attention as it received in the filming of "Persuasive Peggy," and as soon as Miss Hyland returns from the country where she is resting for a short time before beginning work on the second picture, formal announcement of her next great vehicle will be made, and it is stated on reliable authority that Peggy will be given an opportunity to outshine the Peggy of Persuasive fame.

Gladys Brockwell in Fox Play by Randolph Lewis

Gladys Brockwell, the William Fox star, has commenced work on another new feature under the direction of Otis Turner, who made "To Honor and Obey?" just released. Randolph Lewis is the author of the script.

An unusually fine cast of supporting players has been assembled, the more prominent members of which are:

William Burress, Charles Clary, Bertram Grassby, Norbet Myles, Joseph Swickard, Frankie Lee and Marie Kiernan.

“The Double Standard” Booked by Keith Houses

Universal's New York exchanges, supervised by Sam Zierler, are booking the butterfly picture, "The Double Standard," by Frank Whitley, in such houses as Keith's, Palace, Criterion, Liberty, and other houses.

The new pictures by Universal of the revolution in Petrograd are being booked just as the first Pershing films were. Mr. Zierler says the business is booming.

Business is Good in Northwestern States

Sherman, Back in New York from Trip Through Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, Denies Report of Slack Times in Films in Those States

Despite stories emanating from the Northwestern territory which take a gloomy view of film conditions there, Harry A. Sherman, president of the Sherman Pictures Corporation of New York, returns from Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin with glowing reports of business enterprise in those states.

"While I must admit that the effect of the war has served to dampen the ardor of some of the Northwest exhibitors, and others have been on the anxious edge because of the extreme hot weather, conditions are far from the hopeless state that I had been led to believe. That particular section of the Northwest country comprising the two Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa offer a great field for the placing of products in the picture line, and while in the twin cities I opened negotiations with an aggregation of exhibitors who are desirous of taking both "I Believe" and "The Land of the Rising Sun" for Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana.

"In my opinion, the entire country, as well as Canada, will see a prosperous motion picture business during the next year—despite the war spirit, and to me, the business of buying and selling territorial rights will reach a point never before experienced.

"Having created no small amount of interest in "I Believe" and "The Land of the Rising Sun" by the trade showing made in Chicago under the personal direction of Edward O'Donnell, the Sherman Pictures Corporation selling force is facing a busy season of sales, for the influx of mail concerning both of these features is exceptionally heavy and promising."}

Frank Gersten, who recently consummated a deal whereby he became sole possessor of the "I Believe" rights for Northern New Jersey, has announced two special exhibitions of the George Leon Tucker subject for Newark. The first showing will be made for the approval of the Board of Censorship, while the second will be staged solely for the Northern New Jersey exhibitors.

A. J. Bimberg, of the Popular Pictures Corporation, handling the world rights on "Corruption," produced by Jack Gorman, has announced its sale for Greater New York, New Jersey and entire Europe.

A. E. Ward has purchased outright the exclusive rights for Europe, and it is his intention to exploit the picture abroad early in September. J. Massel is the purchaser of the New Jersey rights on "Corruption," while the Greater New York territory was sold to the Rosetwig Film Corporation for immediate delivery.

Jack Gorman is at present occupied in the production of a feature which is expected by the company to be equal to "Corruption." The production will not be ready for release until late in the fall.

Triangle Gets Praise for "Flame of the Yukon"

Walter Rosenberg, manager of the Savoy Theatre, New York City, has written to Triangle:

"The writer has been so busy that he has not had the opportunity to write you the fact that "The Flame of the Yukon," shown at the Savoy Theatre, was pronounced by one of the largest audiences that ever attended a performance in the house, the most satisfactory picture ever shown here."
"Hate" Is in Increasing Demand, Says Hirsh

President of Civilization-Pioneer Circuit Runs to Follow Showing

COMMENTING on the booking record made by "Hate," the seven-part drama of prenatal influence produced by the Submarine Eye Film Corporation, Gus Mohme, of the Biograph Laboratories, who has exclusive rights for all territories, says:

"When an independent buyer contemplates buying a production, his first consideration is the possible box-office value and the demand on the part of the exhibitors for the production. Next comes the quality of the production — direction, action, story, etc. This is the acid test. A production must stand if a buyer is to be interested, for he has no contracts with the theatre to supply them with a certain number of productions each year, regardless of their individual merit. Only after he is satisfied, in his own judgment, that a production has all the aforementioned qualifications will he consider negotiations.

"That the judgment of Nathan Hirsh and his associates in the Civilization-Pioneer Feature Film Company, who hold the rights to 'Civilization,' 'Redemption,' 'Submarine Eye,' and other productions for New York State, was right when he secured the New York State and Northern New Jersey rights to 'Hate,' is evidenced by the initial booking of sixty-seven days over the Marcus Loew Circuit in New York. Ten copies of 'Hate' will be shown in the Loew theatres the entire week of July 30-August 8. The publicity department of the Marcus Loew Enterprises have provided considerable advance publicity for this production, which includes 125 special twenty-four sheet stands."

Mr. Hirsh reports several other large circuit bookings to follow this run, as well as a large number of bookings from leading theatres in New York State and Northern New Jersey.

The New England territory is controlled by the Globe Feature Film Corporation of Boston, who have "Enlighten Thy Daughters," "On Trial," and other productions of note, which will probably close for a run in a large Boston theatre for the latter part of August. This production should do especially well in New England, as the theme of the story is taken from the court annals of the trial of a prominent Boston physician who was murdered by his own son in whom prenatal influence had sown the seed of hate. The trial at that time, about three years ago, received unlimited newspaper publicity in the Boston and New England newspapers and was the theme of unlimited comment through a very wide and diversified area.

Negotiations for other territories are well under way, and exhibitors desirous of first runs in their localities should communicate with the above-mentioned exchanges or Gus Mohme, care of the Biograph Laboratories, 706 East 176th street, New York, and they will be promptly informed who has bought their territory.

Burton Holmes, for Paramount, Goes Through Yellowstone

Burton Holmes, Paramount's traveler, in his seventy-eighth of the series of weekly pictorials, will take his fellow voyagers to see the "Geyers of the Yellowstone." This picture will be released on August 6.

To visit the world's wonderland—the Yellowstone Park—in company with Burton Holmes is described as a treat as well as a liberal education in the mysterious and uncanny forces of the under world.

Universal News Film Shows Naval Recruits

Scenes incident to the war predominate in the 82nd issue of the Universal Animated Weekly just released.

Naval recruits are shown at their training station near San Francisco going through the various tactics that will fit them to be regular war dogs within a few months. A sham battle on Goat Island in which the boys take part adds a dramatic punch to the scenes.

Publicity Campaign for "Natural Law" by Hesser

THE Hesser Publicity Bureau, 107 West Forty-seventh street, New York City, will conduct an extensive advertising campaign for "The Natural Law," featuring Marguerite Courtot, supported by Howard Hall and George Larkin, and produced by Charles H. France, of the France Film Corporation.

The basis of the picture is stated in the preliminary announcement on the screen—"When God created the world he made a law and wrote it upon the heart of every man and woman—the law of attraction—sex attraction. Every man and woman has felt the almost irresistible force of that law."

The story is based upon a beautiful young girl, who becomes engaged to a doctor of mature years, who genuinely loves her and has befriended her family. In him, to her, there is no sex attraction. Finally she meets a boy of her own age—a champion marathon runner. His youth appeals to her and wins her love. She gives her engagement ring back to the doctor, and then it is that the young love of boy and girl forgets the bounds beyond which there is sorrow in crossing. The girl's love for the boy turns to hate. The doctor urges that she marry the boy for the honor of her name, but she refuses. In a series of situations there is developed one of the strongest lessons of the world—that the new baby lives coming into the world are a God-given gift, and that if the natural law is followed, and not desecrated, all will come out for the best.

The production is an elaborate one, and the film is now being prepared for a trade showing. The publicity campaign will be under the direction of the Hesser Publicity Bureau.

Bessie Love, Triangle Star, at Work on Irish Picture

"Wee Lady Biddy," the new Irish picture upon which Bessie Love is now working for Triangle, is said to give her many opportunities. Plans are being made to advertise it as a special box-office attraction, although it will go on the regular program.
Standard Issues House Organ for Middle West

Publication Designed to Help Sale of Art Dramas and King-Bee Comedies Will Contain General Information for Exhibitors

R. C. CROPPER, president of the Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., distributors of Art Dramas and the Billy West comedies in the Middle West, announces that in response to numerous requests received from exhibitors the organization will issue a monthly house organ. The name of this publication will be Fax, and its object will be to help the exhibitor to do a bigger business with Art Dramas and with the Billy West comedies.

Departments of special interest have been provided, such as "The Operator's Arc," "Ideas and Advertising," and a department for the exchange of ideas between exhibitors, which will also be a department of questions and answers. No effort will be spared by the editor, Phil L. Ryan, the sales and advertising manager of the Standard, to make the house organ really helpful and interesting to the exhibitor right from the start. He has sent out a request that exhibitors co-operate with him in getting out each issue of the publication by contributing their opinions as to what they would find of interest.

A great amount of interest has been shown by exhibitors in the announcement that the Billy West comedies will be distributed by the Standard. Letters have been arriving every day at the various offices of the concern since the sending out of a large folder announcement. From the amount of active interest evidenced, Mr. Cropper feels that he is justified in being confident of a very considerable amount of business on these comedies. Special representatives have been appointed and these men will go into the larger towns and cities in the territory of the Standard this week.

Fifteen thousand cutouts of Billy West as he appears in his comedy, "The Hero," were ordered by the Standard for distribution at the convention in Chicago. A previous distribution of these cutouts through the mails made quite a hit with exhibitors. So much so, in fact, that these cutouts are to be used by the exhibitor as a sort of throwaway novelty when he shows his first Billy West King-Bee production. These cutouts are especially appealing to children, and of course every exhibitor realizes the importance of pleasing and catering to the little people a trifle more than to the grown-ups.

The Exhibitors' Aid Department of the Standard is looking forward to working overtime in helping the exhibitors with the Billy West releases. As a great deal of advertising matter has been prepared for the use of the exhibitor. Novel stunts have been originated that are thought to be of real business-drawing value to the exhibitor. The large Billy West Campaign Book, prepared at great expense, is to be in the hands of the exhibitors by the close of the coming week, and this will contain much that the live exhibitor will find of unusual interest.

Publicity Campaign for Wharton Film Is Aim of Green

JOHN C. GREEN, the Dominion showman and exhibitor who recently purchased the Canadian and Alaskan rights of Wharton's "The Great White Trail," and established offices in the Temple Building, Galt, Antioch, as a point of distribution, has planned a wide exploitation of the pictures for exhibitors across the line.

"I want every exhibitor who has any business dealings with me to be more than satisfied," says Mr. Green. "I intend to handle other Wharton features in the future and I want those exhibitors to come back. More than that, when they do come back, they're going to get just as good a deal as they got the first time. I've been an exhibitor myself and I know what should be done to please the man upon whom devolves the showing of a picture. I know that every bit of aid that is possible should be given to him, and that is exactly what I intend to do with the distribution of 'The Great White Trail.'

"I have figured out the matter of cost in Canadian distribution through my rather long experience in the picture business in the Dominion, and in the handling of 'The Great White Trail.' From the print on through to the heralds and press books, I intend to distribute in such a way as to give a maximum of profit to the exhibitor and myself, and there's nothing philanthropic about the matter either—a wider distribution will mean the same profit in the long run and the only difference will be that a lot more persons will profit by the plan."

Artist and Etcher of Note Is Designer of "Alma" Posters

UNUSUAL posters for "Alma, Where Do You Live?" have been designed by Paul Roche, the noted artist, who is perhaps best known as an etcher, though his color work has received international recognition at leading exhibitions. Ralph W. Horne, president of the Newfields Producing Corporation, who presented Ruth MacTammany in the title role of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" the screen adaptation from the famous stage success, declares that it is well worth while to spend a large sum on lithographs.

"Wise exhibitors are laying greater stress on good paper every day," he said. "Motion pictures have so far advanced in the last year that the most modern newspaper cover with every other sort of advertising—not only theatrical but that of the nationally advertised manufactured products. When it is remembered that national advertisers often spend thousands of dollars on their poster designs, it can be realized why the ordinary motion picture poster is not strong enough to stand out in competition with commercial posters on the same billboards.

"Feeling that such a big film as 'Alma' requires billing of the highest standard, we decided upon posters by Roche. The designs he has made are radically different from the usual type of lithograph, the coloring being decidedly futuristic in character. Roche is an expert on the psychological effects of coloring and color combinations, and compares these "harmonies" and "disconsonances" of coloring in art work to the similar terms in music. The difference, he declares, is that in art the most clashing colors often combine in a composition with startling and delightful effects.

The "Alma" series done by Roche includes twenty-fours, sixes, threes and one sheets. A portrait of Miss Ruth MacTammany, the star, done in pastel, will be one of the most interesting of the posters.
Realignment of Northwest Is Not Necessary

Winstock of Seattle Does Not Accept Goldburg's Suggested Division of Territory Comprising Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana

MELVIN G. WINSTOCK, general manager of the Schlaifer Attractions, Seattle, does not agree with Jesse J. Goldburg, special exploitation and service manager of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, who on his recent trip through the country, decided after a survey of the Northwestern independent field, that the present territory should be realigned.

In respect to Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, Mr. Winstock says:

"We who have lived here many years, and who were at the birth of pictures as an industry and an art, thought that, perhaps, we might be taken into consultation, but, on the contrary, we find that absent treatment has been given Montana, and thirty-six hours each in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"Long experience has demonstrated that Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana can be operated together in excellent shape, and those who have secured control of features for this division upon proper conditions have been fairly successful.

"Arbitrary allotment of territory is not the most important thing at issue just now. Some effort devoted to a higher quality of productions, the disposal of the productions at a fair margin of profit to the purchaser, efficient sales aids to enable the buyer to put over the purchase at a reasonable profit, better pictorial paper, keener and more incisive publicity are things which will be far more acceptable to the trade in general. Further, we need greater simplicity and more honesty in advertising, and in the future an avoidance of the policy of trying to transform failures into independent selling successes, through the medium of vast publicity campaigns. In other words, we are going to fight in the future against extraction from the buyer of abnormal prices for very indifferent goods.

"We venture to predict that the men who invest real money in the purchase of independent rights will themselves settle the question of territory and not the railroads, and the trade will find in the final analysis that the producers will sell as much or as little territory as the buyer can buy and pay for."

Universal Shows Moving of Giant Lens Under Guard

Clear-cut photography and timely subject give distinction to the 81st issue of the Universal Animated Weekly, just released.

Scenes showing the transportation of a giant glass lens to the observatory on the summit of Mount Wilson, California, under armed guard, will be sure to arouse interest.

Other scenes show the welcome accorded the returning Belgian Commission at St. Paul, Minnesota; an exhibition of rough horses by a detachment of United States cavalry at Portland, Oregon, before leaving for Kyoto; demonstrations in military bridge construction by a company of United States engineers in Lincoln Park, Los Angeles, and the annual Rodeo, or cowboys frolic, at San Jose.

Wisconsin Plans for One Deposit and Association Banking

The Milwaukee Photoplay Exhibitors' Association, under direction of Jack Grauman, president, has worked out a plan to do away with deposit bookings, and at the same time protect the exchanges.

The association itself would become responsible for prompt payment by each member exhibitor, and would make good all losses. The exhibitor would make one deposit to the association, not to any exchange. Each member in good standing having made his deposit would be given an authorization, the card showing the association stands behind him.

All disputes would be referred to a Grievance Committee with full power of settlement. It is believed the plan will appeal to exhibitors all over the great State of Wisconsin.

New Safety Film, "The Rule of Reason"

"The Rule of Reason" is a new picture meant to inculcate rules of safety among employees of the New York Central Lines. It was written by Marcus A. Dow, general safety agent of the road, and also produced under his direction. He wrote the script for a previous play "The House That Jack Built."

One ingenious idea in the screening is developed when the chairman of a safety committee turns the pages of his report. The accident described on each page is shown on the screen as he reads.

The picture will be shown on two New York Central Lines motion picture cars which really are traveling moving theatres.

Dorothy Phillips Gives Flag to Regiment

When the boys of the Seventh Regiment of Infantry, National Guard of California, march to battle "somewhere in France," they will carry with them a new silk flag—the gift of the motion picture people of Los Angeles.

The emblem was presented to Colonel Charles F. Hutchins, commander of the regiment, by Miss Dorothy Phillips, Bluebird star, in the presence of the officers of the regiment and a large number of producers, actors and actresses, the ceremony taking place at Edendale, near Hollywood.

"The women of California will pray night and morning for your safety while away from our Golden State," Miss Phillips said.

Week's Booking Successful

First-run films were presented for an entire week in Edmonton, Canada, with entire financial success. It is a city of 40,000 population.

The achievement is to the credit of Max Allen, manager of the Monarch theatre.

With the week of July 9 Mr. Allen finished his first month using one feature film a week instead of two and three features as hitherto. His programs consist of Paramounts, Selznicks, Artcrafts and the official British war films, which have won considerable favor in Canada during the last year.
Piedmont in Deals for Many Features

The "Jimmie Dale" series was closed for by the Piedmont Pictures Corporation last week, according to an announcement made by Joseph Lamy, export manager, and the films shipped to Spain and Portugal. In addition several big features, the names of which are not announced, were bought for the Far East distribution. A number of pictures were bought for South America.

"Mysteries of Myra" were taken for Argentina by the Piedmont Company, and the Ivan pictures "Sex Lure," "Two Men and a Gun," "Surrender," were also taken for Argentina. The Paris office of Piedmont reports important arrangements made for the distribution of the Oliver Moroso films, and the output controlled by the home office, in Spain, Portugal, France and Switzerland.

Unique House Organ for Foreign Buyers

J. Frank Brockliis, Inc., 729 Seventh avenue, New York, are issuing a bulletin for circulation among buyers of motion picture films in all countries outside the United States. The bulletin takes the form of an illustrated catalogue fully descriptive of a large list of films released on the open market. The nature of the bulletin will at once be realized when it is stated that Brockliis handles the world's rights of such pictures as "The Deemer," "The Barrier," the Billy West Comedies, "The Land of the Rising Sun," the U. S. Navy, "The Canadian Army," the A-Kay Productions, Moty Comedies, and many others.

Purchase C. K. Young Feature

Millard Johnson of the Australasian Film Company last week bought "Trilogy," the World-Equitable production with Clara Kimball Young in the title role, for Australia.

"Trilogy" was released several years ago, but the popularity of Clara Kimball Young among the film fans in the Antipodes, and the fact that there have been no recent pictures made with this star, led Mr. Johnson to close the deal.

To date the Australasian corporation has bought every film in which Miss Young had the title role for Australian distribution.

Gigantic Deal Being Put Through for Entente Market

R. R. Nehls, manager of the American Film Company's plant here, left Chicago for New York last week where he will enter negotiations for the closing of an important deal for the showing of American features abroad.

Marked Lack of Good American Films in Orient

Indo-China, India and Philippine Islands Have Many Theatres and Want Good Pictures—Europeans Reap Profit of American Neglect

This is the second article on film conditions in the Far East written by a well posted traveler who has just returned from the Orient.

Going farther south from China, Hanoi, which is in Indo-China, the French possessions is one of the first ports. The place had one theatre patronized by the foreigners and the natives. Of course, most of the films were French ones, but it seems to me that stories are so well connected today that the difference of the language in the titles would make little or no difference. A number of Americans there whom I asked about the matter and several Frenchmen were of the same opinion. Farther up, a few hours on the train is Hanoi, quite a place, and the cinema there was well patronized.

Saigon is the most important city in Indo-China and is one of the most modern in that part of the country. The two theatres there were well equipped and did a good business. The music was very good and the projection was fair. I talked to one of the principal exhibitors and the only American films he had ever used were some old Biograph and Vitagraph productions, the subtitles of which he remade and shipped about the country.

At Phnom-Penh, where the King of Cambogia holds out, the theatres did a good business and although most of the natives could not read, the pictures were very much in favor.

Singapore and India in general is a great deal like Hong Kong so far as films are concerned as the majority are English and French affairs. Rather than fill the exchange theatres and getts the bulk of the business. In fact this company is the best represented of any in the Far East.

Leaving India and going across the China Sea to the Philippine Islands is almost like landing in San Francisco, for Manila is a typical American town. Of course it sleeps during the middle of the day but the theatres were all modern and doing a good business.

The Lux and the Savoy are the two best houses there and both were up to date houses in every respect. I think that they both have seating capacities of about 1,200 or 1,500.

Of course the mingling of the Spanish people make them like the French and Italian films, but they seemed to enjoy American films too. The natives would rather be at some sort of performance than to eat and all are steady patrons. Several concerns in this country have exchanges over there, but just why they have never gotten after the business of the other parts of the Orient was a mystery to me which remained unsolved.

No one was able or seemed to want to tell me how many theatres there were in the islands but if Manila may be taken as the gauge then they must be rather thickly sown. They did not seem to be so keen about serials as they were about good strong five-reel subjects and lively comedies.

The old pie in the face stunts still get over with them, for their sense of humor in the majority of instances calls for a physical display. To be sure the foreigners who have settled in the country like subtle humor but it must be remembered that they don't fill the houses all the time. This makes a middle course necessary.

Entire Program Wanted in Russia—Inter Ocean Activities

Through the London office, the Inter Ocean Company has received cabled advice that there is an opening in Russia for a program of fifty-two pictures a year, and in addition a line of comedies can easily be placed.

The Inter Ocean Company places the World program in Russia. Henry J. Brock, president of the corporation points to the demand for more American pictures in Russia, as a sign of the conditions prevailing in that market, conditions which if taken advantage of, will he declares, make the fortune of some of the more enterprising film men.

"There is a deartl of raw stock in Russia," said Mr. Brock last week. "A man could make his mark if he took out three to five million feet of film. This he would not even need to take into the interior but could dispose of at Vladivostock. There is really no difficulty in shipping to Russia, despite reports of exporters. We manage to do it each week. The answer is efficiency in organization. I can make the same claim on shipments to Holland, which we make regularly, but which are said by some to be impossible. Russia now is a fertile field. American manufacturers not doing business in that country now are making a big error."

Inter Ocean during the last week disposed of "The Crimson Stain Mystery" in Holland, one of the few remaining territories still open on that picture. "The Whip" and "Bought and Sold For" were also placed in Scandinavia.

Word was received from agents in Brazil that "Enlighten Thy Daughter" played there by the Inter Ocean Corporation was going big and promised record breaking results.
Aided by the broad-mindedness and good judgment of Judge Sabbath, of the Chicago courts, the plucky and persistent fight of the Paramount-Artcraft Company against Major Funkhouser, Chicago's censor in chief, has resulted in a victory and a permit for "The Little American." For nearly two weeks now Chicago's motion picture fans have been seeing this latest Mary Pickford picture, and no doubt will continue to see it indefinitely, regardless of the ruling of Funkhouser that "it is against the German people; objectionable to a friendly nation," and other startling reasons he assigned at the time that brought critics, denouncers, and even accusers buzzing around his ears from all over the country.

Even after the writ of mandamus had been granted by Judge Sabbath, Chief Schuettler and others, who have been backing up Herr Funkhouser, refused for a time to issue the necessary permit. They claimed that an appeal was to be made to the Superior Court, and that pending that appeal the permit would be withheld. Judge Sullivan, in that court, refused to listen to the city authorities, and when Attorney Schwartz, for Artcraft, threatened Chief of Police Schuettler with contempt of court, the permit was quickly granted.

Thus it was said the most sensational development of the entire controversy was forestalled by the chief's action.

Reel Fellows Did Share in Convention

The Reel Fellows Club, of Chicago, were responsible for one of the most pleasant events of the turbulent convention and successful exposition. It was the grand ball that wound up the program on Saturday night at the Hotel Morrison. Fans, exhibitors and their wives and friends and a goodly quota of stars attended the ball.

As a result of the voting contest held all week during the exposition, Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig were selected from the huge list of stars as the winners and leaders of the grand march.

Well-Known Scribe to Write Picture Play Series

Jack Lait, the well-known Chicago newspaper writer, author of the "Black Stork" and other film productions, has signed a contract with the Chicago Tribune to write a series of motion picture plays for that paper to be exploited by them. He will commence on September 1. They are to be based on Mr. Lait's stories, and will be known as the Lait-Tribune Pictures.

The Tribune is arranging with other papers throughout the country for the publication of Lait's stories in syndicate fashion, prior to their showing on the screen.

Leaks in the Loop

There seems to be something missing in Chicago now that the epoch making and turbulent convention of ten days ago has passed into history. The Coliseum, Hotel Morrison and Sherman Hotel are lonely spots these days.

And now that it is all over Bryant Washburn, of Essanay, finds himself flooded with offers for his services we hear.

Harry Weiss has signed a contract for another year as manager of the Lewis J. Selznick Productions of Chicago.

F. M. Brockell, the manager of the local Goldwyn office, reports that contracts have been coming in in great shape for the fall bookings.

It was through the efforts of Wattersen R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Company, who is a member of the Navy League and one of the original members of the United States War Cooperation Committee, that the sanction to have the navy band of the Great Lakes Station, appear at the Coliseum during the exposition, was secured.

President Samuel S. Hutchinson, of the American Film Company, has left the city for his periodic inspection of his large picture holdings in California.

Paul F. Kuhn, of Burnett-Kuhn, left the city on Tuesday's Century for New York. C. W. Eckhardt arrived at the Fox Chicago offices last week. Mr. Eckhardt we understand is to be temporary western district manager in place of Herry Leonhardt, who has gone with Goldwyn.

Ed. Manley, formerly connected with Sherman-Elliott, has joined the Fox forces and is to be the Chicago office manager, in charge of special releases and Fox comedies. Jack O'Toole is to continue in charge of the supervision of the newly announced Standard pictures policy.

Samuel M. Fields, general counsel for Mutual is sojourning in summer style at Lake Vermillion and other spots throughout Wisconsin.

Terry Ramsaye, head of Mutual's publicity department, is receiving considerable praise for his efforts in compiling the catalogue of plays of that company just gotten out and distributed. It contains 1,294 Mutual releases and it is estimated the cost of production for these totals $15,000,000.

The general offices and factory of the American Film Company here hold twelve men ready to respond to the draft call. Bob McKnight from whom all this information comes generally has enlisted as a student aviator in the Signal Corps Officer's Reserve.

The Sunshine Film Company reports that they are completing with much success with their two-reel record of the American Speedway Derby held in Chicago on June 16, featuring Barney Oldfield and others.

Advertisements Hold Meeting

On Tuesday of convention week at Chicago, the Executive Committee of the Advertising Film Producers' Association of the World met in session at the Rothacker Studio here. Those present were: President W. A. Harris, of Cincinnati; W. R. Rothacker, vice-president, of Chicago; R. Y. Stambaugh, secretary, of Cleveland, Ohio; Fred C. Laffin, treasurer, of Chicago; Joseph Brandt, of New York, and Herbert Andrews, of Washington, D. C., committee men.

Ways and means were devised and discussed for the broad extension of this organization and its work, and a special meeting was called for August 27, to be held again at the Rothacker Studios in Chicago. During the executive session motion pictures were made of the members in action. These will be combined with the official motion pictures taken of the Admen's Convention at St. Louis, and will be shown throughout the country.

On the day following the executive session the members made a tour of inspection of the Rothacker laboratory and studio. They went over every detail and witnessed the showing of Mr. Rothacker's special film, "From Studio to Screen." A motion picture made of the delegation before departing will be sent to C. Francis Jenkins, president of the Motion Picture Engineers, at Washington, D. C., where it will be kept as a matter of official record.

New Company with Wide Scope Formed by Watkins

When M. G. Watkins resigned as secretary and general manager of the American Standard Motion Picture Company, of Chicago, a month ago, he refused to reveal what his plans for the future were at the time. Now comes the announcement from Mr. Watkins himself that he is heading his own company, the M. G. Watkins, Inc., an organization formed to handle national and world rights for independent manufacturers. Associated with him will be Walter A. Baier, of Milwaukee, general manager of the Baier Film Company, and A. H. Grey, for many years a leading exhibitor of Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

The new concern has already secured offices in the Mallor's Building in Chicago and the Knickerbocker Theatre Building in New York. A branch has been opened in the Toy Building, Milwaukee. Immediately after the close of the exposition last week, Mr. Watkins left Chicago for the New York office to supervise the sale of two state rights productions they have already secured.

The policy of the new company will be one that aims to aid the independent manufacturer from every possible angle. The men identified with the new project have all had many years experience in the motion picture business.
Mayor Commends Exhibitors in St. John, N. B.

Four of the theatres in St. John, N. B., were given over for Red Cross and patriotic affairs last week. Slides are shown, the theatre give the use of the lobby, in fact, everything they can do to help they are ready and willing to do.

The Mayor recently said the theatre-owners were among the very best-citizens.

Ten Days in Washington for "Garden of Allah"

"The Garden of Allah" has had a successful run of ten days at the Belasco theatre, Washington, D. C. The mounting of this play, the desert stage-setting, a pantomimic prologue and incidental vocal solo the appropriate to the story marked this as an artistic presentation.

London, Ont., Council Refuses High Tax on Movies

A special committee composed of members of the city council of London, Ont., had their plans frustrated by that civic body when their recommendation to tax the moving pictures theatres of London $500 was defeated by the council. The maximum theatre tax was placed at $200.

Mutual has a colony of bathers and "beach birds" who spend all of their spare time at the Wilson Avenue beach these days. It is made up of D. J. Sullivan, general manager; Arthur S. Kirkpatrick, of the sales force; Leslie E. Davis, of the employment department, and Hunter Bennett, Chicago branch manager.

Kenneth Hodkinson has been recently appointed assistant manager of Pathe's local office. He has had a long and varied film experience and is the son of W. W. Hodkinson, former president of Paramount.

Fred Herrington, formerly national organizer for the M. P. E. L. and now one of the leading figures of the newly born and husky American Exhibitor's Association and "Judge" Tugwell, of California, are still in Chicago attending to the details of the organization of the new exhibitor's organization.

The Rothacker Film Company wishes to extend its thanks to Ots Thayer, of the Wholesome Film Corporation and Rex Weber, of the Titan Film Company for their proffer of services as directors of the studio stage during the exhibitor's exposition.

The Chicago offices of the Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc., of which Harry Weiss is manager, is about to undergo complete alterations. The increase of business necessitates a larger shipping room and more office space.

Dynamite Left for One Cleveland Exhibitor

The Milo Theater, Cleveland, O., just escaped being the scene of a serious accident when a box was discovered containing six lighted dynamite sticks. The dynamite had been placed directly over the entrance door, and it had escaped notice until later in the day, the theatre, the adjoining houses, and all their occupants would have been blown to kingdom come.

How it was placed there and by whom are matters of deep mystery, but ever since the theatre was taken over by Charles Papp last fall, he has been annoyed with union pickets, and bombs emitting foul and injurious odors. The dynamite sticks were instantly removed to the police station and every effort is being made to locate the responsibility for this latest outrage.

Nova Scotia Censor Finds Approved Comedies Offensive

A. E. Wall, who is himself the board of censors in Nova Scotia, when passing through St. John on his way to New York, last week, said:

"Although the comedies sent out from New York by the various film companies are censored before they arrive at St. John, I find many of them so objectionable I must condemn them. I think it is their right to take the action as vulgar—that is true, too—but the whole plot and ideas are offensive."

Special Kansas Film for the Wheat Drive

A film of about two-thousand feet in length is being prepared for the Kansas Council of Defense to help the Council in its wheat drive. The picture will be shown throughout the state. The title of the picture is "Winning With Wheat." The scenes are typical Kansas scenes, with Kansas farmers filling the principal roles and a Kansas girl in the leading woman's part.

"The Slacker" Goes Well in Kansas City

"The Slacker," the new Metro patriotic picture, was enthusiastically received at the Twelfth Street theatre where it had its first public showing in Kansas City, Mo. The people attending the showing caught the spirit of the picture and waved handkerchiefs.

Metro in Michigan to Distribute Chaplin Films

In Michigan the new Charlie Chaplin comedies will be released through the Metro Film Corporation of Michigan, which is owned by John H. Kunsy and George Trendle.
The One Best Bet of the Week

Neal Hart in a Powerful Western Drama—"Squaring It"—Thrilling 101-Bison—Released Week of Aug. 20

Neal is hiding there, and as Neal leaves, holds him up and proposes that if he will rob the stage that night he will let him go free instead of informing the sheriff of his whereabouts. He tells him another man will meet him to divide the spoils. Joe tells the settler he has a job for him and tells him to go to the meeting place. When Neal and the settler meet they realize they have been double-crossed. Telling the settler to hide out Neal rides to town but finds Joe is at the cabin and arrives to find him struggling with the wife. He shoots Joe, the shot calls the sheriff and his men—and then comes the surprise climax and the punch that will fascinate your fans. Book this quick and boost it hard.

Two One-Reel Joker Comedies

Wm. Franey in "Behind the Map" and Gale Henry in "Mrs. Madam Manager"—Released Week of Aug. 20

Did ever see this Franey teach suicide? Some teacher, believe me. He makes two mistakes. He makes one to the舞台 huky's benefit and the reason for his disappearance "Behind the Mag" as the play is titled, has to do with a little black bottle Bill makes too frequent use of. When the map falls down Bill is sure in bad. This is a scream and the laughs come every foot.

Everyone who has ever seen Gale Henry on the screen knows how fast she works, but she beats her record in this one-reel Joker—"Mrs. Madam Manager." She runs a theatre; bosoms her hubby, who leads the orchestra; sells tickets and collects them at the door; is stage hand and bill poster and usher and scrub woman. What she does when hubby falls for a chorus girl makes good fun.

"A Five Foot Ruler"

Gee Entertainment in this 2 Reel Victor—Week of Aug. 20

Carter de Havex is a master of clever comedy drama. He is the "Five Foot Ruler" in the Victor of that name and he rules a South American country as prime minister, having been given the post by his prospective father-in-law in gratitude for services. His father has disowned him. The old man owns mines in the little republic, and gets in bad with the natives. He comes for protection to the president, who refers him to the prime minister—his own disowned son. There is all kinds of comedy punch stuff throughout and the ending is a scream. Everyone will like this hugely.

Universal Current Events

Overseas news is especially interesting just now and thousands of exhibitors are taking advantage of the fact by booking Universal Current Events, the news weekly release that is featuring subjects which "are making the world's history," at the present day. American soldiers in France; the 4th of July celebration in Paris, with intimate views of Pershing, President Poincare, Generals Pellatier and Petain; Marshal Poincare's speech on the picture of the activities of the government in preparing for war, are the sort of sub-

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY

NCLE SAM is a busy man these days, and if your patrons are misled by newspaper reports of delays and dilly-dallying at Washington, you should give them the real dope by showing them the many activities of all branches of the government as shown in the Universal Animated Weekly from week to week. It is never possible to more than hint at the many fascinating subjects in this weekly review, because the Animated is live news that comes to you hot from the scenes of action, the same fresh news you get or expect in your morning paper. That is why the Animated will pack your house on your dull day. The fans demand it. Book it.

"Move Over"

Nestor Comedy Released Week of Aug. 20

You have to hand it to the Nestor company for an unbroken line of successful one-reel comedies. They are sure-fire—Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts—and contribute more than their share to the world’s gaiety. In "Move Over" Eddie is in a hospital and when Lee calls to see him and sees how Edith and the other nurses make life delightful for Eddie, he changes places with that young man, who is convalescent and wants to go to the ball game. They start to operate on Lee and then the deception is discovered. It’s a merry story full of laughs. Grab it.

Zoe Rae Feature—Week of Aug. 20—a Brilliant Smiles and Tears Drama

Little Zoe Rae is one of those rare specimens—a child actress who can act. Real dramatic ability marks the work of this beautiful and popular little girl, who for more than a year has been a star in her own right. There is the real heart touch in the dramatic two-reel picture, "The Golden Heart," in which Little Zoe plays the lead. She is left an orphan and adopted by wealthy people, but her heart is with the friendly old pawnbroker down among the tenements and there is ample chance for her brilliant work. This will play to capacity. Book it.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE

ALLIGATOR catcher is some sport, according to the Screen Magazine, which shows the chase, the capture and the skinning and mounting of these queer reptiles for the market. Other interesting subjects include a cooking lesson that will make the fans’ mouths water; glass blowing (marvelously entertaining); the famous sculptor Willie Hopkins and his popular "miracles in mud," and many others. The fans have a very nice habit of demanding the Screen Magazine every week after they have once seen it, and it is good for capacity any day you book it. It has proven the most popular one-reel feature of the season.

Fun on a Street Car

L-KO Release—Week of Aug. 20

Has Prize Car Crew

Those L-KO comedians must get a lot of fun out of life, judging from the quantity of laughs they pass on to the public thru the medium of the screen. If you want a roaring two-reel comedy book "Street Cars and Carbuncles," featuring Eva Novak, Chas. Ryckman and Eddie Novak, directed by Dick Smith, under the supervision of J. G. Blystone. The rivalry between a horse car line and a jitney bus driver furnishes some of the funniest stuff you ever saw, and some typical L-KO stunts add punch that are bully entertainment.

L-KO's Doing Stunts

Give your fans the time of their lives by showing them the Powers Split Reel of the week of Aug. 29. The comic cartoon is "Col. Pepper's Mobilized Farm," and it's a real novelty. "The Home Life of the Spider" (Dimar Edics), is a marvelous study of insect life, a wonder that only moving pictures could show.

Cupid Invades Vitagraph's Branch Offices

Two Vitagraph managers now are dutiful husbands. They are F. F. Hartich, boss of the Syracuse branch, who was married on June 30, and Frederick A.
Wagner, Salt Lake manager, who became a Benedict on June 16.
In the case of Wagner it was an office romance, for he took for his bride Miss Evelyn Sorensen, who had been cashier of the branch since August 30, 1916.

Notes from New York City

F.I.L.M. Club

S. Rubenstein, manager's assistant at Universal Twenty-third street office, has been married. His friends are awaiting his return from a honeymoon to heap upon him congratulations.
Harry A. Samwick has rejoined the F.I.L.M. Club, this time, for his own company, The Producers' Feature Service.
Nathan Hirsch of the Civilization
Pioneer Film Company has been voted a member.

Vice-President Buxbaum presided in the absence of E. M. Sauder, president, when the latter was at the Chicago convention.
Mr. Hoy was instructed to get into touch with exhibitors who at various points are reported to be organizing to dictate prices.
They are to be requested to appoint committees to confer with similar committees from F.I.L.M. club.

J. B. Lowe with V-L-S-E in Oklahoma-Arkansas

J. B. Lowe, formerly assistant manager of the Fox Exchange at Dallas, Texas, has been engaged by Manager F. F. Nine of the Kansas City office of V-L-S-E to cover parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas, to sell Blue Ribbon features.

William Weinschener has been added to the sales force of the Selznick local office.
Harry Weiss, manager of the Selznick office here expects to take another of those three-week automobile trips throughout the state in the interest of his wares, sometime during the latter part of July.

Irving Mack, in charge of the Bluebird publicity here, proved himself a genuine press agent last week when he sent out the word that he had announced his engagement to Belle Harris, of this city. No date has been set for the wedding, but we are waiting for one of those nice thick white envelopes any day.

Paramount Lucky in Iowa

In every case the exhibitor booked the entire program and made no discrimination.
This service is handled by The Des Moines Film & Supply Company, in Des Moines.

"Railroad Raiders" Does Well at Minneapolis

The Dewey theatre, Minneapolis, runs from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. every day, and Manager Dillon believes that "The Railroad Raiders," with Helen Holmes, broke all twelve-hour records for any attraction.
"This serial is positively one of the best drawing cards we have shown in a long, long while," he writes to Mutual.
CONSTANCE TALMADGE had her début as a motion picture star at the Hotel Nassau, Long Beach, Sunday evening, July 29, when her new play, "The Lesson," was first on the screen at a Red Cross benefit. Lewis J. Selznik loaned the film as his donation.

Miss Talmadge is still in her teens. She flashed into the limelight as the Mountain Girl in D. W. Griffith's spectacle, "Intolerance." Although she was not starred in that production, the film public soon learned her identity.

Already, since her entrance into the ranks of the Selznick stars was announced, she has begun receiving floods of letters from all parts of the country congratulating her upon having achieved fame with such unprecedented speed.

"The Lesson," as adapted by Charles Gilby from the story by Virginia Terhune Van de Water, belongs to the new school of photoplays in which the "big punch" is registered, not by shocking the audience with horrors or moral aberrations, but by reaching the heart in a simpler and more direct, if more subtle method.

MR. AND MRS. SIDNEY DREW, co-stars and creators of the Metro-Drew comies of domestic life, celebrated their third wedding anniversary July 25 by writing another Drew comedy.

The great sheaf of manuscripts they had taken with them to the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America at Chicago failed to produce a genuine Drew comedy, so they decided to write one themselves at Sea Gate.

Mrs. Drew was formerly Miss Lucille McVey. Theirs is a true romance of the screen. Miss McVey was an ingenue at the Vitagraph studios under the direction of Mr. Drew. The greatest success of both has come since their marriage.

ALMA HANLON, who makes her next appearance on Art Dramas program in "Behind the Mask," an Apollo production written by Charles Dazey, is rated as one of the greatest pantomimists on the screen.

George Hanlon, father of the petite film star, was known as the world's greatest pantomimist, and in association with his brothers, William and Edward Hanlon, produced "Superba," "Fantasma," and "Voyage En Suisse."

Although he is now retired from the stage, after so many years of activity in his chosen profession, George Hanlon still retains a deep interest in things theatrical.

DOLPHE MENJOU, who appeared recently in support of Marguerite Clark in the screen adaptation of "The Amazons," has joined the American Ambulance Corps, Cornell Unit No. 90, and expects to sail for France in a very short time.

Virginia Pearson (In "Wreath of Love," Fox Film)

From the ranks of the cameramen at Famous Players Studios, two recruits have been drawn. Paul Vogel, assistant cameraman to Joseph Kaufman, has joined the Eighth Coast Artillery, and Joseph Goodrich, assistant cameraman to Robert G. Vignola, the United States Signal Corps, with the rank of sergeant.

George Vandermunder, chief of the property corps, joined the Eighth Coast Artillery, and George Jason is a member of the First Field Artillery.

MARGUERITE CLARK is taking a short vacation at her home in Rye, while J. Searle Dawley, her director, who was responsible for the Paramount star's alarming conduct in Greenwich, Conn., is now spending his so-called leisure in enviable privacy.

Plans New Film City Near El Paso, Texas

W. K. Ziegfeld, founder and president of the new Ziegfeld Cinema Corporation, which recently secured a charter under the laws of Delaware, left this week for El Paso, Texas. He has made arrangements in furtherance of his project to erect a "film city" in El Paso similar to the Universal plant near Los Angeles.

Mr. Ziegfeld has selected Doris Darst as leading lady.

The Chamber of Commerce is donating for studio purposes a valuable tract of land in the foothills region.

Work on the first picture to bear the Ziegfeld imprint is to start almost immediately. Buildings, where necessary to house equipment and to form weatherproof quarters, are to be leased for use until the permanent structures of "Ziegfeld Film City" are ready for occupancy.

The architectural scheme of "the city" is to be Spanish renaissance.
FAILURE to correctly judge the speed of an oncoming train, being used in a wreck scene for the third episode of the Lost Express, the coming Signal-Mutual serial, came near causing injury and possible death to both William Maloney and Charles Wells of the Signal organization.

This was the last scene to be made for the third episode, "The Wreck at the Crossing," which was to be made in two exposures, one showing the car going across in front of the train, later to be matched up so as to show the auto hitting the train. It was while the first was being made that the accident happened. A location on Grand Avenue where there is a long wooden trestle at a railroad crossing was selected. The limousine having Maloney and Wells on the front seat, and Miss Holmes on the inside, was hit on the back wheel by the oncoming train. Both men and Miss Holmes jumped. The machine dished against the girder, tore out two sections and dashed over, falling to the bottom of the ravine, where it alighted on the top, smashing it to pieces. In the falling of the machine, struck gas and water mains and an electric feed wire, breaking all three. From the mains it fell against piling of the bridge and broke two. The damage is estimated at $3,000. Neither of the men or Miss Holmes was injured.

THE Signal Company is now working on the fourth release, titled "The Oil Well Conspiracy." Director McGowan has selected locations in the La Brea and North Figueroa street districts. This release has a number of big explosion scenes.

THE first photographic work at the new Thomas H. Ince Studio was done this week when Director Victor Schertzinger, who has previously made four Charles Ray releases, took the first scene for Ray's initial Paramount subject, "Son of His Father," adapted from the Ridgewall Cullum story. Cullum is the author of "The Night Riders."

WILLIAM S. HART has written the story for his first Artcraft release and production will begin Monday at the Jesse L. Lasky Studio in Hollywood, where interior scenes will be made pending the erection of a studio in the foothills for Mr. Hart. "Rags," the queer dog which has been seen in many Hart releases, and "Fritz," the Pinto pony, will share honors with the western badman star in Mr. Hart's own story, written about incidents of pioneer days, related to the actor by Richard D. Wainwright, a friend of Hart's father, who lived in the Dakotas on adjoining ranches with the Hart family, when William S. received his first education in pioneer frontier life. On his recent tour through the East, Mr. Hart met Wainwright in Minneapolis, and they spent a half day at St. Anthony Falls near Minneapolis, which were "harnessed" under the supervision of Mr. Hart's father at a time when Wainwright was his principal assistant, and following a number of years spent together in the Dakotas. The stories related by Wainwright of early pioneer times, give plot and atmosphere for Mr. Hart's story. No name has been selected for this production.

UNIVERSAL city officials anticipate the arrival of Robert Leonard and Mae Murray from the East during the coming week, and already preparations are underway for the production of the first Bluebird subject in which Miss Murray is to be starred, which will be made under the direction of Robert Leonard. It is not definitely stated that Leonard will appear in these subjects, but at the studio it is said he probably will. Leonard began his motion picture career with the Universal, and continued there for three years. His only other engagement was with the Lasky Company where he produced a number of subjects with Miss Murray.

EDDIE LYONS and Lee Moran with their producing organization will be home from attending the Chicago convention during the coming week. Advice received at the studio is to the effect they secured everything they went after, and have excellent material to be made into a two-reel comedy.

SEVERAL have been added to the U City organization during the past week, and included in this list are Doris Schroeder who is in charge of the scenario department reading staff. Miss Schroeder was for more than two years affiliated with the western Vitagraph organization in a similar capacity, and for more than a year has been with the American at Santa Barbara. Colonel Jasper Brady, knowing of Miss Schroeder's work from the time when they were both on the Vitagraph, sought her services as soon as he took charge of Universal scenarrio department.

MONROE SALISBURY is to remain with Universal following an engagement for appearance in a western photoplay. Salisbury has been in pictures since the making of the "Squaw Man" by Lasky. He played leads in "Ramona," and "The Eyes of the World," and appeared opposite Marguerite Clark in "The Goose Girl." His screen career follows a number of years spent on the legitimate stage, playing with Mansfield, Fisk, Drew and others.

HOWARD S. WELLS is the new purchasing agent at Universal City, he receiving the appointment to this position following a number of years as assistant director, and more recently serving as assistant purchasing agent for the Universal.

HARRY SALTER has been assigned to direct future productions of Ella Hall for the Bluebird program. This will be his first work on the West Coast after affiliation with the industry since 1908 as the first director for the "Imp." The first subject will be "Bitter Sweets," written by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton.

HARVEY GATES is again with the Universal in the capacity of scenario writer after a year with the Morosco Company where he devoted all his time to writing scripts for George Beban.

FIVE multiple reel subjects for Bluebird and Butterfly programs were put in production during the week. Edith Roberts is to be given her first featured role in a dramatic subject, titled "Sue of the South," which is adapted by Chas. J. Wilson, Jr., from the story by Maude Reeves White. Eugene Moore has been selected to play op-

Little Lena Baskette is now playing in a three-reel comedy drama that has many water scenes which will give the child protege opportunity to show her swimming ability. Another three-reel subject in production is being made by Director Roy Clements, titled "The Potato Patriot," which has Violet McMillon as lead. George Marshall is directing the filming of "The Bumble Bee," which has Neal Hart and Vivian Rich as principals.

Molly Malone, attractive ingénue lead of Universal Company, this week elapsed with Forest Cornell, son of a Santa Monica, California Presbyterian minister, and were married at the Gretna Green, of Southern California, Santa Ana. The couple received the blessings of their respective parents. The wedding will in no way interfere with Miss Malone continuing in pictures.

Universal City was visited by two well known men during the past week. Howard Wheeler, editor of Everybody's Magazine, was guest of Col. J. E. Brady, manager of the scenario department. On another day Jesse D. Hampton, former publisher of Printer's Ink, was the guest of General Manager Henry McRae.

All five companies are at work this week at the Horsley-Lasaldia-Selburn Studio, all beginning new productions with the exception of the Crane Wilbur organization, which with Juanita Hansen continue on the Western release, "Devil McCare" for Art Dramas.

Director William Bertram has completed the filming of "Baby Pulls the String," a Marie Osborne subject, and the negative will be shipped East within a day or two. In this picture Baby Marie plays her first grown-up part, or rather, the imitation of a grown-up and appears with false hair. It required the making of a special wig for the child. Production work has already begun on the next child picture, which will be made by Director Harrish Ingraham, titled "The Child of M'sieu," which has a French atmosphere.

Director Tom Ricketts has begun the filming of "Forbidden," the next Mary MacLaren picture from this studio. The story deals with results of strict parents forbidding their daughter innocent amusements. Alfred Gondolfi has been engaged as cameraman for this organization.

The Cub Comedy, headed by George Ovey, are at work on "Beach Nuts," and upon the completion of this, Claire Alexander will leave the company to play an important part in the coming Baby Marie Osborne subject. Her successor as leading woman of the Cub Comedy organization has not been named.

David Horsley is home from spending a ten days' vacation at Yosemite Valley, where he selected locations for a number of scenes in a forthcoming Crane Wilbur subject. Mr. Horsley was accompanied to the national park by Mrs. Horsley, son and daughter.

The Selburn Company which has Gertrude Selby and Neal Burns as leads, has begun the filming of a two-reel subject under the direction of Horace Davey. No title has been selected for this.

Director Oscar Apfel and Tom Geraghty, of Palaite, are collaborating on an original story which will serve as the next vehicle for J. Warren Kerrigan. While the working scenario is being completed, the technical staff is building a number of big sets and everything will be ready for production within a few days. The title of the story has not been selected, but it is understood it will have a Western atmosphere.

A. CARLOS, western representative for the William Fox Studios, arrived in Los Angeles Tuesday after attending the Fox convention in New York. Mr. Carlos brought with him a number of plans which will shortly be made effective at the studio, but up to the present time no information concerning these has been given out. It is stated definitely, however, that the comedy section will be reorganized completely.

THE George Walsh Company has returned from a trip to Portland, Oregon, where a number of scenes for an early release were made. Owing to illness, Seena Owen, who is playing the lead opposite Walsh, has found it necessary to give up the work, and because of this, the picture will necessarily have to be made over completely. Richard Stanton has been placed in charge of filming the revised film version owing to the resignation of Paul Powell. A new member of this organization is Joseph "Baldy" Belmont, who has played juvenile and comedian roles in Key-stone releases of the past eighteen months after serving for more than two years in Majestic-Reliance and Fine Art pictures.

BANQUET scenes of the Theda Bara “Cleopatra” spectacle were filmed Saturday at the William Fox Studio, when a great number of players, including Ruth St. Denis and her dancing girls appeared before the camera. It is stated at the studio that this is the most gorgeous scene ever filmed in California, and in addition to more than 400 people taking part, the setting contained many prize animals and birds, including lions, tigers, leopards, parrots, pheasants, peacocks, etc. In this scene it is that Cleopatra demonstrates to Antony her disregard for economy by causing a pearl of wonderful size and beauty to be melted in a glass of vinegar. The pearl used in this instance was more than one inch in length. The Theda Bara Company will continue working on interiors at the studio for the next two weeks, and will then go to Balboa where the battle scenes are to be recorded on the celluloid strip.

THE Harold Lockwood-Yorke-Metro Company is home from spending ten days at Arrowheads Springs, Cal., where exteriors for the first master feature from the Yorke Studio were made. This photoplay is an adaptation from the George Gibbs novel, "Paradise Garden," and plans at the studio show considerable more money will be spent on this subject than has been used in preceding Lockwood subjects.

GEORGE SCOTT, well-known cameraman of the West Coast, has been engaged by the Brodsky Film Company which produces "A Trip Through China," but is shortly to leave for Yokohama, Japan. The Brodsky Company owns a number of theatres in Japan, and the continent, and it is planned to manufacture their own subjects for release there. Mr. Scott will be head of the photographic department of this company.

DIRECTOR ROBERT THORNY is busy at the Morosoco Studio with a production which will star Vivian Martin. It is reported that according to schedule, Director Thornby will direct a number of subjects, featuring Miss Martin, before he is transferred to another star.

WHILE story and scenario are being prepared for their next production, Louise Huff and Jack Pickford have gone to Stockton, Cal., to preside at the opening of the new Turner and Dohakan theatre in that city. The house has twenty-five hundred seats, and will run Arcteraft and Paramount pictures exclusively.

TOM FORMAN, who has played leading man and character parts in Lasky releases for the past eighteen months, has enrolled with Company 17, Coast Artillery Federal Reserves, which is called to the colors on August 5. Captain Ted Duncan and Second Lieutenant Walter Long of this company are both members of the Lasky organization.

LOTTIE PICKFORD, sister of Mary and Jack, who has been ill for several weeks, is now on the way to recovery.

PLANS have not been completed for the erection of new buildings at the Triangle Culver City Studios, but work on these is going forward and construction, it is thought will be started within a few days. While this work is being taken care of, Studio Manager E. G. Patterson has been busy with increasing the staff. Ferris Hartman, who has been directing at Keystone, has been added to the Culver City organization as director, and a new member of the scenario department is Joe Reach, who was formerly affiliated with Essanay, and since coming West has been with Fox and written a number of subjects for other companies. E. Gardner Sullivan, John Lynch, J. G. Hawks and R. C. Smith, who recently tendered their resignations to the Triangle, are again at the Culver City plant in their former positions. It is stated all of these men are under contract with the New York Motion Picture Corporation, and will continue there.

THE Marjorie Wilson-Triangle Company is home from spending two weeks in the California forests near Felton, where exteriors for a Kentucky feud and moonshine story were made by Director Tom Heffron. Miss Wilson appears in the role of a Kentucky school marm.

CLIFF SMITH, who has served as director for the Ince-Kay-Bee subjects, has been placed under contract with the Triangle for a term of two years, and will be in charge of filming Western subjects, starring Roy Stewart. These pictures are to be produced at the seaside ranch, formerly known as Inceville, and which has been re-christened Hartville. Smith is familiar with the greater part of the eighteen thousand acre mountain ranch, and will retain Charles Rush and other members of his technical staff who have been with him for some time. Also a number of cowboys who have worked in Hart productions will be retained. Stewart is now beginning work in his first Triangle in which he is starred. Previously he has appeared in support of Lillian and Dorothy Gish, and has just completed work in a subject in which he is the support of Belle Bennett. The latter was made under the direction of Jack Conway.

DIRECTOR CHARLES MILLER is beginning this week on a new Bessie Love picture which has an Irish story laid in Maine and New York City. Miss Love appears as a nameless orphan who is later adopted by a wealthy man who is distracted over the nightly affairs of his nephew. She comes to be the reforming spirit of the home. The story will probably be titled, "Pershickety P'rilly Ann," which has been suggested by Miss Love. Roland Lee appears in the male lead opposite Miss Love in the new production.

DIRECTOR WALTER EDWARDS has one of the big Triangle stages completely filled with interiors of the home of "Vampire" Louise Glau. There are Egyptian, Turkish and French apartments, with grotesque lighting effects and other atmosphere giving properties. One hundred and seventy-six scenes of the story will be filmed in these interiors. George Webb is the leading man of the company, and Dorcas Matthews, Thoma Guise and William Koch have leading parts.

THE William Desmond Triangle Company, directed by Frank Borzage, has been making exteriors during the past week at the beautiful homes of Pasadena millionaire colony. This Desmond story is from the pen of John Lynch, and is referred to as a comedy drama.

THE last scenes for the Jack Conway directed Triangle subject which has Roy Stewart and Belle Bennett as leads, were made this week on the desert near Mojave. The company were suffering a number of sand storms, but of such ferocity they could not be photographed. Artificial wind was made by an aeroplane mechanism anchored to the ground.
LYNN REYNOLDS, who is accredited with making one of the most successful Bluebird subjects at Grand Canyon, Arizona, is shortly to go to that place again for scenes in a coming Triangle release which will have Olive Thomas as star. At the present the company is filming the interiors and other scenes laid in New York City. Following this they will depart for Grand Canyon. George Chesebro and George Hernandez are principals in the story with Miss Thomas.

A BIG task was completed this week by a still photographer of the Triangle studio at Culver City, when a separate 8x10 photograph of every “prop” in the big property rooms were made. Prints from these negatives will be furnished every director, and the production department, and will greatly facilitate in the matter of getting correct furnishings for every setting. When it is known there are thousands of different articles including hundreds of pieces of furniture of every description, parts of buildings from trap doors to sky-lights, window casings, studio doors, fire places, stairways, etc., to say nothing of the scores of sets of dishes, pictures, and the hundreds of articles to be found in offices, factories, homes, stores, etc., it will be seen the work of photographing these separately would be a big task, but will serve as a time saver in production. A better idea of the assortment to be found in the property rooms can be judged by the fact that the department occupies a building 500 feet in length and thirty feet wide, with shelves extending along the walls from the floor to the eighteen-foot ceiling, the full length of the building with tiers of shelving occupying the greater portion of the floor space in one part of the building.

WORK was begun by five companies at the Keystone studio in Hollywood, the heads of those being given in last week’s West Coast department of the News. The personnel of the comedy companies has not been announced by officials of the studio.

DIRECTOR-ACTOR WILLIAM DUNN and his company of Vita-graph players are back from a ten-days’ vacation, and are now busy filming a five-reel subject adapted from the “Wolfville” stories. The subject is of a Western type, with Mr. Duncan playing the role of a cattle-man. Carol Halloway appears in the opposite leading role. It is announced that Miss Halloway is to be one of the six Vitagraph girls to be featured by this company during the coming year.

ASSISTANT Studio Manager David Smith this week laid aside his regular duties to direct a comedy which will feature Alfred Vosburg. Mr. Vosburg is the only member of the Western Vitagraph Company who was at the studio during the week, the other players being off for a week’s vacation.

A NUMBER of retakes were made at the Vitagraph studio this week for the serial recently completed by Director-Actor William Duncan, who has Carol Halloway as his leading woman. As the scenes were in many different parts of the story, it was necessary for the players to make numerous changes of costume ranging from the 1800 period in the West, to that of the present day. It is reported the title of this serial originally known as “Hearts of Flame,” will be changed to “The Fighting Trail.”

AS a fitting way of giving a house-warming for the new Vitagraph plant, Manager W. S. Smith and members of the producing organization, Saturday evening, July 21, gave a poverty-tackey dance turning the funds over to the Red Cross society. One dollar admission was charged, and a goodly sum was realized. The grand march of the occasion was led by William Duncan and Mary Anderson.

THE Wonderlamp Picture Corporation through its general manager Charles E. Bentley, announces preparation has been made for the filming of a series of two-reel pictures featuring children, the first to be “The Traveling Companion,” adapted from the Hans Christian Anderson story. Naida Carle and Clarence Barr, who have been with Universal and Triangle are to play the leads. No announcement of method of release has been made.

WILLIAM RUSSELL, American star, and company will be in Los Angeles a greater part of the coming week filming scenes at San Pedro harbor for the next starring vehicle of Mr. Russell.

CHESTER CLAPP, formerly connected with the William Fox studio as scenario writer, has been engaged at the American and will take up work at the Santa Barbara plant during the coming week.

FIRE at the plant of the Rolin Film Company, 406 Court street, Los Angeles, Tuesday night, July 17, caused a loss of $1,500. A portion of the stage and a quantity of film was destroyed before the fire department arrived.
Ralph Radnor Earle, who is making a National Park tour travelogue for Pathe, arrived in Los Angeles Friday of this week, after covering 3,000 miles of his proposed trip. He is accompanied by his wife, has visited Yosemite Valley, Sequoia Park and General Grant Park, securing approximately 3,000 feet of the natural beauties there. From Los Angeles the Earles will drive to Casa Grande, then to Mesa Verde, and later tour partially through the Grand Canyon. Their itinerary provides visits to Rocky Mountain National Park, Yellowstone, Glacier Park, Mt. Ranier, Crater Lake and Mt. Lassen, the only active volcano of the United States. Mr. Earle is particularly well equipped for the trip, having an automobile especially built to meet the needs and a camping outfit which can be placed in position in a few minutes. The film secured will be released by Pathe first, and later purchased by the government and used in schools and colleges for educational purposes.

A number of Los Angeles players have been signed for work with the Earle Film Company of San Francisco, a new company which has recently been formed, through the Willis and Inglis agency of Los Angeles. Among the principals are End Markey, formerly with Ince, and who is starred in a forthcoming release of the Corona Cinema Company, "The Curse of Eve"; Colin Chase, Rex Downs and Harry Haganau.

There are pictures over there, to be sure, but there are not enough. There are not enough American films in comparison with the other brands on the market.

The Europeans are wise enough to take advantage of conditions and make a profit on film which would have been long ago discarded in this country and there is no reason whatever why we should not do the same.

Except in a few rare cases I cannot recall seeing a film with the exception of the serials of course, having for its star any of the better known class of actors and actresses before the camera in this country today. What few I encountered were either the favorites of yesterday who could not stand the strain of the younger generation or a few others who were only mediocre successes.

This is based on actual observation, on buttonholing every film man I could locate, on visiting all the theatres possible and all the exchanges. And in nine cases out of ten the theatre managers have not been interested in the aesthetic possibilities of films at all in this country. They seem to have an injured attitude and finally end by saying that they suppose the agencies in the States do not want to bother with a country that will not pay them a million dollars in a year. While the situation is not just that the business of picture-making seems to be just like that of our other industries, our country is so big that we can hardly ever give any time to other people.

It seems, there is not even a year to be made over there, but if an exchange wants to go about the matter in a right way, I repeat there is absolutely no reason why the Orient could not be tapped for a nice profit every year.

Fair and Warm.

Wilshire 1550, telephone girl now says: "Mack Sennett Studio." The Japanese are not content with writing letters to our stars but now have started to contribute scenarios. Col. Jas. Brady reports the first contribution.

Eddie and Lee report good time was had by all while at Chicago convention.

July 28 looks like a big night for the Toreadors, who are to be guided to success by an agent arranged by Fred Palmer, Fred is a comedy scene writer, and therefore much is expected. He claims there will be many new ideas floating about.

General Manager of U City, Henry Alexander McAteer, known to many as Davey McGuade, was seen to quietly and sedately sip a glass of cooling lemonade. A bystander remarked it's the first time he ever saw Hank with the throttle out of high.

"Brownie" Yerton did an accidental Brody in a tense dramatic scene when the camera was clicking, and so Director Clifton turned the piece into slapstick. Wonders never cease in this est.

HOOKUM acknowledges receipt of a welcome message from our old friend Aaron B. Bernd. (Better be careful among the bright lights.)

Hot weather has caused a falling off in sales of the product of Consolidated Crepe Hair. The managers plan to have the wire edges filed off of all future made hair so that it will not tingle the wearer.

Roy Stewart has created a new way of securing funds for the Red Cross. He files his cowboy playmates every time they wear. The cash register now shows twenty dollars.

E. Mason and Mrs. Hopper have a girl baby at their home which is to be named by E. Yasons co-workers in art at the Triangle Studio.

Bill Desmond tried to put over a regular anarchists plot by presenting a letter in which his life was threatened. He says he got it through the mail.

Hal Cooley has made the demand that his name appear in HOOKUM, but our agent being of a mercenary disposition gave the handsome youth with made-up eye lashes a current rate card.

Walter Edwards is going to slip a new one to the public in the coming vampire picture he is making with Louise Glaum. Walter confirms that he is not permitting the use of a leopard skin in one of the 176 interior scenes. The dear public should send a vote of thanks to Walter.

Jack Conway has been dubbed, "Old Cyclone," for he made a little sand storm all his own, way out on the desert with nothing but an aeroplane mechanism to stir up the air.

There is nothing more for Wm. C. deMille to live for, as he went to Bear Valley last week and caught all the trout from the streams there, says report. We heard he didn't get a nibble.

One of Doug Fairbanks' professional hunting guides was a buzzard, and that shot cost Doug a fifty dollar fine.

"Paradise Garden" has been located by the Yorke-Metro gang near Arrowhead. (Southern California boosters, please note.)

Tom Gibson took a vacation after writing thirty-five one reels, and is reported to have spent the time writing two more of the same kind, which was some vacation.

Bill Parsons heard HOOKUM editor was going to call on him and build a wonderful entrance to the studio to make sure we did not pass. Thanks Bill. Mr. Parsons now has fifty-seven varieties of monkeys enrolled for his wonderful picture.

Much excitement in our midst this week when the numbers were drawn.

Al Christie tore up another hat this week K. C. B., the town gossip via Berlin, has got a lot of scoops for his paper.

Al Cohn was seen fluttering about the colony last week which is one of the greatest indications that warm weather is with us. Al's a hard working boy.

Carl Robinson's German hunting license number was the 999th drawn.

An advertisement in the local press called red-headed girls' attention to the supposed wants of K. O'Hara's travelers. At least they all swarmed out there to bright sunshine expecting to become film stars, and none of them returned with the red-heads as a mouse would be at an old maid's confection.

They arrived in the ad, and lays the concerned job on the street.

A great friendship has sprung up between two of our prominent city citizens who tip the beam at 235 when wearing cauliflower ears, and Bennie Ziedman, who can make the beam flutter when the balance weight is at the zero mark. Bull finds it very enlightening, for his stay in America has not been so long that he is fully acclimated. For Bennie, the language is a hard job now telling what a fight will be started. Yes, fifty-dirty.

“The Slacker”
(Metro Special—Six Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

UNTIL you have seen Metro's production of “The Slacker,” you have not experienced the real, soul-piercing thrill of patriotism. Until you have seen Emily Stevens in the role of Margaret Christy, you have not seen the soul of a woman, an actress, an artist, pour forth through its most inspiring channels, the terrible, crushing emotions felt by a mother, a wife—a patriot when the one nearest and dearest to her heart—a “slacker” —hears the call of his country and leaves for the battlefields of France. As though by the Hand of Providence, he is touched through the flag—your flag, my flag—and once touched, a soldier of more sterling metal than Walter Miller as “The Slacker,” has never been.

Emily Stevens, in the opinion of those who saw her at the Strand theatre, Friday morning, when “The Slacker” was given its initial showing to a New York audience, and in the opinion of the critic, gives the best, most appealing characterization of her career before the camera. When she smiles, you smile; when she points to the cartridge belt worn by her “slacker” husband and asks, “Are those bullets?” and looks up into his smiling face, you weep. You have to weep, unless your heart is of stone and your emotions, a minus quantity. She does not pout and storm about the room—she is not “acting”—she is living the part. Her facial expressions tell volumes. Her large, appealing eyes tell of the terrible, agonizing pangs that strike to the very depths of her soul. Walter Miller, who has the part of the “slacker” is the only one who turns from her with unmoistened eyes. He smiles but it is the smile of a man deeply affected.

William Christy Cabanne wrote and directed “The Slacker.” He has written a good, timely drama—good because it is timely. The thought he has expressed is the real sustaining element. The plot itself and the events which give rise to its action are not the best examples of properly done continuity or technique in the drama. He hinges his anti-climax on an improbable and far-fetched incident—the scene where the burlap ruffian snatches the flag from the hand of the little girl and throws it to the ground. The suspense element is almost entirely lacking after the run of the initial reel. As a scenarist, Mr. Cabanne has his superiors but he has convincingly demonstrated in the production of “The Slackers,” that he is no “slacker” when it comes to a point of direction. With only two sets and the great outdoors, he has produced for the screen a picture which for quality of direction, is seldom equaled and rarely excelled. The thought he has expressed through the medium of a well selected cast, cannot fail but strike deep into the hearts of all America—old or young, man or woman. A word of praise is due the cameraman, William E. Fildew. The lighting effects registered the maximum percentage. Honorable mention is given the technical director.

The cast all entered into the spirit of the picture. Leo Delaney, Daniel Jarrett, Eugene Borden, Millicent Fisher, Sue Balfour, Mrs. Mathilde Brandage, Belle Bruce, Charles Pang, Dorothy Hydell, W. E. Lawrence, G. P. Hamilton, Jr., and Evelyn Converse were all good.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
After an engagement of two years, Margaret Christy (Emily Stevens) is married to Robert Wallace (Walter Miller), a “slacker.” John Harding (Leo Delaney) loves Margaret. He notices Wallace's indifference, during his engagement to Margaret and implores her to marry him. War declared, Wallace reading that single men will be called first, hastens the wedding date. Margaret assists in recruiting. Her husband is indifferent to the war news.

Margaret holds a reception and George Wallace, brother of Robert (Eugene Borden) attends in the uniform of a Jackie. Robert makes fun of the uniform. His brother taunts him for having married to escape service. Robert admits it. Margaret, who is listening, overhears the remarks and for the first time realizes that her husband is a “slacker.” She rebukes him and tells him of her shame in having married a “slacker.” The next day he sees some children playing “soldiers,” one carrying a flag. A big boy takes it away from her. George Wallace who happens along, knocks the bully down. A big ruffian of a man passes and seizing the flag in the hand of the little girl, snatches it away. Robert sees this and gives the man a sound beating. His patriotism is at last awakened. He enlists and leaves for France, a true soldier.
"By Right of Possession"
(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"BY RIGHT OF POSSESSION" from the Vitagraph studios in the West, with plenty of Western atmosphere and a slight plot upon which to rest, has been given a typical Western production by Director William Wolbert and its two equally important roles have been faithfully interpreted by Mary Anderson and Antonio Moreno.

Hinged on frail bits of plot material, its superstructure bolstered by flashes of ranch scenes, cowboy "stunts" with the lariat, bucking bronchos and grazing herds of cattle, Vitagraph's late release will entertain many of the somewhat orthodox type of its scenic beauty and Western atmosphere—not by virtue of strength in its plot or progressive action in its story. There is a broken plot and a "badly bent" story.

Alvah Milton Kerr, responsible for the script, introduces his character and opening plot material, with evidence of strong, consistent action to follow throughout its five reels, but when he arrives at the point where his story reaches the end of the third reel, he permits his plot, his action and his story to falter, waver a bit and gradually dissolve into the faintest resemblance to plot material necessary to sustain progressive action.

Directors Wolbert, however, alive to the careless omission, bridges the story over the plot with a bit of Western life. He introduces a clever artist with the lariat who might have been Will Rogers had he not tipped his broad brimmed Stetson and disclosed a full face not familiar to Mr. Rogers' many admirers.

After the lapse of considerable footage of this nature, every foot of which is enjoyed but wholly foreign to the plot, the author again takes up his story in the guise of a political campaign, male suffrage versus female suffrage, and Miss Anderson and Mr. Moreno have a merry time campaigning. A thrill is attempted in the real reel which fails to register owing to the fact that the "wild" and "rewild" and the "rushing" waters are not rushing. Antonio Moreno screens like a true Westerner and wears an engaging smile when the nature of the action permits. Mary Anderson stumps her feet with earnestness but is more likable when she smiles. The two smile go a long way towards winning an audience. Otto Lederer presents a true characterization of "Bells." Leon Kipers is a minor role in a major role.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
Kate Saxon (Mary Anderson) inherits the "Blue Goose" mine in Colorado. Shortly after her arrival to take possession, a strike is called among the miners. She quells the riots and better the conditions of the miners by increasing salaries and bringing about reforms. During this time, the sheriff (Antonio Moreno), arrives. He gives the strike leader a "beating" and wins the admiration of Kate. Kate's marked ability in managing the mine, prompts the women of the county to nominate her as candidate for sheriff, opposing Baxter for re-election. A lively campaign is waged and Kate wins.

To test her fitness for sheriff, Baxter structures a trap to inculcate Kate that he was given money by Baxter to buy votes and did buy votes. Kate holds him at the point of a revolver and handcuffs him. Baxter walks in and he, too, is handcuffed. Realizing that Kate is of the right material, Baxter tells her he is testing her ability to take the duties of a sheriff. She will not forgive him for lying. She richly away and Baxter follows. Trimble (Leon Kent), who has been discharged from Kate's employ, dynamites the dam holding back the waters of a reservoir. Baxter's herds stampede and he saves Kate from danger. "Bells" (Otto Lederer) brings about a reconciliation and Tom and Kate are happy.

"The Long Trail"
(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. GOULD

It is hard to reconcile the accepted standing of Lou-Tellegen, Mary Fuller and Winifred Allen as historic favorites, with the story provided for them by Eve Unsell. It is almost as difficult to excersize the wit in this picture as it is for Lou-Tellegen, who has so often in the past shown the sterling merit upon which his reputation is founded.

From first to last scene the spectator can sit back in confidence of knowing what is coming next. And the confidence is not side tracked. Obviously is the outstanding characteristic of the production. The spectacle of the big hearted French Canadian trapper who falls in love with the sister of a scappegrace young man of wealthy family, who in turn accomplishes the downfall of the trapper's sister provides exactly the amount of tensility and dramatic action as would be expected from the time-worn plot skine.

One bright spot is the attractiveness of the scenes. Saranac Lake was the background for the majoritly, and throughout the picture the photography is excellent. Winifred Allen (the trapper's sister) gives a really meritorious characterization, and it is regrettable her part called for action in but a portion of the production. Mary Fuller in her quiet way, which years ago won her fame, amply fulfills the demands of the part given her. For some reason, probably in a desperate effort to bolster up such an "apparent" picture, Lou-Tellegen has his hand at it.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
As Andre Dubois, French Canadian trapper, Lou-Tellegen lives in the wild, his life wrapped up in his sister (Winifred Allen). Mary Fuller as Louise Graham, an orphan, has a brother who is cursed by intemperance. Andre unconscionably compromises Louise, the two being forced to spend a night in his cabin due to storm and her friends desert her. Andre marries Louise, but in the meantime her brother and Andre's little sister who has been sent to a convent at Montreal have had a short and outside-the-law love affair. Complications ensue. Andre's sister comes home to die, and her brother seeks vengeance on the man not knowing it is his wife's sister. The story is the same as before. But after he had been given liberty from the police who sought him for murder, by Andre on the plea of his wife, and the fade-out shows Andre and Louise happy in each other's arms.

"The Squaw Man's Son"
(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY E. M. JOHNSON

In order to "go fetch it" is a trying commission for a true artist. Doubtless instructions to "make another play like it" must be more onerous still. "The Squaw Man" was the first story pictured by the Lasky company and if the announcements are to be credited was a great success.

It is quite to be expected that the producing company should desire to do it again. This is much easier to understand than the other fact that Edwin Milton Royle, confronted with such circumstances, has been able to originate in "The Squaw Man's Son", a really creditable photoplay. It has interesting situations, strong, dramatic interest and leads up easily to a fairly logical climax.

True, many persons who see the picture will wonder what overpowering motive it is that suddenly compels the heroine Wah-nag-i (Anita King) to rush out into the snow to kill herself, just after being folded in the arms of her sweetheart who had come back to her though she had expected him to remain away forever. It will seem likely to most persons that the real motive is the striking coincidence it makes with the previous play, considering the co-relation of the two.

But if this is a false error, there is no reason why it should destroy the harmony of the whole. Altogether the play is gripping, and, after the final flash dissolves, one has a feeling of satisfaction that only comes with the ending of a real heart-whole drama.

Wallace Reid, as Hal, seems to justify the chorus of eulogists that is being sounded in his honor in the reviews. But he is better in the more commonplace scenes than in the tragic. Donald Bowles has created a consistent characterization of the missionary at an Indian agency. This part in the play is more appealing really than the other, and requires a higher order of ability.

The production is marked with the careful attention to detail typical of Lasky plays. It has the faults too of most of them—for instance, though easily it might have been made outdoors it is mostly interiors, and the action is nearly all within four walls. Especially in summer, picture fans seem to be most thrilled by rapid movement in the open air. They are tired of being shut-ins, in reality and in imagery also.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
Though "The Squaw Man's Son" is a sequel to "The Squaw Man," the previous play is not referred to except that the death of Nat-u-rich is mentioned and her native rock monument shown in the scenes. Nat-u-rich's son, Hal Calthrop (Wallace Reid) becomes Lord Effington before the end of the play. He discovers that Edith (Dorothy Davenport), his wife, in England, is a morphine addict, and though he had intended to free her so she might marry her clandestine lover, Lord Yester (Lucien Little-
The Neglected Wife

(Balboa-Pathé—Fourteenth Episode)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

A THRILL is registered in the late episode of this Pathé serial which although not of a spectacular nature, serves to introduce this chapter with a "punch." It happens when Kennedy in pursuit of Margaret is struck down by an automobile. The usual trick of photography is not practised in registering this thrill. There is good, strong, progressive action throughout the showing. Events move swiftly, and from the expected turn taken in the love affair of Kennedy, we are led to believe that the neglected wife will at last read for her patience in waiting for her husband to see the error of his ways. It is titled "Desperation."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Mary (Corene Grant) determines to leave Kennedy (Roland Bottomley). She learns a note explaining that he will not return to a home unless Kennedy manusses never to see Margaret (Ruth Roland) again. Norwood (Phil McCullough) visits Margaret and urges her to marry him but she refuses him. Bull Brady leads Kennedy to play the stock market the wrong way. His fortune is threatened when Mary learns of it and sends Norwood with a message to cover his bargain. Bull Brady has published an article telling of Kennedy's marital troubles. Mary reads it and repeats her action.
"Master of His Home"

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"MASTER OF HIS HOME," from the Triangle Studios in the West, leaves a good impression. The plot action moves fast, and there is "snap" in every scene. The author, R. Cecil Smith, leaves a bit too much to the imagination of his audience in passing from one seat of action to another, but this error is not a serious one in this particular instance because of the two—omission and commission—the former is more to be desired than the latter. Mr. Smith has made possible the showing of the risks without the usual offensive atmosphere hovering about his characters or action. The sub-titles referring to these scenes might have been toned down a bit, but the action in these scenes, although suggestive, is at no time offensive. A delicate question is pictorially discussed in a delicate manner.

The action centers about two distant locations—a mining district in the West and the home of the aristocrat in the East, and moves from one to the other with nice appreciation for the proper dramatic progression in plot development. The basic plot idea is not original with the author, but he has, by expert maneuvering, given old material a new and fresh appearance. He develops the idea telling of the two events in the East meeting the Westerner, falling in love and later marrying, their married life finding disruption in the interference of the socially ambitious mother-in-law, who dislikes the home loving traits of her daughter's husband. The husband desires children, and the young wife is persuaded to think differently by her mother. The breach comes, and the two are happily reunited by the arrival of a baby. Mr. Smith has handled his plot in a clever manner, with the result that Walter Edwards, who directed, has fashioned a good production.

The opening scenes are instructive and heightened in interest by the good action which centers there. The exterior scenes and interior sets used to tell that which happens in the East are well done. William Desmond, who has the featured role, executes some clever acting, and the part of Garson Stewart is presented by him with feeling. Alma Reuben, in the featured feminine role, is good to look upon and presents with finesse a difficult part. Other members of a good supporting cast are: Joseph J. Dowling, Eleanor Hancock, Robert McKim, Susie Light Moon, a squaw, and Will H. Bray.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Garson Stewart has been successful as a mine operator and part owner. Millicent Drake, daughter of aristocratic parents, has been singled out by her mother as the proper wife for young Van Tyle (Robert McKim), a social "fop." On a visit to Van Tyle's mountain mountain, Millicent meets Stewart. While sightseeing in his mine, an explosion occurs. He rescues Millicent. The two fall in love. Stewart is invited to visit the Drakes in the East. He does so, and while there marries Millicent. He expresses a desire for children to brighten the home. His wife's mother (Eleanor Hancock) persuades her daughter to avoid motherhood. Stewart learns of his mother-in-law's influence, and denounces both her and his wife. He leaves, returning to the West. Later his wife arrives with a "little partner," and there is a happy reunion.

"The Mark of Stingaree"

(REVIEWED BY R. M. JOHNSON)

TO those motion picture patrons who like outdoor action, "The Mark of Stingaree" ought to appeal mightily. It is all outdoors. From beginning to end of the two reels the actors never cross a life preserver, or even crawl under a tent-flap. It is a blessed relief after the tireless succession of too stupid interiors so persistently flashed on the screen.

E. W. Hormong, who created "Raffles," prepared both script and scenario, "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," of which series this picture is a part. It was a real comedicted action story, and having a rugged hero cannot be expected to please the too-squemish section of the public. But even so the incident that gives the skit its title is brutal and might have been softened down a little. To show the actual branding on the forehead with hot rifle muzzle of even a bank-rober is too frankly realistic for some.

Any repulsiveness that this may arouse doubtless will be softened by the wholesome human interest of the love-story interwoven with the little plot.

The picture is acted under the glorious sunshine of California, at Glendale, but the Australian locale is closely simulated. Oddly enough much of the Australian foliage has been transplanted to Southern California—notably the eucalyptus trees—and has quite taken possession of that part of the locale.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Stingaree (True Boardman) questions the ability of his chum, Howie (Hal Clements), to hold up a stage single-handed, and Howie does it. Thereupon Howie is himself held up by a fugitive bank-rober, Jack Falcon (Barney Furey). Stingaree intercepts, a letter betraying the love between Jack and Nettie (Edythe Sterling) and afterwards captures Falcon and takes back the loot he had taken from Howie. In subsequent incidents Stingaree convinces the girl her lover, Jack, is treacherous and unworthy. The bushranger sends the girl back to her home and brands Falcon with "The Mark of Stingaree."

"The Little Terror"

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

VIOLET MERSEREAU returns to Bluebird stock in one of her characteristic roles of the little "cut-up" who is forever doing the wrong thing at the wrong time. "The Little Terror," her late picture, produced under the direction of Rex Ingram, was not strong in plot material, but split up into its scenes, which is developed, which, although much of it has been seen before, is executed in Miss Mersereau's own charming way and gets across. The suspense element is lacking, but it is apparent that neither the author or the director worked toward this end. They were satisfied to present a picture which would give Miss Mersereau opportunity to skip through the reels and make her bits of character rather than a strength of plot. She succeeds and makes possible a good five-reel feature. The opening scenes show her as a circus rider, who has married the son of rich parents against the wishes of his father. Later on she presents the role of the child born of this marriage. For a time she stays with the circus, but is eventually taken into the home of her grandfather, her father and mother having died. Most of the action takes place while she is under the care of her grandmother. The supporting cast includes Ned Finley, Robert Clugston, Sidney Mason, who will be Miss Mersereau's leading man in her future Bluebird productions; Jack Raymond, Mrs. Brundage and Edward Porter.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Queen Tina (Violet Mersereau) is a circus rider. Wallace Saunders (Robert Clugston), son of wealthy parents, falls in love with her and he marries against the wishes of his father. He goes with the circus and becomes a trapeze performer. A baby is born at the sacrifice of its mother. The father is separated from his true child. The child, Alice (also Miss Mersereau) at an early age follows in the footsteps of her mother, and becomes a circus rider. The circus visits the town in which her father lived. John Saunders (Ned Finley), her grandfather, regretting that he had been harsh with his son, sees the performance at which his son is killed. He takes his granddaughter to his home and gives her all that money can buy. His sister's son, a weakling, is introduced to Alice and she enjoys poking fun at him. His mother tries to arrange a "match," but a young cartoonist whom Alice had known in the circus, renews his love for her and they are married.

"The Fatal Ring"

(REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY)

PArTHE'S serial has yet to give evidence of laxity in action or thrills. This late number titled "Rays of Death" falls neither above or below the high average which action and thrills have maintained throughout its preceding numbers. The quality of suspense is kept at logical, dramatic tension and sustaining interest. The principals of the cast work in true form and are alive to every possibility offering dramatic action. This number has been given the careful production which has characterized preceding chapters of an unusually good serial.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Pearl (Pearl White) is being gradually lowered into a boiling caldron. Knox (Earle Fox) pleads for her life but the Priestess orders her to mean to proceed. The ferrets are placed in a box, covering the part of the rope, nearest the hold, which holds Pearl above the caldron. The ferrets slowly gnaw the taut rope. Tom Carlton (Henry Gessel) climbing a wall reaches the window.
gains admittance and is in time to catch Pearl just as the rope snaps. He is attacked from behind. Pearl succeeds in giving his assailant a push, sending him into the cauldron. They escape.
Carlake (Warner Oland) while eating in a restaurant, sees Detective Hana. He rushes out and away. He conceals the diamond in the crevice of a rock. Pearl receives a note from Knox telling her that he is condemned to die at the hands of the Order. She and Tom, from Knox's house. The good and naturalness of the Priestess's father try his invention to destroy life. A black slave is the victim. While spying, Pearl and Tom are seized from behind. They are dragged into the den. Knox is to meet his fate and turning to Pearl, the Priestess tells her that her turn comes next.

"Captain Kiddo"

(Pathe—Five)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"CAPTAIN KIDDO," the late Pathé release featuring Baby
Marie Osborne, has more of the "heavier" element contained than has been found in any of her past offerings. It is for this reason, no doubt, that the child actress has not been cast in her usual prominent role. She is given an unusual opportunity, however, to delve into the realms of stronger dramatic acting and she hasn't disappointed. She carries her end with all the conviction of youth and at no time does she falter. Her naturalness before the camera has never been proved more convincingly than by her good work in this picture.

The scenario, whose name is not given on the program, has made his plot a trifle too deep for the little actress to penetrate and make her the dominating character throughout. Her sunny disposition pleases as usual, and at times she "hits" the "high spots" in dramatic action, but once the revenue officer strikes the trail of the opium smugglers, her role is a bit overshadowed by the "heavier" element which enters the plot of the story at this point. This is not to be discouraged in photoplays for Pathe's little actress. No credit is taken from her thereby. The contrast tends, not adversely to but in favor of her work. She is more appreciated than if she were to hold the centre of the screen throughout the showing.

Philo McCollough should work in support of Baby Marie more often. They do well together. Marion Warner, in the role of the mother, is convincing. Harry Von Meter and Ray Clark, a juvenile, complete the cast. W. Eugene Moore has given "Captain Kiddo" a fine production. This offering should meet the expectations of any audience. The camera work has been well done.

"Lonesome Luke, Messenger"

(Lonesome Luke Comedy (Rativ)—Pathé—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

HAROLD LLOYD, in his latest two reels of laughs, executes the "slapstick" variety with "pep" aplenty and with a bunch of supporters who are capable of taking up the fun where he leaves it and carrying it on to a laughing climax. He is ever in evidence and his unwillingness to overdo an act or rather his natural comedy instinct to "let well-enough alone," places Mr.
Lloyd in rank with some of the best "slapstick" comedians. In the role of a "feet-footed" messenger boy he creates some good comedy and when he is given the freedom (by right of conquest) of a girls' boarding school he keeps things moving in the realm of

"Knights of the Square Table" and Other Pictures

(Conquest Program (Edison)—K-E-S-E—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

JAMES WILDER'S story of Boy Scout life, "Knights of the Square Table," has been made into four reels of pictures under the direction of Alan Crosland and with a ton of interest in every scene. The younger generation will devour its every flash of human incidents, its scenes of life as it really lived by the boy of good, wholesome training and the more unfortunate youth who is left to follow his own sweet will and naturally favors the more exciting and dangerous amusements. A story is taught every boy and the older ones will be the better for having seen this screen play dealing with the activities of the Boy Scouts.

No attempt has been made to inject a strength of plot. The author and director have been content with fitting for the screen.

a good, clean, wholesome story. The plot, though slight, is carried along without a break. There are scenes which call for strong action at times, and this is given by the good characterizations of Paul Kelly, Yale Boss and Andy Clark, three juveniles who do excellent work. The unfortunate life of the neglected boy is contrasted with that of the scout, and James Wilder, who wrote the story and presented a minor role, has made possible the parts of Douglas McClennon and Thomas Blake are other members of a good cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Pog Haddon (Paul Kelly) is the son of a thief. Inspired by the story of the "Holy Grail," he organizes a gang. He has been reared in evil surroundings but his tendency is strong toward righteousness. The gang is organized, the members start on a rampage. They meet with a troop of Boy Scouts, and in a fist fight which follows, the gang is worsted. The prowess of the scouts "opens" the eyes of the gang to the fact that they aren't such a bad lot after all and later the members of the gang are mustered in as scouts.

"Farmer Alfalfa and His Wayward Pup," an animated cartoon in split reel, depicts the trial of Farmer Alfalfa and his playful pup. The pup grows troublesome and Farmer Alfalfa buys a game cock and the fight is on. The action of the animated subjects is natural.

"Your Flag and My Flag," a split reel, illustrating the verses of a poem, shows the national emblem in all its glory.

"The Making of Hundred Ton Guns," a split reel, shows the Watervliet Arsenal, and the different processes through which a gun goes in the course of making.

"What Form Means to an Athlete," split reel, presents trained athletes in action. A "slow camera" process is employed which leaves the impression that the athletes going at high speed, are barely crawling along. It is an instructive bit of footage.

"The Legend of the Willow Plate," a drama in one reel, tells the romantic love of two Chinese. The "Willow Pattern" plates of Nankin ware, tell an ancient legend of China. Hattie Gray Baker's poem is followed. It is good.

"Walt Mason Rhyme Reels"

(Filmcraft Corporation—Four One-Reelers)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

FOUR of Walt Mason's prose-poems have been adapted to the screen and as fillers for a featured program they will meet the demands of both the big and small town exhibitor. They are good, lively comedies, given good productions, enacted in real comedy fashion and each has running through its footage a pleasing, romantic story. There is none of the "slapstick" variety.
The best and shortest way to describe them is to liken them to the George Ade comedies with which most of the exhibitors and picture-going people are familiar. "Walt Mason Rhyme Reels" should "go over" with a nice percentage for the exhibitors.
Each shown is likable. It has the touch of heart interest which never fails to win.
The old dipper which hangs by the wall is made the medium through which a young victim of the wanderlust meets a country lass and the love germ takes root in both their souls. The health authorities put the board on all tin receptacles for drinking water and the old dipper is taken and thrown on the town dump. The wanderer hires out to the girl's father as a farm hand and the two resolve to find the dipper that had brought them together.
Their search for the dipper and the events which lead up to its recovery provide the action of the story.

"Bunked and Paid For" tells the story of a young couple's attempts to solve the "high cost of living." They read in the papers of a method to improve the health and cut down the food bills.
The loving wife proceeds to fill the larder with the prescribed scientific food but when she attempts to force it upon her "husby" there is trouble in the air. Each finds the first dinner prepared under the scientific plan a failure and each makes an excuse to the other for leaving the table. They both make for the same restaurant unknown to the other. They purchase a "regular" dinner.

"True Love and Fake Money" tells of a young city chap who visits the country and falls in love with the village belle. The young man has described himself as the son of a millionaire. He makes good his "bluff" and in the attempt unconsciously brings to justice a band of counterfeiters and settles down to married life.

"Hash" is a boarding house romance.
THERE were two reasons why there were so many handkerchiefs in evidence last Friday on Broadway in the vicinity of the Strand theatre. One was the weather; the other "The Slacker."

WILLIAM CHRISTY CABANNE is a most modest director. He sat in a rear seat during the showing of his production at the Strand. Stars, please take notice.

HAVING read so far down the lines of this column, some of you will come to the realization that there is something lacking. There's a reason. If you will turn back to an earlier edition of this publication you will note that the two "Petes" are "rusticating" on the Coast. Now can you guess?

WALT MASON'S prose-poems have been adapted to the screen. The reviewers saw four one-reelers last week. We predict that Walt's poems will become as popular on the screen as did George Ade's stories. We wish you success, Walt Mason.

AT a recent showing of an Art Dramas' subject at the Criterion theatre, Harry Ennis, who writes all about these dramas, presided at the piano. For a time the reviewers were under the impression that they had gone to the Vitagraph projection room by mistake. However, after a few discordant notes had floated "orchestralward," and Harry's technique became entangled with his fingers, the "close" observers, came to the conclusion that they were, after all, in the right place. You did pretty well, Harry. There is nothing like having more than one accomplishment.

CHANNING POLLOCK, the dramatic critic, in a recent comment on the season's theatrical accomplishments, quoted Sardou as once saying that "any theme really adapted to histrionic interpretation, could be written upon one side of a visiting card." Press agents, please take notice. In the same article, Mr. Pollock in expressing regret because of the lack of originality in the current stage drama, said that "perhaps it is because originality has gone into the movies—though—if it has," he continued, "the fact isn't noticeable." Hasn't any one anything to say on this?

Alice Howell (Century Comedies)

THERE are a number who have reported their return from the Chicago convention. In discussing the week's stay, they are able to recount most of the important happenings, some in detail. The only point many are not quite sure on, is just how they got back to Broadway. But this isn't so very important, so long as they are back in our midst. We understand a good time was had by all. Welcome to our midst once more.

IF space would permit, we would like to run a list of the names of those on their vacations. But, unfortunately, only a page can be devoted to this work.

FROM the publicity department of Metro, we receive word that a French soldier, recently wounded in battle, carried with him a picture of Viola Dana. Bennett Monfort, formerly an assistant director at the Metro Studio and now aviator in France, is responsible for this bit of information. It seems that Miss Dana is doing her "bit" toward brightening the task of the soldier. Well done, Miss Dana, and Miss Dana's press agent.

BEN GRIMM says there is at least one nearly infallible director—"Hitch your wagon to a star," runs the proverb. Well isn't every star (m. p.) given a vehicle.

WE understand that Douglas Fairbanks is coming out with one that is "bigger and better than ever." With the aid of Bennie Zeidman and "Dough's" winning ways and smile, he should be able to do this every time. We note that Bennie has reached the columns of the New York American. It's a cinch, Bennie, don't let them tell you differently.

ABOUT three minutes before press time, Bill Barry, breezed into the editorial room and announced his return from a two weeks' vacation. We welcome you, Bill. You are the only one who has come back on time. We immediately got Bob Welsh on the 'phone, and he said he would "hold up" the press for this announcement. So here it is.

Now is the time for all good men and true to come to the aid of their party.

Having used that line and failed at filling the page we have inserted a cut of Alice Howell, which is one way of being certain of having something "Just for Fun."

"O-My the Tent Mover," (Joker. Week of August 6.) — The Sahara desert is the setting for this rollicking comedy with William Franchy featured as Launcelot Briggs, an old clothes dealer who is lost in the desert. He is picked up by a caravan. He is sentenced to a life of slavery by the old Sheikh. The Sheikh's pretty daughter is traveling with the caravan. The old man promises Launcelot his daughter in marriage if he will make him laugh. Launcelot has fallen in love with the Sheikh's other daughter. There are difficulties to be surmounted. He has to flee and with the tent over him he escapes. Lillian Franchy, Za Za Fitts, Eddie Baker and Milburn Morant in the supporting cast create some good laughs. Tom Gibson did the scenario from the story by E. M. McCull. W. W. Beaudine directed.

"The Soul Herder," (Bison Western Drama. Three Reels. Week of August 6.) — A lively Western drama is shown in "The Soul Herder." Harry Carey "puts over" nice bits of rapid-fire comedy and displays his usual clever stunts from the saddle. Pritli Ridgely has the principal feminine role. Jean Hershold, Elizabeth Janes, "Hoot" Gibson, Victor Pege and William Gettiner make up a strong supporting cast. Harry Carey has the part of "Chrymoone," Harry, fond of liquor and proficient with a six-shooter. After a night spent in jail he decides to reform himself and the entire neighborhood. He is ordered to leave town and goes over the desert he meets with a family of settlers. In a fight with Indians the man of the party, who is a minister, is shot. Chrymoone of the old boozing frank and proceeds to do the reform act. He reforms the town of Buckhorn and wins a bride.

"The Love Slacker." (Nestor. Week of August 7.) — Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are seen in another laugh getter. Comedy, galore, is enacted by the two popular comedians. "The Love Slacker" is a typical comedy for the current season. Edith Roberts in the principal feminine role, is the Summer girl, personified. Lee, whose father owns the country drug store, is the only eligible young man in town. Eddie, having decided to become a woman hater, goes to the country town to get away from the girls. The country girls who had only Lee to admire, are all struck with handsome Eddie when he arrives. He arouses the spark of jealousy in Lee and the fun starts.

"The Untamed." (Mary Fuller Feature. Two Reels. Week of August 9.) — In "The Untamed" Mary Fuller is seen to good advantage. She presents the role of Cauga, the daughter of a moonshiner. Her impersonation of the wild, untamed girl of the mountains is given with a nice appreciation for the characteristics of the mountain girl. The exterior scenes showing the natural wildness of the moonshiners' country, are good to look upon. A typical dance hall set is used. Catherine Carr, who wrote the scenario, made possible strong progressive action. William Welsh, Johnnie Walker and Helen Slooson are in the supporting cast. The story tells of Cauga's trouble with the revenue officers and the manner in which she won the love and respect of a revenue officer who was seeking to detect her "still" in the mountains.

"The Vamp of the Camp." (Joker. Week of August 11.) — Another Gal! Henry laugh. Little Butterfly is the "vamp" of the camp. A stranger arrives. He hires his last dollar and Little Butterfly's sympathies are with him. She pleads with the landlord to give him a job. She makes a bet that she can win the stranger in three days. He tells her his home is to be sold the day after tomorrow. She promises to marry him if she will get the money to pay off the mortgage. He wins the bet but fails, finally resorting to robbery. The stranger, it is learned, is a confidence man.

"Seeing Ceylon with Hy Mayer." (Powers One-Reel Travelogue (Cartoon.) Week of August 11.) — Natives, dancing to the sound of tom-toms, costumes of the ladies, a Buddhist procession, picturesque houses and a face of the elephant's method of bathing, are some of the laugh-makers in this late Powers Travelogue.

"Reel. Life, No. 65." (Gaumont. One reel. Thurs., July 24.) — Juvenile craftsmen are shown hard at work in carpentry, basketry and pottery, while still younger members of this select group are intensely interested in their toy-making. A dangerous eagle hunt is portrayed wherein a man is seen scaling a precipitous cliff in search of young eagles, two of which he secures. The extensive poultry business of Mme. Schumans-Heinkel is also screened, and thousands of pedigreed White Leghorn chickens are depicted, and some useful lessons may be learned in the care of poultry and the management of a poultry ranch from these pictures, for almost every conceivable feature of the industry is simply dwelt upon. This is a reel which will please, interest and educate.

"Mutual Tours, No. 38." (Gaumont. One reel. Thurs., July 24.) — This educational, historical and thoroughly entertaining reel first deals with Prague, the ancient capital of Bohemia, with its population of 400,000 Bohemians and 100,000 Germans, etc., where is to be obtained a view so beautiful that it has been termed the Swissland of Europe. Snow-topped mountains dotted with picturesque hamlets lend enchantment to the view. From there the scene shifts to Kairawaan, thesecond city of Tengher, where thousands has seen the many mosques and minarets and other objects that charm the globe trotter. Then on to a beauty spot of Southeastern France, amongst the Dampvenches, where cascades abound and the scenery defies description. One reel replete with interesting data.

WE COULD TELL YOU HOW THE SHUTTERS OF SOME PROJECTORS ARE OUT OF TIME WHENEVER THE PICTURE IS FRAMED—

OR, HOW SOME PROJECTORS WILL DESTROY FILM—

BUT WE HAVEN'T TIME,—There are too many good points on the MOTIOGRAPH to talk about.

(Remember, the MOTIOGRAPH shutter when once set is always set, regardless of how many times you frame your picture.)

We don't say,—It is bound to last a long time; or it should do so and so;

But the user says,—THE GEARS CAN'T WEAR OUT; that the machine will operate as well after 365 days of use as it did on the day of installation.

The dealer will tell you that every part of the MOTIOGRAPH is guaranteed for one year (and the factory will back him up in this), and that no other machine, regardless of price, will give better service or more perfect projection.

EVERY USER IS A BOOSTER FOR THE MOTIOGRAPH

He Saves Best Whose Saving Lasts.
(The Story of a Man Who Disregarded Two Laws.)

Once upon a time there was an Exhibitor.
He found that the best projector cost a little more than others.
It didn't occur to him that the price had to be higher because the Machine was better.
Nor did he realize that it was more better than that the price was higher.
He only thought of the Dollars he could "save."
Well, he "saved" the said "Dollars."
At that time, those Dollars looked big to him.
So big, that they hid the Law of Business, which says: "It's better to invest more at a profit than less at a loss."
So he patted himself on the back, and thought himself a clever business man.
But he was really a practical man, after all; and the present somehow always seemed more important than the past.
Therefore, as time went on, and he looked at his check-book, he couldn't see there those Dollars he so cleverly "saved."

Other things, however, became more evident, and impolitely forced themselves upon his attention.
One of these was the Operator's call for repairs.
Somehow, the small amounts spent that way looked bigger to him than the Dollars of months ago.
Another thing: the picture lost its erstwhile steadiness, and the Dimes diverted to the House in the next block made the Dollars of his memory seem still more insignificant.

Then he saw the light!
He remembered the Law of Compensation, which says:
"You can't get something for nothing. If you want quality that endures you must pay for it; but you get it back in the long run."

Through this experience he learned a valuable lesson.
But he would have been better off if he had bought the Simplex instead of the Experience.

Experience is a very expensive teacher, but the other man's experience is the cheapest thing on earth.

To profit by it, see the Simplex Distributor in your section, or ask us for Catalog "E."

Experience Points to the Simplex for Permanently Profitable Projection.
Label Every Reel

WITH the advancement of the Anti-Misframe League and with our growing membership there is need to push our activities still further. The entire industry is interested in our endeavors and not a few have congratulated individual operators upon being a part of an active crowd who are really doing something for the entire business.

We are going still further. We want every exchange to realize that we mean to co-operate with them so that when our members complain to headquarters about film conditions, for which poor exchange inspection is responsible, they will know that the Anti-Misframe League is determined to see to it that the present miserable conditions are corrected. The members must act and act together, as we advised an issue or two ago on this page. When they find a bad film and the exchange will not listen to reason go to headquarters and kick. If this does not do any good, write to MOTION PICTURE NEWS—the head office of our League—and we will see to it that the complaint is made, and, what is more, that it is made to the right parties.

WHAT we now propose is this. We are having printed labels such as here shown, in orange and white. A supply is being sent to each of the League members, with the request that every time a film leaves their theatre they label each reel case. This will be a guarantee to the exchange or the next user of the film that on the date given it was in good condition. Should the film be short of footage, with sprocket holes torn or generally in poor condition, this should be noted on the label plainly so that the next user may be warned or the exchange be given a chance to go over it looking for trouble. It is a very simple matter and one which will take no time at all to carry out. The good it will do is obvious.

WHAT we need in our business is more paid admissions. Am I right? There is only one way to get them and that is by a better entertainment. This does mean better stories and production, to be sure, but it also means—better care of the film that we are showing to-day. This is exactly what our League advocates and what every member is striving for.

The labels are being printed now. When the members of our League get their allotment, begin using them at once. They will be the means of our obtaining the co-operation of all exchanges and will ultimately force better film service for all houses. This will mean more patrons, more money and better salaries, and, what is more, it will mean greater recognition to the operator, which is what he is after and what we want him to have, if he is the right sort and fighting for the best interests of projection and the industry as a whole.

IT is a case of every member getting out and boosting and continually fighting for better conditions in his territory. The quicker we do it the sooner we will have the recognition of the millions of people who to-day would rather be shot than be caught in a picture theatre.

Get behind and push.

E. K. GILLETT.
Oscar Scheck and the “Mazda” Lamp

For a long time experiments have been under way tending to develop for use in projection machines, Mazda lamps in place of the carbon arc, as a source of illumination. According to advice received this week from the Mazda Lamp Laboratories and from the Argus Lamp and Appliance Company, Cleveland, O., the experimental stage has been passed and the success of the incandescent lamp for motion picture projection has been proven and established.

The Argus Lamp and Appliance Company have correlated the development of the Mazda Motion Picture Projector Lamps by perfecting the Scheck Universal Adapter which will immediately convert any type of projection machine from a carbon arc to an incandescent lamp projector. The above named company makes the announcement that these adapters and lamps are now ready for the market.

Prominently identified with the development of the Mazda Lamp, and the designing of the Universal Adapter is the name of one, who is perhaps known to every motion picture operator on this side of the Atlantic—Oscar Scheck, whose photograph appears herewith.

In addition to being a lighting engineer well-known in the field of Stage and Motion Picture Illumination as well as the inventor of the Universal Adapter now being exploited by the A. L. & A. Company, Mr. Scheck is best known to the motion picture operator as one of the general organizers of the L. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. of the United States and Canada. And even though he has been working hand in hand for the past year with the engineers of the Mazda Development Laboratories, he has nevertheless found time to discharge his official duties to the Alliance with credit to himself and the organization. It is claimed for the Mazda Lamp that it will eliminate all fumes and poisonous gases which are prevalent in the operating room when the source of illumination is the carbon arc, and which, some say, has had a great disturbing effect on the health of the motion picture operators. They also bring out the fact that there will be less danger from film fire with the use of this lamp than where the arc is used.

In the illustration shown at Fig. 2 we see the Mazda Lamp, the lamp house and Universal Adapter ready for use. And in addition to the claims already made, the engineers who have watched their performance for more than a year in certain theatres in the country, feel that they may state with every confidence that the new Mazda Lamp will meet every projection requirement in the majority of theatres throughout the world. A further claim is that the Mazda Lamp will give a better light; that it will completely eliminate flicker and screen shadows; that it will eliminate eye strain by removing the harsh qualities now present in the carbon arc, and that they will recommend themselves to exhibitors by reason of the fact that current consumption will be substantially reduced.

In preparing the lamp for practical use, the Mazda Lamp Engineering Laboratories, however, made no provision for appliances with which to adapt the lamp for use in the regular projection equipment. This service, was therefore, performed by the Argus Lamp and Appliance Company.

The Universal Adapter can be attached to any present type of lamp house without cutting or marring the housing in any way, or even disturbing the carbon arc equipment.

H. H. Cudmore, who has been prominently identified with the Mazda Lamp Industry in this country for many years, is general manager of the Argus Lamp and Appliance Company, and is personally directing the distribution of the Scheck Universal Adapters. Mr. Cudmore expresses himself as being elated with the prospect of “Mazdasying” the motion picture field, and to a representative said: “We are of the opinion that the development of this new Mazda Lamp and the co-incident invention of the Scheck Adapter, will revolutionize the entire field of motion picture projection. We have had lamps in operation in prominent theatres in Cleveland, for more than a year, and the proprietors of these theatres are the most enthusiastic advocates of Mazda.

projection. Since our preliminary announcements have been made, our company has been flooded with inquiries from all parts of the world. We have provided extensive manufacturing facilities, however, and the new factory, modern in every respect, now being constructed at 153d and Collamer avenue, East Cleveland, will enable us to keep pace with our orders so that shipments may be made with little or no delay."

Simplicity marks this as an adapter that should meet with great favor among operators, and Mr. Scheck has been especially fortunate in designing an adapter of such simple construction, and one for which it is claimed will fulfill every requirement.

"The Infant Peril"

BROTHER M. M. MURRAY, Salisbury, North Carolina, raises his voice, likewise his pen in a mighty protest, against what he considers a more dangerous epidemic than "infantile paralysis" and that is the peril of allowing children to operate motion picture machines. He says: "I agree with the operators that no one should be permitted to operate a motion picture machine. I know of one theatre in this state where the manager has a boy fourteen years old running the machine. (A condition that should not be allowed to exist, as the safety of the theatre patrons demand that this work be in charge of a responsible man.—Ed.) I think that every state should pass a law making it a misdemeanor for any one under the age of eighteen years to operate a projection machine, and holding the manager criminal liable, who violates this law by employing anyone under this age, should any such accident occur. We know that the safety of the public depends a great deal upon the experience and coolness of the man behind the gun, and I firmly believe that an operator should have had at least twenty years before being entrusted with this responsibility by himself. Furthermore, I do not believe an operator should be permitted to have working for him, as an assistant, one who is under the specified age. He should also do his own rewinding and not have a boy to do it, a boy whose only thought is to get it over with as quickly as possible, and giving not thought as to whether the film is in proper shape to run for the whole performance. This in a first class playhouse theatre, should not be tolerated, as it is nothing more than carelessness, and carelessness has no place in the operating room.

I would like to say a few things in regard to the "Boylan Even Tension Reel" which has been in operation in my operating room for a year, and which I find to be the best thing that has ever been brought to my attention. It saves film from having sprocket holes torn by heavy tension on the take-up, and also prevents the film from becoming tight on the lower sprocket of the machine. I think very much of the one I have, and believe they are a necessary adjunct to any up-to-date operating room. I have some photographs of my machines, and also a "safety first" device which might interest the readers of the department, and will be glad to send them to you if you can find space for them."

Answer: There is much food for thought in your letter, and we believe it is only a matter of time when the minimum age for operators will be twenty-one years. Not that there are not some young men of eighteen who are as well qualified to perform the duties of operator as are men of more mature years, but the older man can be held responsible, where the younger man could not. I will be more than pleased to receive the promised photographs and will be first available opportunity. The manufacturers of the reel you mention have not submitted a sample to the department, therefore, we will say nothing more concerning it until we receive further details.

Parrish's Address Found

J. R. C, San Diego, Cal., who sought the address of Henry Parrish, who renovates reflecting type screens, will find his answer has been sent to him by G. T., Brannon, sales manager of the American Auto-Arc, who writes: "A letter addressed to Henry Parrish, Owensboro, Ky., will reach him. That is his home address." My thanks to Mr. Brannon for his interest and the information.

National Anti-Misframe League Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils exercised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

In an editorial by E. K. Gillett, which appeared on page 3481 of the June 2 issue of Motion Picture News, speaking of the purpose of the Anti-Misframe League, Mr. Gillett said: "There are no strings of any kind attached to a membership except that every member must be willing to stand by the membership pledge." There is, however, one "string," and that is that each member send to the department the following information which is for the purpose of enabling us to keep a record of our members:

- Member's Name
- Home Address
- Address of Theatre where employed
- Name and number of Manager
- Address of Manager

On receipt of the above information, button and membership card will be sent to members without any cost whatever. In this way we hope to prevent those who are not bona fide operators from obtaining something to which they are not entitled.

A Suggestion

FRANK DRAUCKER, Lock Haven, Pa., writes: "Have been reading about the Anti-Misframe League and think it is the best thing ever broached, and want you to put my name down as a member. I think every operator, exchange man and film inspector should belong. May I be permitted to suggest that it would be quite within keeping if you were to have some gold buttons, like the illustration in this week's issue of the News, made and sold at a small price so that every member of this new League can be identified from the slackers. Think this over, and keep up the good work."

In reply: For your enlightenment, would say that Motion Picture News has had buttons made and they are now being sent out to those who follow the instructions asked for under the heading of "Notice—Anti-Misframe League Members." These buttons, as well as membership cards are absolutely free, and while there might be a number of operators, like you, who would care for gold buttons, the number would not, we do not believe, be sufficient to warrant the great expense. As you know, owing to the war, the price of gold has soared so high that it makes one "sore" to even think of it.

However, as you suggest, we will think it over, and if there is a demand great enough to warrant our acting upon your suggestion we will do so.

From "The Home of the Red Man"

In a letter forwarded to me from the Chicago office of Motion Picture News, comes a letter written by a brother from Oklahoma, the "Home of the Red Man," and his letter is so expressive that I am publishing it herewith:

I. G. Sherman:

Dear Sir: I have just learned of the National Anti-Misframe League, and want to congratulate you on having the nerve to try it. Things are getting worse every day as far as bad patches and misframes are concerned. It seems to me that as Projection advances in some things, day by day, it also retrogrades.

The operators seem to forget that some other brother has to run the film which he has had, and in which he has made bad patches, misframes, etc.

For the "Love of Mike," why not do things right? It is a lot easier to make a good patch, one that you can depend on, than it is to slap the film together any old way.

Today when I opened up, I cut out three misframes from the first reel of a three-reel "feature," which I am enclosing. Reel two of the same feature had on it the leader for reel three, and reel three had the leader which should have been on reel two. That is what I call laziness, and most of all it must have been b-held by an operator that would do such a thing. Reel one was patched in the center with the emulsion side of the film to emulsion side, which, of course, made the picture appear backward upon the screen. Oh! if I only could have laid my hands on the crank turner that thinks he knows more than Edison, Power or any other machine manufacturer; the one who is always telling someone else that he knows it all, I sure would have made him fit for a hospital or sanitarium. (Please. It wasn't me—Ed.)

I want to join the league, and wish it all the success it so well deserves. I beg to remain,

Yours for less misframes,

(Signed) C. L. Wills.

In Reply: I can appreciate your feeling the way you do, for it is not only aggravating, but at times so annoying that nothing seems to relieve our pent up feeling so much as a good "cussing out." The samples you sent, were indeed, terrible specimens, and I don't blame you a bit for wanting to put the guilty one in a hospital. It may not be easier, but it is just as easy to make a good patch as it is to make a poor one. Don't you too, get in the error of blaming this condition altogether on the operator, for an operator would not be guilty. There are, as you perhaps know, many theatres where rewind boys are engaged to "assist" the operator, and these boys, knowing nothing of the fragile nature of the film they are handling often race them through the rewinder at breakneck speed, and you also know what that means. When the film breaks, to cover up their carelessness they "stick it together" any old way, so long as it holds, and when the film is run through the machine again the man who is responsible—the operator—is caught napping. If it occurs on his last show he allows the film to be shipped to the next exhibitor in this condition for which he is hardly to be blamed, for he is anxious to leave the theatre as soon as possible after showing the "Good Night" slide. The only remedy is to do away with "rewinding" boys and compel the operator to do his own rewinding, which is as it should be. There are, however, operators who would not let a film go away from their operating room unless it were in better condition than it was when they received it. I am glad to place your name on the Roll of Honor, and hope to have the honor of hearing from you again.

I Beg Your Pardon

FRANK A. DAVIS, Oskaloosa, Iowa, writes: "I am at it again. I see that my name has been placed on the Roll of Honor, but I did not receive my button and card, and brother Shirk did. Of course, I am not jealous, but I think I am deserving of a button, as we all like to be together here in Oskaloosa. The operators do at least, and that is why I am wondering what the reason was for not sending me a button. I would like to see all the Brothers of our craft as one, and with your help, and the help of the brothers throughout the United States and Canada we will have better films, better conditions and in every way better progress. I want to do my part by wishing the News, the brother from Gary, Ind., and yourself the greatest success."

In Reply: I beg your pardon. In looking over my card file I find that your name had not been checked off as having had a button mailed you, and I am going to do so as soon as I have finished pounding this out on my typewriter. For the benefit of yourself and all other members of the league, I want to say that there has been a delay in getting the cards from the engravers, but as soon as they are delivered to me I will send them right out. You speak truly. It is only by all brothers of the craft becoming united, and helping each other that we can ever hope to obtain the conditions to which we, the operators, are entitled. The News will do its part, but we must have your help. For your kind wishes to brother Pastre, the News and its projection editor, thanks.

"Back Home in Tennessee"

M. ANARD K. BAIRD, Knoxville, Tenn., writes: "This is my first letter to the Motion Picture News, but not my last one for once I get started nothing can stop me. (Whoa boy— Ed.) Before going any further I would like to compliment you for the good work you are doing for the operators in this section, and it is pleasing to know that you also are a member of our great 1 A. I venture the assertion if one would study our—the operator’s—department for a period of one year, with proper equipment one could project a perfect picture on the screen. Take the Projection Department for one year and put it together and you would have a complete handbook. (Hardly that for the compilation of a handbook will take many long weary months of hard nerve, racking labor—Ed.) The Anti-Misframe League is a credit to the motion picture industry. Congratulations to the good brother who originated it. Please enroll me as a member, and I will vow to stand by the membership pledge. The next time I write you, I will send you photographs of our operating room; that of the famous Queen, the theatre of novelties which was originated by George N. Shorey, a photo-play theatre that both in its appointments and patronage is known to rank as high as any south of the Mason-Dixon line. The motion picture business for the future looks very promising in this city and vicinity. Our local has thirteen members on its roster. This has been our most successful year. We are always willing to meet the exhibitors half way and co-operate with them. In closing, wish to state that Brother George W. Lane, Jr., and myself have been promoted. In our hours of luxury (Luxury is good—Ed.), or when we are not wrestling with two Powers’ Six A’s we conduct a supply house which we have recently opened under the firm name of the Knoxville Theatre Supply Company. We assure you that you have our best wishes for your success always. Long live the News!"

In Reply: I hope you will feel free to use the columns of this department, just as often as you care to. Am glad to learn that the future looks promising in your locality, also that the local is in such a prosperous condition, and I hope it will remain so. Will be pleased to have photographs of your equipment. In return for your kind wishes let me express the hope that the Knoxville Theatre Supply Company will, in the words of Rip Van Winkle, "live long and prosper."

Another Method of Rapid Threading

Darrell S. Keppler, Crawfordsville, Ind., writes: "First of all I wish to enter the (boys of progress) league, meaning the Anti-Misframe League, and then submit what I believe to be a better method of threading film in frame than that which was published in the July 14 issue. This method is for Powers’ machines only. Simply thread your machine, in the usual manner, after you have the film threaded, hold your finger in the top loop and lift the film up, then take the framing rod in the left hand and place the dividing line of the film even with the top corner of the main frame casting and the deed is done. Be sure, however, the intermittent movement is in lock (to be determined by seeing that there are no blades of the shutter in front of the lens). I have a number of good stunts to send you later."

Answer: Your name has been placed on the Roll of Honor, and button and membership card will be forwarded to you within a few days. There are, of course, various ways in which to thread the film in frame, and I am submitting your method for the benefit of those readers of the department who may not be familiar with any of the methods in which to do this. Am waiting expectantly for the "helpful kinks" you have promised to send in later, and hope that you will not make it very much later.

What a Live Manager Has to Say

SAM L. MARR, manager of the Kozy theatre, Waverly, Ga., writes the following letter: Dear Mr. Sherman: I am a reader of your department and find it to be very interesting as well as beneficial. I am also deeply interested in the Anti-Misframe League and wish you would please enroll my operator and myself as members. It affords me much pleasure to sign the pledge, although I have practiced this same thing for the past twelve or fourteen years, it is not practiced by a lot of other operators elsewhere, as we receive film daily in outrageously bad condition. If you can only get every operator in all parts of the country to join the league and stick to the pledge, it will mean much towards the betterment of projection, and less work and worry for the operator who does take an interest in his chosen profession and who tries to project a picture that is in keeping with his ability. I am an operator with about fifteen years experience, and although I am manager of my own theatre now, I personally superintend my own operating, that is, I take an interest in the projection which my operator is putting on the screen, and endeavor to give my patrons high class motion picture plays, properly projected. Enclosed you will find a signed pledge for myself and operator, my card and a slip that is pasted in the top of every film box leaving our operating room. I will close for this time with best wishes to yourself and all brother operators, especially the ones signing the pledge of the National Anti-Misframe League.

Comment: Here is a manager with the right idea. Note where he says, “I take an interest in the projection my operator is putting on the screen, and endeavor to give my patrons high class motion picture plays, properly projected.” Too many managers fail in this one important point, requisite to good management; they seem to think that the only thing necessary is to spell the receipts of the box office, and let projection, courtesy and other forms of catering to the public who are their support, go by the board. The views expressed in his letter, prove to my mind something which I have believed for a long time, and that is, there are a great number of operators who would make far better exhibitors than some of the men they are working for. I am re-producing on this page the slip which this manager pastes in the reel cases. It is along the lines of those mentioned in the department from time to time, as well as along the lines of an idea which we have formulated, and which will be found on the editorial page conducted by E. K. Gillett, of this present issue.

To every member of the Anti-Misframe League there will be sent a quantity of these pasters and all the operator will have to do will be to fill out the blanks, paste them on the film cases, and in this way show the exchange managers that they are sincere in their desire to co-operate, and lend all their support to the movement of better film condition. These pasters, like the buttons and membership cards of the Anti-Misframe League are free. We only ask that you use them, and in this manner build up interest in the league, as well as increase its membership.

The names of your operator and yourself have been added to the Roll of Honor, and you will receive your button and membership card in the course of a few days. For your kind wishes, accept my thanks.

The Stencil Process of Coloring Cinematograph Positives

ALTHOUGH natural color motion photography has been the subject of much discussion and experimentation in the past few years, there has long been practised a mechanical method of applying a variety of colors to the images of positive cine-films; and as we have in previous issues devoted much space to the consideration of photographic color processes, it seems but fair that we should also treat of the ingenious mechanical methods by which film subjects showing varied coloration may be prepared.

This mechanical method of coloring film positives with a variety of shades, suitable to the subject photographed, is of French origin, and is capable of yielding pleasing screen pictures, although it is foolish, to say the least, to claim that the results are comparable to those secured by a scientifically worked out method of color photography. It must also be borne in mind that the stencil-color method, now to be elucidated, is no rival in its commercial aspects with the photographic color process.

The reason for this is not difficult to comprehend, when it is considered that stencil cutting requires skilled operators, and the method as a whole consumes much more time than is ever allotted to the processing of a positive film strip in the average American cinematographic laboratory. The method has been tried out in this country and apparently has been found economically impossible, as might be inferred by any one conversant with present day factory operation.

The mechanical ingenuity of the stencil-color process makes it an interesting study, however, and it is in response to numerous requests that the following outline of the method has been prepared—for the most part from patents data.

Roughly outlined the method of coloring a film positive by the stencil process is as follows:

The number of different colors (for various objects) in a given scene is first decided upon. It is then necessary to prepare stencil bands, one for each color the full length of the scene to be colored. If, for instance, we propose to employ three different colors in coloring a certain scene; we must prepare three stencil bands, one of these bands consisting of a positive print of the scene to be colored, which has the object corresponding to some one color cut out of each successive film image on the positive strip. Thus if we suppose the subject to be colored is the American flag; the stencil band to be used when applying the red color would have a series of openings cut through each image corresponding to the red stripes of the flag.

When the stencil bands for a given scene have all been prepared, or cut, an ordinary (uncolored) positive print is placed in contact with a stencil band, and the two films (in contact) are run through a coloring machine, which applies color of the requisite shade through the openings in the stencil band. After passing through the coloring machine the positive film has received but one of the several colors which are to be applied, and must be run again through another similar machine, this time in contact with a different stencil band, which corresponds to a different color. In short, the positive must be processed through the coloring machines as many times as there are different colors apparent in the finished result. This confirms our earlier statement that the process is costly from the manufacturing standpoint.

Let us, however, now proceed to the study of the exact manner in which the various details of stencil coloring are carried into execution. First of course is the cutting out by machinery of minute portions of the film images. The machine used in this operation is termed a stencil-cutting machine, and we shall here describe an ingenious example of the same, which is shown diagrammatically in Figures 1 and 2. Figure 1 is a side elevation of the stencil-cutting machine, while Figure 2 is a front view of the same device.

Referring now to Figs. 1 and 2: On a cast-iron table (1) are secured two standards (3) and (4), by bolts with the plates (5) and (6). The Plate (5) carries, between the standards, an open-work table (7). The table is shown in dotted lines in Fig. 2. The film (8), which is to be cut out, can be moved forward or backward on the table (7) to the extent of one image in any suitable way.

The rays (Fig. 1) issuing from a light source (9) are collected by the condenser (10), pass through the glass (8), an objective (11), a single reflection prism (12), another objective (13), a double-reflecting prism (14) and are finally projected upon a ground glass (15), where the image is apparent considerably enlarged.

The reducing device (Fig. 1) connecting the tracing point (22) with the image cutting tool is composed of a vertical rod (16) carrying a rectangular frame (18). A steel ball is secured to the rod (16) and rests in a ring (17) secured by braces to the plate (6). A screw (19), having a lock nut allows of minimizing the play of the ball. The rod (16) can only move forwards and backwards, its lower end being guided by a guaged groove between the steel guides (20).

A horizontal steel rod (21) is connected with the rod (16) by a yoke pivoted to an axis associated with the rod (16). The other end of rod (21) is provided with a point (22) (Figs. 1 and 2), and with a handle (23) wherewith the operator traces the projected image. In the frame (18), Fig. 1, between two pivot screws (26) is pivoted a support (27), which is rigidly connected to a front frame (25) by means of the braces (24). The frame (25) is supported by an arm (28) which slides upon a surface of the stationary glass plate (10). Any movement of the tracing-point (22) is repeated by the frame (25) with a selected reduction corresponding to the ratios of the triangles a, b, c, and a', b', c' (Consult Fig. 1).

Coming now to the cutting mechanism by which certain areas of the film images are cut out; this is best explained by reference to Fig. 2. Two tubes (29) secured in the frame (25) have between their rounded ends the space necessary for the passage of the film strip (8). Within the tubes are two sliding steel rods (31) having pointed ends, while two spiral springs (32) tend to hold the rods (31) separated and bearing against micrometer screws (33) carried by the levers (34). The distance between... these levers, which are pivoted to the frame (25), is limited by micrometer screws (33). An electro-Magnet (36), also carried by the frame (25), attracts two pallets of soft iron (37) and through the medium of the levers (34), and the screws (33) brings the rods (31) toward one another, causing their pointed tips to bear against the opposite faces of the film. These pointed tips then scratch both faces of the film so deeply as to allow of the images thus traced being readily removed from the film strip.

As it is now apparent that the cutting action of the pointed rods (31) is electrically controlled, it will be advisable to now consider the electrical circuit by which the stencil cutting is accomplished which is shown diagrammatically by Fig. 3. An electric contact is so combined with the tracing-point (22) as to send a current into the electro-magnet (36) each time that the tracing point is brought to bear against the ground glass.
The current is broken when the tracing-point is removed from the ground-glass, and the cutting-points (31-Fig. 2) recede again into the tubes (29).

The Value of Using a Theme During a Picture

Dear Sir:—In your issue of March 3rd last I notice a letter from a brother organism in Canada, and while not wishing to cause any controversy over the matter I would like to take issue with "Mr." Payne over the matter of using a Theme during a picture.

I always have made it a rule to use a Theme for my features and can truthfully say that my audiences like it and look for it, in fact they have even given suggestions for Themes, and also inquire the names and publishers of the ones I use from time to time.

Happily I have a manager who loves music and knows good from bad, and whose suggestions, though sparingly given, nevertheless when given are extremely helpful and the result of inspirations when viewing the picture—condition which many musicians would sacrifice a little of their salary to work under.

I have never had occasion to pick a Theme of undue length and think I am right in saying that it is contrary to all ideas of a Theme to do so.

To me a Theme is a connecting link to a number of musical compositions of varied character and tempo; and its usefulness is beyond praise.

I am thoroughly in accord with Mr. Payne's idea of using Musical Comedy Selections, old songs when called for in the picture, and modern songs (up-to-date) for love scenes and so forth.

One thing I have found in my experience and that is, when the conclusion of a picture does not demand the Theme, to play some tuneful piece which will appeal to your audience and send them away whistling or humming it—if possible select a popular song. Improvisation as a rule I strongly condemn, and only do so where necessary, such as Hurries, Agitatos, etc. One other point in Mr. Payne's letter I would like to touch upon and that is the matter of "Applause" by an audience.

I have been playing for pictures for a number of years now in this province, and I cannot remember but a very few instances where there was any applause and I have come to the conclusion that any organist who takes up his duties at a new post and expects to find out the sentiment of his audience by the measure of applause is doomed to disappointment—at least that is my experience. I am speaking of during intermissions.It seems out of place for applause in a Picture House where the general tone and atmosphere is essentially quiet and subdued and restful. One looks for it in a Vaudeville or Stock House but not at the Movies.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I would like to ask if you would publish in each issue the names of the publishers of the various pieces you suggest on your cue sheets. It would be a great help—or you might put the publisher's name in brackets against each piece suggested.

Wishing you every success,

Percy S. Burraston,
Dominion Theatre Co.,
Vancouver, B. C., Canada.

In reference to Mr. Burrastons's request—to mention the names of Publishers in our Cue Sheets—I wish to say the following: Our Cue Sheets are not designed as an advertising medium for any publisher—we therefore also always mention the character of every composition, so musicians may substitute with a composition of a similar kind if they do not possess the composition mentioned. If anyone desires to purchase any of the numbers—and can use any save from one of the local music dealers then we refer him to one of the large Mail Order Houses, such as G. Schirmer, Carl Fischer, etc., located in New York, Boston and Chicago.

The Editor.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.
Jacob B. Fox's Theatre at Riverside, New Jersey

UNUSUAL, but encouraging, is the record of the Fox Theatre of Riverside, New Jersey, where its owner and manager, Jacob B. Fox, has made a social and financial success of a 1,400-seat house in a town of only 3,000 inhabitants. The neighboring towns, especially Delanco and Beverly, send their quota of patrons, brought to the theatre by the live wire methods of Mr. Fox, $2,000. He will also spend about $10,000 in new equipment and scenery for the theatre which will reopen for business some time in August. Perry Stevens has the contract.

Construction work on the Odd Fellows' Hall, Main street, Rockport, has been suspended, and it is expected will not be resumed by the fall. A part of the building is to be given over to a motion picture theatre, but particulars of what kind of arrangement will be made by the fall. The Family theatre, at Lafayette, is being renovated and remodeled.

The theatre, owned by the Indiana theatre, South Bend, has leased the property to Max Barnett, of Chicago, who has started the work of remodeling the property, and will open it as a motion picture theatre as soon as possible. It has not been decided if it will be a "Colonial" or "Indiana," but a decision will be given, although "Indiana" and "Colonial" seem to be favored. Many improvements will be made in the exterior of the theatre and the interior. A seven-piece orchestra will be installed, and a first-class line of theatrical attractions will be featured.

Something new for Ferdinand has just materialized. A contract has been signed for the building and operation of an Airdome Picture Show. The Electric Light and Power Company have leased hot space, and will furnish the current by the new system now being completed. The lyric theatre, Warsaw, has installed a large ventilator, and this adds wonderfully to the comfort of the audience. The hot air is all forced out through the building, and also by aid of the exhaust system, and the result is a lowered temperature at once refreshing and comfortable. This is planned for a theatre building that will be a credit to Waterville in every way. The theatre will be owned by the Waterville Theatre Company, affiliated with the Maine Theatres, Inc., of which Alfred S. Black, of Rockland, is president and manager.

MASSACHUSETTS

Ground has been broken for the new Strand theatre in Fitchburg, Mass. The work will be rushed to completion. The theatre will be a one-story structure with a seating capacity of 1,800 people. It will have a modern ventilation and heating system. It is planned to construct a theatre building that will be a credit to Waterville in every way. The theatre will be owned by the Waterville Theatre Company, affiliated with the Maine Theatres, Inc., of which Alfred S. Black, of Rockland, is president and manager.

NEW JERSEY

Architect C. V. R. Boge, of Hackensack, is preparing plans for a moving picture theatre that will seat one thousand. The theatre will be located near Main street, for the Cinema Company. It will have brick walls, slab roof, plaster ceiling and electric wiring works.

OHIO

The Valentine theatre, at Toledo, will be rebuilt before it is converted into a moving picture house.

The theatre will be operated by a new company to be incorporated in Ohio, and by Indianapolis men. The Indianapolis men now operate the Circle theatre in Indianapolis, and are building the Daytona theatre in Detroit.

The entire stage will be torn out of the Valentine for new orchestra pit. All new seats will be installed. In the box, with exits on all three sides, moving pictures and vaudeville as the policy to be followed.

OKLAHOMA

Work of tearing down the one-story building on the west side of Main street between Fourth and Fifth streets, Tulsa, was started a few days ago preparatory to the erection of a theatre building. The building has been purchased and will be torn down. It is expected the structure will be completed in every way. It is expected the theatre will be completed in every way. The building will be 150 by 102.

The entire stage will be torn out of the Valentine for new orchestra pit. All new seats will be installed. In the box, with exits on all three sides, moving pictures and vaudeville as the policy to be followed.

Pennsylvania

The Majestic theatre reopened for business a few days ago after being closed for a few weeks in connection with the Pennsylvania State Fair. The Majestic has 1,000 seats. During the time the theatre was closed the state authorities were asked to endorse a resolution to the effect that the amusement business was supposed to be closed. The Majestic is opened this time.

Theatre has been changed, eliminating entirely the steps at the entrance and exit. A balcony has been built across the sidewalk.
affording excellent opportunity for a fine electrical display. The booth now stands on the sidewalk line. It is equipped with an automatic ticket deliverer. Mirrors have been used profusely in the outside equipment, and make this stall a decidedly pleasing one to look at.

Inside the floor has been renewed, raised, recarpeted. New seats, upholstered in woven leather have been fitted into the interior, making a show system with elaborate brackets and lamps, new sidewalk decorations, etc. is equipped with elaborate brackets and lamps, new sidewalk decorations, etc.

The Majestic is the only movie house in this section with this feature. A new picture screen has been directed and a new frame the pictures installed for projecting the pictures installed for projecting the entire show. The floors are entirely with the flickering that so tires the eyes.

McCartney is now associated with Peter Johnson in the proprietorship of the Majestic. Mr. McCartney will be the active manager. One of the most modern motion picture theatres will be built on the site of the Grand Opera House, Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, part of which was destroyed by fire recently. Bids have been closed and the contract for the building is to be let soon.

The new building will have a seating capacity of 2,000. While it will be designed primarily for photography, the seating capacity will be changed for regular use. The new theatre is to cost about $300,000, it is reported.

WASHINGTON

Jensen & Von Herberg, who control the Liberty, Coliseum and Mission, photograph houses in Seattle, have opened a new theatre, the Liberty, its twenty-first today. The Grand Airdome Theatre, was erected four years ago, and the Seattle men have spent more than $50,000 in remodeling and improvements. It will be one of the newest in the West, and is being called the Pacific Coast. The opening attraction will be "The Call of the Yukon," with an impressive feature hit drama seen here some weeks ago at the Liberty. Mr. Von Herberg has been in Portland for some time superintending work on the theatre. Gordon F. Fullerton, assistant manager of the Liberty and Mission theatres, went to Portland to be present at the opening.

ILLINOIS

Manager Ross Deny is beginning the preliminary work toward the remodeling of the Dreamland theatre, of Roadhouse. He is going to have a balcony, mezzanine and a stage farm. They have a two-story building and it is to be divided by intervals when first-class attractions can be obtained. This necessitates removing about 10 feet of the ceiling to accommodate the stage and view from the balcony. The work will be completed during the remodeling of the vaudeville season this fall. The seating capacity will be increased to 534 from 400.

Colovos Bros., owners and managers of the Mars and Auditorium theatres, announced that they will soon incorporate under the name of Colovos Bros. & Co. and have interested with them some St. Louis parties.

The incorporation will be for $150,000, and a great deal of expense in the business is contemplated. Among other things it is planned to remodel the houses are to be rented, purchased or built in Christopher, West Frankfort, Carbondale, and Mt. Vernon. The Benson house will make five under the same management.

Since coming to Benton the Colovos Brothers have proven themselves to be up-to-date show men, and when they get into the new territory contemplated, they will be able to make the most of whatever is put in their hands. The Daley theatre, at Springfield, is now completed, and awaiting only the arrival of the seats. The building will seat five hundred, and will be one of the cosiest little theatres in this district. It is on West Main street in the old site of the air. The building is provided with many exits and large windows on the west and ventilator on the air. The building is the property of Harry Daley and Bert Lancaster.

The theatre, owned by R. Simmons, owner of the Entertainment V., Sheehan, has been an air-conditioned on the vacant lot east of the post-office building.

INDIANA

Marion soon will have another new and modern playhouse which will be symbolic of the city's onward march to standing of the most modern of the Indiana cities. It was announced a few days ago that the Royal Grand Theatre Company had secured an option on the side of the colored church and property owners of the theatre and property owners of the hotel. The unique building on West Fifth street, and that a new large theatre building would soon be erected.

With the securing of an option on the building and property, the work of tearing down the church structure will begin at an early date. Miss Hazel Spurr, manager of the Royal Grand, obtained an option on the theatre building capable of seating 1,000 people and costing nearly $40,000.

It will be constructed and be erected and opened by the new company. The new theatre will be 30 by 60 feet and is located on the property with a new feature in the circuit is the installation of the electric television system. The unusual feature of the new building is the installation of the electric television system. The unusual feature of the new building is the installation of the electric television system.

The Stencil Process

Referring now to Fig. 3, we see exactly how the electrical circuit is arranged. The tracing point (22) is movable in an insolated casing (38), and is pressed outwards by a light spring (39). When the point (22) is brought to bear against the ground-glass (15-Fig. 1) the spring is compressed and the point is moved toward the contact and the cutting point (40) and (41) are connected, respectively, with the battery (42) and the electro-magnet (36-Fig. 2). When the tracing point is no longer in contact with the ground-glass the spring (39-Fig. 3) moves the point away from the contacts (40 and 41), thus breaking the circuit.

The action of the stencil-cutting machine, when in operation, may be briefly summarized as follows:

Assuming that $m$ (Fig. 1) is the image which lies under the cutting tool, and that $n, o, p$ are the preceding images; the tracing point (22) is moved by the operator around the contours of the enlarged image which is projected onto the ground-glass (15) by means of the light rays coming from the source (9) and

Looking America in the Face

In every town and city of 5,000 population or over in the United States this multi-color 24-sheet, beginning August 15, is being seen by America’s millions.

On every main thoroughfare, on all motor boulevards and highways, near every downtown or neighborhood theatre, near all railroad terminals and parks or playgrounds, these famous stars of Goldwyn Pictures are introducing themselves to the audiences who will hasten to see them in your theatre.

These posters dominate every neighborhood in which they appear and lead in appeal to the eye—just as these stars themselves will lead in appeal to the picture audiences of the nation.

A story of tremendous strength adapted from a play that held Broadway for a year, a leading woman who is the peer of any emotional actress on the screen, a cast made up of real artists, photography that is perfect, direction by one of the country's most famous directors - that is "Today."

"Today" is one of the strongest pictures of the year," says the Telegraph.
"The exhibitor can bank on it for big business," says Motography.
"No exhibitor can afford to overlook it," says the Trade Review.

You can advertise "Today" to the limit and depend upon big returns not only at the box office but in delighted patrons.

ATTENTION OF MR. EVANS

Dear Sir:

The writer takes a great deal of pleasure in stating that, in my opinion, your latest serial "THE FATAL RING" is undoubtedly the greatest serial I have had the pleasure of witnessing.

As you know, we booked the "FATAL RING" for a week's run at the Kings only after a very thorough investigation covering all serials on the market today. After screening "FATAL RING" we did not hesitate to book because it is infinitely superior to all other serials, and we know we would do a big business with it. The acting of Pearl White is wonderful. Warner Oland is the best heavy on the screen and his work is perfect. And by the way, he is immensely popular in our houses because of his excellent work in "PATRIA". The photography, cast, story and direction are absolutely perfect, and I know it is going to be a hit. I am sure it will bring you more from the finest people in St. Louis, as we are in a pinch whenever we find the leading business and professional men of our city. Anything that meets with the approval of our audience must be the very best the market affords. Our admission is 10 and 25 cents at all times.

You don't take any chance at all in booking a Pathe serial. Pathe knows how to make them so as to bring you fifteen weeks of good business.

Very truly yours,

The SEVEN PEARLS

WITH

AND CREIGHTON HALE

For nearly four years Pathé has been putting out serials that have unfailingly brought out the crowds and that have meant the difference between profit and loss to many an exhibitor. For nearly four years Pathé has been advertising serials in newspapers, trade papers and on bill boards to a degree that has never been equalled by any other house in the business. Pathé knows what the public wants, what kind of a story, what kind of production, what kind of a cast, for long experience, the expenditure of much money and special study have brought definite and positive knowledge, not guess work. Sixteen successful serials from Pathé prove that Pathé is giving to exhibitor and public alike what they want— to the public solid entertainment; to the Exhibitor crowds of satisfied patrons.

"The Seven Pearls" has a great story, adventurous, romantic, thrilling; Mollie King made a big hit in "Mystery of the Double Cross." She has youth, beauty and talent. Creighton Hale in "The Exploits of Elaine" and "The Iron Claw" was a big favorite. With real feature production and with big advertising in the Hearst and many other large newspapers the exhibitor is assured not only of big interest in the serial at the start but of continued patronage for fifteen weeks.

The most successful exhibitors show Pathé serials—that's one big reason why they are successful.

We want to tell you something more about STANDARD PICTURES.

They are better pictures than anyone has ever made before.
We spent two and one-half millions making them, without saying a word about it.
We’ve got the pictures now.
We won’t rent them to you unless you have seen them first; that’s how sure we are of their box-office powers.

If you don’t think they are as big as we do, we don’t want you to play them. If you review STANDARD PICTURES, however, with your own eyes and brain, you will realize their box-office value; you will become enthusiastic, a strong booster, an intelligent advertiser of STANDARD PICTURES. There are men ready to show them to you in any district of the United States and Canada.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK is playing to turnaway crowds at the Globe Theatre now.

William Farnum, the screen’s greatest actor, in THE CONQUEROR, follows soon—and others.

THE HONOR SYSTEM you all know—and if you don’t, ask any New York or New Jersey Manager for his box-office records.

Theda Bara will soon be seen on Broadway in a super-picture production of CLEOPATRA, which will distance anything we have ever seen for splendor—massiveness—and accuracy in production, to say nothing of the wonderful art of Theda Bara.

YOU WILL BE OBLIGED TO SEE ALL STANDARD PICTURES BEFORE BOOKING. THIS IS OUR POSITIVE RULE REGARDING STANDARD PICTURES.

These pictures can each be booked individually, and there is no obligation for you to take any picture that you do not want. You are welcome to one or all.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS OF REASONS WHY WILLIAM FOX HAS MADE THE LEE CHILDREN STANDARD PICTURE STARS

HERE ARE THE BEST REASONS FROM THE EXHIBITOR'S STANDPOINT:

"Jane and Katherine Lee come nearer to being true 'Baby Bernhardts' than any other child players of the American cinema. Their work on the screen is magnificent."—Le Petit Parisien, Paris.

"William Fox is to be congratulated on having two such popular players (as Jane and Katherine Lee) on his pay roll. Their brightness is in inverse ratio to their size."—Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier.

"As usual, when the Lee children came on the screen, the audience gave itself up to enjoyment. Katherine and Jane are the greatest joy-makers in the film."—Cleveland (Ohio) Leader.

"The Fox 'Baby Grands' are the Wonder children of the Movies."—Cincinnati (Ohio) Enquirer.

"We can't be forced to stay away from a picture which contains Jane and Katherine. They make us as happy as a bunny plays."—Detroit (Mich.) Free-Press.

"Katherine and Jane Lee are the brightest sunbeams on the screen."—Dallas (Texas) Dispatch.

"Jane and Katherine Lee are always sure of packed theatres here. They deserve the biggest crowds they can get. Their pictures are sure of success."—Denver (Colo.) Post.

"The screen is much richer by the presence of Katherine and Jane Lee. Everybody loves them, because they have personality."—Atlanta (Ga.) Journal.

"Jane and Katherine Lee are without a peer among child players."—Washington (D. C.) Post.

"Give us Jane and Katherine every time. They are the cleverest kiddies of the camera."—Philadelphia North American.

"Jane and Katherine are becoming synonymous with success. They are always sure of hearty applause."—Kansas City Star.

"The business-like way in which Jane and Katherine do their work is not excelled by any member of the cast."—M. P. World.

"The acting of little Jane and Katherine Lee is simple and natural and an audience is carried from the two greatest emotional extremes."—Trade Review.

"The Lee children, Jane and Katherine, are known all over the world as two of the cleverest children on the screen."—A. H. Gehler, St. Louis Globe.

"The ability and drawing power of Katherine and Jane Lee have recently elevated them to stellar ranks."—Francis Agnew in New York Telegraph.

"The most famous children in filmland."—Louella O. Parsons in Chicago Herald.

"Two of the most remarkable figures in the movie world are the two little Lee sisters, Katherine Lee and Jane Lee."—Asheville (N. C.) Citizen.

Dear Sir:

The writer has been so busy that he has not had an opportunity to write you the fact that "The Flame of Yukon" shown at the Savoy Theatre, 34th Street and Broadway, was pronounced by one of the largest audiences that ever attended the building, the most satisfactory picture ever shown in the premises.

I also wish to call your attention to the fact that I think that you have hit the nail on the head in making seven-reel pictures.

Wish to state that if the Triangle Distributing Corporation continues to make pictures like "The Flame of the Yukon," the exhibitors showing your programme will not miss Douglas Fairbanks, Wm. S. Hart or any other stars that may have left you.

This letter is written absolutely unsolicited and you may use it in any form you like.

Also wish to call to your attention that I shall use the "Flame of the Yukon" to dedicate the new $250,000 St. James Theatre at Asbury Park, N. J., which will open on the 4th of August.

YOU are in business to gain money—certainly not to lose it, just break even, or for fun.

Money in these days is really made by the intensive development of every possibility of gain, whether it be great or small.

Whatever you may save adds to your increase just as certainly as your direct profit adds to your bank account.

Efficiency today is a real asset in the conduct of any business, for it never fails to pay dividends to him who develops it.

The entire business management of the Motion Picture Industry is as full of leaks in efficiency as a sieve is of holes—and this applies to exhibition, too.

Eliminate Waste—Stop Leaks—Develop Patronage—Reduce Operating Charges—Increase Receipts. These are the cardinal points to the Exhibitor.

Why not reduce the rentals on your big feature pictures?—Why not cut out competition and work for yourself?—Why not keep step with the times and take the short cut to profits and prosperity.

You can do it. It costs you nothing but a little brain work. You are capable of that. You would get angry at the man who said you were not.

There's always cause behind an effect and there's always a reason behind a result. "There's a Reason!" behind the Paralta Plan and there are many reasons why it will prove of value to you. Study the Paralta Plan!

EXHIBITORS TRADE REVIEW

"A clean-up for the theatre owner, a box office attraction of sure fire merit. Produced in fine style — real story, novel, timely, convincing. The Slacker can be depended upon to get the money."

The Morning Telegraph

"Brilliant performance—guaranteed to arouse the most dormant patriotic spirit—hits the right spot—brought tears to the eyes of nearly everyone in the audience."

Moving Picture World

"The Slacker is the very best plea for loyalty to Old Glory ever shown. As an incentive to enlistment nothing finer has ever been put upon the screen, and as an inspiration for the young it will live in memory."

Motion Picture News

"Until you have seen Metro's production of The Slacker you have not experienced the real, soul-piercing thrill of patriotism. Until you have seen Emily Stevens in the role of Margaret Christy, you have not seen the soul of a woman, an actress, an artist, pour forth through its inspiring channels, the terrible, crushing emotions felt by a mother, a wife, a patriot when the one nearest and dearest to her heart—a 'slacker'—hears the call of his country and leaves for the battlefields of France."

Motography

"The Slacker promises to be the best bet of the year for showmen. It is a type of picture that stimulates by word of mouth advertising, treating on the foremost subject of the day. It is a play of great dramatic strength."

To the Man on the Firing Line

They know that whatever honor is conveyed by the appointments is but incidental to the job—and the job is a big one, a toilsome task, a time-stealing burden, mayhap, a thankless labor.

** * * * **

WHAT of the exhibitor? Does the man on the firing line know that he must take his share of the tasks—pleasant and unpleasant? Or has "war cooperation" impressed him only as another of the phrases that come from New York's film marts?

The time is short. When the wheels start to move there can be no allowance for hitches and delays. The truth, pleasant or otherwise, must be realized.

The situation, as it appeals to us, is this:

Uncle Sam does not deal in words.

The government has asked for the screens of the country not in aid of a fad—but for a vital purpose.

The screen has been asked to carry home to every person in the land the truths of the war and his part in it.

Some of these truths may be agreeable; some may be disagreeable.

Some of the propaganda may suit the individual exhibitor's plans for his daily program; some may not.

Food control, further war loans, the government's demands of each individual—may be translated into entertaining messages. Every effort will be made by the able film men in charge to have them so.

But—and here is the blunt fact—whether he be entertaining or boresome, Uncle Sam must have the freedom of every screen in the country for every word he has to say.

** * * * **

We say "must." It is a harsh word. But it is the true word. The motion picture has been requested—but the motion picture can be conscripted. (Continued on next page)
A New Department

"INTENSIVE" means getting the most out of anything—a business office, a hotel, a motion picture theatre, or anything else.

To the exhibitor "intensive" work means pleasing the broadest circle of people and thus getting the most out of the public.

It is a question whether the average exhibitor has not been catering to only a part of his possible customers. It is even claimed that he has been trying to please only the "fan," and has been neglecting thousands of people who like educational, scenic, cartoons and comedies, and weeklies just as much as the long features. At any rate, there is no question that a large part of the public likes one or more short subjects in every program. To the extent that these are given, the broader will be the exhibitor's appeal for attendance.

To help exhibitors in getting the best short subjects, Motion Picture News begins in its August 25th issue a special Short Subjects Department in charge of Miss Clara de Lissa Berg, Inspector of Visual Education of the New York City Board of Education. Reviews will be given, suggestions made and questions answered from subscribers of Motion Picture News.

Worn Film and Poor Attendance

AFTER a careful investigation of film conditions as they affect patronage we find that one of the chief causes for falling off of attendance, particularly in the smaller houses is the absolutely inexusable physical condition of film sent out by the exchanges.

A man using sixty or ninety day film receives absolutely no consideration. The exchanges seem to entirely lose all sense of responsibility. They know that these houses must have enough footage to run off a show, but whether the story is there in most cases makes no difference, whether the patches hold or not is of secondary importance, punch holes are entirely overlooked.

Yet these small houses represent the profit of the producer.

It is a condition which must not last; it cannot for the good of the industry. Every exhibitor is entitled to receive film which will at least allow him to send his patrons away from his house with the feeling that they have at least seen a complete and well-told picture.

The order to hasten this improved condition the Anti-Misframe League was formed under the auspices of the Projection Department of Motion Picture News.

Every theatre owner is urged to see that his operator becomes a member—there is no financial obligation—merely a statement that he will abide by and carry out the intentions of the League.

Any and all complaints concerning the bad condition of film should be sent directly to this office in order that we may call them to the attention of the heads of the producing companies who are not directly responsible for the conditions but who are anxious to check them up and cooperate with the Exhibitors in correcting them.

The facts which we want are—name of producer, name of film, how long it has been released in the territory, the address of the exchange and whether complaints have been made to him previously. By co-operating in this way we should soon have an inspection department in every exchange of which the industry will be proud.

In a Nutshell

AMERICA will win the War.

The motion picture is one of the main agents to this great end. To do its duty the picture must be backed by a united industry.

A united industry demands complete exhibitor organization.

For the time being there is no such thing as divided exhibitor organization.

Every patriotic exhibitor—and this means every exhibitor—will want to do his share. He will do his share—organizations to the contrary notwithstanding.

It should therefore be immediately made easy for him to join the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, individually or through his exhibitor organization, be it local, state or national, so that he may be part and parcel of a righteous campaign for this country's honor and this world's liberty.

The Picture Theatre a Public Forum

THE history of the four-minute men is, briefly, this: A number of politicians saw an opportunity, through the war, to organize a splendid junketing trip from Coast to Coast. It was necessary, they said, for trained orators like themselves, to rouse the people. The junket would cost about $2,000,000.

The President disagreed. Perhaps he thought the people already knew more about the war than the politicians; and undoubtedly there were other needs for the large appropriation asked for. The counter-plan was evolved at Washington of having Community Speakers address the public through motion picture theatres.

These Community Speakers are already at work. Very shortly they will be talking simultaneously to several million people a day. They are giving a new dignity and usefulness to the picture theatre—namely, that of a public forum wherein the largest number of the population may be reached at once upon question of the hour and day.

Let every exhibitor realize to-day that war cooperation is one phrase which means action.

Let every exhibitor promise himself to-day that he will cooperate—wholeheartedly, unquestionably, unflinchingly.

Let every exhibitor awake to the fact that he has been called to the colors just as surely as the man about to go to the trenches.

Let the Brady committees know that the man on the firing line is ready—ready and waiting.

He is ready. There is the task of supplying the ammunition.
American Exhibitors’ Asso. Moves Ahead on Firm Basis

General Manager Pettijohn Establishes Office in New York—3000 Members Already Certain—Detroit Comes into Organization Strong—First Number of Weekly Bulletin Issued

WITH the arrival of Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the American Exhibitors’ Association, in New York, and the establishment of a local office in the Times Building, plans for the strong foundation of the new league for exhibitors moved rapidly last week.

Most pleasing to the members of the organization, born at the Convention but two weeks ago, were the messages of encouragement received from exhibitors and local bodies throughout the entire country. Indications are that a big proportion of live motion-picture men in the United States will lend their aid and backing in enthusiastic fashion toward the end that the young organization will live and steadily grow.

Late in the week the following encouraging telegram was received by Mr. Pettijohn from King Perry, secretary of the Detroit exhibitors’ body:

Great meeting to-day. Every one working hard. State members are working with Detroit. Mr. Schneid, president; William Slittenhnelm, vice-president; John Bremon, treasurer; King Perry, secretary. Will hold meeting every Thursday. If you can make us a visit write me in time to notify state and city so we can arrange good meeting. Can assure the new body Michigan will show results very soon. We are working under the name of American Exhibitors’ Association of Michigan. Send me copy for blank application so we can have some made. With best wishes.

3000 Members Certain

The plan to organize the various states into units through professional organizers has gone by the board, it having been found that in many sections there are exhibitors willing and anxious to devote their time to this cause.

It was estimated by Mr. Pettijohn last week that the new association already has a tentative membership of 3000. The majority has already applied, while others are ready to enter the body.

The following states are already in the association: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Washington.

In addition, chapters have been started in Brooklyn, New York, Boston, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Several prominent members of the American Exhibitors’ Association journeyed to New York last week to discuss plans for the broadening of the organization. Jake Wells, temporary president; Mr. Mosher, well-known Buffalo exhibitor; Guy Worthington, of Baltimore, and others were in the city.

A weekly bulletin, the purpose of which is outlined in the foreword of the first issue, printed below, will in future be sent broadcast each week by the Association. The first, in full, follows:

To the Exhibitors of America:

The purpose of the American Exhibitors Association is to create and maintain a national body of motion picture exhibitors; to improve and protect the motion picture business; to encourage the production and showing of motion pictures of high character, to protect the individual member from unfair methods of trade and other abuse, to work for the best interests of the industry as a whole, to adjust and arbitrate differences between members and various other branches of the industry; to assist the United States Government in the work of public information in times of war and other crises, and in every lawful way to promote generally the prosperity, uplift and betterment of the motion picture industry.

In accordance with this purpose, and fulfilling the fundamental idea that the American Exhibitors’ Association is, is needed as well as in fact, a true exhibitors’ organization, a bulletin will be issued each week in time for the editions of the trade papers, in which the doings of the Association to date will be concisely given for the information of all exhibitors.

The organization is already started in thirty states and is working. By the time of the Detroit convention next year we expect to be organized in every state.

What is now desired are applications for membership. Within the next week we wish to reach every exhibitor in the United States with a personal letter in which an

National Asso. Has Application of New Exhibitor Body

American Exhibitors’ Association Asks Amendment to By-laws and Admission to National Body—Ochs Holds Up Decision of Board of Directors by Objections—Aug. 27 is Set for Decision

The board of directors of the National Association at the first annual meeting held yesterday, decided to pass on the application of an amendment to the by-laws of the body in order to admit the newly organized American Exhibitors’ Association, at a meeting called for August 27.

The objection of Lee A. Ochs to vote at the session of the directors, called immediately after the meeting of the Association, stood in the way of an immediate decision yesterday.

When the Association was called to order and other business attended to, Samuel H. Trigger arose and announced that the American Exhibitors’ Association would like the by-laws of the National Association amended and the new exhibitors body admitted. President Brady ruled that under article 18 the by-laws could be amended, provided a copy of the amendment together with a notice of the meeting be mailed to members twenty-one days prior to the date set.

Immediate Decision Possible

His attention was called to Article 2, which is to the effect that such a motion could be decided on as proper by the Board of Directors, following which Charles C. Pettijohn applied under this article for the admission of the American Exhibitors’ Association.

The Board of Directors went into session immediately after the adjournment to discuss the application. The objector, refusing to vote or take part in the meeting on the grounds that the exhibitor directors had not been notified and were not present. Brady left the chair, and moved adjournment to August 27, at which time the application will come up under the order of new business.

This adjournment necessitated the holding of the old officers of the association until the next meeting. Election of officers would ordinarily have taken place. Extra Director Named Ten extra exhibitor directors who were not among those appointed at Chicago were made members of the Executive Committee. These were: Messrs. Ochs, Hamburger, Rice, Clark, Eager, Black, Blumenthal, Levine, Glammann and Farnum.

A motion was made and carried to increase the directors from the present number of thirty to forty-two. On a vote this was passed, and the following were added:

To the first class—Producers; Samuel Goldfisher and William Fox. To the second class—Exhibitors; Messrs. O’Donnell, Chamberlain, Robt. Levy and Pasamagoulos. To the third class—Distributors; John R. Freuler and S. A. Lynch. To the fourth class—Exhibitors, Messrs. Kettridge and Coufal. To the fifth class—General Division; Fred J. Beecroft and George Irving.
Motion Picture Committees Ready for Action

Men of the Industry, Through Their Leaders, Present a United Front—Will Cooperate Promptly with Government in All Moves

SUB-COMMITTEES of the War Cooperation Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry have during the week placed themselves unqualifiedly at the service of the Government.

They stand ready each of the committees, to get from the people, through the screen, propaganda that the Government may choose to father. Any subject that will in picturization aid or strengthen the Government in war or at home will be shown by all exhibitors throughout the nation.

The committees were named each to cooperate with a department of the Government, this to make the work most effective. It is said the President and the members of his Cabinet are greatly pleased with the selected representation of the motion picture industry. It is declared to be an example and an inspiration to all other trades and industries.

Slight changes have been made in the personnel of these sub-committees, the revised list of committees being as follows:

War Department—P. A. Powers, Universal Film Manufacturing Company, New York City; Eugene M. Clarke, Jefferson theater, Natchez, Miss.; W. A. Johnston, Editor, Motion Picture News, New York City; Cecil B. DeMille, Lasky Studios, Los Angeles.

Navy Department—John R. Freuler, Mutual Film Corporation, Chicago, Ill.; Joseph F. Cuffal, Noveltv Slide Co., New York City; Stanley Mann, Metro Pictures, New York City; Arthur James, A. M. P. Advertisers, New York City.

Treasury Department—Adolph Zukor, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, New York City; Marcus Loew, Loew's Enterprises, New York City; Edward J. Steichen, Steichens, New York City; Walter W. Irwin, Vitagraph, V.L.S.E., New York City; John B. Wills, Editor, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Virginia, Alexandria, Va.

Department of Interior—Richard A. Rowland, Metro Pictures Corporation, New York City; Samuel L. Roth, Radio City, New York City; Walter J. Moore, H. C. Miner Lithographing Company, New York City.

Women's Committee—Marc Hubford, Lasky Studio, Los Angeles, Cal.; Anita Stewart, Vitaphone, New York; Mrs. H. Stowell, Combinations, New York; Mrs. J. Elvidge, Peerless Producing Company, West Fort Lee, N. J.

To Be Elected by Member of All the Above Committees—David Wark Griffith, chairman of the War Operation Committee, Trylon Building, New York.

To the Council of National Defense—William A. Brady, World Film Corporation, New York City.

American Exhibitors' Association Moves Ahead on Firm Basis

Please respond promptly. Return applications filed out, and your check for $3 or $6—six months' or a year's dues—at your option.

The general manager is the personal representative in New York City of every legitimate exhibitor, and is being paid for the purpose of representing exhibitors in any business pertaining to the motion picture industry.

This service is designed to save busy exhibitors time and money. The establishment of an office in New York by the general manager is to further this purpose. Business which would ordinarily exact attention and time from the exhibitor will be looked after from these headquarters without trouble or expense to him.

Should any exhibitor fail to receive the letter and application card will he please send at once his name, name of theatre and complete address.

Prompt response in the way of membership and dues is important. All communications should be addressed to the American Exhibitors' Association, 1110 Times Building, 42nd street and Broadway, New York.

New York Central Shows Safety Film at Rialto

"The Rule of Reason," produced by the New York Central, was shown at the Rialto theatre last Wednesday. It is in the nature of a propaganda film and sets forth in a vivid and instructive manner the various accidents which occur through the carelessness of employees. There is evidence of very slight plot material, but, in the main, it consists of a series of events. It is an instructive bit of reclamation.

Creighton Hale Ill from Heat Prostration in Studio

Donald Mackenzie has been obliged to render his services at the Astra-Pathe serial in which Mollie King is to be featured, due to the illness of Creighton Hale, his leading man. Mr. Hale was overcome by heat at the Astra Studio during the heat wave of last week, and was taken to a private hospital pending his recovery. Mr. Mackenzie is now directing scenes in which Mr. Hale does not appear.

Jesse L. Lasky Returns from Visit to Studios

Jesse L. Lasky departed for the east this week after spending five or six weeks at the studios where photographs for the new Astra-Pathe serial in which Mollie King is to be featured, due to the illness of Creighton Hale, his leading man. Mr. Hale was overcome by heat at the Astra Studio during the heat wave of last week, and was taken to a private hospital pending his recovery. Mr. Mackenzie is now directing scenes in which Mr. Hale does not appear.
New Exhibitors' League Already Strong in Northwest

Disputing for Power in Passive in Old League

Organized of the new American Exhibitors' Association promises to give Minneapolis and the Northwest two rival exhibitors' organizations, each striving for a mastery of the situation. With the national organizers for the new and the old organizations both living in this city, Minneapolis promises to become the most hotly contested ground of the country.

No one doubts the ability of either W. A. Steffes, organizer for the new body, or of David W. Rodgers, of the older one, but early indications are that the Northwestern exhibitors are about evenly divided.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that some of the larger exhibitors who heretofore have maintained only a passive membership in the old organization are going to give strong moral and financial support to the American Exhibitors' Association. They believe its aims strike nearer the hearts of the exhibitors who are working for better pictures and better prices.

The attitude of the bigger exhibitors is probably best voiced by Ruben and Finkelstein, who control ten theatres in all and who have all but two of the large downtown theatres charging more than 5 cents admission.

Lowell C. Calvert, manager of the New Garrick theatre, the city's largest theatre, speaking for this firm, said:

"The American Exhibitors' Association will find this firm and the other prominent exhibitors strong supporters. The aims of the organization coincide with the aims of exhibitors who believe in better conditions in the business."

Concentration in Ideas

"There are some things which an exhibitors' organization can and ought to do for the exhibitor. There are others it can't do. To my mind an association should concentrate on two things. It should fight harmful, prejudicial and unwarranted legislation, and it should educate all motion picture patrons. It should teach them that exhibitors who give them the best should have a fair price for their efforts. The great manufacturers and business associations have spent millions showing the people the value of all good products and the fallacy of low prices and attendant low quality. Then, too, we have long looked to the old exhibitors' organization for help when help was imperative. When deadly legislation was pending our representatives were not there. I believe the new organization will let the exhibitor manage his business and rest assured that when these great emergencies arise, they will be met by able men. I believe the new organization will be able also to eliminate politics and improve conditions. Real service only is to be considered in a business organization. Politics has no place there."

If the American Exhibitors' Association will work, save us from bad legislation and do a little educational work, we will gladly pay our share of the expense. Heretofore our participation in organized effort has been as passive as the committee of the organization.

"We will be active now, and will continue so as long as the organization is active. It was a great step to form a new organization, but we predict success for it."

Faults of Old League

James Keough, manager of the Strand, Saxe Brothers' large downtown theatre, said he had been dissatisfied with exhibitors' organization because of politics, petty jealousies and unnecessary rivalry.

"Let the organization fight unjust legislation, and the exhibitors will take care of their relations with the exchanges. Exchange men aren't averse to such laws. In other lines of business there are strong bonds between the manufacturer, jobber and retailer. Business difficulties between these branches of business are not aired on the floor of every convention. The business there comes to be more constructive."

"If the American Exhibitors' Association will map out a constructive program on broad principles and leave the petty things to individual business judgment, I am for it. It looks like a move in the right direction. I believe the exhibitor and distributor should fight everything that harms legitimate business. They need not necessarily belong to the same organization. Let the new organization examine the old stuff that is known by its acts rather than by the names of the men who compose it. I believe in giving these men every chance on earth. Success was impossible under the old rule."

Some Remain Steadfast

Other of the better known exhibitors, however, have declared for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

The delegation of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest was practically a unit for the older organization, and will remain so, according to James Golosky, proprietor of the Alhambra theatre, St. Paul, and president of the corporation.

"There are always disgruntled ones in any organization," said Mr. Golosky, "but, in the main, the Northwest is a unit for the old organization. The new organization represents something which could not get what they wanted in the regular body, and they broke away. The old organization will go on just the same and will continue to improve and give greater service. If a new organization is formed here to work with the American Exhibitors' League, it will be a weak one."

Billy B. Watson, manager of the New Garden theatre, Minneapolis, declared the league would have his support. "Any new organization formed like the new association was formed in Chicago will have to show me that it can do more for the business than the old one. I will remain with the league."

F. W. Thayer, of the Calhoun theatre, said the new organization would find hard sledding in the Northwest. "I have been benefited by the league and shall continue to give it my support," he said. "I don't believe there is room for two organizations, and there was no need for a new one in my opinion."

While it is true that the Northwest organization is expected to stand hitched, the new organization, according to Mr. Steffes, will not depend on those now in the organization for strength.

Chance for Growth

One of the principal criticisms of the Northwest corporation has been that it was not organized strongly enough. At its last convention in May when its importance were being considered, when Fred W. Herrington, national organizer, was there to talk things over with them, there were less than 150 men in the meeting. The greatest attendance record at any one meeting was less than 300, while there are approximately 4,000 theatres in the Northwest district. There are about 800 theaters in Minnesota alone. It is from those who did not attend this convention that the new association looks for its strength.

Lubin Plant to Be Sold at Auction

Final act in the drama that involves the Lubin Motion Picture Plant is announcement of the sale at auction of the entire property September 10-14 at Twentieth street and Indiana avenue, Philadelphia.

The notice of sale is signed, "by order of Nicholas G. Roosevelt, President." The real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment is all listed, and with it a large wardrobe, scenery, draperies, properties, camera and camera supplies and all studio supplies. Auctioneers are Samuel T. Freeman & Co., 1519-21 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Jesse L. Lasky Comes to Army Aid with Lumber

Owing to the demand for lumber at the Pacific Coast army barracks, Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has wired the company's lumber mill at Hogqiam, Wash., which is at work on contracts for the Aircraft Studios, to suspend the work for the studios, and put on two shifts a day preparing lumber for army barracks.

The lumber will be sold to the Government at cost. The services of the two Famous Players-Lasky lumber carrying vessels and the docking facilities in Los Angeles Harbor have also been offered to Uncle Sam.

The move may delay production of the Geraldine Farrar play, "The Woman God Forgot."
W. A. Brady’s Surprise—Big Summer Business
Week Ending July 14, for Instance, Breaks Every Record of New York Exchange, Winter or Summer, from World Film’s Very Start

"ONE of the undeniable fascinations of the motion picture business," said William A. Brady, director general of World Pictures, "is the element of surprise, which is so frequently in evidence that nobody engaged in this industry need concern himself about the monotony or feel that nothing is necessary but to float with the tide.

"The surprise which attracts the attention of World executives at this particular moment is exceedingly agreeable. Everybody familiar with any branch of theatrical amusements is, of course, aware that the hot weather months are detrimental—often disastrous. This is but a matter of course, for nobody with any idea of physical comfort could be expected to sit in a hot audience room for any length of time to observe an ordinary attraction.

"This is the annual occasion which cloaks most regular theatres altogether, and makes it hard for the managers of those motion picture houses remaining open to make both ends meet. The manufacturer of photoplays, in turn, looks for a marked shrinkage in the volume of his business, which is one branch of the heated term—which is ‘natural cards,’ as the sporting element would say.

"It may be readily imagined that when we in the World concern found there was no shrinkage at all in our gross output, and an actual gain in some quarters over the best part of the year, we were shaken completely out of any complacency or lassitude that might have been imposed upon us by the thermometer.

"In the New York Exchange, for example, the business for the week ending July 14 broke every record of this branch for a period of similar duration, winter or summer, from the very beginning of World Film Corporation activities.

"A network of our exchanges also an unexpected growth was noted, while in one was the looked-for slump recorded.

Mack Sennett Gives His List of Funny Ones
"Roping Her Romeo" to be Followed by "The Bedroom Blunder" and "The Pullman Bride"—All for Release as Paramount-Sennetts

MACK SENNETT at Edendale, Cal., this week announces the titles and casts of his first three pictures to be released by Paramount in accordance with the new affiliation. All Mr. Sennett’s comedians and pretty girls have been retained by him and will appear in these comedies, the first release to be made September 15, and every two weeks thereafter.

"Roping Her Romeo" is the first Paramount-Sennett. It features Molly Moran, long famous as a vivacious Sennett comedienne, and Ben Turpin and Slim Summerville. Slim is over six feet something and completely covered. He has a face like Raymond Hitchcock’s used to look before he put on weight. Ben Turpin is as funny off the screen as he is on it. He has the effect of a restless young cyclone—slow and sad as a fox terrier.

"A Bedroom Blunder" is the second Paramount-Sennett, featuring Charles Murray, Mary Thurman and Wayland Trask. Murray is called one of the best burlesquers ever graduated from stage to screen. His particular hits were made with Ziegfeld’s “Pollies” on the old days. Trask is a jolly, good-natured giant. He could shove a street car off the track or kick over a house, but is an amiable chap with a sense of humor. If he ever got peeved, say the Edendales, they would have to call out the National Guard.

Mary Thurman needs no introduction. Her face and figure are familiar to all comedy lovers. Miss Thurman is fond of bathing suits and procedure. She has been considered one of the prettiest girls in pictures, so critics have said.

"The Pullman Bride," featuring Gloria Swanson, is the third Paramount-Sennett comedy. The men are Chester Conklin and Mack Swain, neither of whom needs introduction. Their faces and antics are known to millions of movie fans.

Samuel L. Hutchinson at Santa Barbara on Business
Samuel L. Hutchinson, president American Film Company, Inc., and Signal Film Corporation, left recently for Santa Barbara to inspect his extensive film interests. While on the coast, Mr. Hutchinson will supervise and get under way several elaborate productions starring Mary Miles Minter and his newly acquired Broadway favorite, Juliette Day, whose screen debut is set for next month.

Picture Giant Joins Army
The motion picture business has furnished Uncle Sam with his tallest recruit. "Slim" Voorhees, whose six feet, seven and three-quarter inches have graced Pathe’s Lonesome Luke Comedies, said goodbye to his director, Hal Roach of Rolin, who, though a pretty chunky lad himself, looks like an infant alongside the lengthy “Slim.”

Voorhees has joined the artillery, though at first he was assigned to a drum major. In view of his height we would suggest that he switch to the Signal Corps—he’s so conspicuous.

Peter Milne in West Coast Studio Colony
Peter Milne, of the reviewing staff of Motion Picture News, is spending two weeks at Los Angeles, getting acquainted with principals of the West Coast producing colony and familiarizing himself with conditions generally. Mr. Milne was accompanied to the coast by Peter Schmid, head of the Artcruft publicity department, who is the guest of producers, directors and others of the companies producing on the West Coast.

Spitzer Goes East
Nat H. Spitzer, general manager King-Bee Film Corp., has returned east after a trip to San Francisco where he completed negotiations with Sol L. Lesser, President and general manager of the All Star Feature Distributing Corporation, and M. Rosenberg, president and general manager of the DeLuxe Feature Film Company at Seattle, for these two firms to handle the Billy West Comedies at their coast exchanges in Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles. With the making of these two contracts, it is stated Mr. Spitzer has sold his bi-weekly release for all territory in the United States.

Glucksman Gets “Civilization” for Chili
The Buenos Aires office of Max Glucks- man, has just completed arrangements with J. Parker Read who is there now, whereby Mr. Glucksman’s firm acquires exclusive rights for the exploitation of “Civilization” throughout Chili.

The New York office has secured the big Essanay feature “On Trial” for the countries of Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay and Chili.

Glucksman announces that he is ready to receive offers on big films from any producer.
Material Aid to Red Cross Extended by Film Industry

PLANS are under way for efficient co-operation of the motion picture industry with the Red Cross. Evan Evans, has been appointed director of the Bureau of Motion Pictures of the Red Cross, with headquarters at Washington, D. C.

It is proposed that every motion picture theatre in the United States be given over to the Red Cross for one day. The entire receipts of that day will go to the Red Cross, without deduction.

Exhibitors are suggesting that a Monday in November would perhaps be the best day to select. The exhibitor will furnish the theatre and projection machines—nothing else. The society will provide the films, take charge of the box office and even clean up the house afterwards. All of the receipts of the day go to the Red Cross.

Mr. Evans explains this arrangement is necessary because under its charter the society is not permitted to accept a percentage of the receipts of any theatre. This is a wise provision as it prevents the advertising of Red Cross benefits by unscrupulous persons who may really desire to get the benefit themselves.

Monday in November Selected

Exhibitors will understand that the selection of a Monday for the benefit—especially a Monday in November—is intended really to lessen the burden on the theatre.

Monday's business in most motion picture houses is done at a loss. The day shows a profit to relatively few theatres.

At the same time the Red Cross appeal will no doubt fill any motion picture place, so the exhibitor will be "doing his bit" and in a most effective way, for his country. The arrangement appears to be admirable, reflecting credit upon Mr. Evans, if it be his idea.

There are 15,000,000 members of the Red Cross, which explains why it is likely that motion picture houses will be packed by the crowds that will turn out for the benefits if properly advertised.

The giving of this benefit will not end the service of the industry in connection with the Red Cross. Mr. Evans makes this announcement:

Evans' Announcement

"Realizing the tremendous part the motion picture industry plays, not only in the amusements of the American people, but also in their education, the Red Cross has established a bureau of motion pictures with national headquarters at Washington. A national campaign in which every man engaged in the motion picture industry will be given an opportunity to do his bit and to express his patriotism is being arranged by a committee of men engaged in the motion picture business and the American Red Cross Bureau of Motion Pictures. A complete program will be announced later."

"The American Red Cross Bureau of Motion Pictures will perfect plans for developing a motion picture campaign of education covering all of the work of the Red Cross; pass upon all suggestions for raising money for the work of the Red Cross by means of motion pictures; secure and distribute motion pictures of the Red Cross actually at work at the front and at home; and assist in a campaign for 20,000,000 members of the Red Cross in this country."

Old League Singing Swan Song, Says Ohio Exhibitor

"The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America is singing its swan song," said Mr. Simpson, vice-president of the M. P. E. L. of Ohio, Local No. 1, last week.

Mr. Simpson had just returned from Chicago, where he attended the convention as a delegate from Ohio.

"It's too bad there had to be a split in the organization," he said, "but it had to come sooner or later. Why? Because the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America does not represent the exhibitor at all. Not only were 50 per cent of the M. P. E. L. of A. not exhibitors, but the work accomplished by the League was not for the exhibitor at all, but for the benefit of the film man at the expense of the exhibitor."

"How about the new organization? Is that any more representative?" Mr. Simpson was asked. "Yes, indeed," he answered. "The new organization is made up of exhibitors."

Select Seven Pass Resolutions at N. Y. Local Meeting

WITH Sidney Ascher acting in the dignified capacity of secretary, due to the absence of President Trigger and Secretary Gerson, some seven of the members of Manhattan Local No. 1, M. P. E. L. A., gathered in regular session last Wednesday afternoon.

Before the veil of censorship was drawn, it was determined that the meeting was a regular one, as the seven men present were formally called to order.

Then one exhibitor—it may have been Mr. Ed. Balenski—stepped forth and suggested to his six conferees that a special meeting be called to act on the suggestion which has been the subject of more or less enthusiastic debate on and off; namely, a sort of amalgamation of the three Greater New York borough locals.

"Overhead" Body Considered

The six were informed that this would lead to the promotion of greater harmony, and that efficiency, and hence the interests of the theatre owners would be better served were an executive committee formed to be composed of three members, each selected from the Bronx, Brooklyn and New York local.

Throughout the discussion anent this, the entire meeting of seven took part. The names of Exhibitors Ascher, Steiner, Cohen, and Needles were recognized by the chair at sundry times, according to report.

No one advancing the suggestion that the formation of such a committee might possibly be taken as the construction of an "overhead" New York organization and no discussion arising as to the "political advisability," it is understood that a motion was put through to call a special meeting August 10 to consider the proposition.

Anxious About Trigger

After this was disposed of, according to a statement later given out by Stanley Ascher, the short octette continued the executive session.

This time, so said the official statement issued after the meeting, the seven members present exhibited a degree of interest in the doings of the convention delegates of the Manhattan local, and it was resolved they be requested to report on their work in Chicago.

Perhaps there was some slip or a lost page in the stenographic report of the meeting, as no particular mention was made, it is understood, of how the meeting of seven spoke of absent President Sam Trigger.

In this connection, rumor has it, there was a heated debate—the mercury outside on Wednesday was 94—and a few sentences, such as the following are reported to have been passed:

"Trigger was the only representative of the local to 'walk out' with the other bunch. He should be required to explain that and his other actions in Chicago."

Explanation Wanted

"We don't know that he will be here at the next, or the next, or any other meeting. A message to appear and report will have to be mailed him here."

Throughout the mingled talk—it is said there really was no argument—of the seven the name of Ike Hartstall was occasionally heard, as he presumably took the floor.

It was reported that a resolution was unanimously passed by the eight exhibitors, for a late comer had appeared, "requesting," but not "requiring" President Trigger to give full explanation of his action to the local.
Vandivert Joins Peter Pan as Vice-President

Former Advertising Manager of Motion Picture News, Recognized as an Authority on the Independent Method of Marketing Film

R. VANDIVERT, for the past three years advertising manager of Motion Picture News, whose wide experience in the advertising field and close study of the motion picture industry, contributed to a large extent to the growth of the News, has become associated with the Peter Pan Corporation as vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Vandivert is particularly qualified to assume his new duties on account of his extensive knowledge of the independent field, the result of an extended trip throughout the country made for the purpose of getting in touch with independent buyers and studying their problems at first hand. As manager of the independent buyers' department of the News he supplemented this knowledge by keeping in constant touch with the changing conditions of the market, until now he is recognized as probably the best informed man on the subject in the trade today. Consequently, his understanding of exchange problems will prove invaluable to the Peter Pan organization.

There is not an exchange man of importance, from coast to coast, not known personally to Mr. Vandivert, whose energy and expert knowledge of the film business cannot fail to promote the business of the Peter Pan company, and he has been a large degree a publicity man.

While yet a young man, Mr. Vandivert has crowded a great deal of experience into his career. He started as a reporter, and later entered the advertising department of Variety.

"Variety Day" Plan of General is Popular

The monthly review of the field by General Film to note progress in its "Variety Day" plan brings the conclusion at headquarters of the company that Variety Day is here to stay. At any rate more and more bookings are made by exhibitors for Variety Days, and the idea has proved a salvation for houses that have a particularly hard struggle during the summer season.

"By the Variety Day plan of General Film a house that was formerly committed to showing a five-reel feature every day during the week, with two or three fillers, now depart from this monotonous round and sets aside one or two days each week when no five-reel feature is shown at all," says an official of the company. "Instead the entire bill is composed of the most excellent two-reel and one-reel subjects obtainable. They can be led with such tabloid classics as the O. Henry stories or the Black Cat-stories, along with several of the other great names and a Selig World Literature, for example. In the results of the company's product there are many combinations possible. As the public grows to expect these Variety Days it is remarked that it looks forward to them. Of course the Variety Day bills are preferable on good days of the week.

"The popularity of this arrangement is also taken to bear out the General Film belief that the public wants more story, and less 'star,' because in a Variety Day the audience gets at least twice as many stories as there are on the ordinary bills."

Work Begins on Sunshine One-Reel Comedies

The Sunshine Film Corporation is to produce one-reel comedies featuring Gus Pixlye, under the direction of George Orth and photographed by Lawrence Fowler. Other members of the company are George Henery, George Ross and Edmond Fields. They will be released by a New York company.

Louise Glauin Gives Alarm, Halts Triangle Fire

The famous New England towns, consisting of an entire Dutch village with canals, windmills, and quaint tiled-roof dwellings, which was built at the Triangle Culver City ranch for "Wooden Shoes," starring Besie Barrassale, caught fire this week and for a time seemed to be threatened with utter demolition.

Louise Glauin, who was working in an Egyptian setting near by, discovered the flames and called to Director Walter Edwards to turn in the alarm. In a few minutes the fire department, including the emergency fire department, was battling with the flames. By this prompt action the damage was limited to $1,000.

Operator Sticks to Post as Theatre Roof Falls

The lives of over two hundred persons were endangered when the roof of the Savoy theatre, Jacobsville, Fla., collapsed during a heavy downpour of rain.

The roof began to fall very slowly, allowing the audience time enough to get out of the doomed building, so there were no fatalities.

The operator of the machine, who stuck to his post, flashing the picture on the screen, even after part of the lower end of the roof had fallen, is said to have prevented a stampede for the front entrance, on which there are two wide steps.

The theatre is unusually well filled, owing to a heavy downpour. It was a one-story structure, having a flat roof. The weight of the water caused the roof to cave in. Manager J. O. Oliver and owner W. L. Whitehead announce that they will rebuild.

George W. Lederer Pleased by Art of Miss Davies

Final scenes for the new feature, "Runaway Romany," in which Marion Davies will be starred by the Aardley Art Film Corporation, were taken last week and the work of assembling the picture for release early in September began with a rush.

Miss Davies, who left the cast of "Oh, Boy!" at the Princess theatre, New York, to take a vacation and was lured into making her motion picture debut by the Ardley director, George W. Lederer, will rest a few weeks before beginning work on a new feature. The talent of the young star has been more than satisfactory to her sponsors, and it is believed that she has started on a brilliant career in the new art. "Runaway Romany" is filmed from an original story written by Miss Davies herself, so that her first appearance on the screen will be in the dual role of star and author. Mr. Lederer is authority for the statement that never in his long experience as a producer of successful musical comedies and stage productions as a director of motion picture features, has he had the handling of a star of such promise as Miss Davies. He calls her a genuine "find," says that she combines all the attributes to make an excellent screen subject.

Motion Picture Man Best at Inducing Enlistments

A motion picture man has won the distinction of attracting the largest number of enlistments at the meetings held by the Mid-Day Recruiting Committee of New York City. He is Benjamin Chapin, producer and star of the Lincoln Cyclic Pictures. He earned this distinction in competition with the following speakers:

Brenon Takes Issue with Hopkins—Stage vs. Screen

HERBERT BRENON is more optimistic in regard to the present status of the motion picture in the world of drama than his contemporaries, Arthur Hopkins. He answers Mr. Hopkins' views as expressed in his article printed in the New York Times of July 29th, as follows:

"In Mr. Arthur Hopkins' delightful recital of a play producer's adventures in the cinema, the author, with characteristic modesty, does himself injustice. He appears to think himself a casual wanderer among the cameras, an excursionist with a round-trip ticket, a Cook's tourist in celluloid."

"Instead of which he is, by his own revelations, a sort of Messiah of the movies. A lot of us have been guilty of these two things in the past, Mr. Hopkins and his fellow demi-gods. We have been deluding ourselves that in some way the camera's scope is limitless."

"Mr. Hopkins is, it seems to me, a sort of specialized Messiah, and we can best serve him, and assist the artistic salvation of us all, by eliminating a few false verses in his suave gospel."

"In the first place, he must be congratulated on the speed with which he acclimated himself to a new artistic civilization, assimilated it, and upon its ruins built a new edifice more worthy of Mr. Hopkins and his fellow demi-gods. He had been told, he says, that 'once I set foot in the celluloid domain, I never again would turn back to the theatre. That was in February. At the beginning of August I find myself deep in play rehearsals, with the din and clamor, heat and hysteria of the glass inferno only a memory.' Less than six months is swift time to take the old movie machine to pieces and build a new contraption."

"Mr. Hopkins recounts that his first days were a nightmare—thus every extra man finds them—but at length he discovered that 'the movies are not mere reproductions. They are appropriation. They feed upon life.' Positively the only other people who have discovered that the movies 'feed upon life' are the people who pay to see the movies. Thus Mr. Hopkins came upon this obscure secret almost as quickly as the public."

"As a champion of the movies, he continues, 'I had almost invariably carried away one impression—bad taste.'"

"I would like to ask Mr. Hopkins what attractions on the screen were honored by his 'casual patronage.' I will admit, only the heralding of spectacles on a basis of cost; that is a trick we were weak enough to borrow from the theatre. I agree, too, that the movie baby had a slippery chin, but the infant has been lusty enough to crow from twenty thousand thresholds in America, and is as legitimate a baby as ever lived."

"In the name of Cecil De Mille, of D. W. Griffith, gentlemen and artists, I protest. I insist that Mr. De Mille, the son of a man who is a great tradition of the American theatre, is just as much of an artist as Mr. Hopkins, or any who may sit in his private assemblage of genius. Mr. Griffith, a creator whom the brain-poor theatre would be glad to claim, needs no advance notice from me."

Universal to Cut Out Certain Short Dramas

Whole Producing System at Universal City to Be Reorganized to Stabilize and Standardize the Product for the Exhibitor

IN the effort to give the exhibitor what he wants, when and where he wants it, Universal is to reorganize the producing system at Universal City. The object in view is to stabilize and standardize the Universal product.

One of the developments of the plan will be the discarding of short dramatic subjects, though three-reelers will still be made. As far as this affects the program it means that the undesirable will be eliminated.

Although there is as yet no official announcement, it can be stated with authority that instead of the short subjects to be dropped from the Universal product so-called "super-pictures" are to be made. Several of these great productions are on the way. It is not as yet definitely determined just how they will be distributed, but it can be stated that in this the exhibitor's desire will rule. If the exhibitors want the pictures state-rights, they will be sold under the state-right plan. If they want to get a private showing and buy any one picture—and not the others—this will be the method adopted.

Changes that are to be made do not mean a lessening of the product of Universal City, it is explained, but if anything, just the contrary. The bulk of the output hereafter will no doubt be Butterfly and Bluebird subjects. But with this will be the

Blackton's First Play "The World For Sale"

J. STUART BLACKTON's first spectacular feature for release through Paramount is to be a screen interpretation of Sir Gilbert Parker's famous novel, "The World for Sale."

The book was written in 1911 and finished in 1912, two years before the war broke out. Sir Gilbert, in a foreword, asks that it go to the public "on the basis of its merits alone and as a picture of the peace-life of the great northwest."

Mr. Blackton has adopted the story to film treatment and the writing of the scenario, and is personally engaged in the direction and all the technical details of the massive production. Work was begun under his direction in New Jersey last week, where some of the exteriors are being taken.

The interior scenes will be filmed in Brooklyn, where Mr. Blackton has his state-rights productions, the Nestor and Joker comedies, news and educational rules, short specialties and the "super productions."

In Universal City the production rush depends on season and sunshine. In the recent season, as in February, about twenty-six companies will be required. In the dry season of abundant light, as at present, there are probably thirty-five companies, or more, kept busy. The new plan will radically change this.

There will be two Jokers each week and one Nestor, and at an early date the Nestor will be increased to two reels. Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran will continue as the featured players in the Nestors, and Gale Henry, Milburn Moranti and William Frazier will be the featured comedians of the Jokers. Max Asher will be the featured comedian of the other Joker release.

This change in the policy of the Universal Company will not be effective to the trade for eight or ten weeks. To make the needed film for these programs, twenty-six directors, with almost as many producing companies, are necessary, even in the wet season.

General Manager Henry McRae is in charge of reorganizing the staff which will be required by this change in the policy, and is being directed in this by President Carl Laemmle.

Stirring Up the Movieman's Soup

J. STUART BLACKTON's first spectacular feature for release through Paramount is to be a screen interpretation of Sir Gilbert Parker's famous novel, "The World for Sale."

The book was written in 1911 and finished in 1912, two years before the war broke out. Sir Gilbert, in a foreword, asks that it go to the public "on the basis of its merits alone and as a picture of the peace-life of the great northwest."

Mr. Blackton has adopted the story to film treatment and the writing of the scenario, and is personally engaged in the direction and all the technical details of the massive production. Work was begun under his direction in New Jersey last week, where some of the exteriors are being taken.

The interior scenes will be filmed in Brooklyn, where Mr. Blackton has his studios ready for any requirement of interior work.

Sir Gilbert Parker is now in New York and has been in daily conference with Mr. Blackton. Although the adaptation of the story and preparation of the production, in accordance with Sir Gilbert's wishes are entirely in the hands of the director, the author is cooperating with Mr. Blackton and has been much interested in watching some of the scenes being taken.

I am sure we are going to have a 100 per cent production of this great work," said Mr. Blackton in an interview yesterday. "Big success, artistically and materially, in film production, depends on four contributing factors: great stories; sympathetic and truthful translation of the stories to the screen, careful study and direction, and great players, and all of these we have."
Make Universal Directors Solely Responsible

General Manager McCae and Colonel Jasper Brady Adopt New Policy to Put Blame and Credit on One Man and One Only in Play-Making

THE production department of Universal City has been completely reorganized with respect to policy of production by General Manager Henry McCae, and Colonel Jasper E. Brady, manager of the manuscript department.

By the new plan the Universal Company has gone over to an administrative, executive type of management. The procedure is as follows: When a writer, or a director and a continuity writer, who is assigned to write for one or two companies, submits a story to the office, a manuscript reader, who is assigned to read for one or two companies, and will be selected for a director, is then given over to the director, and a continuity writer, who is assigned to write for one or two companies. When the story is finished, and before anything is done for production, the director goes to the manuscript writer, and later has conferences with J. Griffith or with a different writer, and the director, and the story is submitted to Colonel Brady, and from that office, if given an O. K., is selected for a director.

The story, if desirable for production by the director, is then gone over carefully by the director and a continuity writer, who is assigned to write for one or two companies. When completed, and before anything is done for production, the director again goes over the manuscript with the writer, and later has conferences with J. Griffith or with a different writer, and the story is submitted to Colonel Brady. Each time it goes back to the director for an O. K., and when production plans are completed the director assumes all responsibility of producing a worthwhile subject.

The advantage of this plan is that it places the credit or the blame for every production on the director, while heretofore poor productions might be the result of from many causes, and no responsibility could be attached to anyone connected with the making of the photoplay.

Colonel Brady is very enthusiastic concerning the plan, and thinks it will lead to a more material improvement of films made by the Universal Photoplays and to better programs. He is of the opinion he has gathered about him the best corps of writers obtainable, the list including in addition to Manuscript Editor J. Grubb Alexander, Waldenar Young, William Parker, Doris Schroeder, Harvey Gates, George Hively, Elliott Clawson and C. J. Wilson for the dramatic department, and C. B. Hoadley, editor of the comedy scenarios, Fred Palmer, Robert Dillon, A. H. Statter and Tom Gibson.

"Within the next two months we of the manuscript department," Colonel Jasper Brady said, in commenting upon the plan, "expect to see Bluebird and Butterfly films go into the best theatres of the world, solely on their merit. In the past few weeks the house has several knock-out productions, and everyone will admit our "Come Through" is one of the winners of the season, that has pulled record-breaking crowds into theatres all over the country during the usual bustling days of the year when people stay away from an enclosed place of amusement, and instead go in search of recreation out of doors."

Chicago Turns Out To See "Les Miserables"

Hot Weather Fails to Interfere with Attendance at Pateh

Louella O. Parsons in The Herald says:

"Harking back to the classics, there is one whose interest is perpetual and long enduring—"Les Miserables," the book of our own choice, our children's choice and our parents' choice before us. Were every fictional character presented on a platform and the people taken as to their individuality, Jean Valjean would stand either at the tip top or else close enough to make competition spirited and lively."

"The production, staging and continuity of scenario bears none of the earmarks of pioneer picture making. Comparatively speaking 'Les Miserables' is infinitely better than many present day pictures and quite as well done as the majority of stellar film attractions."

"One of the critics in the Post says:

"To the large class who normally are interested in the romantic drama as portrayed by dwellers in the land of 'La Marseillaise,' there should now be added a group of those seeking to understand the French character because of our recent war alliance. To all of these I can hesitatingly recommend the film version of 'Les Miserables,' a book which contains, as some one recently remarked, as vivid a lesson as is taught by any biblical parable."

"I know of few who presented as "Les Miserables" we have the most gifted artists in France interpreting their own medium of expression the book which is perhaps the epitome of their native literature."

Luncheon at Hotel Astor in Honor of "Letter of Cheer"

THE Bluebird luncheon, which started on its way the famous "letter of cheer" to Major General Pershing, was held at the Hotel Astor Thursday. It proved a fitting way in which to wish the massive "bon voyage."

Guests of honor were Major Ewing E. Booth and Captain Creswell, chief of staff, and assistant at Governor's Island. Others present were prominent men in the industry and representatives of the newspapers and trade press.

The "letter of cheer" was there in its costly Tiffany case. It bears many signatures, and will have eventually a million or so. The first signers are Senators and Representatives in Congress, Governors of states, and notables.

Letters were read from the first signers and others. All of these commended Bluebird on its resourcefulness and enterprise. One signed by United States Senator John Shafroth said:

"Future historians cannot fail to take note of a letter of cheer signed by so many men in public life. That it may accomplish its purpose is my wish."

Major Booth in his speech spoke of the heartiness of the inscription and the whole "letter of cheer." He said such a letter would surely help any soldier to win battles. He added that the United States had accomplished more since the war with Germany than had ever before been accomplished by any nation in a like short period. It was more than England had been able to do in a year.

Arthur Leslie, of Bluebird, was the host of the occasion.

In mentioning Bluebird's very original and laudable "letter of cheer" to Major General Pershing, last week, Motion Picture News, by one of those amusing though serious slips typical of rush-hour newspaper work, mentioned Mae Marsh in error for Mae Murray. Mae Murray is a recent Bluebird accession and deserves credit for heading the signatures to the famous message to our army.

Pathe to Build Studios in Salt Lake, Utah

Large Pathe studios will be located near Salt Lake, but no definite statement as to the scope of the work to be carried on could be obtained there.

The Salt Lake office of the Pathe Exchange is under the management of I. P. Arnold, who has been informed that the Pathe Company contemplates the establishment of an extensive motion picture studio in Salt Lake to compete with the large establishments of other concerns in California in the production of films depicting western life.

Dispatches received in Salt Lake from the New York office of the concern confirm the report.

A few days ago incorporation papers drawn up under the laws of New York state were filed with the secretary of state of Utah through the agency of Attorney William M. McCrea. The concern is capitalized at $3,000,000 and a fee was paid to the state of Utah amounting to $778.
Exhibitors Want Advance Showing—Thanhouser

Head of Big Producing Company Offers Letters from Theatre Owners Objecting to Advance of Private Showing of Plays

EDWIN THANHOUSER writes the Motion Picture News that three companies have already abandoned advance showing for critics and that two more will do so "by the time this is printed." He repeats his objections to this policy, saying: "Beyond a doubt a picture shows to better advantage in a theatre, but also beyond a doubt a professional picture critic can appraise a film as well as an advance showing in a projection room as in a theatre."

Mr. Thanhouser adds that exhibitors are going on record against the change and says he has records to prove that it is open to every producer—letters from the exhibitors themselves.

Some of these letters, with Mr. Thanhouser's criticisms upon them, follow:

"Mr. George E. Wheeler, of the Oregon theatre, Salem, Oregon, writes: 'I agree heartily with you that these showings ought not to be discontinued. Many of the small-town exhibitors have no other guide."

"Samuel Alexander, of the Palace theatre, Saginaw, Michigan, goes right to the point, writing: 'In haste, permit me to say that I would like to know how I am to judge pictures if not from the trade paper criticisms; and how are the trade papers going to get me this information in time, unless manufacturers show them the films in advance?"

"William Brandt, of the New Albany theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes in the same vein: 'The manufacturers are making a great mistake in giving up the private showings. I do not believe that the critics are not infallible, but experience in the work makes them fairly expert in judging the class of a picture; anyway, they shouldn't be handicapped in getting their reviews to us as quickly as they can, if we are to make use of same."

"Erra Rhodes, of the La Salle theatre, South Bend, Indiana, writes: 'We do believe that trade paper reviews are of value, and we don't think of booking a picture until we can get the criticisms on it.'"

"George Hyler of the Rex theatre, Three Rivers, Michigan, writes: 'I think trade paper criticism is a good thing for the exhibitor as it gives him a chance to line up good subjects for his house—the class of subjects that the public demands. I trust the critics' showings, therefore, will not be discontinued.'"

"Cordial commendation is the keynote of a letter from Jack Matthews, of the Jewel theatre, Detroit. He says: 'Permit me to send you my thanks for your good work. I am with you and so is every other exhibitor hereabouts. If anything, the reviews do not come out as far in advance now as we would like. To delay their publication still further would be a real catastrophe to me. I hope the manufacturers will think twice about it.'"

"M. A. Fleischman, of the United States theatre, Bronx, New York City, has strong views: 'In the one-reel days,' he writes, 'we did not trouble much about trade paper criticisms and it didn't matter whether we read them or not. But who wants to go back to the old one-reel days?' "

"Not as vigorous, but indicating the same general trend of thought is the communication of Guy L. Wonders of the William theatre, Galveston, Texas: 'I do not believe the advance showings to the press should be abandoned. Personally, I do not allow the majority of the present day critics to create my final judgment, but their criticisms make me able to compare opinions and are valuable for that reason."

EXHIBITOR PERSONALS

ALABAMA.—Montgomery: According to an announce by the Strand Film Amusement Company, a local corporation operating the Strand, Plaza, Colonial, and Orpheum theatres, the Grand theatre for a term of years. Just exactly what use will be made of the Grand theatre is not stated, though it is declared that the usual number of high-class travelling organizations will be presented, the bookings arranged for the early season by Mrs. Smoon having been assumed.

CALIFORNIA.—Venice: E. C. Wills, formerly of the Lyric theatre, Venice, has purchased the Auditorium here, once a popular beach resort. The new owner of the Lyric theatre, who are Messrs. VanMourick and McClendon. Los Angeles: The Rose theatre at Third and Figueroa streets, has been purchased by A. A. Landon. The dogplay theatre No. 2, on Vermont avenue, has had a new Fotoplayer No. 40 installed by the California Organ Company. Santa Barbara: The Palace theatre, formerly owned by Mr. Maguire, has been sold to the Portola Theatre Company.

Long Beach: Manager O. Hoyt, of the Liberty theatre, will shortly commence putting on features. Mr. Hoyt has been showing the Triangle program subjects. Three of the big features contracted for are: "The God of Allah," "The Argyle Case," and "The Whip." There will be a slight increase in the admission price at this house.

San Diego: Fred N. Howe of the Pickwick theatre, has joined the U. S. Marine Defense as ensign, and is on duty at the southern city.

Bakersfield: The Rex theatre, under the management of S. Pourou, is being remodelled and the seating capacity is being increased from 200 to 600 seats. The admission price has also been increased from five cents to ten cents. Cucamonga, of the Lyceum theatre, last week opened up the Rialto, a new and up-to-date theatre, with seating capacity increased from the Lyceum.

Charles Groeg, owner of the Rialto and Opera house theatres, has taken over the management of the Majestic theatre of Bakersfield. Mr. Groeg is putting on a combination of various attractions and the house is doing well.

CONNECTICUT.—Bridgeport: Papers in the transfer of the Lyric theatre from the Bridgeport Theatre Company to Mr. Poli to the Lyric, Inc. were filed recently and showed that the Lyric property when bought by Mr. Poli was subject to a mortgage of $60,000, which is assumed by the new owners, together with the mortgage of $34,500 in favor of Mr. Poli. The Kuppert Brewery property, which replaced the theatre on the east, was also bought by the Lyric, Inc., to complete the theatre hold-ings in that section.

ILLINOIS.—Collfax: H. A. Arnold expects to open a new motion picture theatre here for the fall season.

INDIANA.—Boonville: Frank Forrest, proprietor of the Forrest theatre, is lending a helping hand toward raising funds for the Red Cross by giving twenty-five per cent of his receipts for a week.

Columbus: W. H. Pratt, former partner of R. Y. Vought, now sole owner of the Lyric, a permanent business theatre in the Sixth Ohio Regimental Band at DeFunse as clarinet player, and he says in a letter that he expects to be sent to France with a regiment sometime in November.

Earl Park: K. Hackley, manager of the Ban-zet theatre, is putting a new Powers machine in an effort to improve the house to make the showhouse most up to date.

IOWA.—Minburn: A deal was closed a few days ago in which Mrs. Bryant takes charge of the moving picture show. Mrs. Bryant has been in active charge for some time.

Washington: M. Levin, manager of the Star theatre, has bought out the interest of his partner, E. Wheeler, who will return to his home in Harris.

KENTUCKY.—Maysville: Manager Saltier, of the Cen theatre, moving picture theatre, has been drafted for army service, has closed the doors of his popular theatre and moved his home in Circleville, Ohio, to arrange his business affairs.

Somerset: Glenn Lovelass and Forest Shinn- ness, of the Opera house theatre, have purchased the Dixie Motion Picture theatre from Garvel Burton. They took charge recently and are well impressed with the outlook.

Nicholasville: C. W. Jackson, of Franklin, has bought the Savoy theatre, and took charge August 1. He has purchased the theatre from Sparks and Nave, who have established Mr. Jackson's ability as a moving picture theatre manager, obtained by years of experience in an assurance of a prospective business in his new field. Music which will be furnished by his talented daughter, Miss Evelyn Jackson, and son, Prof. George Jackson, should prove a big attraction this autumn.

Monticello: Grover Burton has leased the Opera house from the theatre firm of Sixth Street, and has assumed its management a few days ago.

Dixon: J. E. Whitnell has sold the Princess theatre to W. H. C. Obar and C. E. Lonn.

MAINE.—Presque Isle: A. P. Stevens, of Houl- ten, has purchased from Lee Ferguson the Hurghothe theatre and took charge two weeks ago. Mr. Stevens has for some time been the leader of the Hurgho band and will have the advantage of being able to organ-ize from members of his own family a very excellent three-piece orchestra.

Frankfort: Pearl Crockett, manager of the moving picture house here, has taken over a picture house here and show pictures twice a week.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Southbridge: E. W. Danahy, of Lowell, has taken over the management of the Bond house, and the theatre has been taken a lease for five years, with a further option of five years from Mrs. T. F. Murphy, who owns and formerly managed it.

NEBRASKA.—Havelock: Ralph W. Wolverson, who was in business in Havelock up to the first of June, has purchased the Joy moving picture show from Rolland Meyers and will show him coming complete. It is Mr. Wolverson's intention, if all goes well to build a new house and a fine home for his family, and will move his business to Havelock.

Men to Replace Girls on Inspection Bench

A number of Canadian exhibitors are complaining about the condition of films which they receive from various film exchanges. In many instances the bad condition has been blamed on the age of the film. The fault is, however, with the inspection department of the exchange.

It has been the policy of various exchanges in the past to employ girls on the inspection bench. Their work has not been entirely satisfactory, as they did not watch for misframes but were satisfied only to cut the torn sprocket holes out of the film.

A number of Toronto exchanges have already secured the services of licensed operators to work on the inspection bench to replace the girls. Splendid results have been attained since this change has been put into force and the exchanges have had no complaint whatever from the exhibitors.

San Francisco Exhibitor Likes “Periwinkle”

Sid Grauman, director of the Strand theatre at San Francisco, has written the following letter to the Mutual Company:

“I wish to congratulate the Mutual Film Corporation on the quality of recent Mutual releases and more particularly on the Mary Miles Minter subject, ‘Periwinkle,’ used for the week just finished. I thought you might be interested in knowing of the many pleasing comments voiced by Strand patrons whose attendance was most gratifying from the box office viewpoint.”

League Is Impressed with Miss Tapley’s Help

Rose Tapley, of the Vitagraph Company, who has just completed a “missionary tour” through the west in the interest of the motion picture industry in general, found awaiting her on her return to New York last week, the surprise of her life. It was an engrossed letter of thanks from the Mutual Exhibitors’ League of America, expressing the gratitude of the organization for the great help Miss Tapley rendered them in making the recent big exhibition in Chicago a success.

She acted as official hostess for the league and was on duty day and night, addressing the fans, entertaining them with lectures and pictures, attending luncheons, etc. She was one of the hardest workers at the exhibition and as a token of appreciation the league will present her with a hand-ome gold wrist watch, bearing an inscription to “Training Hostesses.”

On every hand were heard eulogistic remarks concerning Miss Tapley’s services, and all agreed she was a most capable hostess.

Is This Southerner Alone in His Complaint?

Nat Royster in a Scorching Letter Roasts the People Who M misrepresented Pictures and Scatter Money in Wasteful Production

A NOTHER large chunk of complaint has been fed to the fires of dissatisfaction which the fans, entertaining them by advertisements who misrepresent their pictures and producers who scatter money to the four winds of recklessness.

This time the righteous howl comes from Nat. L. Royster, special representative of Civilization in the South.

Read Mr. Royster’s letter over carefully and bear in mind that he tells the truth when he remarks that the columns of the News are wide open to anyone who has a just grievance.

Here is Nat’s letter:

Gentlemen:

The columns of any good paper should be open to the industry, through which it gains its bread and butter, and your valuable paper seems to grant an audience to every one who has any real news to offer.

As I have stated in your columns before, I cover eight to nine southern states, and I don’t think that any one can keep in any closer touch with every branch of the industry than I do, and I try to be fair, honest and just in every instance.

At the present time, it seems that there is a tendency to spend an enormous amount of money on features which are advertised in the trade papers as Stupendous, Marvelous, and costing hundreds of thousands of dollars. Perhaps some of them do cost the amount stated, but it seems that right at the present time, manufacturers should try to eliminate all wastage, make conservative features, and devote their best efforts to the manufacture of features that have some depth to them.

Right now, when the necessities of life are soaring higher each day, and wage earners, who make up the majority of picture patrons, are not getting an increase in salaries, it would be suicidal to attempt to have very many twenty and twenty-five cent pictures, and still, at the cost of producing hundreds of "Common Program" pictures. So-called features, the exhibitor must charge twenty and twenty-five cents admission in order to pay the exorbitant prices that he must pay if he uses any of the real big features.

There are a few features that are worth those prices, but these are spectacles, and manufacturers and exhibitors should not kill their business by presenting pictures which tend to lecture their patrons, for after all, the photoplay was made to entertain and amuse, and it should be and is, the poor man’s travel, and amusement, as well as the rich.

There are plenty of brains in our industry, but it seems they do not make use of them, and as a rule, the exhibitor with all the criticism and trade journals, does not really take the time to see just what he is booking, or if that certain feature is suited for his theatre and patrons.

There are certain super-features that are on the market in New York, to be sold on the state rights plan. Many papers have given them half pages almost free, stating that the said feature was absolutely wonder-ful, when if the truth was known, the picture in question was positively putrid and not worthy of showing in the worst honky-tonk houses of Booth street. Why do advertisements state that certain pictures are running in New York at such and such a theatre, at prices up to a dollar, when in reality, they ran for three days or a week and were pulled off? It is like selling a man a horse and then could do something along those lines to let the exhibitor know what he is getting. If something along that line was done, we would not hear so much of censors.

There are certain pictures which have been and I suppose are now playing in the South, that are absolutely not fit to be shown to an audience of ladies and gentle- men, and still one man will show it and get stung, thereby hurting his business for many weeks, and he never attempts to ad- vertise the fact that the picture in question is not what it should be from a moral view.

Throughout the South, which I have just made, I find hundreds of complaints, which can only be remedied in one way, and that is contest gravitation, and not by cutting more of the features like I still find in many towns. Exchanges can help. Instead of sending a six-sheet and a three-sheet separately by express collect, twenty-seven cents each, they can formulate a plan whereby they can save that for the exhibitor and save numerous complaints and troubles for themselves.

Wishing the News much success, I am,

Nat L. Royster,
Special Representative,
Thos. H. Ince’s “Civilization.”

50,000 Letters Received in “Neglected Wife” Contest

“While the letters themselves totaled well over 50,000, it has been estimated that at least four persons on an average, combined in writing each and every answer to the problem, making a total of 250,000 interested in the contest, says an official of the company. Practically every letter either states explicitly or shows by its contents that the problem of “The Neglected Wife” is a universal one and has touched the life of every person at some point or another.

Letters have been received from every state in the Union, in verse and in prose, some giving an answer to the problem presented in “The Neglected Wife,” as the contest is called, others providing some happening or experience in the life of the writer.

The contest closes August 12, when the winning letters will be selected and the prize winners will be announced as soon as possible after that date. The prize for the best letter is $1,000; for the second best $500; for the succeeding five considered the best $100 each.
Gold Watch and Valise for Morris Kashin

Maurice West, manager for The Fox Film Company, on behalf of the moving picture men, presented Mr. Kashin with a gold watch suitably inscribed and a valise, at the same time wished Mr. Kashin the best of luck in his new sphere of operations.

Mr. Kashin said he would never forget the kindness of the movie men in Quebec. He was glad they had appreciated the little he had done to push forward the real salient points in lobby display work. When exhibitors had grasped the real box office value of an attractive display, and had discovered what display really was, there would be found a source of revenue which had been allowed to lie fallow and which every live exhibitor would speedily grasp.

Film Publicity Man Indexes Photos—Free to Papers

Gordon H. Place, publicity man for the Notable Feature Film Company, Salt Lake, Utah, has gathered biographies and cuts of a large number of motion picture stars and keeps them in alphabetical order. He has written letters to the various newspapers throughout his territory offering the use of the cuts and the collected material he has on hand for any occasion the newspaper might care to use them.

The service to the newspapers is free. Mr. Place was formerly a newspaper man in Salt Lake and he is a live-wire when it comes to co-operating with the press.

The judicious use of rules is illustrated in this advertisement. It could have been displayed to better advantage if it told only one story, instead of three. Nevertheless, the idea gets across in good shape, and the ad has certain pulling power.
Edward L. Hyman, manager of the Victoria Theatre, Buffalo, has upon the happy plan of reproducing advertisements from Motion Picture News in the form of lantern slides which he uses to advertise forthcoming productions.

The slides are remarkably clear and easy to read. After the photographer is through with them, Mr. Hyman sends them to an artist who colors them appropriately. He claims that this process saves him time and money.

Our Ads for His Slides
Edward L. Hyman, who creep into this page with about as many live wire ideas as any exhibitor we know of, has come across with a new one. This time the novelty takes the form of slides which are photographic reproductions of advertisements appearing in the pages of Motion Picture News.

Instead of spending money recklessly for art work, Mr. Hyman simply cut out the pages with a knife, and had a local photographer reproduce them on lantern slides and then sent them to a young woman who colors slides.

Mr. Hyman, speaking of this experiment, said:
"We have found that the appearance of the slides was better by simply coloring the photographs on the slide and not the letters, and that the black type on a white background stood out much better than the white on black."

Mr. Hyman is manager of the Victoria theatre, Buffalo.

Arabian Tent in Lobby for "Garden of Allah"
A lobby display completed under the management of O. Hoyt of the Liberty Theatre, Long Beach, is accredited with materially increasing the attendance at the theatre three days this week, during the showing of the Selig subject "The Garden of Allah."

The interior of the lobby which is eighteen feet wide was almost completely covered with an Arabian tent of brown, red and blue material, erected with the aid of bamboo poles and Arabian rope.
Olive Thomas, the Beauty of Stage and Screen Scene in "An Even Break." (Triangle Five Reel Production) Miss Thomas leads her talents to another Triangle feature, "An Even Break." This beauty is one of the brightest in the industry and seen is in a production that might have been starred by Mary Pickford. "An Even Break" given the label "follies." It has all the "ear-marks" of a musical number with Miss Thomas as the leading lady. Her con- dition of the musical comedy that is missing is the singing and you can imagine this very readily when you see Miss Thomas at the head of a chorus of pretty girls doing their "turn" as a restaurant. Miss Thomas has found her proper environment in this late Triangle production. It is given nice pictures from the East-say studios, Lambert Hillier wrote the story and directed the picture. Unlike most dramas of this nature, there is a strong plot run ning through the picture. It gives the actress an opportunity to convince her admirers that she can act as well as she can dance and sing. The part in "An Even Break" is with Jimmie Strang (Charles Gunn) and Mary (Margaret Thompson). Mary has always wanted to become an inventor, has wished gratified, and the souls of all the men that will be the work of four men and goes to New York to sell it. He meets Claire and the old friendship develops into true love. He has promised Mary before leaving that he would marry her when he returned. He returns and events shape themselves and the manner in which Claire and Mary get to be in love, is told in a most pleasing way in "An Even Break." Olive Thomas, the beauty of Ziegfeld Follies, will be seen on the screen of the State Theatre on — week.

Jack Gardener and Ruth King in Typical Western Drama, "Open Places"—Different (K-E-S-E (Essanay Five Reel Production)) Jack Gardener is again seen in a typical Western Drama, "Open Places." This production is directed by James Whiting, and she uses Dan Clark (Carl Stockdale) as the typical Western bad man she is impressed and makes an object for a very good story. A lot of men Mollie looked only at one place of Dan's character. Let alone other than his worth, his bravery and his free and easy manner but she did not care what he was. The plot is a direct result of Hat tricks. He never gave evidence of them while with Mollie and she looks back to the time when he made her own, he had no incentive to stay away from the old girl. In a fight he kicks his opponent and flees across the border, leaving Mollie to wonder why she had ever married such a man. Constable Calhoun (Jack Gardener) proves himself to be a real friend to Mollie and their friendship grows deeper than before. Her husband returns and Mollie makes Calhoun promise her that he will not harm him unless he is justified. Clark, during a drunken carosel, accuses Cal- houn of stealing Genter's wife. He is taken out and Clark is stricken with death. Mollie is released and she and Calhoun are together.

Jack Gardener and Ruth King in "Open Places," a typical Western drama, will be seen at the State Theatre this week.

"The Food Gamblers," An Up-to-the-Minute Problem Play — Wilfred Lucas, Ella Millar (Triangle Five Reel Production) The question is next in importance to the war problem and it is that of food. As a result, the public should be done to stop the rapid advance in food prices. "The Food Gamblers" under the direction of Albert Parker. In this picture, the public is sought to bring out the misery which the high food prices cause, and to ascribe a reason for same. They have done so. "The Food Gamblers," Wilfred Lucas, whom you have seen in many Triangle features, always to good ad- vantage and Ella Millar, his leading woman, are seen very cleverly in it, and they have the part of Henry Havens, the head of "The Food Gamblers." Miss Millar created one of the parts of June Justice, a girl reporter. A few years before she took the work of June Havens in the country and he had appealed to her as being the sort of man she would like to marry. She is signed to appear on the high price of food and to get material she visits the tenements. She sees how food has been driven out of the neighborhood and she sees how the rallies, thinking that they are to blame for the high prices. Under the editor, the middleman, the commission merchant and last she is re- quested by Havens to come and see him. He wants her to write for him. Each recognizes the other and June determines to do her duty and bring him to justice for manipulating the price of food. The events which lead up to the breaking of the racket are revealed in the manner in which June convinces Havens that he is doing wrong, he meets a powerful screen drama dealing with a vital problem.

"Bab, the Fixer," with Jackie Saunders as Bab — "Society" Versus Happiness (Mutual Five Reel Production) "Bab, the Fixer," is a Mutual release, featur- ing Jackie Saunders. Bab is the daughter of John Porter (Leslie T. Peacocke), at one time a wealthy broker. Having lost his fortune through bad speculation, he goes West with his wife and daughter, Bab. Bab is only a child, but after ten years on a ranch she develops into an expert housewoman and can wield a "six-shooter" with a right hand. Bab has gone to the West hoping to regain some of his fortunes but his adventure in cattle raising has not proved a big success. A young Wall Street clerk who is still "in the game" comes to River City of Downtown-New York for the great open West, has become wealthy by his shrewd dealings. He meets Bab and a love that is mutual spring up between them. Bab's mother, who is an artisto- nate by birth and an artist in love, forgives the days when her husband was a wealthy broker, but determines that she shall marry "into society." She discourages her daughter's love and Bab. This threatens her father, and mother and father have separated. She finds her mother returning to her home in New York. She finds her father, and learning the truth brings about a double tragedy. Bab and the clerk are happily married.

Jack and Jackie. Bab, the Fixer," a late Mutual release, will be seen on the screen of the Theatre on — week.

Cran Wilbur in "Eye of Envy," Dramatic Allegory Defining Happiness (Paramount Five Reel Production) Cran Wilbur is seen in "Eye of Envy," produced by Daniel Hope and directed on the Art Drama stage, "Eye of Envy," a dramatic allegory proving that contentment is the best road to happiness. Miss Willa Cather, with J. Francis Dunbar. The plot centers around two families, the Dalmas and the Millyards. Cran Wilbur represents the soul of Ambition. Ambition envys the wealthy possessions of Ambition. The two men exchange souls, each hoping that he will win the love and respect of Ambition, a young and beautiful girl. Ambition is the bachelor and inhuman man, who thinks of nothing but his passions. Ambition is possessed of all the qualities of youth—strength, kindness, and the ability to win the respect of women. Cran Wilbur is the old man, who has lost Ambition is no more the strong, virile young man. Ambition has assumed these qualities. With this change having come over them, the two start out to win Innocence. The events which take shape are the result of these two men meeting at the nucleus of an unusually strong drama. Cran Wilbur is placed in a role where he can act to portray.

Cran Wilbur in the featured role will be seen on the screen of the Theatre on — week.

Ezeth Clayton and Milton Sills in "Souls Adrift," Adventures on a Deserted Island (Mutual Five Reel Production) "Souls Adrift," Ezeth Clayton and Milton Sills are stars in this last Mutual release. It is a story of adventure, not unlike what you might expect from the pen of Robert Louis Ste- venson. Adventure and romance are the two pre- dominanting notes. Ezeth Clayton presents the roles of Ezeth Clayton and Milton Sills, he has seen an unusual picture. Most of the scenes are taken out-of-doors. A realistic explosion is shown and a sea-going yacht is shown sailing. The scenes are not tricks of photography. They are the real thing. The events lead to a gripping climax. There is interest in every foot of the five reels. The Mutual Five-Reel release, "Souls Adrift," has the principal supporting role. He is seen at his best in a strong, appealing role of Milton Sills, the young engineer whom Ezeth's father had ruined. Ezeth Clayton and Milton Sills in "Souls Adrift," a story of adventure and romance, will be seen on the screen of the — Theatre on — week.

Marguerite Clark in the Crowning Achieve- ment of Her Career in Pictures, "The Amazon" (Paramount Five Reel Production) Marguerite Clark in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Amazon." This is an announcement which the public might expect. It is a story of the pleasure in making because he feels assured that everyone is after the same thing. They are satisfied and proclaiming "The Amazon," the best picture of the season, and the name Marguerite Clark. This is a strong statement but it is true. "This is a great sort. It was written by one of the best known and most talented English dramatists. The story tells of three sisters who have been..."

Long Vacation to Recover for “Fighting Trail” Company

WILLIAM FOX announces that he will soon give the titles and particulars of a series of picturizations of fairy and folklore stories for 1918, to be in keeping with features that have already been produced. One of the greatest of these, “Jack and the Beanstalk,” in which 1,300 children were screened, is now at the Globe theatre. Mr. Fox’s offer this year includes “Babes in the Wood,” “Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp,” “The Brownies,” “Mikado,” “Pinafore,” “Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland,” and “The Desert and the Forty Thieves,” Mr. Fox said:

“I defy any one who sees one of these kiddie features, to deny that the hundreds of children who take the parts cannot act_t they portray all the emotions—love, fear, sorrow, joy, jealousy, malice. They enter into their parts, and it becomes a part of them. They live the roles assigned them, just as they enter into any childish game. “Who is there who has not seen the boy play that he is a pirate? The youngster lives his part. He unconsciously assumes the swagger of the buccaneer, and his face takes on such a ferocious expression that Capt. Kidd, himself, might tremble in his boots.”

William Fox Plans 1918 Series of Child Plays

“Friend Martha” Trade Showing on 7th

Edward MacGregor, the producer of “Friend Martha,” which will have its premiere at the Booth theatre on August 7, has just purchased two new plays by Charleson Andrews. One is called “The Adorable Pest,” a society comedy involving business life, and the other, “My Hero,” a drama of the present War, with aviation activities as a background. Both will be produced early this season.

Russian Cavalry Lieutenant in “Food Gamblers”

Luit. Victor de Linsky, one of time of the Imperial Russian Cavalry, will play a part in “The Food Gamblers.” Luit. de Linsky was for six years an officer in the cavalry, fought in the Russo-Japanese war, and after being wounded in the hand, he was discharged with the gold and silver cross of the order of St. George.

Obssidian Razors for Geraldine Farrar Play

“The Woman God Forgot,” in which Geraldine Farrar will star for Famous Players-Lasky, an Aztec setting is required. One scene will show a barber shop in the time of Montezuma.

Cecil B. De Mille, director, and the research department, discovered that the popular belief that barbers first came from Europe is not warranted. According to M. De Mille says the Aztecs had barbers, and magnificent shops, before Columbus came to America.

There was no steel, and the barber used a razor made of obsidian, a species of field spar. As obsidian does not lend itself to the construction of safety razors, it is assumed the Aztec barber had the unwhiskered community pretty much at his mercy.

Charles Gerrard Puts Up Good Scrap and Wins Job

Charles Gerrard, a member of Douglas Fairbanks’ supporting cast in “Down to Earth,” has received from Fairbanks a contract calling for his appearance in the next two productions which the actor-athlete will make for Artcraft.

Gerrard has the role of Fairbanks’ hated rival in “Down to Earth,” and a story which the star particularly appreciated was the whole-souled manner in which he entered into a “scrap,” which forms an important episode of the story.
Mabel Normand, Now with Goldwyn, Known to 150,000,000

ANNOUNCEMENT that Mabel Normand is to return to screen comedy, making Goldwyn pictures, has brought forth a great number of congratulatory letters, the producing company says. The Goldwyn announcement states: "When the encyclopedia of motion pictures is written Miss Normand will be referred to future generations as the young woman to first bring comedy to cinematography.

"It is estimated that she is known to one hundred and fifty millions of people in the civilized world and beyond doubt her face and figure have been photographed a greater number of times than those of any other screen actress.

"She has created for herself a special niche in filmdom and the permanent promise in her work of a future greater career is now about to be fulfilled in her association with Goldwyn."

In answer to the question of the kind of literary materials that are to be furnished for Miss Normand, Samuel Goldfish, president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, says:

"The Goldwyn Advisory Board has now under consideration a half dozen light comedies by well-known authors that are suited to Miss Normand's faculty for comic and artistic expression. It is the opinion of our board that Miss Normand can do comedy plays that convey an interesting story in contra-distinction to the comedies that are built upon an unusual situation alone, hence we will bend our efforts in that direction."

Row with Censor Did "The Little American," No Harm

"The Little American," with Mary Pickford, which has just scored a triumph over Judge Funkhouser and his censorship, got thereby a tremendous amount of publicity.

All the papers in the United States carried stories about the "Funkhouser Problem," and the like. Most of them have reported the decision of Judge Sabath allowing the picture to go right on exhibiting.

Articles signed by Clara E. Laughlin on "The Goddess of Liberty vs. Berlin" appeared in the Chicago "Evening American" and many other papers, and were widely copied. The column story was minimum notice for "The Little American" throughout the West.

The Chicago "Tribune" had similar stories to those by Miss Laughlin. They were written by Mae Time. One began:

"Splendidly victorious 'The Little American' comes forth from her battle with the Chicago censor, der Major Funkhouser, backed by the court which held that a pro-American picture may be screened in a pro-American city, it is at last to be seen at the Studebaker theatre."

Great crowds are said to be packing the house at first showings of the playoff—as might have been expected.

During the week the picture was proscribed in Chicago, hundreds of Chicago people journeyed to Hammond, Ind., to see the feature film.

The traffic in Hohman street, leading to the theatre, was almost blocked by long lines of people waiting to buy tickets. Manager Michael Stetter announced that the film will be brought back for a return date so that all may see it.

Hammond is the home of countless German-Americans, and the nearby cities of Gary and East Chicago are populated by a majority of foreign-born residents. If any were offended by the film, no complaint was made by them.

Mrs. Castle at Saranac for Astra Subject

Mrs. Vernon Castle, the Pathé star, and a company of seventeen players together with Director Frank H. Crane of the Astra, have arrived at Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks, where several weeks will be spent in taking scenes for Mrs. Castle's next feature.

Many scenes have already been taken at the Buckley Camp and on Lower Saranac Lake.

Among the players taken by Mr. Crane are Elliott Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Litson, R. Langdon and A. E. Miller.

"The Manxman" for Showing on 13th

Final arrangements have just been completed for the showing of George Loane Tucker's photodramatic version of Hall Caine's "The Manxman" at the Criterion theatre, beginning Monday, August 13.

"The Manxman" was produced on the tiny Island of Man, which lies almost in the center of the Irish Sea, with a good outlook upon Ireland, England and Wales, from the top of its highest mountain, Snaefel, on a clear day. More than a year was spent by Mr. Tucker and his company of players and camera men, often joined by Hall Caine himself, on the Isle of Man, in the production of "The Manxman." For nearly six months little actual photographing was done, the time being spent in the study of the characteristics, the quainlnesses, and the environmental and psychological differences of the natives, who are distinctive in a great many ways from the natives either of England, Scotland or Ireland.

In the cast of "The Manxman" are Fred Groves as Pete Henry Ainley as Philip, Elisabeth Risdon as Kate, and a score of well-known English actors and actresses in minor roles, as well as the Manxmen, who form the background of the picture.

"Worries and Wobbles" Is Vitagraph Fun-Maker

Vitagraph's "Big V" Comedy offering for the week of August 13 will be "Worries and Wobbles," written by Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker, and produced under the former's supervision. James Aubrey plays the leading role, supported by a company of daredevils, funsters, including Joe Simberg, Earl Montgomery, Pietro Armoude and Edward Dunn.

"Worries and Wobbles" is said to be a fast moving "slapstick" with a laugh in every foot. There is a new story twist. The offering is replete with stunts and trick photography, and Vitagraph claims more angles have been exploited in the production of this "Worries and Wobbles" than on any other short reeler they have handled, but results have fully warranted their endeavors.
Cast in Goldwyn’s “Polly of the Circus”

In the Goldwyn production of “Polly of the Circus” with Mae Marsh in leading role fully 2,000 persons were photographed in various scenes. The cast is announced.

Vernon Steele, English actor, plays John Douglas, the minister, and Wellington Player portrays Big Jim, the boss oxcavasman.

Lucile Satterwaite plays Julia, the daughter of Deacon Strong, while Isabel Vernon portrays Sally. Viola Compton is Jane, the widow. Helen Sallenger plays Mrs. Elverston, Charles Eldridge, pantomist, plays Toby, the Clown.

Keystone Comedy Star Enters Swimming Races

Aileen Allen, who did diving stunts in Triangle Keystone comedies, has been excused from her studio duties long enough to take part in an aquatic contest in Oakland, Cal., where she will compete with swimmers and divers of international reputation.

Upon her return, provided it does not interfere with her activities at the studio, Miss Allen will journey to Camp Curry in the Yosemite Park, where she will meet the Olympic Club. Later on she expects to go to Chicago to compete for the national high diving championship.

Speed Record by Madge Kennedy in “Baby Mine”

In making the Madge Kennedy-Goldwyn production, “Baby Mine,” records for speed and efficiency were broken. It took precisely 16 days of actual photographing to prepare this multi-reel farce. At the end of 16 days the picture was done. Not a single retake was necessary.

In discussing the work which was spanned in making Margaret Mayo’s famous farce John Robertson said:

“Of course the greatest factor contributing to speed was the nice understanding of motion picture acting which Miss Kennedy seemed to grasp instantly. John Cumberland, Frank Morgan, Kathryn Adams and Sonia Marcelle also helped by their sterling work.”

Latest Serial from Pathe Is “Seven Pearls”

PATHE will release on September 2 “The Seven Pearls,” a serial featuring Mollie King, Creighton Hale and Leon Bary. Mollie King and Leon Bary will be remembered by their work in “The Mystery of the Double Cross,” while Creighton Hale is well known for his admirable portrayal of The Laughing Mask in “The Iron Claw.”

The story of “The Seven Pearls” is from the pen of Charles Goddard, who also is responsible for the scenario.

Pathe is planning an advertising campaign that will bring “The Seven Pearls” and the stars of the cast to the attention of every serial fan in America. Over three score of the larger newspapers will carry large display advertisements and publicity stories, the reproduction of the screen version together with feature stories of the principals and the interesting details of “The Seven Pearls.”

The story of “The Seven Pearls” revolves around what happens to Ilma, played by Mollie King, an American girl. She is the foster-daughter of Mustapha Bey, a high Turkish official, and seeks to regain seven priceless pearls which were stolen from her father by an American after the pearls had been given into Mustapha Bey’s care by the Sultan. Ilma is given the choice of seeing her father beheaded, of herself entering the Sultan’s harem or of recovering the pearls within six months.

She chooses to go in quest of the pearls but the Sultan in the meantime is in doubt whether he would rather have the seven inanimate pearls for his treasure chest or the one living pearl, for his harem. Her adventures furnish thrills in plenty. She enlists the aid of the thief, Harry Grant, the part played by Creighton Hale and their adventures with Nemesis, the villain, played by Leon Bary, eclipse any adventures seen in previous Pathe subjects.

Charles Goddard, the author, has written many screen successes including “The Perils of Pauline,” “The Exploits of Elaine,” in which he collaborated with Arthur B. Reeves, and the dramatic successes, “The Misleading Lady,” “The Ghost Breaker,” “The Last Laugh,” all of which were written in collaboration with Paul Dickson and “The Man From The Sea,” and “Miss Information.”

Mollie King, besides playing the lead in “Mystery of the Double Cross,” also took the lead in the features “The On-The-Square Girl,” and “Blind Man’s Luck.”

Leon Bary who took an important part in “The Shielding Shadow” and in “Mystery of the Double Cross” was well and favorably known on the legitimate as Sarah Bernhardt’s leading man.

“The Seven Pearls” is being made by the Astra Film Corporation.
Arclraft Wins Court Case Over Wm. S. Hart

U. S. Judge Manton Holds Clause That Specified Supervision by Thomas S. Ince Left Triangle Company

JUDGE MARTIN T. MANTON, in United States District Court, New York City, refused on Wednesday last to grant the application of the Triangle Film Corporation for a preliminary injunction restraining Artcraft Pictures Corporation from making or distributing motion pictures featuring Wm. S. Hart.

Neither Ince nor Hart was made a party to the action brought by Triangle, although it was alleged that the clause in Hart's contract providing for Ince's supervision of pictures made by Hart was inserted by Ince in his own interest. Commenting on this fact, Judge Manton said:

"The parties to the contract have deliberately stated that Hart is relieved if he no longer has the advantages of Ince's supervision. The reasons therefore are stated at considerable length in the opposing affidavits and in substance are that Hart covenants to his success largely to the management of Ince, his counsel, advice and experience in managing and directing his work as an actor. The bill admits that Ince no longer works for the plaintiff, therefore Hart can no longer have the supervision of Ince and the supervisory clause of the contract protects Hart's withdrawing from the plaintiff's service.

"The complaint does not sufficiently state a cause of action for equitable relief. There are no specific acts for which the defendant can be held responsible in such an action."

It is announced by Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft Pictures Corporation, that preparations for the first picture to be made by Hart under Ince supervision have been under way for some time, and that active work will at once follow the decision of the court.

People to Form Companies

Miss Williams is another former actress of the Ince studios, where for three years she has been starred and featured. She played opposite William Hart in his first multiple reel subject, "The Bargain," and in a number of other pictures with this actor. She was starred in "The Italian," "The Criminal," and others.

"Baby Grands" Begins Second Comedy

Jane and Katherine Lee, the William Fox "Baby Grands," who scored in "Two Little Imps," their first starring vehicle, have begun another light comedy-drama. The story provides the two starlets with abundant opportunity for clever acting and deft humorous touches.

Kenean Buel, who made "Two Little Imps," will be in charge of the directorial work again.

Mr. Fox announces that the new photoplay, and the future subjects which the Lee children shall do, will be Standard Pictures. This is the name by which the Fox specials will be known.

First Fairbanks Reissue by Triangle

"Double Trouble," has been selected as the first Douglas Fairbanks play to be reissued by Triangle on September 1st. It presents the star in the role of Florian Amidon, an effeminate Sabbath school teacher, who goes wrong, becoming a crooked politician and a breaker of hearts.

The play is a screen version of the novel by Herbert Quick, published by Bobbs-Merrill Company. The production was directed by W. Christy Cabanne, under the supervision of David Wark Griffith. In the cast appear such well-known stars as Margery Wilson, Gladys Brockwell, Olga Grey, supported by Richard Cummings, Monroe Salisbury, Tom Kennedy, Kate Toncray, Lillian Loangdon and V. E. Lowery.

This is probably the only part of its kind ever played by Fairbanks, and is in striking contrast to his activities in later Triangle plays.

First of Vitagraph's "Bobby Connelys" Released

This week marks the inauguration of the new Bobby Connely series, a set of ten one-reel subjects produced by Vitagraph, and featuring the famous little eight-year-old star, who scored such a triumph in his other series, the "Sunny Jim" Pictures.

The first picture on the list, slated for release August 6, is "Bobby, Boy Scout," a drama founded on the teachings of the famous juvenile organization.

Bobby captures a band of smugglers, and thereby earns a reward that saves his mother from eviction.

Triangle Company Gets Into Real Sandstorm

The Triangle Company, headed by Belle Bennett and Roy Stewart and directed by Jack Conway, went to the Mojave desert in California to get a setting for a sandstorm. It was intended to stir up the storm with aeroplane motors, but along came a real one and saved all the trouble.

The players were compelled to travel for twenty miles while the cutting grit stung their faces and beat through their garments.
Pathe War Film Scores Throughout Country

Having gained many honors, including that of being the only picture that has ever been the cause of a legal holiday, "The Tanks at the Battle of the Ancre," Pathe's five-reel official British War film, is scoring heavily in various parts of the country as is shown by newspaper reviews.

"It is particularly interesting to note the success this picture is meeting in sections of the Middle West which have heretofore been found rather poor ground enough for films of any kind and especially those displaying the prowess of the Allies," says an officer of the company.

The Salt Lake "Tribune" says in reviewing the picture at its Orpheum theatre presentation:

"Nothing so remarkable, so overwhelmingly tremendous, so vital in the world's history, has ever been seen as these official war pictures. They follow the Battle of the Ancre from the first advance of the supply trains until the triumphal return of the Allied troops. No history could describe, however vividly written, such scenes as the eye of the camera has unfalteringly recorded in these films.

Other papers which speak highly of the picture are: The Salt Lake "Telegram," the Omaha "News," and the Cleveland "Plaindealer."

Los Angeles Turns Out for "Our Mary"

When Mary Pickford consented to appear in person on the opening night of "The Little American" at Cline's Auditorium, in Los Angeles, it is said an assault in force on the box-office began. By seven it was a siege, and within half an hour after that time the vicinity of the theatre resembled a gigantic mob scene in a superproduction.

When the Pickford car finally came in sight, there was something seriously approaching a riot. The people almost mobbed her. It took the police half an hour to make a passageway wide enough for her automobile to force its way to the theatre entrance.

The star herself is inclined to ascribe the ovation quite as much to the patriotism of her role in "The Little American" as to her own popularity, and takes it as an indication of the fervor with which the American people are responding to every patriotic appeal.

Arthur F. Beck, General Manager Art Dramas

Arthur F. Beck, founder and first president of the F. I. L. M. Club, who has managed exchanges in eight cities, has assumed executive management of Art Dramas, Inc. The arrangements were concluded this week after a month of negotiation.

Harry Raver, president of Art Dramas, in announcing the new and important move in the conduct of the organization, said:

"We waited a long while to obtain the services of a man like Mr. Beck, and now we are content to lay Art Dramas responsibilities on his shoulders and devote our entire energy to motion picture productions."

Mr. Beck had heaps of work on his desk already, when he said to a representative of Motion Picture News:

"In assuming the office of general manager of Art Dramas, Inc., I intend not only to keep up the past high standard that this organization has maintained in its productions, since its inception, but will strenuously endeavor to surpass it in the future. Many things are already planned for the program, which will undoubtedly increase its prestige and popularity. We are out to do big things for Art Dramas, and nothing will be left undone to place the program in the very front rank of film distributing organizations."

"Plans are now under way for the engaging of several screen stars of the first magnitude, by the five producing concerns releasing their pictures on the Art Dramas Program. When contracts are signed with these stars the announcement of their names will, I am confident, cause a sensation in the grade.

"The organization also intends to put forth some special productions of unusual nature. Further announcements will be made later regarding these. The Art Dramas Program has proven itself to be a big thing, a long felt want in the industry. It is going to be bigger and bigger as time passes."

Mr. Beck has a large personal acquaintanceship with exhibitors, having conducted offices in Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, St. Louis, Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Chicago. Although a young man, being still in the early thirties, he has been eleven years in the motion picture business.

The manufacturers of the five Art Dramas brands have for some time realized the benefit the organization would derive from placing the executive end under one head, so that the exhibitors could devote all of their time and energy to making productions.

Those in the film industry who are familiar with Mr. Beck's record of past performances are watching with interest the organization of which he is now manager, and general confidence is being expressed about the trade in his ability to carry on the business of the company in an energetic and competent way.

Mr. Beck will have entire charge of exchanges and their problems, as well as of all matters coming under the head of executive business.

The personnel of Art Dramas officers remains the same as heretofore—Harry Raver, president; George Wiley, vice-president; Herbert Blache, treasurer, and H. M. Goetz, secretary.
Sheldon Is Elected President of Empire

Man Who Headed Syndicate Controlling Billie Burke Serial for Kleine, Is Hard at Work on Charles Frohman Sucesses

JAMES M. SHELDON was elected president of the Empire All Star Corporation, at a meeting of the board of directors of that company, held on Friday, July 27.

Mr. Sheldon was formerly president of the Syndicate Film Corporation, which brought out "The Million Dollar Mystery," the serial that established a record for continued photoplay productions.

Recently Mr. Sheldon, as president of the Randolph Film Corporation, succeeded in securing Billie Burke for a serial made by George Kleine.

For twelve years prior to entering the film industry, Mr. Sheldon was engaged in the practice of law in Chicago.

In discussing the forthcoming activities of the Empire All Star Corporation, Mr. Sheldon said, "As has been announced in the trade journals, the Empire All Star Corporation was organized especially to produce the Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures. In undertaking the filming of these subjects, we have some of the greatest stars in the world—such box-office magnets as Julia Sanderson, Ann Murdock, Olive Tell and William Gillette. We have at our command all the unlimited resources of the Charles Frohman organization, including a wealth of scenery, costumes, properties and rights to the famous Charles Frohman successes.

"Already completed are such subjects as Ann Murdock in 'Outcast,' 'The Imposter' and 'The Beautiful Adventure,' and Julia Sanderson in 'The Runaway,' all directed by Dell Henderson. Director Albert Capellani has also completed 'The Richest Girl,' starring Ann Murdock.

"Since I took up my headquarters at the Glendale, L. I., studios of the Empire All Star Corporation, there have been put in production such plays as 'My Wife,' with Ann Murdock, directed by Dell Henderson, and 'The Unseen,' starring Olive Tell, under the direction of John B. O'Brien.

"The above list of Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures should clearly indicate to exhibitors the high class of offerings that will shortly be ready for release through the Mutual Film Exchanges.

Wanda Petit on Way to Fox Studio in West

Wanda Petit, still comparatively new to motion pictures, has already established herself so strongly in the hearts of "fans" that William Fox has sent her west to do greater deeds than ever.

Miss Petit has been transferred from the Fort Lee, N. J., studios to the big plant at Hollywood, Cal. She may be seen in Fox film comedies, but the producer has not yet decided in which of the two fields, dramatic or fun-making, she would be of the more value.

Brockwell Picture for Release at End of Month

Gladys Brockwell's next production for William Fox will be called "The Soul of Satan" and will probably be released in the latter part of August. Bertram Grassby and Charles Clary have the leading roles among the supporting players.

Otis Turner is screening "The Soul of Satan" from a story by Randolph Lewis. Mr. Turner directed "To Honor and Obey?" Miss Brockwell's most recent picture.

Olive Thomas to Film Play at Grand Canyon

Olive Thomas, for Triangle, whose latest starring play, "An Even Break," has just been released, has been working day and night on a new story, written by her and Director Lynn Reynolds. The nature of the subject has not been disclosed, as Miss Thomas declares it must be a surprise.

Some time this week the company expects to journey to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado for filming the final scenes.

Marcia Harris Joins Fox

Marcia Harris, who played in George Broadhurst's "Rich Man, Poor Man," last season on Broadway, has joined the William Fox forces for a picture now in work in the eastern studios.

Miss Harris will appear this fall in Mr. Broadhurst's revival of "What Happened to Jones?" She is as well known on the screen as she is upon the stage, as she has been prominent in the supporting casts of some of the most notable stars in filmdom.
To Feature Lillian Walker in Society Five-Reeler

Before the close of summer, the Ogden Pictures Corporation of Ogden, Utah, will be undertaking the production of its second large picture. This is to be a five-reel society picture in which Miss Lillian Walker will be featured.

With the completion of the company's first production, "The Last of the Ages," a propaganda film in eight reels, Albert Strawcroft, president of the company; Lester Park, manager, and Miss Walker went to New York. There they arranged for the second film.

Between larger productions, W. Fred Bossner, secretary of the company, kept the heads of the staff in working order by producing slap-stick comedy.

Robert Thornby to Direct Vivian Martin

Vivian Martin and Director Robert Thornby have effected a more or less permanent screen alliance, as it is announced that Thornby will direct several of Miss Martin's forthcoming Paramount Pictures.

"Yankee Way" Is Walsh Subject

George Walsh's new production under the direction of Richard Stanton, work on which was begun a short time since, will screen its way to fame under the title of "The Yankee Way."

The script is the joint product of "Big Ed." Sedgwick and Ralph Spence. Sedgwick himself has a role in the play-photoplay. Seena Owen will make her debut as a William Fox filmite in this feature.

Jackie Saunders as Tomboy in "Bab the Fixer"

Jackie Saunders is a tomboy of an entirely new, but fascinating sort in "Bab the Fixer," a five-reel comedy drama produced by Horkheimer and scheduled for release by the Mutual Film Corporation August 13. "Bab" is a harum-scarum daughter of quarrelsome parents and declined quite firmly to fall for her mother's social ambitions. There is a dash of Wall street, and some of the wild west with a touch of Fifth avenue finishing school in the production.

Bluebird Shifts Stars; Puts on New Front

FOR the purpose of strengthening its front and giving exhibitors material of increased value for "Bluebird Day," several changes have been made in the line-up of Bluebird stars, together with shifts in its staff of directors to best serve the improved conditions.

The engagement of Mae Murray, recently announced, together with Robert Leonard as her director, adds a new unit to Bluebird's list of attractions. Miss Murray and Mr. Leonard are in Los Angeles advancing preparations for their first production, soon to be announced.

Franklyn Farnum will become a star on his own account in "The Maverick," directed by Joseph De Grasse. Mr. Farnum and Miss Vernon will make their final appearance as co-stars in "A Stormy Knight," set for release September 10.

Herbert Rawlinson will, in future, be Miss Vernon's screen mate, with Elmer Clifton their director. "Sky High" is a completed production and "It's Up to You" is under way.

Ella Hall will have Harry Solter as her director hereafter, Jack Conway having made his final feature in "The Charmer" in Bluebird's week of August 27. Mr. Solter and Miss Hall are now completing "Bitter Sweet."

Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford will continue as co-stars, with Mr. Julian directing, "The Mysterious Mr. Tiller," their latest offering, was shown to Bluebird executives. Another work, "The Desire of the Moth," is nearing completion.

Elise Jane Wilson has become a full-fledged director, to compete with Ida May Park for honors in turning out Bluebirds. Miss Wilson is directing little Zoe Rae in "Hidden Treasures," as her first lone-hand offering on the program.

Dorothy Phillips will hereafter be under Miss Park's exclusive direction. "Triumph," set for release on the Bluebird program for Labor Day is the final collaboration of Miss Phillips and Mr. De Grasse.

Last week "Bondage," directed by Miss Park, reached Bluebird headquarters and now awaits a definite date on schedule, which will be assigned in a few days.

Eva Tanguay Picture Near Completion

Eva Tanguay has decided upon "The Wild Girl" as the title of her Selznick-Picture upon which she has been working for several weeks, and which is now well on the way toward completion. This is her first picture appearance.

While Miss Tanguay's name alone is sufficient to carry any production to success, "The Wild Girl" is supported by a cast, several members of which have themselves been starred in pictures and vaudeville.

Principal of these is Stuart Holmes, one of the best liked bad men in the amusement world. He has been starred for several years, and was available for the Tanguay picture only through the fact that he recently severed his connection with his previous management.

Another popular player in the cast is Valerie Bergere. Like Miss Tanguay, this will be her first appearance in photoplays, but she has been a vaudeville headliner in dramatic acts for a decade. Tom Moore, leading man in the Constance Talmadge Selznick-Picture, "The Lesson," is still another favorite who will support Miss Tanguay in "The Wild Girl."

No date has been set as yet for the release of the picture, but it is expected that Director Howard Estabrook will "call it a day" by the second week in August, and begin assembling and titling his celluloid.

Pearson Film Titled

Virginia Pearson's next release after "Wrath of Love," for the William Fox photoplays, will have the title "When False Tongues Speak." Carl Harbaugh was the director. The picture has just been finished.

George Scarborough, the noted playwright, wrote the story.
Frohman Stars Rush Work Even in Hot Spell

Ann Murdock, Edna Goodrich and Getting Productions Under Way

EASTERN studios at which Charles Frohman's stage stars are at work on the picturization of Frohman stage successes for release through the Mutual Film Corporation are said to be the scenes of great activity.

Ann Murdock has completed "Outcast" from the story by Henry Hubert Davies, scenario by Anthony Kelly; "The Impostor" by Michael Morton and Leonard Merriam, and "The Beautiful Adventures" by Robert DeFlers, C. A. DeCaillavert and Etienne Ray. All three productions were under the direction of Del Henderson.

She is now at work on "My Wife" from the pen of Paul Gavault and Robert Chamay under the direction of Del Henderson, while her next production, "The Richest Girl," written by Michael Morton and Paul Gavault will be directed by Albert Capellani.

Edna Goodrich has completed "Reputation" and "Queen X," and will soon have finished the last scenes of "A Daughter of Maryland." These productions have been directed by John O'Brien, while "American Maid," selected for her fourth picture, will be directed by Albert Capellani. "American Maid" was written by Julius Rothschild.

Olive Tell's first picture will be "The Unforeseen" by Robert Marshall, scenario by Charles C. Whittaker and directed by John B. O'Brien. Julia Sanderson is at work under Del Henderson's direction on "The Runaway" by Pierre Weber and Henry DeGorsee, adapted from the French by Michael Morton and scenarioized by Joseph F. Poland.

The Western studios which contribute to Mutual's release schedule are as active as the Eastern studios with Mary Miles Minter, William Russell, Gail Kane, Juliette Day, Jackie Saunders and Margarita Fischer, all at work on five-reel features for Fall release, full notice of which will be given in due course.

Gripping Corral Fight in "Under Handicap"

HAROLD LOCKWOOD, in "Under Handicap," a Western drama picturized from the novel by Jackson Gregory, and filmed in California and Arizona under the direction of F. J. Balshofer, is announced as the next Metro-Yorke release, ready for showing in August.

This feature, which is Harold Lockwood's first Western, ploplays under the Metro banner, furnishes contrast in subject matter to the pictures preceding it. "The Haunted Pajamas" and "The Hidden Spring" and also to "Paradise Garden," the society drama which is now under production.

"Under Handicap" is the production of the making of which the Metro-Yorke Company recently camped for three weeks on a large cattle ranch near Prescott, Arizona, securing a setting in harmony with the story as written by Gregory.

Supporting Harold Lockwood are Anna Little, playing the daughter of John Crawford, owner of the Half Moon ranch and promoter of the irrigation enterprise; Lester Cuneo, as Brayley, the Branch foreman; William Clifford, as Roger Happgood, companion to Conniston in his idle days; W. H. Bainbridge, as John Crawford, and James Youngdeer, as Lonesome Pete, cowboy characterization.

One of the strong episodes in the story is the fight between Conniston and Brayley. This scene, photographed in a ranch corral after Lockwood had ridden a bucking horse, brought in from the range were the picture was made, is declared to be the most spirited and realistic fight among those in which Lockwood and Cuneo have figured in recent pictures.

Charles Brabin to Be Director for Metro

Charles Brabin, who for the past ten years has been a factor in motion pictures both as a director and actor, has been signed by the Metro Pictures Corporation to direct Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in a series of features.

Maxwell Karger is personally in charge of the master Metro releases.

Madge Evans Co-Star with Lew Fields

Little Madge Evans will be the co-star with Lew Fields in "The Corner Grocery," shortly to be issued by World-Pictures Brady-Made. Many of Mr. Fields' most effective scenes are with the little orphan girl who finds a way into the affections of the gentle-hearted old store-keeper of this comedy of the screen, with its blending of broad humor and tender pathos.

It is said by those who have witnessed the early private showings of the picture that all the essential qualities of Adolph Philip's speaking play have been preserved in the transition from stage to film.

In this case it is apparent that the photo version faces a long and happy career, inasmuch as "The Corner Grocery" in its original form ran for 1,007 performances in New York, establishing a record in serio-comic theatricals.

Mutual Puts One Over in Minneapolis

Six of the seven downtown theatres in St. Paul, Minn., showed Mutual productions last week. None of the bookings were for less than three days. The theatres were:

Preacher's Script Tells of Church Hypocrites

Rev. Clarence J. Harris, pastor of the Unity Church, Yonkers, N. Y., wrote: "The Little Samaritan," Erthograph-Art Drama for early release.

The plot is laid in a clerical atmosphere, but the church members practise hypocrisy, avarice, selfishness and injustice, using their religion as the minister writes "as a cloak to hide their sins—not as an armor."

Little Lindy, played by Marian Swayne, is just the opposite—a true Christian, her charities and small kindnesses to the poor are interwoven in the story of the play.
No Pre-release Showings of “The Lesson”

There will be no pre-release showing of “The Lesson,” the first of the Constance Talmadge-Selznick pictures, as previously announced. It was intended to show this picture in the Broadway theatre the week of August 5, but “The Lone Wolf” run has been so successful that it will be continued, and “The Lesson” will be released immediately.

The only public showing of the picture was at a Red Cross benefit at the Hotel Nassau, Long Beach, Sunday evening, July 29, where it was projected before a large audience of the most critical kind, being composed principally of professional folk.

Another novelty of the evening’s entertainment was a special single reel donated by Lewis J. Selznick and specially made for the occasion. This was entitled “A Long Beach Revue,” and showed scenes of the summer colony’s doings along the beach.

Rita Jolivet made one of the hits of the evening with a brief speech, which aroused the patriotism of the crowd.

“Wrath of Love” and “A Soft Tenderfoot,” Released on August 4

The “Wrath of Love” is a new William Fox feature, starring Virginia Pearson. While not dealing directly with the war itself, the picture has the martial atmosphere pervading its strong story of love and jealousy. Its release date is August 4.

Tom Mix, the world’s champion cowboy, is the star and director of “A Soft Tenderfoot,” the newest Fox film comedy production, also released on the 4th.

Mr. Mix has the role of an eastern college youth who knows nothing of the wild life of a ranch, and very little else.

Exporter Sees Son’s Wedding—In Film Form

Millard Johnston, president of Australian Films, Ltd., last week received a novel film, which, however, will never see foreign export through his office.

The picture was of the wedding in Australia of Cedric William Johnston, son of the exporter, and Ina Florence Milne, member of a well-known theatrical family in the Antipodes.

The camera recorded the wedding from start to finish, and now Mr. Johnston, though far off, is enabled to witness the ceremony.

Open for Big Features

Max Glucksman, foreign buyer, is established in permanent headquarters at 110 West Fortieth street, and is open to propositions involving any high-class product of manufacturers.

“‘Iris,” Famous Pinero Play, from Pathe

The Picture Will Be Released as a Five-Reel Gold Rooster, with Alma Taylor, English Star, in Chief Role

“Iris,” probably the best play written by the dean of the English speaking drama, Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, has been produced in films and will be released by Pathe as a five-reel Gold Rooster play on August 26.

The title role is played by Alma Taylor, a beautiful young English star. Miss Taylor has appeared in “Little Miss Nobody,” and other hits on the stage and she scored a distinct success in the “David Copperfield” film produced by Hepworth and shown in America.

So pleased was Sir Arthur Pinero with Miss Taylor’s work as Iris that he wrote her a letter stating that she was his ideal of the part and that he could wish for no improvement in her interpretation.

The part of Maldanado is played by Henry Ainly, one of England’s great actors. Mr. Ainly has starred for four years in his own productions at the Haymarket theatre. His reputation in England is very similar to that of Leo Deitchstein in this country. Mr. Ainly was seen here in support of Maude Adams, and his biggest London successes were Leo Deitchstein’s “The Great Lover” and “The Great Adventure.” In “Iris” his role is that of the Portuguese millionaire who almost brings about the ruin of the beautiful heroine.

The role of the hero is in the hands of Stuart Rome. Mr. Rome is one of the best known of the younger English leading men.

It is interesting in this connection to know that he is now at the front.

It was played in New York and throughout the country by Virginia Harned, Lynn Harding and William Courtney. The story deals with a beautiful young widow and her strong-willed husband. He goes to Canada to seek his fortune, and while he is away the girl struggles against herself and against Maldanado, the millionaire whose wealth is at her disposal. How the fight is at last won and happiness attained makes the story that holds the attention from beginning to end.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero was brought up in the theatre, acting small parts at first, and it was in his twenty-first year that he wrote his first playlet, which was produced at the Globe theatre. His first really successful play was “The Money Spinner.” This was followed by such hits as “Sweet Lavender,” “Lady Bountiful,” “The Amazons,” “The Gay Lord Quex,” “The Second Mrs. Tanqueray,” “Trelawney of the Wells,” “His House in Order” and “Iris.”

No Author Too Great for Jack Pickford and Louise Huff

Charles Dickens, Mark Twain, Booth Tarkington, Harvey O’Higgins, Harriet Ford, George Broadhurst, Gene Stratton Porter and Owen Johnson are authors of stories used for screen plays in which Jack Pickford and Louise Huff starred within a year.

They started their ladder-climbing in “Seventeen.” Booth Tarkington provided the vehicle.

Then came “Great Expectations,” with no less a celebrity than Charles Dickens as the literary purveyor for Jack Pickford and Louise Huff. It was more than mere youth that made it possible for the two to portray the story of Dickens’ great novel so successfully.

So with Harvey O’Higgins’ and Harriet Ford’s “The Dummy.” It was Jack Pickford’s piece de resistance up to that time. Gene Stratton Porter’s “Freckles” came next on their honor list of authors, where both youngsters again showed exceptional dramatic ability.

George Broadhurst, famous enough to have acquired a New York theatre all to himself for next season, was another of their “Whose Who in America” authors.

“Money Can’t Buy,” recently released by Paramount, was his contribution to the Pickford-Huff glory.

Owen Johnson, author of the famous Lawrenceville stories of “The Varmint,” came next, and, for the future, Mark Twain has been added, work on his “Tom Sawyer” already having been started.
Four Stars Lead Pathé's Program for Week

Gladys Hulette, Pearl White, Ruth Roland and "Lonesome Luke" are the four stars announced to appear on Pathé's program for the week of August 19, 1917.

Gladys Hulette is seen in "Miss Nobody," a five-reel Gold Rooster play produced by Astra under the direction of William Parke and written by Howard T. Young.

From the standpoint of popular appeal, "Miss Nobody" is said to be one of the strongest five-reel pictures ever produced. It is described as the kind of story that will appeal deeply to the public. It has been produced under the direction of that master-artist, William Parke. Pathé says it is a feature for the best house and the best class of audience.

Pearl White appears in the seventh episode of "The Fatal Ring" serial entitled, "The Signal Lantern," produced by Astra under the direction of George B. Seitz and written by Fred Jackson and Betram Millhauser. Pearl and the Spider succeed in securing the dynamite, but the episode ends when Carlisle takes out his watch and gives Pearl five seconds to hand over the diamond. As he covers Pearl with his gun he counts.

Ruth Roland stars in the fifteenth and last episode of "The Neglected Wife" serial. The title of this is "The Supreme Sacrifice." It is written by Will M. Ritchey, Horace Kennedy learns of the unselsh devotion of his wife and pleads with her to return to him.

Lonesome Luke is seen in another two-reel laugh festival entitled, "Lonesome Luke—Mechanic," produced by Rolin under the direction of Hal Roach. The climax comes when the garage catches on fire, and Luke puts it out by pouring all over it the gasoline which he sells at $1.00 a drop. "It is better to fight fire with than water itself," says he.

The Combite Scenic picture in one-reel is "Near Pike's Peak, Colo." There are natural parks, canyons and valleys, bridges arching the creek which rises through the verdure clad ravines and the famous Royal Gorge of the Arkansas River.

An Internation Cartoon and scenic split-reel release and Hearst-Pathé News, Numbers 68 and 69 complete an unusually strong program.

"Bab the Fixer," Mutual, Tops Week's List

Jackie Saunders' Star Production to Be Accompanied by Two Comedies, "The Widow's Might" and "Beach Nuts"—Many Specialties

Jackie Saunders in "Bab the Fixer," sixth of her series of star productions for Mutual, tops the Mutual release schedule for the week of August 13. "Bab the Fixer" was produced by E. D. Horkheimer, under the direction of Sherwood McDonald from the story by Lee Arthur in which Miss Saunders herself collaborated.

The production is a five-reel comedy drama, laid principally on a Western ranch. The first scene of the first act is laid on Wall street, and there are a few scenes in a Fifth Avenue finishing school.

"Bab the Fixer," is the sixth of her series of star productions for Mutual, the others of the list being: "Sunny Jane," "The Wildcat," "The Checkmate," "A Bit of Kindling" and "Betty Be Good."

The Mutual schedule for the week of August 13 includes two comedies, "The Widow's Might," a one-reel La Salle and "Beach Nuts," a one-reel Cab, starring George Ovey. "The Widow's Might" is based on a conspiracy to acquire the fortune of a stingy old woman, by fair means or foul, marriage being selected as the most effective. George Ovey disports himself amid a bevy of beautiful girls at the seashore in "Beach Nuts" and gets into their dressing room where all varieties of complications ensue and closes his laugh-making journey by smashing his flivver into a gasoline filling station.

Red Life No. 68, the weekly screen magazine, which is released August 16, shows the work of the Y. M. C. A., in various made up of pictures which in many instances beat the new-paper illustrations of big events.

General Brings Out New Brand, the Falcon, to Be Released in Four Reels

As the first considerable addition to its product General Film begins releasing the Falcon features, four-reel dramas, on August 17. Groups of stars will be featured in the various releases. These include Henry King, Ruth Roland, Margaret Landis, Philo McCullough, William Conklin, Vola Vale, Jack Vocburgh, Ethel Ritchie, Kathleen Kirkham, Neil Hardin, R. Henry Grey, Monroe Saligury and Daniel Gilfether. New releases will be made weekly. Each Falcon feature will be by a well known author and will have stood the test of magazine publication before screening. Every Falcon feature will be an individual production, and each will have different stars. Although all the stories will be dramas, the atmosphere will vary. In some of the stories adventure will be the main theme; in others, romance, in others mystery.

Adventure characterizes the first release announced by General Film. It is "The Mainspring," with Henry King as featured lead, that begins the Falcon offerings August 17. This is a picturization of Louis Joseph Vance's virile story, "The Mainspring," which was published in Popular Magazine.

The narrative of "The Mainspring" grows in interest from the beginning. It relates to the fortunes of Ned Gillett, whose father, a banker, slays himself after speculating with trust funds. This tragedy interrupts the engagement of Ned to Frances Hardor, and he slips away to begin life over again in the West. There the story develops. Tramping about he is thrown in with a typical old miner whom he manages to befriend. The first thrill is when Ned whips a western bully with his bare fists. The miner has been the defeated antagonist tries to kill both Ned and the miner by dragging their shack down the mountainside with horse and lariat. Ned, escaping death, goes to Calvert City where the old miner had an abandoned shack. Later called "The Mainspring" Ned files a claim upon this time to secure it before his old enemy can do so. His fiancée's brother from the East is enticed into buying it by the sharpers, however, and in a dramatic scene Ned forces restitution of the money. He meets his sweet heart pouting at his abrupt departure from the East and she will not speak to him. However, the brother is grateful and backs Ned in the operation of the mine, which turns out a success. In a spectacular mine fire Ned saves his former sweetheart and her brother and the latter's finance, after which follows a pitched battle with striking miners led by the hero's Nemesis, the outcome of which is a final victory in war and love for Ned.

The picture was directed by Henry King and produced under the supervision of H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer. The heroine is played by Ethel Pape, an appealing young leading woman. Bert Ensinger is the "heavy" and other members of the cast are Charles Blaisdell, J. Cullen Landis and Arma Jacobson.
GENERAL FILM has greatly increased its product, and for the current week has the following releases:

"Discounts of Money," nineteenth of the two-reel O. Henry Broadway Star features. It is based upon the idealistic young love that scorns wealth. Carleton King and Nell Spencer are featured.

"Star Dust," of Black Cat features from Essanay, featuring Marguerite Clayton.

"An Order of the Court," a two-reel episode from "The Further Adventures of Stingaree" (Kalem), featuring True Boardman.

"A Man, a Girl and a Lion," one of the exciting animal pictures from Selig. This two-reel offering features Kathryn Williams and Thomas Santschi, and a full-grown African lion.

"Her Perilous Ride," a one-reel Selig, has fighting savages in another jungle atmosphere. Bessie Eyton, who is featured, does an ostrich riding stunt as part of the story.

Johnny and Emma Ray comedy, one reel, features the little comedian and his majestic spouse in "A Bathtub Marriage," another of their characteristic productions in this series.

"Those Terrible Telegrams," a Sparkle comedy, one reel, from the Jaxon Film Corporation.

"Tough Luck," a Jaxon comedy, the third of a second series of six; a ludicrous romp throughout.

Sells Serial to Java

Among deals closed last week by Benjamin F. Howells of the Howells Films, was one placing "Perils of Our Girl Reporters" serial in Java. "The Round Up" was also sold for the Dutch East Indies by Mr. Howells.

Arctraft’s Three Stars on September List

WALTER E. GREENE, president of Arctraft Pictures Corporation, announces that the month of September will be marked by three Arctraft releases, the stars of which will be Mary Pickford, Elsie Ferguson and Douglas Fairbanks, in the order named.

"Our first release in September," says Mr. Greene's statement, "will be Mary Pickford in 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm,' completion of which has just been announced by our West Coast studios. The next Arctraft pictures to be completed will be the Elsie Ferguson production. 'Barbary Sheep,' now well under way at Fort Lee. Douglas Fairbanks will begin work within a very few days on his fourth Arctraft release, as yet unnamed, and it will be finished, we are assured, in time for release in September.

"We feel very certain that never before have three such important releases, featuring three such famous stars, been offered in one month to motion picture exhibitors by any distributing organization. It is an indication of what Arctraft is now in position to do, in the way of keeping the progressive exhibitor supplied with the highest class of productions."

"'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm' directed by Marshall Neilan, is the sixth picture released by Arctraft, in which Mary Pickford has been the star. 'Barbary Sheep' is going to be a revelation in many ways. Director Maurice Tourneur has reproduced Algeria itself for a background of the Robert Hichens story.

"'Down to Earth,' our August Fairbanks release, is bound to be another big hit, and from what we know of the September production, it will give the star greater opportunities than he has ever had before.

"We expect to be able to announce shortly the approximate time of release of the Geraldine Farrar picture, 'The Woman God Forgot,' the first William S. Hart feature, and the first of the special Cecil B. De Mille productions, 'The Devil Stone.'"

Bluebird Announces Three Attractions for Release

DURING the past week three Bluebirds that have been awaiting definite titles were set for release. Franklyn Furnam and Brownie Vernon, Dorothy Phillips and Ella Hall will be stars that will extend the fixed announcements to the week starting September 10. Bluebird will also release "Mother O' Mine" as a feature independent from the program, Labor Day, this "Bluebird Extraordinary" having Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford as stars, with Ruby La Fayette featured.

Ella Hall's contribution will be "The Charmer," set for release August 27. This is a Jack Conway production, the last one in which he will be concerned with Miss Hall the star. J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton, staff writers for Bluebird, provided "The Charmer." Lincoln Steffman, Frank MacQuarrie, George Webb, James McCandlas, Belle Bennett and Martha Mattox comprise the support.

Dorothy Phillips, on Labor Day, September 3, will offer "Triumph," as her regular monthly contribution to the Bluebird program. Samuel Hopkins Adams's story, originally appearing in Collier's, furnished the basis for Fred Myton's scenario and Joseph De Grasse directed. Mr. De Grasse, also for the first time in Bluebirds, plays an important role in the support, William Stowell, Lon Chaney, William Dyer, Clyde Benson, Ruth Elder and Claire DuBrey completing the cast.

Franklyn Furnam and Brownie Vernon will make their final appearance as joint Bluebird stars in "A Stormy Knight," week starting September 10. This feature, formerly referred to as "The Fourth Glove," was created from Jack Canningham's story, with Elmer Clifton directing from Waldemar Young's scenario. Hayward Mack, Jean Hersholt and Frank MacQuarrie also have roles in the support.

A Mack Play Heads Universal List for 14th

"The Midnight Man" Will Follow "A Wife's Suspicions"—
"The Rushin' Dancers," a Nested Burlesques Classic Dancing

William Mack is the author of "A Wife's Suspicions," the Gold Seal drama which heads Universal's regular schedule of releases beginning August 14. This follows Jack Mulhall in "The Midnight Man," a Butterfly picture released Monday, August 13 under separate booking arrangements. The Mack play was adapted to the screen by Bess Meredyth and produced by George Sargent. Val Paul and Betty Schade are featured in the leading roles. The story has to do with the complications that arise when Mary Bradford surprises her husband in conversation with some ill-conditioned strangers who appear to be on familiar terms with him.

"The Rushin' Dancers," a Nested Comedy featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts, will be released on the same date. This is a burlesque of the classic dancing craze, and details the events that transpire when a dancing teacher opens a studio for lacrosse boys" in Central Park. Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran quite outdo themselves in mirth-provoking antics. The comedy was written by C. G. Bryden and produced by L. W. Chaudet.

"Rough Stuff," a two-reel L-Ko Comedy, featuring Dan Russell and Gladys Valentine, will head the releases for Wednesday, August 15. Directed by Noel Smith, under the supervision of J. B. Blsteen, this tale tells of the many laughable events that happened simultaneously with the opening of a fashion pageant in the hotel run by Mrs. Doehound and her flirtatious husband. The ninety-fifth issue of the Universal Animated Weekly will also be released on the same date.

Harry Carey will be the star of the dramatic feature issued the following day, Thursday, August 16. The title of Carey's vehicle will be "Cheyenne's Pal." It is a drama of the horse and cattle country, written by Jack Ford and Charles J. Wilson, Jr., and produced by Jack Ford. Gertrude Astor and Jim Corey have leading parts.

"Out Again—In Again," a Joker Comedy, featuring William Franey, will appear on the same day. It burlesques prison life, was written by Tom Gibson and produced by William Beaudine. It tells of the misadventures that befell Prisoner No. 13, who is elected to be the guest of honor at his own execution. Harry Mann, Eileen Roberts and Milburn Moranti fill the other roles in support of Franey.

"The Brass Girl," a two-reel Victor Comedy, featuring Matt Moore and Jane Gail, is the offering for Friday, July 17. Burke Symon, as author, and Matt Moore, as producer, are responsible for this version of the many situations that make life in a big city apartment house so diverting. The thirty-second number of the Universal Screen Magazine will be released on August 17.

Universal Current Events, which has shown a remarkable increase in popularity of late, will appear in its fourteenth issue on Saturday, August 18, together with a Joker Comedy, featuring Gale Henry, entitled "Back to the Kitchen," Powers' Educational devoted to "Algeria, Old and New," and a Powers' Comic Cartoon, "Doing His Bit."

During the week, the eighth episode of "The Gray Ghost," Universal's big mystery serial adapted from Arthur Somers Roche's novel, will be released outside Greater New York. This will be entitled "The Double Floor," and features Emory Johnson, Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter and Eddie Pole.

Best Selig Writers Contribute to General

"The Sole Survivor," Two-Reel Drama of Central American Jungles, Leads the List for August 13

William N. Selig calls especial attention to the fact that his very best stars, very best writers and very best directors are now contributing the General Film releases. Colin Campbell, responsible for the direction of such great film dramas as "The Garden of Allah," "The Crisis," etc., directs one of the more significant film productions, Bessie Eyton of "The Crisis" fame, Eugenie Besserer, Wheeler Calman, Charles Chary, Thomas Santichi, Kathleen Williams and other well known stars appear in General Film service through the medium of Selig pictures. There is also a devoir of jungle dramas and the Selig Company is endeavoring to supply the prevalent demand for thrillers. "A Trip to Chinatown" will be the Selig-Hoyt comedy release in K-E-S-F on August 20. This is one of Hoyt's best plays and the Selig Company promises that full justice has been done the various comic situations. Amy Leah Dennis; William Fables and James Harris star, J. A. Richmond is the director.

Six Art Dramas Plays for Quick Release Are About Ready

"BLOOD OF HIS FATHERS," a study of heredity in which Crane Willour plays three roles, is announced for quick release by Art Dramas, Inc. It is the second Horsley production for this program. Other productions soon are, "Think It Over," "The Little Samaritan," "Behind the Mask," " Peggy o' the Sea," and "Unto the End."

The first of these, "Think It Over," is of a light comedy type. It comes from the U. S. Amusement Corporation, and was written and directed by Herbert Blache. Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker are starred.

Following this is the Erbograph release, "The Little Samaritan," which was written by the Rev. Clarence J. Harris. Marian Swayne is starred in this, and Joseph Levering is the director.

"Behind the Mask," a U. S. Amusement production from the pen of Charles Daze, will follow.

Then comes "Blood of His Fathers," to be followed by "Peg o' the Sea," the Van Dyke play in which Jean Sothern is starred. The company working on this returned last week from the small Atlantic coast town where exteriors were taken. The directors reported excellent weather conditions and successful progress on the production.

"Mary Jane's Pa" Set for Release on the Thirteenth

AUGUST 13 is the date set for the release of Greater Vitagraph's visualization of Edith Ellis' famous stage play, "Mary Jane's Pa," with Marc MacDermott and Mildred Manning in the stellar roles.

As a stage play, this vehicle made a phenomenal success, attaining long runs in New York, and as a road attraction. It has come to be recognized as one of the standard attractions of the American stage. In its transmission to the screen, the story loses none of the human appeal, the quaint philosophy and the droll humor which characterized it as a stage play. Director W. P. S. Earle regards "Mary Jane's Pa" as a twin success to his other screen triumph, "Within the Law."

The story, which is known to the majority of stage followers, deals with "Pa Perkins," a man of lachadisical tendencies, who, in a fit of wanderlust, deserts his family, consisting of his devoted wife, Petria, and his two little daughters.

Supporting the stars is a cast of such prominent players as Ethelie Jensen, Mary Maurice, Temple Saxe, William Dunn, Stanley Dunn and Clio Ayres.

Private Showing of "Honor System" at Baltimore

Private showing of "The Honor System" was given at the New Theatre, Baltimore, on Sunday night, July 29. The committee in charge consisted of C. F. Semming, of the Fox branch at Washington, Louis Ding, manager of the New theatre; Sam Myers, of New York, and L. C. Melvin.

Special music was arranged for the occasion, and only specially invited guests were present.
Film Specialties

Hearst-Pathe, 62, Is War Number

In the Hearst-Pathe News, No. 62, released August 1, are scenes from San Francisco, Leon Springs, Toronto, Chicago, the battle fronts in France, Greece and incidents in New York City.

Naturally war subjects predominate. There are views of Captain Guynemer, the French aviator who has brought down 50 German aeroplanes. Captain Guynemer is shown receiving the "Legion of Honor" rose, while thousands of war worn troops parade in his honor.

In view of the recent discussion as to whether the Allied troops will remain in Greece, the scenes showing the landing of thousands of French and English soldiers at the Piraeus, Athens, are of timely interest.

Thousands of newly enlisted American soldiers are pictured at a baseball game between two of their own teams. Other scenes show the harvesting of California's 3,000,000 dollar apricot crop, swimming races in Chicago, the destruction wrought by the Germans in the occupied territory in France, and the launching of four submarine destroyers at once in Toronto, Canada.

Pathe Fashion Film Escapes

Submarines

Prints of a one-reel picture which was produced in France, and which successfully ran the submarine blockade, have been sent to Pathe Exchanges.

The film is entitled, "The Latest French Creations," and is an example of the way France still maintains her position in the world of fashion even in the fourth year of the greatest war in history, the film is one which the exhibitor can present in a way that will give him an opportunity to demonstrate his ability for a showman. The picture shows a collection of very beautiful gowns made by the leading Parisian modistes and worn by the most beautiful models in France. The names of the makers—names that mean everything—worth having to every woman—are in the titles.

Pathe managers are now ready to receive applications for bookings.

Cartoons Used to Brighten Scenic Pictures

Robert C. Bruce is making a trip over the United States by automobile, taking scenic pictures. On his trip he met with many funny incidents which in itself would make a good comedy.

Instead of showing the comedy in regular film the Educational Films Corporation of America has transformed them into cartoons of about one hundred feet each.

"Mr. Hammons, vice-president and general manager, in speaking of this new idea, said: "We have never overlooked an opportunity to make our pictures more interesting to the public and more valuable to the exhibitor.""

Surf Sports and Actors’ Home in Pictographs

Out in sunny California where the temperature remains high, the surf makes bathing a possibility throughout twelve months of the year, water sports have been evolved that in our less fortunate climate, are unknown, and the means with which mermaids of the Pacific coast depart themselves, forms an amusing subject for the eightieth release of Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the "magazine-on-the-screen," in his newest movie bow of "Fliveder Romance." The cartoon was produced by the famous Wallace Carlson.

"Bobby Bumps's Amusement Park" will appear in the seventy-ninth release of the Pictographs.

In the same release Paramount audiences will have opportunity of visiting the Actors' Fund Home, an institution which generous-hearted men and women who have interested themselves in the many men and women whose long years as public servants on the stage have drawn to a close, have erected and maintain. This little home, set in the midst of a beautiful country near San Simeon, is home indeed, and in its live the stars of yester- year, quite in peace with all the world.

Actively interested in the welfare of their home are nearly every member of the stage, and Daniel Frohman and Hazel Dawn and her sister accompanied the Pictograph camera man in order to see that every facility for the making of this picture was placed at his disposal.

Pictures of Children Who Hear Through Feet

"Helping the Deaf to Hear," in the eightieth Paramount-Bray Pictograph, was screened at the Fenwood Institute in New York. The methods are new.

Children taught at this school, are capable of feeling sound. A brass band, composed of deaf children, plays in absolute time and harmony, while the listeners, composed of the rest of the children, hear through their fingers and limbs quite as well as those who hear through their ears.

Dances are held in the school and the pupils fox-trot and one-step with as much enjoyment as though their ears had picked up the sound, while as a matter of fact, the sound sensation is carried to them through the vibrations of the floor, and it is felt by their swiftly moving feet.

Burton Holmes Brings Fine Films of China's War

BURTON HOLMES, Paramount's traveler, landed in China just in time to get mixed up with the civil war, and as a result got the most wonderful photographs of his whole career.

Mr. Holmes landed in China, coming from the Philippines, the day that China relaxed from revolution to a martorial form of government, with a civil war on to out the boy ruler. His cards of admission and transmission, which he carried, were made out by the wrong government official, and things straightened out, and to allow the large Holmes party to continue on their well-planned route, but his ready wit and acute diplomacy prevailed.

Things just happened for him, he relates in his communications, for he was on the spot in Hawaii when a volcano erupted—and which nearly, however, wiped out their party. He ran into many unique celebrations in different countries rarely ever seen by even the big travelers, and then getting to China in the midst of the uprising is bringing back to his fellow-representatives to travelers thousands upon thousands of feet of the most interesting material ever collected.

Timely Scenes in Universal Animated Weekly

In the sixty-third issue of the Universal Animated Weekly, just released, Norman Ross, known as the "human swan," is shown winning the 220-yard dash in record time. Other pictures, all of which treat with subjects of present day interest.

Colonel Roosevelt speaking before the Loyal Order of Moose at Pittsburgh; the big recruiting drive of the "Kitties"; American Indians at the Battleship Recruit in Union Square; Captain Guynemer of the French Aviation Corps, and a series of hair-raising views of H. A. McLoughlin of Battery A, Field Artillery, on the edge of fifteen-story buildings gathering crowds for recruiting orators.

Pathe Educational Ready

Pathe's International split-reel release for the week of August 5 will be "Iska Worsh" (the Kobbible cartoon), and "How a Phonograph Record Is Made" (Educational).
THE WORLD MARKET

Japan Is Fertile Field for American Pictures

Crooked Methods Employed by Selling Old Films Has Hurt Market, How-over—Conditions Peculiar in Japanese Land—"Thrill" Films Wanted

This is the third and last of a series of articles on the Far Eastern film field, com-philed by an authoritative who has just returned from the country.

The film situation in the Orient, so far as America and American films are concerned is one of the most peculiar things I have ever encountered. Most of it is due to the fact that the cinematograph houses are controlled by practical trusts.

Take Japan for instance. Japan is essentially for the Japanese and the best example of this is in the methods they use in securing motion picture films. Yokohama, Tokyo, Kobe, Nagasaki, in fact most of the principal cities have a number of picture houses, but most of these are owned by a syndicate or corporation, which buys old film outright and then shoots it through its chain of houses. And they get the material at rock bottom prices too.

The business has been hurt too, by crooked methods. American film men who viewed the East with an eye to a little money caused the whole thing. They secured films five or six years old, then later managed to get hold of old five-reelers, pictures that were so bad they would not last three nights in any of the cheapest of the cheap houses in the States, then they wished them on the Orient.

Murders, railway and automobile wrecks seem to be the subject most desired, and the more murders, why the merrier. Another thing to be considered in Japan is the fact that the Japanese themselves are making pictures right along. Of course, they are rather sketchy things so far as the Occidental mind is concerned but they seemingly fill the bill with the natives. From the majority I witnessed, I imagine that including the cost of the film, multiplied by two covers all expenses. Scenery is hardly ever bothered with to amount to anything.

Yet with all this, beginning with Shanghai, China, and going South as far as Singapore, every city was running, either "The Diamond from the Sky," "The Million Dollar Mystery," a Ford-Cunard serial or some other of the ilk. They were issued in parts of about four reels each and judging by the attitude of the audience they were getting over very well.

Pache is well represented in the Orient, in fact it may be said that so far as Occidental films are concerned, they control the Far East. They have a number of exchanges over there and to all appearance these were making money. Of course, European films can be made cheaper than our films and most of the employees in the Oriental exchanges were natives. The organizations were conducted with true French thrift for about five intelligent natives may be hired for the salary of one American film man.

Considering the population of these countries of the East and then the pathetically few picture houses and the field is narrowed down. Remember, too, the wealth per capita and that adds another angle to the matter. For the first time in history Japan has been able to lend money.

But with all this, there is a chance for revenue from that part of the world. There are any number of films from two to three years old, really good films which could be exploited to advantage. If two or three of the larger American firms would support agencies through the Orient, mutually, lease and conduct their own houses, from everything I have witnessed, I can see no logical reason why it should not pay a very good dividend. Practically every first-class house charges in admissions from 20 up to 60 cents in this country and all of them had good houses, at least all that I saw. Moreover most of the programs run in the same houses from one week to a month without changing.

I do not believe I saw a single lithograph used in Japan. Instead banners done in oil colors anywhere from five to thirty feet in length, and the lettering in height were used. The reason was that it was cheaper. The subtitles were in English and with each film a lecturer made an announcement then followed the subject through to a close. Two lecturers were used, alternatingly, and from what I could gather, their combined salaries were about the same as an usher gets in this country. So far as house expenses are concerned, they would not begin to amount as they do over here. Other salaries are in like proportion. Summed up, Japan offers a market, a good market to enterprising concerns.

Declare Porto Rican Market Is Stirring

Porto Rico is in no way so far behind in the exhibition of motion pictures, as it is generally thought. The majority of the exhibitors in Porto Rico are live, progressive business men and not as they have been represented so many times as negligible quantities by others.

This is the opinion given by Dr. Manuel Zeno Gandia, a prominent figure in the island and the special representative in Porto Rico of the Medal Film Company, Inc. of New York. Dr. Zeno is in New York City attending the annual meeting of the directors of the Medal Film Company, Inc. and discussing measures of extending the business of that concern in the West Indies.

Paramount Representative Back
From Long Orient Tour

After six months in the Orient investigating conditions for the Paramount Pictures Corporation, J. W. Allen has returned to San Francisco, and is now compiling his report which will contain a world of information concerning Japan, China, Philippine Islands, Strait Settlements and the Hawaiian Islands, all of which Mr. Allen spent considerable time in.

"The Orient is a field of small territories with few theatres in each," Mr. Allen told a News representative. "The film centers are located at Kobe, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Manila and Singapore, and a number of smaller ones. In each of these places are a number of theatres with a smaller number in outlying districts near them. The exchange centers each supply but a few theatres, and the most discouraging feature is that each group is far removed from the other.

"The theatres throughout the territory that I visited are distinctly oriental in architecture. About the same prices prevail throughout the different countries, there being an average of five, ten and fifteen cents American money. The situation there can be summed up best in the statement that conditions are about the same as they were in the United States five years ago.

"Prior to his tour to the Orient, Mr. Allen served as manager of the San Francisco branch of the Famous Motion Picture Company, and is resuming the duties of this office since his return.

$200,000 Deal Made By American Film

What is considered to be one of the biggest contracts to supply serial and feature photoplays to Russia, Norway, Sweden and Denmark ever consummated was closed last week in New York by R. R. Nehls, manager of the American Film Company, Inc., of Chicago, and representatives of a large foreign distributing syndicate. The terms of the agreement call for an export of 50,000 feet of positive film per week, 3,000,000 a year, and involve the exchange of something over $200,000.

Co-incidental with the signing of the Russian and Scandinavian papers, Mr. Nehls arranged for the shipment of approximately 10,000 feet of serial and feature subjects weekly to China and Japan.

Piedmont Co. Foreign Agents for Many Big Films

The Piedmont Pictures Corporation has been nominated exclusive selling agent for all foreign markets of Warner Brothers' productions and those of some other companies and several other Warner Brothers pictures, among which is the special feature production, "Are Passions Inherited?"
Goldburg Is Sales Manager for Ogden

Jesse J. Goldburg, formerly of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, has been engaged by Albert Scrowcroft, president, and Lester Park, general manager, of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, as exploitation and sales manager.

Mr. Goldburg's first operations will be in connection with that company's initial picture, "The Lust of the Ages," starring Lilian Walker.

"I have never been so elated at a coming event," said Mr. Goldburg, "than I experienced after viewing 'The Lust of the Ages.' When I was approached by Messrs. Scrowcroft and Park with a proposition to associate with them, I already had under consideration offers from two other concerns whose productions I had viewed and one of which I considered to be an unusual photodrama. It was but natural that I desired to be connected with the biggest thing about to be exploited and largely because of my not being acquainted with the silent activities of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, it was with a prejudiced mind that I prepared to view their production before finally determining my future connections.

"I am not talking sales talk, or what is popularly known as 'publicity' when I give expression to the opinion that in my years of activity as a producer and as a motion picture executive I have never witnessed a more unusual, stirring, yet pleasing, dramatic production than 'The Lust of the Ages' from the standpoint of story, direction and acting, does not create a new and higher standard, and a new line of directorial endeavor, than all my observations during the years of my film experience have been in vain.'

Oldknow Is Conducting Campaign in the South

Colonel William Oldknow, the general manager of the Consolidated Film Supply Company, is carrying on a campaign for the business of the entire South. He recently acquired the rights to many worthwhile short subjects, released in the independent field. Among these are the Mutt and Jeff Comedies, for which he has acquired the rights to the entire South.

Upon being interrogated as to the reason for this policy, he explained that the temperamental of the Southern people seemed rather to demand the shorter subject in preference to the long feature. The Southern audience grows impatient and loses interest in the longer films, he said, but seems to take kindly to quick-action releases.

Mr. Oldknow believes that Mutt and Jeff Comedies will not only satisfy and entertain the public of the South, but also that a great deal of interest has been stimulated and is being sustained through the medium of national advertising and publicity given them through the newspapers.

Raver Sells Art Dramas to Warner for $3 States

Pioneer Film Man Will Conduct Extensive Advertising Campaign for the Pictures in Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan

On his return from a hurried trip to Cleveland, Ohio, Harry Raver, president of Art Dramas, Incorporated, gave out the following announcement: The franchise rights for the Art Dramas Program, for the territories embracing Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky, have been sold to A. Warder, known throughout the country as one of the foremost distributors in the film industry.

The deal, which had been pending for several weeks, was closed by Mr. Raver, who, in company with H. M. Goetz, secretary of Art Dramas, took a quick trip to Ohio and returned two days later. This means that beginning September 1, exhibitors in these three large states will now have an opportunity to book Art Dramas.

The new organization has not yet been named, but it is now in the process of formation, and a capable staff is being assembled by Mr. Warner.

It is interesting to note in this connection that it was Harry Raver who sold Mr. Warner his first film, when he entered the business with Warner Feature Films, Inc. This was in 1912, and the picture was "Redemption," made by the Eclair Company of France, of which at that time Mr. Raver was general manager and in entire charge of its American business.

Warner Feature Films, Inc., was one of the first companies ever organized for the distribution of features. Mr. Warner is thus rightly entitled a pioneer. His progress since he entered the motion picture industry has been steady and rapid, so that to-day he holds an extremely high position in the business.

Mr. Warner was largely influenced in his decision to handle the program by the reports from the other distributors. The Standard Film Corporation, Sol Lesser, Liberty Film Renting Company, and other organizations acting as exchanges have been doing constantly increasing business, and are all heartily enthusiastic over the future.

Mr. Warner had been watching the program for some time. Always interested in the idea of making better films at a lower price, and thus giving the exhibitor and exchange man an opportunity to make a reasonable profit, he was strongly attracted to the Art Dramas Program, which promised a solution to so many problems. When it was finally demonstrated that the idea was a success, that Art Dramas were in every way, suited for the best theatres, he hesitated no longer.

On the enormous number of important theatres, such as the Marcus Loew Circuit, the Proctor Circuit, the Modern, Boston, and others, which have booked the program and are doing record business with the pictures, showed Mr. Warner conclusively, he claims, that the promises made at the beginning of Art Dramas' existence had been fulfilled.

Mr. Warner, when questioned, was brief but expressive.

"I think Art Dramas is the best program on the market," he said, "and I expect to make the Middle West exhibitors agree with me. I am confident of doing record business. The program has proved its superiority. I am going to bombard Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan with advertising, and if there is an exhibitor in the territory that doesn't use Art Dramas within the year it will be because he's in hiding. I'm going to hunt them all out and sell them. That's all."

At the present time Mr. Warner controls the franchise for Clara Kimball Young and Selznick Pictures for Ohio and several other Middle Western States, with a chain of offices located in Cleveland, Detroit and Cincinnati.

Italian-American Completes "Pan's Mountain"

The Italian-American Picture Company, a California corporation owning several theatres in the San Francisco district, has completed the filming of a six or seven reel subject which has been titled "Pan's Mountain."

The photographic work on this was done by Raymond Duhem, general manager of the Duhem Motion Picture Manufacturing Company of San Francisco, and Mr. Duhem will supervise the sale and release of the subject which will be ready for the market about the first of September.

"Pan's Mountain" is described as a most virile subject, each point of which has been treated most artistically.
Standard's Aid Department Is Praised by Exhibitors

A STEADILY strengthening confidence in the work of the Exhibitors' Aid Department of the Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., distributors of the Art Dramas and the Billy West Comedies in the Middle West, is shown by the daily increasing number of calls for help from exhibitors, not alone in advertising their Art Dramas features, but on other programs as well. The call which was sent out by the department for advertising suggestions from exhibitors brought some very interesting suggestions and some suggestions which were rather odd. So odd, in fact, that if they could be depended upon to pull business in proportion to their oddity, the proprietor could expect more than capacity business.

A peculiar fact in connection with the work of the Exhibitors' Aid Department is that a great many, in fact, the bigger majority of requests for aid come from the exhibitors having large theatres in the larger cities. The small town exhibitor is not represented in requests for aid in such a number as would conclusively indicate that the small town exhibitor is greatly interested in the quality or the quantity of his advertising. The service of the Exhibitors' Aid Department of the Standard, which comprises advertising from every angle, is free, so that the argument of expense on the part of the exhibitor cannot very well be brought up.

Naturally, the results brought by the work of the Department were waited and watched for during the first month of its service very Interestingly by the Standard. To date the Standard has received a great many complimentary letters upon the work of this Department, and all of the exhibitors who have taken advantage of the service continue to do so from week to week.

Since the acquiring of distributing rights for the Billy West Comedies in the Middle West, the department is looking forward to redoubled effort. The advertising of comedy is a very different sort of proposition, the department holds, from the advertising of Art Dramas features. Press sheets have been prepared on the first two Billy West productions, and the exhibitor who has seen these press sheets pronounces them very original.

Ten Chicago Houses Show "Parentage" to Capacity

DURING the hottest ten days on record, with the mercury hovering around the century mark, ten of Chicago's finest photoplay theatres did capacity business with "Parentage," the special feature controlled by Frank J. Seng.

With one exception, all of the houses retained the picture two days or more, and the "Parentage" advertising dominated the directory columns of the Chicago papers for several days in succession.

Jones, Linich and Schafer, who are handling "Parentage" for Illinois, got busy immediately after the successful presentation of the production at the Colonial theatre, and have as the first move in their campaign to sweep the state, secured thousands of dollars' worth of bookings in and around Chicago.

The Chicago theatres that have reported large attendance are the Frolic, Oakland Square, Metropolitan, Hamlin, Terminal, Milford, Lane Park, Lakeside, Calo and the Chateau.

"Babbling Tongues" Released on the 13th

"Babbling Tongues," the Ivan-Humphrey production, will be released August 13, at Loew's New York theatre, Broadway and Forty-fifth street. It is booked for the entire Loew circuit.

Up to date the books of the Merit Film Corporation show 421 dates in the metropolitan district alone for this production. This, of course, includes the entire Loew circuit, the U. B. O, and the Exhibitors' Board of Trade, whose representatives have viewed the film and booked it for runs of two days and more.

Special advertising has been prepared. The twenty-four sheet especially is one of tremendous appeal. A special two-color postal card has been designed which ought to prove a business getter. Those watching Motion Picture News will be able to get an idea of the appearance of the card, for it will be the advertisement reproduced to postal card size, printed in two colors, with but slight alteration.

Weinberger Books "Corruption" in New York

Mack D. Weinberger, who is in charge of the Buffalo, N. Y., office of the Rose-twig Feature Films, writes that the bookings for up state on "Corruption" are coming in very rapidly.

One of the first to book the picture is the Family theatre of Buffalo. Harry Marsey, the owner of this playhouse, has booked "Corruption" for a two weeks run, starting September 9. The Family theatre will hereafter be known as the Rialto.

Mr. Weinberger has laid out a special advertising campaign and expects to put this picture over in great shape.

No Let Up in Summer Activities of King-Bee

Probably no company engaged in the production of motion pictures has been more active during this Summer than the King-Bee Films Corporation whose studios at Bayonne, N. J., have seldom been idle, even during the most trying heat. Under the direction of Louis Burstein, president and general manager of the company, work has gone on night and day.
“Who’s Your Neighbor?” Continues to Make Appeal

Satisfactory reports of the sales of “Who’s Your Neighbor?” continue to come into the office of the Master Drama Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York City, according to Herman Becker. He says:

“I think in many respects this initial production of ours is the most wonderful ever filmed. It is a great photoplay story of the present day. It throbs and pulsates with life, dealing with people we meet every day. Be it understood it is not a preachment but points a big moral lesson that should be seen by every man and woman in America.

“William Mack has written a compelling story. S. Rankin Drew has given a perfect production and we have supplied a cast of distinction. These points together with clear photography and magnificent settings all go to make ‘Who’s Your Neighbor?’ the picture that it is. This is the initial output of the Master Drama Features, Inc. Other big plays will be on the market shortly.”

Rex Beach Travel Picture Bought by Unity

The Unity Photoplays Corporation of Chicago, of which Frank Zambreno is the head, announce that it has purchased the rights for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin on the Rex Beach pictures showing his 12,000 mile trip to the San Blas Islands in the Carribbean.

The complement of film depicting this famous trip of Rex Beach, Dr. Edward A. Salisbury and Mary Roberts Rinehart, is of sixteen reels. One reel will be released every week, starting the latter part of September. Mr. Mintz, manager of the Unity offices in Chicago, is planning an extensive and aggressive advertising campaign for the territory involved.

Another big deal which Unity has made in the last fortnight has been the purchase of the Illinois and Indiana rights for the official French war pictures, showing the allied armies in action on the French front. These pictures are at present running at the Bandbox theatre in the Chicago Loop and are attracting great crowds.

Schlesinger Wants Copyright Dates on Film

President of Mayfair Intends to Introduce Measure in Legislature to Prevent Issue by Another Company of Old Picture When New Subject Appears with Same Star

M. SCHLESINGER, president of the Mayfair Film Corporation, New York City, intends to have introduced at the next session of the legislature a measure compelling producers to conspicuously mark positive prints with the date of the copyright to prevent a company from issuing an old picture simultaneously with the recent production of another company featuring the same star.

“Individual producers oftentimes are responsible for much of the unjust criticism heaped upon the trade owing to abuses indulged in by them,” he says. “A very flagrant case has just come to my notice pertaining to Mayfair’s star and the history is interesting. She appeared quite some time ago in a production made and released by a foreign company in England. She had just then about made her debut on the screen. She was found by an American producer and brought to this country; made exceptionally rapid strides to success; was soon in great demand, and one of the largest producing companies induced her to join their staff.

“For fear that the old English film might be exploited in America to compete with the star’s better works here, the film was purchased and shelved by the American producer, but immediately the star completed her contract and severed her connection with the firm, the American manufacturer released the old English production under the great name of American made and of a recent date. It is an imposition on the exhibitor who contracts for the latest made releases, and an imposition on the public who pay their money to see the star in her latest pictures.

“A remedy might be found if actors and actresses would insist upon placing a time limit in their contract with producers whereby the producers would be prohibited from releasing pictures in which they appear after a certain specified term has expired.”

“The Mayfair Film Corporation has voluntarily decided upon an innovation whereby they will refrain from exhibiting pictures in which the star is featured after a fixed period, without the written consent of the star who is featured.

“This will save many a star the awkward embarrassment after reaching the pinnacle of success, of finding a work of his or her infancy on the screen, working out great detriment to the artist, to the exhibitor and the public alike.”

Greiver and Herz Buy “Screen News”

Greiver and Herz, Chicago’s newest independent exchange, have contracted for the local territory for the Screen News, a weekly release made by the American Bioscope Company there. The reel is of local interest solely and has already been contracted for by over fifty leading theatres in Chicago.

The new firm has also purchased the exclusive territorial rights in Illinois and Indiana for “A Slacker’s Heart,” a seven reel war drama produced by the Emerald Motion Picture Company, also of this city. The picture is said to be a stirring and vivid indictment against German autocracy.

Brock Expects Big Reception of "Manx-Man"

Fidelity to the Original Has Been Observed Throughout the Picture, He Declares—All Scenes Taken on the Isle of Man

Which has made 'Manx-Man' a screen actualization is distinctly American. Not only was the acting company, with perhaps two notable exceptions, an American company, but the picture is controlled and promoted through the good Americanism of myself and my associates.

The name that first attracted attention among the actors is that of Elizabeth Risdon, Fred Groves and Henry Ainley. Miss Risdon is more than well-known on the New York stage. It was she who created the title role in 'Fanny's First Play' and she has been seen here in other stellar roles. The name of Mr. Groves, who plays Pete, while less familiar, will be famous among picture lovers once he has effected his Broadway debut in 'The Manx-Man.' Henry Ainley is perhaps the most popular of the younger generation of English actors, well and favorably remembered in New York.

In short, nothing has been left to chance in placing 'Manx-Man' on the screen. Money has been spent lavishly, and the work has not been rushed. Mr. Tucker's ambition was to realize the actual greatness of the novel itself, and those whom Mr. Brock has permitted to see the picture in advance assure us he has not failed.

To Arrange Foreign Sale of Christie Films

C. H. Christie, of the Christie Comedies Corporation, spent several days in Chicago last week. He is on his way to New York to arrange for the sale of foreign rights to his comedies.

"Silent Witness" from Hoffman in September

One of the September products of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is "The Silent Witness," the feature that was based upon the play of that name. This is the play which after going its course in the New York press as the biggest drama since "Madame X."

Otto Hauerbach, who wrote the play, said when he saw the picturized version for the first time a few weeks since that it was one of the most successful accomplishments of its kind. The author is delighted with the adaptation, the cast—which includes Gertrude McCoy, Frank L. A. O'Connor and Edward Fosberg—and the production.

According to Mr. Hauerbach, "The Silent Witness" in its picturized form will make an impression fully equal to that achieved by the play itself. M. H. Hoffman, likewise, has the utmost faith in this new Hoffman-Foursquare superfeature.

Billy West Comedies Take Well in the West

New York, it is true, is the shop-window of the motion picture business. But what "goes" on Broadway is not necessarily successful in other parts of the country. The reverse condition only too frequently prevails.

The King-Bee Billy West Comedies appear to have "got over" in the Middle West and West. The New York office of the King-Bee Films Corporation is in receipt of innumerable testimonials from exhibitors who have found, in the hot weather, veritable gold mines in the Billy West Comedies, and in addition to that a considerable volume of press notices testify to the favorable reception accorded to the productions by motion picture theatre audiences.

So far this young comedian Billy West has been starred in only nine comedies but his reputation appears to have been firmly established in the short space of three months.

Klotz and Streimer Sell "Whither Thou Goest"

Harry A. Samwick, who controls the rights for New York State and Northern New Jersey, is now playing the picture through the Marcus Loew's Circuit for an aggregate of sixty-seven days; in addition Samwick, has booked Wm. Fox's theatres; also B. F. Keith's Circuit, and a number of other theatres.

Mr. Streimer, of Klotz and Streimer, Inc., has returned to New York, after an extended trip, showing "Whither Thou Goest" to independent buyers. Streimer reports that the demand for the picture is proof that the buyers want clean, wholesome entertainment and are ready to purchase films that are built with the idea of society dramas of heart interest.
Another Feature Under Way at Corona Studios

The Corona Cinema Company, producers of "The Curse of Eve," is making preparations to begin the production of another feature very shortly.

It is understood that an agreement has been reached between the Corona people and one of America's foremost novelists, which will give this company the exclusive picture rights to all of his works. He will have an active connection with the producers in such a capacity that will enable him to assist in the supervision of the filming of his works.

Negotiations are now pending with a well known and successful eastern feature director for his services, covering a period of two years.

Hoffman Looks for Good Business in Hot Weather

Richard Miller, general manager of Poli's circuit, has booked for the Poli circuit "Her Fighting Chance," which is now a Foursquare product in the most desirable state in this country. This pleased M. H. Hoffman, and another bit of business which was negotiated through the New York Hoffman-Foursquare Exchange, of which Henry Gainsberg is manager.

"That particular bit of business was the booking of 'Her Fighting Chance' for the Loew circuit," remarked Mr. Hoffman.

"This picture, in which Jane Grey does the best work in her film career, has every element that makes for success. I am looking forward to splendid business, which is coming in—regardless of the heat."

Mutt and Jeff on Jap Warships

Bud Fisher, president of the Bud Fisher Film Corporation, has just received a letter of appreciation of which he is very proud. It comes from the Japanese naval base at Nagasaki, and is signed by the commandant.

A few weeks ago the Exhibitions Film Exchange, of Seattle, Wash., asked Mr. Fisher's permission to donate prints of his Mutt and Jeff Comedies to be exhibited on the Japanese war ships. The permission was readily granted, with the result that the navy is enjoying daily the antics of Mutt and Jeff.

The commandant says in his letter that although the men cannot understand the English, they readily appreciate the humor of the pictures, and look forward all day to the evening quarter deck movie exhibitions.

Louise Glaum as a "Feminine Bill Hart"

Louise Glaum, in Triangle's "Golden Rule Kate," will step forth in the beads and backskin of a western dance-hall girl. She runs her own saloon. When a preacher announces he will clean up her place she sends "the Heller" to rope him in the pulpit and drag him to the dance-hall. Finally she agrees to attend his church every Sunday if he will tend bar an hour a day in her saloon. Her regeneraton follows.

The character is best described as being a "feminine Bill Hart." Reginald Barker directed the company.
Russian Drama Nearly Ready for Americans
Kaplan Will Soon Introduce to Public Here Fifty Pictures Based on Works of Famous Russians, Interpreted by Players of Moscow Theatre

ANNOUNCEMENT is made to exhibitors and the patrons of their theatres that preparations are now near completion for the launching in the United States of a dozen separate and distinct productions, the screen. The Russian Art Film Corporation is nearly ready to put forth more than fifty masterpieces of Russian literature visualized for the cinema by the distinguished players of the famous Moscow theatre. The announcement states that these productions will offset the American tendency to make the star supreme and the story subordinate, at the same time presenting actors of unusual scope and versatility.

Several weeks ago N. S. Kaplan, an American citizen who has spent many years in Europe, arrived in New York with a dozen trunks full of film. The task of cutting and assembling this mass of material has been tremendous but the time is now not far distant when the exhibitors of the country will be able to obtain these productions for their theatres.

Scant mention is now made of the famous players who will be seen in these masterpieces. Few if any theatre-goers in America other than their own countrymen have ever heard of Mozukin, foremost actor in Russia, or the famous women stars of the Moscow theatre, Lesienko, Cokolna, Fetner, Orlova, Karabanova and Zovska. But it is predicted that in a very brief time these names will be as eagerly awaited as any star of the American stage whom the most discriminating playgoer might name.

Because he is practically the only man of the list who takes rank with the famous women stars of Russia, first mention may go to Mozukin.

As a master of makeup is Mozukin particularly well known in Russia. This miracle man of the matinee in his native land is not at all averse to concealing his features when the role requires. It is his willingness to subordinate his own personality to the part he is playing that is characteristic of all the Russian actors who will be seen in the art films to be shown here. Russia will have it that the play's the thing, hence great interest lies in the study of versatility to be found in these foreign artists.

"Unknown are as the names of these talented players," says Mr. Kaplan, "I promise that before the Russian repertory is far along on its course they will be awaited with all the interest now restricted to a few of the foremost American stars.

"The stories to which they devote their abilities I further promise will be hailed with enthusiasm by a public long accustomed to a mediocre scenario that is cut to fit the limited scope of a star as a tailor fits a customer. This is certain, the entire history of Russian art and literature shows that the life of the country is reflected in the dramatic achievements of the famous theatres there.

Wide Publicity for Walker Film is Ogden Aim Company of Which Goldburg Is Exploitation Manager Engages Advertising Specialists to Turn Out Striking Copy for "Lust of Ages"

THE Ogden Pictures Corporation has planned an extensive advertising and publicity campaign for its initial release, "The Lust of Ages," starring Lilian Walker, the A. M. Sweyd Company, advertising specialists, have been engaged to assist Jesse J. Goldburg, exploitation and sales manager, in making the picture widely known to the public. It has been stated that $9,500 has been set aside for trade paper advertising alone, the major portion of which is to be expended for the benefit of the buyers of the production. This advertising will be directed largely to making exhibitors throughout the country thoroughly familiar with the merits of the subject.

The channel of release of the production has not been finally determined upon, excepting that it will be released on an independent basis, but whether by the Ogden Pictures Corporation or through one of the concerns who are interested in the purchase of the negative will depend upon the activity of buyers in negotiating direct with the Ogden Pictures Corporation. In the latter event, it is stated at the executive offices of the company, options will be granted to exchanges for the control of the entire Lilian Walker series, which will approximate six a year for the next two years.

The Ogden Pictures Corporation was formed to produce a series of attractions starring Lilian Walker, whose work for the years that she was with the Vitagraph Company has placed her in the front rank of female stars.

Under the direction of Harry J. Revier, the initial attraction was produced at the studios of the Ogden Pictures Corporation at Ogden, Utah.

No inkling of the character of the story has been forthcoming except the bare information that it is not a sex play nor a war subject.

The role essayed by Miss Walker is different from any that she has heretofore portrayed and it was with some misgiving that Miss Walker undertook to go through with her part, but her endeavors have added new laurels to her crown.

In order to set the highest standard possible by which the public and the trade might judge the future activities of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, Albert Scowcroft, the president, and Lester Park, the general manager, determined to spare neither time nor expense in the staging of the production and gave Mr. Revier carte blanche, with the result, it is said, that $100,000 is below the actual cost of the initial production, to say nothing of the expenses accruing later.

Dramatic Moments in "The Lust of Ages"
Leaks in the Loop

Vitagraph's campaign with its reissued features is meeting with much success and satisfaction in this section. Manager Abel of the local V-L-S-E office has stated that they are being grabbed up wherever offered.

Maurice Choyntski, of the Newberry theatre and one of the leading spirits in the new rival local league here, the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, is spending two weeks in the country.

Manager Sydney Abel, of the local V-L-S-E office, reports that a print of "The Nation's Peril" is missing from his office.

Ralph Morgan, of the "Turn To The Right" company playing in Chicago, has been engaged by the Wholesome Films Corporation to take the leading role in the "Penny Philanthropist," the film version of Clare Laughlin's story.

The La Salle theatre, as a place for choice film entertainment is no more—for the present at least. It has been newly decorated and painted and on August 20, the musical comedy, "Oh, Boy!" will open there.

The biggest film contract ever closed in Kalamazoo, Mich., was consummated last week, when G. F. Spaeth, manager of the Fuller theatre, arranged for handling all Vitagraph features for two weeks at a time.

William N. Selig has donated the use of his large studio on Western avenue to the Red Cross. It is planned to produce, a large picture there to be owned and exploited by the Red Cross. Mabel Heikes Justice will write the scenario.

The Piper's Band, of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, of Canada, together with some of the officers of that regiment were the main attraction for the guests at Harry Moir's Terrace Garden restaurant in the Morrison Hotel one night last week. Mr. Moir is also the manager of three Loop picture houses.

Clara C. Morden, 9830 Exchange avenue, Chicago, has been announced the winner in the Daily News-Essany contest held at the Daily News booth during the "movie exposition at the Coliseum. Bryant Washburn picked her from among the thousands of movie-mad lasses who presented themselves during that week and she will now be given a chance to shine on the cinema horizon.

Recent additions to the long line of features handled by the Lewis Selznick Productions includes the Mutt and Jeff comedies.

On Sunday of last week Harry Weiss, manager of the Selznick local offices, started out on a three thousand mile automobile trip in the interests of his firm. He will cover the principal cities in Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky.

Jack O'Tool, who has charge of the Standard pictures in the local Fox office, gave an elaborate trade showing of several of the first-to-be-released of these features last Thursday and Friday mornings at the Colonial theatre. Jack had an orchestra and all out to help charm the trade press and exhibitors. It wasn't necessary, however, the pictures fooled for themselves!

All Rothacker Organization Is on the Jump

The Rothacker Film Company's studio is a very busy place these days as the notes of mention below will surely imply. The various camera crews mobilized at the studio are all on the jump at various points of the compass. Here is a little record of Rothacker activities:

One of the Rothacker camera crews in charge of Mr. Harry Birch has finished a comprehensive series of moving pictures at Glacier Park, Montana, and is returning to Chicago preparatory to handling some scenic subjects in the East.

A Rothacker camera crew in charge of Mr. B. Grenelle has just finished a sub-features field. The Wisconsin Dells leaves August 4 for Yellowstone Park to take a complete series of wild animal life pictures in that territory.

A Rothacker camera crew in charge of Mr. C. C. Petty left Chicago on July 31 for Little Rock, Ark., where they will secure some representative moving pictures of the big military concentration camp there. These pictures will be used by the United States Government and a copy will be sent to the American soldiers in France and the British soldiers in England.

A camera crew in charge of Mr. W. B. Klingensmith leaves Chicago Saturday, August 4, for a comprehensive tour of the Rocky Mountains, which tour will embrace the Red Cloud, Ennis Park, the Grand Lake district, Beaver Canyon, Ogden Canyon and Salt Lake City. In this territory Mr. Klingensmith will direct the production of five complete scenic reels.

Charles Hugo is in charge of a camera crew for the Rothacker Company in the far East and writes from Ceylon that he has secured some wonderful pictures of animal life and expects to bring in to Chicago about August 25 ten complete reels of scenic, industrial and animal pictures taken in China, Japan, Ceylon, Java and other far Eastern points.

Mr. E. F. Mooney of the Rothacker sales department recently gave an illustrated talk on moving picture advertising before a big gathering of the National Founders' Association at the Strand theatre, Buffalo, and at the same time there presented a multiple reel subject illustrating foundry work which the Rothacker Company made for that association.

Jack Byrne of the Production Department of the Rothacker Film Company recently gave a special exhibition of industrial films at the Strand theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., and at the same time showed there a double reel industrial subject made by the Rothacker Film Company illustrating the mint and meat industry.

E. H. Philippi, sales manager, Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, is to give a talk on moving picture advertising at the Sherman House, August 1, before a special assemblage of sales managers.

N. J. Baumer, vice-president of the Rothacker Company contemplates a tour of inspection embracing Rothacker agencies throughout the New England and Southerners states.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, will leave for New York August 6 for a stay of approximately ten days.

Varner Thanked for Tax Efforts by House Owners

At a recent meeting of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association of Chicago, it was determined to extend a tribute of thanks in writing to H. B. Varner for his successful efforts at Washington in stalling off the war tax that threatened every exhibitor in the country recently.

M. A. Choyntski, Adolph Powell and A. J. Krug were named to frame the vote of thanks of the Chicago Association members to Mr. Varner. A committee of five was also appointed at that meeting to confer with a committee, representing the local exchange managers, on the matter of advance deposits. This committee is composed of Louis H. Frank, A. J. Krug, Henry Schoenstadt, G. P. Morris and George Henry.

Local Film Men on War Committees

Chicago had two of its well known film men honored by big Government cooperation appointments last week. They were Watterson R. Rothacker, of the Rothacker Film Company, and Peter J. Schaefer, of Jones, Linitck and Schaefer.

Mr. Schaefer has been appointed a member of the national Red Cross Committee to represent the middle West, and Mr. Rothacker has been named to confer with the United States Agricultural Department in relation to the use of motion pictures as a means of increasing food production.

L. S. Tobias to Have Foursquare in Connecticut

Arrangements have been completed whereby L. S. Tobias, former branch manager for Mutual in New Haven, Conn., will act as supervisor of sales for the State of Connecticut for M. H. Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures.

Mr. Tobias leaves this week for Connecticut, where he will arrange for special showings of Foursquare’s first releases—namely, “The Sin Woman,” “Her Fighting Chance,” “Trip Through China,” “Should She Obey” and “The Silent Witness.” All of these pictures will be handled out of New York for the Connecticut territory, which affords adequate shipping facilities and co-operation to the exhibitor.

Cupid Raids Two V.L.S.E. Offices

Cupid made a raid on two branch offices of V-L-S-E, the distributing organization for Vitaphone product, during the month of June, with the result that two branch managers now are dutiful husbands. They are F. F. Hartich, loss of the Syracuse branch, who was married on June 30, and Paul Bobrick, a Wagner Salt Lake manager, who became a Benedict on June 16.

In the case of Wagner it was an office romance, for he took for his bride Miss Evelyn Sorenson, who had been cashier of the branch since August 30, 1916.

Mr. Bobrick has been with V-L-S-E since its inception, having started as a salesman for the company when the Salt Lake office was opened in May, 1915.

Mr. Goldsborough made a trip to Washington and met the officials of the managers’ Association of Washington, at which the exchange men announced their intention of moving to Baltimore as soon as adequate shipping facilities were arranged by the express companies.

Mr. Goldsborough immediately held a conference with the officials of the express companies which are interested in the shipping of film. Every effort is being made to rearrange their schedules in order that the shipments can be made on time. As soon as the express companies announce their decision a time will be set for the moving of the film exchanges.

It is the opinion of many of the managers of the film exchanges to have a building in which they can all be grouped. This is not a point urged, however, and will have no effect upon their moving. Mr. Goldsborough has also taken up this phase with real estate interests in Baltimore and assurances have been secured that if such a building is desired it will be erected and if necessary work could begin at once.

James A. A. Stanley for Mutual at Salt Lake

Following a “shake-up” in its Salt Lake, Utah, office, the Mutual Film Corporation has secured the services of James A. A. Stanley, a live-wire Salt Lake man, to manage the exchange. Mr. Stanley will succeed J. W. Frazier.

The territory covered by the Salt Lake Mutual Exchange includes Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Nevada. The Mutual expects to branch out and take in an extensive new territory.

Leon Netter Ends Vacation in California

Leon Netter, former manager of the All Star Feature Distributors Exchange at San Francisco, who for the past year or more has been in the east where he conducted exchanges at Philadelphia and New York, is returning to New York this week after spending a three weeks vacation with friends in San Francisco.

Arthur B. Price with Triangle in Baltimore

Arthur B. Price, formerly representative for the Paramount Pictures, is now representing the Triangle Program in Baltimore.

Mr. Price is an experienced film man. He has been identified with the picture business in Baltimore for years. He has managed several theatres and is at present manager of both the Rialto and Mt. Royal theatres, conducting them in connection with his film business.
THE following verse is contributed by Dick Willis. Dick thinks it's funny—so he goes: (He calls it "Farmer Hayseed's Choice"—sounds good, doesn't it?)

But:
I've just come down from Pumkinville
And sold my crop, all right,
And now there ain't no train which goes to my ham town tonight;
I've done right smart for money and I guess as how I'll go And spend a bit of it by passin' in a movie show.
My missus was a town gal and is awful wise and slick;
She warned me to be careful, if I went,
which one to pick.
I'll just run through the paper and I'll size up each hurried play,
An' find what's good to go to and from which to stay away.
Charles Ray in "The Clodhopper," nothin' doin', thankee man;
This sounds as tho' at our perfession this might be a slam.
"The Smart," with Bessie Barriscale, whose pitcher looks all right;
But this here "Smart" may mean it ain't quite moral or perite.
"Come Through" and Herbert Rawlinson.
I'll bet he is a crook;
My missus say at such there things I mustn't even look.
Here's Charlie Chaplin in "The Cure," with livin' on the rise,
I don't uphold the wilful waste he makes of custard pies.
"Poor Little Rich Girl," Mary Pickford's skirts look awful high;
She shows her legs a lot, too; guess I'd better pass that by.
There's Helen Holmes in overalls, with hair all wild and fuzzy A'chokin' of an engineer; I won't go near the huzzy.
Then Douglas Fairbanks with a gun
a'shootin' somethin' awful,
A bad example to the boys; them plays should be more lawful.
Here's "Ora-ental Love," with Miss
Carew in Turkish pants;
When missus sees such goings on she always up and runs.
Monroe Salishbury in "Romona," bet he's an Italian creature;
I always hates to sit a hour and watch a foreign feature.
Miss Fischer (Margarita), in "The Devil's Assistant," whew!
This showin' Satan on the screen, what are we comin' to?
Miss Myrtle Stedman in a play what's called "American Beauty," All dressed in beads; by gosh, I think to stay away's my duty.
"The Purple Mask," with Grace Cunard, that mask looks bad to me;
I'll lay she is a roberess, or something worse, maybe.
Miss Emil Markey in "The Curse of Eve" may be the rage.

But if my missus—well, I best just turn the leaf, or page.
Doggone this worryin' an' doubts; I'm wuzzzy in the head;
I won't pay one of 'em ten cents I guess
I'll go to bed.

WE note that E. K. Lincoln (the m.p. actor) is "summering" at Blandford, Mass. Is there such a place? It must be so—at least that's what his post card says. To he exact, there are two scenes shown on the "other side" of the card (the other side of a post card is the side farthest away from the right side)— and underneath is written "Two Old Relics—Blandford." The postmark reads
Westfield, Mass. Now, which is the right —the other side or the right side? We wish you luck, E. K. wherever you are "summering."

L-Ko Comedy Girls in Bath-Suit Contest

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

THE next Ethel Clayton play for World-Pictures is "The Woman Beneath," in which a New York society girl marries a rich Westerner for his money and does not think she cares for him until he apparently "goes broke." Then she pitches in to help him, although he has been fooling all the time about that financial disaster, and shows him that under the society bud exterior she is pure gold.

DESPITE the fact that Virginia Pearson's newest feature, completed last week at the William Fox studios in the East, is a mystery play with strong dramatic action, there are in it the large number of laughs characteristic of every picture Carl Harbaugh directs.

One of the scenes which is certain to stir the susceptibilities of the audience takes place in a jail. A gentleman who has had a large thirst and had quenched it in a large way is thrust into a cell by a police man. As the Cooper opens the cell door, the inebriate clutches at the bars. To his fuddled mind, the thing takes on the appearance of a harp, and he goes through all the motions of an accomplished harpist.

IT wouldn't surprise anyone who knows Harry Millarde, June Caprice's new director, if the motion picture "extras" should buy him a silver loving cup. Harry is not only the soul of wit. He is the soul of diplomacy. When working with a mob of "supers," he prefaxes his remarks by, "Now artists--"

THERE was considerable excitement when the news leaked out that several hundred German uniforms had been ordered by a man named Kaufman. The wheels of justice were freshly oiled and set in motion—and the report was confirmed. Then the task of tracing down the man Kaufman was begun and the trail led to 156 West Fifty-sixth street. Here the investigators found their quarry—Albert Kaufman, manager of the Famous Players studio, who was preparing for the staging of an adaptation of "Arms and the Girl," which is to be a forthcoming Paramount Picture starring Billie Burke.

THEY are dishing up the remains of the motor car which Margarette Clark used in altering the scenery of Greenwich, and preparing to use it again. In other words the Paramount star is about to begin the staging of the second "Sub-Deb," starring Mary Roberts Rinehart, under the direction of J. Searle Dawley.

If you visit the Famous Players' studio and find both Pauline Frederick and Robert G. Vignola deep in the perusal of a novel, it does not mean that they are merely killing time by entertaining themselves. An examination of the books will reveal them to be David Graham Phillips's well-known novel "The Hungry Heart," which they are preparing to stage for Paramount as star and director respectively.

A LICE BRADY'S forthcoming World Picture is called "The Refugee," and is nearly completed. The director is George Archainbaud. As the heroine of this photoplay Miss Brady has acting to do which is considerably more strenuous than anything in her recent repertoire. The story is exceedingly harrowing at times.

EVELYN GREELEY is "featured" in "The Burglar," an approaching World Picture, starring Carlyle Blackwell in the name part.

Miss Greeley, but a few months with World Pictures, has shown singularly brilliant qualifications for the art of acting before the camera, and her growing popularity among fans is clearly apparent. In consequence of this, numerous exhibitors are said to be asking World exchanges for photoplays in which Miss Greeley appears.

THE first of Kitty Gordon's series of photoplays under her renewed contract with World Pictures is titled "Her Hour," and work is already well advanced upon it at the Fort Lee studio.

The story is by Raymond Schrock, and the direction is in the hands of George Cowl, who has been accomplishing effective results in several recent pictures.

BATHERS at Manhattan Beach were given an exciting time last week when scenes for "The Princess of Park Row" were filmed there. It will be a difficult feat to convince any of them that the life of a moving picture star is not one round of luxurious pleasure, for Mildred Manning, Wallace MacDonald and others of the cast, as well as the camera men, and Ashley Miller, the director, spent most of the time in bathing suits, a move necessitated by the fact that the camera was set in the edge of the surf and the scenes played amid the curling, foam-covered waves.

PAUL SCARDON directing Evelyn Overton and Miriam Fonche in "Soldiers of Chance," a Vitagraph feature, is a much-weathered man, all on account of his desire for realism.

Death scenes are pretty hard propositions for even the most finished actors. Admitted. Then how about teaching a crocodile to die and stay dead before a camera? The crocodile was chained to a stake on the shore of the lake. Just which he naturally would roll or lay on being shot. But instead, every time Overton discharged the rifle, he would lunge viciously forward the length of his chain at the unoffending Director Scardon. Every sort of moral suasion was wasted on the crocodile, and a few sterner methods employed before the saurian would pull off anything like a reasonable death scene.

HARRY MOREY, Vitagraph star, started a little fund down at the Brooklyn studio, which does not promise much for success. Morey figured it would be a good idea to have cooling drinks right at hand during the record hot spell and agreed to finance the scheme, charging a nominal sum per drink, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross, The Evening Sun's Tobacco Fund or some other worthy object.

The drinks were the limit in popularity, but when it came to paying, everybody said, "Put it on the cuff until Thursday." When Thursday came, nobody appeared to be wearing cuffs and Morey is wondering where he gets off.

THE director of "For France" at the Greater Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn, expressed himself as well satisfied with the "punch" put into a fight in one of the scenes. He might well be, in the opinion of the principals. Here are the casualties:

Edward Earle—unconscious five minutes; lacerated elbow; bruises all over.

E. O. von Stroheim—check cut open; black eye; broken nose.

Earle says they did not get nasty, but with the director yelling to make the scene realistic and a lot of onlookers yelling advice, he admits they might have got excited.

G ALE FULLER, who makes up as a spinster in Keystone comedies, announced at the studio the other day that she had received a proposal by mail from a wealthy man in Cincinnati.

"Mr. Fuller doesn't intend to take him up on the proposal, but she is wondering if he came in possession of a photo of her " as is," or was bewitched by her screen self. EL"ither he's crazy, or my make-up is bad," declares Miss Fuller.

PAUL KIMBERLEY, manager of the Thanhouser Films, Ltd., London, is doing a great work abroad in finding positions for disabled soldiers and sailors. He writes Edwin Thanhouser:

"At the present moment we have about ten men in training in London, and several men at the other training centres. The whole trade has taken the matter up with great enthusiasm, and there are more openings than we can train the men for at present. I think it will be interesting to you to know that out of the thirty men we have trained and placed so far about twenty of them have an artificial leg.

"I had one man come to me this morning who started his training on September 25 of last year. He is working at Epsom, a place just outside of London. He has lost his left leg, but has been at Epsom since January of this year, and is just as happy as it is possible for a man to be. His employers speak highly of him, and he has had two increases in salary since he went there."
TWO new directors or rather former directors were re-engaged for the making of Universal-Bluebird and Butterfly subjects this week. Robert Leonard returned from the East and is at work with the manuscript department in preparing the first photoplay which will star Mae Murray. The second director added to the list is E. J. LeSaint, who needs no introduction to users of Universal-made subjects. Mr.
LeSaint was formerly affiliated with Universal, and there for more than one year produced five-reel dramatic subjects. For the past year he has been with Lasky. In the making of these subjects, Mr. LeSaint will have as his co-director Stella Rosita, who in private life is Mrs. LeSaint. His first story and cast for this director is now under consideration, and filming will probably be commenced within a day or two.

A FIVE-REEL Western drama, "The Trail of Shadows," will have Harry Carey as star with Molly Malone playing the opposite lead, was put into production by Jack Ford this week. This is spoken of as a Western melodrama, and the principals will have the Universal cowboys as their leading supports.

MATERIAL change was made necessary in the script of the "Gray Ghost serial this week, when Priscilla Dean fell through a trap door on a U City stage, and suffered breaking of the bones in her left forearm. For a few days it was impossible for the company to work, as it so happened scenes made just at that time required the presence of the leading woman. After a short delay, Miss Dean has recovered sufficiently to continue work, and an accident scene will be injected into the episode that she may continue with her injured arm. The scene being enacted at the time the accident occurred, provided Miss Dean and Emory Johnson playning leads, should escape from a mysterious house, where they were held captive by falling through a trap door in the floor. It was because the door stuck at one side they were thrown together, and the actress in attempting to save her body from the fall, placed her arm forward, and the full force of the fall came upon it. Johnson was badly bruised. At the time of the accicident the company was working under the direction of Stuart Paton on the tenth episode of the serial.

LOUIS CHAUDET is now in charge of directing Grace Cunard in a five-reel dramatic picture, which as yet is still unnamed. Charles West will be the leading man, and other principals in the cast are Harry Dunkinson, and Billy Musgrove.

ROSEMARY THEBY, who will be remembered as comedienne in former releases of the Universal, arrived in Los Angeles this week to accept an engagement to play the featured part in five-reel subjects of a comedy drama nature. Jack Wells has been assigned to direct Miss Theby, and Francis McDonald will be the leading man.

JACK COHN, editor of the Universal Animated Weekly, who is making a tour of the country, visiting exchange mangers, spent two days of the past week in Los Angeles with Manager Dave Burshon, and at U City with General Manager Henry McRae and other members of the producing staff.

THE scenario department has five former Keystone writers, including Albert
Glassmire, who is doing special work;
Henry Wm. Wulze, Walter McNamara,
Anthony Caldwell and Walter Fredericks.
Robert Ross is assistant to Mr. Glassmire.

At the time the Keystone company was taken over by the Triangle, sufficient two-reel Keystone comedies and one-reel Triangle comedies to serve the program until October 1 were made, and the subjects being made at this time will not be released until after that date.

Statements made at the studio by those in charge, are to the effect that comedies will be made on the same plan at this studio, as they were at the former Keystone plant. Especially is this true with respect to cost of production, as no limit has been placed on the amount to be spent on either one or two-reel subjects.

The comedy department of the Triangle will continue for the present at the Hollywood studio, where they are now working, but it is the aim of the management of the Triangle here to merge all producing organizations. By October 1, it was stated at the studio, all will be working at the Cahuenga plant, which is now being materially enlarged. At first it is probable stages one, two and three, and the ones at Inceville or Hartville, will be used for dramatic subjects, and stages four and five for comedy.

WALTER McNAMARA, who for the past six months has been affiliated with the Keystone scenario department as writer, has been added to the staff at the new Keystone studio by Manager of Production Bert Glassmire. Mr. McNamara has been associated with the motion picture industry as producer and writer for the past number of years.

MAY BAGLEY has been placed in charge of the publicity department at the Keystone-Triangle studio with offices in Hollywood, and will work under the supervision of Mr. Woodside, who is Western publicity representative of the Triangle.

E. MASON HOPPER was this week added to the Triangle producing staff and assigned to the direction of a story titled "The Tar-Heeled Warrior," which will have Walt Whitman, character actor, who has been seen in scores of subjects from this plant in the leading role. Whitman will take the part of a Southern army officer. The picture is laid in the days of the late war, and other members of the cast are James McLaughlin, William Shaw and Ann Kroman. The story was written by John Lynch and scenario prepared by J. G. Hawks.

A BAD fire was started in a Dutch village set in the rear of property rooms at the Triangle Culver City studios one day this week, and the expensive structure was badly damaged before the emergency fire department of the studio could extinguish the flames. Director Walter Edwards and Louise Gaum discovered the fire, and total destruction of the set was prevented by their prompt work.

THIS has been a strenuous week for the Triangle Western company, which has Jack Conway as director and Roy Stewart and Belle Bennett as leads, for the company has just finished, making scenes on the Mojave desert. Following this, two days were spent in the desert village, on the ocean front, where two cowboys were injured in the making of one scene. The script provided they should leap from a window in the loft of a barn to their horses below. Roy Stewart, in addition to other players successfully performed the act, but two were injured in the hazardous risk, one now having a broken ankle, and the other suffering from internal injuries.

THE Marjory Wilson Triangle company, directed by Tom Heffron, has arrived home from spending two weeks in the Santa Cruz mountains, where forest region pictures were made.

CHARLES MILLER is leaving the Triangle, where he has directed pictures for the past year, following work as an actor and co-director for more than three years, and upon completion of the subject he is now making with Bessie Love, he will leave for New York to work under the Lewis J. Selznick banner. Mr. Miller will direct Norma Talmadge. In the year Mr. Miller has been directing pictures, he has completed a number of very successful subjects, one of his most recent releases being "The Flame of the Yukon," starring Dorothy Dalton. He now has completed two subjects starring Bessie Love, which will be released shortly.

DIRECTOR J. P. McGOWAN will introduce in the fourth and fifth episode of the Mutual serial, "The Lost Express," a new atmosphere for this class of screen amusement, as the story provides that much of the action shall take place in oil fields. For the final scenes in the fourth release, known under the separate title of "The Oil Well Conspiracy," Miss Holmes rode two oil tank cars through a dwelling 30 x 20 feet in dimension, which were alongside the edge of a track from which the cars were run.

In the fifth episode Director McGowan will introduce scenes made at one of the few oil well fields of the world. These remarkable wells are located near Summerland, Cal. They were drilled from the bottom of the ocean, and the derricks and pumping stations are built on pilings. Scenes needed required that Miss Holmes shall, for the first time in her screen career, don the attire of a deep sea diver, and remain below the surface of the ocean several minutes at a time. The only other oil wells of the kind in the world are located in Australia.

MISS HOLMES was the victim of an unexpected accident this week, when an amateur driver caused another car to collide with her handsome new Jeffery. Miss Holmes' car was badly demolished after being turned completely around in the rear, and the wheel torn off. The actress, aside from a few bruises, was not hurt.

PERHAPS another week will be needed to complete the next Mutual subject which is now holding the attention of the producing organization at the Lone Star studio. Chaplin appears in this as a convict who escapes by swimming out to sea, and is rescued after changing to a swimming suit by a party on a private launch bearing a woman of spirit. What else happens gives the comedian and his giant, Eric Campbell, some new opportunities for comedy creating situations. Miss Edna Purviance, who has been ill for several weeks, is now sufficiently recovered to resume her work at the studio.

PRODUCTION at the Vitagraph studio has been delayed for one reason or another. The William Duncan Company completed filming the picture "The Dead Shot Baker" in shorter time than anticipated, and a wait was necessary for a new story which is being sent out from the eastern office.

The other Triangle Company, under the direction of William Wolbert, is filming a story laid in Peru a half century ago. The script for this provides that Llamas shall be used in a number of exterior scenes, and not only the western organization, but that of the eastern studio of the Vitaphotograph, has been called upon to aid in securing these beasts of burden necessary for true Peruvian atmosphere. When everything was in supposed readiness for the making of a number of Peruvian scenes, the research department of the studio discovered that in the period of the story especially large spurs and stirrups of distinct type were used at the time of the story in Peru, and the technical staff was at once put to work making these necessary props. The subject in production is titled "The Red Prince" with Alfred Vosburgh in the title role and Mary Anderson sharing co-star honors.

DANCING was given on the Vitaphotograph stage Saturday evening, July 21, and the funds secured by the sale of confectionery and various raffles, was donated to the Red Cross Association.

A MYSTERY has been discovered at the Yorke studio for it is impossible to tell who is the leading woman playing opposite Harold Lockwood in "Paradise Garden." Ana Little who was seen in the last subject made at this plant has departed for the east to accept a position there. A large number of actresses have been interviewed and a number were engaged to play in this subject but at no time was it decided which one should play the lead. During the past several days, only scenes which do not require the leading woman were filmed.

The role is that of Marcia Van Wyck, a young woman of the wealthy class of New York City.

Vera Sisson, is in a claim, which will appear in the female Triangle role. Others in the cast are Lester Cuneo, William Clifford and a number of others.

DIRECTOR SCOTT SIDNEY, who has been engaged by President William Parsons of National Pictures Corporation of America, departed this week for Louisiana to select locations in the canebreak district for scenes of the coming production of the National, "Tarzan of the Ape." A company of twenty-six people will leave Los Angeles for Louisiana August 1, the group including technical and photographic staff and leading players who are to take part in the subject. A great number of southern negroes will be used in mob scenes of African jungle life.

BUSINESS MANAGER CHARLES CHRISTIE departed Wednesday for a tour of the east during which time he will visit practically all of the exchanges where handling Christie Comedies. He will also complete negotiations for foreign buyers for European and other markets. Mr. Christie will be absent from the studio several weeks. During his absence players will be given a short vacation as the company now has sixteen weekly releases made ahead.

CHARLES HINCKLE has been engaged by the Corona Cinema Company of Los Angeles to take charge of the sale of their production "The Curse of the slab" which is shortly to be placed on the market, and Mr. Hinckle has departed for the east to supervise this work from New York City. Mr. Hinckle is perhaps one of the best known film men of the industry, having been engaged in various lines of work for the past eight or nine years. He has served as writer, producer, exchange manager, exchange superintendent, and is acquainted with all lines of work pertaining to making and distributing films.

THE Italian-American Picture Company, a California corporation owning several theatres in the San Francisco district, has completed the filming of a six or seven reel subject which has been titled "Pan's Mountain." The photographic work on this was done by Raymond Duham, general manager of the Duham Motion Picture Manufacturing Company of San Francisco, and Mr. Duham will supervise the final release of the subject which will be ready for the market about the first of September.

SEVERAL new subjects were commenced this week. Vivian Martin is at work at the Moropec plant under the direction of Robert Thornby, and William D. Taylor is beginning work on a subject with Jack Pickford and Louise Huff. George Melford and a company headed by Sensie Hayakawa will leave within a day or two for Bear Valley where the exterior scenes of a new subject will be made. The company expect to remain in the mountain region about one week. Following the making of this is that Hayakawa will work under the direction of Wm. C. de Mille, and Melford will direct a subject which will have Wallace Reid as star.

BUSTER COLLIER, son of William Collier the comedian, is expected to arrive in Los Angeles shortly, where he will work at the Moroso studio and direct a subject which will have Jack Pickford and Louise Huff.

The production work on the next Pickford-Arctera subject was delayed this week because Pickford took a vacation, but work will be started Monday on the filming of "The Little Princess" under the direction of Marshall Neilan. The cast is now being selected.

KENNETH McGAFFEY is to supervise the publicity departments of all Paramount Arctera studios on the West Coast. This will include the Lasky, Moroso-Palomitas, Ince and Sennett. Bert Lennon will be in charge of publicity department for the Lasky. Here, Gardner Bradford and Harry Carr will conduct the department for Mack Sennett. Bennie Ziedman will continue as personal publicity writer for Douglas Fairbanks.

The first Julian Eltinge film has been edited and will be given its first studio run this week. It was originally known as "Mrs. Raffles' Career," but will be released as "Countess Charming" or "Doing His Bit."

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, accompanied by Bennie Ziedman, went to Cheyenne, Wyoming, the early part of this week to attend the annual round-up which is held there by the cowboys of the north-west. Many of the best riders and ropers of the cattle country attend this meeting and it is probable Fairbanks will take part in some of the events.

WILLIAM S. HART and Arctera Company are at work on Lookout Mountain making the exteriors for his first subject for this program. Sylvia Bremer, the Australian actress who played with Mr. Hart in the last subject he made for the Triangle, is playing the opposite lead in this so far as players are concerned, but those who are familiar with the script say that neither Hart nor his leading woman have been given an even break by the continuity writer, for the claim is made that "Fritz," Hart's Pinto pony steals the picture. Interiors for this subject are now being built at the Lasky Hollywood studio, but in the future Mr. Hart will work from the plant. It is the intention of the organization to build a small western studio in the foothills near Los Angeles, and in easy access where all exteriors will be filmed.

The title for the next George Walsh subject, which is now in production has been announced as "The Yankee Way." This is referred to as a humorous story by Ralph H. Spence and Ed Sedgewick, and the story play is being directed by Richard Stanton. Enid Markey, who will be remembered as leading woman for a number of Ince Kay-Bee subjects, and whose most recent work was in the soon-to-be-released Corona multiple-reel subject, "The Curse of Eve," has been engaged by the William Fox Company to play opposite Mr. Walsh. Miss Markey will succeed Seena Owen, who was cast to play the leading role in this subject, but illness prevented her completing the work. Plans now made provision that Miss Walsh will next play under the direction of his brother R. A. Script for this photodrama is now being prepared, and work will be commenced as soon as the subjects the brothers are working on are finished.

The several anticipated changes of the comedy department of the William Fox studio were partially made known this week when it was stated at the studio that Henry Pathe Lehrman would supervise the making of all comedies. Plans are now made for Tom Mix to continue at the Fox plant, but he will in the future be supervised by Lehrman. Hank Mann, who has been affiliated with the Fox organization for the past year, is being made director, and a portion of the time serving as director, has completed his contract and severed his connection with the company. Mann has been in California for five years and will leave shortly for the East for an extended vacation with his family.

The comedy output of the William Fox studio will be materially increased, and to make room for this, additional ground has been secured adjoining the Sunshine studio which occupies a portion of the William Fox lot, and has been set for the construction of new stages and other buildings necessary for production.

The high-water mark for number of people employed by the William Fox Studio on one day was reached during the past week, when it is estimated 5,000 were used. Of this number three-fifths were employed for appearance in the Theda Bara "Cleopatra" subject being made by Director J. Gordon Edwards. Five hundred are said to have worked under the direction of R. A. Walsh who is staging a Mexican story, and the remainder was divided between the companies of Director Richard Stanton, C. M. and S. A. Franklin, Tom Mix, Hank Mann, Paul Powell and Charles Parrott.

THIS week the sunken gardens at the home of former Governor Hazard in Los Angeles were used for a number of Roman scenes for the production of "Cleopatra," and inasmuch as the former California executive would not accept payment for the use of the grounds, the William Fox Corporation made a generous donation to the local Red Cross fund through former Governor Hazard.

MISS WANDA PETITTI, who has been seen in a number of subjects made in the eastern studio, arrived in Los Angeles during the week, and is to be starred in subjects made here. At the present time definite arrangements have not been completed with respect to her first subject, or who it will be filmed by.

RICHARD STANTON, with a company including George Walsh, Enid Markey and a number of other Fox players, left Friday for San Diego where they will spend several days filming exterior scenes.

If present plans can be carried out, the first Theda Bara Broadway Production "Cleopatra," will be completed by August 5. The company is this week and a portion of next week, working at the studio where several additional massive interiors have been built. While work is going forward here, a corps of workers are at Balboa Beach building the necessary structures to serve as background for the battle scenes which will be filmed there on August 2 or 3.

Toto the Holm Pathe clown has paid a fine for speeding and is now a full fledged member of the Road Burning Club.
Social note: Beulah Love serves five o'clock tea every afternoon.
Anna Luther is now the owner of a Russian wolf hound.
Peter Schaub is over the telephone prefix of the Los Angeles and New York offices and now that he has learned one is "Boyle," an abbreviation of Boyle Heights, his idea of greeting him when on the phone is "How's your black head?" is not used.

Russel has found it necessary to move his ranch with greater acreage to accommodate the eleven or more dogs he owns.
Bill Hart makes the claim that his pinto pony Fritz, who kicked Bert Lannon both and blue in many spots, is not mean, but instead is "just full of Hell."

Jesse Lasky has forsaken our town for a few weeks to make a trip east and study the salt air of the Atlantic, and see that all kindred scenes are burning on Broadway.

Helen Holmes was seen on location this week wearing a putta-percha kimona, the cause being that the script provided she should go to the bottom of the ocean and prospect for kelp or shells.

Dave Horsley is again putting his American picture company in "running" to try to catch up with the schedule.

"Bernie" Bernstein is to film back to New York again and in the St. Louis "Dubya Nort," a shutout picture, will make "sale of the week" for his company.

Aileen Allen has again made the seals of the w. k. Pacific and has added a second and won additional laurels at the San Francisco Club and at the Chicago Club for diving and swimming contests.

Walter McNamara and Charlie Fair are spending their week ends at the beach. (Fair formerly spelled his name Fuerh, but believing this a German title he changed it to Fair.)

E. Mason and Mrs. Hopper have decided Murial the proper name for their little daughter; it is to be Murial Mason.

Bill Beaudine who directs foil comedy, made an awful kick on trade papers to Hollywood the other day. His gravest charge is that reviewers do not mention his name in the reviews.

The first scene for new Keystone made at the Triangle Key Studio in Hollywood, caused a suspension of work for a day, due to an express train running too fast, as the camera clicked, and a fly perched on the spoon ful of film and disappeared. And for this it is said this is another fly-by-night concern.

One of our matted harem studio couple stopped Reggie Morris and the beautiful Marlin and everything, for too fast, driving, but Reg being a Keystone director is said now to be immune.

Peter Milne and Schmid of the well known eastern suburb of the motion picture industry, paid a visit to Hollywood headquarters. Much entertaining was necessary thereto, because they are fellow craftsmen, and consequently to use an expression of Milne editor of Longeye Lampoo, "News are scarce."

Pioneer Pictures is to be incorporated in the studio under the present name. The original stockholders are Howard MacGregor and Herrick Fiske.

The Paramount Theatre in Los Angeles is now playing the latest in the "Wee-Waste" series of short subjects.

The new Billy Bevan picture for the Theda Bara company is being prepared at the Fairbanks studio.

Studio reports of the week are that Pola Negri fans are growing in very substantial manner.

Walter Ray learn of the film of the week, as "The Woman of the West," and is to star in the film next week.

The latest from the city is that Billy Bevan is to star in the new Theda Bara picture, "The Woman of the West."
SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Souls Adrift"

(Repless-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

P EERLESS-WORLD'S late vehicle for Ethel Clayton, "Souls Adrift," tells a story in a way that will please any audience. Patrons will leave the theatre satisfied. The story is one that you might expect from the pen of Robert Louis Stevenson or it might be a "Robinson Crusoe" brought up to date. There is a touch of the adventurous given this production that never fails to please when properly blended in a photoplay.

The scenes with the exception of one or two taken aboard a yacht, are all exteriors. The "location" man could not have used better judgment. He has balanced the scenes with the story with the result that a picture has been produced which any exhibitor may book and be assured that his patrons will acquiesce in his selection. The action moves fast. The suspense element is well sustained. There is no unnecessary explanation by way of long drawn-out scenes. The two principal characters are faithfully impersonated by Ethel Clayton as Elma Raybourne, and Milton Sills as Micah Steele. The supporting cast meets every situation with ability.

Andrew Soutar wrote the story. The main idea has been used before. A nevness, however, is reflected in its—superstructure. The author has made the incident of the two being marooned on an uninhabited island secondary in interest to the events which shape themselves before and after. Nor does he leave the impression that the two were marooned for the sole reason of having events shape themselves as they do. In short, there is a naturalness about it all that appeals. There are one or two incidents which the director has seen fit to have occur, which are highly improbable, but these are merely incidents and will be overlooked.

The one, for instance, where the girl shoots Steele for entering the hut. It is not likely that when two are marooned on an island, one will shoot the other because the other died of convulsion. The author could have made-way with his character of the Swede sailor with a little less of the murderous aspect. The lathing scene was obviously inserted for effect. The camera work is well done. John Davidson, Frank de Vernon and Walter James do well in the supporting cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ambrose Raybourne (Frank de Vernon), a millionaire, takes a party of friends on a yachting trip. There is much carrying. Elma Raybourne (Ethel Clayton), daughter of the millionaire, is not in sympathy with the manner in which her father and his guests are conducting themselves. Mabberly Todd (John Davidson) treats Elma as his future wife. She is annoyed and goes on deck. Micah Steele (Milton Sills), second engineer, happens on deck. He saves Alma from the drunken insults of Todd. There is an explosion. Micah gets Elma and two natives into a life boat. They are tossed about for days. The natives crazed by thirst drown themselves. Elma and Steele are cast on a deserted island. Steele, who is a mechanic and engineer, has been ruined by Elma's father. Elma feared him. He tells her the reason why he is revengeful. They spend many days on the island. Elma shuns Steele. He saves her from an attack by a pirate. Because of the wrongs her father had done him and because of his kindness toward her, she forgets the fear and they come to a better understanding.

"A Kiss for Susie"

(Pallas-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY F. R. OLSEN

W ITHOUT plot or plan, in fact with nothing but a picture of the ill effects engendered through the sudden acquisition of wealth, "A Kiss for Susie" makes a big bid for popularity. The theme is old, but dressed anew, and though it is shown without furbelows of any kind, it carries its lesson forcibly.

Jim Nolan, Sr., (Franklyn Farnum), is a rock cliff and is fatally injured. Clump, near death, confesses the murder, signing a death-bed confession to free Duncan, whose whereabouts the sister did not know. Kate starts on horseback with the confession to reach the court a hundred miles away. Howie (Paul C. Hurst) to get a horse to take the place of one killed by the troops in pursuit. The girl by the horse is thrown and badly hurt and cannot continue the race to save her brother. Stingaree (True Boardman) appears in the

A very pretty little love story runs through the entire theme. Vivian Martin, demure and pretty as the proverbial picture, carries herself exquisitely; her every move is natural and homelike and she will doubtless prove a prime favorite with any audience.

The photoplay throughout is clearly defined, the exteriors particularly so, and the picture itself, which is by Harvey Thew, from the story of Paul West, cannot fail to make a hit.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The Nolan family, Jim Nolan, Sr., Lizzie Nolan (Pauline Perry), Jim Nolan, Jr. (Jack Nelson), and Susie are all (with the exception of Susie), awaiting the death of a rich relative in Australia, and in the interim go on working, some complainingly, some wearily and apparently only one happily. The expected arrives, so with $50,000 they put on airs, entertain lavishly, though foolishly, and Susie fearing for her father's welfare seeks out a brokerage firm, explains her case and prevails upon the head of the house to get her father to invest in "Wildcat preferred." The "bust" comes and Nolan goes back to bricklaying.

But to this story of Jack Phil Burnham (Tom Forman), son of head of the contractor's firm employing Nolan, determined to learn the business before entering the firm, sees and falls in love with Susie. He is a hodcarrier, and meets her when she brings her father's dinner to the job. But when the wealth descends upon the Nolans, Lizzie and young Jim treat Phil as a fortune-hunter until they both back in their same quarters. When Phil returns and offers Nolan his bricklaying job back and tells who he is, Susie realizes that in spite of all that has happened Phil really loves her and the two are happy.

"An Order of the Court"

Episode of "The Further Adventures of Stingaree"

(Kalem-General Film—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY R. M. JOHNSON

W ITH the first flash real outdoor action begins in this Stingaree episode. On through the two reels there is not a dull second. The plot is good enough for a five-reel drama leading up to an excellent climax.

It is doubtful if there is anything better in two-reel pictures than these episodes in "The Further Adventures of Stingaree." If the speed of the little plays—for such they are—is to be attributed to the cutting then Kalem has a man with artistic ideas on the job.

The script, and the scenario also, it is said, are written by E. W. Hornung, who wrote "Raffles." The Stingaree episodes, as a whole, so far, are even better than the book. Paul C. Hurst is the director.

A section of the picture-viewing public will not be pleased with the glory that is spread over the character of Stingaree—an outlaw and bushranger. But to the average man Stingaree represents the inevitable in sparsely settled and poorly policed frontier country like the "bush" of Australia. His exploits and especially his charitable appeal in spite of one's better sense.

In this particular episode Stingaree charges into a court, dung the constables who are seeking to arrest him, this to save the life of an innocent man as a favor to his sister. He stands up the court, with the help of his friend, Howie, and when the constables finally gain ascendency, the judge himself intercedes for Stingaree and lets him escape. It may be illogical, but it is real action and has a genuine" punch" and expresses an original idea. Not as much can be said for most picture-plays shown nowadays.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ray Duncan (Tom Walsh) is falsely accused of murder, and put on trial. His sister Kate (Edythe Sterling) aids the man really guilty, Clump, Bill Morgan, and Elma. The jury is a rock cliff and is fatally injured. Clump, near death, confesses the murder, signing a death-bed confession to free Duncan, whose whereabouts the sister did not know. Kate starts on horseback with the confession to reach the court a hundred miles away. Howie (Paul C. Hurst) to get a horse to take the place of one killed by the troops in pursuit. The girl by the horse is thrown and badly hurt and cannot continue the race to save her brother. Stingaree (True Boardman) appears in the nick of time, and he and Howie ride to the court and free Duncany as the jury files in with its death-verdict. It is to the house of Mother Maloney (Mrs. Hattie Williams) the injured girl, Kate, is carried.

"The Streets of Illusion"
(Astra-Pathé—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"THE STREETS OF ILLUSION," from the Astra Studios, released by Pathé, contains a mixture of fact and fancy as its title would imply. The exhibitor whether he be in the city or town can book this feature with Gladys Hulette in the principal role, and know beforehand that his patrons will leave his theatre not merely satisfied but with the feeling that they would have missed something if they had not seen this feature. With the exception of an occasional flash of dramatic strength, the story is taken up almost entirely with the home life of a little girl whose world is confined to a boarding house in Washington Square. It is a typical Gladys Hulette feature.

Practically all the action takes place in a boarding house. There are only a few exterior "shots." There is no preface to lavishness in production. The author has penned a simple, appealing story and it is presented on the screen in a simple, appealing way. Miss Hulette is in the foreground in every scene. Nor does this mean that she is "over-played." Miss Hulette, as mistress of a boarding house, knows that she should be at all times in evidence, especially when the rent falls due, and she is. She presides at the "head of the table" with all the confidence of youth and after her household duties are completed she brings a little sunshine into the life of her father who is blind and who has sent his only son to the aid of his country.

The story, without Miss Hulette, would be slight. She endows it with a vital spirit and makes a means to the end, the author has desertion from the army a very trifling affair but it serves the purpose, makes a blind father happy, a man of a coward, and a little girl the happiest person in Washington Square. It is a feature that the exhibitor may run to the satisfaction of his patrons who will "go over" in any community. William Parke, Jr., who has been in chief support of Miss Hulette in most of her productions, is given a role that he portrays with feeling. He is not much in evidence but the little he does is done well. Richard Barthelmess, in the role of Donald Morton, screens well and gives evidence of unusual ability as a juvenile. J. H. Gilmour, Wood Row and Doris Grey among others are effective. Mr. Gil-mour gives a good characterization. William P. Burt, in a minor role, deserves honorable mention.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Beam (Gladys Hulette) lives with her father (J. G. Gilmour) and her brother (William Parke, Jr.), in Washington Square. Her father is blind. He is the brother's rival for her country-try. He is a coward and deserts. She loves her father, of the bravery of his son. Donald Morton (Richard Barthelmess), a wealthy young man, meets Beam. Donald's father is one of these persons who believes he is always sick. He goes to the boarding house conducted by Beam and rents a room. His whole life is changed by Beam's sunny disposition.

One night while she is reading to her father of the brave explorits of her brother, the door opens, and the brother enters, havings deserted. She conceals her brother. She is attacked by one of the boarders and the brother rescues her. The father hears his voice. She tells him that his son has come on a furlough.
Donald sends Beam and her brother's sweethearts to the other.
She tells him that he is a new boarder. The Colonel of her brother's regiment visits Beam's father. He conceals the fact of the son's desertion from him, knowing that it would make him unhappy. The son returns with the Colonel. Donald learns that the new boarder is Beam's brother and there is happiness all round.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray"
(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

SIR ARTHUR WING PINERO'S "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," is an English production, released by Vitagraph.
From the standpoint of dramatic action and personnel of its cast it is a picture that no exhibitor can overlook if he would give his patrons a real, worthwhile drama. It smacks of artistry in every respect, with the possible exception of the interior sets used.
These are distinctly English, as we would expect. From an Englishman's viewpoint, these two are artistic, but to Americans who are accustomed to the technique which only the American director can command, there is something new. The "Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is an excellent pictured drama, its featured parts presented by capable artists. It is to be hoped that Sir George Alexander and Hilda Moore will be seen again before the camera. Its title would suggest to those who read "between the lines" that there is the element of the risque contained. There isn't—its suggested, if anything, but in a most delicate manner. The one who did the continuity is not mentioned on the program. He should have been. It is done with a finesse that seldom graces a scenario. The scenarist, it is true, had the great advantage of having the creation of a Pinero to separate and put together again for the screen. He had only to apply the basic principles of scenarist's technique. He had nothing to supply to fill gaps. The dramatic action was all there waiting only to be arranged for the screen.

There is no comedy relief. This fact will be noticeable to all American audiences for it is seldom that either the stage or screen dramatist, ever pens a work that hasn't a touch of com-ey given it. If the dramatist in this the producer or director will supply it. The absence of it in Vitagraph's release does not work a detriment. It rather enhances its value as the usual on the screen. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is far too serious a dramatic offering, to have the least of its footages as an afterthought comedy. Comedy relief is not expected. It would be out of place.

Sir George Alexander is an actor—an artist. He leaves nothing undone and overdoes no one action. He screens well and is impressive. Hilda Moore is excellent. Mary Rorke does fine.

"The Story and Players"

Aubrey Tanqueray (Sir George Alexander) is unhappy with his wife whose austerity and coldness has kept them apart. Their only child (Mary Rorke), is sent when quiet, young, to a convent.
The mother dies soon after. The father is left alone. Paula (Hilda Moore), the second Mrs. Tanqueray, comes into his life.
Paula has a past and of this Tanqueray is aware. She divorces her husband, and Aubrey and she are married. The daughter comes home from the convent, a grown woman, to brighten the life of her father, whom she thinks alone. The daughter is cold and austere like her mother, and resents her step-mother's offers of kindness. His friends are unconfidential companions for the "second" Mrs. Tanqueray. Her husband's quiet life is irksome to her.

The daughter goes to Paris with friends of her father. His wife resents her going. She intercepts the daughter's letters to her father. The daughter comes home and announces that she is engaged to an army officer. Not until the wife and the daughter's future husband meet do they recognize in each other friends of the past. The daughter divines it all and returns on her father's wife in rage. The wife confesses to Tanqueray, goes to her room and ends it all in death.

"The Spy"
(Fox—Six Reels)
REVIEWED BY WILLIAM REISSMAN ANDREWS

Spy," issued by William Fox as a special production.
The subject will not only appeal through its timeliness, but on its merits as a highly dramatic offering. The action is sustained at grIPPING tension from the flash of the first reel to the end of the picture. Such an extreme and constant tension generally taxes the credulity of exhibitors who have viewed pictures recommended with unqualified praise, only to find that the claim was prompted by an exaggerated personal enthusiasm. But "The Spy," revealing Dustin Farnum at his best, deserves all the commendation it receives. It was directed by Richard Stanton.

The picture is a melodrama, in the good sense, and maintains the interest of the spectator from start to finish beyond peradventure.
Plot and counter plot shuttle through the story to a thrilling denouement, and by avoiding a "happy ending," the author, George Bronson-Howard, has succeeded in making the story seem logical and convincing. A love interest heightens the effect of the pursuit running through the plot, like a tight wire on a sensitive stringed instrument, ready to respond to the slightest touch.
The theme of the picture is the menace of the German spy system in this country and the danger of important information reaching our enemies from the activities of men, because of their standing here can gain access to military secrets without detection.
The display of self-sacrificing patriotism by the hero, a member of the idle rich who suddenly sees the light of duty shine through the murky of a contemplated, aimless life, thrills the spectator with lovely sentiments. The example of Mark Quaintance, played by Farnum with the emotion of a man who is living the part, will be the means of inspiring all the patriotic feeling of any one who is not deaf to the influences of a strong play appealing to his sense of duty. It must be conceded that any screen offering which is also a play is not, in its chief purpose is merely entertainment, is an exceptional picture.

The cast is an excellent one. Winifred Kingston as Greta Glaim, the secret agent in the employ of the German government who falls in love with the man she is set to entrap, renders a pleasing characterization of a difficult role. William Burruss as the chief of the German secret service, makes a sinister character convincing and plays the part with energy. Howard Gaye is seen to good advantage as the Baron Von Bergen. William E. Lowry as The Shadow makes the role appear in a "a good light."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Mark Quaintance, the member of a patriotic society that does nothing but discuss the war as an academic question, with the feeling that it is far removed from them personally, is suddenly put on his mettle by an army officer who is trying to arouse the idlers to a sense of the grave danger besetting their country from the activities of German spies.

The General tells him that there are a thousand men in this country, in high places, who are constantly transmitting secret intelligence to the enemy, and that someone should go to Berlin and try to obtain a list of these traitors. Mark volunteers. A spy in the club warns Berlin of the mission undertaken by the young American. A beautiful girl, Gretta Glaim (Winifred Kingston) is told to go abroad on the same boat and institute herself into the confidence of the German spy.

The girl soon looks upon the young man as something more than an enemy that must be trapped through her wiles, and rebels at the task set for her by the secret service chief, Von Wittschaft (William Burruss) but pressure is brought to bear on the wavering girl and she continues, under protest, the distasteful mission. Quaintance, after seeing the American Ambassador (Charles Clary) decides to enter the office of the German secret agent chief on the night of an official ball and obtain by stealth a book which he learned during an interview with Wittschaft—who offered him a barony if he would go back to America and act as a spy—contained a thousand names of men, high in social and commercial life, who were in the secret employ of the German government, in America.

While in the house of Wittschaft, Quaintance is astonished to find Gretta Glaim. Presently sounds outside the house warn them of the return of the chief of the secret service, and the girl decides to help Quaintance to get the precious book to the Ambassador. Although he is placed in the company of the receiver of the book, apprehended by the police. Mark after a desperate battle against odds, in which he disarms and wounds some of the soldiers sent to arrest him, is taken into custody. He is put to the torture to compel him to reveal the destination of the book containing the names of the American spies, but his iron will cannot be broken by the terrible means taken by the Germans to wring his secret from him. The girl is equally heroic in not breaking down under her agony. When the offer of a pardon for both is refused if they will tell who received the fatal book, they are shot by a squad of soldiers.

"The Garden of Allah"

(Selig—Nine Parts)

REVIEWS BY WILLIAM J. MCGRATH

ROBERT HICHS's famous story has always been synonymous with something stupendous. The story itself was. The first attempt to film it on the screen was to be made by the Selig Polyscope Company and they have produced something wonderful Oriental romance, it is stupendous plus. I have enjoyed it on the screen more than the stage. The possibilities for visualizing the story are more and just now at the Colonial in Chicago, where it is getting its initial showing, it is utilizing in particular scenes, herewith record-breaking terrific weather existing. It is being shown there under the direction of the Edmund Allen Film Corporation, who have purchased the right for it in eight states.

Not an opportunity was lost by the Selig Company, its director and technical department, to take advantage of making this as much and even more of a classic on the screen than it has ever been in any other manner of presentation. It is faithful to the nth detail. All of its fidelity and Cole Campbell, who directed it, has reaped a foundation for his fame and craft that will hold him aloft for many a day.

Thomas Santachi and Helen Ware in the lead roles have likewise showed their previous high reputations as screen artists up many more notches. As Boris Androvsky, the monk who wandered from his vocation stands out as a scintillation that lights the whole picture. Miss Ware's delineation of Domini Enfilden, seeking and lustying peace, is colorful and self-supporting.

The other great charm of the picture, aside from its story, the work of the cast, etc., and one that dare not be passed over here is its beauty of color and scene. Picturesque becomes a feasible word even though a housed one in varying Oriental splendor. For here is Oriental splendor multiplied. The desert and its hot and still nights, sandstorms, Moorish mosques, bazaars, bakesheesh and beggars; the wild dancing spectacle-like Bedouins, the scene in the Garden and a score and one of other high lights so naturally and realistically reproduced that it cannot help rival the popularity of the original play.

Mr. Santachi and Miss Ware, however luminary they are in this picture, have their satellites, and worthy ones, too. There is Will Machin as Captain Crevignac; James Bradbury as the Sand Diviner; Harry Lonsdale as Father Roubier; Matt Snyder as Count Anteoni and others. Accompanying the picture, the Coleridge is an augmented orchestra of ability who add to the charm of the whole with music that has been especially composed to garnish the picture.

"Skinner's Baby"

(K-E-S-E (Enterac)—Five Reels)

REVIEWS BY JOSEPH S. KELLEY

BRYANT WASHBURN is seen in another "Skinner" subject, "Skinner's Baby." There is the same natural tendency to portray the human instinct that is seen in all of Mr. Washburn's pictures. He and Honey "act natural." They never lose sight of the fact that they are enacting very human parts. This comedy drama would meet with all approval if there were more of the man scene, to our story. His direction of these two "Skinner" subjects are examples of painstaking, careful work in the studio. The continuity is done with careful attention paid to the technique of the scene drama. There are no gaps to be jumped in our imagination. There are no long, drawn-out scenes which one might expect from a subject with so slight a plot. Every scene advances one more step toward the ultimate end—the realization of Skinner's wish. The climax is reached with a surprise for all. Well sustained suspense could not be expected but the director has arrived at the climax with a surprise even though his audiences have been given a "sure thing" from the start. Skinner's Baby has been well done from all angles. The work of Mr. Washburn is remarkable in its simplicity and perfect naturalness. He could not have lived the part with a greater or less display of emotion. He never "over-acts." In fact he doesn't "act" at all. He is natural and to this fact the "Skinner" subjects owe much of their popularity. Hazel Daly is all that could be expected. She, like Mr. Washburn, lives in the present and U. K. Houpt are in support. The cameraman did good work.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Skinner (Bryant Washburn) realizes that there is something lacking in his home. The head bookkeeper at the office announces one morning that he is the proud father of a bouncing boy. This announcement cuts short the talk of Skinner to thinking. Soon afterwards, Honey (Hazel Daly), his wife, confides her great secret. It is to be a boy. Great preparations are made for the arrival. He is to be named, William Skinner, Jr., and he is to be President, someday—in short he is to be the most wonderful man. Skinner is at the office when he is notified that he had "better come home." He rushes out and after a series of misfortunes, arrives home. But “William” Skinner, Jr., is a girl. Honey and Skinner come to the conclusion that the first one should be a girl, anyway.

“Jack and the Beanstalk”
(Fox Special Feature—Ten Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

“JACK AND THE BEAN STALK” will prove as strong an item for the older generation as it does for the kids. In its second week at the Globe theatre, it has given rise to much favorable comment. It is indeed an attraction that will be received with an enthusiastic welcome which could be induced only by the presentation in pictures of a theme that has served a magnificent purpose down through the ages. The children will enjoy every scene. The older viewer, attracted by curiosity and once attracted will be held spellbound by the revelation on the screen.

The play was produced under the direction of C. M. and S. A. Franklin. Mary Murilla made the adaptation. The producer has left nothing undone to make the screen presentation as wonderful as to the child. That interest for all. The Messrs. Franklin understand children—their likes and dislikes. They understand the true intent of the story. They have shown it by the reproduction on the screen. They have handled a small army of children without the registration of a faulty move from any. It is difficult to appreciate what this means. To direct hundreds of children, most of whom are under the age of ten years, before the camera without a touch of consciousness entering into their actions, is the work of a master. With the exception of the Giant, Blunderbore and the Giantess, there is not a “grown-up” in the picture. The court scene in the village of Cornwall is enacted by children and there is evidence of such dramatic ability on the part of all who took part. The scene is as impressive as seasoned actors and actresses could have made it.

This Fox production represents an original turn in the road leading to new and greater things in the art of motion pictures, and certainly it represents originality in the way of entertainment for the children. Their fondest expectations have been gratified. Even their conception of the miniature village of Cornwall has been reproduced in all its wonders. “Long shots” taken from an elevation disclose a wondrous work of artistry in revealing the village of Cornwall. And when the “close-up” is employed, so fasci- nating, into the miniature bungalows, that the children will see it are to be closely watched, else they will run down the aisles of the theatre and seek entrance to the ideal play house. First and foremost have come the children in the thoughts of the director. It is essentially a children’s feature and there is not the child who will not thoroughly enjoy every foot of its ten reels. The little actors, in their dresses, and to these destinations even though their names haven’t been in electric lights on Broadway, enter into the spirit of the play with all the ability of stars. Francis Carpenter, as Jack, is the “boy of the hour,” and his teammate, Virginia Lee Corbin, possesses all the dignity of a little queen and expresses emotions with the artistic touch of a “Drama Reel” star. Ralph Radcliffe (Victor Starkweather) draws his “mustache, grates his “teeth, shakes his “fist and says “the blaggard” with a meaning that only the screen’s most villainous villain could express.

“The Crystal Gazer”
(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

“The CRYSTAL GAZER,” Paramount’s late release from the Lasky studios, featuring Fannie Ward, cannot be favorably compared in dramatic terms with some others in which Miss Ward has been starred—“The Cheat” for example. But because of its unusual appeal, having as it has, hypnotism as the basic principle for its plot, it should be a good headline for the exhibitor’s program.

The story is by Eve Unsell and Edna Riley. Marian Fairfax did the continuity. The authors have made a brave attempt to give Miss Ward an opportunity to duplicate the struggle scene of “The Cheat,” in which Miss Ward co-starred with Sessee Hayakawa. The story itself is wholly unlike that of “The Cheat” excepting that one cannot help but be impressed with the similarity of the camera work of these two pictures—“The Crystal Gazer” is one of those pictures which will have a good following because it is unique in every respect. The picture calls for the “double exposure” in more than half of its footage and this has been done by experts. The director, George H. Milford and the camera man collaborated with fine results.

The initial reel is given over to what might be termed a prologue. The scenes in this reel show life in all its squalidness. They could have been eliminated with better results and the story which ‘they tell could have been set forth in one or more sub-titles to a better advantage. Scenes laid in such squalid surroundings are always told better in word than picture, unless the director is producing a melodramatic F of the wretched life. This has a touch of the melodramatic but it is essentially dramatic.

Miss Ward, despite the unnaturalness of the characters she is called upon to present, interprets them faithfully and with meaning. As Norma, the sister who has been engaged by Calisto, the hyn- tost, as a subject for his hypnotic powers, she is called upon for strong dramatic action and she doesn’t fail. As Rose, the other sister, who has been reared in luxury, she can be her more natural self. Mr. Melford allowed the fire to burn too long a time before he had Miss Ward arouse herself. She never could have escaped alive from such a fire. Jack Dean presents the role of the hypnotist convincingly. Dick Alden is good.

Mutual Film

"Mutual Tours, No. 39." (Gaumont. One reel. Tues., July 31.)—Fine, clear photography marks this interesting real just as strongly as any of its predecessors, and Market on an island of the same name is the first spot treated. This picturesque old village is shown in all its phases—the canals, the industries and famous old Le Grande Chateaux. Monastery and Convent and the bridge of St. Bruno, named after the founder of the monastery. This is followed by a trip to Majorca, an island in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Spain, where are shown the habits, pastimes and industries of the natives. These reels besides being intensely entertaining have a great educational value, and should be well received anywhere.

"Reel Life, No. 66." (Gaumont. One reel. Thurs., Aug. 2.)—The manufacture of machine guns is given prime honors in this reel, and the process, from the beginning to the final test is portrayed in all its detail; the making of beads from rose petals in California is also shown, as is also shown the artificial manufacture of the same. The process is interesting and well handled. It is a real reel for the boys; in this case it was a billiard table and the desired results follow. An animated cartoon, "Preparedness," from Life, completes the reel.

Christie Comedies

"Down by the Sea." (Christie Comedy. One reel.)—This single reel is brimming with rare comedy, and features Betty Compson and Harry Lewis. The latter, though married, is a desperate flirt, and when confronted by his wife cavorting with a bevy of beauties on the beach, he declares he could not beat them off with a club. She, therefore, hires three men to make love to her, which they do much to her husband's disgust, but her tactics bring him to terms. This is a good reel and will produce good results.

"He Fell on the Beach." (Christie Comedy. One reel.)—This reel is just a single shot of a straw boat being flung into the air, the water. It is not a comedy, but makes a diverting little reel for any purpose.

"Almost a Scandal." (Christie Comedy. One reel.)—A story of a young girl's heart being sought by two young men, each of whom try to outshine the other for the honor. The story evolves around a stolen pair of trousers, and there are some ludicrous situations portrayed. It is full of genuine humor and will go well anywhere.

$1.00 Imported French $1.00 each Condensers
Munchus—Big-Convex

For years I have been America's largest and most renowned importers of the world's famous Genô France and American-made lens condensers. I have firmly established this condenser in every particular operating booth in America. Recently, however, we have decided to sell these condensers at actual cost witho-out the usual $1.00 to $2.00 mark-up. As a result, our entire stock has been clearly reduced, saving us from $5.00. We have decided to sell these condensers at actual cost, so that every one who is interested in the really fine, truly economical condenser will be able to take advantage of the opportunity. We guarantee that your money will be refunded if not satisfied with the best grade of glass on earth.

July for Instance

We never did want a sky-rocket business.

(A sky-rocket is all right while it lasts, but pretty soon there's nothing left but the stick.)

What we wanted, was a business that would grow and grow and keep on growing.

So we started right—with a Machine so designed and built that it would project motion pictures better, and continue to do that longer than any other.

Some said: "That Machine is too good. It isn't possible to build so good a Machine and sell it at a price that competes with ordinary Projectors."

But we did both.
And the results were remarkable.

July, for instance.

We filled no unusually big orders during the month.

Yet it was the biggest July we ever had.

More than that. It was the biggest month in the history of our business.

Of course that tickles us. Tangible results from earnest effort are always gratifying.

But it is of interest to you, too. The Machine that wins out in a quality fight, in the face of all kinds of competition, will be a mighty big asset to you.

If you don't know the Simplex Distributor in your territory, we'll give you his name and address. And if you haven't a copy of Catalog "E" we'll mail you one.

People don't take to pictures that shake; but Simplex projection, they think "simply perfection."

Film Inspection

"S"UPPOSE that this letter will bring me a good one back, but let her come. It seems to me that you and your Anti-Misframe Club are asking the operators to do the work of the exchanges. Free of charge. And I for one am dead against it as I consider that an operator has enough to do without cutting film. About ninety days ago I received a five-reel feature that I honestly do not think had been inspected for a month. Now, according to your club, I should have spent about two hours repairing this. So far so good I did just that thing. But I made up my mind that the exchange would also do a little work on said film. HOLD YOUR HANDS UP IN HOLY HORROR. I did some more work that night before returning it. That feature left me in fourteen pieces. A little note went along with it, also some of the patches. What happened, I got an awful roast from the manager of the exchange, and I went right back and told him that if they did not inspect features sent out they would get it back the same way. That was ninety days ago, and I have not made a patch in one of their features since. I believe in fighting with their own weapons. If you receive it out of shape to run, fix it up, but send it back in as many pieces as you were compelled to put patches in."

The letter quoted above brings out certain points which can be advantageously discussed at this time.

The league is in no way intended to take the place of exchange inspection of film or to do other exchange "dirty work." It is rather our aim to force the exchange to do the work which it should for its own preservation and the good of the industry perform. True, the operators who have joined the Anti-Misframe League, have pledged themselves to send all film out of their theatre in the best possible condition—in fact in better condition than they received it. This is for the good of the industry and temporarily may result in the exchangent being relieved of some of his legitimate work.

If, however, the entire plan is carried out as we hope it will be, this condition will last but a very short time.

We know the condition of film in its various stages of dilapidation and we know that oftentimes it is absolutely impossible for the operator to give a decent show no matter how much time he spends in patching and repairing. How can this condition be done away with?

The answer is very simple. An operator here and an operator there will be absolutely useless. However, a trade paper being continually in touch with the head offices of the film companies can bring these matters to the attention of the parties in authority, providing the operators and theatre owners, who are receiving this disgraceful service, will only co-operate with the Anti-Misframe League and send in their complaints promptly, naming the exchange and the picture, as well as the name of the exchange manager with whom they are having trouble. This matter will be taken up immediately with the proper people at the home office by the Anti-Misframe League with the result that it will not be long before the various exchanges are forced by those higher up to keep up a respectable Inspection Department.

This inspection is not only due the theatre men who pay rental for film which is supposed to be in good condition, but is also due the public who come to see the pictures, for unless they see a picture in which the story is clear, it is not going to be long before they lose interest entirely in pictures. At the Chicago convention the work of the Anti-Misframe League was taken up with exhibitors from every part of the country, every one of whom were most enthusiastic over it. It was agreed generally that something must be done to improve the condition of the film.

It is our hope that every member of the league will take the matter up personally with the manager of his house and that together or individually they will communicate with us as to the exact conditions in their territory, in order that we may lay the foundation for the ultimate elimination of the serious conditions which are so prevalent today.

E. K. GILLET.
Operators Can Join Local 306 for $6.25

LOCAL 306, Motion Picture Machine Operators' Union of Greater New York, announce that for a period of three months they will receive the applications of prospective members free of charge. The usual initiation fee of twenty-five dollars. The fee, formerly fifty dollars, has been a serious drawback to some of the operators in the Greater City who have been desirous of affiliating with a "union" of their craft, and in some quarters it has been said that the "large initiation fee" was an attempt to discriminate against some of those who had not joined the union. This, the writer wishes to most emphatically deny; there has been no attempt on the part of Local 306 or its officers to discriminate against any motion picture operator working under the jurisdiction of the above named local union. Any motion picture operator, holding a New York license and residing in Greater New York, who makes application for membership and passes the necessary examination as to his fitness, will be accepted into membership for the sum of twenty-five dollars.

Those who find it imposes too great a hardship on them to pay the entire initiation fee in a lump sum, are offered a special inducement whereby they can become "union" men for as small a payment as six dollars and twenty-five cents. This should be investigated by every non-union operator in Greater New York. Full particulars can be obtained at the office of Local 306, 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York City.

Remember, this offer expires November 31. EVERY MOTION PICTURE OPERATOR SHOULD BELONG TO THE UNION, AND NOW IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME, FOR I HAVE BEEN INFORMED THAT THIS OFFER WILL NOT BE MADE AGAIN.

To Clean Lenses

H. P. O'Day, South Carolina, writes thusly: "Have read in your department, I believe, where an operator should never use alcohol for the purpose of cleaning lenses. If not that what is the best way to clean them? Would be thankful for an early reply either by mail or through the department."

In Reply: I do not believe that there is room enough in any operating room to keep alcohol, and far from being a "cleaner," alcohol is a destroyer of lenses, or what practically amounts to the same, as it fogs the lenses and by reason of a film forming on the surface of the glasses prevents the lens from giving the results which it is intended for. The best method of cleaning projection lenses that have become "fogged" by reason of oil having been scattered over their surface, is to take the lens apart and using a solution of muriatic acid and water with which to wash them. In a small, shallow, china dish (a butter pat will do) place about a tablespoonful of water; add to this a few drops of muriatic acid, and with a small piece of cotton wrapped around a toothpick saturated with this solution carefully wash the surface of the lenses, then dry and polish with a soft handkerchief or piece of chamois skin, taking care that you rub each lens in the same direction, and that the acid solution does not touch any part of the lens jacket or tube. This will positively clean the lens without fogging it.

From Brother Pastre

A POSTAL card received from Brother Pastre, the originator of the Anti-Misframe League, and which reads as follows, is printed for the consideration of those who have not as yet joined the league: "Dear Brother Sherman:—Something tells me that the first 1,000 names you get will be a list of the thousand best operators in the United States and Canada. Regards. (Signed) Pastre."

Comment.—Well, brother, I hope that whoever or whatever "told you so" will be proven correct. At least the first 1,000 members of the league will show by their progressiveness that they mean to be THE BEST.

When any new movement, such as the league, is launched much time is required to wake the boys up sufficiently so that they will "enlist." Fortunately, however, the response to our appeal for members has met with greater success than we had dared hope for, proving that the operators as a whole are not "slackers." While the registration this week numbers a few more names than we had last week, it is not as large as we expected. Perhaps this is due to the extreme heat of the past week, and that with cooler weather the Roll of Honor will be swamped by those desires of co-operating with us and making the league an instrument of great good for both exhibitors and operators, as well as the exchange men. Let us see if we cannot raise our "army of 1,000 members" before the regular theatrical season again opens.

National Anti-Misframe League

Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating room, I promise, that I will, to the best of my ability, return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Shutters and "Ratio"

C. J., Cleveland, 0., asks: "Will you be kind enough to answer my questions? (I will try.—Ed.) Now most operators say the shutter should set at the point where the light rays cross or at the narrowest point, in my case that would be eight inches from the lens, so you see the shaft is not long enough. Would it be possible to have the rays cross at a point nearer the lens, say about three inches from the lens, by changing the condenser combination? At present I use a 6½ and 7½ condenser, the picture is 15 feet and the throw 95 feet, the lens is about a 6-inch focus. I have tried by moving the lamp house back as far as it would go, but it does not seem to make any difference in the resultant light ray in front of the lens. (2) What is the meaning of ratio of the intermittent movement, and how do you figure it out on the machine? Now if you will answer me I would be very..."
The Candid Opinion OF AN Experienced Operator

TEMPLE THEATRE
Galt, Ontario, Canada

June 29th, 1917.

Some time ago I had some correspondence about your Hold-Ark Carbons. You will remember, no doubt, sending me carbons for a test and requesting my opinion, which I gave you. Now, a few remarks added may not be out of place at this late day.

I have used Hold-Ark Carbons, 3/4" top and 1/4" negative bottom for the past several months and can candidly say their equal is not or never has been produced for a picture machine arc lamp, and I have used every known European and American-made carbon in twenty-one years' experience handling picture machines.

If the operators who use these carbons will take the trouble to place them on top of their lamp house for a day or two ahead of using them, they will find that they work even better, as they may be a little green with moisture in the core, and, as you know, the drier they are the steadier the flow. However, we never have a flicker, flutter, splutter or waver to the light—night after night the same steady, snow white light on the screen, and that is every operator's big ambition. I fail to see why any other carbons are used at all, as none are in the same class as Speer Hold-Arks.

Use any part or all of this letter if it will help to enlighten operators or managers who are still in the wilderness.

Very sincerely,
John C. Green,
Mgr., Temple Theatre,
Galt, Ont., Can.

Many hundreds of similar letters, already on file, testify to the high merits of Speer Projector Carbons and substantiate every claim made for them.

Answer: The question as to the proper place for the shutter to be set or placed is one that has not yet been definitely settled. Machine manufacturers, and they should know, say that the shutter should be placed as close to the lens as possible. Others say that the shutter should be so placed as to cut the rays of light at their narrowest point. We do not intend to argue this point for none of us are authorities on this subject, we will say, however, that in our opinion, gained from the many years we have been working with the crank, that the location of the shutter is purely a question of what the individual operator prefers to be the best location in his particular case. Personally, I believe, and am basing my belief upon my own experience, that just as good results can be obtained with the shutter set close to the lens, as would be in the case of having it cut the light rays. The combination to do with increasing or lengthening the point where the rays cross, their function is merely to concentrate the light by gathering it from its source and allowing the rays to converge at the aperture into a sufficient size spot which will enable you to obtain a clear white field, without ghost or dark brown corners, upon the screen. The only way in which the rays could be lengthened or shortened would be to change the combinations of the objective by moving the elements nearer or further away, but as this would only result in increasing or decreasing the size of the projected picture I would not advise you to do it. If you want to experiment, I believe the various machine manufacturers have an adapter—that is an attachment which fits the shutter shaft making it possible for the shutter to be set at an even greater distance than eight inches. They will gladly advise you as to the cost, etc., if you write them. It has often been said that a 6½ and 7½ inch condenser would meet almost any requirement, and there seems to be no reason apparent why you should make any change there. (2) Ratio, means that each cycle of the intermittent movement is stationary in proportion to its rated movement. To make myself more clearer, let us say that the intermittent has a 6 to 1 movement. In this case the film would be stationary six times as long as it is moving, the film having a longer period of rest is accordingly subject to other difficulties, such as "flicker," etc., which can, however, be eliminated by the proper width of the shutter blade. The larger the blade the more light it cuts off, while with a narrow blade the speed of the intermittent can be increased considerably without decreasing the light. To figure this out on your machine, proceed as follows: Turn the fly wheel in the direction it normally runs, until the intermittent sprocket just barely starts to move, then make a punch or scratch mark on the frame and opposite this scratch mark make another mark on the fly wheel, then again turn the fly wheel, in the same direction until the intermittent sprocket has completed its movement and come to rest, and then make your second mark on the fly wheel opposite the mark on the frame, then turn the fly wheel forward again until the intermittent is again about to commence its movement and make your third mark. If the machine is so geared that the fly wheel makes one complete revolution to each movement of the intermittent, the third mark will be in the same place as the first, and the distance between the first and second marks will be six times as great one way as it will be if measured in the opposite way. I have tried to make my explanation as clear as possible, and hope that my answer will help you to realize your ambition to become a real operator. I have been playing for an hour with the Powers’ intermittent movement—this too, while the thermometer is registering 90 in the shade, and I am not in the shade—trying to figure "ratio" of which I myself was quite well posted, so if I have missed I have also helped myself, and proven again that “we live to learn.” We are not setting ourselves up as an “absolute authority” for there are none of us “so learned that we cannot learn more,” and in the words of K. C. B. “I thank you, for your letter propounding the above questions.”

Inventor Operator

BROTHER LOUIS L. SOLLISCH, inventor, at the Odeon Theatre, 145th St., near 8th Avenue, New York City, is one of those operators who find time to conduct experiments, and give their genius a chance to show itself. He has invented a new type of reel which has been patented and bears the patent number 1,210,113. The claim reads as follows: It protects the film from injury, and makes a compact, serviceable and light shipping case. It is also a first-class container for film while in the exposure, upon the reels waiting for distribution. It being fire-proof, and yet the film is easily accessible without the nuisance attendant in opening the ordinary film cans. These would sometimes become bent and jammed to such an extent as to make the removal of film a hardship to those whose duty it was, many fingers have been cut, finger nails broken and harsh words used which could have been avoided by the use of Sollisch’s reel.

This reel is like and yet unlike the ordinary reel. Instead of having four holes on either side it has only one, the remaining portion being of solid sheet metal. When the film is wound or rewound upon the reel a metal band, split in two halves, and which is joined on one side by a hinge is placed over the film in the same manner as the paper bands which accompany the reels when they are received from the exchange. This metal band is, however, grooved on either side, and the edge of the reel itself is fitted into these grooves after which the band is locked, making the entire thing ready for shipment. The illustration gives a very good idea of just what this reel consists of, and we might say that to our mind this should meet with the approval of exchange men as well as operators. The cost of manufacture is so low that it is quite possible this reel will in the near future become universally adopted.

Distribution of American Made Films

In the fiscal year 1916 (ending June 30), of the 158,751,786 feet of exposed film exported 126,749,503 feet went to Europe, 17,603,193 feet to North America, 2,638,328 feet to South America, 3,336,997 feet to Asia, 8,380,999 feet to Oceania, and 4,706 feet to Africa. Of the 72,598,993 feet of unexposed film exported in 1916, 69,436,084 feet went to Europe.
Simplex Exhibit Added Novelty to Convention

One of the most striking exhibits at the Chicago Convention was installed by the Precision Machine Company. The accompanying illustration shows its Simplex projectors grouped to the best advantage for attracting the attention of the thousands of people circulating on the floor.

In the middle of the booth a machine on a high central pedestal, with a cut-out of the word Simplex over it, revolved and was kept in constant motion. Each of the boxes on the four other pedestals constituted an “air fountain,” in which a mass of yellow, red and purple ribbons were blown upward by a strong current of air. A searchlight playing on the ribbons produced a striking effect. The color scheme of the booth was a combination of blue and French ivory. The only other color present was in the revolving machine, finished in burnished nickel. To overcome a certain "hardness" in the atmosphere of a machine exhibit, the booth was decorated with a profusion of flowers.

The five machines represented the different types of Simplex projectors. One was equipped with the new nitrogen electric lamp in place of an arc lamp.

The color scheme was carried out in a set of furniture of eight pieces and rugs. As a final touch the colored porter, with Simplex embroidered on his collar and hat, was ready at all times to be of service to visitors.

Those of the Simplex Company present were Edwin S. Porter, vice-president; his brother, E. M. Porter, general manager; Francis B. Cannock, secretary; L. W. Atwater, sales manager, and A. P. Lombard, representative.

― Silver Tip‖ Exhibit

An exhibit which attracted considerable attention on the part of operators and managers alike, at the exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, held at the Coliseum, Chicago, July 14 to 21, was that of the National Carbon Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, and which was in charge of W. C. Kunzmann and L. W. Fisher.

The latest product of the N. C. Co., the “Silver Tip” carbons, were demonstrated, as were the “National” cored carbons, to all operators and exhibitors who visited the booth presided over by these two live wire representatives. “Bill,” as Kunzmann is familiarly called by operators, was kept busy explaining and demonstrating the various “trims” to use for the various conditions prevailing in theatres where D. C. current is used, and where “Silver Tips” are recommended. Where A. C. current is used the “National” cored carbon, whose merits were fully explained by those in charge of the exhibit, were set forth in an interesting and instructive manner, and augmented by a burning arc demonstration given to the observer an object lesson in the proper handling of the arc as well as the peculiarities of the arc itself. This “burning arc” was demonstrated on the Powers, Simplex and Moviegraph projectors, and those who were fortunate enough to visit the booth during the week could not have failed to obtain considerable knowledge regarding the “arc” and that which goes to make up the arc—CARBONS.

The Camera Lens

was probably a Bausch and Lomb. Why not the projection lens? The camera lens has placed the image clear, sharp, lifelike on the film. The same clear definition may be obtained on the screen with

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

Typhooners Arrested

ERNST GLANTZBERG, president of the Typhoon Fan Company, while at the Exposition last week in Chicago, decorated his touring car with one of his Typhoon fans, the fan spinning busily in the wind as the car ran along the streets of Chicago. At Madison and State streets, said to be the busiest corner in the world, this fan attracted so much attention that traffic was blocked, and the fan, car and president were summoned to court. An enterprising photographer snapped the outfit just as they were being pinched.

From the Lone Star State

GEORGE MEOLAND, Kaufman, Texas, writes: "As I have just finished a couple of hours slaving with misframes and bad patches in the films I am using today, I would like to put in my application for membership in the Anti-Misframe League, and will take all the pledges for the betterment of film condition. I wish the brother who used these films before they came to me was a member of your league, and I pray he will become one soon. I think this is one of the greatest plans ever undertaken by operators, and hope each one will think it over and become a member. I am trying to get all the operators in this city to put in their application to the league, as I am sure it will make our work more pleasant and also result in giving better service. I am not a union man, but expect to become one soon. Hoping the Anti-Misframe League will be a success throughout the country, etc., etc."

Comment: We are glad to learn that the movement concerning better film condition is acceptable to you, and will be more than pleased to receive the applications of every operator in your city. Therefore, it is up to you to get busy and wake 'em up. My ideas concerning the "union" have been set forth so many times that I don't believe there is anything I can add at this time except to say: I wish you luck!

Swaab Trades in Used Machines

Poli Theatre, New Haven, Will Be Ready Labor Day

THE new Poli theatre at New Haven, Conn., will be ready by Labor Day, according to assurances the builders have given S. Z. Poli. While the undertaking was ostensibly a rebuilding job, it has practically been the construction of an entirely new theatre. Only the upper floors of the Poli office building on the Church street front remain untouched.

Steady Arc and Maximum Brilliance Combined In Most Acceptable Fashion!

The care with which Silvertips are designed by trained moving picture engineers has resulted in that combination so desirable to the theater owner.

Silvertips were designed and developed by trained moving picture engineers—men who had spent years in the game and who know every angle of projection lighting.

A negative projector carbon which combines in a well-balanced manner an absolutely steady arc with high intensity was the result of their cumulative experience.

Within a short time Silvertip negative with a National upper has become the standard trim of the D. C. projector field.

Optical Glass

Since the outbreak of the foreign war good optical glass has, as is generally known, become difficult to obtain, for various reasons, and we were much interested in a recently published report that the United States Bureau of Standards had, after several years of experimentation, succeeded in producing optical glass of good quality.

Upon requesting information from the Bureau of Standards, with regard to the nature, optical constants, etc., of the new glass we were favored with the following reply:

"The Bureau of Standards has been conducting an experimental optical glass plant for more than two years, and is now arranging for increased production to help meet the military emergency.

Several varieties have already been produced, including an excellent Borosilicate Crown, index about 1.51, and a light Barium Crown, Index about 1.52. All the glass that can possibly be manufactured will be required for some time to come for urgent military needs, but small pieces will be available for scientific investigations whenever it is practicable to furnish them.

"S. W. STRATTON,
"Director,
"Bureau of Standards, Washington."

Optical glass forms an interesting subject for study, and one of great importance at the present time, so we shall, in the next few issues, endeavor to set forth some interesting and instructive facts concerning the use and manufacture of the glass which is utilized in the production of lenses and other types of precise optical instruments.

As a preliminary it will be well to mention just what is meant by the term "optical glass," and to indicate tersely just how optical glass, properly so called, differs from the ordinary commercial varieties of glass. Briefly stated, optical glass, of whatever specific constitutionality, is perfectly homogeneous glass—free from all vestige of specks, stress marks or striations. Small bubbles in optical glass, if not too numerous, are tolerable, however, in the case of photographic objectives, as is known to all readers of lens makers catalogs.

While a piece of good, ordinary plate glass may appear very uniform and free from defects upon casual observation, it has only to be looked through at an angle; or in cross section; or by polarized light, to reveal the presence of numerous stress marks and countless striæ. These defects would be fatal, in the case of a photographic objective, to a stigmatic reunion at the focal plane of the light rays traversing a lens made, for instance, of ordinary plate glass, and in no other type of precise optical instrument, made with ordinary glass, could the light rays be expected to traverse the system without being seriously broken up and diminished in intensity.

It is not difficult to appreciate, therefore, that optical glass is an article of commerce, made and supplied to fulfill definite requirements of both practical and scientific nature.

Since optical glass is almost exclusively employed in the manufacture of instruments of more or less exact performance, a definite knowledge, concerning the characteristics of the various types of such glass, is a necessity to both the student of practical optics, and the actual makers of optical apparatus. The exact data required by the designer or computer of optical systems, are known as the "optical constants" of a given kind of glass, and the most important of these constants are:

The refractive index for various lines of the spectrum.

The extent of the dispersion between various regions of the spectrum.

The mean dispersion.

Without a knowledge of these constants no scientifically practical use could be made by the optical worker of his optical glass, so we shall proceed to explain just what these optical constants mean, and how they are determined by the optical experimenter or manufacturer.

The refractive index is the measure of the refracting, or bending, power of a given variety of glass upon a ray of incident light, and in optical formulay the refractive index is usually denoted by the letter n. In spite of the recent published statement of a self-styled "projection expert" that it is a difficult proceeding to measure the refractive index of a transparent medium, the fact remains that it can be readily accomplished by a person of ordinary intelligence, who possesses, or has access to, a good spectrometer. It would not be feasible, of course, for every cameraman and projection man to possess his own spectrometer, but it really does seem as if those who aspire to be known as "motion picture experts," or "optical authorities," should be familiar with the use of the devices wherewith the index or refracting media and the wavelength of light may be determined.

To return to the method of determining the refractive index, this is accomplished through the medium of a spectrometer and a prism, commonly of 60° refracting angle, made of the material to be measured. If the medium whose index is to be measured is a liquid, a sample of the liquid is enclosed in a hollow prism having transparent glass sides. We have to assume that the reader is acquainted with the optical device known as a spectrometer, for it would take us too far from the subject in hand to here enter into an extensive elementary description of the instrument, and, moreover, such devices were explained in the Camera Department upon a former occasion. Those who are unfamiliar, however, with the appearance and operation of a spectrometer, will find the instrument and its use described in most all advanced text-books on Physics, and in treatises on Optics or elementary works upon Physical Optics.

Let us, after the foregoing digressions, proceed to determine the refractive index for a given prism of optical glass. We want to determine the index for the D line (sodium light), as this is the spectrum line for which the index of a glass is generally stated, and, as a matter of fact, when the spectrum line is not stated in giving the refractive index for a specimen of glass, it can be taken for granted that the specified index is the index for the Sodium, or D line.

In order to compute the refractive index, for D, of a prism, we require first to know its minimum deviation and also its angle. To ascertain these values we proceed as follows: The telescope of the spectrometer is swung around so that the image of the slit is viewed direct. The prism to be examined is next placed upon the prism table of the spectrometer, and the telescope turned so as to obtain a view of the spectrum produced by the prism. As we are determining the index for the D line we will suppose that the light source behind the slit is a Sodium light, produced by the combustion of salt in the flame of a Bunsen burner. This gives us the well-known yellow Sodium line, instead of a spectrum showing all colors. We have now to rotate the prism slightly, first in one direction and then in the opposite direction, following the spectrum with the telescope of the spectrometer and observing the degree of deviation which the Sodium line undergoes. The position will soon be found at which the deviation is slighest, and from which any further rotation of the prism causes the Soda line to deviate to a greater extent in one direction or the other. When this position of least deviation is found the position of the telescope is read off from the graduated circle on the spectrometer; the difference between this reading and the reading when the telescope was arranged for direct vision of the slit is the minimum deviation of the D line in the case of the prism under examination.

Turning now to the estimation of the angle of the prism, this will be best understood by reference to Fig. 1. In Fig. 1 the prism, P, is in place upon the spectrometer table. The telescope, T, is now turned to any favorable position on the graduated circle and clamped in place. The prism, P, is now rotated until the image of the slit, S, is reflected into the telescope from the face A B of the prism. A reading is now taken of the position of the prism table. Leaving the telescope in situ the prism is again rotated through such an angle that the image of the slit is again reflected into the telescope from the face A C of the prism. The position of the prism table is again read off, and by comparison with the former reading the angle through which the prism has been turned is ascertained. This angle subtracted from 180° gives the angle of the prism.

Having determined the deviation $d$, and the angle $A$, of our prism we can calculate its refractive index, denoted by $n$, by putting their numerical values into the following equation:

$$ n = \frac{\sin \frac{A}{2} (A + d)}{\sin \frac{A}{2} A} $$

This equation is a constant by which refractive indices are always determined.

A most interesting and efficient type of spectrometer for determining glass indices is the one devised and used by Prof. E. Abbe, the noted optician of Jena glass fame. The following description of the Abbe spectrometer is due to Otto Lummer. (Müller-Pouillet "Lehrbuch der Physik," 5th Edition-Bd 7, "Optik," pages 228-229.)

"The design of the Abbe spectrometer is based upon the method of Autocollimation invented by O. Littrow, whereby the light rays incident upon a prism are reflected at the rear prism face, and return along the same path by which they entered. (This is possible in virtue of the fact that any optical system is reversible.) Ex. Camera Dept.) By inserting a spectroscopic slit in the focal plane of the spectrometer telescope, and observing there the reflected image one may dispense with the customary collimator tube.

The determination of the position of minimum deviation likewise becomes unnecessary. The Abbe spectrometer permits a handy and rapid adjustment of the prism, and by means of a Micrometric arrangement enables the accurate measurement of dispersion, as well as the measurement of refractive indices; this instrument can therefore be recommended in all cases where it is necessary to work rapidly but at the same time with considerable accuracy. (The determinations with this instrument are correct to five places of decimals—Ex.)

"In Fig. 2a the path of the light rays in Abbe's spectrometer is shown by the solid lines. The rays which issue from the focal plane, D, of the telescope, F, are refracted at the anterior prism face, B, and retrace in such manner that they fall perpendicularly upon the rear prism face, B C, where they are reflected and retrace their exact path to the focal-plane, D. (The prism face B C is silvered—Ex.)

"If, now, one arranges at the focal-plane, D, a vertical slit, whose upper half is illuminated by a total reflection prism (receiving its light from outside the telescope tube), then the bundles of rays which represent the bright refracted images of the slit, will be combined in a point after reflection at B C, at the lower half of the slit. Upon examining the lower half of the slit by means of an ocular, a, and rotating the properly adjusted prism A B C until the reflected (and refracted) image of the illuminated upper half of the slit falls directly upon the lower dark half of the slit, the rays from the focal plane are caused..."

To run along D m r and return again by the same path.

"If the refractive index of the prism equals n, and the refracting angle equals q, the angle of incidence, a, is also equal to q, if Auto-collimation takes place. This may be simply expressed by:

\[
\sin a = \frac{\sin q}{n}

where q is determined in the customary manner. As refraction is associated with the dispersion of colors, there results from an incident white ray, D o m, a succession of red, yellow, etc., rays m r, of which only one can fall perpendicularly upon the plane B C and be reflected back upon itself. If these are the red rays, they are reunited at D, while the violet rays come together something to one side at a point v. A spectrum is therefore produced at D v. Ordinarily a Geissler tube is employed for the illumination of the upper half of the slit; various colored images of the slit are thus produced, of which all but one are interrupted. As a result of Auto-collimation no search for the position of minimum deviation (of the prism) is necessary; for in this case the dispersion of the spectrum is the same as if one used a prism of twice as great a refracting angle (2q) and applied the methods practised with an ordinary spectrometer. To illustrate this the path of the rays is shown in Fig. 2a, in the case where the rays D m pass symmetrically through the prism A B G, of refracting angle 2q, and are united in a telescope F' (The Telescope F' would be to the right of the prism, but is not shown in the figure. —Ed.). The path of these rays, indicated by dotted lines is symmetrical with respect to the dividing line B C of the prism A B G.

"Especially simple is the adjustment, upon the spectrometer table, of the prism which is to be examined. This is fastened by its vertical surface to a circular perforated disc, S, Fig. 2b, which can be rotated in a ring, r, about a horizontal axis—the disc and the prism surface remaining in their respective planes. The ring, r, is secured to the plate, P, which latter rests upon the prism table T (of the spectrometer) and may be rotated, by means of a screw, about an axis which is vertical with respect to the principal axis (of the telescope).

"As an especially useful feature of the Abbé spectrometer there remains to be mentioned the simple micrometer arrangement, which is used for the purpose of measuring small angular differences (such as the extent of the dispersion between two colors) without the necessity of reading from graduated circular parts. For this purpose a micrometer screw with a graduated drum is used to move the telescope, and the extent of the telescope's rotation is calculated in angular degrees."

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

United States Army and Trumpet Signals

WAR pictures are at present an every-day feature. News from the different battle fronts of our Allies—Scenes from American training camps—Scheme battles—Advances—Retreats—and many other things related with war are thrown on every screen of every motion picture theatre in nearly the entire world. Trumpet calls and all kinds of army signals are therefore a serious problem for the motion picture musician of to-day.

Several days ago I witnessed a performance of a certain war picture, a bugler appeared very prominently in a so-called close-up—blowing "as everybody could notice according to the foregoing scenes, just to Arms." The musician or rather the trumpet player was clever enough to judge what this bugle call was about, but was not able to do it. Why? First of all, he never served in any army, and secondly probably never thought of studying this subject (a book containing all army calls can be obtained for 25 cents in every music store).

“The moving picture is, in a way, a new kind of opera, and consequently music becomes an important part thereof. An orchestra would probably be the best companion if it were not for the difficulty it encounters in playing the picture. No leader can watch a picture and his score, and communicate to his players the sudden changes of motif at the same time.

“Only an individual can play a picture the first time he sees it, hence the organ has become the most popular instrument. It has volume, marvelous elasticity, and can be played by a single performer, who is able to follow a picture through all its lights, shadows, and sudden changes.”

Building and Furnishing

Architecture Denotes Strength and Beauty

The August Building, Fort Worth, Tex., wherein is located the Majestic theatre, has recently been improved and two stories added, and in strengthening the structure many improvements from an artistic and sanitary standpoint have been installed, and it is now regarded as the most modern and substantial building in the city.

The lower floor is occupied by the Majestic, said to be one of the finest theatres west of New York, and which cost $200,000. French renaissance and colonial period architecture predominate in its construction. The main drop curtain has painted upon it a reproduction of Hoffman’s painting of Haydn, composing one of his sonatas at a morning reception to his friends. The original of this painting was purchased by J. Pierpont Morgan for $60,000.

There are eight proscenium boxes, four on each side of the stage. Loges are arranged at the rear of the lower floor, entrance to which is afforded by French double plate-glass doors.

The auditorium is in the French renaissance style, with color scheme in ivory and old rose. The most striking feature of the auditorium is the entire absence of posts, and is eighty feet in the clear. This is the first big theatre in the West to use the diffused lighting system entirely.

Considerable pains have been expended looking to the comfort of patrons, and include a ladies’ rest room, a gentlemen’s smoking room, which has a cooling, out-of-doors effect, realized by the twilight lighting system; there is also a nursery superintended by an expert nurse.

Six hundred and eleven Tungsten globes light the electric sign, which advertises the theatre, this sign measuring thirty-one feet in height by fourteen feet in width.

Combining strength and beauty to such a degree, the August building is one of the most noticeable and pretentious edifices in Fort Worth.

Savoy, with Small Seating and High Rental, Is Profitable

The Savoy, at 121 Market street, Philadelphia, is an example of financial success gained by a theatre with small seating capacity and high rental, but advantageously situated in the downtown business district, near railroads and shopping centres and managed in a catering-to-the-public fashion.

The house is one of the Central Market Street Company’s chain of theatres, the general manager of which is Frank W. Buhler. The house manager is A. G. Forbes; the architect, Knickerbocker Byn.

The theatre is of fireproof construction, brick and stone being the materials, with eight exits. The outside is ornate with a stucco facade embellished with many figures in bold relief. A well-built canopy of glass and iron extends half way to the curb.

The theatre has just been renovated and the decorations were in charge of the Barabatella Company, of Philadelphia. New retiring rooms for women and men have been fitted with every convenience of modern demands.

Patrons here have been improved with tiled floors, marble wainscoting and gold mosaics. There is a Caille ticket chopper and an Automatic Ticket Selling Machine. The theatre proper has walls of blue with frescoes of old rose and gold with which the carpets and walls blend.

There are 410 seats, all on one floor. Steam heating and direct lighting are installed. Purified air forced in, with exhaust fans and twelve revolving side fans, makes for coolness even with the mercury soaring.

The house, being long and narrow, requires a 150-foot throw. Good projection is insured by two Power G-B machines, with Hubbell as electrical engineer and George Ellwell and Morris Wagner as operators. The machines are motor driven and two Gerlach lenses are part of the equipment. The screen is a Rembusch Crystal Gold Fibre.

A $10,000 Austen organ of the newest type has just been installed. The performance is continuous from eight A. M. to midnight. Seven reels is the usual length of a performance, with a straight ten-cent admission. The girl ushers are in black uniforms, the men in blue. There are twenty employees. The program includes popular releases of every large producing company besides diversified short subjects.

It is hard to judge of taste where so many transients abound, but the prime favorites seem to be Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. There is a daily change of program. Just recently the theatre has started a mailing list. Billboards and daily paper advertising are made use of. In spite of its many larger rivals within a block or so the Savoy prosper, as shown by its steady patronage and the tidy sum just spent on the improvements.

Theatre Building Boom in Indiana

New theatres, including the improvement of several, mark the development of this motion picture industry in Indiana this year. In addition to the new buildings in Terre Haute, Evansville, Muncie, Crown Point and other cities, as mentioned in recent issues of The Motion Picture News, new buildings and improvements are being made in several other cities.

Sherman Grimes, manager of the Arc theatre in Crawfordsville, has let a contract to S. C. Harvath for remodeling his theatre. A room adjoining the theatre is being used to enlarge it, which with the present building will give the Arc a seating capacity of more than 900. The new theatre will have a balcony and a wide auditorium, with a canopy extending over the sidewalk in front.

At Marion, it has been announced that the Royal-Grand Theatre Company has secured an option on a downtown site and that a new building will be started soon. Dolly Spurr, manager of the company, says that a theatre costing $40,000 and having a seating capacity of 1,000 will be built. The company will continue to operate its present theatre.

Newcastle has two new theatres in operation. The New Strand, at South Main and Central avenue, is under the management of the Newcastle Motion Picture Company, of which John G. Oost is president; Ralph Swearingen, vice-president and treasurer, and John V. Bazy, secretary. The theatre was remodeled from old Christian Church. Its motion picture industry, at Eighteenth street and C avenue, is a new building throughout. Ralph Brayton, manager, spared no pains to make it a comfortable, up-to-date showhouse.

The Indiana theatre, in South Michigan street, South Bend, has been leased by Max Barnett, of Chicago, who will remodel the premises and show feature motion pictures. The lease was obtained from Ira Gralski, the owner, and the work of making improvements is well under way.

William Cuppy has leased a building in Crawfordsville and remodeled it for a new theatre. It is known as The Star, and is the second motion picture house to be started in the town.

Many Unique Features in Liberty Theatre

The Liberty theatre, at Portland, Oregon, was opened two weeks ago, and every one was impressed with the many novel and unique features employed, the most striking of which, perhaps, are the waterfalls, which are over twenty feet high and are exact reproductions of Multnomah and Latourell Falls. These are located one at each side of the stage, and the running water used is supplied by a complete circulatory system, pumped by a twenty horse-power motor.

This is a decided new idea in theatre decoration.

An organ loft is built at the rear of the theatre, and is supported on Roman columns with Ionic caps, the loft itself being concealed by flower decked latticework.

The center of the proscenium is occupied by a reproduction in oils of the masterpiece “Juno,” while, on the north and the south side hang two immense canvases portraying “Recollections” and “Crowning of Love,” each a well executed copy of the

In the lobby of the theatre stands a copy of Varraccio's 'The Boy and the Goose,' and a fountain is there too, in the bowl of which are a number of Japanese gold fish and pond lilies made of paper by a Japanese method. These give an air of coolness and repose to the whole structure.
The inside decorations are at once harmonious and beautiful, and reflect great credit upon the architect and builder.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATREs

CALIFORNIA
The Silver Strand, a new $80,000 house at Coronado, near San Diego, was opened on July 20 with a presentation of "Full of Life." Among vocal selections were several vocal selections by Mme. Schumann-Heink. The opening programs will include "the Woman's section of the Navy League, and the entire proceeds are to be devoted to Red Cross work.
The theatre was erected by John D. Spreckells, well known California financier, and is said to be one of the finest civic improvements given to Coronado, and one of the best appointed and modern motion picture houses of the country. The opening policy will be three shows daily, a matinee and two in the evening. It will have a change of program three times a week, and the admission prices will be $1.00 and the rest for orchestra section, and fifty cents for loge seats. Subjects booked for the first week are "The Pageant Mystique," "Lilacs in the Garden," and the Triangle picture, "A Strange Transgressor," "Dark Russia," with Alice Brady, and "Camille," the Clara Nimmall Young subject.
The Inglewood theatre at Inglewood, Los Angeles, which is about a five miles from Los Angeles, is a new 600 seat house under the management of W. D. Boll. The house was opened on July 24, and the opening program was "Panther," on the second.
Plans have been completed for the construction of a 2,400-seat motion picture theatre in the Roxy building at Los Angeles and Long Beach streets, Los Angeles. The site leased is now occupied by the Libby Luggage company and the D. M. E. dress clur. The theatre will be built by the Metropolitan Theatres and the Norma Talmadge subject, "Panther," will be presented.
The opening of the new building of the Elks lodge, Pacific Theatre, will start within the next few days, according to the prediction of Campaign Manager Henry Cohen, in charge of the construction of the building bonds. At meeting recently held plans were laid for a still more ambitious sale and the determination made to commence building as soon as sufficient bond money will have been sold.

IOWA
Plans have now been completed for the construction of a 2,400-seat motion picture theatre in the Van Duzer building at 20th and Locust streets, Des Moines. The site leased is now occupied by the Liberty Luggage company and the D. M. E. dress clur. The theatre will be built by the Metropolitan Theatres and the Norma Talmadge subject, "Panther," will be presented.
The opening of the new building of the Elks lodge, Pacific Theatre, will start within the next few days, according to the prediction of Campaign Manager Henry Cohen, in charge of the construction of the building bonds. At meeting recently held plans were laid for a still more ambitious sale and the determination made to commence building as soon as sufficient bond money will have been sold.

MASSACHUSETTS
There is a rumor about town of the project of another moving picture theatre in Arlington. A concern, which already has two theatres, is considering going into the new. Plans have now been completed, which leave the development of the theatre close to the center of the town. It is understood that the Selectmen have been informed of the project and that the plans for the building, which were drawn up by a Roxbury architect, have met with the approval of the building and town laws.
Plans have been prepared by J. Marshen Parks for the erection of a new theatre at No. 738 Huntington avenue and Calumet street, Roxbury, for David S. Reiss. The superstructure will be of brick, stone and terra cotta and will be 350 feet in dimension and 235 by 230 feet in dimension. In addition to the theatre there will be two stores, a garage and bowling alleys. The estimated cost is $230,000. Foundations are now being laid.
Plans have been prepared for the opening of a theatre at Beverly which will be called The Beverly and for which the Enterprise Amusement Company has purchased the Giddings estate on Federal and Chapman streets and it is being prepared preparatory to the actual working plans for the theatre which is to be of modern construction, iron, concrete, and steel, with as little expense as possible. It will be a first class theatre and will have abundance of exits on all sides, with passage ways sufficient to take care of any audience which may gather.

MICHIGAN
C. Howard Crane has let contracts for Julius Berman for a one-story motion picture theatre at Hamtramck, and work on same is to be commenced at once.

MISSOURI
Plans have been completed for the erection of a new $60,000 motion picture theatre at St. Louis, by the Consolidated Theatres Company. The structure, which will be located at the corner of Massachusetts and Vandeventer avenues, will seat 2,000 persons and will occupy a lot 140 by 122 feet in size. The site has a frontage on Vandeurter of 146 feet by a depth on Massachusetts of 137 feet. The corner section of the site is vacant and has a frontage of 93 feet on Vandeventer avenue, while the inside part, fronting 33 feet on Vandeventer, is occupied by the building, which is to be of modern construction, iron, concrete, and steel, with as little expense as possible. It will be a first class theatre and will have abundance of exits on all sides, with passage ways sufficient to take care of any audience which may gather.

NEW JERSEY
Walter Rosenberg, the Jersey Coast theatrical magnate, is about to open his second playhouse in Asbury Park. It is called the St. James theatre, and will be ready for business on August 11.
But twelve weeks were required in the building of it. The house seats 2,350, and is intended solely for motion picture exhibitions.

NEW YORK

It has been officially announced through E. F. Albee, general manager of the B. F. Keith New York Theatres Company, that a brand new, luxurious theatre is to be built by that concern in New York City. The opening for the new theatre is to be held on a site of land purchased by the Keith interest several months ago, at Fordham road and Valentine avenue, about 200 feet east of the Grand Concourse. This is the center of the Fordham section of the Bronx, a fine, well populated and rapidly growing community.
The design and construction of this theatre will be under the personal direction of Mr. Albee, who is vice-president, general manager and half owner of the entire Keith Circuit. Keith patrons are already familiar with Mr. Albee's excellent taste in theatre construction and management. It is estimated that the cost of construction will be at least $600,000. The front of the building will contain spacious stores and offices. Builders' estimates have been taken on several of these.

The theatre will seat approximately 3,000 people. Every conceivable device for insuring the patrons comfort will be installed. The heating, lighting and ventilating equipment are to be of the most practicable and modern type. The lobby, two ladies' parlors or retiring rooms, and the gentlemen's smoking room and lounge will be unsurpassed, from an artistic viewpoint. Mr. Albee has always prided himself in these features of his theatres, and nothing will be stinted in the lavish decoration and equipment of those rooms in the new house.

OHIO

C. A. Bresler plans to build a one-story addition, 119 by 30 feet, for stores and a motion picture theatre at 8604, 8818 Buckeye road S. E., Cleveland. The building will cost approximately $10,000.

WASHINGTON

Jensen & Von Herberg, who control the Liberty, Coliseum and Mission photoplays houses in Seattle, opened a new theatre, the Liberty, in Portland a week ago. The Orpheum theatre there had been bought some time ago, and the Seattle men have spent more than $50,000 in remodeling and improvement. It is now one of the most beautiful theatres on the Pacific Coast. The open attraction was "The Call of the Yukon," an impressive feature film drama seen here some weeks ago at the Liberty. Mr. Von Herberg has been in Portland for some time superintending work on the theatre.

WISCONSIN

Erection of a $150,000 theatre and business block on the present site of the Hamlin Block, Beloit, is the project contemplated in a deal announced recently.

Julius Stern and Maurice Fleckles of New York and Louis Jacques of Brockton, Cal., owners of the Rex and Rialto theatres, have secured an option on the Hamlin property to build a third theatre there. It is expected this work on the addition will be begun in from three to six months.

Plans of the theatre magnates call for a handsome show house that will seat 800 persons. The owners propose to have stores occupy the front of the block with access to the theatre farther back given by a handsome en trance arcade. The builders contemplate extending the theatre out over the river on piers on the north side of the central bridge.

The name of the theatre is to be the New Belitz in keeping with the plan of having a building on the river fronting on the bridge.

Some months ago when Tellegen & Brachman of Milwaukee leased the Belitz block on Monument square, Racine, for a period of 99 years, it was stated that a structure would be thoroughly rebuilt and converted into a modern office building and that on the vacant property in the rear there would be built a hotel or theatre.

It is now definitely announced that the new structure will be one of the finest theatres in the city and that it will be used for moving pictures, vaudeville or dramas. The plans are being made and a description of the house is promised in a short time.

Work on the building will be commenced not later than October but the remodeling of the old building will be attempted this year for the reason that the leases of tenants do not expire until after the beginning of 1918.

Printer for Amateurs

A PRINTER, especially designed to suit the needs of the small laboratory, traveling cinema photographer, or amateur, has been designed and patented by T. L. Haines, president and general manager of the Atlas Educational Film Company of San Francisco. This will be known as the Haines Film Printer, and will shortly be placed on the market. A number are now in use and about San Francisco. The printer, with hand attachment, requires a space eight inches wide, fifteen inches long and fifteen inches in height. The lamp is stationary, and a device similar to an iris, located about half an inch back of the aperture, serves to make the necessary changes to give theater or light. There are eight stops on this device, making possible as many different densities of light. The printer will be made with and without motor

Small Theatre Well Built

HAMMONTON, a small town, with a population of a little over five thousand, is located in about the central part of the state of New Jersey. This town has one of the neatest and most attractively constructed motion picture theatres to be found in a small town.

The Palace theatre, which is located at 207 Bellevue avenue, was built during 1912 in which year it was completed. The plans and specifications for the construction of the theatre were drawn up by Henry Nicolai.

The dimensions of the house are twenty-five feet in width by one hundred feet in depth. The front of the theatre is very plainly constructed, being of brick with whitestone trimmings. The building is constructed of brick and steel with concrete floors throughout.

The lobby which is semi-drum shaped measures twenty-four feet in width by ten feet in depth. The box office, which is constructed of sheet metal and plate glass, is centered between the two doors which lead into the auditorium. Several display frames taking one, three and six sheet posters adorn the lobby which is well illuminated at night by a row of incandescent lamps which have been strung across the front of the lobby.

The interior of the theatre is also neatly decorated. The side-walls are finished in dark green which is topped off with a three-foot border of cream color which gradually fades into a light blue ceiling. The direct lighting system is used in the interior, there being several electroliers suspended from the ceiling and numerous side-wall brackets.

The theatre is heated by steam and a Star ventilator system has been installed, the combination of the two keeping the house at even temperature at all times.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 300 comfortable opera chairs, having been furnished by Heywood Brothers and Wakefield Company.

The projection room, which is located above the lobby, is equipped with two Power’s 6 A. motor-driven projectors and a Fort Wayne Compensate. The length of throw is 70 feet onto a Radium Cold Fibre screen.

The programme for the week consists of Triangle, Vitagraph, Pathé and Arclight. All of the high-class productions which are released on the state rights basis are usually shown at this theatre.

The theatre is owned by G. DeCirco, and is operated under the management of James Palmer. Mr. Palmer is a progressive and live-wire exhibitor who has been in the exhibiting end of the game for the twelve years having been manager of the Palace ever since its opening five years ago.

The daily newspapers, according to Mr. Palmer, are the greatest receipt boosters, as extensive advertising in newspapers and by distributing heralds and programs among the patrons are the direct way of reaching them.

Extensive Alterations Made on Howland Theatre

FROM Pontiac, Michigan, comes the news that alterations amounting to about $10,000 are being made on the Howland theatre, and when the playhouse emerges from the hands of the decorators it will have the appearance of a new house. The alterations have not interfered with operating of the theatre the performances going on as usual.

The Eugene Cox Studio, of Chicago, has the contract for the interior decorating. The new color scheme that has been adopted is light rose, sage green, old ivory and gold. This arrangement will be carried out in wall and curtain decorations, hangings and carpets. The box hangings are to be old rose. The curtain is being redecorated and the stage is being entirely overhauled and new equipment is being installed, this including several new sets of scenery.

Extensive alterations are also being made to increase the seating capacity of the theatre. The front of the stage has been cut back to a line even with the proscenium arch, allowing the orchestra pit to be moved forward until about fifty additional seats can be placed on the main floor. More room is being made on the balcony by the removal of the projection booth to the gallery where a fire proof cement and tile booth has been erected.

Were You at the Chicago Exposition?

Then you know how hot and stuffy the last few days were outside the Coliseum. But inside was cool and comfortable, thanks to the Typhoon Cooling System. How the sweltering crowds thronged in from the streets to enjoy the cool, refreshing Typhoon Breezes.

The Typhoon apparatus was only a temporary one—in stalled in two days, which was all the time that could be allowed by the Exposition management.

In your theatre a Typhoon Cooling System can be installed just as easily and quickly. It will pay you to let your patrons enjoy the fresh-as-sea-air Typhoon Breezes, while you enjoy the extra profits.

This summer is a record-breaker for hot weather. Typhoons, too, have broken all previous daily records for business. On July 31st, orders amounting to $20,400 were received by wire and mail. This means that Typhoon Breezes are doing their bit in making the hot weather bearable.

Government weather reports say that we are due for a long drawn-out spell of hot weather. It means, too, that a Typhoon Cooling System placed in your theatre now will pay for itself long before the end of summer—easily. And then you will have a perfect system of ventilation for your cold weather months.

Give us full information about your house and we will tell you how easily and for how little Typhoons will cool your house and make money for you.

Every warm summer’s day means money in your pocket—so write us NOW.

The stage is a field in which the Russians have attained superlative excellence, and the Moscow Art Theatre is known all over the world as the pioneer in intelligent realism and one of the foremost theatres of the world."

N. S. Kaplan surmounted all obstacles to obtain the services of the renowned players of the Moscow Art Theatre, headed by the famous MOZUKIN, and including LESIENKO, COLODNA, CARALLI, ZOVSKA, NELSKA and KARABANOVA, all stars of the first magnitude.

They are players with personalities, selected by their government because of their ability and trained at the public expense. As personalities they are sure to become favorites with American audiences, as they have become established in the hearts of their countrymen.

Their portraits are shown on the succeeding pages. They will be seen in a repertory of the finest gems of Russian literature, based on the masterpieces of Tolstoy, Pushkin and many other authors equally famous.

Ivan Mozukin

The most prominent player in the Moscow Art Theatre appears often at the Imperial Dramatic Theatre and is regarded as the foremost actor in all Russia. He portrays the hero or the villain with equal facility and has been seen to advantage in characters ranging in age from eighteen to eighty. One of the last official acts of the deposed Tsar Nicholas granted permission for him to appear in Mr. Kaplan's motion picture productions.
As the vampire woman of the Russian stage and screen she stands alone. Mme. Lesienko appears often in support of Mozukin at the Imperial and Art Theatres in roles which show a scheming woman who halts at no measures necessary to attain her purpose, and is persistent in revenge when she fails. She is resourceful in her artistry and is loved for it by a public which has no sympathy with the characters she portrays.
Vera Colodna

She is one of the most popular ingenues of the Russian stage, bringing from the Moscow Art Theatre to motion pictures all the youthful charm and graces, all the inherent ability and great personal magnetism which have stamped her as the coming favorite of the spoken drama in parts requiring the portrayal of the lighter forms of expression.
Olga Zovska

The favorite of the public among the younger leading women of the Moscow Art Theatre appears in powerful dramatic roles. Mlle. Zovska appears once a year for four weeks at the Theatre Michaels in Petrograd. Seats for all her performances are sold for months in advance. In her motion picture dramas she selected her own scenarios and the members of her supporting companies.
Mlle. Caralli

The prima ballerina of the Imperial Ballet is an actress of unusual power by reason of her training for the dance. For fifteen years, from six to twenty-one, she studied mimicry, literature, pantomime and dramatic art. Mlle. Caralli generally is seen as the woman who suffers. She has the temperament of the Italian and the grace of the Russian.
She shares with Mlle. Colodna the public favor as the highest type of Russian ingenue in the Moscow Art Theatre productions. The two actresses frequently exchange roles and the friendly rivalry between them is great. Her beauty is international, her natural ability and training entirely Russian, a combination that is rare and productive of the best results.
Anna Nelska

As the woman of the world Mlle. Nelska is at her best. She is usually seen in parts that excite little sympathy from her audiences, but by virtue of her great ability her standing among the artists of Russia is high. While frequently the mischief-maker, she does not portray the pronounced vampire roles in which her distinguished associate, Mme. Lesienko, is the most popular of the Art Theatre players.

Story by Julia Dunham – Directed by Harley Knables

"One of the best features ever turned out."
(Variety)
No longer is it necessary for Goldwyn to tell the exhibitors of the nation what we think about our own productions. The great daily newspapers in the big cities henceforth will inform you, through their distinguished critics, of our big achievements. For example:

The Inquirer, Says:

"Private views of the new Goldwyn Pictures reveal an unusual series of new ideas in picture-making.

"'Baby Mine' shown at a private exhibition here, discloses the new achievements of the Goldwyn forces. The effect is comparable to that of a high-priced theatrical production, speech only being lacking. This film has an extraordinarily finished technique—a perfect mastery of the many details of film-making.

"Photographically the films are superb, of gem-like clearness. Masterly cutting and pruning left not a wasted moment in the telling of the story. Goldwyn films are scenically beautiful and intelligent. They are finished and polished down to the last degree and all the resources of the difficult art of film-making are in them."

And Harry L. Knapp, The Inquirer's Veteran Critic, in a Separate Article, Says:

"From the expressions I have heard from exhibitors since they were completely enthused over 'Baby Mine,' I predict that Goldwyn Pictures are going to be the real surprise of the season at the theatres throughout America at which they are shown."
THE PHILADELPHIA LEDGERS' Tremendous Approval.

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS’ two great Philadelphia newspapers, the morning “Public Ledger” and the “Evening Ledger,” say about Goldwyn’s perfection of production things that we, even though we know them to be true, would hesitate to say in an industry filled with doubt and suspicion. For example:

THE “PUBLIC LEDGER” Says:

"Each new motion picture company announces that its films are to be the best ever made. But there was something so sincere and business-like about the Goldwyn announcements that I have always believed this company would show something different.

"'Baby Mine' is a revelation of the high art of the screen. The cast, headed by Madge Kennedy and John Cumberland, is virtually flawless. But it is in the latest methods of photography and lighting and the simple taste of the interiors that I took the most interest. The skill of great artists has produced these results."

THE “EVENING LEDGER,” Says:

"If 'Baby Mine' is an index of future Goldwyn productions, showmen may be assured of some capital stuff from these studios. The picture has many distinctions in addition to star and story—individuality in settings and no one to date has built such imposing rooms and halls and 'shot' the results from such effective points."

What these great newspapers say will be said by other papers throughout America. Every exhibitor should take advantage of this splendid indorsement by signing contracts at once through Goldwyn’s branch offices.

A magazine’s success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"
This tremendous motion picture spectacle shows:

Burning of circus and stampede of menagerie in amazing photo-silhouette.

Early morning arrival and night departure of circus in a small village.

Circus parade and pageantry.

5,000 people in circus midway before the "Big Top."

Race of thoroughbreds on a mile-long track.

Complete and brilliant circus performance.

A complete town built for the staging of this spectacular and pathetic drama.

"For technique, fittings, direction and players "Baby Mine" is a most creditable picture, and it looks as if Goldwyn was going to fulfill its promise about 'different' photoplays."—The Philadelphia North American, August 2.

"Goldwyn Pictures are going to be the real surprise of the coming season at the theatres throughout America in which they will be shown."—The Philadelphia Inquirer, August 5.
Marie Dressler Comedies Released by Goldwyn

GOLDWYN announces to exhibitors eight two-reel comedies a year made by and starring MARIE DRESSLER, who is one of the biggest box-office attractions in the entire field of screen comedy. The Marie Dressler Comedies are to be distributed exclusively by the Goldwyn organization.

The first Marie Dressler Comedy is "The Scrub-lady," ready for release early in September. In this picture this famous and popular star has the vision and foresight to surround herself with the most talented comedy actors and the most beautiful girls it is possible to engage.

The Marie Dressler Comedies are available to all exhibitors under the open booking plan and at equitable prices to all desiring to play them.

A splendid organization has been built to produce these comedies and a nation-wide campaign will be made to prepare audiences everywhere for their coming in your theatres.
A Powerful Group of Rex Beach Pictures

UNDER his alliance with Goldwyn, Rex Beach is converting his world-known stories into pictures to be distributed exclusively by the Goldwyn organization.

Rex Beach is today America's most popular author and the drawing power of his pictures is without a parallel in the industry. For Goldwyn he will excel "The Spoilers," "The Ne'er-Do-Well," and "The Barrier"—each of which was a screen sensation.

Already he has completed "The Auction Block" made from one of his greatest stories and Goldwyn soon will announce the release date of this immense production.

Mr. Beach himself says: "I chose Goldwyn to distribute all of my future productions because I feel that this new organization, with new standards and new ideals, brings to the motion picture industry elements it has long needed and which I heartily indorse."

Goldwyn Chooses Simplex

Suppose you were a Producer, bent upon getting out the utmost, the acme in quality of pictures—pictures into which men of rare skill had put their hearts and their brains.

Then suppose you had to purchase Projectors for your Exhibition Rooms, to show such pictures in the best possible manner to high-class Exhibitors.

 Wouldn't it be a shame to put in anything but the very best?

Well, that's what the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation were up against.

Of course they had their choice of Projectors. You can easily imagine that no manufacturer tried to keep them from putting in his Machines.

But only quality counted.

To those who know, that means SIMPLEX.

Take the Goldwyn people, as an example.

They are equipping every one of their Distributing Offices in the United States and Canada with an Exhibition Room.

They know which is the best Projector.

So they ordered Simplexes for all of these.

But don't forget this: The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has no monopoly on Simplex Projection.

So don't envy them, but call on the Simplex Distributor in your section and let him help you to that Profitable Permanently Perfect Projection. The best is none too good for you, is it?

Catalog "N" also tells about it. Your name and address?

What the Simplex does for the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation it will do for you

We sell more high-grade Projectors than any other manufacturer in the world

FORSTER AND IVES, VENTURERS

Forster was of the tribe of Manhattan, which wears rubbers and pays poll taxes. All his life he had been anchored to the island.

Ives, the other, was one who roamed, and shot elephants. His was the restless spirit which discovers new continents.

Utterly opposed otherwise, each had in his bosom a yearn to encounter the real thing in Chance—the unadulterated, the absolutely-free-from-inevitable-conclusions brand of Chance. Both had been baffled.

Then O. Henry pits these two types against each other and brings about one of the most ingenious reverses ever devised by that master of ingenuity. It electrifies the reader—and the picture patron.

Thousands of exhibitors are showing O. HENRY pictures, to their vast profit.

Twenty O. HENRY pictures in 2-reel lengths are now ready.

Each O. HENRY picture is a thoroughly American gem of mingled humor and pathos. Each is a gold mine of Story.

Harold Edel, Manager of The Strand, New York's famous theatre, says

"TODAY WITH FLORENCE REED is one of the six greatest pictures I ever saw!"

Here is a smashing big play that thrilled New York for over a year, playing to full houses all the time. Written by the famous playwrights George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer it is packed full of tense moments, of human interest, of knowledge of life. As a motion picture it is as great a picture as the play was a play. Miss Reed, assisted by a cast every member of which is a real artist, amply lives up to her reputation of being the greatest emotional actress of the screen.

The exhibitor who plays this picture and advertises it the way it deserves will positively clean up!

To the public solid entertainment; to the exhibitor crowds of satisfied patrons.

That is true of all Pathé serials. It is emphatically true of

The SEVEN PEARLS

with

MOLLIE KING

and CREIGHTON HALE

to be released September 2nd

Why is it that hundreds of exhibitors tell us that Pathé serial nights are their big nights? Why is it many of them say they would have to shut down in summer if they couldn't get a Pathé serial? Why is it they write us and say

"Pathé serials are better box office attractions than any features."

It is because Pathé serials have box office stars, the best casts, the best production and the best stories that money can buy; and because long experience has taught Pathé what the public wants and how to help the exhibitor fill his house.

"The Seven Pearls" is a great serial. See it - then book it.

MOLLIE KING was a big hit in "Mystery of the Double Cross". She will be a bigger one in "The SEVEN PEARLS"
"A Pathé serial will make more money for an exhibitor than nine-tenths of the extra priced features," says a Washington exhibitor.

In connection with my booking of

The Neglected Wife

with

Ruth Roland

I want to say that it is my opinion gained from over three year's experience in exhibiting that a good serial such as 'The Neglected Wife', 'The Iron Claw', 'Who Pays?', 'The Shielding Shadow', or 'Pearl of the Army' will make more money for an exhibitor than nine-tenths of the extra priced features being booked to-day."

This exhibitor knows what he is talking about. For a long time Pathé has been preaching that Pathé serials have bigger value than most of the features on the market. Let us repeat, Pathé serials are in the feature class as to quality. They are better than features in box office value.

You need good pictures at prices that will enable you to make money.

Triangle makes good pictures. The evidence is a two years' record of uniform excellence that is continued by such productions as "Madcap Madge" and "The Flame of the Yukon."

Triangle prices have made money for exhibitors where exhibitors never made it before. In consequence, the number of Triangle theatres is greater today than at any previous time in the history of the industry.

Standards of efficiency in Triangle productions have again been raised and will continue to be raised. Waste has virtually been eliminated. Triangle prices to exhibitors now represent the cost of production plus the cost of distribution with a fair working margin of profit.

There have been only 6 Pictures that equalled This Classic Production

REAL FILMS, like good literature or music, or art of any kind, come few and far between. Moreover, they are apt to spring from the most unexpected sources. They may be the product of an unknown—but that unknown immediately becomes one of the elect of the earth.

You can count on the fingers of your two hands those motion pictures which have equalled in beauty and strength, plot and action, this offering of the Ogden Pictures Corporation.

"THE LUST OF THE AGES" is epic in its construction, classic in its breadth of spectacular strength, and yet is delicate and whimsical in its fine, native moments of emotion. It is one of the rare successes of motion picture history.

Whether the Ogden Pictures Corporation can repeat a success so marked, or whether it shall forever strive to live up to this, its master achievement, is a question only the future can solve.

The "LUST" of

LILLIAN

Produced by Ogden Pictures Corporation

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers
But, at this moment, America will unconsciously say, "Here is one of the greatest motion pictures we have ever seen."

The story has to do with GOLD—the fight for wealth—the hunger for that power which comes through great possessions. It has to do with that latent appetite which resides in every human breast for MONEY.

Surely, no elemental quality is so dominant in modern society, and this powerful story of Aaron Hoffman's, built on this theme, touches "home" in every home.

One single phase of this picture alone will make it the sensation of the continent. It depicts the causes behind Germany's war lust—Germany's wild greed for GOLD and commercial supremacy, yet it is not a war picture.

If the drama were not the masterpiece that it is—if the theme were not the universally interesting idea that it represents—and if the picture merely had to do with the wholesome winsomeness and the splendid acting of Lillian Walker, it would be a great success.

The "girl with the dimple" has again proven herself to possess superior dramatic qualifications, and there is no actress on the screen to-day who can point to a single performance greater than this one of Miss Walker's.

The entire production, under the direction of Harry Revier, has been dovetailed together and worked out in sympathetic style, from the simple close-ups to the Gargantuan spectacles.

TAYLOR HOLMES
The Broadway Favorite in
"EFFICIENCY EDGAR'S COURTSHIP"

Thousands are waiting to see Mr. Holmes' masterly interpretation of Clarence Budington Kelland's story in the Saturday Evening Post.
Two Millions Wasted

It is not too early to bring up right now a most important matter—namely, that of next year's Exposition.

The question is: Shall we drift along as we have in this matter; or shall we start afresh, next year, in many fundamental respects?

Who shall hold the Exposition?

What kind of an Exposition should be held?

We have raised before these same questions and thereby stirred up some local animosities.

However, the questions still stand; and the facts involved are so patent that sooner later they are bound to control the situation.

In the first place, in all other industries, Expositions are held by the manufacturer.

The idea, simply, of an Exposition, is the joint display by manufacturers of their wares, which exhibit the dealer and also the public are invited to attend.

In the industry we started our Expositions are the other way around.

A little history may be enlightening.

* * * * *

The first Exposition—in New York in 1913—was started as a private enterprise. The manufacturers were in no way organized. One enterprising individual took the opportunity and started the Exposition ball rolling.

The exhibitors having previously held conventions at which the manufacturers made displays in a small way and being the only organized branch of the industry, hastened to join in the holding of the first New York Exposition.

The following year two expositions were held, due, not to a demand for two, but simply because of a split in exhibitor organization. There was as yet no manufacturer organization.

Next year an organization of the industry was attempted, with the result that again two Expositions were held in New York City, one by the Board of Trade and another by the local exhibitors. Again there was no demand for two shows.

The expositions of the next two years were held and managed by the local exhibitors of Chicago in the name of the National Exhibitors' League, as a matter, apparently, of established custom.

This history is scarcely favorable to the holding of any more such Expositions.

The seven so-called National Expositions of the industry held since 1913 must have cost nearly two million dollars, which money, of course, has been paid by and out of the industry, by its branches and members.

If these Expositions have been held for the benefit of the treasury of the Exhibitors' League then they have been flat failures and monumental follies. Out of the millions spent a few meagre thousands have crept into the coffers of the Exhibitors' League. We know of only one such published contribution up to this year, namely, that $5,000 given last year by the management of the Chicago Exposition.

A direct contribution from the manufacturers of but one per cent. of the huge sum would have done more financial good to the cause of National Exhibitor Organization. Five or ten per cent. would have amply financed exhibitor organization throughout these years; and even the industry would have saved a round one and three-quarter millions of dollars.

* * * * *

On the other hand, if these expositions are to be counted as advertising expense, then, again, they have been flat failures.

It may pay to hold a national advertising exposition of automobiles, considering their average selling price at one thousand dollars apiece and their selling appeal limited to a few hundred thousand people who can afford to travel to New York City to attend the show.

But our motion picture commodity is a ten cent ticket of admission and our public is fifteen millions strong. To spend a quarter of a million dollars advertising ten cent admissions to the attendance of a single city is—not good advertising. Why not take full pages in a string of newspapers which would reach the fifteen millions?

Again, what have our Expositions exposed?

To our mind they have simply exposed that which should have always been kept from the hero-worshipping fans, the very thing that makes them fans, namely, the living presence, shorn of all enticing mystery, of the people of the screen.

Speaking Editorialy:

Will the New Association Be Admitted?

The American Exhibitors' Association has made application for admission to the National Association of the Industry. President Brady has ruled that such application is proper under Article II of the National Association's constitution and by-laws.

It now remains for the directors to decide whether or not they will admit to the industry's organization an important, and comparatively, a considerable body of exhibitors.

We believe they will vote favorably.

The stipulations of the by-laws are specific. They state that another body of exhibitors, the M. P. E. L. of America, was urged to join, was received unconditionally, and the sum of $4,000 was donated by the National Association to pay the expenses of their director members to the first board meetings in New York.

We do not believe that the Directors will impose harsh or impossible entrance conditions upon this body of exhibitors, the first exhibitor group to indicate a desire to affiliate themselves with the industry's general organization; such action would scarcely be fair in view of the fact another body of exhibitors, the M. P. E. L. of America, was urged to join, was received unconditionally and the sum of $4,000 was donated by the National Association to pay the expenses of their director members to the first board meetings in New York.

We do not believe that the exhibitor directors of the National Association will vote against the new body. The best and fairest minds in the old League see the new League in but one light, namely, as a division of organization which will in the end set national exhibitor organization upon a broader basis and better plane than it ever has had or had any chance of having.

To discriminate now and in this way against the new body will certainly not pave the way to this desirable end.

After all, what honest reason can be set up against the admission of exhibitors—under any body—to the National Association?

What honest reason—in the best interests of national exhibitor organization? What honest reason—in the best interests of an organized industry? What honest reason—especially at this time, when patriotism alone demands a completely organized industry?

Why Not State Units?

Possibly the best way for exhibitors to join the National Association of the industry is through their state and local Leagues.

Let each state and local League join as a state or city unit. Let the Constitution and By-Laws of the National Association be so amended that this is possible.

There will be no squabble then over present or future splits in national exhibitor organization.

Each state League—and the state League and locals are the only active exhibitor organizations thus far achieved—will then have direct contact with the National Association of the industry. The moment legislative trouble arises each League can establish this contact with the industry at large and secure the industry's help.

The National Association will accomplish by this means what it wants, namely, the largest possible exhibitor membership, and this membership will continue undisturbed by national organization politics and mishaps.

The American Automobile Association is composed of state units, and this association is harmonious, powerful and active.

Why not?

Service with a Capital "S"

Some years back it was the practice among merchants of all grades to boast a motto. From shoe makers to department stores, each told the possible customer, "Our Motto is So-and-So."

Taking trade paper publishing as merchandising, were we asked to give the motto of Motion Picture News for the coming year we could probably not express our opinions better than by replying:

"Service with a capital 'S'!"

Service that means more than a catch-phrase; Service that means dollars and cents to our readers and advertisers is the meaning of that capital "S."

Some signs of this Service will be found in this issue, others will follow as rapidly as events will permit. The Exhibitors' Service Bureau, meaning direct aid in the solving of theatre managers' problems is one; the new Film Specialties Department under the direction of Miss Berg, enabling producers and exhibitors to secure greater returns from this neglected field is another; the Anti-Misframe League's work for better projection and better pictures; the coming West Coast Edition and other plans for intensive circulation are others—all are part and promise of our aim for the coming year:

"Service with a capital 'S'!"

In other words, we have only exposed a secret which is at once one of the motion pictures' highest assets as a public entertainment.

Will some one kindly cite one single thing of value we have bought with this two million dollar Exposition budget?

Has the industry thereby made one step forward?

Can anyone justify this wild expenditure by an industry which has to struggle hard to finance its own protective organizations—when State Exhibitors' Leagues are fighting along with a few hundred dollars against legislative odds that threaten to overwhelm their members—when the whole industry has stood face to face for the past two years with tax and law crises which are about to paralyze it?

In conclusion, there is another astounding fact to face: with all this huge expenditure on Expositions, not one single financial report has ever been published. We understand that such a report is forthcoming for the first time, from the management of this year's Exposition.

Undoubtedly a proper and profitable Exposition can be held; and in connection with it a convention which every exhibitor in the country will find it to be his business interest to attend.

At least we have some decided views on this highly important subject and will present them in our next issue.

Lee Follows Lesser with State Rights Association

Joseph F. Lee and Sol Lesser

That of National Exhibitors—Lee's Plan Permits Member to Reject Picture That He Does Not Like

TWO associations among state rights buyers were formed during the past week. One sponsored by Joseph F. Lee, a prominent state rights buyer, the other, by Sol Lesser—another prominent buyer. Both associations are as yet unnamed. Plans are not fully developed but it is expected that both will be under working conditions in the near future. The idea of both runs along the same line, followed by the First National Exhibitors' Association, formed only a short time ago. The association sponsored by Mr. Lesser is said to follow almost exactly the same principle and the same details. Mr. Lee, represented by the action taken by Mr. Lesser, conceived an entirely different idea as to the acquisition of film rights.

It is Mr. Lee's opinion that the scheme as mapped out by Mr. Lesser is not the only one to be in favor of state rights buyers. In view of this fact immediately after Mr. Lesser's plans were made known, Mr. Lee called together a number of prominent state rights buyers and laid his plans before them. Louis D. Mayer, of Boston, and another prominent exhibitor of Washington, D. C., are the only two members announced as being affiliated with Mr. Lee in the organization of this association. The names of the other members who will be associated with Mr. Lee will be announced later. The plan operates on the same lines as Mr. Lesser's, and Lee was not present at the meeting for which he was sponsor, owing to illness. He is confined in Dr. Stern's sanitarium, Seventy-seventh street and West End avenue, with typhoid fever. Leon D. Netter, represented by Mr. Lesser at the meeting.

The sharp distinction between the proposed methods to be followed by the two associations lies in the rules to be followed in purchasing rights to a picture. While Lee's plan requires the consent of the majority before the product is bought. For example, if there are nine members of the association and five of them agree on purchasing the rights to a picture, the other four will have to abide by their decision. Mr. Lee's plan puts it up to the member in a manner that permits one or more members to withdraw from a certain transaction if the one or more think that the picture is not available for their use. In other words, if their are eight members in the Lee association any number can decide upon a picture and the rights will be purchased for them. The remaining number who have declined to put their stamp of approval on the purchase do not have to take the picture.

Mr. Lee plans to divide the country into fifteen different territories or sections, each section to have a representative picture man to look after the interests of the association in that particular section or territory.

Mr. Lee in commenting upon the steps taken says:

"There is every reason to believe that success is before us. In drawing up these plans the individual has been given first consideration. Realizing how difficult it is to have any number of picture men agree upon any one production as available for all territory, I have conceived this plan to make possible a method whereby each member can feel assured of satisfaction because there is none of compulsion. If they like the product suggested for their consideration—very good. If not, they are free agents and can pass it up—and wait for the next one. My plan is the co-operative one without the compelling next to the majority. The majority does not rule. No one member is compelled to follow the dictates of the majority. This, I think, is the strong point. It will do away with all friction and opposition. The opportunity for unity is offered. It is up to the members to decide whether or not they shall unite. It is not placing the buying of film or business hands of minority.

"The members alone are not the only ones who will benefit greatly by the action suggested. In dividing the country into fifteen territories, the association has brought the entire country within a very small radius. Why? Because in each territory there will be a representative who knows his particular territory like a book. He knows what a sex picture or a problem picture or some other picture means to his territory. He knows whether that picture is going to take. He knows whether or not it is going to be a failure. We all know that a picture which is a great success in one territory might be a rank failure in another. The member whose territory is not adapted to a certain kind of picture can pass it up under my plan. There is no compulsion. I can conceive of no reason why if the plans as suggested by me, are followed out, that this association will not prove of immense value to exhibitor and patron."

The personnel of the Lesser association includes the names of M. Rosenberg, Portland, Ore.; Nathan Hirsch, New York; Leon D. Netter, Austin; William Old-know, Atlanta, Ga., and George Jacobs, Pittsburgh. Full details as to organization and future plans will be announced later.

American Exhibitors' Association Is Not Marking Time

Executive officers and prominent members of the newly formed American Exhibitors' Association will gather in New York, Thursday, August 16, for a further conference on organization plans. At this time important developments are anticipated, as the association is not marking time pending the decision of status which will be rendered by the national association at a meeting on August 27, but is following out the lines of campaign previously laid out. At this meeting will be decided definitely the attitude and policy of the association toward the national body. A broad, national plan will be made to the exhibitors of the country this week through the medium of a four-page printed bulletin.

General Manager Pettijohn expressed himself, however, as satisfied with the progress so far made.

Arthur Friend to Halt Rush of Food Films

Chairman Food Commission Committee Urges Distributors to Hold Food Conservation Pictures Until Conference with Hoover

ARTHUR S. FRIEND, chairman of the Food Commission Committee, of the motion picture industry, has issued an important notice to the trade advising against too precipitate use of film propaganda regarding food conservation. The warning says:

"The War Committee of the moving picture industry appointed to act with Mr. Herbert Hoover on the food commission respectfully request the consideration of the trade to the following:

"The chairman of this committee is now in Washington, getting in touch with the whole question and in conference to determine along which lines the industry will be able to render the greatest aid to the country and the Government on the important question of food conservation.

"We realize the extreme necessity for prompt action but at the same time feel that grave errors may be made and much effort may be wasted and, in fact, may have to be undone if full consideration be not first given to each step.

"For this reason this committee requests the trade in general and every manufacturer and distributor in particular not to undertake the making or showing of any film dealing with any phase of food conservation until the many sides of the matter be given the most careful consideration. A plan of propaganda is worked out that is fundamentally sound in every particular.

"We believe every one will realize the necessity for this mode of procedure. There will be a very large amount of work for the industry quickly connection with the various activities of the Government."
George K. Spoor Urges Varied Program Use

Synopsis President Declares Exhibitors Must Balance Their Offerings to Bring the Maximum Revenue from House's Clientele

"THE improperly balanced program is proving a menace to the business of every exhibitor who is not giving this matter his most serious consideration," says George K. Spoor, president of the Ogden Pictures Corporation. This question is the most important to theatre managers who are changing their pictures several times per week. The week's program for such theatres must have the widest possible variety and appeal in order to secure the maximum revenue from the clientele of that house.

"It has certainly been proven that each type of photoplay has its individual class of followers. There are those who care only for Western subjects, others who prefer comedy dramas, then another branch of dramas, straight comedies, problem plays all have their devotees. Even the short subject program is extremely popular in many localities and often comes as a relief to the fan who has grown tired of five and six reel subjects. Now, as much as it is a generally accepted fact that very few persons attend their favorite picture theatre more than twice each week, does it not seem advisable to so vary the programs that every class of patron will find something of interest in the selections for the week?

"A very good idea as to the feasibility of properly balancing the week's program can be gained from the manner in which this question is handled by the old-time "Ten-Twelves". Their repertoire men are many and a small town exhibitor has reason to rue the fact that these men have balanced their programs as they have. Generally one of these companies stays even in the smallest towns for at least a week and as long as they can be kept. And by showing everything from "heavy melodrama" and "blood-curdling westerns" to so-called farce comedies these companies are generally able to make the small town exhibitor think that his entire patronage has been satisfied. And it is known that the novelty of the thing draws just as effectively from the better element as from the other classes. That has been proven conclusively.

"Let us suppose that there are enough people in a given district preferring program made up of short subjects to make two nights each week profitable. That means a source of revenue on those two nights that were formerly untouched and still leaves four or five programs from which the patrons desiring the longer subjects may choose their two nights' entertainment. In other words, nearly as much money can be taken in at the box office in four nights as was formerly taken in during the entire week, besides which the remaining nights' receipts are made to provide their additional revenue.

"That is one of the chief reasons Essanay is releasing a varied program. Our investigation department has found that a strong interest in short subjects, especially of a comedy nature, still exists in the minds of the public."

dispatches to the dailies from Al

daimy say: Venue of the cooperation of the Lewis Selznick to interests with those of Adolph Zukor, which has been rumored for weeks in New York, is contained in the list of incorporations issued by Secretary of State Hugo, this week.

The formation of the Select Pictures Corporation, Millbrook, N. Y., to deal in all branches of motion pictures, with a capital of $5,000 furnished the verification, according to this correspondence. The directors of the new corporation areickle Ludvig, Ralph A. Koon, and Emil E. Schauer, all of 185 Fifth avenue, New York City, the same building in which Paramount makes its headquarters.

The Select Corporation is to release all Selznick pictures, the productions of Clara Kimball Young, and offerings of any independent manufacturer who cares to use this nation-wide channel to sell his pictures.

According to New York reports, Adolph Zukor has obtained the rights to all Clara Kimball Young's productions for a period of four years. She is to be paid a certain sum for each picture. The suit entered by Selznick against Miss Young for alleged breach of contract, and her counter litigation, have been withdrawn from the courts. The new arrangement will permit Selznick to share in the profits on the Young productions.

Another important announcement from the Secretary of State's office, in which Lewis Selznick is interested, is the formation of the Squirrel Film Corporation, New York City, to manufacture motion pictures, lease and own theatres. The organization has a capital of $100,000, and its directors are Josephine De Cippico, Lewis J. Selznick and Charles E. Lydecker. The headquarters are at 729 Seventh avenue, New York City.

"THE Conqueror," first of the William Fox standard pictures in which William Farnum is to star, pictures the life of General Sam Houston, and is therefore a cross-section out of the most stirring portion of American history.

In the first scenes Nashville, Tenn., of 1830, is depicted. Libraries were searched and finally a picture was found that would serve as a model in the erection of a village street. The carpenters went to work under direction of George Grenier, technical director, and his art director, Charles Odd. Finally the author of the play, Henry C. Warnack, was called in to pass on the setting.

Warnack is Mr. Warnack, who is a well-known newspaperman, first laid eye upon that set he gasped in amazement. Then he rubbed his eyes and pinched himself.

"On that corner," he managed to gasp, finally, "I was born. Right in that little old house. My father was born there, too. In that building directly across the street my grandfather had his counselor-at-law office. On that balcony he welcomed Sam Houston many a time."

Hattrick Selected as Secretary of International
Announcement is made of the selection of E. B. Hattrick as secretary of the International Film Service. Mr. Hattrick's experience covers a wide range of newspaper and film activities. For several years he was employed as a reporter, telegraph editor and bureau manager on the United Press Association. In 1909, he left that organization to accept a position as editor of the Hearst Syndicate and in that capacity he took charge of the news photo graph departments of the various Hearst newspapers and welded them into one organization for the gathering and distribution of photograph illustrations for newspapers and magazines.

After the establishment of the news picture organization, Mr. Hattrick conceived the idea of utilizing this institution for the gathering of an up-to-the-minute news film. His theory was that good, trained news photographers were better adapted for this work.

Active Week Recorded by National Association

Many Important Meetings Held to Every Class Pour In—From Applications for Membership

A NNUAL meetings of the members of the National Association, board of directors’ meetings and many important conferences pertaining to the activities of the war co-operation committee have made the past week a busy one at association headquarters. At the same time membership work has been progressing favorably.

Recently applications for membership in the Producers’ Class include the following: Selig-Polyscope Company of Chicago, Illi nos, to be represented by William N. Selig; Pathe Exchange, Inc., to be represented by J. A. Borst; Norma Talma Film Corporation, to be represented by Joseph M. Schenck, and The Bray Studios Inc., to be represented by John R. Bray.

WILLIAM J. McGrath, popular and energetic, is now manager of the Chicago office of Motion Picture News, at 110 So. Dearborn St.

Mr. McGrath in his editorial capacity has already shown the men of the Chicago field that he is on the job with One Hundred Per Cent Cooperation, that he is “At Their Service.”

As Manager of the Mid-West office, Mr. McGrath will have greater opportunities than ever to carry out Motion Picture News' intention to give full and proper recognition to the importance of Chicago and the Mid-West in the film world.

When you're in Chicago call and see him—it's 110 So. Dearborn Street.

The Inter-Ocean Film Corporation has filed application for membership as exporters of motion pictures, creating a new classification which will be acted upon at the forthcoming meeting of the board of directors.

New additions to the Distributors’ Class are also recorded within a fortnight, and if the applications are received as anticipated, this important division of the association will be practically 100 per cent from a membership standpoint.

Inquiries recently received at the offices of the association, in the Times Building, from supply and equipment companies would indicate that several concerns are giving consideration to joining Class 3, which now includes nearly a score of some of the most important companies engaged in this branch of the motion picture business.

New recruits are being added to the ranks of the General Division through applications for individual memberships. During the past week the officials and staff members of the Motion Picture News filed the following applications: E. Kendall Gillett, H. A. Wyckoff, Robert Welch, George Gould, Frances Klein, J. S. Judd and William McCormack. Individual memberships were also received from Harry A. Nadel, Ralph A. Kohn and Allen Kander and an appeal will be made to every company member to enroll their officials and employees as members of the General Division.

At Last an Index of General Film Comedies

The General Film Herald, for the special edition, will have the title, order of release and all data about every comedy reel of its product which may be obtainable, even a synopsis being included.
“The Retreat of the Germans at the Battle of Arras” is the title of a new war film controlled by the British Government, purchased from Fox, and presented here by the house of Pathé.

Pathé announces that the film has just “run the gauntlet of Teuton submarines” and arrived in this country. It is stated to be the most remarkable film yet taken, and so pronounced by a British government official and William K. Vanderbilt, who saw it together.

A first description of scenes in this film says: "At one point there shoots forth a blast of red flame out of black smoke to a great distance and with most terrifying effect. It comes from an improved variety of flame projector, the machine recommended by General Von Arnim himself during the Battle of Arras. Then you see the projection of burning oil bursting out in great waves of liquid fire. A battalion of men would be charred like burned sticks if this touched them for a second. "Then arises sluggishly over the field a thick baby vapor, almost invisible, as it mixes with the air, carrying with its foul breath instant death to any man who should take a gulp of it. Thus have the Allies been forced to pay back the German in his own coin."

“Of the most spectacular scenes shows an event which is harmless to human life, simply a new form of smoke barrage to conceal the movements of troops”, the battle field. Through this smoke, nothing can be seen and one may be five hundred yards from a great attack and have no vision of it.

“Suddenly there is a great surprise for a young tree in full foliage on the left of the field on the high bank, topples forward slowly and then falls with a crash into the undergrowth. Something is moving, something monstrous. It comes heaving and tearing its way through the bushes, snapping off low branches and smashing young saplings to splinters like an elephant on a stampede. Then it comes into sight on top of the bank, a big grey beast with a blunt nose pushing its way forward all tangled in green leaves and twigs like a brutal Bacchus with vine leaves in his hair. It is Old Brother Tank, bent on death and destruction.

Buel to Continue to Direct Fox Kiddie Stars

William Fox Personally Selects to Oversee Feature Productions

KEANE BUEL, one of the veteran directors of the Fox Film Corporation, yet one of the youngest in point of age, has been selected by William Fox, personally, to direct the future activities of the Lee children—Jane and Katherine.

These two youngsters made an instantaneous success in their first picture, “Two Little Imps,” which was directed by Mr. Buel. There was an immediate demand from exhibitors, and the public for similar pictures. "The Grand Old Man," "Baby Grandmother." The problem of selecting the future director of these children was a most serious one and Mr. Fox had repeated conferences with his aides and advisors. The most capable directors, not only of the Fox company, but of other producers, were considered.

After looking over the lists submitted to him, Mr. Fox said: "There is no necessity of going outside of our own organization for a director for the Lee children. Keanen Buel is the man. He has already produced a marvelous picture with them, and for years I have watched his work with children. Children like and work with him and I have the greatest confidence in his ability." This decision of Mr. Fox places Mr. Buel in charge of one of the most unique and important features of the program of the Fox Film Corporation. Mr. Buel is working constantly.

"It's a Jewel" is Slogan of New Company

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC., has opened an office at 1600 Broadway, fourth floor, Mecca Building, and will go into the business of distributing special features, one a month, at present. The slogan of the company will be "It's a Jewel."

A first announcement says:

"Jewel Productions, Inc., will purchase for cash outright, for distribution throughout the United States and Canada, the biggest and best special feature productions obtainable. Independent producers have been invited to submit their pictures to the reviewing board of Jewel Productions, Inc., with a view toward selling them to this organization, which will endeavor to conduct the most efficient and co-operative string of exchanges in the entire industry.

"One of the striking innovations introduced by the officials of the Jewel Company is the rule that before any production is purchased or even considered, it must have received the stamp of approval. It must appear before the board of examiners of at least one week in a metropolitan center. This will eliminate entirely the gambling chance that it is usual for the distributor to take in accepting a production which he must necessarily pass on to the exhibitor."

"As a forerunner of the many fine attractions available to exhibitors everywhere through the Jewel exchanges, they announce the purchase from the Universal Film Manufacturing Company of George Bronson Howard's exciting drama, "Come Through," which is well known to have scored a decided hit during its run at the Broadway theatre."

Frohman Amusement Corporation's Statement

To offset possible misapprehensions on the part of exhibitors and exchange men, the Frohman Amusement Corporation last week requested the publication of certain facts regarding it. The letter in full follows:

"We have observed that there has been considerable publicity printed recently emanating from the office of a certain motion picture manufacturing or distributing concern pertaining to the production of that concern, but using in each instance head-lines referring to Frohman pictures and Frohman activities.

"This corporation was organized, as you know, some four years ago and has spent many thousands of dollars in popularizing and publicizing the name of Frohman in connection with motion picture productions.

"It seems to us that you and your most valued journal may heartily agree that we have a just cause for complaint in the application of the name Frohman, excepting when pertaining to this organization.

"The establishing of the identity of the name Frohman with other manufacturing concerns, particularly because of the statements Distributing Corporation and the establishment of arrangements, etc., has caused clients of this organization no end of confusion and has done us an absolute injustice.

"We do ask of you that you give ample publicity to this communication that the loyal exchange men and exhibitors who have built for us our cliental may understand that the Frohman Amusement Corporation remains just as it has ever, and in the same independent position.

"This, we feel sure, will in no small measure offset the many confusing articles which have been printed."

Mme. Petrova to Produce for Superpictures

Mme. Olga Petrova announces from her summer home in Maine that she has formed her own company and is to produce features to be released by Superpictures. Mme. Petrova, who is the veteran actress and former stage star, is president of the company, and the company will be known as Petrova Pictures, Inc. The company is to be housed in a new building at 1652 Broadway,

"It is true that I have formed my own company, Petrova Pictures, Inc., for the production of my own pictures in my own studios under my own supervision."

"This company has unlimited capital behind it and I am to have unlimited time in which to get the very best results. I want to make a few big, very big, pictures each year. All producing and distributing arrangements are in the hands of Frederick L. Collins, my partner in the new company.

"At the office of Superpictures, Inc., Mr. Collins, who is also president of The McClure Publications, said:

"Given the best productions that money and taste can secure, backed by the biggest publicity campaign ever put behind a single star, Petrova will make more money for the exhibitor than any actress now before the public."

Triangle’s World Survey of Motion Picture Trade

H. O. Davis, Vice-President, Studies Broad Problems of the Industry from Best Reports Ever Gathered in Thousands of Cities in All Countries of the Globe

TRIANGLE has completed a world survey of the film situation that is in many respects one of the most remarkable statistical showings of the industry ever made. Figures and facts have been compiled from thousands of cities in every country of the globe where English is spoken or read—and in some other countries where it is an unknown tongue.

H. O. Davis, vice-president and general manager of Triangle Film Corporation, has compiled a special report, based on these statistics, showing graphically the scope and thoroughness of the new Triangle’s campaign.

The report, which contains statistics never before compiled, embraces an exhaustive summary of cinema affairs in every section of the Globe, from the viewpoint of both exhibitor and producer. It has taken more than a year to gather the data and several months to assemble the facts in the desired form. Much of the information is of a confidential nature and is considered an invaluable asset for the furtherance of the Triangle’s plans for the future.

According to Mr. Davis, the features of the summary that now may be made public pertain to figures furnished by thousands of exhibitors in every part of the United States and all of the foreign countries in which amusement enterprises have not been completely devastated and demoralized by the war.

World Figures in Detail

The exhibitors have reported on almost every phase of their business, including brands of films used, receipts, population, class of population, kinds of films most popular, methods of advertising, results of advertising, support given by newspapers and publications, popular interest in motion picture affairs, popularity of individual players, opinions as to the relative importance of star, story and direction, and a score of other technical but vital facts.

"The result of this survey," said Mr. Davis, "is that we have assembled in concrete form an array of statistics that remove from our relations with the exhibitors the element of chance or guesswork and reduces production to a mathematical and business certainty. The information in the report is indisputable and contains a condensed summary of obstacles to be overcome by both exhibitor and producer and a detailed account of conditions encountered by experienced showmen in the various communities represented.

Movie Facts from Jap City

"By way of illustration, turning at random to a city listed in the survey, we find a city in Japan of 120,000 population, a manufacturing community where the majority of the residents cannot afford to pay more than a stipulated price of admission for their film entertainment. The kinds of plays most popular here are those which have an uplifting moral, or depict industry and thrift attaining the reward of success. Vampire plays are unpopular here, but short news reels or fillers which have an educational value are at a premium. Bright, witty comedies are always popular here, according to the report, but the residents of this community do not care particularly for the slapstick and custard pie variety of humor.

"In this Japanese city, as throughout the entire nation, plays are never popular that have Japanese actors performing menial tasks or acting as the butt of ridiculous jokes perpetrated by Caucasians or members of another race. The Japanese are not averse to seeing their countrymen the target of jokes or horseplay, but they resent their countrymen being shown in a more unfavorable light than the other actors. There is much other information about this city and the motion picture situation in this locality, but these facts are enough to explain the purpose and nature of the survey."

Mr. Davis announced that other details of the survey will be made public in the near future, as will policies planned and outlined for the further development of the new Triangle.

Parisienne Here To Buy Pictures for Europe

Because Men Are Needed at Home, Mme. Schuepbach, of French Film Company, Crosses Ocean to Visit American Producers

MME. A. CHARLES SCHUEPBACK, one of the officials of the Mundus-film Company of Paris, has arrived in America to negotiate for European rights of photoplay productions.

This is the first time that a woman has made such a journey for any European Company. She said:

"We need every man we have in France and cannot afford to let one of them make such a trip."

Mme. Schuepbach announces that she has purchased the French rights to "The Barrier," "The Submarine Eye," "U. S. Navy," the Dilmars Animal Pictures, and is now negotiating for the rights to the Billy West comedies. One of the first places she visited was the studios of the King Bee Comedies at Bayonne.

"I expect to be here about six weeks," says Mme. Schuepbach, "and during that time will look at various big productions. You make excellent pictures in this country. I only want the big pictures. American subjects are much in favor in France just now, although the picture business is somewhat dull. We are only allowed nine performances a week in Paris, and just at present we are considering closing the moving picture theatres for the Winter because of the shortage of coal."

"The Mundusfilm Company is the largest firm of its kind in France and we buy for all of Europe. We have branches throughout France, Italy, Balkan states and Egypt."

Mme. Schuepbach is an attractive Parisienne and though only twenty-three years of age, holds one of the important positions with the Mundusfilm Company.
Goldwyn Contracts All Rex Beach Pictures

This includes "The Auction Block," which has just been filmed under the supervision of the author—directed by Trimble.

A.L future Rex Beach pictures, made from stories and novels, are to be distributed and controlled by the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, under a contract signed by Samuel Goldfish, president; Benjamin B. Hampton, for the Rex Beach Film Corporation, and Rex Beach himself. Since the formation of Goldwyn last December, Samuel Goldfish and his associates have been in negotiation with Messrs. Beach and Hampton. Both were quick to realize the advantages that would accrue to them.

The contract places the Goldwyn distribution in immediate possession of Mr. Beach's recently completed production of "The Auction Block." This play was six months in the making and the prediction by those who have seen it is that it will be a money-earner.

"The Auction Block" was directed by Larry Trimble, who since its completion has joined Goldwyn and is now directing Jane Cowl in "The Spreading Dawn," written by William Price.

By obtaining a series of Rex Beach productions Goldwyn comes into possession of stories Mr. Goldfish says will rank as the biggest box-office attractions in the film world. It is proposed to offer these pictures to exhibitors throughout the world in addition to the twenty-six features previously announced as constituting Goldwyn's scheduled annual output.

"Polly and Her Pals" in Antics on Screen

Cliff Sterritt's Newspaper Funny Pictures to Be Produced for Theatres by Lathrop Films, for A. Kay Company Release

A film adaptation of Cliff Sterritt's newspaper cartoons, widely known under the title "Polly and Her Pals," is to be offered for release soon by Lathrop Films, Inc., of New York. This company by agreement has secured the film rights to the "Polly" series. The finished picture will be universally distributed through the A. Kay Company.

Everybody who has read a newspaper is well acquainted with these characters. The cartoons were started a few years ago on the comic page of the New York Evening Journal. At present "Polly and Her Pals" cartoons are syndicated throughout the United States and appear daily in hundreds of the largest newspapers in the country.

Irwin on Visit to All V-L-S-E Exchanges

General Manager of the Company Also Plans to Discuss with Principal Exhibitors Throughout the Country Problems Affecting the Theatre Managers

WALTER W. IRWIN, general manager of V-L-S-E, and a director of the Greater Vitagraph Company, on Friday, August 3, started on a trip throughout the country, the itinerary of which will include every branch exchange of V-L-S-E throughout the country before the trip is completed.

Mr. Irwin will visit Minneapolis, Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburgh almost immediately. The itinerary for the balance of the trip has not been arranged as yet.

Many of the prominent exhibitors in each of the cities to be visited already have made plans to entertain Mr. Irwin. Just what form of entertainment will be held has not been mentioned, but the chances are that most of them will be regular get-togethers at which the problems of exhibitor, producer and distributor will be discussed thoroughly.

Other than for the purpose of getting in close personal touch with the members of his organization, Mr. Irwin is giving up his vacation for the third summer in succession in order to be sure that he is treating the exhibitors of the country in an equitable manner.

The present trip by Mr. Irwin was planned hastily upon receipt of requests from several large exhibitors that he take enough time from his office to meet the exhibitors face to face and get personally acquainted with those he has not met herefore. In some of these letters the statements were made that several of the larger producers of the country were attempting to inaugurate a policy that would mean bankruptcy to more than 50 per cent. of the exhibitors should the plans be successful.

"We do not believe V-L-S-E of Greater Vitagraph is a party to this combination," a St. Louis exhibitor wrote, "but we want to see you face to face, and want your assurance as the chief executive of V-L-S-E that your policy will not change."

In answer to this and several letters along the same line, Mr. Irwin sent telegrams that he would be glad to meet all exhibitors face to face and completely reassure them.

Exhibitors to See Eight Parts of "Fighting Trail"

To give exhibitors full opportunity to see the episodes of the new Vitagraph outdoor serial, "The Fighting Trail," Albert E. Smith, president, has already ordered films for eight episodes shipped to twenty-six branches. This is far in advance of the release date—September 10. Mr. Smith said:

"I have had this done because I consider 'The Fighting Trail' one of the most finished pieces of work Vitagraph has ever turned out. I think it is the most exciting motion picture ever put on the market."

The big feature was made in the Sierra Nevada mountains, Death Valley and the Mojave Desert of California, and practically the entire setting is outdoors, the interiors being only negligible. More than 1,000 extras were used at times in the making of the picture. William Duncan, who directed and played the lead, established a new record for fast production by completing his work seven days ahead of schedule time.

Duncan has brought into play every sort of thrill that human ingenuity could devise, including aeroplanes, underground perils, mountain torrents, chasm leaps, hand-to-hand fights on precipice edges and plunges down mountain sides.

One of the outstanding features of the serial is the sincerity with which the fights have been staged. Starting with the very first episode, Duncan, an expert boxer and wrestler, is engaged in hand-to-hand encounters. There is no "pulling" on his part or that of his opponents.

Standard Gets West Comedies for Michigan

The Standard Film Service, Peter Smith Building, Detroit, announces having secured exclusively for Michigan, starting with September releases, all rights to the Billy West Comedies and the Art Drama productions. In addition the company will continue to handle the Tito Comedies and the Mutt and Jeff Comedies, as well as other features and short reels.

Vivian M. Moses to Handle Selznick Publicity

A change in the office staff of the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises brings Vivian M. Moses to the position of publicity manager, succeeding Randolph Bartlett, who has joined the editorial staff of PhotoPlay Magazine.

But for the past six months he has been a member of the scenario staff of Goldwyn Pictures, and during half that time was engaged as well in special promotion and advertising work.

In magazine editorial work Vivian Moses has served on the staff of Harper's, Current Literature (now Current Opinion), Literary Digest, Metropolitan Magazine, Good Housekeeping, People's Magazine—which he founded and edited for its first three years.
Lasky, During Western Visit, Finds Individuality Pays

Victor of F. P. Lasky Surprised at Growth of Studios—Enthuses Over Pictures in the Making and Projected—Directors Given Free Hand and Work Independently

FRESH from his visit to the Pacific Coast, Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky, last week discussed the producing situation as he found it at the western studios of the company.

The last time that Mr. Lasky visited the coast the producing activities of the company embraced only the Lasky and Morosco Studios at Hollywood and Los Angeles respectively. Today California is literally dotted with the headquarters of independent producers who are at work preparing photoplays for distribution through the gigantic concern.

With the Lasky and Morosco Studios both being enlarged to accommodate the vastly augmented producing schedule of Paramount and Artcraft, there are also the studios of Thomas H. Ince being utilized to their capacity in the production of Ince pictures for Paramount and Artcraft. At Edendale, Mack Sennett is already hard at work completing his first Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies in which there will appear the bevy of beautiful girls for which this great comedy producer's pictures have long since been celebrated.

Individuality Paramount

"The amazing fact about all this vast producing activity," said Mr. Lasky, "lies not so much in its wide extent, but rather in the remarkable situation represented by the individual activities of a number of great producing geniuses who are all engaged in preparing their best product for release by the great institution.

"The wonderful individuality of Thomas H. Ince has full sway in every detail of production in the photoplays which bear his name. At the same time Mack Sennett is not bound by any restrictions whatever in preparing his remarkable comedies for our distribution, but has rather been urged to let his own unsurpassed genius guide him to the fullest extent.

"We have already announced that Cecil B. De Mille is going to produce four photoplays under his own name. These will be absolutely independent in every sense of the word as are the productions of the other directors to whom we have already referred. We have decided upon the subject matter of these four productions, which will be adaptations of great plays and novels of world-wide repute.

Organizations Independent

"Furthermore, we have the independent organizations of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, and we are not content with ourselves, which are already hard at work preparing the next Artcraft photoplays for these two inimitable stars. William S. Hart has surrounded himself with the most distinguished organization and is also in the midst of preparation for his first Artcraft production, under the personal supervision of Mr. Ince.

"So, you see, we have five totally distinct and independent organizations on the coast already hard at work, each one guided by its individual genius and developing its own individuality to the fullest extent. This is a highly important factor in the future success of the Famous Players-Lasky because it guarantees the fact that productions which we will release will embrace a wide range and will be as totally different and possess as much individuality as though they had been productions which were bought by us in the open market. This will furnish the exhibitor with extremely varied and diversified entertainment for his house.

"Meanwhile the productions which are already completed or are under way with the various stars at the Hollywood and Los Angeles plants have filled me with enthusiasm. We are certainly improving the quality of our productions, as I think everyone will agree who sees the photoplays which are now in progress."

Farrar Picture Wonderful

"While I was visiting the studio, Cecil B. De Mille was putting finishing touches on the first of the Farrar productions for this season, 'The Woman That God Forgot.' Farrar has never looked better in her life than she does today, and she was simply beautiful in that part of the production which I saw run off on the studio screen.

"Jack Pickford is completing an adaptation of Mark Twain's 'Tom Sawyer,' which will be by far the best of his photoplays, and we have already laid out a schedule of productions for Jack which is unprecedented in quality and popularity. Following 'Tom Sawyer' Jack Pickford will star in another Mark Twain classic, 'Huckleberry Finn,' which will be followed by two of the best-known of the recent plays, 'Relatively,' 'Mile-A-Minute Kendall' and 'Bunker Bean.'

"I was particularly interested in seeing Julian Eltinge's first picture, 'The Countess Charming,' because it represents the celebrated stage star's initial appearance before the camera. Now I must state that he will be a double attraction, for he is a male star in his own right in half the production, and is sure to prove one of our most popular women stars in the other half of the story.

"Plays Being Prepared

"Sessue Hayakawa, another unique figure in screen history, using filmdom's only Jap star, was completing an adaptation of Wallace Irwin's 'Hashimura Togo' when I arrived and I had the pleasure of seeing the finished product before I left. I am sure that Hayakawa is going to add much prestige to his already remarkable presentation of Irwin's famous Japanese school boy. It is really a marvelous piece of work.

"When I visited the Morosco studio, Vivian Martin was engaged upon a production which will not be scheduled for release until October or November and I will therefore not mention its name as Miss Martin has three productions completed and ready for release before this one. Always piquant and charming, Miss Martin is even more delightful in her new productions.

"Wallace Reid is, of course, busily engaged in supplying the local hospital with new and interesting cases. The rapid rise in popularity which this promising young star has enjoyed is one of the most pleasing incidents in Paramount history.

"I was particularly pleased that the arrival of Frank E. Woods occurred almost simultaneously with my own. Mr. Woods, who is D. W. Griffith's assistant, has been engaged as a supervisor of productions in the Morosco and Lasky Studios—a position similar to that which he held with Mr. Griffith."

Gala Picnic Enjoyed by Fox Employees

The employees of the Rothacker Film Company held their annual picnic and outing at Point Comfort, Fox Lake on Wednesday, August 8. The entire plant was closed during the day. The organization under which these pleasure and recreation jaunts are made is named the Rothacker Pleasure Club. The following were in charge of the picnic: George H. Gibson, Barbara Mertes, Lillian Riedel and Ernest Neumann.

There was an attendance of about 150 members of this club at the outing. From Fox Lake they were taken in autos busses to Point Comfort where bathing, dancing, fishing, boating and games made up the program of entertainment—not forgetting a big old fashioned picnic spread of good things to eat.
Vita President Upholds Re-issuing of Pictures

A. E. Smith Points Out That Majority of Favorite Players Have been with Vitagraph in Early Days and Public Is Anxious to See Reissues

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of the Vitagraph Company of America, replying to a question as to the ethics of re-issuing pictures in which stars at present with other companies appear prominently, said last week:

"First, don't think the matter of ethics enters into the situation at all, because I do not think ethical considerations can be applied.

"A motion picture, primarily, is an entertainment, and its longevity is measured only by public favor. Pictures that appeal to the public taste may go on and on for years, while others which do not carry the proper appeal may be shelved within a few months after their issuance. Good pictures are like good books and good books live forever. The mere fact that a certain individual star may be in a popular feature is only incidental to the main thing—the demand of the public for that particular picture. It would be manifestly stupid business for a company to shelve a picture simply because some star who had appeared in it had changed his or her affiliation after the picture had been made.

"Star contracts do not measure the life of a picture. It is public demand, as I said before.

"In the matter of re-issues, Vitagraph is in a peculiar position. It is well known that virtually every star of prominence—that is, the persons who won recognition only as screen players and not as stage favorites—has, at one time or another, been a Vitagraph player. And most of them were with this company when they were younger and, in the case of some of the women, more beautiful than they are today. Many of them were at their best as artists and we gave them the best vehicles and supporting casts obtainable. The result is that in our library we have hundreds of splendid subjects, the stories of which are better than the average play photoplay story of today, which were enacted by the most talented men and women the screen claimed. These pictures, two, three or four years old, are fine from a dramatic standpoint, and with the insertion of present-day titles make most attractive subjects for a program.

"Vitagraph has been the training school for stars and Vitagraph has been the pioneer in advanced photography as well. The result is that our re-issues compare very favorably with the product of many companies that are making pictures today. Another thing—we feel proud of the pictures that we made in the past, just as we feel proud of those that we are producing today, and we wish to give the new generation of motion picture patrons an opportunity of seeing them. A new generation of motion picture lovers comes into being every two years and those who have become "fans," so-called, in the last twenty-four months never have seen the pictures we purpose re-issuing. To them, for instance, the name of John Bunny is only a legend. They have been told that in his day Bunny was the funniest man on the screen; that he held public favor as does Chaplin today. But they never saw Bunny and they would like to see his pictures, perhaps, to compare him with Chaplin.

"There is no putting out some of the John Bunny subjects we are gratifying the desire of thousands of motion picture patrons, just the same as most of us would be gratified to see motion pictures of the great statesmen or actors of past ages whom we have been taught to revere.

"To sum up, Vitagraph re-issues are put forth solely on their merits as vehicles of entertainment and for no other reason, ethical or otherwise."

Paramount’s Plan Wins Whirlwind Success

New Star Series Selective Booking System in Every City of 10,000 and Over in United States—Old Patrons Stick Through

PARAMOUNT’S selective star series booking system went into effect August 5. With the passing of the date there comes from the distributing company most optimistic reports of the wide success of the project.

In discussing the situation as it stands after only a few days of operation of the system, Al. Lichtman, general sales manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, declared that the plan had worked out even more successfully than the heads of the organization had hoped.

"Of course there was no doubt of the ultimate success of the selective system because we had already proven its merits to the exhibitor in the case of Arctcraft," declared Mr. Lichtman, "but we did not believe that the rush of new business at the very beginning would be so tremendous as it has proven to be. There is not a town in the country with a population of 10,000 or over in which Paramount Pictures have not been booked under the selective plan.

"But the most delightful and inspiring thing about the whole business is the fact that on the contracts for the new productions there appear thousands of names that have been upon the company's books ever since the organization of Old Famous Player Film Company in 1912. The man who had faith in what was termed the wild scheme of Adolph Zukor of building up a business based upon five-part feature productions with great stage stars, saw their confidence justified. A far-saveng man more than amply justified.

"Of course the thing which appeals immediately to every exhibitor upon the examination of our new plan is the fact that we are offering him a lot of stars which his past experience has taught him to be the most popular drawing cards. His range of choice of stars themselves includes Margarette Clark, Billie Burke, Pauline Frederick, Mme. Petrova, Lina Cavalieri, Julian Eltinge, Vivian Martin, Dorothy Dalton, Emil Benes, Charles Ray, Jack Pickford, Louise Huff, Sessue Hayakawa, Wallace Reid and George Beban.

"Furthermore he has placed at his disposal the productions staged under the personal supervision of Adolph Zukor at Blackston, while the studios of Thomas H. Ince will prepare the type of productions for which they have already gained an enviable reputation. In addition, the comedy genius of Mack Sennett, together with the bevy of beautiful girls for which they have become famous, are placed within the range of his choice. There are also the whirlwind comedies starring Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle."

Wharton's Film from Rochester Given to Red Cross

The Red Cross film which was made by The Whartons for the use of the Red Cross committee of Rochester, N. Y., has been turned over to Evan Evans, chief of the motion picture division of the National Red Cross, as the contribution of The Whartons to the national Red Cross fund. The picture is to have country-wide distribution.

When the picture was made, it was believed that if the Rochester committee could gather a million dollars to turn over to the Red Cross, the members would be more than happy. Then the picture was released at every one of the theatres of Rochester and later sent to the outlying districts, with the result that when the money was counted, it was found that the contributions had exceeded the expectations by a half million dollars.

Notice—New Location for F.I.L.M. Club Outing

Owing to the lack of grounds on which to hold an athletic contest, it has been decided to change the location for the outing of the F-I-L-M Club, which is to be held on Saturday, August 18.

The new location will be Karetsoni's Cove, Glenwood-on-the-Sound, L. I.

Bret Opens Office to Write Scripts and Titles

Tom Bret, formerly sub-title editor of the Vitagraph and scenario editor at the Rolfe-Metro Studios, has just completed his first picturization of a story by Walt Mason. The Warner Bros. Comedies are being produced by Filmcraft.

Mr. Bret has opened an office at 616 Candler Building, where he is busy writing titles for the Metro-Drew Comedies, French Government war pictures and a number of big state rights features.

"The Conqueror" to Go into Globe Theatre

Following the run of the first of the Fox Kiddies Pictures, "Jack and the Beanstalk," at the Globe, William Fox will offer at that theatre "The Conqueror," the first of the series of Small Screen pictures of which William Foxfar is the producer. "The Conqueror," written by Henry Christeen Warnack, is built around the life of General Sam Houston.
Sick in Hospital, Henry Lehrman Keeps Working

During a brief period of illness recently, Henry Lehrman, who is directing Sunshine comedies for William Fox, had a screen arranged in his hospital room and a projection machine mounted behind his bed. Then he would lie propped up for hours, watching the work done by the directors who work under his supervision.

William Fox has announced that he will release during the coming year between twenty and twenty-six Sunshine comedies. The first of this series will be "His Smashing Career" and "A Milk Ped Vamp."

Mrs. Humiston, in Lower Court, Wins Over Universal

A decision of much importance to news film companies has just been rendered by Supreme Court Justice Ordway of New York, upholding a injunction against Universal forbidding the use of pictures of Mrs. Grace Humiston titled "Woman Lawyer Solves Ruth Cruger Mystery." The court says:

"The fact that the defendant's films are photographs of actual current events and are called 'The Universal Animated Weekly,' and are produced and distributed weekly, and used as soon as possible after the occurrence of events does not make them a newspaper; nor does it make them entitled to the protection extended to newspapers, on which the defendant relies.

"The defendants are exploiting the plaintiff's name and picture in their business for profit, and even if they are incidentally disseminating information as to the current events of the day, the plaintiff has the right to object to and an injunction against the continuation of such conduct.

"The plaintiff is not the commander of an army, a visiting ambassador, or even a public official, but a private citizen entitled to be protected in her right of privacy."

That Universal means to appeal was manifest from an order made requiring Mrs. Humiston to give a bond in the sum of $2,500 to protect the defendants in the event of a final decision favorable to themselves.

Balshofer Discovers His Star Owns Studio

Following the leasing by Fred J. Balshofer of several acres of space adjoining the studios of the Yorke Film Corporation in Hollywood, Harold Lockwood, the Yorke-Metro star, acquired the property last week at a sheriff's sale. Lockwood's purchase of the new studio property was a surprise to his producer and director, when the star presented a bill to Mr. Balshofer for the current month's rent.

Extensive improvements have been undertaken on the new property. Several buildings have been added, which include new quarters for Lockwood and for Lester Cuneo, the heavy man of the company, and also rooms for the property and technical departments.

A stage, sufficient in size to accommodate the elaborate sets of "Paradise Garden," is being completed. This, together with the other stages already in use, will furnish the Yorke company with room to erect a large number of sets at one time.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Sol Lesser's visit to New York has been prolonged by a sudden attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Lesser is undergoing treatment at Dr. Searle's sanitarium, at Seventy-second street and West End avenue.

M. Rosenberg of Portland, Ore., is a recent visitor to the city of bright lights and midnight music.

Leon D. Netter, hailing from Pittsburgh, dropped into town last week to wind up some important business.

Louis B. Mayer, well-known Bostonian, is in New York seeing that certain transactions are handled properly.

William Oldknow, whose native heath is Atlanta, Ga., arrived at the Pennsylvania station from the South country one day last week, mentioning the heat of travel and important deals afoot.

George Jacobs came to New York from Pittsburgh to participate in various important business transactions.

Colonel Fred Levy, Louisville theatrical magnate, was a New York visitor to look over the independent field.

W. F. Harris, a prominent exhibitor of Richmond, Va., is in New York on a business trip.

William Fait, Jr., of Utica, N. Y., treasurer of the American Exhibitors' Association, came to New York last week.

J. D. McKinney has returned to New York from Japan. His visit to the flowery kingdom extended over a year.

C. V. Henkel dared the scorching weather and made the trip from Los Angeles to New York, arriving in town last week.

A. J. Lang of the Nicholas Power Company has returned to New York from a vacation jaunt to Copake Falls, in the Berkshires.

R. C. Cropper, president of the Standard Film Corporation, distributors of the Art Drama Program in the Northwest, arrived in New York last week.

Arthur S. Kane to Head Selznick's Forces

To Lead Energetic Campaign in the Fall—Promotion Reward for Excellent Work in the West—On the Job in Washington

Arthur S. Kane, during the past year and a half, has been in charge of the western territory of the Selznick Pictures Corporation, whose Denver, Seattle and San Francisco offices he established. The amount of business which he wrote for Artcraft Pictures while in this position established a record for the territory, and is one of the achievements to which Mr. Kane points with pride.

Through Mr. Kane a new exchange has been established at Washington, D. C., to handle only pictures released through the Selznick firm. This gives Selznick an exclusive Washington exchange for the first time. Mr. Kane is in Washington for a stay of several days settling matters in connection with the opening of the new branch.

Mr. V. P. Whitaker, recently sales manager for Artcraft-Paramount pictures in Washington, will have charge of the new offices beginning August 13.

Film Man Marries His Secretary

The wedding of Miss Kathleen Golding and R. G. March, manager of the Specialty Film Import Company of St. John, N. B., is of interest to the theatre fraternity. Miss Golding, who is a niece of W. H. Golding of the Imperial theatre, was for some time his secretary.
Telling the Public About It Beforehand

What Advance Information Concerning Forthcoming Attractions Means in Accumulative Effect Upon the Box Office

Whether or not the public will be attracted to the theatre is largely determined by the promotion work done in advance of the picture going on exhibition. It is impossible to overrate the importance of this work.

EXHIBITORS of moving pictures are as purely salesmen as the grocer, and when they are dispensing soap and coffee. They have something to offer the public and for which the public has to pay. And just as does the successful grocer, the exhibitor should strive not only for the prosperity of the day, but build for future patronage. But except in the abstract there the comparison ends. For the grocer has practically the same brands of soap and coffee on his shelves from day to day, while the exhibitor has something different to offer all the time. The grocer would find many perils of the industry if his stock changed with each day. But this is the very thing to which the motion picture proprietor must adapt himself if he is to achieve the highest percentage of success.

What do you, as an exhibitor, know about the pictures that you are going to show Tuesday, two weeks hence? Have you taken the trouble to learn more than its title, to know who is the star, what particular appeal the film may have? Have you taken any steps to utilize special pulling power the film may offer? Have you been simply waiting until the film is actually in your theatre before you undertake to take profit from it. Do you make your attractions an advance asset or do you simply allow them to go over of their own momentum? If you are looking simply at the space of run of a particular picture you are losing a certain percentage of your sure profits, and if you do not prepare yourself for what you are going to sell next week just as well as this picture you are selling today, you cannot expect any but the ordinary routine business. Nor can you honestly determine the worth to you of a special program or a particular production. Advance information is essential to the exhibitor, and with this advance information he will be able to determine, by following a few safe and ordinary rules, to determine the amount of pre-publicity and preparation that he should devote to a particular film.

It may be an astounding statement that out of sixteen exhibitors of various classes who were asked about the pictures they were to show a full week hence only one had any real knowledge of the picture, and in several cases the managers had recourse to their booking lists before they could tell the name of the production or that of the star. With such a lack of information on the part of the theatre manager it is apparent that he cannot even consider the possibilities of the picture. It may be a film that is worth heavy advertising and the advertising in this section, or it may be one that can be handled in the general routine, without special appeal. In the greater number of cases it is impossible for the exhibitors to see the picture in advance, but there are certain opportunities open for information, and this department of the Motion Picture News purposes to develop these possibilities and to aid the showmen in gathering this knowledge and to give him suggestions in the utilization of it.

In the first place the exhibitor has the benefit of advance information about pictures published in the Motion Picture News, often even before the film has actually been started. Frequent items concerning the more notable features appear in these pages, and finally there follows the reviews of the films and the advertising aids. These, together with the advertising sections of the News, should all be read by the exhibitor, if possible, whether they concern pictures that he is to show or those of his competitors, but at least he should be familiar with those he knows are coming to his house. He will find it especially valuable to preserve his copies of the Motion Picture News and by using the index to film reviews which is published each month he will have a ready reference.

In cases where the exhibitor is using the program service, it is, theoretically, comparatively easy for the showman, but for practical results there is something more required than merely to sit at your desk and wait.

Take the case of the program pictures. Except in case of ‘emergency’ when it is necessary to shift release dates, the first run house should know the name of his pictures two weeks in advance and should have sufficient material on hand for their exploitation. The exhibitor showing the pictures after the first run would have even more time, though the two weeks is ample. However, complaints have come from some theatres in the middle section of the country that have first-run showings of big program productions that they have often been left without knowledge of the character of their pictures until the arrival of the film itself. This is rather an exceptional case and producers are more and more striving to have their productions completed well in advance of the date set for release.

Word Contests Bring Small Town Results

Fred W. Porter, of the Stanley Opera House, Lunan, Canada, is interesting his patrons in his pictures with contests for the persons submitting the most words made from the letters in the titles of the pictures. He first tried this with "Green Stockings," offering a capital prize of $2.50, and other admission prizes.

Parent in Audience, Exhibitor Acquitted

An interesting test of the state law prohibiting the admission of minors to moving picture shows has just been decided in Part II of the County of Special Sessions of the City of New York, Borough of Brooklyn. A Brooklyn exhibitor was charged with admitting a minor without guardianship and agreed that the child did buy a ticket and was allowed in without parent or guardian accompanying. However, the defense proved that the parent of the child was in the audience at that time. The court unanimously acquitted the exhibitor, holding that the intent of the law was to prevent children in the theatre unaccompanied by parent or guardian and that the technical guilt of admitting a child at the door was not a violation of the statute.

Louis L. Levine, as counsel for the Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn, appeared for the defense.

Newark Welfare Clubs to Show Films Free

Newark, N. J., city officials have pledged their co-operation to community welfare associations in arranging for a series of free outdoor pictures to be shown this month to the children of each section of the city. Educational films, children’s selected comedies and dramatics especially adapted for children will be used. The associations have arranged to give these shows twice daily and the attendance will be limited to the boys and girls of a specified area so that the entire city may be covered.

Newark exhibitors have given their approval to the plan and promise to afford every assistance. The suggestion comes that the success of the plans now being launched will result in the establishment of a Newark picture house.

English Exhibitor Warns Against Taxation

Thomas Siegel, one of the leading exhibitors of Yorkshire, England, was a speaker at the meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League in Cleveland last week and warned the members to oppose any war tax that might be levied on the members of the industry. He spoke of the conditions that obtained in England at the beginning of the war and the enthusiasm with which the exhibitors agreed to the taxation at the beginning. Mr. Siegel declared that this had grown until the showmen were now paying eighty per cent of their receipts to the government. England puts a tax on raw films and on each theatre admission and the policy had proven very unpopular with the public, which desires low-priced cinema exhibitions.
At Your Service
A Department for the Exhibitor

EXHIBITORS' service may be defined in a motion picture dictionary as a digest of aids that will give the showman the opportunity of making the most of every picture that appears on his screen—not only in financial results from a specific film, but in creating from his policies an asset. Service should be born from the marriage of ideas and experience. It is to bring this child of the industry into the box office of each exhibitor of the country and allow him to grow up with the management into a valuable mentor that this department is launched. The Motion Picture News is seeking to afford here a clearing house of ideas for the exhibitors of the country where they will be afforded a service that is offered nowhere else.

A Melting Pot of Ideas

THROUGH various departments the Motion Picture News deals with the activities of the exhibitors of the country, but here it is sought to give specific aid in the handling of pictures. It is no purpose of this department to dictate rules for business conduct, but rather to utilize suggestions that have proven successful with others—to draw from the experiences that have been valuable and those that have been disastrous a sort of consensus of opinion—to save the exhibitors from "experiments" which have wrecked others and at the same time to gather the benefit of money-making plans, with suggestions and additions that will adapt them to all sections of the country.

Direct and Definite Service

FURTHER than this, the department purposes to afford direct and definite service to any exhibitor on his request, to aid him in any way in the exhibition of pictures, in his publicity and in any step to increase his business and popularize his theater. Motion Picture News invites the theater manager to consult this department as he himself would consult a physician, to call on this department for any suggestion or help that he may desire. There is to be no limit to the field that the bureau hopes to cover.

To do this the department must have the cooperation of the producers and the exhibitors, of everyone whose efforts go for the industry. This department invites suggestions and criticisms and, similarly, reserves the privilege of suggesting and condemning. Many efforts to aid the exhibitor appear to have evolved into mutual praise departments. In various parts of the industry the attitude toward the showman has been the slap-on-the-back policy and "fine, old boy" comment. Certainly there is no benefit to the exhibitor in being told that some shop-worn idea is splendid and original or some policy that has been proved a failure is excellent simply for the purpose of temporarily flattering him.

No "Half-Baked" Ideas

OR will this department declare "splendid and invaluable" a series of half-baked ideas and useless "advertising aids" simply because they emanate from some large producing company, when common-sense tells that such plans are worthless or even dangerous. Complaints come to Motion Picture News from all parts of the country that many producers and distributors do not understand the needs of their particular sections and that a great share of the suggestions and aids are based on conditions that exist more within the radius of the film company's office. These complaints are largely justified. One reason for this has been the failure of many producing companies to survey the entire field and to learn what exhibitors showing their pictures and what exhibitors showing their competitors' pictures are doing and what faults are to be corrected.

Exhibitors Responsible Too

AN equal responsibility rests upon the exhibitors for failing to give the producing companies the benefit of their experiences and criticism. The producer rarely heard from the exhibitor except to learn, now and then, that a certain film has broken the box office record. There has been great restraint in the intercourse between the two elements. There need be no restraint with this bureau, which has the one purpose of affording the exhibitor aid without regard to anything but his success.

A Prosperity Club

THIS department is SERVICE. It hopes to supply a bureau to which the man from California, Kansas or Maine, or the owner of a syndicate and the proprietor of a two-day-a-week house in a hamlet may turn for specific help. This department, with the aid of the exhibitor, should resolve itself into a great moving picture prosperity club. What is wanted is a gathering of ideas, an interchange of opinions, constructive criticism.

Write to this department of any problems you may have in the presentation of a certain film and you will be given the benefit of every resource of Motion Picture News in gathering the information that you seek. This department aims to afford theater owners a service that they have been unable to get from any other source. It is yours for the asking; we await only your requests.
Exhibitor Gets Railroad to Pay Advertising

George E. Carpenter, formerly publicity manager for the Paramount Exchange in Salt Lake City, and now manager of the Empress theatre in the same city, has found a way to make some one else pay for his advertising. The Empress theatre shows the Burton Holmes travel pictures and recently released a film showing the beauties of Yosemite National Park. Mr. Carpenter got in touch with the district passenger agent of the Southern Pacific Railway, which runs through the park, and made arrangements for the railroad to advertise the showings of the Burton Holmes picture.

"Have you seen Lake Tahoe and the Yosemite National Park, reached via the Southern Pacific? Motion pictures of both are being shown at the Paramount-Empress theatre," the advertising read.

Omaha Exhibitors Use Street Car Ads

The use of street car cards for advertising motion picture theatres is advocated by Exhibitors R. D. Shirley of the Muse and Wilfred Ledoux of the Empress, Omaha, Neb. Both use the cards.

In Omaha the cards, if changed monthly cost $1.50 a month. They are put in 350 cars and are claimed to reach over 200,000 people daily. The service costs $60 a week if changed weekly. Designs and printing can be secured in Omaha or in Chicago.

"I have been using them for over a year and I estimate the value of a street car advertising card next to the newspapers," said Mr. Shirley. "I consider them far above the bill boards, heralds or similar advertising."

"We have had good results," said Mr. Ledoux. "I know since we began using the cards our business has increased materially."

Other exhibitors are urged to tell us their experience with car cards.

Waterloo Methods

The Palace theatre, Waterloo, Iowa, is making use of businesslike methods to attract the attention of the public to its productions. The theatre is securing helpful co-operation from the local newspapers and is displaying ingenious ideas in the writing and printing of hand cards, newspaper advertisements and programs. One of the newspaper advertisements recently used in connection with Anita Stewart in "Clover's Rebellion" is said to have choked the house.

Lee Children Delighted Iowa Cripples

"Punch" Dunkel, manager of the Pastime theatre of Iowa City, Iowa, is being hailed as the most popular man in the town as the result of his exhibition of the William Fox picture, "Two Little Imps," starring Jane and Katherine Lee, for the crippled children and the other leddies of the community.

While attending the conventions in Chicago Mr. Dunkel conceived the idea of showing "The Two Little Imps" free to every child in his city under twelve years old. As the result of the announcement long before the doors of the Pastime were opened the street was filled with children. In a short time, every seat was filled and there were still several hundred waiting for admission and it was necessary to give a second show. One entire section of the theater was reserved for nearly a hundred crippled children from the University Hospital.

"It is safe to predict," comments the Iowa City Citizen, "that hundreds of childish dreams last night were filled with the features of "Punch" Dunkel hovering in the background. If a stranger should drop into town this evening and ask the first small boy he met who was the greatest man in the world, there would be but one answer—"Punch" Dunkel."

"Two Little Imps" was also shown for two nights for the grown-ups.

"Garden of Allah" Well Handled in Chicago

William N. Selig's "The Garden of Allah" recently had its Chicago premiere, at the Colonial theatre, one of the most beautiful theatres in the "Loop." Despite the intense heat the drama gained in popularity day by day. Twenty sheets and eight sheets were used for the most part in billing Chicago and 720 sheet stands alone were utilized. The pictures and lettering were in oil colors and two sets of lobby display easel frames were used. There was also an illuminated cut-out of a scene in "The Garden of Allah."

A camel driven by an Arab attracted a crowd before the theatre in Randolph street and the young lady ushers were garbed after the modes of the Orient.

The musical score supplied by William N. Selig was used at the four performances daily, afternoons 1 to 5, and evenings 7 to 11. Before the performance a dozen or more Arabs appeared, and while one sang a song of the desert the others bowed in prayer. The lights dimmed on the desert set and the song died away and the film drama began.

The Chicago newspaper critics were requested to see the picture on the opening night, cards of invitation being mailed to them, each card being good for two choice seats. It was an innovation from the customary review for the press in some dark projection room and without music.

Robertson, of Brooklyn, Has Bobby Connelly Nights

William Robertson, manager of the Rialto theatre, Brooklyn, recently staged two Bobby Connelly nights when he played "Bobby, Boy Scout." He secured rights to use a song entitled "Bobby Connely," written by John Flood, Jr., and Will Stanley. As the "piece de resistance" of the Bobby Connelly nights Manager Robertson arranged for Bobby to appear personally and speak to the audience.

Here is a point for the exhibitor's initiative. If he does not receive the advance matter on a particular production he should take the matter up immediately with his exchange man and demand a written report why he did not receive the matter. The wise exhibitor has learned to get everything possible out of the exhibitor to get everything possible out of a film and will do everything possible to cooperate.

Practically every producing or distributing company is issuing its own newspaper-like service bulletins with each production. These contain publicity notices, often designs for the advertising, stories of the production, sometimes sketches of the stars and various other matter. These service guides vary in their value to the exhibitor and they will be discussed in more detail in this department in later articles.

When you have booked a picture see to it that you are provided with one of these press books and other material for publicity purposes concerning the film. Do this no matter whether you are the first-run exhibitor or you are showing the picture for a single day three months later.

There is a point to be borne in mind here. You are not getting this information about a picture to determine whether you will buy it. You have already agreed to pay for it, and the picture is yours for a specific date. You have every right to the benefit of this material and you are not going to attempt to cut any deals or results unless you accumulate this information.

An objection will immediately arise from exhibitors who are showing three or more pictures a week that they cannot devote the time to informing themselves of their producers' plans unless they have it from some sources, but for those who have no more interest than this in their own prosperity, there is little hope, and they are apt to wake up some morning and find the film industry has grown beyond them.

But if you are a producer, be kind to exhibitors. The knowledge to the exhibitor is manifold. In the first place, he is able to "talk" the picture to those to whom may be interested in that particular type of production or the followers of a particular star. The advance information will prepare the showman for lobby displays, for advertising, for his program, etc. And an incidental benefit of great importance is that the exhibitor will be given a greater knowledge of the drawing power of the service he is using and the worth of particular stars and various sorts of productions. He will have a quicker opportunity to profit from the mistakes that he has been making.

Naturally the accumulation of this advance information does not mean that the exhibitor should pitch in and advertise the production which he is to show two weeks from Tuesday simply because he has the material on hand, but after it is digested it should be filed so as to come to his attention again at the proper date. Many theatre are pursuing a somewhat elaborate filing system for coming productions and find that this department is very valuable.

There is danger in announcing pictures too far in advance, for the exhibitor is likely to detract from his current offerings, unless the case may be where some competitor is showing now a picture that he himself wants to show. A reliable, experience shows, to advertise any production more than five or six days in advance, for exhibitors should avoid having patrons looking forward for weeks to a particular production and therefore staying away during the bidding. The showman should call the attention of the exhibitor to this, and at the same time for fear of spoiling the splendor.

First-run theatres which play the same film for a week rarely mention the picture to open the following Sunday or Monday before Thursday or the preceding week in their advertising. Especially is this true of program bookings where the productions are of about the same caliber. Similarly, a theatre booking state rights or independent picture would not undertake to single out a special week, or redistribute and concentrate their advertising on this. The accepted theory of first-run advertising for week stands has been that the current attraction should be advertised through Wednesday. From then to the end of the week the showman's advertising and the word-of-mouth advertising is expected to carry the picture through the remainder of the run and the greater part of the advertising space may be devoted to the coming attraction, on the theory that you are appealing to the patrons who have already seen your current offering. The exhibitor should not overlook the fact that there is in every community a considerable element that likes to know "all about a picture" before others. Just as the days when the legitimate theatre reached the pinnacle of prosperity in New York there were throngs of "first-nighters," there are thousands of picture fans through the country who like to see the films before their friends. Motion pictures, as everyday尼and has its foibles, and the exhibitor should profit from them.

Houses which change their program twice a week, even where they use the same program, should make an effort to get all of their patrons to see the picture, and for that reason in calling attention to his midweek attraction in his Sunday newspaper advertising.

Many theatres changing their bills daily find it very profitable to advertise their programs for the entire week, finding that their patrons cut out the advertising and preserve it for reference. In towns where there is only a weekly paper published this is found to be the best sort of advertising, especially if the exhibitor has sufficient space to tell something about the production in addition to the title and the name of the star.

Discussion of the value of advance information on pictures will be continued next week. In the meantime exhibitors are invited to tell this department what they are doing in the way of advance information and exploitation, whether this comes from a first-run house in the larger cities or from a village theatre that shows films that are being bought into their re-lease. We would like to hear from those that differ with statements made here and who follow other policies. This department wants to be a digest of successful methods.

INDIANA.—Hammond: L. L. Sachs of J. P. Studio, Hammond, & Co., has taken over Gumbiner Brothers, who own a chain of theatres in Chicago and have purchased the capital stock of the Orpheum theatre in Hammond.

The theatre, constructed in 1911 at a cost of about $100,000, has a seating capacity of 1,200 and has equipment for vaudeville and feature pictures. The new owners will make material improvements.

The Gumbiners have successfully operated the De Luxe for many years.

Sheboygan: Ben B. Earley, for many years the manager of the Orpheum theatre, has purchased the telephone company, has assumed the management of the Alhambra theatre, under contract with the city for the next five years.

North Vernon: Donald McLeod has been appointed manager of the theatre in lieu of Ralph T. Hudson, resigned. Mr. Mc-Leod was formerly manager of the Essex theatre. Auerswald has been appointed his successor.

Pewaukee: Pete La Fountain and Ed Marin have purchased the Astor theatre from F. O. Breyen, and took charge a week ago.

Muscle: C. F. Temple has leased the Royal theatre. His son, Carlos, will manage the establishment.

Kokomo: The Bankers and Merchants Theatre Company has formed a new management. Mr. R. K. Mosiman will remain in charge.

Attica: John Lape, of Williamsport, has bought the Empire theatre and the Al- dermon, who has been called to the colors.

IOWA.—West Union: T. J. Leysh purchased the Princess theatre from W. C. Haskell.

Claire Heywood and took possession Wednes- day. Mr. Leysh intends to keep the theatre open three nights a week for the remainder of the month, and probably speeding up the schedule a little to meet the demand.

Burlington: Ralph Holmes has given up the management of the Grand Opera House, it having been leased to other pictures.

KANSAS.—Kansas City: H. W. Stans has sold the Bataan theatre to R. P. Lupin.

McLeish: A. H. Manning, owner of the Air- drome went to Kansas City last week to buy the Ollie cinema.

Junction City: Cort Gallup has purchased the Evansville House and Palisades picture, with vaudeville and road shows.

KENTUCKY.—Paducah: Charles E. Carney has sold the Princess theatre, a vaudeville and moving picture house, to Harold Spalding, and the latter will continue its operation.

Carney is secretary of the Paducah Fair and Racing Association, the duties of the office being too burdensome to permit him to give the theatre the attention it needed. The Princess was opened a month ago.

MICHIGAN.—Detroit: John H. Kunsky, operating a circuit of nine houses in Detroit, an- nounced the following as the opening dates for the following theatres:

M. H. Starr has resigned as manager of the Alhambra theatre and has become manager of the Empire theatre in Detroit. The change took place August 6.

Thomas D. Moule, formerly manager of the Alhambra theatre, will be transferred to the Madison.

R. G. McFall, formerly at the Washington, and now taking the places of the various managers while on vacations, will go to the new Adams theatre, which is scheduled to open on Labor Day.

Will Elliott, formerly with Paramount, and recently as special representative for the Barnett Film Attractions, will go to the Washington theatre as manager.

The Drury Lane theatre, Woodward and Grand Circus, presents a new play Wednesday. Hereafter it will specialize in first run, state right subjects, and will be open only by advance notice with no advance in price—either on a straight rental or percentage basis. George W. Marks, manager, is sure this is what the real box-office attraction of the state right pictures wants and is willing to give them every opportunity to attract.

Ann Arbor: Col. W. S. Butterfield, of the Butterfield Circuit, has announced the appointment of Gus Greening as manager of the Majestic theatre at Ann Arbor, succeeding Frank J. O'Donnell, who has been transferred to the Majestic in Kalamazoo. Mr. Greening was the manager of the Oakland theatre in Pontiac and has also been with the Sullivan circuit.

NEW BRUNSWICK.—St. John: Fred Winter, manager of the theatre, has announced its re-opening with "The American Girl" after having been dark for some time.
FEATURES

Billie Burke, the Star of Many a Stage
Success, Seen in "Mysterious Miss Terry"

A new stage melodrama, "Mysterious Miss Terry," a picture which is also playing on the screen, has opened in London. It is the story of a young girl under the guardianship of an unscrupulous man who has a number of tricks up his sleeve when he becomes of age. Her guardian with his eye on the fortune left to her in her father's will, has a match he wants to see and his ward. Although Baring is her legal guardian she is placed in the care of a friend of her father's, who is the W.G. who appoints him. He plans to take her away from Whitworth. His plans succeed and his ward is confined in a room at her own house. She escapes and returns to the home of the guardian. Her guardian resorts to underhanded methods to win his point but he is, in the end, defeated but not until after his guardian and her self-appointed guardian have been placed in a number of embarrassing and humorous situations because they had held themselves out to the world as married in order that the plans of her legal guardian might be defeated.

"Thing It Over," is a clean, wholesome, worthwhile story of a young girl under the guardianship of an unscrupulous man who has a number of tricks up his sleeve when he becomes of age. also meets Perdie’s cousin, Eric. There is rivalry. Ferdie wants money—lots of money and good looks. Jack wants to be a jockey—just as Eric knows, Ferdie turns out to be the sole remaining heir of the Latimer millions.

The Lady of the Photograph,”’ with Raymond Hatton, is another leading role in the screen of — the — theatre on week.

Mabel Taliaferro in “The Jurie of Fate,” Story of Life in the Canadian Woods (Paramount Five-Reel Production)

With the picturesque Canadian woods as a setting, Mrs. Taliaferro is portrayed in a Metro picture that is enacted with a human touch pervading its every scene. She is an artist whose art is ideal for the picture lovers and afford real, satisfying entertainment. Mabel Taliaferro, who will be remembered for her good work on Broadway, and more recently for her good work in pictures, is in one of her best roles as a girl and a boy and a girl. The mother dies soon after the birth of an unfortunate child takes her to the Canadian woods. Before leaving, he promises in a key World-World release titled "The Jurie of Fate,” on — the — week.

Little Madge Evans, Talented Child Actor Active in "The Little Duchess" (World Five-Reel Production)

Madge Evans, the talented child actress, is featured in a World picture titled "The Little Duchess.” When it is said that little Miss Evans is child actress, it isn’t meant that all her features are only acceptable to the children. She is a little girl in years but an actress of ex- pectation. She is the leading lady in one of the best known Broadway successes and has been a naturally talented box office star. She has been seen in many World pic- tures recently, always as a wholesome young lass in a picture in which she has been featured. This fact alone makes her appeal as an actress. In this picture Miss Evans has the role of Geraldine Carmichael, known as Jersey for short. She is the daughter of a wealthy banker, her father dies, is sent to an orphanage, runs away and joins the circus. In the end she is given a happy home by her father. She marries the man she loves, brings her a happy surprise. Her grandfather, Earl of Carnarvon, in an attempt to present his true self and bring her back to England. He dislikes wounds because of an unfortunate childhood. She had, but consents to take Jersey and make her as much as possible. The film is an aptly named tale of a girl who has found a happy ending for her life.

William Farnum in “The Conqueror” Story of Gen. Sam Houston’s Exploits (Fasco Five-Reel Production)

William Farnum in “The Conqueror” — “is it necessary to go further? Yes, there is, for it has been written in the stars. William Farnum, the producer, and General Sam Houston, the conqueror, have been during the days among the Cherokee Indians, the American Revolution and the Mexican boys and men, and many a man, when the story of his life is read from our country’s history. It is a red- blooded story of a red-blooded man and women. The scenes are laid in the South. Scenes of the Mexican War, where Farnum, as a boy, was living in the days when the best man won and when the Indians were the braves, and the boy thought they just dues. Historical facts are given on the screen and facts that are not. The action in this picture is human, with a heart interest pervading its every foot of reelage. The battle of San Jacinto is reproduced and the heroism of the men who saved The Lone Star State for the Union, and, of course, the song "The Star Spangled Banner." The General Sam Houston, is brought so forcibly before your eyes that you imagine, for the time you are living in the days when these struggles took place and when the old country where you were born. You are given no time to debate on what is coming next. The actor, for he is a great manager su- ccessful that your undivided attention is given the scene that is being enacted. It moves faster than the eye can follow and interest. William Farnum is in his right element. He gives you the thrill of his long career before the camera. It makes a point to see William Farnum in “The Conqueror.” A Fox production, will be seen on the theatre on — the — week.

SERIALS “Rays of Death,” Late Chapter of “Fatal Ring,” Serial Is Tense (Pathe, Serial—Two Reels)

Interest in “The Fatal Ring,” serial, increases with each new chapter — “Rays of Death.” In the last chapter, Pearl was shot and suspended over a moving hammer, in a scorching metal. Fastening the rope which held Pearl suspended to the floor, the prisoners place over the end, a box in which they put two ferrets. They start graying the rope. Tom Carlton has been on the lookout for Pearl (Kay Francis) and he succeeds in getting admittance to the room where Pearl is incarcerated. He uses her as the rope snaps and she falls, head foremost. Carlton then runs away and is seen to be shot away over crossing the guards. Carlow, who is in the View of the Film, is the only one. He is and is compelled to conceal the diamond in the crevice of a rocky ledge, as he makes a hurried escape from a restored and wicked Detective Haas. Knox sends Pearl a note pleading with her to save from the hands of the Order who have sentenced him to death. He says he will tell her the secrets of the Violet Diamond. She and Tom visit the house of the Prizes, and she is seen in the window and themselves taken prisoners to meet the Utopia. DeWitt Knox. This late chapter is brim full of dramatic incident and is full of exciting moments.

At the Maryland Theatre on — the — week.

Kitson’s Enemies Hit Upon a Clever Idea in the Late Chapter of “Neglected Wife” (Pathé Serial—Two Reels) “A Reckless Indecision” is the title of the Eleventh Episode of “The Neglected Wife” series. This chapter will give you an idea as to the identity of the “veiled woman.” Her identity is not revealed in the chapter, but it is closely with the seeing that the watch of the one responsible for their disappearance. She will not tell you what she is doing out of his life. Kitson is nominated as the one who is seeking her out. Kitson takes her to the United States and she calls upon Norwood to help her recover her possession.

SPECIAL “Jack and the Bean stalk” in Ten Reels a Marvel—a Wonder—You Can’t Miss It (Paramount Five-Reel Production) “Jack and the Bean stalk” has been adapted to the screen so skillfully that you have seen for sometime. At first thought, the grown-ups will say, "Well, this is for the kids." It is and a better hidden feature has never been. But the man or woman who does not enjoy every scene from the marvellous of the screen has entirely forgotten that once upon a time the patty-cake may look familiar to real to their minds as their friends of today. In view of this, "Jack and the Bean stalk" will be seen in the nursery and even after you had left the nursery. Is there anyone whose youthful brain has not been incited to dream of great things, by a revelation of the doings of Jack and the Bean stalk. "Jack and the Bean stalk" does not think there is. Nor do he thinks there is a man who will come to see this wonderful production, which took more than a month to make the screen and will leave disappointed. The character of the girl is played by a very young little actor, Francis Carpenter; the character of the princess by a remarkable little actress, Virginia Lee. They are accompanied by the most skilled actors or actresses would have found it a difficult task to express the idea of the children. Neither is one more than six of years and yet both have the roles with the artistry of men and women of recognized ability before them. The one and only known name is Violet Radcliffe, who has the part of Count Rudolph, and a characteristic of the girl, who is playing the part of Little girl is a wonder. The giant, in reality a giant in starring over a few feet. He is a monster. There are hundreds of children in the cast.
Russian Art Films Artistic and True to Life

Common Faults of Foreign Films Said to Be Lacking—Pictures Made Under Different Conditions Than American Subjects—Settings Real from the American point of view. A picture is the production of the Moscow theatre, with its noted stock company, un-inspired by the mammoth megaphone without which an American director works. The Russian director reads the story to the cast, outlines the locations and they go to work.

They have been selected for their natural ability, these Russian players, and they have been trained at government expense. They are versatile and intelligent and they require little direction as it is given here. Tremendously logical are the Russian artists and there is no prerogative of the center of the stage; it is the main purpose of the story and its development that inspires their work. Sincerely and intently, with quiet but effective methods, they proceed to their work. There is almost an utter lack of the theatrical in their acting.

It is upon this foundation that Mr. Kaplan has built the Russian repertory for production in the United States. He promises to show art at its apex, in that most easily understood expression of art—the pictorial. So that, whereas Nazimoff—now the famous American star of stage and screen—Nazimoff—delivered her message in spite of the unfamiliar tongue which she spoke, the Moscow players to be introduced here by Mr. Kaplan present their revelation without this handicap.

Present plans call for their screen appearance in America in more than fifty masterpieces of Russian literature, which shows their life as it is and not as American directors have portrayed it. Less than a dozen prominent players of the Moscow theatre will be introduced in the first productions of the Russian Art repertory. Their names will bear repetition in view of the popularity which they are sure to attain before the series has run far in American theatres.

Among the women whose native and developed art has made them famous in Russia are Lesienko, Codolna, Fetcen, Orlova, Karabanov and Zovska. The minor feminine roles will be played by women whose future is assured. In this star array are numerous men whose acting is said to be marked by power and intelligence, chief of whom is Mozukin, regarded as the best actor in Russia.

Off to Wyoming After Location for Fairbanks
Millard Webb, of the Douglas Fairbanks production forces, has left Los Angeles for the interior of Wyoming to complete arrangements for a trip which the star and a large supporting cast will make shortly, to stage the exterior scenes of the next production in which Artcraft will present Fairbanks as star. The athlete-actor himself toured for twelve hours in an automobile recently while in Cheyenne as a guest at the Golden Jubilee Frontier Days Celebration, looking up locations, and found a number which he thinks offers opportunities for new and interesting "stunts."

Julian Eltinge's Picture Written Especially for Him
Julian Eltinge's first picture for Paramount, to be released in September, provides unusually ample opportunity for Mr. Eltinge to show his ability as a straight leading man and as the world's most famous impersonator of female roles. The picture has been adapted by Gardner Hunting from a story written especially for Mr. Eltinge by Gelett Burgess and Carolyn Wells, two of America's foremost humorists and literary lights.
Review Board Secretary Likes "Jack and the Beanstalk"

William Fox, who is presenting his new "kiddie feature," "Jack and the Beanstalk," at the Globe Theatre, has received a commendatory letter from Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Review, who, it is said, is no man to spread compliments broadcast. Mr. Cocks' letter says:

"I was extremely interested in the presentation of "Jack and the Beanstalk" yesterday afternoon and want to take the opportunity of assuring you that it combines more of the characteristics of an ideal picture for children than any which I have yet seen. In my judgment it ought to be a thorough success in all parts of the country. The director with rare ability has infused into the picture the kind of atmosphere which surrounds a satisfying version of this wonderful tale. The children will continue to idealize 'Jack.'"

"You must have discovered long before this that the critical faculty, when it is at work, is not always commodatory of great excellencies. The many splendid characteristics of the picture in any fair criticism should be emphasized. When opportunities present themselves we will certainly call attention to the picture."

To Bottle Up Lake George in "The Hungry Heart"

Pauline Frederick, her director, Robert Vignola, and his staff, and Miss Frederick's supporting cast, left this week for Lake George, where work will begin at once on the Paramount picturization of David Graham Phillips' novel, "The Hungry Heart," recently purchased by Paramount as a starring vehicle for Miss Frederick.

Much of the action of "The Hungry Heart" is out-of-doors, and some particularly fine exteriors in the Lake George neighborhood will be bottled up by Director Vignola for the benefit of the lovers of Phillips' best novel.

Kalem Invites Producers to Use Big Laboratory

The Kalem Company recently enlarged the laboratory at their Twenty-third street factory and installed additional equipment of the latest type, which gives them four times their former facilities.

With the completion of the enlarged plant, Kalem has entered the market to handle a limited number of contracts for laboratory work of the highest grade, including the developing of negatives and printing and developing positives.

"For the past ten years it has not been uncommon for the trade to declare that our photography and laboratory work is par excellence," said William Wright, the Kalem secretary-treasurer. "Our executive offices, as you know, have always been in close touch with the factory, and ever since we started in business one of the members of our firm has had direct supervision of all mechanical work. We have made a close study of this important branch of picture making, and our experts have constantly striven for improvement, despite the fact that the trade concedes our work to be top notch. The new equipment, which has quadrupled our laboratory facilities, consists of devices which we have been years in perfecting.

"No, we are not embarking in commercial work in the common understanding of the term," Mr. Wright added. "We have this large capacity and wish to utilize it. We already have contracted to handle the laboratory work of several concerns who desired to obtain the Kalem standard of printing and developing. And we can handle a number of additional contracts—so kindly pass the word along. We desire particularly the work of producers who demand the best, as they will see that we have little in common with commercial concerns. With this large equipment we can quote attractive prices. In fact, I know our prices cannot be equaled, in view of the artistic work we do. Any producer who entrusts us with his printing and developing is guaranteed satisfaction, because his work is handled by the same staff of experts and the modern, scientific facilities that take care of our own product every day."

C. E. Davenport Back in Game with Safety Films

With the private showing of the New York Central Railroad's new Safety First film, "The Rule of Reason," at the Rialto Theatre, Tuesday, July 31, a once familiar figure in the motion picture directing field has returned to the firing line. Charles E. Davenport, father of the Safety First film idea, directed this picture.

Three years ago Mr. Davenport was terribly burned while directing a big fire scene for the Reliance Company. He fell through a trap door into a great burning mass that had been saturated with oil. The result was that he barely escaped being burned to death and for three years he has been under constant treatment by specialists.

It was during the long months in the hospital that Mr. Davenport originated the Safety First propaganda incorporated in dramatic motion picture productions and used in the great Safety First movements set afoot by all of the big railroads and manufacturing plants, as educational features.
Jack Cunningham Is Scenario Editor at Triangle

JACK CUNNINGHAM, who now is scenario editor at the Triangle, after having made an enviable record at the film capital by having written no less than fifteen consecutive comedies for Gale Henry and William Franey, together with other photo-plays, is a "corn-fed" native of Iowa, where he was educated in the public schools, and later at Cornell College.

Cunningham, until he found his niche in motion pictures, was a newspaper man, having been city editor for the Pittsburgh Leader, special writer on the Pittsburgh Dispatch and in special work in Chicago and Philadelphia, where he was on the North American. He also held several desks on the New York Press and the Morning and Evening Sun.

Ince-Paramount Stars Busy in West on First Productions

WORD comes from the Thomas H. Ince-Paramount studios in California concerning the activities of three of his young stars who formed their affiliation with Paramount when Mr. Ince joined that organization.

Charles Ray's first picture for the Paramount Program is called "The Son of His Father" and was picturized from Ridgewell Cullum's story of the same name. Ray will have the part of a young college graduate, the son of a New York railroad magnate, who, following the game of bluff with his father, starts out to make his way in the world. How he proves that he is indeed the "son of his father" forms the basis for this story, said to be filled with thrilling adventures and romantic situations. Victor Schertzinger, who has directed all of Ray's recent successes, will be associated with him in the filming of the picture.

Ince has selected Vola Vale from a lengthy list of screen beauties to support Mr. Ray. Miss Vale played opposite Sessue Hayakawa in "Each to His Kind" and George Beban in "The Bond Between." In Ray's new picture she will portray a western girl, the daughter of a rich rancher and mining man. Other supporting players include Charles K. Flinch, Robert McKin and other well-known Ince players.

Dorothy Dalton, another young Ince star whose pictures will appear on the Paramount Program, is busily engaged in reading scenarios submitted to her for her first Paramount production. She recently returned to California from a transcontinental tour during which she made personal appearances in some of the leading moving picture theatres and gave illuminating talks on her work before the camera.

Enid Bennett is also weeding out from a number of scenarios submitted the proper vehicle for her first Paramount picture.

Louise Glauin Jumps from Dance Hall to Rich Boudoir

After a brief excursion to the rough-hewn dance halls of the early West, where, as "Golden Rule Kate," she wears the coarse garb of a dance hall girl, Louise Glauin returns to the most luxurious setting ever fitted up at the Triangle studio, and one which the star herself designed.

This imposing "set" represents the bedroom of the siren in "Idolaters." It is of Egyptian design with a huge canopied bed heavily carved, over which hang cloths of gold draperies. The presiding feature of the room is a huge image of the sphinx, its face illumined in a weird light cast from a reflector in the floor. On either side of it are tall peacock feather fans and incense burners of hammered copper.

Sennett's Beauties in Typical Subjects

The three comedies announced last week as the first Paramount-Sennett productions are now well under way in Edendale. Mary Thurman is wearing a bathing suit in her first Paramount-Sennett comedy that is said to beggar description. It is promised that the picture, called "A Bedroom Blunder," will be one of Mack Sennett's greatest.

Gloria Swanson, Mack Swain and Chester Conklin are working in a beach and railroad train story called "The Pullman Bride," while Polly Moran is portraying the part of a girl sheriff in "Roping Her Romeo," another of the first Paramount-Sennett comedies. Ben Turpin and Slim Summerville are supporting Polly in this play.

Church Built in Erbograph Studio for Pastor's Play

A church was erected in the Erbograph studio as a setting for several scenes in "The Little Samaritan," play written by Rev. Clarence J. Harris, of Yonkers, N. Y.

The church was complete as to every detail. Hundreds of pews were purchased and put in place, and a huge pulpit was secured.

Real stained-glass windows, twenty in number, were borrowed from a prominent New York firm and they add the characteristic note of realism.

The church scene, when completed, was so true to life as to be convincing. It is estimated that this set alone cost over three thousand dollars. Release is through Art Dramas.

Eugene B. Lewis to Work on Paralta Scenarios

Eugene B. Lewis, a well-known writer and editor, has been engaged to devote his time to the scenario staff maintained jointly by the Bessie Barriscale and the J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporations. He is now located at the Hollywood studios of the two organizations, and will immediately enter on the task of providing a story for one of the stars.
Cressy Writes Comedy for U—Other Productions

Will M. Cressy, widely known as a vaudeville headliner and writer of tableaux, has written a two-reel Nestor comedy in which Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran will be featured. Lyons and Moran have just completed the final scenes of their comedy, "There and Back," which pictures the incidents of their visit to the recent convention at Chicago. Work will be started at once upon the Cressy scenario.

During the past week Director Jack Ford commenced the filming of another five-reel western drama entitled "The Trail of Shadows," in which Harry Carey plays the principal part with Molly Malone opposite, and many of the Universal cowboys in his support.

Edward Le Saint, the latest addition to Universal's directorial forces, also began the filming of a five-reel drama entitled "Man of God." William Stowell is the featured player with a large supporting cast including Millard Wilson, Helen Gibson and Betty Schade.

George Marshall, who has won commendation for his western productions, is nearing the completion of a five-reel drama entitled "The Bumble Bee." The story was written by Marshall and Harvey Gates and features Neal Hart and Vivian Rich playing opposite.

Margery Wilson Stars in Play of Dixieland

Dixieland has furnished the atmosphere for "The Kentucky Schoolmaster," Margery Wilson's new play, now being filmed under the direction of Tom Heffron, "hillbillys," moonshine whiskey and shooting feudists all figuring in the action.

Scenery exactly duplicating that of the Kentucky Cumberlands was found near Felton, Calif., where much of the filming is being done. After working on location for several weeks the company has returned to the big Culver City studios, where interiors are now being filmed.

Miss Wilson's leading man is Charlie Gunn, who takes the part of a short story writer, school teacher from the north, and suitor for the mountain girl's hand.

Mary Garden Coming with Mystery Message

Mary Garden will arrive at "an Atlantic port" the first week in September and immediately begin work before the camera for her first motion picture, "This," for Goldwyn. A wireless from her says:

"Goldwyn: Have booked passage for last week in August and for second time since June intend to show my contempt for the submarine monsters. Am feeling tremendously fit and will immediately begin "This." Look forward to it as my most joyous adventure. Am bringing a message that will delight America."

Officers of Goldwyn are puzzled by the last sentence of Miss Garden's wireless. What message she can be bringing to America and from what source it comes are both matters to excite genuine curiosity, for Mary Garden invariably makes good on her promises.

Problem Subject Being Filmed by Mary MacLaren

Mary MacDonald MacLaren is well into the production of her second David Horsley feature five-reel drama, "Forbidden." She is under the direction of Thomas Ricketts with Alfred Goulding behind the camera. The story shows the effects of too rigidly limiting a young and vivacious girl in her quest of innocent amusement.

Universal Soon to Issue New Brands of Pictures

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company wishes to announce to the trade the fact that it will shortly issue three new brands of pictures under the names of Golden Rod, Premier, and Primrose. Including the star featurette, the Universal Current Events and the Buttery Pictures, this will make six new Universal brands since the first of the year.
All Vita Decisions Rest with Albert E. Smith

He Plans, Among Other Things, to Bring Out a Number of Stars Who Will Create Stir By Their Beauty As Well As Histionic Ability

GREATER VITAGRAPH has issued a formal statement to the industry, calling attention to the fact that Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company of America, is an absolutely one-man power in the corporation and upon him will devolve the duty of making every final decision connected with the production end of the business.

"During Mr. Smith's recent trip to the Western studios of the corporation production conditions at the Eastern studio at Flatbush, Brooklyn, reached such a condition that hurried calls were sent requesting him to return," says an official of the company. "Upon his return there were several conferences between him and his associates with the result that President Smith was placed in absolute charge, but only with the understanding that his decision would not be questioned in any way by other persons interested financially in the corporation and that he was to have a free hand to designate the pictures to be made, supervise production as well as have the final say on all studio financial matters.

"In designating Mr. Smith as the sole man power over the Vitagraph Company of America, the directors of the corporation first learned that Mr. Smith was directly responsible for ninety per cent, of the five-reel features released by Vitagraph since the first five-reel feature was made. The investigation by the directors further proved that it was upon its five-reel features that Vitagraph first made its reputation for super program pictures, which it has retained for so many years. They also found that the five-reel pictures which have been released weekly by Vitagraph for so many years were the financial prop of the company.

"While other persons connected with Vitagraph had been working on artistic effects which were made at a tremendous cost and released as special Blue Ribbon features, Mr. Smith went right along building on a solid foundation, making pictures at a price at which they would make money for Vitagraph and for the exhibitors of the country."

"It was President Smith who was responsible for making Vitagraph known as the 'producing company with the beautiful women.'"

"This policy of engaging beautiful women with histionic ability is to be continued by Mr. Smith, who expects to produce a new line of motion picture stars in the very near future that will surpass anything heretofore seen on the American stage or screen. Three of these coming stars already have been engaged and are being trained by Mr. Smith personally. Their identity is being kept secret until such a time as they have been thoroughly trained to register every emotion on the screen."

Commodore Blackton's Cast in "The World for Sale"

J. Stuart Blackton, now an independent producer, releasing through Paramount, announces the cast of his first production, a screen adaptation of Sir Gilbert Parker's novel, "The World For Sale."

Conway Tearle is in the part of Ingolby. He was in John Galsworthy's play "The Fugitive," on Broadway last winter, and was in "The Hawk" with William Faversham and with Grace George in "The Liars," "Major Barbara" and other plays. In pictures he was in "The Common Law" with Margaret Clarke.

Anna Little is another of the leaders in the part of Fleda Drude. She graduated from musical comedy into pictures, being in "Matin' Jim," "The Land of Lizards," "Immediate Lee" and "The Court of St. Simon." Miss Little is five foot six, has dark hair and brown eyes and rides and swims like an expert.

Supporting Miss Little and Mr. Tearle is Norbert Wicki, a young Australian, who spent twelve years on the European stage playing Ibsen and Shakespeare. The rest of the supporting cast of principals includes W. W. Bitner in the part of "Gabriel," Crazy Thunder in the part of "Teksvain" and Joe Donohue in the part of "Jowett."

Marie Dressler as "Scrublady" in Munitions Factory

The Dressler Producing Corporation is completing its first comedy, soon to be released through the Goldwyn, to be called "The Scrublady."

Marie Dressler is a scrubwoman in a munitions factory. The comedy has a real plot, pronounced the funniest thing the world-famed comedienne has ever done. There is a laughing scream every foot, which means something like 1,800 or 2,000 double-ups for the audience in the course of the two reels.

In the cast are Florence Hamilton, Raymond Cacho, Fred Hallen, Harrict Ross, Dorothy Bettelheim and eight pretty girls as workers in the munitions factory.

Neal Hart Again Signs with Universal for Westerns

Neal Hart, Universal's husky hero of the open range, signed a contract this week to play feature leads in western pictures for the next year.

For two years Hart has been with Universal. He went with the company after having served creditably as deputy sheriff of Converse county, Wyoming, for three years. He played an important role in the serial "Liberty" and the past year has been featured in 101 Bison and Victor releases.

Hart has just commenced the production of "The Bumble Bee," five reels, in which he is supported by Miss Vivian Rich, Chas. Hill Mailes, George Berrill, Miss Miriam Shelby, Joe Rickson, and a score of the Universal cowboys. It is a typical western picture, with many unusual thrills, and it is said, gives Hart splendid opportunities for powerful work before the camera.

Cornelius A. Hart, former auditor of the city of New York, was Hart's father. The boy at fourteen got the lure of the West and worked at the mouth of the Cheyenne on a horse ranch. This was in the Sioux Indian reservation. Then he drove ten-horse team freighting in the Black Hills from Fort Pierre to Rapid City. He went back East to school but enlisted in the Navy for the Spanish War and was assigned to U. S. S. Panther.

Next he was a construction engineer in the Adirondacks, in Pennsylvania, and in Illinois—then back to the range as foreman of Seven Bar Four Ranch, 77 Ranch and O. R. C. Ranch at Big Fins, Wyo.

Miriam Cooper a Senorita in "Betrayed"

In R. A. Walsh's next drama, Miriam Cooper gives what is described as a faithful characterization of the Mexican senorita. "Betrayed" is the title chosen by William Fox for the play. In the case are James Marcus, Hobart Bosworth, Montague Blue and Wheeler Oakman.

Margarita Fischer (Mutual)
Edna Goodrich To Film Four Famous Plays

Edna Goodrich, who has appeared in more than a dozen New York successes, is slated in a series of four new five-reel productions to be released shortly by the Mutual Film Corporation. The first will be within a few weeks.

The productions will be issued under the policy of "big stars only," announced some months ago by President John R. Freuler of the Mutual and rigidly adhered to since.

As a member of Anna Held's company during the early stages of her career, Miss Goodrich became famous as the highest salaried showgirl in the world, which she actually was, drawing $40,000 for the season.

The forthcoming productions are " Reputation," "Queen X," "A Daughter of Maryland," and "American Maid," each of the plays having been selected by Miss Goodrich herself in consultation with President Freuler.

The four new Goodrich dramas are by authors of distinction. "Reputation" was written by John Clymer, who wrote "Ashes of Embers." It was directed by John B. O'Brien, who was formerly stage manager for Augustus Thomas.

Mae Murray Teaches Ballroom Dances by Bluebird Films

Mae Murray, Bluebird's "dancing star," will give lessons in ballroom dancing to devotees of Bluebirds. The dances will be screened in conjunction with the scheduled Bluebird, and Miss Murray will explain, through a system of charts, just how the steps may be accomplished—self-taught to the person who wishes to learn them. These charts will be supplied to the exhibitor in sufficient quantities to distribute free to patrons on "Bluebird Day."

"Princess Virtue," based on Louise Winter's contribution to Breezy Stories, has been decided upon as Miss Murray's first Bluebird. Director Leonard is busy with advance preparations and casting the supporting company. The "Murray Dances" will, meanwhile, be filmed and distributed as soon as arrangements can be completed and strenuous efforts are being exercised in this direction.

Miss Murray will create new dances, give them distinctive titles, demonstrate them before the camera, and will personally see that charts are correct and the explanations lucid. Bluebird will then attach the "dance film" to its regular release, and will distribute charts to the exhibitor, who will thus have a novelty to advertise as a distinctive feature of "Bluebird Day."

When plans are fully matured these charts will be supplied by mail to applicants who may have missed seeing any particular strip of "Murray Dances" on the screen. The exhibitor will be given the opportunity to promote the idea through his local papers and keep his public in touch with the Bluebird campaign as it goes along.

Scenes from Bluebird's Late Production, "A Stormy Knight," a Comedy Drama with Franklyn Farnum and Brownie Vernon in the Featured Roles.
Film Real Darky Honeymoon at Baltimore

The initial film record of a real wedding trip was taken this week by the Ker-Mar Pictures Producing Corporation of Baltimore. It will be known as "Newlyweds' Trip on the Steamer Starlight to Brown's Grove."

The couple who will take the leading roles are E. Everett Lane and Olga De Vere, two colored persons who are to be married.

The picture will be directed by Dr. A. W. Marchant, president, and Williams Kerber, vice-president of the Ker-Mar concern.

"Peg o' the Sea" Nearly Ready

Jean Sothern's next vehicle, "Peg o' the Sea," which was written by Winifred Dunn is rapidly nearing completion at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., where the sea scenes are being taken. The picture, when completed, will be released on Art Dramas Program.

Some delay was occasioned in the taking of this picture, on account of Miss Sothern's absence from the Van Dyke studio for the week of the Chicago exposition, where she held forth in the Art Dramas booth and was the center of attraction. As work on it had been started in plenty of time before the release date, however, which is September 10, the delay was not serious in its effects.

Rex Beach Writes His Own Sub-Titles

Rex Beach, at his Lake Hopatcong cottage "Manana," is writing sub-titles for his first Goldwyn picture, "The Auction Block," adapted from one of his novels. In choosing the cast it is declared that no actor or actress was picked unless exactly fitted to the character. For this reason, Goldwyn says, the play portrays life itself, not a simulation of it.

Ruby de Remer has the part of Lorelei Knight and Tom Powers is the juvenile hero. The play is stated to be filled with action.

Sessue Hayakawa

Humor and Romance Both in Paramount Jap Play

Sessue Hayakawa has his first chance to portray comedy in the Paramount picture, "Hashimura Togo." The famous Jap brought to life in print by Wallace Innes is to be practically a new character.

The author of "Togo" wrote the story for the films with a touch of romance in it also. He took his Jap schoolboy back to Japan and started him from there with a plot that involved him as a sacrificing brother, son of a Japanese baron who, disgraced for an act he never committed, decided to come to America and there enter the service of his beautiful American "moon-maiden."

George Beban's Paramount Is "Lost in Transit"

"Lost in Transit," George Beban's first picture to be released under Paramount's selective star series plan, was written by Kathryn Williams. Paramount star, especially for Mr. Beban.

Miss Williams enjoys a wide popularity because of her many effective screen portrayals. As a Paramount star she has appeared in pictures of wide appeal. As a scenario writer, Miss Williams is less well known although she is a member of the Authors' League and has written many most creditable scenarios and plays.

Julian Eltinge Makes Right Jab in Paramount Play

Julian Eltinge plays a double role, naturally, in his first Paramount picture. From the virile young lover, cast out of society because of an unintended offense, he assumes the role of a bogus countess and gets into considerable hot water and many lavish clothes. One of the situations, as the countess, demands a fight with the police and a detective.

In this fighting act it develops that Eltinge packs a wallop in his right jab that almost busts the mirrored screen. Julian is a husky youth, so leathery that his female impersonations offer the strongest contrast between the man and the part he assumes.
Old Howie Hat Found and All's Well with Stingaree

When Paul C. Hurst was engaged by the Kalem Company to direct "The Further Adventures of Stingaree" and resume his familiar role of "Howie," Stingaree's rough and ready partner, he began a search for the hat he had worn in the part.

"You couldn't buy or find another hat like it," he declared. "It was about to fall to pieces when I wore it last and I received a present that didn't fit it." His hope was rewarded when Mrs. Hurst telephoned the studio that she had found her husband's cherished headpiece in the attic. An auto was dispatched forthwith and the old hat arrived in state at the studio.

Rumor of Three New Paralta Companies

Rumor has it that three new Paralta producing companies are being organized by Carl Anderson and his associates, which will give his company control of a large number of star productions a year.

When the Paralta Company took over the Clune Studios in Hollywood—instead of providing J. Warren Kerrigan and Bes- sie Barriscale with separate establishments, as was at first planned—it was done because the studio is sufficiently large to house at least five companies and give each practically separate accommodations.

The new glass-covered stage, 50 by 150 feet; the great open-air stages, 80 by 200 feet, and the eighteen acres of field space for practical sets, afford ample opportunity for the making of several big pictures at one time.

Catherine Calvert's New Play to Be Titled

A new play, starring Catherine Calvert, has been started at the U. S. Amuse- ment Corporation Studios for release on Art-Dynas productions. The title of this is not yet decided. Work on it was begun as soon as "Behind the Mask," from Charles Dazey's story, was completed.

Fight to Death Under Water Is Filmed

A fight under water has been photo- graphed in "A Sleeping Memory," the forthcoming Metro feature starring Emily Stevens, adapted by Albert Shelby Le Vino from the novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim. This portion of the picture was di- rected by George D. Baker. Camera and cameraman were stationed in a specially constructed glass room, sunk in the pool.

Walter Horton, who takes the part of Henry Johnson, and Mario Majeroni, who plays Dr. Stephen Trowle, are the men en- gaged in the struggle. Johnson and the doctor meet on the edge of a cliff, and Johnson flings himself upon Dr. Trowle. In the struggle that follows both men fall from the cliff to the pool below. The struggle continues under water with un- diminished violence.

The men are well matched in strength and both are determined to win. There is a tragic finish to the scene as both men, locked in a death grasp, drown.

Mme. Nazimova in "Rose-Bush of a Thousand Years"—Metro

MME. ALLA NAZIMOVA, the dra- matic star who recently signed a contract with Metro Pictures Corporation to appear in special productions, will com- mence work Monday, September 17, ac- cording to the announcement made by Maxwell Karger, general manager of the Super-feature Studio.

Mme. Nazimova's first Metro picture will be a seven-act special production called "A Rose-Bush of a Thousand Years," written by Mabel Wagnalls, daughter of A. W. Wagnalls, president of the well-known publish- ing house of Funk & Wagnalls.

George D. Baker is the director chosen to produce Mme. Nazimova's first picture for the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Wm. A. Brady Erects Cool, Outdoor Stage at Fort Lee

THE new outdoor stage for World Pic- tures Brady-Made is attracting a great deal of attention in the studio colony at Fort Lee, in addition to having drawn the inspection of several automobile loads of visitors from New York.

Curiously, the workers in the extensive plant at Fort Lee were at first averse to making use of the al fresco space pro- vided for them, although the temperature under glass was utterly appalling during the recent record breaking heat period.

The new stage is rectangular in shape, with dimensions of sixty-five feet by one hundred and twenty-five, giving a floor area of a trifle more than 8,000 square feet. This is the largest outdoor stage in the East, and its equipment is thor- oughly modern.

The foundations are a series of heavy concrete piers, which in addition to sup- porting the general structure sustain a series of large upright columns. From the tops of these, strong bronze wires are strung at various angles, carrying movable overhead sheets and screens which serve as deflectors and diffusers of light.

This system works out perfectly for the elimination of undesirable shadows, enabling the cameramen to secure greatly improved values in lighting effects.

"We are making better photoplays than ever by the use of this stage," said Di- rector General William A. Brady. "This is due not alone to the atmospheric condi- tions, which are more favorable to photo- graphy in the open than inside an en- closure, but also to the fact that every- body naturally does better work in phys- ical comfort than under bodily distress."

Kerrigan's Company Travels After Location

J. Warren Kerrigan's company wanted a Long Island homestead for their present production, and while plenty of houses were available at Los Angeles, the foliage did not resemble the East. On this ac- count the company traveled many, many miles to get a location.

Twenty-three persons are making the trip, including the following members of the cast: Louis Wilcox, David M. Har- ford, Frank Clarke, Eleanor Crowe, Albert Cody and William Conklin. Others in the party are Director Oscar Apfel, Assistant Director John Meighan and Cameraman L. Guy Wilky.

Cavaliere Ready for Work
Lina Cavaliere, newest Paramount star and famous operatic beauty, is preparing for her first venture in Paramount pictures. Mme. Cavaliere in a recent visit to the Paramount offices expressed surprise at the enormous growth of the moving picture industry, and her interest in the business activity and scores of workers engaged in all departments of the Paramount business.

“M y previous experience in pictures on the other side was in that stage of the business when it might possibly be called in its infancy, though of course there was a large perfection of detail and artistic production work even at that time. Since then the moving picture business has taken on an artistry and cultural aesthetic quality which ten years ago we would have thought impossible. I am firm in my belief that much of this progress toward the better class of moving pictures is due to the activities of the men who form the Paramount organization. It is, therefore, with the pleasantest anticipation that I look forward to my first production under Paramount. I thoroughly enjoyed my previous experience in pictures, but I believe now that I know more about the art than I did in those days.”

Juvenile Vampire in Cast of Lockwood Feature
Fred J. Balshofer, who is personally directing Harold Lockwood in his first production for Metro release, has announced the completion of the cast for the picture, a film version of the novel “Paradise Garden,” by George Gibbs.

The part of Marcella Van Wyck was the most difficult to fill, since the play requires a juvenile vampire, one possessing youthful good looks and at the same time the acting ability necessary to portray exceedingly difficult situations in the story with the young man about whom the drama centers.

In his role of Jerry Benham, Lockwood is to be supported by the following: Vera Sisson, who plays the part of Una Hahborten, a settlement worker; Virginia Rappae, as Marcella Van Wyck, a society vamp; Lester Cuneo, as Jack Ballard, a young man of the world; William Clifford, as Roger Canby, Benham’s tutor; George Huip, as Jerry Benham himself at the age of ten; B. A. Sprote, as Henry Ballard, a captain of finance; Catherine Henry, as Miss Gore, Marcella’s companion; Harry de Roy, as Christopher, Benham’s servant, and Violet Eddie, as Miss Redwood, young Benham’s governess.

Critics Speak Well of Essanay’s New Baby Comedy
Featuring Bryant Washburn, with Hazel Daly as Honey and the original Skinner cast, “Skinner’s Baby” seems to be offered by critics of motion pictures to either of its two predecessors, “Skinner’s Dress Suit” or “Skinner’s Bubble.”

The story hinges on the arrival of a third member of the famous family and is a combination of many homely little incidents arising from a visit of the stork. It was suggested by the book, “Skinner’s Baby,” from the pen of Henry Irving Dodge, creator of Skinner.

Max Brand Story and New Metro Play for Joint Release
To obtain another play for Francis X. Bushman and Dorothy Bayne, Metro has bought, through Robert H. Davis, picture rights in an unlisted, unpublished story by Max Brand.

A seven-part production based upon the story, and the story itself, are to be released simultaneously, as was done with “Lady Barnacle,” which was also a Metro feature.

Maxwell Karger will produce the play at the Quality Studio, the date of release to be November 1. Max Brand’s story will run in All Story Weekly, to reach the newsstands October 27.

The director of the feature will be Charles Brabin. Work will begin at once, the two stars having completed “The Complete and Utter Failure.”

The production will be under direction of Edwin Carewe. “The Complete,” written by Charles A. Logue, has been adapted for the screen by Albert Shelby Le Vino.

The new All-Story adaptation provides roles of intense interest for Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne. Mr. Bushman will be seen in the part of “Two-Gun” Carter, a Western cowpuncher whom circumstances drop into a little town in the Tennessee mountains, and the story is concerned with the dramatic way in which he changes the life of the community. Miss Bayne plays Marian Conover, but to tell just who Marian Conover is would be premature.

The screen adaptation for the new production has been made by Albert Shelby Le Vino, Rudolph J. Bergquist, who did the photography for the Bushman and Bayne “Romeo and Juliet,” will be the camera man, and Harry Franklin, for many years the assistant of Edwin Carewe, will give Charles Brabin his aid.

Scenes 1,164, Film 89,000 Feet, in “Polly of the Circus”
HIGH-WATER mark in elaborate and spectacular production within the metropolitan district has been reached in the staging of “Polly of the Circus.”

“Goldwyn says it took ten weeks of photography, by day and night, in addition to months of preparatory effort to complete this production.”

In it are nine separate photo-spectacle scenes. The total is 1,164 scenes made with an average of five takes to each scene. From the 89,000 feet of film sent to the laboratory, six to eight thousand feet will be finally selected to tell the story.

Charles Thomas Horan and his corps of assistants who directed “Polly” lived in the Goldwyn studios during the last five weeks of its production. Herbert Messmore and staff who supervised the art direction of the picture were at Horan’s side during this long grind.

Four small New Jersey cities figured in the play. At Hobokan a race track was chartered and with a grandstand filled with “extras,” a horse race with a field of seven thoroughbreds was run. In Englewood the circus parade was held and it took the greater part of two days for this circus pageant to be photographed. In Kirksville scenes were made showing the early morning arrival of a circus in a small city as well as the departure at night. On the lot in Fort Lee the immense canvas was spread and the performance photographed.

Mac Marsh for days at a stretch worked 14 and 15 hours a day and to the amusement of her directors she stood the strain better than they.

In the arrangement of lighting and artistic embellishment George W. Hill head cameraman and his staff have turned out an effect that is a prominent among which is an episode in the story that is told entirely in photographic-silhouette.

Moore Starred by Ziegfeld
Matt Moore, the former Universal star, is to be featured by the Ziegfeld Cinema Corporation in a new photo play entitled “Still Jim.” The picture is to be made in El Paso, Texas.

To Kill Censorship Make Clean Films” — Rose Tapley
UPON the instruction of Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, Rose E. Tapley, actress and author, has written a message of general tenor to the motion picture industry, based upon observations she made during a tour of the United States.

Miss Tapley was sent out by President Smith last December as a motion picture missionary to preach “clean pictures” to the layman public in behalf of the entire industry. She says: "Censorship seems to be in the air in every direction. Not that the public really wanted censorship so much as it sought some assurance that the cheap, trashy, sensational product which crept in during the tremendous and rapid growth of the industry, which for a time became the only profitable type of picture for the exhibitor to show, would be eliminated.

"With some of whom I talked did not stop to realize that this, as in every other business, it is the demand which creates and controls the supply, and that censorship is not the medium for controlling the situation. The remedy lies with the public."

The censorship wave, distressing as it is in detail, is, I think, an augury for better pictures. At least that was the impression I received from the undercurrent of opinion that recognizes the necessity for some factor that will absolutely control the motion picture."

"If the public wanted the vulgar, broad problem play, the unwholesome vampire and similar types, there would be no demand for censorship."

"It is just because the public wants clean pictures that the industry now is beset with the censorial affliction. The cure lies with the manufacturers themselves. When they make it a point to produce only clean, wholesome pictures and guarantee to the public that they will not be asked to gaze upon scenes offensive to morals and good taste, then the censor boards will expire of inanition."

"This, briefly, is the lesson I learned during my pilgrimage, and I submit it to the industry for cogitation."

"To Kill Censorship Make Clean Films” — Rose Tapley
Clara Kimball Young's First Play Is "Magda"

Herman Sudermann's immortal "Magda," played by Mme. Bernhardt and Duse, will be the first of the new series of Clara Kimball Young photoplays, to be made under the popular star's own personal direction by her own personally directed company.

The Marionettes had been announced as the initial production under the new plan, but it has been necessary to supersede it with "Magda" because a question has arisen as to the screen rights of the play.

Harry I. Garsou, manager for Miss Young, bought screen rights from Edgar Selden, representing the French Authors' Society. Then after purchase of costumes, selecting of cast and the filming of several scenes, the Frohman Estate sent notice it owned screen rights to the play bought from Sanger & Jordan.

The switch to "Magda," although it entailed a very considerable expenditure and no end of trouble, was made very quickly by Miss Young's new organization and the actual filming of the Sudermann play was begun the latter part of last week.

The story abounds in strong action and in addition affords extraordinary opportunities for the display of powerful emotional acting.

Two Women Directors on Bluebird Plays

Elsie Jane Wilson has taken little Zoe Rae as her screen protegee and will direct her in future Bluebirds. "Hidden Treasures," a two-reel comedy-drama of the West for Paralta. It is called "Turn of a Card," and was written by Frederick Chapin and prepared for the screen by Tom J. Geraghty.

The new play concerns the adventures of Jimmy Montgomery Farrell, a college youth who goes West and there becomes involved in a series of exciting experiences and a romance with a pretty girl. The part is said to be decided to Kerrigan's liking, fitting his capabilities as snugly as did "A Man's Man," the Peter B. Kyne novel which will be his first release.

Kerrigan's leading woman is Lois Wilson, who plays "Cynthia Burdette." Miss Wilson is the beauty who appeared opposite Kerrigan in "A Man's Man." She is declared to be just as happily cast in the new subject.

The remainder of the supporting cast is headed by Eugene Pallette as "Eddie Barrett"; "Tiny" Morgan as "Big Ed Murphy"; David M. Hartford as "Ace-High Burdette"; Roy Laidlaw as "Jarvis"; Eleanor Crow as "Millie Jarvis"; Wallace Worsley as "Mr. Carlton"; Albert Cody as "Slavin"; Tom Bates as "Finnegan," and Janke Vincent as "Mrs. Phelps."

The production is being directed by Oscar Apfel and photographed by L. Guy Wilky.

Ann Murdock, Frohman's "Baby Star," in Photoplay

"The Richest Girl," and "The Beautiful Adventure" are two of the plays produced by the Empire All Star Corporation, soon to be released through Mutual exchanges. Both plays belong to the long list of successes that the late Charles Frohman made.

In "The Beautiful Adventure," Ann Murdock plays the role she originally created on the stage, her interpretation of which caused Charles Frohman to raise her to stellar rank. Mr. Frohman used to call Miss Murdock his "baby" star because she was the youngest star he had ever put at the head of her own company.

Born at Port Washington, L. I., Ann Murdock comes of the Murdock family that has figured so prominently in American stage history. At the age of seventeen she was engaged by William Gillette for his comedy "Electricity." Then "Excuse Me" came along, and it was her work in that farce that established her as a comedienne. She played the leading role in "A Pair of Sixes" next, and it was then that Charles Frohman began to notice her.

In the Autumn of 1914 he engaged her to play "Helene" in "The Beautiful Adventure." She was only featured on the opening night of that play at the Lyceum theatre, New York, but on the second night when she arrived at the theatre she was surprised and delighted to see her name in the electric lights over the door. Mr. Frohman had raised her to stellar rank while she slept.

Dorothy Phillips Takes First Vacation—Housecleaning

Dorothy Phillips became a star on the Bluebird program last December, when Director Joseph De Grasse brought her out. That's nine months ago, and since then Miss Phillips has appeared on the average of once a month among Bluebirds—either as a regular program attraction or as star of a "Bluebird Extraordinary.

She has now gone on a vacation. Where? Why, at home, doing for Fall house-cleaning.

"Southern Film" to Produce at Jacksonville

Davenport Kerrison, who is organizing the "Southern Film" at the Klutho studios, Jacksonville, Fla., says the company is to produce every week or on alternate weeks a one or two-reel comedy and a three or four-reel play.

Wm. S. Hart Plays Highwayman in "The Narrow Trail"

Following close upon the recent court decision in New York, upholding Arctraft's right to present Wm. S. Hart in pictures supervised by Thos. H. Ince, comes news from California of the first film picture to be made by Arctraft. It bears the name of "The Narrow Trail," and advance announcements state it is replete with both the thrills and romance which have distinguished the plays of the famous "western" star.

Last known as an author and for some time attached in this capacity to the Ince forces, has been a director for the Hart productions, and is now with Hart and a large company somewhere in the most mountainous region of California, where stage coaches are careering over precipitous trails and daring feats of horsemanship galore are taking place. The interiors are being made at the Biograph studios in Los Angeles, which Thos. H. Ince has taken over.

Sylvia Bremer will be Hart's leading woman in "The Narrow Trail." She supported Hart in "The Gold Deck," and was leading woman for Chas. Ray in "The Pinch Hitter," "The Millionaire Vagrant," and "Sudden Jim." The plot of "The Narrow Trail" deals with the reform of the bandit impersonated by Hart, through his love for the girl, with whom he becomes acquainted when she figures as one of the victims of a hold-up in which he is the man behind the mask. When her lover falls in love, he falls hard, and there follows a series of adventures that culminate in the reform of the highwayman and the capitulation of the girl.

All the Arctraft productions starring Hart will be made by the company recently organized by the actor himself for the filming of pictures in which he will appear, and all will have the personal supervision of Thos. H. Ince, under whose guidance Hart has scored his great success as a screen star.

Two Tots and Dog in "Jack and the Beanstalk" Land Job

William Fox has signed a five-year contract with Francis Carpenter, Virginia Lee—and "Sport," their mongrel dog. This action was taken because the children and the dog have scored such a success in "Jack and the Beanstalk," now playing at the Globe Theatre.

All sorts of salaries and advantages are provided for the children, while Sport gets a home for life at the Fox Hollywood Studios in California and all he can eat, providing, of course, it is deemed wise to permit his appetite to get the better of his canine judgment.

Already each of the children, Francis and Virginia, have received a pony and cart from Mr. Fox because of their excellent acting in "Jack and the Beanstalk," but they are each promised an automobile in their contract with Mr. Fox. These automobiles together with upkeep and gasoline are provided by the contract which Mr. Fox assumes. Francis and Virginia are wondering what they are going to do with their ponies and carts when the autos come.

In addition to the salaries and automobiles, Mr. Fox pledges himself to furnish instructors for each of the children so long as they remain under his direction. All this is set out in great detail in the contract, first, how many hours per day the children are to appear before the camera; second, how many hours each day they are to devote to their studies under the direction of competent tutors; third, how many hours each day they are to devote to recreation. In fact, their little lives are mapped out by contract from now until five years hence.

The salaries which these youngsters will draw will not only support themselves and their parents in luxury, but will enable each of them to have substantial bank accounts before either is ten years old.

No children in the world ever played with such expensive toys for more than $3000 a week as "Jack and the Beanstalk," which reviewers have designated as "the Peter Pan of the films."

Marion Davies Lauds Her Company in "Runaway Romany"

One of the strongest supporting casts ever assembled in support of a motion picture star will be seen in "Runaway Romany," the new Arsdale Art Film Corporation production which will present Marion Davies for the first time in photo drama. It is generally known that Miss Davies wrote the story on which the screen play is based, but it is alleged that William Fox will announce that she also selected the cast, and for an unusual reason.

"I am determined that whatever the outcome of my motion picture debut," said Miss Davies, "that no one will be able to say that I made a success by comparison with an incompetent supporting company. If I'm to rise it will be in the good company of Joseph Kilgour, Pedro de Cordoba, Matt Moore, Ormi Hawley, Gladden James and several others of the screen. If I can't make good with the inspiration which they have furnished I'll go back to musical comedy."

Miss Davies came to motion pictures from "Oh Boy" at the Princess theatre, New York. Every film fan recognizes the name of the principal players who will be seen with her in "Runaway Romany."

Mr. Kilgour has had a successful career on both stage and screen, on the latter mainly with Vitagraph. He was in "The Lion and the Mouse" and "Ready Money."

Pedro de Cordoba was among the original members of the New Theatre Company. Upon the completion of "Runaway Romany" he was engaged as leading man for Elsie Ferguson.

Matt Moore, who is the hero with Miss Davies, was best seen as leading man with Mary Pickford, his brother's wife. Ormi Hawley is in great demand by Mutual, Fox, World, Popular Players, and other producing companies. Miss Davies says: "Out of all the large number of players on screen she smoothed over the rough places for me."

If "Runaway Romany" is a success for Marion Davies you may hang a large share of the credit to Ormi Hawley."

Much Brotherly Love for Goldwyn Pictures

Recent trade showings of Goldwyn pictures in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh have been followed by a great amount of favorable newspaper criticism. The date of the first release approaches, "Polly of the Circus," the Mae Marsh play, being on the program for September 9th.

The Inquirer, in Philadelphia, said: "Pictures shown by invitation in Philadelphia included a Margaret Mayo comedy, entitled 'Baby Mine.' The film revealed, perhaps above everything else, an extraordinarily finished technique—a perfect mastery of the many details of picture-making."

C. Howard Bonte, writing in the Public Ledger, said of the same play: "'Baby Mine' is a revelation of the high art of the screen. . . . The cast, headed by Madge Kennedy and John Cameron, is virtually flawless. But it is in the latest methods of photography and lighting and the simple taste of the interiors that I took the most interest. The skill of great artists has produced these results."

Bushnell Dimond, in the Evening Ledger, added this: "If 'Baby Mine' is an index of future Goldwyn productions showmen may be assured of some capital stuff from these studios. The picture has many distinctions in addition to star and story."

Two Goldwyn Pictures, "Baby Mine," starring Madge Kennedy, and "Fighting Odds," starring Maxine Elliott, were given their first trade showings in the Pittsburg territory at an invitation presentation Sunday, Aug. 5.

Exhibitors from every part of the territory were present as the guests of C. C. McKibbin, manager of Goldwyn's Pittsburg offices, and at the conclusion of the showing, despite W. E. Loves of the Baltimore and Philadelphia, expressed satisfaction with the two productions loudly.

Numerous telegrams received by Goldwyn from exhibitors in the territory assert that these productions exceed all the claims and in advance for them by the producers.

War Drama to Be Exploited by Chicago Herald

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in cooperation with the "Know America" bureau of the Chicago Herald, presented in Baltimore this week a war drama, "When the Call Came," which will be relayed later by the Government bureau through a wide circuit of theatres in the United States. The scenes of the story are laid on actual trains in service from Chicago to Washington and New York, and the scenario was written by Jack Lait, assisted by W. E. Lowes of the Baltimore and Ohio, who directed the making of the play.

The picture deals with the present call to colors of the first 10,000,000 men of America, and the hero is Jack Holden, who marries when the call comes for unmarried men. The wife believes her husband a slacker, but later there is a big surprise in the picture and husband and wife go to "somewhere in France" together.
300 Theatres Sign Contracts with Vita

It is announced by V-L-S-E, through which Favorite Film Features are being released, that the bookings on this unit of Vitagraph product have been tripled during the last week. More than 300 theatres in all sections of the country have signed up on yearly contracts, it is declared.

Favorite Film Features were only placed on the market July 23, but the pictures were of such high calibre, they have already attained great popularity and some of the best theatres in the country have included them in their program. One big theatre in Milwaukee is running six reels every other week, combining two weeks releases in one. The features are put out on a basis of 3000 feet per week, being made up of a comedy and drama. Their appeal, it is declared, lies in the fact that the stories are good and the stars among the greatest who ever graced the screen. Such names as Clara Kimball Young, Edith Storey, Sidney Drew, John Bunny, Flora Finch, Norma Talmadge and Lilian Walker are continually appearing in the casts.

Bunny and Clara Kimball Young Reissues Please Omaha

The Bunny and Clara Kimball Young reissues being released by the Vitagraph are going good in the Omaha territory, according to Manager L. A. Gietzler.

"It isn’t like trying to sell something new," he says, "because these pictures have proved themselves in the past. It is like introducing the exhibitors to old friends. We are also getting many inquiries about the coming serial, ‘The Fighting Trail.’"

"The publicity matter on this is so good I look for a big demand for it in this territory, which is accounted one of the best fields for serials in the United States."

Essanay Says “Skinner’s Baby” Is Record-Breaker

After pre-release runs of a week each at the Rialto theatre, New York, the Ziegfeld theatre in Chicago, the Merril theatre in Milwaukee, and other big houses, ‘Skinner’s Baby,’ the third of Essanay’s Skinner series, is enjoying bookings throughout the country which threaten to break all records for K-E-S-E, according to reports from this service, now handling the films.

Box office receipts on this picture are said to have reached high-water mark for exhibitors.

Gold Rooster Books in Omaha Territory

Gold Rooster pictures have been booked for the Lyric of Lincoln, Neb.; Strand of Sioux City, Ia.; Strand of Hastings, Neb.; and the Jewel of Sioux Falls, S. D., recently. These are all among the best theatres in these three states.

Goldwyn’s Trade Showings

Among the contracts announced by Goldwyn this week is the Boston theatre, owned by the Keith interests in Boston. This gives Goldwyn its first run in the Hub on Washington street in the very heart of the downtown district. Manager E. G. Larson is making plans for the introduction of the Goldwyn productions into his house.

Samuel Baxter’s Isis theatre, Denver, has signed for the Goldwyn productions, which gives him an advantageous setting in Colorado’s chief city. Mr. Baxter is noted for his showmanship and informs Goldwyn that he will present its productions under conditions never before attained in Denver.

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and Charles Weiss, vice-president, were in charge of the Boston showing last week at the Fenway theatre, which had been obtained by Harry F. Campbell, manager of Goldwyn’s Boston offices.

"Baby Mine," Margaret Mayo’s farce comedy, was the first picture that won the applause of the Boston audience. In this production Madge Kennedy makes her screen debut and is a decided hit.

After a luncheon the hundreds of exhibitors present from all over New England—saw Maxine Elliott in "Fighting Odds," a new play by Roy Cooper Megrely and Irvin S. Cobb. Added interest surrounds this production in New England because of the fact that Miss Elliott was born in Rockland, Me. The picture marks her first appearance on any screen.

The Philadelphia showing was held in the Palace theatre on Market street in what, at that time, was the hottest night of the year, the picture starting at 11:15 p.m. and holding the audience of exhibitors from the entire Philadelphia district until 1 a.m.

The showing was under the auspices of Stanley V. Massbaum, George T. Ames, manager of Goldwyn’s Philadelphia offices, and F. B. Warren, one of the Goldwyn vice-presidents from New York.

Margaret Mayo’s "Baby Mine" was the one picture seen by the Philadelphia exhibitors who pronounced it to be the most striking farce comedy they had ever seen on the screen.

Harvest of Press Notices for “Jack and the Beanstalk”

North-West Tires of “Junk” and Will Pay Price

E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of the Educational Films Corporation of America, who has just returned from Minneapolis, says exchange men and exhibitors inform him that regular prices may now be obtained.

Mr. Hammons adds the exhibitor in the North-West has discovered that in using “junk films and junk exchanges” he “cut his own throat.”

A body of the most representative exhibitors got together and informed some of the better companies that if they would re-establish their exchanges in that territory they would be supported. Consequently, this is now being done and first class pictures can get their deserved rental prices now in that territory.

To Run Vitagraph Pictures for Two Weeks

G. E. Spaeht, president of the Fuller Theatre, Kalamazoo, Michigan, and the Jewel of Kalamazoo, Michigan, started a solid two-weeks’ run of Vitagraph pictures. Every day for fourteen days he will show a Vitagraph “Blue Ribbon” feature.

In starting the innovation Mr. Spaeht planned a newspaper advertising campaign. He will take half pages each day in the Kalamazoo daily newspapers.

Twelve Reels a Week from Vita Next Month

Four Blue Ribbons Rushed to Completion in Brooklyn Studio for September Release—All Companies Busy

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of the Vitagraph Company, announces that with the beginning of September the Vitagraph product will be turned out at the rate of twelve reels per week, and in some cases even this will be increased. In order to maintain this rate of production, the several star combinations who have just wound up their work were assigned new plays and production on them has already been started.

Last week was "clean-up" week at Vitagraph's big plant in Brooklyn, no less than four Blue Ribbon features being rushed to completion simultaneously. All will appear on the September program of V-L-S-E, the distributing organization for Vitagraph product.

Alice Joyce and Marc MacDermott, who have been working under the direction of Chester Withey in "An Alabaster Box" have finished up their labors. Ewart Overton and Miriam Fouche, who have been doing "Soldiers of Chance" under the direction of Paul Scardon, also completed their task and later Ashley Miller brought Mildred Manning and Wallace McDonald under the white in "The Princess of Park Row."

Edward Earle and Betty Howe, who have been engaged for five weeks on "For France," a big feature being handled by Wesley Ruggles, ended their work a few days later.

"Who Goes There?", a feature in which Harry Morye and Corinne Griffith are being directed by W. P. S. Earle, is nearing completion, the director working the great Chambers story with extraordinary dispatch.

While the eastern directors were clearing up, William Wolbert at the western Vitagraph plant, was taking the final scenes of "The Bandit's Double," featuring Mary Anderson and Alfred Whitman.

Four of the five completed features will appear on the September release schedule of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, the list being arranged as follows:

Sept. 10—"An Alabaster Box," from the book by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman and Florence Morse Kingsley. It is the story of a daughter's loyalty to her father, a wealthy man who met ruin and was sent to prison as an embezzler. Alice Joyce plays the role of the devoted daughter and Marc MacDermott that of the father. The scenario was reconstructed by Mr. Withey.

Sept. 17—"For France," a romantic story by Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady dealing with the love of a young American for a little French girl, the daughter of a famous artist. The war serves as a background for the main love theme, but there is an absence of battle scenes, the war element being confined to brief flashes that serve as high lights for the love story.

Sept. 24—"The Bandit's Double," by Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, a story of an outlaw's infatuation for a beautiful girl. She mistakes another man for the outlaw and by so doing brings him close to death.

Another of Vic Moore's "Family Series," April 13

Victor Moore will release on August 13 his latest comedy, called "Summer Boarding." It is a continuation of his "family series," written by Thomas J. Gray.

Vic reads an ad in the Summer Resort Column of a daily paper advertising "Restful Villa" at Bullem-in-the-Pines. The place, so the ad reads, has everything your heart would desire, and wanting to get away from the heat of the city, Vic packs his family up and off they go. They soon arrive at Bullem-in-the-Pines and are met at the station by a hackman whom Vic describes as "Rip Van Winkle." After many hardships in the hack they manage to reach Restful Villa. The place is everything that your heart would not desire, and from this moment on Vic's troubles begin.

Bessie Eyt on in Jungle Plays for Selig

William N. Selig is trying to relieve what he terms "a dearth of jungle dramas." August 13 he releases a Central American picture, "The Sole Survivor," by James Oliver Curwood, Bessie Eyt on being featured. "Between Man and Beast," two reels, with the same star, is released August 20. In this an ape seizes and cares for a little child.

"Her Heart's Desire," one reel, also a Bessie Eyt on play, is directed by Colm Campbell, to be released August 18. "Her Salvation," one reel, Bessie Eyt on, released August 25, has to do with "the submerged tenth." All are General Film.

"Miss Nobody" Set for Current Release by Pathe

In "Miss Nobody," Pathe "Gold Rooster," for release on August 19, Gladys Hulette is to be seen in the leading role. A. G. Andrews and Cesare Gravina are elderly, big hearted pawnbrokers, "Crespi and Malone." They draw to their parts a sympathy that is not often given to men in their business. Joyce Fair and William Parke, Jr., also have parts.

Leaders in Athletics in Selig Series for K-E-S-E.

The most skilful boxers, the champion wrestlers, the most expert players of tennis, the most daring swimmers—in fact, leaders in all lines of athletic endeavor—are shown in the Selig Athletic and Physical Culture films, ten in all, two-reelers.

The pictures are handled by K-E-S-E.
“Iris,” by Pinero, Is on Pathe Program

Alma Taylor, one of the beauties of the English stage, appears in the lead in the screen production of “Iris,” five-reel Gold Rooster feature by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, which is being released on the Pathe program.

Pinero’s “Iris” had a successful run when Virginia Harney, Lynn Harding and William Courtenay appeared in it.

Henry Ainly takes the part of Maldondo, the heavy in “Iris.” The role of the hero in the screen version is in the hands of Stuart Rome, one of the younger English leading men. He is now at the front in the trenches.

Two Dramatic Releases by Selig for August 27

William N. Selig announces the release in General Film service for the week beginning Monday, August 27, of “Pioneer Days,” and “In After Years.”

In the cast of “Pioneer Days” are Kathryn Williams, Lafayette McKee, Charles Clary, William Stowell and others. This historical drama is not a reissue.

“In After Years” gives Miss Eugenie Beiser an opportunity to prove her talents as a wonderful emotional actress. It is the drama of a woman whose youthful loveliness and charm begin to succumb to the ravages of time.

“The Slackers,” a Call to Arms, Goes Over Well

From East and West come words of praise for the Metro play, “The Slackers,” starring Emily Stevens.

At the Coliseum, Seattle, Washington, the largest motion picture theatre west of the Mississippi River, many were turned away on the opening day and the business during the week is described as the best that that theatre ever enjoyed at this time of the year.

The Strand theatre in New York did equally well with the picture. All of the New York papers commented favorably upon it. Manager Edel of the Strand said it is one of the truly great pictures.

Pittsburgh, Washington and other cities have heard the powerful and clear call to arms that “The Slackers” sounds.

K-E-S-E Schedule Arranged Until November

Washburn, Holmes, Mary McAllister and Marguerite Clayton Starred in Early Winter Pictures—Four Conquest Programs Are Also Arranged

KLEINE, Edison, Selig, Essanay announce the completion of their program until well into the winter. The schedule of releases as now arranged are:

August 27, “The Lady of the Photograph,” Edison, featuring Shirley Mason; September 3, “Efficiency Edgar’s Courtship,” Essanay, presenting Taylor Holmes; September 10, “Pants,” Essanay, in which charming little Mary McAllister will be starred; September 17, title not yet given out; September 24, “Men of the Desert,” Essanay, featuring Jack Gardner; October 1, title not yet announced; October 8, “A Fool for Luck,” Essanay, presenting Taylor Holmes; October 15, “The Fibbers,” Essanay, featuring Bryant Washburn; October 2, title not yet announced; October 29, novelty film, title to be announced later, Essanay, Marguerite Clayton; November 4, title not yet decided upon; November 11, “Two Bit Seats,” Essanay, featuring Taylor Holmes.

In addition to the above releases, George Kleine has announced the following releases of the Edison Conquest Programs:

Some of the country’s most noted authors are contributing stories to be filmed in these Conquest Programs. Mrs. M. E. Davis wrote “The Little Chevalier”; “The Customary Two Weeks” is from the pen of Freeman Tilden; “Gallegher” was written by Richard Harding Davis; “The Princess’ Necklace” was written by Clara Freeman Alger.

Mr. Kleine’s organization reports brisk inquiries and much business on Conquest Pictures, which are produced by the Thomas A. Edison Studios.

Many theatres throughout the country have set aside one day each week for the Conquest Program, which is composed of seven reels. In referring to these programs, Mr. Kleine’s Publicity Department describes them as “Films for the Whole Family.” As the titles indicate, they are made up of dramas, comedies, scenic, travelogue, legendary, cartoons, scientific and educational.

K-E-S-E to Release “A Trip to Chinatown,” August 20

“A Trip to Chinatown,” one of Charles Hoyt’s comedies, is the Selig comedy release in K-E-S-E service on August 20.

J. A. Richmond directed the comedy and in the cast are William Fables, James Harris, Amy, Leah Dennis, Fanny Cohen, Frank Hamilton and A. Francis Lenz.

The Selig Company promises an unusual number of elaborate Oriental sets, a lot of vivacious damsel and a succession of side-splitting episodes.

Athletic Funmakers in “Big V”

“Shells and Shivers”

Vitagraph’s big laugh for the week of August 20 will be “Shells and Shivers.”

The comedy was written by Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker and directed by the former. The cast includes the “Big V” company of daredelic funsters, Earle Montgomery, Joe Simberg, Murray Simberg, Ed. Dunn, James Aubrey, Joe Basil and Pietro Arrimondo.
Two Italian War Pictures Offered by Wild

John Wild, American representative of the Anglo Film Agencies, Ltd., London, whose New York office is at 347 Fifth avenue, is arranging a private showing for the near future of "The Battle of the Isonzo" and "The Battle of the Alps," pictures dealing with the activities of the Italian army. A percentage of the receipts from the exhibition of these subjects will go to the Italian Red Cross.

"The War of 1848," said Mr. Wild, discussing their appeal to the American public, "show actual fighting conditions of our Allies with the Austrians. "The Battle of the Isonzo" was taken on the firing line. "The Battle of the Alps," 3,700 feet in length, was shown by royal command at Buckingham Palace before His Majesty King George. At a later date a special matinee was given, which was attended by Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the Italian Ambassador and other high officials. The exhibition is being held under conditions as they are at the front should prove a good drawing card for leading exhibitors.

"Mary Jane's Pa" Gives Vita.

Company Character Work

In "Mary Jane's Pa" there is more than the usual amount of character acting. This Greater Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature is scheduled for early release. Templar Sage plays the heavy role, that of the town usurer or "villain"; Mildred Manning, heroine of many picture plays, portrays the twelve-year-old girl; Eulalie Jensen, pupil of Mme. Bernhardt, takes the part of Mary's mother. Miss Grace Yarbrough has the role of milliner and town gossip. Her work is called one of the most finished pieces of character acting seen on the screens in a long time.

"Mary Jane's Pa" was a vehicle for Herbert E. Dixey. It is given a most faithful reproduction by Greater Vitagraph. The announcement says it seems destined to take the place with those other famous rural plays, "The Old Homestead" and "Down East.

"Mother" Maurice, of Vitagraph.

Has Golden Jubilee

"Transgression," the Greater Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature which will be released August 20, has been made the vehicle for a golden jubilee on the stage and screen of Mary Birch Maurice. In the days of the civil war Mrs. Maurice took her first steps toward fame by eloquent addresses in behalf of recruiting. And now, fifty years later, the stress of war again comes to find "Mother" Maurice, best beloved of screen stars, the same tireless patriot that she was in 61. Just now she is busy collecting old gloves which she cuts into strips and sews together to make linings for soldier's coats.

"Mother" Maurice really came into her own in successive engagements with Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett and with Joseph Jefferson. Several years ago she joined the Vitagraph company, appearing first in "The Legacy" and in "His Mother."

Startling Effects Produced by New Lighting

An invention which it is said, adds extraordinary realism to dark scenes is credited to John M. Nickalas, superintendent of photography at Universal City. It changes the direction of the light so that it seems actually to come from the lamp on the table, the fire, gaslight or electric drop-light—the light being in sufficient quantity to be recorded as a bright beam on the screen.

This will correct, it is said, an old defect in motion pictures. Time was that when a man lit a cigar no light appeared, and when he struck a match all that was produced was a hardly perceptible flame.

In "The Phantom's Secret" there is a railroad wreck in a tunnel. R. H. Cochran, Universal's vice-president, wanted to avoid, if possible, the expense of an actual wreck. Mr. Nickalas was called in and devised the new light. The wreck was effectively staged by using only the two great beams from the searchlights on the supposed engines. It made the audience gasp in ex- citement, the effect was so startling.

Marguerite Clark in Pinero's "The Amazons."

Marguerite Clark's first Paramount Picture under the new "selective star series" booking plan. "The Amazons" is an adaptation of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's successful play of the same name which was directed by Joseph Kaufman.

In it Miss Clark is Lady Thomason, one of the three daughters of Lady Castlejordon, who suffers from the obsession that her daughters should have been sons. She brings them up as boys, dressing them in male attire and in every way endeavors to inculcate the masculine spirit in her offspring.

Red Cross Day in St. John, N. B., to Aid French Wounded

The Imperial theatre, St. John, N. B., has been donated by the Keith interests for a day's benefit for the Red Cross. The day chosen is the 12th of July, the proceeds to be given in answer to the appeal sent out to the whole of Canada for aid for French wounded. Special pictures will be shown relating to France.

Another Hoyt Comedy Ready on July 23

William N. Selig announces the release of "A Runaway Colt," a comedy written by Charles Hoyt. The release date is Monday, July 23, in K. K. E. S. Harris service.

Briefly, the story concerns Elias Simpkins, an energetic farmer, who would marry his daughter Letty to Noto Short, son of Banker Short. However, Letty and Hank Higgins, the industrious farm hand, have resolved to get hitched up at the earliest opportunity, when Judge Short brings his son Noto to see Letty. Hank Higgins is instrumental in causing a riot, which results in Judge Short leaving the old farm in anger. After a series of unfortunate circumstances Elias Simpkins would have revenge on his farm hand, and orders Letty to remain indoors, while papa sees the birdmen fly. Hank and Letty seize this opportunity to elope. Simpkins follows the trail in an airship. He overthrows the fugitives; but does not fail their purpose for the reason he is thrown off the train by irate commercial travelers.

William Fables, James Harris and Amy Leah Dennis head the cast.

Real Love-Making Before Camera in "The Gypsy's Trust."

Playing opposite William Russell in "The Great Stanley Secret," is Charlotte Burton, now Mrs. Russell. Their romance has but recently culminated and their love-making was at its height during the production of the play.

It is a two-act drama, the first episode of which, "The Gypsy's Trust," will be released by the Minipl Film Corporation, July 23. The episodes will be in four reels each. The first chapter opens with a railroad wreck scene. It is said there is punch and snap every minute afterward in the play.

The picture is produced by the American Film Company, Inc., under the direction of Edward S. Sloane. William Tedmarsh plays the role of Quabba, the gypsy chieftain.

Charles H. France Announces "The Natural Law."

Announcement was made by Charles H. France, director general of the France Film Company, Inc., that their first super-feature, "The Natural Law," has been completed, and will shortly be released, though no method of distribution has yet been decided upon.

The film is in eight reels, and is a close duplication of the stage play, "The Natural Law," which ran for eight months at the Republic Theatre.

Marguerite Courtot is heroine, George Larkin leading man, and others in the cast are the author himself, Howard Hall, and Maggie Holloway Fisher.

Mr. France, who directed the film himself, is a producer, and this marks his entry into the independent picture making field. No expense has been spared to make the production elaborate, and there is so much action that the eight reels are not padded. A screen presentation equaling the success of the piece on the legitimate stage is expected.
MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Universal Heads Program with "Squaring It"

"SQUARING IT," a colorful Bison drama of the far West, featuring Neal Hart and Janet Eastman, heads Universal's regular list of releases for the week of August 20th. Monday is Butterfly Day as usual, signalized by the release of "The Lair of the Wolf," in which Donna Drew, Joseph Girard and Gretchen Lederer have been provided with effective parts. "Squaring It," bears the release date of Tuesday, August 21. The play is said to be the strongest in which Neal Hart has yet appeared. Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts will be presented on the same date in a Nestor comedy, entitled "Move Over." This is described as a typical Lyons and Moran celluloid farce.

"Street Cars and Carbuncles," a two-reel L-Ko comedy, headlining Bob MacKenzie, Eva Novak and Eddie Barry is the feature for Wednesday, August 22. J. G. Blystone and Dick Smith, directors of this potpourri of absurdities, have succeeded in putting together a comedy of errors that has at least a score of laughter-making devices in each reel in the antics of Miss Novak and Messrs. MacKenzie and Barry. The 86th issue of the Animated Weekly will be released on the same date.

Little Zoe Rae will be starred in "Heart of Gold," the feature released Thursday, August 23. It is called a human interest drama of genuine appeal. The production was written by Charles A. Wilson, Jr., and Karl R. Coolidge, and directed by George Sargent. Zoe takes the part of a child of the tenements. She is supported by Walter Belasco, Scymour Hastings and Gertrude Astor. "Behind the Map," a Joker comedy, featuring William Franey, will be released on the same date. Tom Gibson and William Beaudine are responsible for the story and direction. Lillian Peacock and Millburn Moranti are prominent in Franey's support in this production.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven are the stars of a "Five-Foot Ruler," a two-reel Victor comedy, scheduled for release Friday, August 24. The setting pictured in the opening of this tale is a co-educational college. Beas Meredith and Max Harvey wrote the scenario, while Carter De Haven put on the production. The 33d issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will be released on the same day.

Gale Henry and Milton Sims will be featured in "Mrs. Madam Manager," a Joker comedy, to be shown Saturday, August 25. Tom Gibson and Allen Curtis are credited with story and production respectively. A rural opera house is utilized to give a picturesque background. Lillian Peacock and Charles Maelli are prominent in the cast. A Power's cartoon and a Dit-mar's educational complete the list of releases for the week.

"The Pearl Necklace," the ninth—and by many considered the most thrilling of the episodes yet shown of "The Gray Ghost," the mystery serial founded upon Arthur Somers Roche's "Saturday Evening Post" novel—will also be released for exhibition outside of Greater New York during the week of August 20.

Better Chance for Baby Marie in New Play

Baby Marie Osborne is the star of the Pathe Gold Rooster play to be released on September 2, "Baby's Diplomacy." In the opinion of competent critics Pathe says it should rank as the best picture in which she has ever been featured. The story is one which gives her more opportunity to show her talents than any of her previous starring vehicles.

With her in the cast are Katharine McLaren, Philo McCullough, Margaret Warner and the little colored boy who has been in several of her recent pictures.
Dutch Village in Triangle’s “Wooden Shoes”

TRIANGLE’S $35,000 Dutch Village, which was recently erected on the ranch grounds of the California studio, will make its appearance in “Wooden Shoes,” a feature, starring Besie Barriscale, to be released the first week of August 9th on the same program with “They’re Off,” a racing play.

As the sprightly young Pampy, flower vender in the Dutch village, Miss Barriscale has one of the roles which she invests with the peculiar Barriscale vivacity and pertness. Her brown eyes, light golden curls and well-rounded figure inspire an American painter visiting the dyke land to employ her as a model for the Dutch subjects which he is painting. Later, when her grandfather dies, she goes as an immigrant to America and there again meets her admiring artist.

The quaint life of Holland has been reproduced on this film. The village has the windowless, white-washed, low-roofed houses typical of the low-land country. Some remarkable Dutch types were selected from over two thousand extras that responded to the call for people of Holland lineage.

The wardrobe department was given a large order for Dutch costumes only a few weeks in advance of the production, but the entire outfit was prepared for the players the night before the first scene was filmed. Miss Barriscale wears the lace cap, short striped petticoat and wooden shoes of the Dutch maiden.

The company of principals includes Jack Livingston, J. J. Dowling, Thomas S. Guise, Howard Hickman, Margaret Thompson, Gertrude Claire, J. Frank Burke, Don Likes, Will H. Bray and J. H. Gothc. Three hundred extras were engaged for the scenes.

“They’re Off,” the other offering of the August 19th program, is of Southern locale, the action culminating in an exciting racehorse scene with a girl riding the winner. A Triangle all-star cast, numbering Melbourn McDowell, Wal Whittemore, Thomas Land Lee, Enid Bennett and Samuel Lincoln among its all-star cast, is also featured.

“Fatal Ring” and “Iris” Head Pathe List

PEARL WHITE in “The Fatal Ring,” “Iris,” called by many Sir Arthur Pinero’s greatest play, a fine Combinote scene, an International cartoon and scene, and two numbers of the Hearst-Pathe News comprise the Pathé program for the week of August 26.

Pearl White stars in the eighth episode of “The Fatal Ring,” entitled “The Switch in the Safe.” As Pearl Standish she has been given five seconds to return the violet diamond to Carslake. Pretending to see it in her purse, the fire-renovator at Carslake through the purse itself and makes her escape in the resulting confusion.

In the meanwhile Carslake secures the diamond. Pearl, while attempting to light a lamp she needs, has had it extinguished in her hands. and is temporarily blinded. While in this condition she is seized by Carslake and taken to his house. Recovering her sight, she determines to keep the fact secret in order to enable her to find the whereabouts of the diamond.

The cunning Carslake penetrates her ruse and while pretending to hide the diamond in his safe in reality attaches a bomb to the door so that when it is opened it will automatically explode the bomb. The last scene shows Pearl about to open this door.

In “Iris” appears Alma Taylor, a beautiful English player, who enjoys the distinction of having received from Sir Arthur Pinero, the author of the play, a letter stating that he has seen the picture and considers her ideal in the part. As Iris she plays the part of a wealthy widow who has many suitors, among them Maldonado, a Portuguese millionaire. Of all her suitors the one most favored and the one she truly loves is Trenhawk, a poor engineer.

A beautiful number of the Combinote is listed on this program under the title of “Know what I Think?” Many scenes among the mountains are shown, and, as usual, they are tinted with rare finesse.

An International Scenic split, with a laughable animated cartoon by one of the famous Hearst cartoonists, and the Hearst-Pathe News numbers 70 and 71 finish out the program.

Georgie Ade Fables in General Film Program

O. Henry Releases to Continue in Features “The Martinache Wedding” and “The Mainspring” First General Film Four-Reeler, August 17

The new series of George Ade comedies starts September 1, so General Film announces. General Film says the quaint fables have been preserved in the screen presentation with brilliancy of delineation.

An official of General Film points out that the new series from the pen of George Ade is a consistent development of the company’s appreciation of story worth as an appeal to the picture-going public.

Two more new O. Henry releases are now ready, bringing the list to a total of twenty. The new ones are “Discounters of Money” and “The Furnished Room.” Upon the completion of the two-reel stories, a notable list of four-reel O. Henry stories and also a group of one-reel subjects from the same author will be offered.

Comedy-dramas and dramas will generally alternate.

A Louis Joseph Vance story, “The Mainspring,” which was published in Popular Magazine, is the first of the Falcon Features, four-reel drama productions. It is followed by “The Martinache Marriage,” by Beatrix Demarest Lloyd, featuring Margaret Landis and Philo McCullough. The third Falcon Feature is to be “The Stolen Play,” a remarkable application of the dramatic possibilities in a picture called “The Falcon.” Features Ruth Roland and William Conklin. All of these Falcon Features were supervised by H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer.

The Kalem offering through General Film, “The Further Adventures of Stingaree,” continues. This series stars True Boardman. His well-known and highly admired role of Stingaree, a courtly Australian bushranger, is said to be proving a money-maker wherever it is shown.

Some splendid Selig wild animal dramas have been coming out on the General Film schedule. “A Man, a Girl and a Lion,” with Thomas Santchi and Besie Eyton, and Her Perilous Ride,” with Besie Eyton, are now followed with “The Sole Survivor” and “Her Heart’s Desire.” These are dramatic subjects, two reels and one reel respectively. The Selig World Library, the weekly one-reel educational, is keeping up to the standard and has reached its fourteenth consecutive number.

The Sparkle, Jaxon and Ray comedies, all in their second series, the Sparkle and Jaxon subjects being available in groups of six, an arrangement that has proved very popular with exhibitors.

O. Henry Release, “The Discounters of Money”

“The Discounters of Money,” nineteenth of the two-reel O. Henry pictures, features Carleton King, who has appeared in several former O. Henry pictures, as the hero, Pilkins, and Miss Catherine Charlton, as the heroine, Alice Von der Ruyysing, of Gymney Park.

Two other roles of interest are those of Marcus Clayton and Miss Eva Bedford, of Virginia, stranded in New York. The parts respectively are taken by Webster Campbell and Lucille Hoyer.

The picture was directed by Martin Justice and is the current “Broadway Star” feature release by General Film.

“The Mainspring,” First General Film Four-Reeler, August 17

“The Mainspring,” first of General Film’s four-reelers, has been set for release August 17, an earlier date than was at first thought possible.

It is a drama by Louis Joseph Vance, pictured from his story in “Popular Magazine,” and deals with the adventures of a manly man—young, ambitious, sensitive and enterprising. The man, whose name is Conklin, which he could not control he is thrust out of surroundings of luxury into the primitive surroundings of far West.

Henry King both plays the lead and directs the picture, which was supervised by H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer. Carl Pepprele and Bert Emsmeyer are the others.

THE FOREIGN MARKET

War Series Obtained by Felix Malitz of Piedmont

Felix Malitz, General Manager of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, is expecting a shipment of interesting military films from London in the near future.

These are not news films, but stage pictures of from 2,000 to 3,000 feet in length, and are said to be of highly dramatic character, depicting life in England during the war, and containing many battle scenes.

Mr. Malitz has secured the exclusive exhibiting rights for this country, and an auction was raised on the type of films and the interest prevailing in this country he expects the subjects, to make a great hit throughout the country.

Selig to Sell Athletic Series in Far East

Negotiations are now being made with the Selig Polyscope Company for the sale of territorial rights in Australia and Japan for the Selig Athletic and Physical Culture series. According to reports from the K. E. S. E. branch exchanges the country over the Selig Athletic films are becoming more popular every day with the people.

The Selig Athletic series presents leaders in the world of sport from the most skillful boxers to swimmers.

Motors Not Alike

In a recent discussion of the merits and the future of the new Motoy Comedies, the objection was raised that owing to the type of the releases the comedies must necessarily become similar. This point of view was taken on the ground that the field of production is limited and that the same dolls are used over and over again.

H. C. Allen, the president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, which makes these doll comedies, denies this emphatically. He says that the field is not limited, and that it possesses rare possibilities for humor. The Motoy book has as many quantities of dissimilar stories, and at present they are doing up-to-the-minute fairy stories, which are all totally different.

In support of this claim he outlined the plots of several of the recent releases, showing that in spite of the same dolls, which after all will become as well-known as real actors and actresses, the pictures are entirely unlike.

Dresner Buys "Redemption"

A. Dresner, general manager of the Exhibitors' Federation of Washington, D.C. and Harry Crandall have purchased Julius Steger's "Redemption," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son Russell Thaw, for the District of Columbia, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

The purchase was made through David Bernstein and Joseph F. Lee, New York representatives for the Exhibitors' Film Exchange.

Piedmont Co. Outlet for High Class Pictures

A GENERAL survey of the results attained by the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, of New York, Paris, London and Tokio, since it has taken over the business of the Hawk Film Co., and opened enlarged headquarters in the Godfrey Building, New York, tends to indicate that the officers have followed, without deviation, the line of endeavor, mapped out—that is to faithfully represent prominent producers, and at the same time act as confidential purchase agents for prominent buyers throughout the world.

General Manager Felix Malitz is very well known in the trade. As organizer and commercial manager of Pathe Freres, for whom he has handled their entire American business as vice-president and general manager, he built up the Pathe Exchange organization in this country, and has for many years been generally connected with the film business in America and abroad.

Assisting him are, Joseph Lamy, as export manager; Arthur Ziehm, as Mr. Lamy's assistant; G. A. Engler, manager of the distribution and service departments, and Harry Rubin as manager of the film and technical departments.

Malitz applies tried, safe and sound business principles in connection with the corporation of which he is the head. In speaking about the accomplishments of the Hawk Film Company in their capacity as sole distributors of the Ivan Film Productions, and in presenting the reasons why the Piedmont Pictures Corporation have widened their scope as the Ivan representatives, he said last week: "The Ivan product finds ready advance orders in the foreign market, because it is standardized both from the artistic and technical standpoint. The trade knows the class of pictures they may expect. No matter what changes may be made, no matter how the variety of subject, the buyer always knows that an Ivan production will present something deeper than what is seen upon the surface.

"I may be candid and incidentally mention," Mr. Malitz continued, "one of the reasons that we have been enabled to greatly enlarge our operations is because of the splendid results we have attained as Ivan Film Productions' exclusive distributors. I am aware that occasionally we find in this country those that may not agree with the standard set by the Ivan Film Productions, but I will say that it is in Paris, or Tokio, London or in South Africa, Ivan films have attracted an unusually great audience.

The Piedmont Corporation purposes to be an outlet for any manufacturer who will offer pictures which are sufficiently interesting to command the approval of the Piedmont expert export staff at the New York office.

The Piedmont Pictures Corporation also handles foreign productions in the United States. It is just about to put on the market a series of British features dealing with the Great War, viewed from the British side. These productions have made, it is said, a tremendous success all over England and the Allied countries, and are bound to also appeal greatly to the American public. They will be distributed in this country through various of the most prominent distributing agencies.

Wertheimer Pays $375,000 for "Intolerance"

Emile Wertheimer of London paid recently $375,000 for the British and African rights to "Intolerance." The purchase was made direct from Mr. D. W. Griffith and a check for the entire amount was passed at the signing of the contract. This, it is understood, is but the beginning of Mr. Wertheimer's activity in the handling of superfeatures in his territory as he is in the market to acquire anything which can be truly described as extraordinary.

Advices from London state that toward the end of the run of "Intolerance" at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, it was specially played before their Majesties King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra and the royal family. A performance was also given for Premier Lloyd George and his Cabinet. Despite the little time at the disposal of His Majesty during these busy days King George joined the party unexpectedly and remained until the end of the performance. "Intolerance" has beaten all Drury Lane records.

Mr. Wertheimer will place at least twenty companies on the road which will show at all the first-class theatres only throughout the British Isles and Africa.

"Submarine Eye" Abroad

Williamson Brothers announce that they have received offers from practically every territory in Europe and South America for "The Submarine Eye." The most recent sales included South Africa, France, Switzerland, Italy, the Balkan States and Dominion of Canada.

To Form New Export Co.

Samuel Cummins, film broker, of the Longacre Bldg., 1476 Broadway, New York, left for Canada last week to close several deals on films now pending for that territory. He will also look after a new company now being formed for import and export films.

General direction of J.G. Blystone. Book it.

"Officer! Call a Cop!"

Bill Franey in One Reel Joker Makes Fun on the Chinatown Beat

Bill Franey is a cop on duty in Chinatown. He sees a settlement worker captured by members of a Tong, and the picture shows his adventures when he attempts to rescue her. It is the funniest kind of comedy, for Bill is scared stiff, and he gets the fact over to an audience in his own hilarious way. Here is a Joker comedy that will tickle your fans and it is strong enough to strengthen any program.

Gale Henry in "A Gale of Verse," one-reel Joker, is ambitious to become a writer. She lands in a newspaper office, where she reads her "poetry" to everyone. To get rid of her they send her to a deserted house. There she discovers a band of counterfeiters, reads poetry to them till they are helpless and collects a reward for their capture. It's a scream.

merely with the Selig and American companies. Ted Bevis, for two years with Ince, and also with Universal and Selig, has been appointed technical director, and the art department is in charge of F. J. Wetherbee, who made the models for the Atlanta scenes in "The Birth of a Nation," constructed the models and completed jungle sets for David Horsley, and has done important work for other companies.

Gilbert Warrenton, for four years with Universal, and later with the Fine Arts and Lule Warrenton companies, is in charge of the photographic department, and Gordon Griffith, the child star, has been engaged for the part of the boy Tarzan.

A laboratory is included in the plant, and here will be handled the scenes which will require toning and tinting, and those in which special lighting effects are to be carried out. The balance of the laboratory work will be done at the Wm. Horsley plant.

Mr. Sidney will make many of the big scenes for the production in Louisiana, where a part of the company will be taken to work among the bayous with large numbers of negro extras, and a great deal of "jungle stuff" will also be put on in Los Angeles. It is stated that the production will be completed toward the end of the year, and that it will be approximately nine reels in length.

The following are the officers of the National Film Corporation: President, William Parsons of Los Angeles; vice-president, Robert Middlewood of Rawlins, Wyoming; secretary and treasurer, Fred L. Porter of Los Angeles; director, J. M. Rumsey, president of the Stock Growers' National Bank of Rawlins.

"Mother o' Mine" Set for Release on Labor Day

Bluebird branch managers are perfecting plans for the release of "Mother O' Mine," the Bluebird Extraordinary, set for Labor Day, with Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford starring, and Ruby Laayette featured in the "mother" role. This feature will be handled by Bluebird's branches along independent lines, after the manner in which "The Eagle's Wings" and "Hell Morgan's Girl" were circulated to exhibitors.

Besides playing one of the star parts, Rupert Julian directed this feature with the assistance of his wife, Elsie Jane Wilson, who also appears in the support and who has lately become a full-fledged director on Bluebird's staff. Miss Wilson plays opposite E. A. Warren in sustaining the comedy element in "Mother O' Mine," Miss Clifford and Ruby Laayette completing the cast. Miss Laayette makes her screen debut in this work, although her stage career began in the early sixties. At the age of seventy-two she now presents the "mother" character with the faithfulness of venerable artistry.

Wide Publicity Campaign for Howell Comedies

"Balloontics," "Automaniacs" and "Neps' Nutty Daughter," three of the Alice Howell Comedies ready for release this month, were presented to the trade at the Broadway theatre on August 27.

The Longacre Distributing Company, which controls the rights for these productions, announces that on August 20 an extensive advertising and publicity campaign, starting with subway and elevated station advertising, will be inaugurated.

W. F. Kelley, the sales manager, reports that although he expected many bookings on these comedies, the number being turned in by his salesmen greatly exceeds the quota he had anticipated.

Belgian and French War Pictures Sold

Mrs. M. L. Fulton has secured the rights for a number of eastern, western and southern states of the official French war film entitled "Fighting in France," imported by Claude Patin. The pictures will be marketed by Mrs. Fulton in California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Montana and Nevada.

For Illinois and Indiana the picture can be booked through the Unity Film Company, 200 South La Salle street, Chicago. For other states application should be made to Mrs. Fulton, Room 302, Great Northern Hotel, Chicago.

Mrs. Fulton has also control of the official Belgian picture entitled "The Kingdom of Grief," showing the results of the German invasion in Belgium and fighting in Northern France. The picture will be issued in seven reels.

Roskam Opens Office in Candler Building

Edward M. Roskam has resigned from the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and will open an office in the Candler Building, New York City, where he intends to do a brokerage business.

Mr. Roskam will also conduct an expert editing and film cutting department at the same address. He has specialized in this part of the business and is known for the number of pictures which have been improved by judicious cutting and editing.

Loew Circuit Books "Lone Wolf"

Herbert Brenon's "Lone Wolf" has been booked over the Loew circuit by the Selznick exchange in New York City. The picture was successful at the Broadway theatre, New York City, and at the Studiobaker, in Chicago. Already ten large cities have run pre-release showings of this picture and others are to follow shortly.

September 6 Set for Showing of "Romanoffs"

Russian Ambassador Will See the Picture at the Ritz-Carlton—Symphony Orchestra Will Render Music Specially Written for the Occasion

BORIS BAKHMETIEFF, the Russian Ambassador at Washington, will be the specially invited guest to attend the first private showing of Herbert Brenon's "The Fall of the Romanoffs," featuring Jiikodor, the exiled Russian monk and confidant of Rasputin. The main ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton has been engaged for this purpose.

The showing will be held Thursday night, September 6, and it will be absolutely the first time that any person outside of the Brenon producing forces will have seen this picture.

"So secret has the work on this production been on account of the sensational and startling facts that the picture discloses that not even Lewis J. Selznick, who has controlled the distribution of the Brenon subjects, has seen a foot of the film," says an officer of the company.

"The Russian Ambassador will be accompanied to New York for this special occasion by his entire embassy staff in full dress uniform. With the exception of the newspaper men these will be the only guests outside of the industry.

Invitations will also be sent to the representatives in this country of the prominent English, French, Italian and Spanish papers, most of whom will be brought especially from Washington for the express purpose of viewing this production. Representatives of the big newspapers of Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other important cities of the United States will also be among those invited. Although theatrical producers have on one or two occasions brought out of town newspaper men to New York to attend the opening performance of an attraction it is believed that this is the first time that such a thing has been done for a motion picture.

"With the exception of those mentioned above, the balance of the invitation list of about two hundred and fifty will be made up of all of the prominent and well-known men of the motion picture industry.

"For over a month a specially engaged staff of well-known composers has been working in close co-operation with Mr. Brenon on the music that is to go with the picture. This, owing to the subject with which it deals, will be entirely Russian and particular care has been taken that every scene is accompanied by the right and proper music, all so harmoniously blended that it is almost impossible to tell where one theme breaks off and the next one begins. At the private showing this music will be interpreted by a Russian Symphony orchestra of thirty pieces."

Supreme Buys Rights to "God's Man"

Representing the Supreme Photo-Play productions of Pittsburg, Pa., General Manager Harry F. Greerle, after a special trip to New York, has completed a contract with the Frohman Amusement Corporation whereby his company acquires the exclusive booking privileges to "God's Man," starring H. B. Warner, for the territory of western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Mr. Greerle has arranged many innovations for the presentation of "God's Man" in his territory.

"God's Man," under the direction of the Supreme Photo-Play Productions, will have its premier at a leading Pittsburg theatre and at Wheeling, W. Va., simultaneously, with special staging and the addition of an augmented orchestra.

Gersten Uses Three Prints of "I Believe"

Frank Gersten, the owner of "I Believe," "Redemption," and other features for northern New Jersey, reports a successful summer season for northern New Jersey. "Mr. Gersten says that he has three prints of "I Believe" booked for the balance of the month of August and an additional print for September.
"I Believe" Going Big, Says Sherman

Harry A. Sherman of the Sherman Pictures Corporation reports continued interest in the George Loane Tucker production, "I Believe."

Mr. Sherman says he is receiving daily inquiries from the most successful independent exchange men all over the country. Among the buyers who have viewed "I Believe" there is a consensus of opinion that this is the most unique feature he has been offered for some time.

Mr. Sherman will announce in the next few days several important transactions involving several territories.

Levy in New York to Buy Features

Colonel Fred Levy, accompanied by one of the members of his executive staff, visited New York City last week for the purpose of looking over independent pictures and selecting such as would come up to the standard that he is in the habit of distributing. Colonel Levy is a prominent member of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

The Colonel makes it his business to show the pictures that he distributes in his territory for a full week's run in his two most prominent theatres of Kentucky; viz., the Strand and the Mary Anderson.

Amongst other purchases in the city the Big Feature Rights Corporation, of which Colonel Levy is president, bought two Ivan photoplays, "Babbling Tongues" and "One Law for Both," both of which will have successive week runs at his respective theatres in Louisville, Ky. So pleased was Colonel Levy with the Ivan photoplay that he has already arranged for the next seven-reel production soon to be released by the company.

Seng Provides Advertising Trailer for "Parentage"

Publicity Aid Is 125 Feet Long and Curiosity of Audience in Showing A S part of his service to exhibitors in the exploitation of "Parentage," Frank J. Seng has provided a trailer to be used the week previous to the run of the feature. The trailer is tinted in a rich orange, is 125 feet in length and contains the excellent "baby stuff," which has drawn such spontaneous applause at all of the showings.

It opens with a fade-in of the main title, which is artistically done in plastic lettering. Then the happy infant appears, and further on the startling question: "Would You Welcome One Like This?" is superimposed upon the scene. This is followed by about fifty feet of the author and director, Hobart Henley in his role of the happy father holding the infant in his arms and administering its milk in the conventional way. This scene invariably provokes genuine approving laughter. Then follows the announcement, "Coming to This Theatre."

Such national institutions as the Rialto and Strand theatres, New York, have used the advance trailer with excellent results. In fact, in these and other magnificent photoplay theatres, the trailer has entirely supplanted the announcement slide.

The "reason why" must be obvious to anyone. An exhibitor retains motion pictures; therefore the more animation he can put into his programs the better. The "Parentage" advance trailer has real entertaining qualities.

Every independent buyer handling "Parentage" will have these trailers on hand, and this is to advise exhibitors that they should make a request for them when booking "Parentage."

Short Features Exchange Buys Lion Comedies

Henry Ginsberg, the manager of the Short Features Exchange, whose offices are located on the seventeenth floor of the Godfrey building, announces that he has consummated a deal with the A. Kay Company, whereby he has secured the New York rights to the Lion Comedies. The Short Features Exchange, which specializes in the distribution of short subjects of merit, has been handling the product of the A. Kay Company for New York, ever since the organization of that company, and expresses a keen desire to handle all of its releases.

The Lion Comedies, which are of a slapstick nature, were screened for Mr. Ginsberg early last week. One of the officials of the A. Kay Company who was with Mr. Ginsberg during the screening of the comedies said that the latter was very enthusiastic about the pictures and that he was sure that they would meet with success in the empire state. Mr. Ginsberg was afterwards asked to give an expression of opinion in writing as to what he thought of the comedies, and this is what he wrote to the A. Kay Company:

"You ask me what I think of the Lion Comedies? The fact that I have signed for a weekly release covering a period of six months proves in itself that I am sold on the product; and that I am positive I can make money on the comedies in New York State.

"In selling short pictures independently, the exchange must have a one hundred per cent. product; and have arguments sufficiently strong enough to show the exhibitor why he should pay more for a short subject distributed by the independent exchange.

"I was surprised to find such exceptional photography in single-reelers. I intend releasing about August 15 and can promise you that most of the theatres in New York State will soon be playing Lion Comedies.

"I hope that the independent exchanges throughout the country who will sign for this series will be as enthusiastic about the product as I am."

Silverman Handles Mutt and Jeff

Mayer Silverman, president of the Liberty Film Renting Company, which has its offices at 903 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., has taken over the franchise for Mutt and Jeff comedies for Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Col. Fred Levy on Lookout for Features

Harry Cohen of the Sherman Film Releasing Company of Boston is in New York looking over the feature market for New England. Mr. Cohen is making his headquarters at the Sherman Pictures Building, 218 West Forty-second Street.
Two Starring Roles Planned for Jack Sherrill

Jack Sherrill, the juvenile whose last appearance in "The Silent Witness" for the Authors' Film Corporation and in the character of Pink for the Frohman Amusement Corporation in its production of George Bronson-Howard's "God's Man," has again been engaged by the Authors' Film Company for the juvenile lead of a multiple-reel patriotic subject, soon to be released.

Upon the completion of this engagement Jack Sherrill will begin work on an outdoor feature for the Frohman Corporation, in which he will carry the star role.

Lee Announces Sale for Twenty States

Joseph F. Lee, New York operator in the independent field, has arranged for twenty states the sale of a picture whose title is withheld for the present, as well as the names of the purchasers. Mr. Lee announces, however, that Louis B. Mayer, an extensive buyer for the New England states, has paid him $30,000 for the rights to the picture in that territory.

Mr. Lee has mapped out a large advertising campaign for the subject, which he will put under way after September 7, the date set for the trade showing of the feature.

Strand, Hartford, Conn., Books "Witness"

M. R. True, proprietor of the Strand theatre of Hartford, Conn., is one of the first of the large exhibitors to book "The Silent Witness," a Hoffman-Foursquare feature that will be distributed in September. Mr. True saw this picturization of Otto Hauersbach's drama, liked it and decided it was what he wanted for one of his earliest fall showings. Other particular exhibitors feel the same way about this picture.

Fox To Sell His New Pictures Separately

"World's Greatest Showman" Stands Buy Any Standard Picture, One by His Promise—Exhibitors May or All, and No Strings to It

SINCE William Fox made his first statement regarding his new policy, many letters have reached him from exhibitors asking if it is true that his Standard Pictures can be bought separately without any string to the arrangement.

"I have answered these letters emphatically," said Mr. Fox, "and I meant every word I said. We are so sure of the public demand for these pictures that we stand by our policy that no exhibitor will be asked to buy these pictures, nor be permitted to buy them until he has seen for himself what we have done, and why we have adopted this bold policy. Every Standard Picture is considered by us separate and alone. Our exhibitors may book one or all of them, as they see fit. We don't wish an exhibitor to have a picture he don't want, and won't take an interest in handling—for in a case like this, neither he nor we will get the benefit out of it."

"We have gone to the utmost limit on these pictures, and we have submitted them to all sorts of people—persons who know all about pictures—persons who think they do—and persons who know nothing about them. We have converted some people by showing them these pictures who have had years of experience in the so-called show business, and who have always believed that there was nothing much to come of the picture game. They soon realized that we were 'holding up the camera to nature,' paraphrasing a speech of our old friend Hamlet, and they found nature quite an interesting subject—and they have never failed to tell us, 'There is something in the pictures, after all.'"

"We know that the ultimate consumer of our product is the public, and we know also that the exhibitor, who comes closer than anybody in contact with the public, knows what the public wants. He knows what will amuse them, what will instruct them, and what sort of entertainment his clientele will buy. We could go direct to the public with these pictures, and not let the exhibitors in at all, but as I am an extensive exhibitor myself I feel that the exhibitor should have first call, for it is the motion picture business that we are building up and not the so-called legitimate theatres, and I believe that the motion picture theatres should have an opportunity to show the best pictures the producers can evolve. That is why I want exhibitors to see these pictures before they play them. I want them to exhibit them before the public has a chance, and to advertise them with that enthusiasm in every line that they send out. I am confident they will do so when they see them. They have great opportunities to compare them with other pictures after they have played them, but we want them to see ours in advance. We feel that our judgment cannot be all wrong, and as I have said before, we have had as our ultimate goal the public—the wonderful public—that is interested in anything well done, whether it is built in their own mode of life or not. So much for our policy with Standard Pictures."

"Our Special Features that come once a week for the fifty-two weeks a year will now occupy a great deal of our attention. Some of these have already been made, particularly those of Dustin Farnum, who has seemingly been missing for ten months, but they will make a big sale as the best pictures he has ever appeared in. "Durand of the Bad Lands" is one, "North of 35" is another, and there are more that I should not mention now. I have all these pictures completed and George Walsh is working on his well-known lines in some new subjects, and so is Virginia Pearson, Valeska Surrratt Miriam Cooper, June Caprice and our other special stars."

"Henry Lehrman, the wizard of comedy, has already shown me six of his best laugh producers I have ever seen. How he does it I don't know, but he has started a new field of comedy—a sort where the custard pies aren't the thing, but where situations create the fun, which is, after all, the true basis of comedy—and he is going to make twenty-six of these this year, for release every two weeks, beginning in October. These comedies, like Standard Pictures, will be booked only after the exhibitor has seen them. If he cannot laugh at them, then he is too sick to be able to handle them in a way to reach the public, and we want the public to see them right, for we are expending considerable money on each one."

"So, you can see, as I have written to all exhibitors who have inquired, that I am in great earnest in my policy to have them see our Standard Pictures before they book them. We have made provisions at all our branch offices, which cover the United States and Canada, and for our best laugh producers, for special men to make these exhibitions to exhibitors, and they have only to write to these men, wire them, or call on them to have a private showing. Our agents all have the films now."
THE reasons often presented by a buyer for not considering the purchase of a picture offered on the independent plan are often unique, while others seem almost impossible to answer. However, a film man who has made a study of the conditions throughout the country is generally able to meet objections which at first appear to be insurmountable.

An instance of this kind came up in the case of "The Deemster," handled by the Arrow Film Company, New York City. The letter which follows, from Robert W. Priest, sales manager of the company, to a man who had refused to consider investing in the picture, is an instance where little thought combined with a knowledge of conditions and statistics, serves to answer the arguments of an objector. Mr. Priest says:

"I have your favor of the 24th and note with especial interest your statement:

"'There is no doubt what the banks of Kansas are full of money, but it belongs to farmers. Now, if 'The Deemster' was a thrasher or an automobile you would have no trouble in disposing of it."

"You are right to a certain extent and I agree with you. The International Harvester Company, the Moline Plow Co., the John Deere Co., B. F. Avery & Sons and other manufacturers of similar agricultural implements are reaping their harvest just now as they do about this time every year.

"But they will soon be through and then it will be our turn, your turn and the exhibitor's turn. For all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, and no one appreciates this old adage more than the farmer and his constituents.

"The grocer, the baker, the candlestick maker, the banker and the broker thrive only when the farmer thrives. Villages, towns and cities cannot prosper until the farmer prospers, and although he may salt his bank-roll, millions of dollars find their way into circulation and all because the farmer is prosperous.

"All the wealth we have or can get comes from the earth, corn, wheat, grain of all kinds, cotton, fruit, vegetables, coal, iron, all minerals, diamonds, and gold—all things come from the earth.

"It is the scientist, the manufacturer, the miller, the mechanic, the banker that converts the raw materials into merchantable products through the simple process of refining, weaving and manufacturing—after the farmer and the miner have performed their duty.

"Praise be that the farmer is prosperous. My advice to you is to get busy and take advantage of this prosperity. Corral some of the really good big features for the purpose. By so doing you will be consulting your own best interests and will prosper in accordance, to the wisdom displayed in assembling your 'motions of amusement.'"

"Sixty-four per cent of the American people, I must tell you, live in towns of less than 1,000 population and on farms. And thanks to Henry Ford and other thrifty automobile manufacturers, these people, who constitute the backbone of our country, are enabled to go from ten to fifty miles after sundown into large trading centers to enjoy motion pictures and kindred pleasures.

"In the state of Kansas alone there are 1,037 of these trading centers (towns under 1,000 inhabitants) and 101 towns between 1,000 and 5,000 inhabitants, to say nothing of the 24 cities. And in these cities, towns and villages there are 528 theatres. No other business in the commonwealth of Kansas has so many individual dealers.

"All that you need to gain your share of the farmer's wealth is something worth while. P. T. Barnum learned this fact, as did Ringling Bros., Hagenback-Wallace, Molly Bailey, Lemon Bros., Sellers-Floto and the fellows who promote the big state and county fairs. They took the money direct from the farmer because they gave him something out of the ordinary.

"Make up your mind that you are entitled to a goodly share of the money the farmer glean from the soil and then go after it. People especially farmers, want something good to amuse them as well as to protect them from the elements and to nourish them.

"Select 'The Deemster' and make ready to collect your share of the farmer's wealth that fills the banks of Kansas.'"
Jacksonville Is Film Center, Says Randolph

Manager of the All Star in That City Bases His Conclusion on His Study of the Transportation Facilities in Southeast

"It should be remembered that the territory included in this map is from my point of view as a distributor at Jacksonville, and that I have not considered the exchanges located in Atlanta, New Orleans and Memphis."

Zambreno Buys "Souls Redeemed"

Frank Zambreno of Unity Photoplays Company, Chicago, does not let the hot weather interfere with his operations. He just bought Edward Warren's production, "Souls Redeemed" ("The Warfare of the Flesh") for Illinois and Chicago and is preparing for a big campaign throughout his territory.

Edward Warren also reports the sale of the picture for Brazil and for British India.

Bee Comedies Take Well in West

That the two-reel Billy West comedies are just what they have been needing to fill out their programs, is the word from the exhibitors to C. W. Taylor, manager of the Standard Film Exchange Company, handling Art Dramas and Billy West Comedies, recently opened at 1417 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.

"We exhibited "The Hero" at the Empress, Muse, Sun and Strand, big first-run houses in Omaha, and the reception was good," said Mr. Taylor. "This is the first of a series of thirty-six two-reelers. We are daily getting an increasing number of contracts."

"Our force has now grown to twelve people in the front office. We expect to grow rapidly, as Omaha is one of the best exchange cities in the country."

President R. C. Cropper of the Standard Film company spent a few days in Omaha. "It is a great city and a big territory for the future," he said.

M. R. Ward Seeks Position as Manager

M. R. Ward, manager of the Central Motion Picture Company, Kansas City, Mo., has resigned after a period of two years' association with the concern, and is open for an engagement in the same capacity with a company that wants a man whose work in the past has proven that he is thoroughly familiar with the independent field in the Middle West.

Mr. Ward was with the General Film Company for two years and one year with Paramount before joining the Central Motion Picture Company. He has a personal acquaintance with nearly every exhibitor in his territory.
Scowcroft, Ogden President, Is Theatre Owner

ALBERT SCOWCROFT, president of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, New York City, which will shortly release "The Lust of the Ages," featuring Lillian Walker, has had an active career.

"It was Mr. Scowcroft who built the first large theatre, exclusively for motion picture showing," says an official of the company, "and old-timers will remember the sensation which was caused when the Liberty theatre was first constructed in Salt Lake under the direction of Mr. Scowcroft. Several years later Mr. Scowcroft repeated his success with the Liberty when he constructed the American theatre in Salt Lake, and then went to Ogden, his home town, and put up the Alhambra. Ogden is a city of 30,000, and yet it maintains this playhouse with 2,500, wherein are shown the finest productions in the country. The Alhambra theatre is a first-run house, and Mr. Scowcroft has watched and picked the finest pictures which have always become successes.

"Mr. Scowcroft has that valuable faculty—second-sight, some call it—of being able to deduct a winner or a loser instantly. When Mr. Scowcroft was first interested in the new corporation he was 'sold' on the idea behind 'The Lust of the Ages'."

He said the other day: "It struck me very forcibly; it seemed to me the biggest idea I had ever heard of in many months. It gave a reason for making a production. So many pictures are being constructed around 'nothing.' A cast is gotten together and a director is appointed—and the scenario is built up like a house of cards in the studio.

"To my mind no picture should be made unless there is a big reason for its being made—unless there is a gigantic theme underlying the construction. Here, in 'The Lust of the Ages,' we find the craving for wealth, a quality fundamental in all human beings. First comes the desire for sustenance and food; then comes the desire for the means to maintain existence; and then comes the desire for the home. It is surprising to me that none ever thought of the idea before—that no other film has ever been built around it.

"So I was ready to back the idea behind 'The Lust of the Ages' to the limit, and I wanted to see it brought into being with satisfactory material. That is why we chose the actress who, to our mind, is the most charming girl in America—Lillian Walker. That is why we sought and found Harry Revier. He is a director unspoiled by his successes, which are among the best, to my knowledge, that have ever been produced. I refer especially to his 'Fall of Troy,' which was made with that grim pugnacity and force behind it that represented the director.

"Many of the most prominent men of Ogden are interested in our production. Our studio is one of the finest in the country. For some of our scenes we had to 'call a halt' in order to get all the people we wanted.

"By placing the picture on a state rights basis we have been enabled to handle this production exactly as we wished."

"We are getting up a splendid line of advertising matter for local use, such as illustrations and advertisements for the exhibitors to use in their own newspapers, and novel lobby displays."

Cheese Tamers” Latest Fisher Cartoon

"The Cheese Tamers" is the latest release from Budd Fisher. It shows Mutt and Jeff as laborers in a cheese factory, boring holes in Swiss cheese. Later they decide to enter pictures, but after many mishaps they find that they have stepped outside their sphere and return to their gas-masks and the factory.

O'Donnell on Road for “I Believe”

E. J. O'Donnell of the Sherman Pictures Corporation will leave New York early in the coming week on an extended trip through the Middle West. Mr. O'Donnell will visit Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis and St. Louis in the interest of the H. A. Sherman production, "I Believe."

Mutt and Jeff Not in “Minor Demand” Through Major

The Major Films Corporation, of 131 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass., announces good bookings of Mutt and Jeff Comedies throughout its entire territory. New England audiences have taken kindly to the new Mutt and Jeff Animated Cartoons and they are in great demand.

"Even the said Boston intellectuals seem to have unbent to the extent of permitting themselves to laugh nightly at their antics, and it is believed that these comedies have turned them into veritable fans."

Clune, California Exhibitor, is Producer

FEW men in the motion picture field occupy precisely the same position as W. H. Clune, the California veteran of this line of activity. Besides being one of its simon-pure pioneers, Clune is both producer and exhibitor on a large scale.

Operating five important theatres in California, one of them the largest devoted to the exhibition of pictures west of Chicago, he nevertheless had the ambition and financial courage, and found the time, to go into the producing end on a scale of magnitude. "Ramona" and "The Eyes of the World" stand to his credit, each having taken over six months in the making with the most painstaking care as to detail. The picturization of Helen Hunt Jackson's romance is so accurate historically that it has received the tribute of having a set of its stills placed on exhibition by the California State Library.

"The Eyes of the World" was made with the active co-operation of the author, Harold Bell Wright, and it is understood that Mr. Clune contemplates filming other works of this writer.

Paradoxical as it may seem, it was because Mr. Clune was an exhibitor that he became a producer. He made his great Auditorium in Los Angeles with its $3,000 capacity one of the leading houses in the country, exhibiting multiple reel subjects. He finally saw ahead of him a dearth of productions that he could depend upon.

Thereupon he started to make pictures. The Auditorium was built for legitimate dramas and grand opera and is still the home of opera for southern California. It has a pipe organ costing $30,000 and maintains a symphony orchestra of twenty pieces. On top of the nine-story building is an electric sign six stories high which lights the place from dusk to dawn. Besides this capacious house this exhibitor operates Clune's Broadway and the Comedy on Broadway in Los Angeles, Clune's in Pasadena with a capacity of 1,300 and the leading house of that city for both stage and screen, and Clune's in Santa Ana.

Mr. Clune entered the motion picture industry in 1905. In the following year he was the proprietor of nine theatres in and around Los Angeles. He was the first motion picture operator in America to place more than one operator on a film and inaugurated the practice of continuous unreeling.

He was the first man in the West to leave the five cent field, and exhibitors in other cities marveled at his ability to get so high an admission price as ten cents. He established the first film exchange on the Pacific Coast and one of the first in the country. This exchange bought upwards of $20,000 worth of film a month—a prodigious amount in those days. He still maintains an exchange but has lately devoted more attention to the other phases of the business.
Reveri Back in New York

Harry Reveri, who directed "The Lust of the Ages" for the Ogden Pictures Corporation, has returned to New York after an absence of eleven weeks.

"Eleven weeks on a seven reel production, with 70,000 feet of negative having been brought back, and two mob scenes with 1,100 persons in each, seems to strike the figure seven and eleven," says Mr. Reveri. "It sounds like lucky numbers that presage luck for the reception of the film."

"It was left to the Ogden company to disabilities of production and two mob scenes that were perfect and the scenery rivalss the Californias for outdoor scenes."

Mr. Reveri has had a long career in the industry. First employed by Ambrosio, then by Gaumont abroad, he subsequently transferred his endeavors to America. The early pictures made by him were "The Russian Spy," "The Fall of Troy," "The Burning of Rome," "A Trip to the Moon," "The Carpathian Castle," "When Meghito Travels." Many of the present novel effects, by way of photography, including the bewildering number of trick actions, are due to Mr. Reveri.

It was Mr. Reveri who discovered the possibilities of the "hide and seek" scene conditions of Los Angeles and Hollywood. In fact, it was he who was the first to open a studio and laboratory at Hollywood, which was subsequently sold to D. W. Griffith, where he went to the Coast and there built a second studio and laboratory, which was sold to Jesse L. Lasky, when he determined to operate a studio there.

Coming down to a more modern period, Mr. Reveri's activities were as supervising director of the Popular Plays and Players, for which organization he directed Mme. Olga Petrova in her initial appearance in pictures, and also Edmund Beeche in a visualization of the Robert Serviss poems, "scenarized" by Animal Company.

Mr. Reveri's latest endeavors were in the direction of the initial production of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, "The Lust of the Ages," starring Lillian Walker.

Patch Opens in New York for Italian Films

The Fort Pitt Theatre Corporation of Pittsburgh, of which William Moore Patch is president and managing director, has opened an extensive suite of offices on the nineteenth floor of the Times Building, Broadway and Forty-second street, New York. Mr. Patch has disposed the entire nineteenth floor and will handle the official war films of the Italian Government, called "The Italian Battlefront," now running in the Forty-fourth street theatre, New York, from these offices.

The Fort Pitt Theatre Corporation owns the Pitt theatre in Pittsburgh, one of the most successful big picture houses in America. For over two years Mr. Patch has conducted a high-class policy with only two performances daily, prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.00.

In addition to the Italian War pictures, the Fort Pitt Theatre Corporation is negotiating for the rights of several other big pictures for the United States and Canada.

Priest Discusses Open Market Problems

General Manager of Arrow Classifies Independent Picture in Three Groups

"No Risk to Buyer If Service Is Rendered with Sale of Picture"

CERTAIN phases of the independent market and the pictures made for release, by this plan have commanded the attention of Robert W. Priest, general manager of the Arrow Film Corporation. His discussion of these matters will be of interest to this branch of the trade.

The simplicity of the independent plan of marketing pictures is seemingly so obvious to the meanest capacity that, at the present time there is a bewildering list of these productions to select from," says Mr. Priest. "But there is no mechanical six years he was producing winners.

"It is usually very much a case of trial and error, as opposed to mathematical precision, when you come to filming and assembling your scenes. The finished result is a complex conglomerate of personal opinion may be an artistic and financial success, or a dire failure on being shown to the public for the first time or thereafter. To this general rule, however, there are exceptions which I will subsequently cite.

But even so, you may roughly classify the independent pictures. Yet more precisely, by the nature of things, they arrange themselves in such some order as the following:

1. Features desirable in themselves.
2. Features desirable in themselves and for their results.
3. Features desirable for their results only.

Brock Percentages Gauge Film Popularity

Build Fisher Associate Maintains System for Determining the Patronage Quality of Pictures Through Reports from Exhibitors.

WITH the growth of the industry, we find an added daily demand for business efficiency and method. One of the pioneers in the field of motion pictures is W. A. Brock, now associated with the Bud Fisher Films Corporation.

Mr. Brock's training has fitted him for the work that he is doing. He was with Price, Waterhouse and Company, a firm of English accountants, with offices all over the world. During that time he was engaged in auditing, investigating and systematizing work for about fifty different companies, half as many different kinds of business.

Following this, Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, took him as private secretary. Two years later, Mr. Brock started out on his own account as a public accountant, and in that capacity first became interested in theatrical work. Werba and Luescher employed him to install a system for them, at that time controlling such successes as "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "A Connecticut Yankee," "Elevating a Husband," "Over the River," and numerous others.

His activities were so successful in this field that in a very short time he was called to assist the president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation. It was in this latter capacity that he first began to recognize the opportunity and need for effective accounting and organization in the motion picture field. He has been an advocate of good business methods in the picture industry.

Therefore, he began to introduce his own methods of efficiency. One of his new ideas was to obtain a standardization of each release. For this purpose he instituted a system of criticisms by exhibitors. Each exhibitor sent in a monthly report as to the popularity of the current release. These reports were graded as follows: Paramount, 100 per cent; Excellent, 95 per cent; Good, 90 per cent; Fair, 85 per cent; Mediocre, 80 per cent; Poor, 75 per cent; Inferior, 70 per cent. These reports were tabulated each month and if it was found that a release did not maintain a standard of 90 per cent, it was taken off.

Everything that Mr. Brock handled was put on a statistical basis, and charts were improvised for all branches of the work.

When Bud Fisher decided to assume charge of his own company for the production of Mutt and Jeff Comics, he realized the necessity of having an assistant of this type, and selected Mr. Brock. The choice could not have been more fortunate, for under his able direction the business of the concern is booming and success has been assured from the beginning.

The first official war films of the Italian Government to reach the United States, called "The Italian Battlefront," were produced at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre last week before one of the most distinguished audiences ever gathered together in New York. Of the screening boxes were the Italian Ambassador to the United States, Count V. Macchi di Cellere, and Countess Cellere; Lieutenant-General Guglielminotti, of the Italian General Staff, and General Pasquale Tozzi, military head of the Italian Commission to the United States. In another box sat Charles Evans Hughes, who received a tremendous ovation as he entered the house. The Italian consul general and vice-consul, the military and naval attaches of the Italian Embassy in Washington, and between forty and fifty other Italian officers now in this country on business for their government, were also in the audience. All the Italian officials, with the exception of the Ambassador, were in uniform, and there were several hundred other American officers in uniform also, the house was resplendent with color.

The showing of "The Italian Battlefront" has been made under the direction of William Moore Patch, managing director of the Pitt theatre in Pittsburgh, who is directing the American tour of the films for the Italian Government. He has left nothing undone to lend great beauty and dignity to the magnificently staged setting, showing an Italian sentinel standing erect in a blinding snowstorm on a lonely Alpine peak, precedes the first part of the pictures and strikes an atmospheric keynote for what is to follow. Between the last two portions of the film another stage setting is revealed, and in this setting soldiers of the Allied Nations are revealed. As each soldier passes before the audience, flag in hand, a veritable hurricane of applause breaks forth. At the end of the scene "My Country Tis of Thee" is thrown upon the screen, and the entire audience rises and sings.

The first showing of the Italian War Films in Boston will be in Tremont theatre. The Chicago exhibition will take place on Thursday, April 23, in the immense Auditorium. Other productions will follow in Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City, New Orleans, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Mr. Patch is planning to go to the Pacific Coast himself to personally supervise the San Francisco exhibition.

Nolan Handles Mutt and Jeff

H. T. Nolan, one of the foremost figures in the western advertising world, has opened an office in Denver, Col., from which he is handling the Mutt and Jeff comedies for Wyonola, southern Idaho, Utah, Colorado, northern New Mexico, and the Black Hills section of South Dakota.

He is also about to open an office in Omaha in order to take care of the territory of Nebraska and Iowa. He reports that he is booking the new comedies.

Motoy a Patriotic Release

The Peter Pan Film Company's next Motoy release is crowded with waving flags and tributes to Old Glory. It is of a distinctly military character, and the doll actors for the first time are dressed entirely in khaki.

There are doll drills and battles, and no little sawdust has been shed in the filming of the picture.

West Campaign Book Gives History of Star

The new Billy West Campaign Book will be of particular interest to exhibitors. It contains a brief history of this new comedy star, and describes in detail the advertising and publicity campaign which is being carried on for him.

Exhibitors are given ideas for advertising and filling their theatres, and are shown how the King Bee Company cooperates with its subscribers.

Mutt and Jeff Popular in Canada

The Regal Films, Ltd., of Toronto, Canada, reports that the Mutt and Jeff Animated Cartoons are growing more popular daily. Practically their entire territory is booked, and describes in detail the tremendous sale largely to the favor which these cartoons have found with the military audiences throughout the country.

Humorous Cartoons a Serious Business, Says Fisher

"Thinking up ideas for humorous cartoons is a very serious business," says Bud Fisher. "In fact it's the most difficult job I have. I simply try to keep myself posted on the principal topics of the day and treat them in a universal way, keeping in mind that the laugh must always be most prominent and that the cartoon must be free from malice and unpleasantness.

"I believe people want good, wholesome humor, to remove the bad taste so often left in their mouths by suggestive pictures, put on for moral education. And it is the short, light comedy which is needed in business. The day for the sex pictures is gone. The whole game is getting cleaner and going after finer, and less morbid entertainment.

There is a lot in choosing the right material for either newspaper or animated cartoons. The field for selection is narrow and the subjects must be general. Religion, politics, race of people, and various types of readers and audiences must be taken into consideration and treated according to their standards. For instance, a cartoon which is extremely popular in a Democratic community, will be anything but well received in a Republican district.

"The ridiculing or light handling of any particular race must be eliminated. For while using the negro as a butt for comedy might be popular in New England, in the South where the exhibitor is largely dependent upon colored patronage, it would be very unwise. The same applies to religion and other topics. Thus the cartoonist has but a limited area to draw from and he must make everybody laugh and offend no one. It is a difficult business."

Baier in Market to Play Percentages

The Walter A. Baier Film Company, Toy Building, Milwaukee, Wis., formerly operated under the name of O. H. Jacobs, which has Wisconsin and upper Michigan as its territory, is in the market to pursue features of merit and meritorious comedies.

The company will handle pictures on a percentage basis, a policy it is pursuing with several prominent manufacturers and distributors. Some of the productions which have been exploited by the company are "Neptune's Daughter," "The Little Girl Next Door," "Silver Threads Among the Gold," "Where Are My Children?" "Her Condoned Sin," "Fairy of the Wall," and other successes.

Heroine Proposes in "Think It Over," Art Drama

Herbert Blache, who wrote "Think It Over," U. S. Amusement-Art Dramas feature, is a great admirer of George Bernard Shaw. The heroine, played by Catherine Calvert, does not wait for the hero to propose, but does it herself. He at first objects, believing himself too old, but she argues him into marriage.

The situation reminds one of Shaw's play, "Man and Superman" in which the hero flees across the continent to escape the girl who wants to marry him.
Hoffman Plans Wide Extension of Exchanges

After Establishing a Branch in Boston He Will Inaugurate Distributing Centers in Chicago, San Francisco, and Other Large Cities

M. H. HOFFMAN, vice-president and general manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is in Boston to prepare for the establishing of the Hoffman-Foursquare Exchange there—the "service station," to use Mr. Hoffman's words, that will supply the New England needs for this product.

After this arrangement for this territory Mr. Hoffman will proceed to Chicago, which is to be headquarters for one of the most important pieces of territory in America. Immediately thereafter coast headquarters for Hoffman-Foursquare pictures will be established in San Francisco and, at the same time, Canadian headquarters in Toronto.

This will give M. H. Hoffman, Inc., distributing outlets in the important sections of the country through the Four-square Exchange branches of the main office in New York.

"This does not mean that there will be no further additions made to the Four-square Exchanges," said Mr. Hoffman.

"In point of fact, our plans include the addition of several other centers where we shall be hard at work within the next ninety days. But when we have gotten started in Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Toronto we shall have adequate representation, for our present going 'service stations' include, besides New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and St. Louis.

"Before January first the Foursquare Exchanges will not be fewer in number than sixteen. Naturally, the firm of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., which is securing product for distribution through its Foursquare exchanges, is in the market for pictures of merit. We want nothing that hasn't the mark of distinction.

"The films which will interest our exhibitors and the public are 'The Silent Witness,' 'Should She Obey?' and 'The Fringe of Society.' Personally, I have confidence in these pictures. They reflect the Foursquare quality. Each has a degree of excellence different from the other, and is different.

"The Fringe of Society,' which is now being cut by Robert Ellis, who directed the picture, should attract the exhibitor and independent buyer. It impresses me as being an exceptional picture; one that will be recognized as having quality, and that will give the theatres splendid patronage.

"Then, just consider the cast: First, there are Ruth Roland and Milton, co-starring. And they have done great work in 'The Fringe of Society.' Then Leah Baird, who was especially engaged for this picture.

"Next, J. Herbert Frank, whose work in the feature will make a real impression upon the critics. Finally, George Larkin, Jules Cowles (who played Buck Moe in 'Foursquare'), and Theodore V. and Tammany Young. It is to be given its first public showing in October."

The Dipper' First of the Walt Mason Pictures

The Filmcraft Corporation, organized by R. V. Rothermel, announces it has obtained motion picture rights to the Walt Mason 'symposium,' running daily in over two hundred newspapers. The A. Kay Company will distribute the pictures.

The first of the series to be released is called "The Dipper." It is to be followed in rapid succession by "Bunked and Paid For," "Kick," and others which have been selected from Walt Mason's list of jingles.

Manager S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto theatre in a letter addressed to Mr. Rothermel, says:

"It is the kind of comedy the industry needs, a kind wholesome and done with good taste. There isn't any question about you finding a wonderful market for these pictures, not alone for their entertainment value but of the advertising possibilities."

Wholesome Films to Cut Out All Middlemen

To Begin Direct Dealing from Costs of Branch Exchanges and DIRECT dealing between the exhibitor and the producer is the basis of the new sales policy announced by Wholesome Films Corporation. This plan will call for one big central exchange in Chicago with which the film will deal direct, thus eliminating branches and go-between, on a straight, square deal basis.

"This plan we consider is one of the most progressive steps thus far taken in methods of film distribution," said M. J. Weisfelds, manager of Wholesome Films Corporation. "It is easy for any successful exhibitor to estimate the economic advantages of this direct sales policy by the saving on overhead expense, such as branch managers, clerks, rentals, etcetera.

"One big outstanding proof of the worth of our policy is this: We pay express charges both ways. We make only one requirement of the exhibitor, aside of course from paying for his rentals, and that is to book sufficiently far in advance so that on-time delivery may be assured any exhibitor anywhere in the United States.

"Wholesome Films Corporation is very much interested, too, in the success of the exhibitor-producer sales policy. We will make special offers to exhibitors' circuits: a sure, snappy proposition for the live-wire up-to-the-minute theatre man.

"The plan of Wholesome Films Corporation will fill for the industry a long-felt want, and our aim is to make friends with exhibitors right at the start by making our policy more than fifty-fifty as far as the exhibitor is concerned.

"Exhibitors will remember that the Wholesome Films Corporation has to be courageous to announce this direct exhibitor-producer sales policy, but we realize the success of each is the success of both; to give and take when business judgment dictates the wisdom of a certain policy."

Producer to Exhibitor, Saving Giving Theatre Owners Profit

Master Motion Picture Is Producing Lion Comedies

EXHIBITORS, exchange men and others connected with the motion picture business who have been puzzled by the foregoing looking Leo which has appeared in the various trade journals, with the inscription "Make 'Em Roar" underneath, may now have a sigh of relief and comfort, for the big mystery is solved.

True to his promise to unravel the mystery of "Make 'Em Roar," Harold J. Binney, the president and director general of a concern expressly organized for the purpose of making comedies that will "Make 'Em Roar," makes the announcement that the Master Motion Picture Company, otherwise to be known and advertised as "Masterpictures," of Houston, Tex., is the film company behind the phrase.

The Master Motion Picture Company has already completed a number of comedies in the spacious studio of the Houston plant.

The comedies are, on the screen feet in length and feature two comedy stars of ture to be released is entitled, "Nathan Dewing and Glorie Gaye. The first picture to be released is entitled, "Naathan Busts Into the Movies," and is the story of a country boy determined to make the many trials one must experience prior to getting into the movies, rises to the dizzy heights of fortune and fame. The second picture is entitled, "The Village Villain." This comedy shows some small town stuff to good advantage.

Nathan Dewing, a local man of Houston, is to act as leading man in most of the comedies. Miss Gaye, who supports Dewing in both of his productions, is also of Houston, and possesses ability as a comedienne.

A. C. Kater, who directed the first two pictures under the supervision of Mr. Binney, is a young man who has been engaged as the former's chief assistant. Mr. Kater, who is widely known in work of a theatrical nature, is a very helpful addition to Masterpictures.

Gaumont Making U. S. War Pictures for Release in France

Although it has not been generally known, the Gaumont Company has been making pictures of America's military preparations for release in France through the Societe des Etablissements Gaumont. The pictures have been made under the direction of Poll Mitchell, editor of the Gaumont Mutual Weekly. Recently he spent a day at Yaphank, L. I., with Lawrence D'Armou, his chief of camera staff. At Yaphank the huge cantonment is being rushed to completion to house forty thousand men of the new national army.

The grounds and buildings were "shot" from all angles that the people of our country could possibly see for themselves how wholeheartedly America is getting into the war. Among other pictures taken for release in France are a complete series of views of various activities at West Point, the greatest military school in the world. The company is also sending abroad many pictures which have appeared lately in the Gaumont Mutual Weekly.
New Feature by Crystal Co.

Announced

The Crystal Photoplays Company of Chicago announce that they are nearly ready to place on the market their recently finished feature film, entitled “Mother Love and Law.” The picture has been in the course of production for the past several months at the fine studios of the Crystal Company at Peoria, Illinois. George Seigmann, former associate of D. W. Grif- fis, and noted for his ability both as an actor and director, directed the picture.

The story of this photo-drama has been suggested by the famous Dolly Matter’s divorce case and her fight for her child. One of the biggest outstanding features of it is that Dolly Lederwood Matters herself plays the leading feminine role in this pictured chapter of her life. The production is in seven reels and is now in the studio vaults at Peoria waiting its first showing to the public.

This premiere is expected to take place about September 1, according to W. E. Burford of Crystal. The picture will be placed on the state rights market for the entire country, with the exception of the Illinois, Indiana and southern Wisconsin territory, which will be handled by the Crystal Company itself through Chicago exchanges.

New Comedy Series

A new series of comedies are ready to be published by the Ebony Film Corporation according to a recent announcement from their offices here. The films are to be issued on the schedule of one each week.

The direction of the comedies will continue in charge of Ralph G. Phillips and the following single reel subjects are ready for release: “Waltz in Harlem;” “Misfit Army;” “Shine Johnson’s Waterloo;” “The Hippocrates;” “The Porter;” and “The Dog Thief.”

Pathe Offices Are Again Threatened by Fire

The serious fire that swept through the Pathe Exchange in the Consumers’ Building some time ago so badly incapacitated them that the shipping and inspection departments were temporarily removed to the second floor of 169-72 West Washington street, formerly occupied by the Laemmle Exchange. On Thursday evening of August 2 a fire broke out in a restaurant below this floor and seriously threatened all of the film stored there.

The flames, however, after a hard fight managed to subdue the flames before they reached the hundreds of inflammable reels. Manager Gunn, of the local Pathe office, declared that the repairs to the offices in the Consumers’ Building are nearly completed and that in a short time the shipping and inspection departments will be moved back again.

LEAKS IN THE LOOP

The Standard Film Corporation’s offices here, of which R. O. Proctor is manager, are proving the success of their recent drive with new film distribution by taking over additional working space on the fifth floor of the College Building. They are at present located entirely on the sixth floor of this building. The offices will be moved to the newly acquired space and what has been the office in the past will now be used as a shipping room.

Metro’s “Slacker” was given special showings at the stylish Beach theatre on August 2 by the Red Cross unit of the local Daughters of the Revolution. Captain W. A. Moffett of the Great Lakes Naval Station and a number of other military and naval notables were present.

Edwin Silverman, who for the past two years has been with V-L-S-E, has been chosen to assume charge of the promotion department for Butterfly Features in this territory. The appointment was effective beginning August 6.

Hughy Mack, formerly well known as a Vitas comedian, stopped off in Chicago long enough last week to tell us that he has joined the L-KO comedy forces, releasing through Universal.

William Acheson of Fox Film stopped off long enough in Chicago last week on his way to the Coast to assure exhibitors here that the “Honor System” would soon be theirs in this territory.

With the advent of the cool weather a week ago the Gold theatre managers reopened their newly decorated house. The start was made with Frank Seng’s “Parentage.”

In the Selig picture being made by Lew Fields entitled “The Barker” a whole circus is necessary. Rather than build one the Selig Company transported a whole, real, live, honest-to-goodness three-ringer to the Western avenue studios to do the “shooting.” It was figured cheaper to rent it than construct one.

Julius Singer, one of the veterans of the film game, is now in Chicago looking after the Alice Howell comedies.

Ike Van Ronkel, manager of the Bluebird’s local office, was given a pleasant sur- prise by his employees last week in honor of his 4th birthday. When he arrived at the office he found it filled with flowers, friends and food. As Longacre is wont to warble, an enjoyable time was had by all.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, left last week for Santa Barbara to inspect his extensive film interests there. While on the Coast it is predicted that Mr. Hutchinson will supervise and get on the way several elaborate new productions for Mary of the M’s.

The Reel Fellows held a reorganization meeting in their clubrooms on Friday night, August 3. They are trying to retrain on the financial standing of the club and President Proctor is making a strong appeal to all present members and prospective members to put their shoulder to the wheel and keep the Reel Fellows on the map in Chicago.

The E. W. Hamburger Company, makers of picture frames and lobby accessories, have moved their Chicago downtown offices from the Mallers Building to the main plant at 2021 Federal street.

M. A. Choyinski and Louis H. Frank have returned home from New York City, where they attended the recent meeting of the N. A. M. P. I. Both these exhibitors are leading figures in the new exhibitors’ association formed here, as well as in the new American Exhibitors’ Association.

Paramounts and Arctraits Secured by Hamburger

Alfred Hamburger has announced that he has secured the “first showing” rights for all Paramount and Arctrait pictures in Chicago. It was reported that Mr. Hamburger won out only after considerable and spirited bidding participated in by owners of other large circuits of theatres in the city. The price for the rights was to be $30,000 of which $10,000 was placed on deposit. The deal for Paramount and Arctrait was handled by Max Goldstein and Clyde Elliott.

Mr. Hamburger announces in connection with this that all of the pictures will be shown under the most elaborate special advertising and augmented orchestras with special music will accompany each of the first runs.

Joins Crystal Organization

Henry G. Sells, for many years associated with the advertising and editorial end of the Chicago Herald, has resigned to take the position of sales manager and publicity director of the Crystal Photoplays Company of Chicago. He has also been elected a member of the board of directors and vice-president of the company.

Mr. Sells, in his first real work in his new capacity has already commenced the launching of the Crystal’s newest production, “Mother Love and Law,” featuring Dolly Lederwood Matters.
TERRY RAMSAYE has written an "inside" story on Charlie Chaplin and his ways of doing things. Terry says that for two thousand feet of comedy Chaplin uses nearly a hundred-thousand feet of film. Don't you think Charlie needs an efficiency expert, Mr. Ramsay? Reading further we learn that Charlie knows comedy when it happens, for says Mr. Ramsay, he "has worked out the great common denominator of fun." We wonder if Charlie has ever tried reducing his fun to the least common denominator. The great common denominator of 2, for instance, runs into the trillions. Charlie's, we understand, runs only into the millions. But one can never tell. You may be right, Terry.

"PAY ME" opened at the Broadway theatre, Sunday night. There were a number of reviewers present.

PETE MILNE and Pete Schmidt are back from the film colony in California. They report a good time. Every one, they say, was glad to see them—even Bennie Zeldman. Bennie hailed their arrival with a brass band and their departure with a bunch of copy. Welcome back, Peters—we think you more safe on the Atlantic seaboard.

MERRITT CRAWFORD left last week for "somewhere" in New York. He left with a uniform of the National Guard. We are all with you, Merritt.

We hear rumors along Broadway of much activity in the state rights' field. Joe Lee or Sol Lesser can give detailed information. If you see Joe don't tell him you saw Sol, and if you see Sol first tell him you didn't see Joe. That is, if you want to get the right dope. Joe and Sol are the best of friends but they don't agree on just how nine out of nine picture men should act on one proposition.

EDDIE MULLEN and Hyat Daab are seen together frequently along Broadway. We wonder if the Polo Grounds figure in their conversation.

GEORGE PARDY expresses great concern for the safety of the two Petes. They are back George, as above noted.

HERBERT BRENON and Arthur Hopkins have entirely different opinions of the motion picture as an art. Mr. Brenon is right in his opinion, we think.

VALESKA SURATT in her late picture, "Wife Number Two," wears a different gown in every scene. We don't know just how many scenes there are in these five reels. Miss Suratt also had recourse to the hair dresser at frequent intervals during the production.

All the News That Fits, We Print
Longacre Square, N. Y., August 25, 1917

"Abroad"

By Longacre

News would not be so scarce if ye ed. were out here every week, like he has been the last one.

Hollywood and its suburb, Los Angeles, are great places, taking things from the m. p. point of view. (If anything depreciatory were said about them in the presence of native sons and boosters our ticket home would be without an owner.) The famous Artcraft poet, Pete Schmid, wouldn't kick if a few more telegraph stations and lunch rooms were installed, but then Pete was born and bred in New Jersey, where such things are as rampant as the w. k. mosquito.

"Rents are low, nights are cool (you sleep under blankets), gasoline stations are as frequent as saloons in the East; there is the Alexandria Mahogany, Levy's, the Hoffman, Vernon, Nat Goodwin's and various places where gentlemen of color mix with those of lighter hue." This isn't from the pamphlet the Chamber of Commerce has issued dwelling on the merits of the great and beautiful city, but merely the spiel that they hand you and put you through during the first night.

When the weather's hot, it's "UNUSUAL." But the weather misses fire more often than does Walter McNamara when telling a story about "Ireland a Nation" to Bill Hart and others. It would be very unusual if Walter didn't do this at least once a week.

"Ye ed., propelled about by the famous western comet, J. C. Jessen, in the M. P. News "Dogit," met sundry and divers celebrities. All the m. p. stars, more or less, and Hal Cooley, besides such famous personalities as Ken McGaffey, Ken O'Hara, Ford Beebe, M. G. Hayes, Carl Robinson, Ray Badgley, H. A. Woodside, Pat Dowling, Ed Durling, and other p. a.'s, who haven't graced the white lights of Broadway for High, these many years. And we almost forgot.

Dear Old Charlie Fair! It was years since we had seen this celebrated character. If we remember rightly, we knew him last when he was engaged in the opium traffic with George Pardy. He is a prominent figure in the western film city now, and is as bright and as sly as ever, even though time and riotous living may have dulled his once fertile brain to some slight extent.

We visited the various studios under the chaperonage of Charlie and Jessen and were duly photographed with such stars as Bill Hart, Mae Murray, Bob Leonard and J. Warren Kerrigan. There may be some difficulty about getting these pictures into print, as Charlie is so reticent about publicity for some dark reason which we know not.

Well, as the gang said to us when we departed, "Goodbye." Some day we're going to shake the dust and our vicious name from our person and light out for Los Angeles to take advantage of the "cool summers" and "warm winters."
MANY changes were made in the past few days in the comedy section at Universal City. Al Santell, late director for the Bam and Bud Kalm comedies, is to alternate with Craig Hutchison in the direction of a company headed by Dave Morris as leading comedian. Max Asher, who has been featured as comedian in this company, has left Universal.

A new comedy producing unit has been formed and will work under the direction of Will Beaudine. Mattie Comont, a French comedienne who came to this country with Max Linder, and who played in all the Essanay comedies with Linder, together with Henry Murdock, will be the featured players.

"Pop" Hadley, editor of comedy scenarios, has increased his staff by the addition of King Vidor, who takes the place of Bob Dillon, who has been transferred to the writing of railroad stories in which Helen Gibson will be featured.

What is spoken of as a remarkable mystery story, "The Winged Mystery," was put in production by Director Joseph De Grasse with Franklyn Farnum in the star role. This is an adaptation of a magazine story prepared for the screen by William Parker.

THE cast for the first Mac Murray Bluebird production has been selected and Director Bob Leonard has commenced work. Paul Nicholson, formerly in productions of the Shubert's and Frazee interests, has been engaged as leading man. Jack Vosburg, last seen in American-Mutual features, will play the juvenile role and others who will take part in this first production are Jean Hersholt, Gretchen Ledener, Harry Von Meter and Clarissa Selwyn. The story was adapted for the screen by Fred Myton and is entitled "The Princess Virtue." It appeared as a magazine story. Myton, formerly of Lasky's, prepared the working script for Miss Murray's first screen appearance—"To Have and to Hold."

Monroe Salisbury, who is to be featured in western subjects of five reels or more, is now taking the stellar role in a Canadian Northwest picture entitled "Julo Sandvold," an original story and scenario by E. J. Clawson. Allen Sears, Arthur Tavares and Colline Moore are taking principal parts. The exteriors for the subject are now being made at Seven Oaks, Calgary.

"Bitter Sweet," the Elva Hall Bluebird production, has been completed by Director Harry Salter, and this producing unit will commence work in filming "The Dyartist," which was written by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton.

The success attained by the Bluebird "Come Through" has caused the executives of this company to cast Herbert Rawlinson, star of this production, in other similar subjects and he is now working in "The Drag-net," a crook melodrama which will be filmed by Elmer Clifton. Waldemar Young is responsible for the scenario.

DIRECTOR GEORGE MARSHALL, collaborating with Harvey Gates, has written a five-reel drama entitled "The Bumble Bee," which is nearing completion at Universal City. Neil Hart plays the principal role with Edward Pet, late American player, appearing as heavy.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are being featured in a two-reel sleeping car comedy entitled "The Owl," which was written for them by the famous vaudeville star, Will M. Cressy.

Director Craig Hutchison and his company of players, including Max Asher and Miss Gladys Tennyson, were granted the privilege of being the first picture company to shoot the swimming pool located on the spacious grounds of L. M. Armstrong, a member of Pasadena's Millionaire Colony.

CARMEL MYERS makes her first appearance on the Universal program in "The Dyartist," under the direction of Henry Solter. Kenneth Harlan, formerly with Fine Arts and Triangle, and Charles Hill Mailes have prominent parts in this production.

Hal Cooley and Rena Rogers have joined the Universal forces and will make their first appearance in "The Cricket," a five-reel photoplay featuring little Zoe Rae.

The latest Universal thirty-reel serial is entitled "The Chang Fuy Treasure." Francis Ford is directing as well as playing one of the principal parts and the cast includes such well-known names as Ben Wilson, who is starred, with Neva Gerber, William Carroll, and Duke Worne. Director Stuart Paton is busy on the eleventh episode of the "Gray Ghost" and Director Jacques Jaccard reports that the eighth episode of his serial, "The Red Ace," is under production.

A five-reel Bluebird production, "It's Up to You," featuring Herbert Rawlinson and Browne Vernon, is nearing completion under the direction of Elmer Clifton.

DIRECTOR DE GRASSE has completed "The Maverick," which was adapted for the screen by William Parker, at the Bluebird Studios. "The Maverick" is a five-reel comedy drama of the East and West and will feature Franklyn Farnum.

Director E. J. Le Saint with an all-star cast of players, including William Stowell, Millard Wilson, Helen Gibson, Betty Schade, Hector Dion and Mildred Davis, is filming a five-reel western drama entitled "The Man of God" at Universal City, written by J. Grubb Alexander.

Douglas Fairbanks, co-director Joseph H. Henabery, Bennie Zedeman, and twenty others left the Studio last week for Evanston, Wyoming, where a number of locations are to be used. They expect to be away for about ten days. In scenes made at Evanston, J. H. Strickland, champion rider and roper, who received the greatest number of prizes at the Cheyenne round-up, will make his first appearance before the camera. Following this he will return with the company to Los Angeles and continue as a permanent member of the organization.

THE first Lois Weber production is reported completed with the exception of a small amount of film editing which is now being done personally by Miss Weber. This photoplay has been given several titles, but up to this time no definite announcement has been made what one will be used for releasing. The cast for this includes Mildred Harris, Kenneth Harlan, Helen Rosson, and Adele Farrington, Alfred Allan and a number of others.

Screen rights have been secured on the Mary Roberts Rinehart story, entitled "K," and this is now being adapted for the screen by Miss Weber, while Phillips Smalley is engaged in securing players for the production. True Boardman, it is announced, will play the title role and Ken Harlan will be given an important part. Mildred Harris is to continue as leading woman in this subject.

Sheridan-Bickers, who came to the coast to do special publicity work for the Triangle and after leaving there went to Paralta, where he worked as sub-editor of a local writer, has been brought in by Miss Weber to assist her in scenario writing and supervise the publicity work. Bickers is a former newspaper man with experience on London papers, where he scored as the mighty critic. In America he has followed newspaper work for several years.

THE five-reel Vitagraph subject "Death Trap Baker" has been completed by Director-Actor William Deican, and he is now working on script for new subjects. The completed picture incorporates a number of Wolfville tales and has Carol Holloway and Joe Ryan as leads. This is a decidedly western story.

Miss Holloway has been placed under contract by the Vitagraph Company and, according to the document, is to remain there for the next two years. In the coming "Vitagraph serials," The Fighting Han," Miss Holloway plays the leading role opposite Duncan. At the present it is the plan of Studio Manager W. S. Smith that Miss Holloway shall continue playing opposite Duncan in future made five-reeler subjects.
A Vitagraph company directed by William Robert is continuing with the making of "The Red Crib," which has a Peruvian atmosphere. A number of attractive settings have been built at the Studio and it is reported this coming production will rival "Aladdin from Broadway" from the standpoint of attractive settings.

The J. P. McGowans of the Signal Conover in an interview at the Avenue Studio after spending a week at the Pacific Ocean Oil Fields near Summerland, where they were making the finishing scenes of the fifth episode, "In Deep Water," for the "Lost Express" serial. This episode was completed the end of the week and on Monday the sixth episode, the title of which will not be given out until later, was commenced. This serial, the first episode of which will not be released for one or two weeks by Mutual, will be well along in production by that date and Director J. P. McGowan feels confident of having the entire serial completed by the time the eighth episode is released.

While en route home from Summerland, a seven-passenger car purchased by the company for the purpose of wrecking was prematurely ruined when the steering knob broke and the car dashed through about sixty feet of heavy fencing and through a深挖的 ditch. The car was being used for the transportation of baggage at the time and the driver and his companion escaped without injury.

Colin Campbell is this week preparing the script for a multiple reel production adapted from the stage melodrama, "The Still Alarm." The cast for this will be announced next week when the production is commenced.

The Selig players have had several weeks' vacation following the completion of "Purple Dreams." This was partially due to the absence of Studio Manager J. L. McGee, who has been in a local hospital but has now recovered from a severe operation. He has fully recovered, however, and is back at the Studio.

Activities of the Lasky Aircraft studio have been centered in the C. B. DeMille-Geraldine Farrar subjects this week and a greater portion of the staff have worked with the director and hundreds of extras at a large setting built in the foothills along the coast near Santa Monica. At this point an Aztec village was built and among the elaborate portions of the setting which will furnish exteriors for practically all of the coming Farrar subject is one of particular importance in that it is the highest ever built by any producing company of the West Coast. This represents the building erected by the Aztec Indians to protect their treasure room where many precious gems were stored. To gain access to the treasure room it was necessary to scale the steep walls of the edifice, which rise approximately two hundred feet. In the battle scenes made last week, in which Director DeMille used more than five hundred warriors for the dreadful fight, the drivers who leaped to nets or rolled down the steep incline were injured to a more or less extent.

Anticipating such accidents would happen, Mr. DeMille had a Red Cross hospital tent and ambulance at the location. Those participating in the battle scenes represented the invading army of Spanish explorers and the Aztec Indians who attempted to protect their property from the invaders. The principal supporting players of Miss Farrar in the scenes made at the Aztec village location are Wallace Reid, Hobart Bosworth, Raymond Hatton, and many others of the Lasky stock organization, including Theodore Kosloff, Russian dancer, who is conducting a school in Los Angeles.

Mr. DeMille will shortly take a big party of players to Yosemite Valley for the making of a number of scenes in a specially erected set there. It is announced so many will be required for these scenes that Mr. DeMille has charted a special train to carry them to and from the National Park.

A complete western town has been built at the Lasky studio for use of William S. Hart for his first Aircraft subject. Mr. Hart has been working on this picture now for two weeks and is still on the exteriors, many of the scenes being made in the foothills north of Hollywood. The narrow roads in and about Lookout Mountain are serving for many of the chases that will prove a featured part of the western play photographed.

Florence Vidor, who has played leading woman parts in Paramount subjects, including those starring George Beban, Sessue Hayakawa and Julian Eltinge, has been made a permanent member of the Lasky organization and will play again with Hayakawa in a subject now being made under the direction of George Melford. The company is still at the location selected in Bear Lake Valley, working on scenes for this play photographed.

Wellington Wales, auditor; Claude Mitchell, chief assistant director; Edwin Mitchell, assistant auditor, and Ray Marshall, assistant to Director Marshall Neilan, all of the Lasky studio organization, have been called by the draft.

The Mary Pickford Aircraft Company is working this week at San Francisco on exterior scenes for "The Little Princess," which is being made under the direction of Marshall Neilan. The company left for the northern city Monday and will be absent from the studio at least a week. Norman Kaiser, who came to the Coast several weeks ago to play, leading parts in "Pardon Blessings," has been engaged to play opposite Miss Pickford in "The Little Princess."

That the recently organized Triangle-Keystone producing studio is endeavoring to advantage in every way is pointed out by the fact that up to the end of the first producing week two single-reel Triangle comedies have been completed and one two-reel Keystone is almost ready for final showing. All three subjects have been in the hands of film cutters for several days. No permanent titles have been decided upon for any of the finished products.

The five producing units are continuing work with several additions. Rose Carter, who will be remembered as a member of the bathing girls' bvy, has been promoted to stardom and will shortly be featured in a subject made by Reggie Morris. Peggy Owen, who played in a number of subjects at Triangle Culver City studio, has been added to the stock company and will be given important roles in the unit directed by H. Raymaker. Joseph (Baldy) Belmont, who has played everything in Keystone comedies from juvenile to eccentric character parts, has returned to Keystone and will shortly be cast in the first subject. Recently Belmont was engaged by the William Fox company and there played an important role in a George Walsh subject. Belmont spent more than three years in the Triangle Keystone studio appearing in the Komic Brand of Comedies, Reliance, Majestic and Fine Arts subjects, and while there built a bungalow which he used as a dressing room and which he has now taken possession of again.

The Triangle producing companies at Culver City Studios were augmented this week by the addition of three actresses. Texas Guinan, well known from the East and is to be starred in forthcoming releases. Working scenario for the first subject is now in preparation and Miss Guinan will probably start within the next few days. Ruth Stonehouse, who for the past year has been with Universal, featured in Bluetbird and other subjects, has been placed under contract for two years and is to be cast as star in subjects to be put in production immediately. The third new person on the Triangle lot is Claire McDowell, who since coming to the Coast more than two years ago, has been affiliated with Universal organizations. Miss McDowell has played in Bluebird, Red Feather and Butterfly subjects, in many of which she was given the featured part.

Director Lynn Reynolds, Olive Thomas, and company, which includes George Cheseboro as leading man, are roughing it, de luxe, in the mountains near Bear Lake, California. The story now in production gives Miss Thomas the role of a Western dance hall girl. This is quite a contrast from her most recent portrayals in Triangle subjects recently finished. The photoplay now being made has been titled "Broadway Arizona."

DIRECTOR WALTER EDWARDS, in charge of the Louise Glaum Triangle Company, has recently completed the filming of "Milestones of Success," a story about Miss Glaum, who has taken up the making of a story of an entirely different character. The one just finished gives Miss Glaum the role of a vampire in Egyptian settings, while the next one, "Gonda," is devoted to the gold-rush days of Alaska. The story is spoken of as a companion one to "The Flame of the Yukon," with respect to settings, but having a decidedly different story. Jack Livingston, who has played the lead opposite Miss Glaum in several of the most recently made subjects, is to continue in "Gonda," and other important parts are taken by Lee Hill and William Ellingford.

Six consecutive days have been taken by Director Jack Conway and company in an effort to secure a sunset effect for the Western photoplay starring Roy Stuart, which is now being completed. A very desirable location was secured along the Pacific Ocean. Every evening the company has been here to secure the photograph of the elusive sun, but in each instance a cloud has fallen at the "psychological" moment and consequently the effect needed to complete the photoplay could not be secured. Belle Bennett plays the lead opposite Stuart in this subject.

Margery Wilson, Charles Gunn, Director Tom Heffron and other Triangle players are home from Felton, Cal., where they have used the mountains for Kentucky locations in the making of new westerns and moonshine whiskey and Kentucky feudist subjects. Miss Wilson takes the role of a Kentucky mountain girl, and Gunn, playing opposite, is seen as a short story writer and school teacher from the North.

THE Theda Bara Fox producing unit has completed the scenes for the "Cleopatra" spectacle and super-picture. The last were made the latter part of this week when the whole of the studio was used in building elaborate settings which were used in the battle scenes. The stage used for "Cleopatra" scenes at the Studio this week took on more the appearance of a magnificent zoo than a banquet hall. More than a score of the best animals to be obtained, including lions, tigers, leopards and others, appeared in the banquet scene which was tendered to Anthony.

Two accidents are reported from the Fox studio this week. In one an overindustrious extra landed on George Walsh with a break-away beer bottle, which failed to break. The actor received an ugly cut on the head under the cover of the studio for a day or two to recuperate. White scenes were being made on one of the mountain roads out of Los Angeles for the first Willard Lewis comedies directed by Richard Barstow. The actress, Betty Pownall, was making a ride down the mountain road when the horse plunged off the embankment, falling a distance of thirty feet. Fortunately it alighted in soft earth and the rider was not injured other than a few slight bruises and a bad shaking up.

ONE of the lesser results of the war has undoubtedly been the aroused interest of the two English-speaking nations of North America in each other. Canada and its magnificent natural scenery has been practically undiscovered by the picture producer, but the Dalboa Company has realized its great value from a pictorial standpoint and has sent an expedition in charge of Gameraman E. L. Chilnurcd to secure some unusual effects for the serial productions which the company has under way. As it is rather late in the season for Mr. Chilnurcd to go to the cold in the cold weather stops him, he will probably not get very far away from the automobile trails, but will blaze the way for more extensive work next season.

A COMPLETE reorganization has been effected by Mack Sennett for the making of comedies for Paramount and now the new studios and plant are at work on subjects at the studio on Alle- sandro street, formerly known as the Key- stone.

No change has been made in the personnel of the executive staff. George Stout continues as president, John Wal- dron, assistant manager to Mr. Stout, Hampton Del Ruth, editor and produc- tion manager; Tony O'Sullivan, superin- tendent of studio, and Sam Roark, man- ager of the advertising department. The plant is as large as it was when the studio had from ten to eighteen pro- ducing units. This plan is followed by Mr. Sennett in order that he may have all the time he desires to devote to super- vising productions instead of giving his time to business details concerning the business.

Four companies are to work at this studio under the direction of Edward Cline, Victor Hermann, Fred Fishbach and Clarence Derbe, the last-named of which has been followed in the past of one organi- zation of players remaining with one di- rector for a number of pictures will not continue. It is the intention of Mr. Sen- nett to change players from one director to another in the case of the stock company takes the parts that in the past have been played by people spe- cially engaged for the roles. Every pro- duction will have three or more featured players and it is understood every man of the stock company must be a comedian.

Many of former players of Keystone comedies will continue under Mr. Sennett in Paramount subjects, the list including such well known comedians as Charles Murray, Mack Swain, Chester Conklin, Ben Turpin, George Summerville, Glen Cavender, Tom Kennedy, Jack Dip- low, Ben Turpin's bulldog, Jack Dol- ley, Ted Ballow's dog, Watch, and Teddy, the Great Dane dog. Mr. Sennett has also retained all his organization, almost a score of actresses who have been seen in Keystone comedies previously. Among them are Gloria Swanson, Polly Moran, Elynn Field, Ethel Young, Mary Thrub- man, Louise Fazenda, Peggy Pierce, Marie Precost, Dracy De Witt, Ethel Volck, Roxie McGowan, Lillian Byron, and a number of others.

Working with Editor Del Ruth is John Gray, Walter Woods and Judge Boyer. This staff will probably be increased at a later date.

It is the intention of Mr. Sennett to continue the publication of the Mack Sennett Weekly and Harry Carr and Gardner Bradford will continue in charge of the editing and publishing of this.

THE first release of the new brand is stated at the Studio, will not be made until about the first of October. This will give Mr. Sennett ample time to complete his plans for future productions and bring them up to a standard which he has here- tofore aimed to reach, but because of the large number of complete attention could not be given to any indi- vidual unit. Every day Mr. Sennett can now be seen working with the different directors in the making of this or that scene to put over one of his individual ideas.

A number of elaborate devices are now being constructed at the Studio for the making of these Paramount comedies. These will add new thrills to the melo- drama comedies that have made Sennett famous and will aid to work out new effects that will add materially to the value of pictures made here.

HERBERT STANDING, character actor of the Douglas Fairbanks Company, has received word from his son Guy telling of his appointment as lieutenant com- mander of the Royal Naval Reserves and that he has been decorated by the King of England for bravery in carrying despatches to and from the danger zone. Guy is one of the seven sons of Herbert Standing, all of whom are actors. He has been in serv- ice two years and during that time has un- dergone so many perils that his hair has turned snow white.

John Nicholas, who for four years has been with the Universal as superintendent of laboratories, returned this week from a long absence and took up working head of the photographic department of the Tri- angle Studio at Culver City. Mr. Nicho- las is accredited with building the Uni- versal Laboratories in the East and building up the photographic department of Universal City to its present high state of efficiency. He has been engaged in motion picture photographic work since films were first made, following a career of photog- rapher and stereopticon slide manufac- turing.

NICHOLAS DUNDAW, Russian char- acter actor, formerly for several seas- ons with Universal at both the Eastern and Western studios, has written two plays which are to be produced in the near fu- ture. The first one completed, "Too Late," has been purchased by the Shuberts and is shortly to have its premier in New York. The second, "The Spider," has been sold to Oliver Morose and is to be produced first in Los Angeles. This play has three acts and a prologue.

PAUL CONLON, known along the Los Angeles Rialto as "Scoop," he being the personification of the well-known cartoon of the same name, has been promoted to the position of manager of the FINDING that the supply of lumber on hand at the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation studio in Hollywood was sufficient for four or five months, Jesse L. Lasky this week turned the use of the company's lumber mills at Hoquian, Washington, and the lumber carrying vessels and docks to the government. The mills were notified by wire to suspend all preparations to supply lumber for the studios, and to add two shifts a day to prepare lumber for the army barracks which will be sold to the government at 75c a ton.

The new stage recently built at the Lasky studio in Hollywood is being used exclusively by Cecil B. deMille for the first feature film to be produced on his new制式 for catapulting. Several hundred birds have been purchased and are being used in scenes made here.

Mr. Christie has now reached New York on a tour which will take him to probably every exchange center in the United States.

Al Christie, producing director, is now making plans for a five weeks' trip to the Studio in Hollywood for picture making. He plans to take with him a complete company, including players and technical people, and will make from three to five one or two reel pictures. No date has been decided upon for departure by Director Christie, but he will leave as soon as his plans can be perfected.

In anticipation of increasing the producing staff at Paralta Studios, Manager Robert Kane has added several writers to the scenario department. In addition to Tom Geraghty and Monte Katterjohn, who were the first employed, Hayden Talbot, well known playwright and novelist, has been sent from the East and Julian Lamothe and Eugene Lewis have been engaged. Lamothe for the past year has written original stories for the American Company at Santa Barbara and Lewis, who for three years was editor for the old Biograph Company, has served in a like capacity at Universal City. For the past several months he has been with the Mack Sennett organization.

The Paralta have purchased an original scenario from F. McGrew Willis, which will shortly be put in production.

The Paralta Studios have leased a block of vacant ground immediately adjoining the studios and this is now being used for production purposes. Essanay Enters One-Reel Educational Field

First Series of Ten, to Be Released by K-E-S-E, Is Titled “Wonders of Nature and Science”—Scene Mostly in Canada

ESSANAY announces ten one-reel educational films for early release through K-E-S-E, to be known as “The Wonders of Nature and Science.” They will be in series, one each week.

This is a departure for K-E-S-E, and is stated to have been decided upon after careful inquiry among exhibitors. In almost every instance there was a demand for one-reel features to fill out the educational card. It is explained, may be used with any program.

The ten pictures will be divided between the subjects, the wonders of nature and the wonders of science.

The first half will present some of the scenic beauties of Canada, which never before have been seen on the screen. Views of the Canadian Rockies and their majestic splendor will comprise one unit. The four others will include scenes in our Quebec, showing the quaint old French dwellings, narrow streets and the unique characteristics of its people; Nova Scotia, made famous by the poet Longfellow, in his “Evangeline”; British Columbia and its wilderness of mountain-clad fires and everlasting snows, and views of the Upper Winnipeg River, one of the most picturesque streams in the world.

Even more wonderful than these are the wonders of science. Each of these five units is devoted to the intricacies of one of the nation’s big industries, from beginning to end. The science of medicine and surgery, one of these units, shows from whence the ingredients of various medicines well known to the public are obtained, how they are prepared, and their uses. The surgical division of this reel shows the operating rooms of great hospitals and explains the uses of the delicate instruments with which human lives are saved.

The world’s greatest industry, steel, is the subject of another unit. Huge steel mills are shown in sections; together with instructive scenes of ore mining and the preparations of the finished product.

Other great industries are depicted in the succeeding units, in their entirety.

“Handling Mail” and “Beach Sport” in Gaumont Magazine

The Gaumont Company has both magazine and news pictures—single reels—for release through Mutual at the week of August 27. The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly No. 139 will contain its usual assortment of news pictures, including the pictures taken by the cameramen of the Societe des Establishments Gaumont of war activities in France. It will be released August 29. These Gaumont-Mutual pictures are forming the greater part of the new contributions to the topical and magazine reel assembled weekly by the Rialto Theatre, New York.

The magazine reel, “Reel Life” No. 70, will be released August 30. Its main section is “Handling the Mail.” This is an entertaining trip with a letter after it has been posted through the various departments of the post office. How money orders are handled is also shown in these pictures. A second section is “Using the Abalone,” showing how these beautiful shells are worked up into jewelry and other ornaments.

“Beach Sport of California” is an exposition of the good times which the natives of that state and visitors have in the surf and upon the sand. A fourth section of the reel shows a boy nine years old doing one is accustomed to see only at a circus or upon the stage. The reel ends with two humorous animated sections founded upon drawings in “Life.” These are called “The Marvelous Stunts with a Lasso which March of Science” and “What a Bachelor Sees at a Wedding.”

Rush to Coney, Tea in Japan, in Bray Pictograph

In the 81st release of the Paramount-Bray pictograph, from Bray Studios, Inc., the rush to Coney Island and scenes in the resort are depicted. Some of the fun was so fast it was taken with a Speedo camera.

Other views show how tea is grown, harvested and packed in Japan. The tea is of a kind that rarely reaches America, being used only by connoisseurs in London. Simon Lake’s underwater and over-land submarine is pictured.

J. R. Bray’s cartoon has to do with the adventures of Colonel Heeza Liar as a temperance lecturer.

“The Devil’s Breath” in News Film by Universal

In the Universal Animated Weekly, for release August 8, are official French war pictures showing Pershing meeting the generals who saved France, and views on the Mississippi showing the blowing of gas bombs—the devil’s breath.

Other news action pictures reproduce the testing examination of the applicant for the army flying corps; the farewell to the soldier boys at Denver; the “kites” at Bangor, Maine; future officers at Fort McPherson; “white wings” giving the boys a bath in the lower New York East Side; the actors’ ball for soldiers’ smokes at Great Neck, L. I., and cartoons by Hy Mayer.

Gaumont-Mutual “Rush” Pictures from France

Pictures of the landing of the expeditionary force in France are included in Gaumont Mutual Weekly No. 137. These are the first of these particular pictures to reach exhibitors and were sent to Mutual branches direct, with instructions to immediately issue them.

American pictures of peace and war and French pictures of the celebration of the Fall of the Bastille complete the reels. Coast artillerymen are shown leaving for target practice from an American port.

The film shows the Netherlands ships held up in the Hudson, and pictures city firemen bathing children from the hydrants.

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE

I’ve forgotten the magic verse. But well I remember, never mind how many years ago, wishing my dolls happy adventures while I slept. Perhaps the dollars did come to life, but I never knew it. There wasn’t a moving picture camera to catch them at it in those days. But the Little Mother of the Mo-Toys, smiling on her pillow, has only to look at them the next day to learn how, in ‘Dolly Doings’ (Peter Pan Film Corporation) Jimmy is forced into overalls, a Chaplin mustache, and the role of a tramp: how he is chased by Stuffy the Sleuth Hound, and how mean advantage is taken of his plight by Billy, who loses no time in courting the beautiful Jane. We hope Stuffy and Billy were properly spanked when morning arrived.

School days and trouble come to even the liveliest Mo-Toys. Billy and Jane, peacefully playing see-saw, lose their equilibrium at the unexpected arrival of Simple Sam. Stuffy, dispatched with an important letter, drops duty for the pleasures of the chase from a squirrel beckons from the tree. Someone is in for a fight down by the fence. But Teacher rings the bell, and Mo-Toys forget their pleasant amusements in common cause against the hated enemy.

DESTRUCTION AND CONSERVATION

Active military preparedness characterizes Universal Animated Weekly 84. We see our boys fencing with bayonets of paddle sticks, charging dummies swimming in a pool and lying in trenches, and themselves "carrying on" over the top to imaginary victory.

Equally severe in another way are the tests applied to would-be airmen, where perfect vision and fine co-ordination of the muscles are essential. That prospective hardness is no deterrent to thousands of young Americans, Denver's parade of 15,000 recruits bears witness. Seen from above, the long line of marching men is justly called "A Bar in Our Flag."

Valiant hearts are of little use if their owners are not armed with the actual tools to carry on their task. As the Universal Screen Magazine 36 points out, shrapnel saved England's army; it may stand between our men and destruction. Fully one-third of the magazine is given over to picturing the making of this deadly instrument of modern war.

But while devastation spreads tragically abroad, conservation is the order of the day at home. Even while it is busy turning out unthinkable tons of ammunition, our Government is concerning itself with the crying problem of more food, better food. The Span of the New York College of Agriculture—a most attractive film has been prepared showing the making of butter. From different sprints in the separator come cream and milk. Buttermilk is added to the cream to sour it; then a brief thirty-five minutes in the swinging churn converts it into butter. The buttermilk is drained off, the butter washed, salted, and finally moulded into the neat round prints that come to our kitchens. Winning this prize with his animated clay takes away the curse—if there is any—of undue seriousness.

BOBBY, MOVIE DIRECTOR
(Vitagraph)

What's the use of being the Greatest Child Actor in the World if they keep you "stickin' round studios set up like offices all day!" Nothing in it, says Bobby Connelly. Not even when the only Anita Stewart in an adjoining set of rich magnificence holds the scene to converse with Bobby, who for a brief moment has eluded the stern director. So Bobby breaks for outdoors and freedom. A friendly grocery boy, with whom he exchanges a macaroni for a chew of sugar cane, gives him a lift, a band of youthful paper hunters who recognize him as the famous screen artist, accept his statement that he is a "director," and with these and three-year-old Aida Horton impressed as "leading lady" Bobby seeks the beach as a suitable "location." Here the company proceed to enact "Pokey-hunt." True, the leading lady's "attack" calls forth rebuke from the lordly director: "This isn't Chaplin stuff," but operations proceed with vigor until the latest—of the hour—or the pangs of hunger bring disquietude to the company. A white flag (we will not disclose how it is secured!) is run up on a barrel straw, and frantic parents are guided to their wandering hopefuls. Meanwhile, the nose-locked between mother and Bobby in the home-bound automobile, looked quite willing to sign up with Director Connelly for an indefinite contract.

SPASH AND DASH IN GAUMONT WEEKLY 136

"Twenty degrees cooler inside" seems literally true when this pleasant number of the Weekly is on the screen. There is, in fact, so much of nice cold water in it! In Alamada, California, men and girls are tearing at breakneck speed in the swimming pool, while a graceful liquid goddess is doing "stunts." Los Angeles seems equally fond of the fresh-water dip. The swimming pond in the beautiful Civic Park is filled with happy youngsters to whom scientific strokes are small matter. Enough to splash and tumble to their hearts' content! Just to remind us that while the lucky grasshoppers (or water fleas!) enjoy pastimes suited to the season, the farsighted busy ants are toiling for the months to come, Garvan Walsh has a token of autumn—fall hats fresh from the hands of the Parisian milliner. A hint as to black silk beaver and white straw combinations should be enough for even the economist who trims her own headgear.

Somewhere in France, in a convoluted camp, a lively boxing bout is amusing the wounded Tommies and poilus; somewhere in America splendid young Sammies, recruits of thirty days, show remarkably good form in drill and evolution. In Washing, department heads are keeping fit for their part in war work by daily setting up drills, solemnly twisting waists and gravely flexing knees. High school girls of Los Angeles show us how they save the nation's resources by canning great baskets of native peaches. The "Footnote" is supplied by pretty Mollie King displaying the very latest in slippers and boots.

SARDINES AND SOMERSAULTS

Economists are advocating sardines as a nutritious food, even when used sparingly as a relish. An acquaintance with the cleanly method of their preparation should popularize their use. In Pathe's "Sardine Fishery at Monterey," the process of making the sardine ready for the market is set forth in attractive and interesting fashion. Tons of the silvery fish, caught at night, are delivered at the wharfs in the morning. In the adjacent sheds, deft workers quickly remove the heads, send the bodies down the cleaning sluces, spread them for drying, and put them through the last dread process of "boiling in oil."

Father ("Bringing Up Father" on reel with above) takes one step further into the higher life when he attends a demonstration of hypnotism and offers to be hypnotized. His wife, deluded into believing he is the greatest boxer in the world, the Professor's art, however, proves stronger than Father's valor and Father takes a sudden and unexpected rest. But the joy of undreamed of! A compound of press, obedient beer casks, an acrobatic horse! It is true that Father comes back to reality and a cake of ice resting on his damaged forehead. But it was certainly good while it lasted!

HOW NOT TO STICK PINS IN BUTTERFLIES

Every boy in the country for even a week has, with naïve brutality, transfixed a struggling insect with a pin and fastened him to a board. If that boy could only see "Mounting Butterflies" (Filamont Films Corporation), he would learn how to enjoy the legitimate interest and pleasure of catching and mounting specimens without inflicting pain. From the time the netted victim is dropped into the "sleeping powder" until a pin is mounted on a card or placed in a glass-faced box ready for packing and shipping, every process is carefully shown by Mr. Ditmar and the young girl (his daughter, we understand) who acts as his assistant. The reel closes with a picture of hundreds of night moths clustered on a tree which has been baited with molasses and vinegar.

A VENERABLE RECLUSE

Centuries ago, China decided that she preferred her own company to that of any other people on earth. So she built a wall around herself—not a tariff wall, but a huge affair of masonry. A wall of this type is seen in the fourth issue of China and the Chinese (Educational Film Corporation), surrounding the city of Nanking.

The dead, it would seem, in so well-guarded a land, should be safe from intrusion, but evidently the Chinese do not think so. To insure the utmost peace of their deceased ancestors, hordes of refugees, in the massive Ming tombs, they set up a succession of enormous stone figures of animals. Were it not for their size and real majesty, one would be tempted to christen these various beasts "Noah's Ark animals."

LA REPUBLIQUE, INTRODUCING SAMMY

Word comes over the water that France has taken Sammy to her heart—likes him for his slim good looks, his quickness, and the real ability that underlies his debonair carriage. We don't wonder at her admiration when we see the fine chops that (Gaumont Weekly 137) in thousands pour out from our transports on French soil. Equally gratifying to American pride is the splendid bearing of the general commanding the French forces in the battle. A number of views show PersHING in conversation with General Joffre, and give us an opportunity of renewing the pleasure which the actual sight of the famous French general when on his visit to America afforded us.
AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Author of "Fighting Odds"

ROI COOPER MEGRUE, co-author of "Fighting Odds," in which Maxine Elliott stars, planned a trip to the North Woods. Megrue is also a director of Goldwyn company. The co-directors heard of the trip and asked Megrue to call in on the managers of Goldwyn branch offices.

Gradually this part of the "vacation" was extended until it is now arranged to have the author meet the exchange managers in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver also. The managers are to introduce him to the owners of the motion picture theatres and these in turn to leading patrons of their houses.

This is the first time in the history of the industry that one of the big figures in dramatic authorship has ever been sent directly to the men who exhibit motion pictures to the public to ask these influential showmen their opinions as to what the public desires on the screen.

New Men in Pathe's Office at Omaha

C. E. Schmidt, branch manager for Pathe at Butte, Mont., has been named by the home office in New York as assistant manager to C. E. Holah in the rapidly growing exchange at Omaha. Mr. Schmidt was formerly an Omaha serving in the Pathe exchange when C. W. Kirk was manager. C. F. Helgren and William Beale of Minneapolis have been transferred to the Omaha Pathe office.

Recent Shifts in St. Louis Exchanges

Midwest and Standard exchanges have been moved to the Empress Theatre Building, St. Louis. T. L. Morse is manager of the former and F. J. Pegan of the latter office.

G. F. Hennessy is new manager of the Bluebird Exchange, No. 3547 Olive street. He was a road representative.

Paramount Makes St. Louis Branch a Full Exchange

Paramount has a new St. Louis exchange with G. W. McKeen in charge. Heretofore it has been a branch of the Kansas City office.

A. D. Flintom, head of the Kansas City office, was in St. Louis last week and final arrangements were then made.

With Vita Syracuse Office

The newest member of the Greater Vitagraph family is Mr. Lester D. Wolfe, whom Branch Manager Hartich has engaged to cover part of the Syracuse territory. He has been connected with one of the most progressive theatres in the territory, and was formerly manager of the Rex Film Exchange at Albany and the Mutual Branch at Syracuse.

to Meet Goldwyn Managers

Fred Solomon General Film's Manager in Omaha

Fred Solomon, formerly booker in the General exchange in Omaha, has been promoted to manager since C. W. Taylor resigned to go with the Standard. Solomon has been in the film business for over six years. All but seven months of that time, when he was an exhibitor in Cheyenne, Wyo., being spent in the General exchange.

S. R. Kent, sales manager, and B. S. Riddle, traveling auditor, of the General Film Company were in Omaha last week looking over the affairs of the local exchange.

Universal Service Will Work Through Exchanges

Universal has established a service department to work in co-operation with both the Mecca and Universal Exchanges, taking care of all matters calling for adjustment with exhibitors.

In this or lithographic paper can often be delayed in transit, or any one of a dozen other things occur to cause the exhibitor worry or loss, the experts in charge of the new service department take the matter up at once. Employees of the service department have been retained to represent the interests of the exhibitors, and they have been given a free hand to see the exhibitors get service.

In addition to adjusting claims, the new department takes care of the exhibitor's advertising and publicity, wherever such assistance is desired. Newspaper copy is prepared, handbills and special folders gotten up, and circular letters composed to meet requirements.

New Manager in Cincinnati Foursquare Branch

Hal Smith has been appointed manager of the Cincinnati exchange of the M. H. Hoffman Foursquare pictures, according to an announcement by George W. Weeks, division manager at Detroit. Mr. Smith for the past year has been in charge of the Drury Lane theatre, Detroit, of which Mr. Weeks is managing director.

D. Leo Dennison is in charge of Cleveland territory for Hoffman Foursquare pictures.

South Dakota Town Theatres Reported Closing

"Reports to me say nearly all the smaller theatres in South Dakota have closed for the summer," said Manager R. C. Herman of the Mutual exchange in Omaha.

"We supply a large number of these theatres, and those that have not closed entirely are running only one or two nights a week. In Nebraska and Iowa nearly every house is remaining open and most of the reports are of excellent business."
SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

“Irish” (Pathe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

GIVEN a “brisk and above-average” production by an English company and bearing all the “ear-marks” of a “made-in-England” picture “Irish,” another of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero’s stage plays has been adapted to the screen. It is released by Pathè. To those who can overlook a weakness in direction and a cheapness in production, this picture should appeal. Placed in the hands of an American director Pinero’s play would have presented a picture that would have approached the high water mark of excellence. The material was in the script but it has not been brought out entirely. Alma Taylor, an English actress of unusual ability and possessing a charming personality, does remarkably well in the leading role. She is pretty and screen like a winner.

Like some other works of this English playwright which have been seen in the screen recently, “Irish” lacks a certain punch in presentment. It leaves the impression that it was produced years ago before the finer qualities of production were mastered. It looks as Ancient history reads. There is, without a doubt, a strong appealing note in all of Pinero’s plays that have been seen on the screen. The defect lies in the production, not in the script nor in the cast. So it is with “Irish.” If you look to the action, your satisfaction is complete. In the latter reels powerful dramatic action is given. There is nothing further to be desired in this respect. The question is, will the English version be accepted? We think it will and further we recommend it as one that will be well received by all, as presenting five reels of good entertainment. With all its faults, it is a far better picture than some which have shown satisfying box-office receipts. There is a smooth running story told—one that takes up the “eternal triangle” question and carries it through to the finish. There are no impossible situations to puzzle over, there is no “padding” of plot.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Irish (Alma Taylor), a wealthy English widow, retains her fortune so long as she doesn’t marry. The will of her deceased husband so reads. She accepts a proposal from Fred Malonado (Henry Ainley), a rich clubman. She loves Lawrence Trenwith (Stuart Rome), a young engineer. Shortly after she had accepted, Malonado’s proposal, young Trenwith presents himself. He professes his love for her. She regrets her action in accepting the older man’s proposal and writes him a note, breaking the engagement. She then consents to marry Trenwith after he has won success in Canada. Irish loses her fortune. Malonado, seeking to get her in his check book and tells her to use what she wants. She accepts but leaves the city. Later she is notified by the bank that her account is over-drawn. He again traces her and again offers assistance. He gives her the key to a lavishly furnished apartment and tells her she is welcome to reside there. Not hearing from Irish, Trenwith returns to the city from Canada and learns from a friend that Irish is in the city. Malonado learns that a meeting between Irish and Trenwith has been arranged. Trenwith meets her at the apartment. Malonado has come in unobserved and sees the two embrace. She tells Trenwith the truth. He leaves, Malonado enters and orders her to leave. She goes to the river front to end it all but is saved by Trenwith and they are united.

“The Little Duchess” (Peerless—World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

“THE LITTLE DUCHESS,” featuring Madge Evans, the child actress, is a light drama with touches of comedy and pathos evenly distributed throughout its five reels. This Peerless-World feature can be shown with satisfaction to most any class of patrons, excepting the one that has to have the “blood and thunder” elements to appeal to picture appetite. There is, however, a bit of the “melodrama” contained.

Madge Evans is a clever child actress. She has been seen in many World productions in leading child parts and has a following among picture patrons. In the initial reel she is given the opportunity to present real, dramatic action and she does so with ability. During the remainder of the run, a light drama is enacted, its action never reaching dramatic heights, but presenting clean, wholesome entertainment.

Julia Burnham is the author. She has written a story which presents an old idea in a new way. Her work gives rise to some very human touches and these the director, Harley Knobes, and little Miss Evans have succeeded in bringing out delightfully.

The events which take shape during the run of the first reel serve the purpose of a prologue or introduction to the main theme. The idea of the poor, little girl, taken into the household of a wealthy relative and bringing about a change for the better in the life of a grizzly, old man, is treated in a new way and given some original touches. The closing reel discloses events which can not be said to be in harmony with the light vein of drama which runs through the major portion of the relage. The climax reached is, to be sure, unexpected and rather off-color. The disappearance of the Earl’s wife and brother could have been explained in a more pleasing manner than to have their skeletons found in a tower thirty years after their disappearance. It served the purpose, however, and no doubt will be received with appreciation by those who can be conducted only by the gruesome facts.

Jack Drumier, as Earl Carminore, makes a fine groughy, old Earl. Others in the cast are: Pinna Nesbit, James Davis, Patrick Foy, Maxine Elliott Hicks and Sheridan Tansey. The photography is up to the standard.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Geraldine Carmichael (Madge Evans) and her mother, Evelyn Carmichael (Pinna Nesbit), an English widow, live in the tenement district. The mother dies leaving Jerry, as the daughter is called, alone. Before her death the mother directs a letter to Earl Carminore in England and leaves certain papers which she tells Jerry will be of great value to her. She hides the papers behind a board in the wall. She is taken to an orphan asylum. Jim Dawson (James Davis), an unprincipled neighbor, finds the papers which Jerry has hidden. They contain Jerry’s birth certificate. Dawson hits upon an idea. The papers show that Jerry is related to Earl Carminore of England. Dawson’s daughter Sophia (Maxine Elliott Hicks), is about Jerry’s age and he prepares to take her to England and claim relationship. Jerry, in the meantime, with a boy friend, runs away from the orphanage and the two join a circus. The letter which her mother had written to the Earl Carminore has its results. The Earl sends a representative to America to find Jerry. He locates her with the circus and takes her. He has given the freedom of Carminore Castle. Dawson and his daughter, Sophia, arrive and are surprised to find Jerry. Their deception is exposed. Jerry organizes a company of soldiers from among the servants and puts them through daily drills. In search for a watch tower, she invades the tower of the castle and discovers two skeletons. They are the skeletons of the Earl’s wife and his brother who disappeared many years before. The Earl’s confidence in women is restored and little Jerry is made the mistress of the castle.

“At the Sign of the Kangaroo” (Kalem-General Film—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY R. M. JOHNSON

IN this episode a fire—the destruction of the “Sign of the Kangaroo,” which, it seems, is a shack of an inn, an ill-visaged hangout for loafers who prey on the men of the nearby runs. Of course it is Stingaree, that hero of the West, who starts the fire.

The resourceful bushranger has tried his “sleep drops” on his pal, Howie, to ease the pain of toothache. Hiding from a trooper who sits drinking at a table on the porch of the tavern Stingaree pours the medicine into the man’s glass, and in a moment he sleeps soundly.

Watching his chance Stingaree carries the sleeping trooper into a room in the place, puts him on a bed, locks the door and throws away the key. No one but Stingaree knows this slumbering man is in the inn when later the place catches fire. The bushranger
“The Food Gamblers” (Triangle—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

“THE FOOD GAMBLERS” is a propaganda play setting forth conditions of life at the food tables, a task that is no slicker timidity about them. They are not half as apt to teach boys to want to be outlaws as they are to teach them to have a little wholesome courage. This is a lesson much needed here in New York.

True Boardman and Paul C. Hurst do characteristic work in this episode but Edythe Sterling has no opportunity in the part of Marion Fitzroy, wife of a sergeant of the mounted police.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sergeant Keene (Barnie Forey) of the mounted police is dismissed because he has not caught Stingaree (True Boardman) and his associate outlaw Howie (Paul C. Hurst). Sergeant Fitzroy (Ray Hanford), is sent to replace him and is accompanied by his wife, Marion (Edythe Sterling). The story is based on the woman’s accidental discovery of the camp of the bushrangers and her attempt to lead her husband and his men to the place to capture the outlaws. After the fire the grateful hotelkeeper gives Stingaree and Howie horses and they again escape.

“In Love’s Laboratory” (Conquest-Edison-Kleine—Single Reel)
REVIEWED BY R. M. JOHNSON

In this reel there are situations that in good hands might be made into comedy. Jessie Stevens is portly, which usually makes it easier to bring laughs, but only once is this accomplished. The final love-making when the woman hides behind a very large tree is funny.

Jimmy Burton’s efforts at making matches might be humorous in story but it is dismal enough in pictures. William Wadsworth takes this part.

Other Conquest pictures at the same showing were good, particularly the educational reel showing crystals in formation and the scenic reel, “Playing in Florida”—though this is a bit unreasonable, now that New York has the Florida climate right at home.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ellen Anderson (Jessie Stevens) likes the courage of Jimmy Burton, bankrupt inventor (William Wadsworth), who fails to get any money for his experiments in making matches from his crusty cousin, Charles Henderson (Ivan Christy). She first loses her purse so that Burton may find it and next loans him money, sending a letter purporting to be from Henderson. He is advised to heat the letter over sulphur after he succeeds in his invention of a safety match. He does so, and the invisible ink turns, disclosing a love note from Ellen.

“The Neglected Wife”
(Balboa-Pathe—Fifteenth Episode)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

THE last chapter of “The Neglected Wife” serial, entitled “A Sacrifice Supreme,” brings Kennedy and Norwood face to face in the presence of Margaret Warner. The decision is made. The identity of the “veiled woman” is revealed in strong, dramatic manner and the author has arrived at the climax in a logical sequence of events. He has impressed a strong, moral lesson and his conclusion is drawn without disagreeable reflection.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Kennedy (Roland Bottomley) and Norwood (Philo McCloud) meet in Margaret’s apartment, unexpectedly. Kennedy assures Norwood that he is ready to take a divorce action. Norwood takes a desperate chance. He tells Kennedy that he is married to Margaret. Margaret confirms Norwood’s statement. Kennedy returns home and finds Mary (Cotrine Grant). He is relieved to know that his wife has not deserted him. Kennedy, Mary, Norwood and Margaret are at a campaign rally. The identity of the “veiled woman” is revealed as the person of Doyle (Neil Hardin). Kennedy wins the election. Mary prepares to leave having accomplished her purpose. Kennedy pleads with her to stay. They are separated, and Kennedy resolves to regain his self-respect and that of his wife. Margaret surrenders to Norwood and they are married.

LITTLE MARY McALLISTER has a much better chance in this picture to be easy and natural as a child. She is not required to depict any grown-up emotions. One watches the two reels with interest and reaches the conclusion that she is a most delightful little girl. This is not saying the child is an artist, which is true with Roland and Jack, but it brings to light some latent talent in the little girl. John Cossar as Captain Shay is much better as a philanthropist than as a stern father, both of which roles are put upon him. Mabel Bardine does well as Anna, the daughter, who is cast off and turns dressmaker, only to be discovered and restored to her father and child in the finale.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Gyp, an orphan (Mary McAllister), wins the heart of Captain Shay, rusty old recluse (John Cossar), who adopts the child only to later discover the little girl is his own granddaughter, the child of his daughter Anna (Mabel Bardine).
“Eye of Envy”
(Art Dramas (Horsley)—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

CRANE Will burue good work in this pictorial allegory produced by David Horsley Productions and released on the Art Dramas program. Director Harrish Ingraham had an unusual story to work from for he is called upon to present on the screen a fantastic subject. When one attempts to have impersonated, subjects of such an abstract nature as Ambition, Avarice and In- nocence, he has attained something, to say the least. But Mr. Ingraham by refraining from aspiring too high in his ideals, has produced for the screen a picture that, not alone, proves interesting because of its unusual subject matter, but teaches a lesson which all will do well to heed. It represents an average feature.

After the run of the first reel the action takes place in a dream. Most of the scenes are exteriors. The interior sets used, particularly the one showing the interior of the home of Avarice, are well done. Director Ingraham has good taste for “atmosphere.” He has been careful as to detail and in the selection of “location” he has shown scenes which for their natural scenic beauty are in perfect harmony with the “dreamy” nature of the story. The action, at times, rises to dramatic heights. Crane Wilbur, in the role of Ambition, has a difficult part to interpret and he handles the many changes with skill. Jode Mullally carries the “heavier” part of Avarice with true feeling. In the latter reels his part calls for a complete change in character and he goes from one extreme to the other with facility. Gene Crosby, who has the principal feminine part, leaves a good impression. The other members of a strong supporting cast are: F. A. Thompson, Julia Jackson, Millian Webster and Edgar Sherrod. Good work was accomplished by the camera man, Robert A. Turnbull. J. Francis Dunbar is responsible for the story.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
Ambition (Crane Wilbur), who is shown as a young black-smith in the opening of the story, sees the wealthy in their motor cars pass the door of his shop each day. He grows discontented with his lot and starts out to find success. Avarice (Jode Mul-lally) is passed on the way, and Ambition rescues his wife from a muddy stream in which her automobile has been stalled. He continues on his journey until nightfall when he lies down to rest. In his dreams he meets Avarice again and the two exchange souls. Ambition then becomes the cruel, heartless, old man with the appearance of youth. Avarice in appearance, an elderly man, but with all the characteristics of the young man with the infections of his young heart. Innocence (Gene Crosby), who has never loved him before. Ambition desires Innocence, but since he has the soul of Avarice, Innocence loses her respect for him. He tries to steal her away from a reception. The automobile in which they are riding hits a tree and both are rendered unconscious. Avarice finds them and Innocence returns with him. Ambition is struck by lightning.

“The Fatal Ring”
(Astra-Pathé—Seventh Episode)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

THE SIGNAL LANTERN,” seventh episode of Pathé’s mystery serial, opens with a bang and closes with a quick succession of bangs. Tense, dramatic action characterizes this chapter. As in previous chapters, the director, George P. Seitz, has given as careful attention to details in production as he has to the obviously written. With practically half of the serial run, the suspense element still holds to a marked degree. There is always something to be expected but just what it is, is held from an audience until it is flashed with telling effect. Pearl White is in evidence in every scene. Warner Oland continues to hold the attention of all by his clever work in the “heavy” role of Carslake. In each episode he never falters, unforgiving Priests and executes her part with finesse. The action is nicely evenly distributed between the studio and the out-door.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
Pearl (Pearl White) is ordered by the Priestess (Ruby Hoff- man) to recover the Violet Diamond within a fixed time at the penalty of Tom Carlton’s (Henry Gsell) death. Tom is bound and determined. Pearl is to go to the jail and learn from Carslake (Warner Oland) where the diamond is. She sees Carslake and he tells her if she will secure his release from jail he will tell her the secret. She is directed to elicite the aid of “The Spider,” a notorious gumman. She does so and he promises Carslake’s release if she gives him $50,000. She gives him half the sum and says she will return with the other half. “The Spider” gives the signal by means of a red lamp and the machinery for the liberation of Carslake is set in motion. A gang of gangmen effect his release and he is brought to “The Spider’s” den. "The Spider” makes him hand over the Violet Diamond. She leaves for the house of the Priestess, Carslake and the gang follow. She is overtaken and stopped in her race for the Priestess' house by Carslake. He gives her five seconds to deliver the diamond. She has only a few minutes to return the diamond to the Priestess before Tom pays the penalty.

“S’ Bab,” the Fixer
(Horckheimer-Mutual—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY F. G. THOMAS

Mollie McConnell, as Adelaide Porter, acquires herself creditably, particularly when endowed with plenty of this world’s goods does she emulate the imperious, stern matron.

“Bab, the Fixer,” is a picture that will be well received. It is a comedy drama of the financial fall and subsequent rise of a broker, the love of their daughter for a ranchman, and the few escapades of this daughter to outwit the mother when the latter would send her to a finishing school to break up her love affair.

Her first day at school is full of stirring incidents, for having overheard the principal warn the other “young ladies” not to mind any breach of etiquette on Bab’s part, because she was just a rough western girl, Bab decides to act the part, which she does to perfection. She incidentally initiates the other young ladies into the mysteries of “penny ante,” and when surprised by the superior, instantly turns the poker game into a “song service,” and explains that the small coins on a saucer are intended for the foreign missions. Such is “Bab, the Fixer.”

The photography throughout is good, the interiors being exceptionally well selected, and the production reflects creditably upon Director Sherwood McDonald.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS
John Porter (Leslie T. Hope), a wealthy broker of Wall street, has failed in business. After liquidation of his debts he has little left. With his wife and daughter, Bab, he buys a small ranch in the West, hoping to recoup his fortune in the cattle business.

The water on Porter’s place plays out. He drills for a flowing well. He strikes the flow but it is oil—not water. The Porters become fabulously rich by the lucky strike.

Bab is sent to a finishing school. Mrs. Porter quarrels with her husband. They separate. When Bab returns from school she learns her mother has gone to the city but her father is absent. Bab seeks her father out and learns the truth. Bab lays her plans to bring about a reconciliation between her parents and succeeds. Then she and Sterling (Arthur Shirley) are married.

“The Clean Up”
(Bluebird—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

“The CLEAN UP” speaks well for comedy drama on the screen. William Worthington has produced for Bluebird a photoplay that ranks well up in front with its best contemporaries. Humor predominates and it is presented in a clean, sparkling manner with an unusual touch of originality in every episode. The story runs along without hitch. The continuity has been done with an eye for perfection in technique. Waldemar Young wrote the story and made the adaptation. A picture is presented that will all enjoy.

Franklyn Farnum and Brownie Vernon have seldom been seen to better advantage. Mr. Farnum makes a most genial press agent. His advance work for “The Girl and the Garter” show is to be commended even though the managers did decide not to play the town he has so industriously placarded. Miss Vernon presents the same dainty picture of girlish activity that she has so often portrayed before the camera. She makes a fine heroine and another winning personality. The spirit of the occasion with all the charm and vivacity of youth.

It is not all comedy that “The Clean Up” presents. The author has, very deftly injected a bit of the melodramatic, which dovetails in with the comedy element.
The action throughout runs with a smoothness and directness, and progresses with that nice touch of the suspense element "hanging fire" to the climax. There is no "hurlesqueing" of parts. Straight comedy drama is executed throughout. Mark Fenton, as the leader of the reform movement in the town of Wilderness, gives an unusually good performance. His facial expressions spell humor. The other members of a good cast are: Mary Talbot, Martha Mattox, Claire McDowell, William Human, Clyde Benson and Albert McQuarrie.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Stuart Adams (Franklyn Farnum), advance press agent for the "Girl and the Gun," bow arrive in the home town to start things moving. He finds that the inhabitants of Weston are divided into two factions on the question of social reform. James Richards (Mark Fenton), leader of the Purity League, refuses to allow the show to give a performance. Hazel Richards (Brownie Vernon), daughter of the reform leader, is an old sweetheart of Adams. He elicits her aid and between them they do a fine bit of public work. Adams enters a protest through the columns of the local paper. The advance sale of seats is beyond all expectation of the advance agent. A meeting is held by the League and Adams challenges Richards to a debate. In the meantime he has received notice from the managers of the show that the engagement to play Weston is canceled because of lack of funds. Adams, in a sacrificial manner, offers to cancel the show's engagement in his speech before the league. Of course, Richards thinks Adams the "greatest fellow on earth" and invites him to his home. He and Hazel find no stumbling block in Dan Cupid's way after the reception.

"The Midnight Man"

(Butterfly-Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"THE MIDNIGHT MAN," of the Butterfly brand, with Jack Mulhall featured, is a melodrama. It has a good title; the story is told in an entertaining way; the cast is well chosen; the suspense element is kept at about par; the action is, in places, fast; in others, it lags—in a word, this late Butterfly offering will give satisfaction. The success of the melodrama is dependent, by a touch of the love stuff, so that the exhibitor can depend upon this picture as one that will meet the demands of an average audience. It is not one that will be well received by the audience which demands the deeper vein of drama or the high spots in dramatic action. "The Midnight Man" is an average picture, produced at a small expense. There are no "high lights" to be found. "The average," hits this production squarely.

Bess Meredith wrote the story. Tom Gibson did the continuity. Elmer Clifton directed. The author, it is apparent, was, at times, carried on by her thoughts beyond the line of logical reasoning. Parts of her story have been made very convenient as a means to an end. There did the plot move in a fashion that has also conveniently thrown in words to meet an emergency. There are sparks of originality in the story for which the author is due special praise. The idea of the patent safe lock is good and serves the purpose well. Jack Mulhall has been seen to better advantage. The part given him is a bit too "heavy" for his natural self and his experience is not such as to allow him to force matters without a show of the unnatural. He gives an average performance. Ann Kro- man does her little bit well. Al McQuarrie in the "heavy" role gives a fine characterization of the crook. Uard Lamont, Hal Wilson and Wilbur Higby are in minor parts. Wilbur Higby makes a very poor job of it.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Bob Moore (Jack Mulhall) has invented a patent safe lock. For this reason he objects to his father's (Hal Wilson) proposal to consolidate with a competitor. Bob installs his invention at the safe in his home and that night The "Eel" (Al McQuarrie), in some satisfaction, succeeds in opening the safe. Moore's competitor Harry Hardin (Wilbur Higby) and his man visit the Moore's. During the absence of the family the man tries to open the safe with Bob's lock installed. Failing, he reports to his boss. Hardin is impressed and offers Moore a better proposition if he will consolidate with him. Hardin buys a valuable necklace for his daughter Irene (Ann Kroman). Bob loves Irene. Hardin shows Bob the necklace, afterward putting it in the safe and remarking that if Bob can open the safe he will grant any reasonable wish that Bob may make. Bob, wishing to obtain the consent of Hardin to marry his daughter, returns to the house after the others had gone to bed, opens the safe and taking the necklace out hangs it to the knob on the outside. The same night The "Eel" visits of home of Hardin and appropriates the necklace. Bob who hasnet The "Eel" associates him with the disappearance of the necklace. The "Eel" soon afterward reforms on the advice of his wife and is employed by Bob to further perfect the safe lock. Then everything turns out nicely for all concerned and when Bob wins Irene the consolidation takes place.

"Down to Earth"

(Butterfly-Five Reels)

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS' latest, "Down to Earth," is one of the cleverest bits of screen comedy ever done. With the thrill element practically eliminated and "Doug's" catching smile used as a substitute there is nothing left to be desired, unless it be the slight hint of a German accent. It gives a demonstration of how to make a Broadway success—the only thing lacking to make it such is the chorug singing the "hit." It is, without a doubt, a "corker." The comedy is original. There is no attempt made to imitate others in "putting it over." The characters are true to life. The gentle but significant "slam" given the modern sanitarium and its cur- riculum gives rise to some original comedy situations which will bring out the laughs, if not by gentle persuasion then by the "ex- tractor" route. If there is any humor hidden away for emergency cases, be prepared to spend it all in laughs. "Down to Earth" is meant to be a "laugh getter" and it is going to get them.

The initial showing at the Rialto last week verifies the above statements. A few were heard to say that it is not "up to the Fairbanks standard." This is true in a way. If we are to look closely at the story and judge it from the standpoint of a dramatic critic, we will, no doubt, say that something is lacking. It isn't a masterpiece in this respect. But it must be remembered that Douglas Fairbanks' strong points do not include Shakespearian repertoire. They are comedy, thrills, smiles and personality. Perhaps the above remarks of a small minority were suggested by the absence of the Fairbanks' thrills—such as jumping off the roof of two and three story buildings or the like. There is none of this in "Down to Earth." It is a comedy which is well made, and the mark of a great man, to make his comedies as easy in his latest one. He makes his smile work a little bit more and his nimble body a little bit less and the change is more than acceptable. The next picture we see him in will probably be bubbling over with "stunts." "Doug's" idea of even distribution and variety approaches very nearly the brink of perfection. He feels as nice up his sleeve all the time and the next time always finds him prepared to furnish the unexpected. This is the impression left after seeing "Down to Earth" and stopping for a moment to picture in our minds his last feature, "Wild and Woolly." Quite a contrast is noted.

Eileen Perry is again seen opposite Mr. Fairbanks. Miss Perry was noted for her part in the Ethel the girl. As the poet would say, she is a "vision of loveliness." And she can be stubborn, too. She has to be if she is to imitate the modern girl. But Bill Gaynor knows just what tactics to employ to overcome stubbornness in a girl and he eventually convinces her that society "tops" and afternoon teas do not represent the real life. The girl comes "down to earth" and meets Bill on terra firma. The work of the supporting cast is nobly done. Gustave von Seyfortitz, Charles P. McHugh, Charles Gerrard, William H. Keith, Ruth Allen, Fred Goodwine, Florence Mayon, Herbert Standing, David Porter and Bull Montana are the members. The production was given the most detailed thought as the pictures in "location" shots. There are few interior scenes. John Emerson is to be complimented. Mr. Fairbanks conceived the idea of the story and Anita Loos did the continuity.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Bill Gaynor (Douglas Fairbanks) is an outdoor fiend. Ethel Forsythe (Eileen Perry), whom Bill would like to marry, is strong for society and not on speaking terms with the great outdoors. Bill starts on a trip through the West and Ethel remains to attend as many afternoon teas as time will permit. Ethel is all for a young society "top" (Charles Gerrard). The announcement of her marriage reaches Bill in the West. He hurries back. He learns that Ethel's health is broken down. The marriage is postponed. She goes to Dr. Jolyen's (Gustave von Seyfortitz) sanatorium to recuperate. Bill decides to go there also and see what can be done toward bringing Ethel around to her right senses. He notes conditions and buys the "good-will" of the doctor's business and starts in to bring about a much-needed reformation. Once in possession he circulates the information that "small-pox" is in the air and advises all the patients to escape with him on his yacht. He has the yacht disabled and they are cast on a "desert" island. Then Bill commences to reform his patients. After days spent on the "desert" island the patients all become very lively invalids. It is then discovered that the "desert" island is only a stone's throw from the city of Palm Beach. Bill and Ethel are, of course, united.

"The Varmint"
(Lucky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

JACK PICKFORD in "The Varmint" does his "derndest" and comes out on top. The entire family can see this adaptation of Owen Johnson's story of school life at Lawrenceville Academy, and each member can leave the theatre feeling that he or she has been touched by the human appeal that radiates from every action and every character. "The Varmint" will "go over" in any locality—small town or big town, neighborhood or that district commonly referred to as "downtown." Everyone who sees this Paramount production will find in it a certain heart interest. We have all seen or known the "little house on the hill" or it may have been the academy of "prep" school and finally the university. To whatever class our Alma Mater belongs it has housed a "varmint" as MacNoorder or a Roman. This is why "The Varmint" will appeal to all classes. It's a sure thing—book it. Its appeal strikes home.

Jack Pickford's characterization of the "Varmint" approaches pretty nearly the top rung of the ladder of perfection. He endows the part with that degree of vitality so characteristic of the "varmint" class. His characterization is not perfect, for in spots he is not sure of himself and in others he is too sure. But these slips are trifling compared to his general good work in the part. Louise Huff, who plays opposite, is not prominently casted and therefore her work does not stand out as it has in some of her other pictures. The opportunity is not given her. The bit she does, however, is well done. Theodore Roberts is a master of parts. He makes the part of the Roman near the reality as it could have been written. He is in his part without trying. The others in support do fine. They are Henry Malvern, Ben Sis, low, Milton Schumann, Maurice Kessell, Manfield Stanley, Miriam Comer and Ed Sedwick.

Owen Johnston's Lawrenceville School stories carry the same appeal that the "Skinner" stories carry. They are marked by simplicity and naturalness of the scenes. There is no pretention of the "one can draw comparisons between every scene in "The Varmint" and happenings in his or her own days at school. Nor are the comparisons odious. His stories, if "The Varmint" can be taken as an example, adapt themselves to the screen without much difficulty. Gardner Hunting had a comparatively simple task before him when he took up the continuity. Director William D. Taylor was not so fortunate. He had to impress his characters and scenes—one and all—with naturalness and simplicity, and his is no easy task. He has accomplished what he set out to do—transfer to the screen Mr. Johnston's own ideas. The camera man was "on the job."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

"The Varmint" (Jack Pickford) leaves for Lawrenceville Academy, having been expelled from a co-educational school. On the stage which is carrying him to the school he boasts to the driver of his many daring deeds. Within hearing distance sits the Roman (Theodore Roberts), Latin professor at Lawrenceville and his daughter, Louise Huff. Pickford's flagrant lies make the impres- sion he hoped for at school. The students make fun of his un-gainly attire and mimic his awkward ways. His reputation goes from bad to worse and when through his error the Lawrenceville ball team loses its big game the Varmint's standing with his fel- lows in a minus quantity. The Roman is possessed of a sense of humor and leads the Varmint along. His pupil shows ability in his Latin classes, so much so, that the Roman becomes suspicious. The newcomer has a few fist fights, from which he emerges trium-phantly, with the exception of one, and this is to be excused, and he becomes a favorite among his classmates. The two rec-ognized leaders of the school, the Tennessee Shad (Miran Comden) and the Holland MacNoorder (Clyde Beatty), are the Varmint's closest friends. They "put one over" on him but he gets back. Laura thinks pretty well of the Varmint, but he imagines that it is she who told the professor the secret sign he used in helping his classmates in the Latin translations and refuses to "make up." Before the Varmint can play in the football game the Roman says he will take a "exam." He does so and the Roman places him on his honor. The Varmint, after some hours, turns in his papers—blank. The Roman praises his honesty and passes him. From that time on the Varmint and the Roman are the best of friends.

"Mary Jane's Pa"
(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

An appealing note is sounded in this latest production from the Vitagraph Studios which together with good acting, will place it in rank with "above-the-average" features. Were it not for the fact that the direction of William P. S. Earle, is notice-ably faulty, "Mary Jane's Pa" would be a quite excellent film. Mr. Earle had no easy task before him when he com- menced work on this production. There is the main plot and many counterplots all of which have a particular bearing upon the story as a whole. No one of the counterplots could have been dispensed with and still have the story told as it was meant to be told and as it should be told, because in these sideinterests to the main plot, lies the dominant appealing element of a very human subject. The director, apparently, considered this phase of his production without the proper application, with the result that smoothness in the story is lacking. With this exception, there is no reason why Vitagraph's production shouldn't be received with open arms by the average home lover. It is particularly ac- ceptable to the class of theatres which caters to the family patronage. To those exhibitors who look to lovers of heavy drama or the melodrama, this offering is not to be recommended. Edith Ellis, the author, has written an excellent story, full of human interest. She has given the plot an original twist, here and there without her work leaving the impression that action is forced. Marc MacDermott gives an excellent characterization of Hiram Perkins. He lives the part and his acting goes a good way toward removing the rough edges evident in direction. The errors of the director are forgotten in the acting of Mr. MacDermott. Mildred Manning and Lucille (Clyde Ayres) are appealing. If "Mary Jane's Pa" is not a perfect film, it is because Mary Jane (Mary Perkins) is not a perfect character. Her story is told in scenes on a small-town girl of tender years. Portia having worked hard all the years that intervened between the disappearance of Hiram and his return, is not easily reconciled. She wishes to keep the identity of Hiram from his daughters for they have been lead to believe that their father would never return. Hiram is hired as the "maid-of-all-work." The neighbors begin to talk. Scandal is in the air. Rome Preston (Emmet King), a successful at-torney, proposes to Portia but she puts him off. Preston is nomi-nated for a public office and has for his opponent, Joel Skinner (Edward Ellis), the rich lawyer. Lucille (Clyde Ayres) who is rabidly in love with Joel Skinner. Portia comes out for Preston in the columns of her paper. Skinner utilizes the scandal about Hiram's presence at the Perkins' home and a note which he had obtained telling of the intended elopement of Portia's elder daughter, Lucille. Portia obtains an affidavit exposing Skinner's past. The story comes out in her newspaper and Skinner organizes a mob and wrecks the printing press. Hiram shows his worth during the riot and Portia tells that Hiram is her husband.

"Pay Me!"
(Jewel Productions, Inc.—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"PAY ME!" is a strong, virile drama. It smacks of the melo-dramatic in its very scene. There is inaction in every line. The exhibitor can book this feature without hesitancy. His patrons will be satisfied—that is—if they be of the class that likes melodrama. There is not much of the "love stuff." There are references made to the love element, but most of it is in opposition to the soft, ripping, romantic sort we find in most pictures.
The hero, of course, is rewarded with the love of the girl, but this seems to be only incidental to a most gripping climax.

The story in the initial reels is told with a bit too much uncertainty. The author has taken some time to arrive at the point where the intentions of his plot and characters are clear, but once started he keeps the action moving with a jump and his plot clarified. This failure to come out frankly with the identity of his characters and the purpose of their actions has lessened his story's strength.

The picture should be considered as a whole. If it be, there is a powerful attraction for any exhibitor. There is a certain strength in character and action that hits home. The suspense is pretty well kept excepting as noted in first reels. Here it is altogether too uncertain. There is too much suspense. The climax reached is well conceived and "put over" with a punch.
The fight scene has been well staged. Director Joseph De Grasse might have shown the fistic encounter at shorter range. It was one that he needn't be ashamed of staging. Of course to the participants are due most of the credit. They put "pep" back of their blows and display earnestness.

Dorothy Phillips, who is featured, doesn't get much opportunity to impress her audience that she is really the star. As a matter of fact, Lou Chaney, William Stowell or Evelyn Selby vie with her for honors. These do unusually good work in character parts.
Miss Phillips is excellent, but her part has not been made force-able by the author. She is deserving of much credit for making a rather unimportant featured role so impressive. She does not appear until somewhere in the third reel.

Tom Wilson, William Clifford, Clare Du Bray are all convincing. Director Joseph De Grasse has given it a good production.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The story tells of man's passions. Joe Lawson, the killer (Lou Chaney), murders that he might win the one he loves. He accidentally shoots the wife of a friend. The baby of this woman grows to womanhood. Marta (Dorothy Phillips) is her name.
She is found in after years in a dance hall in the West, conducted by the "Killer" and Hilda Hendricks (Evelyn Selby), the girl whose love took him from his wife. Bill, the Boss (William Stowell), comes into town and visits the dance hall. He meets Marta (F. Brown) is the general overseer of the dance hall. He insults Marta and Bill interferes. There is a fight. Bill wins. A stranger comes into the dance hall and is recognized by Hilda. The stranger is told that Marta is his daughter. He attacks Lawson and in the fight that follows, Lawson is seriously injured. One by death blow is told by the stranger that Bill, the Boss, is his Lawson's son. Before Law-sen dies he expresses the wish that Bill may never know who is father is. His wish is granted.

"The Italian Battle Front"—War Films
(U. S. Rights Controlled by Wm. Moore Patch—Nine Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"THE ITALIAN BATTLEFRONT" pictures were taken under the supervision of the General Staff, Italian Army.
A most vivid picture of the hardships which the Italian troops undergo in crossing the Alps, is given. Far above the clouds, troops are shown, hauling big guns up steep mountain ascents.
Heavy guns weighing thousands of pounds are dragged up the mountain sides by hundreds of soldiers. The feats they accomplish seem almost impossible. This is the main reason why these pictures can be described as wonderful. They are wonderful in every sense of the word.

The exhibit is shown in three acts or parts. The first revealing the activities of the Italian troops high in the Alps. The second and third parts give intimate views of the commanding officers, the big guns, the work of the ambulance corps and Red Cross. The battle ground is swept by the camera and the terrrible ravages of war are revealed. The trenches are shown and troops in the first line.

These pictures should be seen by every man, woman and child.
They reveal feats of strength and endurance in the Italian soldier which seem miraculous. There is no obstacle too great. Their efforts are inspiring and they have accomplished wonders.

WARNING

To the Managers and Proprietors of Motion Picture Theatres:

The United States District Court, in a suit brought by the undersigned, J. HARTLEY MANNERS, against the Triangle Film Corporation and Rialto Theatre Corporation, after an extended argument and careful consideration, granted the following injunction:

"The President of the United States, to Triangle Film Corporation and Rialto Theatre Corporation, their and each of their servants, agents, employees, attorneys and representatives, GREETING:

WHEREAS it has been represented to us in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, that J. Hartley Manners is the sole and exclusive owner of the title 'HAPPINESS,' as the title of a dramatic composition and that you, the said Triangle Film Corporation and Rialto Theatre Corporation have infringed the rights of the aforesaid J. Hartley Manners, in and to the said title
'HAPPINESS.'

NOW, THEREFORE, You, the said Triangle Film Corporation, and Rialto Theatre Corporation and each of you, your servants, agents, employees, attorneys, and representatives, each and all are strictly commanded and enjoined under pains and penalties which may fall upon you and each of you, in case of disobedience, that you forthwith and until further order, judgment and decree of this court, and during the pendency of the above entitled action, desist from using the title 'HAPPINESS' as the title of any play or photoplay or motion picture.

WITNESS the HON. LEARNED HAND, Judge of the United States District Court, for the Southern District of New York, this 26th day of June, 1917, in the 141st year of the independence of the United States of America.

(SEAL)

Any manager or proprietor of a motion picture theatre, acting under a license from the Triangle Film Corporation, who advertises any photoplay under the title of "HAPPINESS" is guilty of a contempt of court, and the undersigned will, through his counsel, apply to the United States District Court, to punish him accordingly.

This does not apply to advertising the title "SEEKING HAPPINESS."

DAVID GERBER, Counsel.

Attest: Alex. Gilchrist, Jr., Clerk.

Goldwyn Breaks Record of Advance Booking

Under Its Slogan "See First, Then Contract" It Has First Run Customers in Every Important City, Many of Them Leaders

Almost on the eve of beginning to release its productions, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, after a careful survey, finds that it has under contract a larger volume of business than was ever before booked in advance of a first release in the history of the industry.

Last February Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, determined to market the Goldwyn pictures under a system that comprised the following ideas:

That no exhibitor would be asked to take the word of Goldwyn's owners with regard to Goldwyn pictures.

That Goldwyn would make not less than twelve finished productions in advance of its first release on September 9, 1917.

That Goldwyn always would keep from six to eight months ahead of its releases, thereby eliminating the possibility of over-marketing any hastily made pictures.

And above all else, that all Goldwyn pictures would be sold only after submitting them for examination and inspection to the men who were being solicited to rent them.

Ten months of work has resulted in the completion of nine Goldwyn productions of extreme excellence and quality—productions that through advance showings have received the indorsement of the ablest and most careful critics in the larger American cities. A few of these pictures are under way, which means that the company has lived up to its promises of last winter.

Goldwyn takes pride in the fact that its first-run customers throughout the country include many of the oldest and most successful exhibitors in the industry, among them being:

New York: Michael H. Mark's Strand.
Chicago: Jones, Linnick & Schaefer's Colonial and other theatres, and the entire chain operated by the Ashbrook Bros.
Philadelphia: Stanley V. Mastbaum's Stanley, and backed up by the entire chain of Mastbaum houses.
Boston: The Boston, managed by R. G. Larsen and owned by the Keith interests.

Emily Stevens Delays Her Tour and Will Star for Metro

An agreement has been reached between Metro Pictures Corporation and the Oliver Morosco forces whereby Emily Stevens, star of both screen and stage, will postpone her annual New York engagement and tour of the country in a stage production, until early in 1918, to appear in feature pictures for Metro.

Miss Stevens will for the next six months play only in special productions at Metro's Studio, under the supervision of Maxwell Karger. An extension of Miss Stevens' contract with the Metro Pictures Corporation has been effected proportionate to the high figure mentioned in the body of the document.

Last season Miss Stevens was seen on Broadway as the star of John Galsworthy's play, "The Fugitive."

Miss Stevens will begin work at once for Metro, with George D. Baker as her director, in a seven-act feature adapted by Mary Murillo, from a story by Charles A. Logue. The only item at present divulged in connection with the story is that it is a "crook" play.

Miss Stevens has just completed her work in "Sleeping Memory," a seven-act screen adaptation of E. Phillips Oppen-heim's novel of the same name, adapted by Albert Shelby Le Vino and directed by George D. Baker. In this production the star takes the part of Eleanor Styles Marion, upon whom a scientific experiment is performed, robbing her of memory and knowledge of identity.

Distribution Plan of "K" Is Undecided

An announcement was recently made in the trade press to the effect that Lois Weber would soon begin the film production of Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel.

Since starting work upon the book, Lois Weber is undecided whether to market "K" as an independent feature or as one of the Lois Weber Productions, as originally announced.

Although "K" will be issued as one of the regular Lois Weber productions, the exact plan for marketing this big feature has not yet been decided upon. "K" is rapidly nearing completion.

Previous announcements regarding its distribution were given out somewhat prematurely, and will be subject to such change as Lois Weber may consider most desirable.

Good Business Reported by Rosetwig

Rosetwig Features Films, 218 West Forty-second street, New York City, which have the rights for New York to "Corrupt," "The Wrong Road," and "The Test of Womanhood," report excellent bookings throughout the state.

A Ricci, of the company, is encouraged by present conditions to look forward to excellent business in the Autumn.

"Redemption" in Baltimore

The Auditorium, one of Baltimore's largest theatres which runs regular stock throughout the winter, will open on August 13 with "Redemption," Evelyn Nesbit's picture. It is contemplated by the management to present several big picture productions before going into regular stock for the winter.

J. Warren Kerrigan Falls from Horse; Breaks Leg

J. Warren Kerrigan, the star of the J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporation, had his leg broken Friday evening by the fall of a horse he was riding near Santa Barbara.

Mr. Kerrigan had just finished his second part in a play, Frederic Chapin's "Turn of a Card," and had gone out into the country about Santa Barbara in the cool of the evening for a ride with some members of his company. While crossing some open country about ten miles from the city the horse stepped in a gopher hole and went down so suddenly that his rider was caught unawares.

The members of Mr. Kerrigan's company who were riding with him caught his horse and lifted him into his saddle. The party rode back into the city, Mr. Kerrigan suffering intense pain from the broken bone. At the Cottage Hospital the physicians said that the injury was a simple fracture and that Mr. Kerrigan would be confined to his bed for five to six weeks.

The accident to Mr. Kerrigan will not result in an interference of more than two weeks' time in the schedule of his productions. His third photoplay is to be a very important one, requiring unusually elaborate preparations, and for this reason Mr. Kerrigan had contemplated taking a month's vacation following the finish of "Turn of a Card" to give his staff time for this preliminary work.

"God's Law" and "People" from Elmont

"God's Law," in six reels, and "The People Against John Doe," which on their appearance were well received, are now handled by the Elmont Feature Film Company, 1600 Broadway, New York City.

All communications concerning these subjects should be sent to the Elmont Company.

Reduce Your Operating Cost and Get More Uniform Lighting by equipping your present carbon-arc machine with the Scheck Universal Adapter for the New Mazda Projector Lamps.

YOU will want to adopt this new, modern idea because it will make your theatre the most popular in town.

Projection with the new Scheck Universal Adapter and Mazda Projector Lamps has proven a success in the theatres where used on test during the past two years.

Our first announcement received the attention and interest of hundreds of progressive exhibitors.

YOUR theatre can be equipped with the Scheck Universal Adapter without interrupting your program schedule, and at a cost no greater than the saving in bills for electric current effected by the new equipment during the first year.

So at no extra cost you will be able to get better projection on the screen, eliminate "flicker" and eye strain, and therefore get the crowds in your theatre.

This is a progressive proposition for progressive exhibitors. Write for the facts, TODAY!

THE ARGUS LAMP AND APPLIANCE CO.

The Music Status

The Motion Picture Theatre as an advertising medium for popular songs is now a thing of the past or will be before the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers get through carrying out the decision of the Supreme Court.

The many inquiries which we receive lead us to believe that the activity of tax collecting has begun in earnest. Some of our largest theatres have submitted, whereas the majority have decided that there is more to be gained by not falling in line.

One thing is certain and that is that the publishers who have lined up in this fight will undoubtedly regret their stand when they find the effect which their action has had on their total sales to the public. The gross revenue may seem large, but after the charges for the tax collection have been added to the loss through falling off of counter sales the net will show up as but a fraction of the anticipated revenue.

The theatre end of the industry today will not stand much more burden. It has just about all that the traffic will bear. The film rental has gone up, the cost of theatre employees has increased, yet the increase in admission fees has not kept abreast of the rest. Now comes the music tax as an added inducement for men with money to undertake the exhibiting of pictures.

There is only one answer to the whole thing and that is a National Exhibitors' Association which is united and can fight for its rights inside and outside the industry. Not the affiliations of the past, but a real organization which is supported by the exhibitors with real money behind it, capable of taking care of any emergency, such as this present music trouble, advance deposits, credit rating, etc.

As this association has not developed yet, each exhibitor must, as an individual, fight his own battles, merely taking council with those immediately about him or from those without whose ideas he has access to.

In this particular case the only reason for playing this copyrighted music is because it is more or less a fad and is often not worth playing at all. The old standard classical music by Schubert, Wagner, Chopin, Beethoven and others is far superior, and among these compositions are numerous selections which will fit any scene ever screened. Then, too, this is real music written by people who in their day forgot more about music than most of the "taxing authors" ever knew.

If the tax is logical and just, why do some of our largest publishers, such as A. G. Schirmer, Carl Fischer and others stay outside the ranks of the society? Is it because they want to help the exhibitor or because they are making too much money now? Offhand I should say neither was true. They are not philanthropists. They want all they can get of the coin of the realm and don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

This would seem to bear out the theory that perhaps the best way for the far sighted publisher to make more money is to let the picture theatre give them all the free publicity they can possibly get, on the theory that it popularizes the music, makes sales to the patrons. If one theatre helps sell six sheets of music per day, is the profit greater or less than the tax revenue derived from that house as a result of its using that same piece of music? The theatre should logically demand a percentage of the profit from the sales of the sheet music which it helps promote.

Picture music today is improving, but now that much of the more recent publications have forced themselves into the background it should still make greater strides for the classics and the product of several large publishers combined are of such quantity that the choice of good tax-free music is almost unlimited.

E. K. Gillett.
"Gold Button" for Pastre

E DWARD KLINE, Lorain, Ohio, writes: "I was just about to mail you a letter when I received a letter from "brother" Gillett, and some labels. My purpose in writing was to make a suggestion I had thought of for some time. Why not have small rubber stamps made bearing the emblem of the A. M. F. L., and the following words: NO INSPECTION NEEDED. Returned by Name. Date. These stamps could be made small enough so that when a piece of paper was stamped it would just fit under the reel band string. The stamp and ink pad could be sold at cost as the League stated it needed no financial support. I was, I say, just about to mail the foregoing to you when I read in the News about the labels and at the same time received mine. They strike me as the thing, and I hope will do a great amount of good to the "NEXT" operator. Another thing: I have not received my membership card and would like same as soon as possible. (See my reply to Brother Alles—En.). I think Brother Pastre is the only member that should have a "Gold" button. Hoping for the success of you, yours and the League, I will close with best wishes."

In REPLY: Your letter doesn't need much replying to, does it? The points you had in mind have already been worked out, and the work of the League is under way. One thing I would like to suggest, however, is this: Quite a number of the brothers have written that Brother Pastre should receive some recognition for his "brain storm" which evolved the A. M. F. L., and your suggestion that he should be the only one to have a gold button is, I think, a good one, and why not each and every member of the League have a finger in the pie? This can be accomplished if each member will send in one cent. The pennies to be placed aside until a sufficient amount has been received with which to have the button made. I am sure Pastre would more than appreciate this little token, coming as it will from the members of a progressive and growing league of which he was the instigator. If this suggestion meets with the approval of the members they can begin sending in the pennies at once. Remember, no more than ONE CENT is wanted from the members. When the fund has sufficient money with which to purchase the button, a testimonial letter containing the names of all subscribers to the fund will be sent to Brother Pastre, which I feel confident he will treasure above riches.

The Roll of Honor follows:
1. E. P. Barber, Fort Smith, Arkansas.
5. James E. Murray, Elizabeth, New Jersey.
12. H. V. Thielleing, Covington, Kentucky.

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If they will fill out the blank and mail to me, button and membership card will be forwarded to them.

Member's Name.........................................................
Home Address..........................................................
Name of theatre where employed..................................
Address of theatre and name of manager..........................

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but is for those who have neglected doing so, many of whom have merely given their name and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office employees to deliver the letters addressed to them. Now let us all get together and raise our "Army of 1000," and show that we are sincere in our efforts to better conditions in general.

Membership Cards Are Now Ready

THE card here illustrated is one of the membership cards of the National Anti-Misframe League which have just been delivered by the printer, and are now being sent to all members who have registered in the "Boys of Progress" League. The card which has an orange background is printed in black, with white scroll decorations. To Brother John C. Pastre, Gary, Indiana, the originator of the idea, belongs the honor of holding card No. 1.

We hope the membership of the league will rapidly increase, and that the mark which has been set by Brother Pastre, a thousand members, will soon be attained.

National Anti-Misframe League

Pledge

A s a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me through punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.
Slackers—War—Draft—A. M. F. L.

HOMER KESTERSON, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., writes: "I am sorry to say that I have been a "slacker" to the Anti-Misframe League, but now you can place my name on the Roll of Honor for I am willing to help fight for the betterment of the industry. Let us keep up the good work and go after the slackers, even if we have to "draft" them. Then we will win our "war" against the enemy of costliness and incidentally better projects. I notice in last week's issue of the News that one of our brothers, Fred Alles of Local 325, had joined the League, and as I am a member of Local 325 I did not want Brother Alles to think he was alone in the fight, so please make me a member of the League."

In reply: As you do not claim "exemption," you will see by looking over the Roll of Honor that you have been accepted as a member of the "National Army" of Anti-Misframe Leaguers. Now, if you are sincere in your desire to help me keep up the good work, I will appoint you "recruiting officer" for Wilkes-Barre, and it shall be your duty to "go after" the slackers, and enroll them all under the banner of the A. M. F. L. I await your further report.

Asylum Installs Simplex

THE Manhattan State Hospital on Ward's Island, N. Y., which houses over five thousand of the state's insane, have installed a Simplex Projector which will be used every Thursday evening in that establishment. Dr. M. B. Heyman, the superintendent, recently gave an exhibition at which two thousand patients were in attendance.

Installations of this kind call attention to the splendid work that the motion picture is doing among the unfortunate and of which the public hears so little.

Damage to Be Paid For

W AUSAU, Ind., writes: "There are certain film exchanges who are making the attempt to have the operator pay for damaged film and I would like to say that before this is done they—the film exchange—should first see that the films are sent out in perfect mechanical condition. There is no justice in the exchange charging the operator for damage to film where the said operator spends from one to three hours looking over his show and putting it into condition that will allow him to give a creditable performance and for which he received no extra pay. And furthermore, I claim that this work is NOT part of the operator's duties but is the duty of the so-called inspector of the film exchange. To be consistent if the exchanges are going to charge for damaged film, then the operator should charge the exchange for his time and labor in looking over and repairing film. The theatre manager refuses to pay for this work, and rightly so; they pay an exhorbitant price to the exchange for "service" and are entitled to receive proper service in return. For instance, the other day I received a film that was practically first run, and no less than seventeen patches pulled apart while the film was running through the machine. Is it any wonder operators get sore? Misframes, bad patches, mismatched spool holes and other complaints too numerous to mention are the rule and not the exception, and with it all who is the sufferer? The operator, of course. Now I want to get in on your Anti-Misframe League, and would suggest that the exchanges should reverse the order of things that has so long prevailed, and instead of the operator putting the film in condition for the exchange, let the exchange put the film in condition for the operator."

Conference—All of the above is, to a certain extent, true, but with the formation of the League we have noticed an improvement, and when we say improvement, we mean that fewer complaints are being received. A number of exchanges have promised their cooperation, and have endeavored to reduce the number of complaints to a minimum by having an exchange inspector on the premises. The Simplex Inspection has for a long time been a joke, and when one realizes that in most exchanges the films are examined and inspected (?) by girls who in many instances have never even seen a projector, and know nothing of its operation, the joke is more pointed. We may be accused of ridiculism, but we believe that by the expenditure of a little more money, enough to pay a competent and experienced operator whose duties would be to supervise the inspection and be personally responsible for every reel of film that went out there would be less cause for complaint. This is something for local unions to take up with the various film exchange managers. Show them where they can SAVE both money and film by paying a union operator to act in the capacity of supervisor, for taking it all in all, the operator is the only one who KNOWS whether a film is in proper condition to run or not. We do not believe there will be many denials, but we have reason to believe the local conciliators to see that they punish the offender and replace him with one who is absolutely honest and one who can be depended upon to perform his duties conscientiously. Girls cannot and will not do this work. As well put them to work as operators as to permit them to perform this labor upon which so important a matter as film projection rests. A pay cheaper is a recommendation, and unless insufficient wages are paid to make it possible for the employment of OPERATORS for this class of work, damage, destruction and monetary loss will continue and all identified with the industry will suffer.

Another Crank—On Inspection

H ARRY E. BAKER, Ponca City, Okla., writes an interesting letter, as follows: "My real enjoyment is in reading the projection department of the News, of which I have been a reader for some time, and I am sure if an operator will read and digest the articles contained therein, he will find it a great help to him, no matter whether he owns an old or a new crank. (See good an operating crank) on inspection and every one of my films receive INSPECTION before they are shown. I have always done this and will continue to do so as long as I am operating a picture machine, as I believe that it is easier for me to spend an hour or so in going over the film than to have mistakes made. It takes much more time and labor back to rework the performance. I am sending in my name to become enrolled in the League, and let me say right here, my heart goes out to the man who proposed this League, as I think it is bound to do some good among operators. May the originator of the League live long and enjoy seeing the reward of his endeavor. (So we all of us do)."

I must express that also, too, was one of those who formerly used a 'meal ticket' punch, but I have been convinced and the old punch lies in the trash can, never again to be in evidence in my operating room. I am working in Ponca City, Okla., at present, but my home is in Oklahoma City, where I am a charter member of Local 380 and of which local I was also secretary up to the time I left for this city. I am working for a real fine manager, Frank R. Powell, Jr., of the Mission Theatre. I GET WHAT (REPAIRS) I WANT WHEN I WANT THEM, just for the asking. My equipment consists of a Fairbanks-Morse 12-h.p. gas engine, driving a Fairbanks-Morse 75½-k.w. generator, which furnishes "juice" for the house lighting as well as the area. Machines are two Powers' 6 B's, pulling 45 amperes on a 90-foot throw, no drop, picture 12 feet, using half-size Gundlach lenses, and I get SOME picture. Kindly enroll my name in the League and send me all information and literature, if any, regarding it. And here's hoping real deep in my heart that every operator who takes the pledge will take it to heart as he would an obligation in his union or fraternal society, and keep it in mind so that every time he unlocks his operating room it will come to refresh his memory. Let us all keep this pledge and put projection on a higher standard than ever and by so doing make our work a pleasure for ourselves and others so all can say, "Well done thou good and faithful servant!" Projectionally yours.

Answers First let me say that I appreciate your kind words of commendation on my humble efforts to conduct the Projection Department of the News. I can not, however, hope to conduct as a good department as I would like to see unless I have the cooperation of those who are of themselves, and who, myself, have spent years in "twisting the crank." I heartily endorse your remark about Pastor Frese, and am glad to know also that you have become "converted." It might not be remiss to say that I too was a punch wielder, but while never as destructive as some operators appear to be, from samples of film which is sent for my inspection, I am thoroughly convinced of that. Not only by saying that, but by putting it in hereafter. There are a few real managers, and I am glad to learn that you are working for one of them. Insofar as operating equipment be concerned you are particularly fortunate and I can see no good reason why you should not obtain some picture. Your local is, to my mind, the loser by your migration, for your letter speaks for itself, and there are not many local secretaries who can write a letter so well worded. You will see, by looking over the Roll of Honor that your name has been entered thereon, and there is no literature or other information except which appears on the first page of the Accessory News section by E. K. Gillett, and that which appears in the department conducted by yours truly.

An attractive exterior will draw strangers into your theatre, but clear pictures are necessary to bring them back a second time.

An absolutely essential factor in securing clear and sharply defined pictures is a lens of the finest quality.

You can purchase a Marlux lens for a sum you would spend without a moment’s hesitation upon some detail of exterior decoration.

If you are in the picture business to make money get a Marlux lens at once, and so make certain that no other theatre is showing clearer pictures.

Optical Glass

As it is well known that the extent to which a ray of light is refracted by a lens or prism differs for various kinds of glass, and also that the resultant color dispersion varies with the wave-length of the incident light; it will be readily appreciated that in determining the optical constants of a specimen of glass, we must take into consideration other regions of the spectrum besides the D line, in order to secure comprehensive data concerning the glass.

Since the optical constants of glass are computed from the refractive indices, it is apparent, therefore, that we must determine the indices for light of various known colors, these determinations of a being carried out in the same manner as is practised in obtaining the index for D.

Following the fashion of Frauenhofer, Abbe determined the refractive index of all optical glasses at five different points in the solar spectrum, corresponding to the spectrum lines: A', C, D, F, G'.

His reason for selecting these lines was that light of a sufficiently monochromatic nature can be readily obtained corresponding to any of these five spectral lines. For instance the red line A' can be secured from the spectrum of Potassium, while the D line, as has been shown, is secured from the Sodium flame. The three other lines are to be found in the spectrum of Hydrogen, and are easily produced, through the medium of a Plucker tube, filled with Hydrogen gas and operated from an induction coil.

In achromatising photographic objectives the index of the glass used is sometimes also determined for the Mercury line 4046, in the violet, and this may be obtained from the spectrum of the mercury vapor tube.

Using these approximately homogeneous light sources before the slit of the spectrometer, the refractive indices (ν) are determined for the specified spectral lines, after which the dispersive properties of the glass under examination have next to be computed.

The "partial dispersions" of the glass are first reckoned for the different regions of the spectrum, which merely consists of determining the difference between the indices for the several lines. Thus the dispersion of a given glass between the C and D lines would be written C-D, and in a table of glass constants the dispersions in various regions of the spectrum would be denoted under the headings C-D, C-F, and F-G'. The A' line is seldom taken into account in tabulating glass constants, since it is located so far in the red that it plays no part in the achromatising of most varieties of optical instruments.

Another constant, always determined for optical glass, is that known as the "mean dispersion." This is the dispersion of a given glass between the C and F lines (the spectral region of greatest visual brightness), and is expressed in tables of glass constants by C-F, or sometimes by the symbol Δν.

There is still another glass constant to be determined, which is of great importance to the maker of telescopic and photographic objectives, or, in fact, any kind of objective which requires to be achromatised. This constant has been termed by the late Silvanus P. Thompson* the "achromatic refractionity" of a given glass. This constant expresses the ratio of the mean refractivity of a glass to its mean dispersion, and no harm can result if we go into detail a bit to make clear the manner in which the achromatic refractionity is determined.

As we have seen, the index which is always stated for any optical glass is the index for the Sodium, or D line, and the index for D is denoted by the symbol νD. The effective refracting power of a glass, however, is the difference between its refractive index and that of air (the latter being taken as unity). Expressed in symbols this is νD - 1, which represents the refractivity of the glass. According to our previous statement the "achromatic refractivity" is the ratio of the mean refractivity of a given glass to its mean dispersion, so having regard for what has gone before we can now show that the achromatic refractivity of a glass is expressed in symbols by:

\[ \frac{\nu - 1}{\nu D - 1} \]

For the sake of brevity the above constant is frequently denoted in optical formulae, or in glass catalogs, by the Greek letter ρ. The use of this latter symbol to denote the achromatic refractivity of a given variety of glass, or, in other words, its refractive power for a given amount of dispersion, is quite extensive in modern optical literature, so it should be borne in mind that the symbol ρ is in every instance synonymous with the more complex expressions given above for this same constant.

In the case of photographic achromatism the achromatic refractivity should not be reckoned from the mean dispersion C-F, but, as Silvanus Thompson (loc.cit.) points out, the dispersion taken into account should be that from the D line to the G' line. This would give us as the achromatic refractivity for photographic correction:

\[ \frac{\nu - 1}{\nu D - \nu G'} \]

As a practical illustration of how the properties of various sorts of glass are tabulated (in terms of their optical constants) in a glass maker's catalog, we set forth in the following the table data on a pair of modern optical glasses.

In studying the nature and characteristics of optical glass it becomes apparent that optical glass is divided, roughly speaking, into two main varieties, e. g., Crown glass and Flint glass. Crown glasses are generally considered as being those containing lime-silicate, but are more broadly described as being those which have a high ρ value, while Flints are taken to be glasses containing lead and characterized by a high index of refraction and a low value for ρ. The production of Crowns and Flints in which the relationship between index and dispersion is considerably different from that of the conventional types has made possible great improvements in photographic achromatisation, and the nature and effect of these improved glasses will be more intimately considered at a later stage of this article.

As a measure of relief from the essentially technical nature of the foregoing paragraphs we will next turn to the description of the interesting process of optical glass manufacture, and while it may, at first glance, appear somewhat inconsistent to treat of the use of optical glass before discussing its preparation; it will subsequently become apparent that this method of procedure makes for a better understanding of that which follows.

Considered chemically, glass may be said to be produced by the fusion at high temperature of silica and an alkaline earth with one or more basic substances, of which one must be an alkaline metal. Reduced to its simplest terms, the materials which are required for the manufacture of glass are: (1) silica, as the acid element; (2) soda or potash as the alkaline base; (3) lime and lead oxides as the alkaline earths. The silica employed in glass manufacture is usually sand of special quality; the lime is in the form of chalk or marble, free from iron compounds; while the soda or potash content of glass is generally in the form of the sulphates or carbonates of those elements. In the case of flint glass lead is a requisite ingredient and this is usually employed in the form of red lead. It has been found that the quality of optical glass is improved by the addition of borax to the melting, so borax is also included in most formulas for optical glasses. At a later stage we shall consider more narrowly the actual formulas from which crown and flint glass may be produced.

We have now to consider the actual production, or melting, of optical glass, which is a difficult and highly specialized, although thoroughly commercial undertaking.

First comes the preparation of the pots in which the various ingredients are fused during the glass-making process. While some common varieties of glass may be made in an open topped pot, the refined nature of optical glass prohibits the use of any such vessel in its manufacture, so an enclosed pot of the type shown at a, Fig. 3, is employed. As the drawing shows, this pot is entirely enclosed, with the exception of a dome-shaped mouth at one side. When in place in the melting furnace only the mouths of these pots protrude through the furnace wall, and it is through these openings or mouthpieces that the glass ingredients are introduced.

Great care is necessary in the making of these pots in order that they may not contaminate the melted glass, and in order that they may also withstand the terrific heat of the melting operation without cracking. The pots are prepared from refined clay of special quality, and are slowly built up, bit by bit, eight weeks or upwards being commonly consumed in the making of a single pot. After completion they are dried at regulated temperatures for six to eight months, and when about to be used they are first placed in a special kiln and raised to a red heat. After a week's heating they are quickly transferred to the glass furnace, which latter has previously been raised to the same temperature as that of the pot.

A few words in description of a melting furnace will not be amiss here. In the production of optical glass each pot is placed in an individual furnace. This furnace may be in the form of a simple chimney or stack, but is frequently a dome-shaped kiln, such as is shown in the diagram b, Fig. 3. In the center of the melting furnace is a large block, made of fire-clay, upon which the pot is placed, and on either side of this block are deep grates in which the fire is kindled. The front of these glass furnaces is of temporary nature, being torn down each time a pot is withdrawn from the furnace at the conclusion of a melting.

When, now, the heated melting pot is introduced into the furnace, preparatory to a melting, the front of the furnace is quickly built up with firebricks and clay, leaving nothing but the mouth of the pot projecting from the furnace front, as shown at b, Fig. 3, where P is the pot.

When the pot has come to a bright red heat, within the furnace, a quantity of glass fragments (known as cullet), of the kind of glass about to be made, is introduced into the pot through its mouthpiece. When these glass fragments have become melted the interior of the pot is thereby glazed, and the remaining ingredients are placed in the pot. When the contents of the pot have all melted the molten mass is full of bubbles, and the furnace is now raised to high temperature to drive off these bubbles. A much greater heat is required to free a melting of Crown glass from bubbles than is the case with Flint glass. At various times, following the first forty-eight hours of melting, samples of the glass are taken from the top of the pot with an iron rod, and when molten glass is free from bubbles stir.

In the early attempts at optical glass production the molten glass was stirred with a stick, with the result that the finished glass always contained black specks due to the charring of the stick by the intense heat of the molten material. A great advance has been made in the technique of glass manufacture when Guinan proposed to stir the melted glass with a stirrer made of fire-clay similar to that used in making the melting pot.

To return to the stirring operation as practised in modern optical glass manufacture, the stirrer consists of a cylinder of fire-clay having a ring or flange at its top. There is also a square hole in the center of this clay stirrer whereby it is joined to a long iron stirring rod. After being heated red-hot, the clay stirrer, attached to its iron rod, is now introduced into the pot of molten glass as shown in b, Fig. 3, where S is the stirrer and R is the stirring-rod, the latter, of course, protruding outside the mouth of the pot. As some more bubbles are produced in the contents of the pot by the introduction of the stirrer, the temperature of the furnace is again raised for a time, to drive off these bubbles, after which the stirring of the glass is commenced.

Like all other manipulations connected with the production of optical glass, the stirring operation must be conducted with great care. By means of the long iron handle the stirrer is moved around the molten glass with a circular motion of great care being exercised that the stirrer does not touch the sides of the melting pot. After numerous stirrings and reheating, during which latter intervals the mouth of the pot is of course closed, the glass becomes exceedingly stiff and difficult to stir, whereupon the stirring rod is pressed from the clay stirrer and the temporary front of the furnace is torn down. The pot with its molten contents is now drawn out into the open air to cool down, and the pot after having undergone its fiery ordeal usually cracks in many places at this stage of the proceedings.

As soon as the surface of the molten mass has cooled to the extent of becoming superficially hard, the pot, and its contents are placed in a slightly heated kiln and allowed to cool for several days. When finally cold it is usually found that the lump of glass has cracked into many pieces, which are now carefully examined, and the purest fragments isolated. These perfect pieces of glass are moulded into blocks and slabs, and after being surfaced and further examined for defects, the best of these is put through the so-called "fine annealing" process. This process, which was originated by Abbe and Schott, has for its purpose the elimination of any non-uniformity or internal strain in the glass (due to uneven cooling), and consists, briefly, of cooling the highly heated glass slabs, by very gradual stages between the temperatures of 400° and 200° C. The rate of cooling in the fine annealing process, is so gradual, and so perfectly regulated, that the decrease in temperature does not amount to more than 8° or 10° in each succeeding twenty-four hours throughout the course of the annealing.

Internal strain causes the refractive index to vary in different parts of a piece of glass, and may also set up double refraction within the glass. Such glass could not be employed in the production of good optical instruments, so it is readily apparent that the fine annealing process is a factor in the preparation of high-grade optical glass.

Initial Installation of Sheek Adapter

H. CUDMORE, of Cleveland, Ohio, well known in electrical circles through his connection with the Mazda lamp industries and recently made general manager of the Argus Lamp and Supply Company of Cleveland, will be in New York this week to personally superintend the installation, in several of the larger motion picture theatres in the city, of the new Sheek Adapters, by which motion pictures may be projected with Mazda incandescent lamps.

The new appliance, which Mr. Cudmore will personally introduce to New York, is the invention of Oscar M. Sheek, of Cleveland, one of the best known electrical engineers in the country. By his invention it is possible to use the Mazda incandescent lamps with the ordinary equipment in any motion picture theatre.

In discussing the merits of the Sheek invention with a number of electrical engineers who visited the Argus Company plant in Cleveland recently, Mr. Cudmore said he was confident that the new device was the most important step that had been taken ahead in the motion picture business in a number of years.
Long or Short Model Cornets?

By Edwin Franko Goldman. Reprinted by courtesy of Metronome

STYLE seems to play a prominent part in almost everything. The days of the flash are over, and theorman's change in cornets, too, although, of course, not as frequently as in the former. It seems strange to relate that in the making of string instruments, it is the ambition of the manufacturers to adhere as closely as possible to the models of the old masters who lived hundreds of years ago. Every possible attempt is made to secure the same precision measurable, the same lines, the same color.

In fact, every detail is as closely reproduced as human ingenuity can devise. This, of course, proves conclusively that until now no new model or design has been invented which is superior to the older ones.

The question therefore arises, "Why are there so many different models of cornets, and are the new ones really better than the old?" Until ten or twelve years ago, only the short model cornet was known, and while each manufacturer made an instrument that was somewhat different in design, they were all about the same in size. The difference in the models was only slight, too, in most instances. During the last years of innovating and improving, which almost facturers have entered the field all over the country, and the competition among them has become so keen that each is trying his utmost to outdo the others. This is in truth the reason for so many new and varied models.

Some years ago one firm produced what was known as a long model cornet. Immediately three others, another firm more that was still longer, and a third firm lost no time in making one of even greater length. To whom did these new instruments appeal? Not to the professional player, but to the amateur. It took a long time indeed before the professional would even try one of these new cornets. Most firms soon discontinued the shorter models entirely, and now after years of vigorous competition, some firms are beginning to advocate short model cornets again. What does this mean? It means that a good many manu facturers had gone beyond the limits. They began to make their cornets so long that they were really not cornets any more. In some instances, makers turned out instruments that were as long or longer than trumpets. Naturally, such instruments were not and could not be satisfactory. They were deficient in tone, and lacked the desired smoothness and flexibility.

It is, of course, true that in many instances the longer cornets are more handsome in model than the shorter ones, and are also superior in general appearance. In the case of long and improved cornets, it would be folly to say that all short model cornets are better than all long ones, or that all long model cornets are superior to short ones. This depends entirely upon the care and precision with which each instrument is made. Personally, I have used a short model cornet for twenty-six years, which has given me satisfaction in every possible detail. I still use it, but my long model cornet also meets all my requirements. It is only 15½ inches long (low pitch). No cornet should be much longer than this if the best results are desired. After all it is greatly a matter of personal taste.

When all is said and done, the designs, models, etc., may differ considerably, but few people realize that if all low pitch cornets were to be measured, it would be found that they all contained or should contain an equal amount of tubing. For instance, if the main tubing (exclusive of the three valve slides) were straightened out, it would be found to be about 53½ inches long. This applies to all low pitch Bb cornets, no matter whether they be of long or short model. The spread of the bell might make a slight difference, but this would not be very noticeable. In order to attain the proper pitch, the above-mentioned length of tubing is imperative. The Bb trumpet and the Bb fluegelnhorn contain the same amount of tubing as the Bb cornet. The tubing of the trumpet is differently distributed, and the bore is somewhat different, which results in another quality of tone. The compass and register of these three instruments are the same, and they differ only in tonal quality, due to the difference in bore and tubing. The cornet is conical and narrow in diameter.

Theatre Protection

I T is interesting to note the various requirements made by municipalities throughout the country concerning the construction and operation of motion picture theatres. Certain sections of the code in operation in Galveston, Texas, are worthy of note.

The control of the lights in the auditorium are of particular importance. These, as the ordinance says, are to be controlled from two sources. One the operating booth, and the other a convenient location accessible at all times. The keeping of extra film in the projection room in a metal box having a tight fitting cover, should be absolutely adhered to throughout the country, as it is only by means of this careful protection that we can be absolutely sure that risk through carelessness can be eliminated. The operating of the machine by hand is a thing of the past. The elimination of the motor drive by law is ridiculous, this in itself being a practical safety device as it allows the operator time to watch the lamp and the rest of the mechanism as it should be watched.

There are very few machines being put out today which are not equipped with a motor drive and those which have been put out without this convenience are being rapidly rejuvenated and brought up-to-date.

The equipping of the ports of the projection room with fireproof doors should always be done. The question, however, is whether it is possible to put up a combustible cord which will act quickly enough to close these ports before a panic has been started should fire occur. Many ingenious operators have arranged their own booth with far better contrivances than are suggested in this Galveston ordinance. The size of the door leading into the projection room can also be questioned. Whether it is feasible to limit the size, as has been done in the ordinance, is open for discussion. It should, however, be built of metal, and so arranged that, as the operator leaves it, it will trip and automatically close.

Below are extracts from the ordinance which should be of national interest.

ORDINANCE IN PART

That inside lights and all lights in halls, corridors or any part of the building used by the audience, except the general auditorium lights, shall be fed independently of the stage light and shall be controlled only from the lobby or other convenient place in the front of the house, and there shall be two circuits into the auditorium, one controlled by the operator in booth and one controlled from without the auditorium, in lobby or without the entrance.

That every portion of the building devoted to the use or accommodation of the public, all outlets leading to the streets, all open courts, corridors, hallways and exits shall be thoroughly lighted during every performance, and the same shall remain lighted until the entire audience has left the premises. One sixteen-candle power incandescent lamp or the equivalent thereof for every 400 square feet of floor surface is hereby ordained as sufficient illumination.

That each arc lamp, used as a part of the moving picture machine, shall be constructed and specified in the National Electrical Code, and the wiring of same shall not be of less capacity than No. 5, B. & S. gauge. All wiring inside of enclosure to be in conduit and all switches and cutouts in steel cabinets, except operator's switch to lamp which must be placed under machine supports. One reinforced extension cord permitted.

That rheostats shall conform to rheostat requirements of the National Electrical Code.

That top and bottom reels shall be encased in an iron box, which boxes shall have holes only large enough for films to pass through. No solder to be used in the construction of these boxes.

That the handle or crank used for operating the machine shall be secured to the spindle or shaft, so that there will be no liability of such handle or crank coming off or allowing the film to stop in front of the lamp.

That an automatic shutter shall be placed in front of the condenser, arranged so as to be closed normally.

That extra films shall be kept in a metal box having a tight fitting cover.

That all machines shall be operated by hand. Motor-driven machines are hereby prohibited.

That the picture machine shall be placed in an enclosure or house made of or lined with fire-proof material, thoroughly ventilated to the outside of the building, and large enough for the operator to walk freely on either side or back of the machine. Such enclosure or house shall have no openings into the auditorium other than the openings where the light for the picture is emitted. (To be not larger than six inches high by twelve inches long, and operator's window (to be not larger than twelve inches high by four inches wide), and these openings must be provided with fire-proof coverings or doors, arranged to close by strong springs, and to be held open by a fine combustible cord which shall be easily reach of the operator so that it can be released by hand, which doors must be constructed so that they can be securely closed. Furthermore, if the city electrical inspector shall decide that the arrangements are such as would require it, such doors must be so arranged that they may be released automatically. Only one entrance to enclosure permitted, same to be not over five and one-half feet in width, and such entrance shall open into some other part of the building or theatre than the main auditorium, and be arranged in accordance with the above requirements. No electrical pictures or material of any kind shall be permitted in the operating booth other than the picture machine and its accessories.

No audience of a greater number than the seating capacity of the auditorium shall be permitted in the auditorium during the operation of any moving picture machine, and no one (other than employees of electric theatre) shall be permitted to stand in the aisles. All aisles leading to exits shall be kept open and free of any obstruction and all doors of exit shall open outward.

All operators and assistant operators shall within a prescribed time after the passage of this ordinance appear before the city electrical inspector and each shall fully demonstrate his ability and fitness to operate moving picture machines. It shall be the duty of the said city electrical inspector to issue permits to all operators that may deem necessary. Each permit bearing a number, upon the payment of a small fee in each case, said fee to be credited to the fund set aside for employment of city electrical inspector. Within a few days after the passage of this ordinance no moving picture machine shall be operated by any person who has not secured a permit to operate, as above shown. Each operator or assistant operator shall before running any reel show on the screen a plate reading as follows:

"This machine is now being operated by Operator (or Assistant Operator). Permit No. __________ City of __________"

It shall be the duty of the city electrical inspector and the city fire marshal to make weekly inspections of each and every moving picture machine, its enclosure and the building containing same for the purpose of ascertaining any violations of this ordinance, and it shall be the duty of such officer to report immediately to the Mayor any violation of this ordinance.

All electrical work must conform to the requirements of the National Electrical Code.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CONNECTICUT

The municipal building department has issued a permit to P. Arthur King to make an interior alteration in the Hartford theatre building on Main street, at an estimated cost of $8,000.

IDAHO

Reports current for some days to the effect that Wallace is to have a new moving picture house, have been verified and articles of incorporation have been filed. The incorporators are L. C. Wilson, Herman J. Rossi and James A. Wayne. The authorized capitalization is $50,000.

Reports are that the showhouse will be built on the corner opposite the Press-Times office on Bank street and the full fifty feet of the two lots being used for the structure.

Reports current connect the names of Ellis L. Hale, Henry White, W. R.

ILLINOIS

A new theatre in course of construction at Stonington. The contractors have their scaffolds on the ground and will in a few days begin the brick work of the building. The theatre will be equipped with a four-story brick wall around three sides of the building. The foundation work has already been prepared for the work.

Manager Olson of the Orpheum Theatre, Galesburg, has announced that the theatre would be closed for a few weeks while the house is being thoroughly renovated and bells and Highland.

Mr. Olson plans to reopen the latter part of August under a new policy.

Since the close of the vaudeville season Mr. Olson has been showing pictures of a high grade.

We shall soon to have a new combination picture house. Messrs. Erickson & Son are the promoters.

The theatre at St. David is being remodeled and the seating capacity increased.

INDIANA

A Fine Arts theatre for Indianapolis and Indiana with stage and auditorium. This theater is being erected in that city where a demand now exists. The plans in connection with the theatre is a financial success. The Propylum of the Propylum will be the name of the new theatre and it is expected to be the largest in the state.

The theatre will be equipped with the best of picture equipment and will be open for business by January 1.

KENTUCKY

The Fern theatre, New Orleans, is a new place of amusement which will be second to none in the state. The theatre is to be erected on the site of the older theatre which was burned down a few months ago. The theatre will be equipped with the best of picture equipment and will have a seating capacity of 2,000.

Louisiana

The Old Pastime theatre at Alexandria has been purchased by Frank Wilson, an old-time exhibitor from Denver, Colo., and the building is to be entirely remodeled and opened under the new name of the Strand theatre. The Pastime theatre was formerly owned by C. F. Bode, but has been closed for some time. The location of the theatre is on the main street and the theatre is a great business in that there is an increased demand for pictures.

MISSOURI

The Tri-State Amusement Company of Meridian, Mass., has made arrangements for the opening of a new theatre at Atlantic City, and it is expected that the theatre will be ready for the opening of the fall season. The theatre will be equipped with the latest picture equipment and will have a seating capacity of 1,000.

The new house is to be under the management of C. R. Hatcher, an experienced exhibitor, and the theatre will be run in the modern style, having every appliance necessary for the perfect projection of pictures.

MISSISSIPPI

Frank G. Root, who has been operating the Eagle theatre, a motion picture theatre at New Orleans, La., has just completed a transaction whereby he becomes owner of the lot adjoining his house on South Broad street. The theatre will be situated between Lafayette and State streets, and his first step will immediately begin construction work on a modern and fireproof theatre building to be ready for the opening of the coming fall season. Mr. Root began his theatrical operations in a very small way, with a little house not seating more than 200 persons. It was not until the little house had to be deserted that he took care of his business, and now the new theatre has again become too small to accommodate the crowds that come to the theatre every week. The theatre has only the second house in the city.

The Melba Amusement Company has closed a transaction under the terms of which they will erect a modern motion picture theatre at South Madison street, St. Louis, a short distance east of Grand avenue. The building

Minn., under the management of George A. Rogers. Mr. Rogers is one of the best known supply men in the West; he was associated with the Western Supply Co. (now United Theatre Equipment Corporation), since its opening, and has been connected with F. A. Van Husan, the Omaha manager, for the past five years. The Minneapolis office is being well stocked with "everything of the best for the motion picture theatre except the film," so that prompt shipments will be assured.

United Theatre Office in Omaha

United Theatre Corporation will open a new theatre supply office at 16 North Seventh street, Minneapolis. Goods are in transit now, and it is expected business will be under way not later than the first of September.

George A. Rogers, manager of the Western Supply Co., of Omaha, a branch of the U. T. C., will go to Minneapolis as manager of the new branch. He was there last week and arranged for the location. The office will handle a complete line of Powers machines, Hallberg motor generator sets and current savers, a full line of novelties and all accessories used in and around motion picture theatres.

Rogers has been in the film business for over six years. He was assistant manager of the Laemmle Film Service Co. in Omaha before entering the accessory business when the Western Supply Co. was first started. Through his efforts that company has grown to be one of the leaders in that business in the Middle West.

Simplex Machines in World Demand

Numerous deals during the past two weeks have sent Simplex machines to Australia, China, England, France, Japan, Norway, the Philippines and South America.

The Simplex plant has been buzzing with activity, the motto in placing the machines being "from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand," and the resultant orders indicate that American projection is appreciated the world over despite war.

Important Announcement

The September 1st Issue of Motion Picture News going to exhibitors in the states of California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Arizona will contain a West Coast Edition comprising news and advertising text of particular and exclusive interest to localities in the above territory.

This sub-edition of MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be followed by similar issues in other centers of motion picture activity.

Individually these sub-editions enable us to come into closer editorial cooperation and closer personal touch with exhibitors than is possible in a magazine whose columns appeal equally to the entire country.

Collectively these sub-editions enable MOTION PICTURE NEWS to acquire the broadest and most intensive circulation possible in this field.

In other words this enterprising move of MOTION PICTURE NEWS will prove of benefit to the exhibitor everywhere, to the territorial exchanges, and to our national advertisers.

President demands Congress drop "war committee" plan
as a reflection on himself

Every time Woodrow Wilson refers to Abraham Lincoln

President demands Congress drop "war committee" plan
as a reflection on himself

By Louis Schomburg

WASHINGTON, July 23—Determined that the Administration shall be heard as was the Lincolnennes during the Civil War, President Wilson today formally intimated that he will veto the Food Control Bill if the section, opposed by the Senate, creating a Congressional commission to supervise the conduct and especially the expenditures of the war is not amended. It is "plainly to Congressmen that it will be to Congressmen to determine what course is to be pursued.

I am very much obliged to you for your thoughtful courtesy in stating to me the circumstances of the present action on the Food Administration Bill, and I am particularly obliged to you for calling my attention to section 23. I deem it my duty to express my opinion about the section and the effect upon the whole administration of the war very frankly indeed, since the public interest momentarily demands that a law which would so imperil the Administration be in such an extraordinary condition.

I cannot believe that those who proposed this section scrupulously have the best interests of the Administrations in mind; it with care or analyzed too fully what its operation would necessarily be. The constant supervision of executive action which it would mean to nothing less than an examination of the expenditures would amount to nothing less than an examination of the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Interior, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, the Postmaster General, the Commissioner of Corporations and the Commissioner of Patents.

There are in a very real way precedent in our history which shows such a departure of the spirit. The war of 1812 and the war of 1861, the War of the Spanish-American War, and the War of 1914, are examples of similar action. I am not, I do not believe, in any way questioning what might be the motives or the purposes or even the wisdom of the members of such a committee, I ask merely that I be permitted to carry on the war, that it is impossible for me to ask for any expenditure in the war.

In my experience in various capacities, I have observed that the public never realizes the magnitude of the expenditures until they are too late. It is impossible to bear the whole burden of the war, I am determined to exempt myself from the necessity of doing it.

Woodrow Wilson.

And that is almost daily while the great war lasts—the Benjamin Chapin Cycle of Lincoln Play's receives gratuitous advertising.
